Rains Continue To Fall Locally

Rains continue to visit the county to help in keeping vegetation green.

On Wednesday of last week a rain of .40-inch fell in a sudden downpour that lasted only a few moments. That shower was spotted even in Sanderson and did not even sprinkle on some of the country close to town. The shower seemed to be heavier to the north and some ranchers reported more than was gauged locally.

Thursday afternoon there was another rain that left about 1.6 inches of rain in most local rain gauges. The water fell suddenly and there was a fast run-off locally that almost got into some of the buildings on the south side of Oak Street between First and Second Streets.

This rain did not cover the extreme western part of Sanderson, but heavier rains were reported to the north and east.

There was some light hail that accompanied the downpour on Thursday, but no damage was reported from it. Some very light hail was also reported Wednesday.

A cloud which came up from the west Friday afternoon and another in the early evening left some moisture on ranches to the south as the cloud moved toward the east. Heavy lightning accompanied the clouds Friday.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEES OF DEMOS, GOPs ARE CHANGED

In other action in the Primaries, Terrell County has a new Democratic Committee chairman, W. W. Sudduth, who was unopposed on the ballot; Dan Riggs and David Mitchell were re-elected precinct committee men of the Democratic Party from precincts 2 and 3, though they were not on the ballot; and Charlie Turk and Charles Harris each received two votes in precinct 4 for that job. Mrs. H. E. Ezelle was on the ballot for re-election. Gary Bonine was named Republican County Executive Committee Chairman, and Jim Turner was named committee man from Precinct 1.

Mrs. Gatlins Son Works On Apollo

Work of a young man reared in Del Rio may become a part of mainline Apollo in the United States' project for landing a crew of men on the moon and returning them safely to earth.

He is Thomas L. Wilson, son of Mrs. H.E. Gatlin of Del Rio and the late Homer Wilson. A graduate of Del Rio High School, his average on graduation set a record that still stands, 97.43. He holds a degree in engineering from Rice University in Houston and is working with NASA in the flight crew support division at the Manned Spacecraft Center there.

He has devised a backup guidance steering scheme for the Saturn launch vehicle.

"Under certain conditions, the Saturn booster can get itself into trouble—and the flight crew along with it," Wilson explained.

"But I have revised the on-board computer program (designed at MIT) so that the astronaut can perform a Saturn takeover and fly the booster manually on into earth orbit.

"I have developed the technique during simulation runs with the Mission Control Center, utilizing their simulated rigid-body booster. Amco Research Center also is providing support for the idea, having prepared a special simulation of it in San Francisco—a simulation which is more realistic, because it accounts for body bending and fuel slosh.

"Several astronauts have already been sent to try it out," he explained.

"I want to qualify that the concept of booster takeover is not new with me," Wilson explained. "However, Saturn takeover during launch boost in Apollo is something that my work has made possible. The problem with the Saturn appears to be a serious one under certain failure conditions—and my fix for it may become a part of mainline Apollo."

Wilson spoke at the 20th annual Southwestern Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers conference in Houston April 17. The conference was in session April 17, 18 and 19.
