By Albert: ---
All you have to do is rattle the bushes around Sanderson, and some of the darndest things come out!

This was exemplified most plainly in the Fourth of July Arts & Crafts Show; it has been demonstrated at various times in the past at local talent shows; it has been shown when someone starts hunting a specific item for some special use, and it happened again most recently in an occasion involving BW.

She took up painting, as a past-time in her "too old for Girl Scouts" years, and found that she enjoyed coloring canvases and in a self-help effort talked to KOSA-TV's "Roscoe" on one of her trips to that city. He told her that he could come to Sanderson if there were as many as 12 persons willing to pay a minimum sum for a lesson a week for 10 weeks.

Well, with some reservations about the possibility of rounding up the 10-minimum, GF began trying and not only got 12 interested in art lessons locally, but there are several more who are very interested, but will have to wait another opportunity.

Can you imagine? Maybe Sanderson can be developed as some kind of an art center!

We thought that the display of arts and crafts at the Fourth shindig was fabulous. Think what it might be next year with more people interested.

And speaking of strange happenings -- we had to admire some people who several years ago had ambition, guts, and determination to commute to Alpine and either finish or start and complete their college work.

But someone has been rattling the bushes more and more and this year there is a record number (?) of commuters to Alpine for college work. Power to them!

Most local people are noticing the difference in the appearance of the hills around Sanderson since we have had some rains. And several of the ranchers of the area are proclaiming an abundance of grass like they have not had in many years. The water has really made a difference in the appearance of things.

And the humidity seems to have been higher this year than it ever has in the past. This is making a difference in the effectiveness of evaporative coolers, too.

We seem to wonder if the proximity of the large body of water - Lake Amistad - is making some of the difference.

We hoped that no reader would draw the conclusion that we were unalterably opposed to a lunch room at school after our remarks last week, and apparently none did, as we did not hear from anyone about that. We stated firmly that we did not know any circumstances or conditions upon which to base an

As Cadette Scouts, they had recently completed the requirements for First Class Scouts.

Other members of the Cadette Scouts attending were Debra Druse, Nancy Shoemaker, Ralene Thompson, Patti Hope and Gaye Ten Eyck.

Mrs. Dick Sullivan, co-leader with Mrs. Gilbreath of the Cadettes, assisted in serving refreshments of cold drinks, cheese straws and cookies.

Congressman O.C. Fisher
...visits Sanderson

Congressman O.C. Fisher of San Angelo visited Sanderson last week. Although Terrell County is just now becoming a part of the 21st District, which Fisher represents, the San Angelo lawmaker has many friends in this area with whom he has worked in behalf of wool, mohair, screwworm eradication, soil and water conservation, and related problems during the time he has been in Washington. He was author of the Amistad Dam project.

"I am delighted Terrell County will be in the 21st District," Fisher said. "We all have much in common in this area."

The meeting in Sanderson was arranged through the Lions Club with the Rotary Club joining them for the meeting, along with wives of the members and invited guests.

About 40 people gathered at the Oasis Restaurant Thursday evening of last week to hear the Congressman.

Rep. Fisher is a ranking member of the powerful House Armed Services committee. He has always been re-elected by overwhelming majorities. He has received many honors opinion at this time. There are circumstances and conditions which would make anyone or everyone opposed to such a facility.

There are times that we feel that some individuals or groups have been duped into something, and we know that we have been duped also at times. We do not like to think about those things, and when we are individually accused of having been duped it is an insult to our intelligence and we don't like that either.

If we individually look over our local facilities -- those that have been acquired with public funds or tax money -- there would be a multitude of individual opinions about which ones were good investments and which ones were wastes. Our opinions in respect sometimes differ from previous opinions -- and well we should learn from our experiences.

Some would think that an assessment of our needs and wants would be a staggering realization. This might be true in our personal lives or in our collective community lives. And it would be especially true if we let our desires and needs dominate our activity. But when a person or a community has some kind of restrictions on its needs and desires, then it seems that assessments and evaluations are in order.

continued from front page and recognitions. Among them, he is repeated recipient of National Associated Businessmen's "Watchdog of the Treasury Award." For 10 years in a row he has been given the Distinguished Service Award by the prestigious Americans for Constitutional Action (ACA). He was the first recipient of the Fred T. Earwood Memorial Award, presented to him by the Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association in 1969 for outstanding service to the industry.

As a hard worker, Fisher specializes in looking after his district, giving personal attention to every problem. He opposes pie-in-the-sky give-away schemes and he fights welfare to able-bodied people who refuse to work.

In his bid for re-election, Fisher stated that he would appreciate the support of all the voters and asked that they consider his past voting record as a guide to the type of representative he hoped to make for this district.

Mr. and Mrs. H.E. Gatlin were in Fort Stockton Tuesday for him to have a medical check-up.

Burglars Caught At Local Station

Rodrigo Perez, operator of the Chevron Truck Stop in Sanderson, caught two men in the act of burglarizing the cold drink machines in front of his station Wednesday night of last week.

Perez related this story to The Times: After closing the station, he drove to the post office to put some mail in the box, and when coming back by the station, saw someone at the cold drink machines. He stated that at first glance, he thought he knew who it was and was not concerned, but then realized that something probably was amiss. He drove around the block and turned his headlights onto the men who slammed the doors of the machines and jumped into a waiting car. He got the license number of the car and reported it to Deputy Sheriff Dalton Hogg. The car was apprehended in Alpine and the occupants returned to Sanderson.

Perez stated that the locks nor doors of the dispensing machines were broken and it appeared that some sort of master key was used to open the machines.

According to Justice of the Peace W.G. Shoemaker, he set bond at $1000.00 each on the two men and they were released after making bond with Sheriff Bill C. Cooksey.

SHERIFF RETURNS FROM SCHOOL IN FORT WORTH

Terrell County Sheriff Bill C. Cooksey returned last week from a 3-1/2-weeks school in Fort Worth at the Tarrant County Junior College. The school was sponsored by the Criminal Justice Council, a program funded by the federal government in cooperation with the state government.

The school afforded three hours of college work in each of the following subjects: psychology, sociology, and philosophy, or a total of nine hours of college work. The name of the course was "Insights Into Law Enforcement", according to Cooksey, who stated the courses did not go into the actual law enforcement work, but rather an understanding of, dealing with, and communication with the violators.

There were 17 in the class, all city officers except one sky marshal and Cooksey.
