It Depends on How You Look At It!

We continue to hear about sales of ranch land in Terrell County at what used to be "unheard of" prices! Seems like it might not be long until most of the ranch land in the county - if not already - will have been sold for "unreal" prices and that most of the land will be owned by non-resident owners.

One of the most futile discussions in the world, it appears to us, would be whether or not a person can get his money back on that kind of an investment by ranching or whatever use! Really, we don't see that this decision is ours or yours to make. It appears to us that the decision has been made already by the buyer, in agreement with the seller, that both are satisfied with the deal and that's all that matters!

We have heard that some ranchmen are concerned that so much country is "being taken out of production". We have heard quite the contrary - that very little of it is being taken out of production. But, whether or not it is being taken out of production of livestock or wool or mohair, there are some things that it will continue to produce - and some of them are: deer, and other wildlife, including predators.

But whatever the purchaser uses for the reasons for buying the land, the reasons and the money are his responsibility. Whether or not he can "make it" by paying those kinds of prices is also speculation! At least, that is how we see it!

Supt. Card Issues Statement, Policy On New Bus Route

The following is a statement of Supt. C.B. Card concerning the new bus route and the reasons for the school board's adopting their policy concerning students eligible to ride the bus: "In discussing the possibility of picking up ineligible bus students (students that do not live two or more miles from the school they attend) with Mr. Gabe Gilley, acting Director of Transportation with the Texas Education Agency, Mr. Gilley stated: 'If a bus stops for eligible bus students and three or four ineligible students board the bus, the consultant sent to approve the bus route would probably not say anything. There would be no way that you could leave the most direct route to the school to pick up students. It would not be possible to unduly extend the route in distance or time nor would it be possible to overcrowd the school bus.'

"The present board policy is that an ineligible bus student wants to ride the bus and he is at a regular bus stop he may ride the bus. Bus stops near the city are located at John Whistler III on US 285 and Highland Plaza and Ocotillo St. in Lomita Terrace. A stop is required on Arroyo St. before entering Highway 90." Mr. Card also has copies of the laws concerning the operation of school buses on regular routes, a copy of which will be given to any person interested in knowing what the law is. One copy was furnished The Times along with the statement of Mr. Card and the policy adopted by the board.

peaceful that it was previously.

That's Democracy in action. And we are proud that we are in that kind of a Democracy!

At this writing, for the information of out-of-town readers who are so nice to write and ask - dad has been hospitalized and mother has gone over to see about him.

The report from the doctor on Monday afternoon was that he is doing some better and there is a likelihood that he will be released from the hospital to go back to the nursing home in a few days.

We had some requests to print the proposed budget of the school district prior to the budget hearing Monday night. The request did not come from the school, but from patrons.

The budget is several pages long and is quite detailed and there are always some explanations that go along with the figures that help a person to understand the budget.

We referred those requests directly where we think they should be - to go by and pick up a copy of the budget and look it over and ask questions to clarify any points, and even go to the budget hearing to find out anything they did not previously understand.

We think that school patrons should be interested in things of this nature. We think they should go to the trouble to find out about the details of financing a school, where and how the money is obtained and how it is spent.

We were told by one person that it was our job to keep the public informed. There is no way that a paper can print all of the details of all of the various branches of government in which we are individually and collectively involved. It becomes the obligation of the citizen somewhere down the line to involve himself to the extent that he will do a little digging on his own and a little questioning to find out a few things.

The operating governmental bodies that come to mind instantly that affect us all are Commissioners Court, Trustees of the Terrell County Independent School District, County School Board members, Water District Board members, Soil Conservation District board.

Our mention of the fact that they affect us all could be misunderstood by some who think they have no connection

KERR'S

COMMENTARY ON THE HOLY SCRIPTURES
Dr. Edward Lang Jr.

JOSHUA

In war against the Israelites, King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon captured the city of Jerusalem. He laid siege to the city and in the most terrible tragedy the Israelites had ever suffered he brought the Hebrew people down to the depths of depravity. Utterly degraded by their own efforts for survival, the Jews were forced to surrender their capital city. Their leaders were taken into captivity. No event in all history down to modern times has had so profound an effect upon the thinking of Jewish people. Only the holocaust of World War II in which six million Jews were killed is a tragedy of equal consequence. Why did it happen? Why did God allow his own city to fall?

The writer of Joshua and its editors made an effort to explain the fall of Jerusalem in their telling of Jewish history. The book of Joshua is an account of the settlement of the Promised Land. Woven throughout is an explanation of why the nation was eventually to fall. The key passage of the book is 23:6-8: "Therefore be very steadfast to keep and do all that is written in the book of the law of Moses, turning aside from it neither to the right hand nor to the left, that you may not be mixed with these nations left here among you, or make mention of the names of their gods, or swear by them, or serve them, or bow down yourselves to them, but cleave to the Lord your God as you have done to this day." This is the point upon which to develop an understanding of Joshua. The Israelites were commanded to obey God and to turn to no other. Ultimately it was a failure to keep faith with God that led to the destruction of Jerusalem.

The book of Joshua begins with the statement that after Moses had died, God began to speak to Joshua in the same manner that he had spoken to Moses. To show that Joshua now stood in the position of Moses, the writer gives account of events which are repetitions of the experiences of Moses. For Moses, God parted the waters of the Red Sea and led the people across on dry ground. For Joshua, God parted the waters of the River Jordan and led the people across on dry ground (3:16). Moses saw a burning bush and heard the voice of God. Joshua saw a man with a sword and by the voice of this angel heard God (5:13). At the Battle of Sihon, Moses held out his rod and the people got a great victory. At the Second Battle of Ai, by the command of God, Joshua held out his rod and the people had a victory (8:18). By using this scheme of repetition, the writer is telling us that God was working with Joshua just as he had been present for Moses. For us, this repetition is important. It shows us the continuity of God's presence with his people.

This history of God at work in the midst of his people was vital to the faith of the Israelites. Upon crossing the Jordan River, Joshua took twelve stones from the river bed and set up a memorial. That heap of stones would always remind the Jewish people that God had given them a great blessing (4:20). The Jewish people kept their history as a testimony to work that God had done among them.

The Jews were not the only ones to see history as a work of God. Joshua sent spies into the city of Jericho. These men were aided in their escape from the city by a harlot named Rahab. Rahab was convinced that God directed events in behalf of the Israelites. "I know that the Lord has given you this land... For we have heard how the Lord dried up the water of the Red Sea before you when you came out of Egypt, and what you did to the two kings of the Amorites that were beyond the Jordan, to Sihon and Og, whom you utterly destroyed... for the Lord your God is he who is God in heaven above and on earth beneath" (2:9-11). We must learn to look at life through the eyes of Rahab. The course of events in history is the activity of God. The blessings of history that have come to God's people are the foundation of our faith.

Regrettably, the Hebrews mixed sin and error with their history and lost the favor of God. They had been commanded by God to enter the Promised Land, to destroy all its inhabitants, and to make no bargains with any of the people living in that land. The people broke this commandment even before crossing the Jordan River. Because Rahab helped the spies to escape, they made an agreement promising to spare this harlot and her family. With the conquest of Jericho, Rahab was allowed to live unharmed. Later, the people of Gibeon worked a hoax upon the Israelites and brought them into a second agreement against the will of God. Seeing the history of Jewish conquest, the Gibeonites were frightened and wanted to make a treaty. They sent representatives dressed as if they had been on a long journey. Thinking them from a great distance and no threat, the Jews made a treaty. Although the story of Chapter Nine is amusing, this treaty was blatant disobedience of God. From the beginning of their life in the holy land the Jews broke the commandments of God. To the writer of Joshua it was no wonder that the Israelites would lose the blessings of God and suffer a history of tragedy.

The Hebrews had been commanded by God to destroy all the cities of the land and to kill all their inhabitants. They were commanded to avoid completely the religions of the land. The Jews did not capture every city; they did not destroy the people of the land; and they did involve themselves in local religions. They failed to keep the commandments of God and Jerusalem fell. Surely you can apply this lesson of history to your own situation and to that of our nation.

With a story in Joshua, for the first time the New Testament becomes crucially important. From this point forward in the Bible, there will be a yearning for coming of Christ. Achan, the thief who stole the devoted goods from Jericho, confessed his sin. But there was no forgiveness. He was killed. (Ch. 7) Those who have sinned need the sacrifice of Jesus Christ and the forgiveness that comes through faith in him. The events of Jewish history now turn their direction toward a climax which comes with the Messiah.
