Devil Golfers Take 10-Shot Lead Opening Round of District 6-A Play

As had been expected, the Rankin High School Red Devil Golf team moved into first place in District 6-A standings when they posted a team total of 305 in their opening round in ideal conditions last Saturday on Rankin Country Club Links. Making a strong showing and finishing in first place for the first round in District 6-A action was the RHS B team, posting a total of 351. As had been expected, the team was well in contention for the top spot, finishing with a team total of 315 and placing third.

Medalist for the tournament was Rankin's Gary Varnadore with a two-under-par round of 70. One shot back was Iraan's Dannie O'Bannon at 71, with Rankin's Russell Wimberley in 3rd place with a 74. Extra One-Cent Sales Tax Starts Tuesday in Rankin

Last October 8, the residents of Rankin voted 130-27 to impose a one-cent city sales tax on themselves in lieu of facing possible added property taxes and gas, water, sewer and trash service charge hikes. At the time of the balloting, it was understood that the tax would go into effect on January 1, 1975. However, due to a ruling handed down by the State Comptroller, it was determined that the tax would not start until April 1, 1975.

Next Tuesday is payday — of sorts. That being April 1, local business firms will begin using a new 5-cent sales tax chart, in place of the present 4-cent one. Only items presently affected by the State Sales Tax will be subject to the extra penny. Food, gasoline and certain other items and services will not come under this category.

On a one dollar sale, Rankin shoppers will pay only one penny extra. However, due to the way the 5-cent sales tax chart is set up, the tax on an item presently costing 30-cents will double—from one cent to two cents. Also, the first penny tax will begin with a dime purchase instead of the present 15-cent starting point.

These new sales tax charts have been distributed by the City to local business firms. Any who did not get one may pick them up, free of charge, at the City Hall. Rankin now joins over 2700 other towns and cities—large and small—in Texas that have the one-cent city tax. Their first money is expected to be received around September 1 of this year.

In a study of amounts received by these cities, as compiled by the Comptroller's office, it is almost impossible to estimate how much it will be worth to Rankin in added revenue. Cities of similar size show a large spread in the amounts they receive—some getting only a few hundred dollars each quarter; others receiving substantially large sums.

In a letter sent out by Mayor J. B. Pettit, Jr., he points out the fact that "It is our hope to better meet the needs of our community and to keep the city moving forward into an era of prosperity and growth." (With the help of the tax)

"Your support in helping make this possible is greatly appreciated and we (the City Council) will try to live up to the confidence . . . the people of this community have placed in us," states the Mayor's letter.

Absentee Voting Ends Next Tuesday in City, School and Hospital Elections

Next Tuesday, April 1 will be the final day for those wishing to cast ballots in the school, city and hospital elections by use of the absentee method. A 5:00 p.m. deadline will apply to all absentee voting places. The election will be on Saturday, April 5.

For the City, there are six candidates seeking three seats open on the Council. For Rankin Schools, four seats have only incumbents running while the fifth slot has drawn three contestors. All three seats open on the Hospital Board are untested. As of Wednesday morning, a check on absentee voting showed the schools with 37 ballots cast, the city had 18 and the hospital had not scored up to that time.

All absentee voting done in person must be during regular office hours which are from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m., Monday thru Friday.

TIME —

The Rankin (Texas) News —
Thursday, March 27, 1975

According to Rep. Tom Cradick's report from Austin last week, there's something like 1700 bills now before the Texas Legislature. It is beyond comprehension how in the world any state could possibly need 1700 laws—we may have that many or more already—to add to those now in force. It's also beyond human possibility for the members of the Legislature to properly study even a fraction of these proposed new laws before taking any action on them. For that matter, I'd have wagered a good golf ball that it wouldn't have been possible to even write up and introduce that number of bills in the time the Legislature has been in session.

Be all that as it may, some of these bill will become new laws on the books for Texans and most of us will never know ...that an hour is to be only 30 minutes long—that way we could have 48 hours in a day—but there still wouldn't be any more time.

By an act of nature, the sun comes up and the sun goes down and even law makers can not change that—we all know what happens when you try to fool Mother Nature. Daylight Saving Time is nothing in the world but a political gimmick that has been used from time to time to make it look like those in high places are "doing something" about this or that particular emergency—just as it was used during our so-called energy crisis.

I would propose to the gentlemen in Austin that they pass yet one more bill. This one would be an election for the State of Texas and the only question on the ballot would be: "Do you or do you not favor Daylight Saving Time?" Attached to the bill would be a provision or rider or whatever it's called that would make the results of that election the law in Texas—forever.

That way we could at last get the matter settled and that would—hopefully—be the end to this dumb business of always yapping about something that's really not there in the first place. But I don't expect such a law to come about. If it did, more than a few politicians—in Washington and Austin— would have to find a new platform and one that would get them as many votes as the Daylight Saving Time question — either for or against—doesn't come up very often.

FOR THE BIRDS —

With the local lamb crop now about complete, most of the area ranchers are counting up their tally and finding that—as a whole— it has been a good spring lamb crop with some reporting as high as 130 percent. And some still maintain that it would have been even better if it hadn't been for loses to eagles. But, as we all know, eagles are a very scarce bird and are not much for eating such critters as lambs.

We know that, that is, if we believe the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. According to their latest figures, received in Monday's mail, the endangered bald eagle population is holding its own and even increasing somewhat. A survey of eagle nests made in February by wildlife biologist John Smith revealed . . . the statewide total of five pairs of nesting, adult bald eagles. The five nests contained seven fledgling eagles and, according to Smith, this is the best reproduction of eagles in Texas in the past eight years.

"We cannot account for the increase in reproduction but an examination of food parts found in the nests indicates that the eagles are changing their diet from fish to birds and small mammals," Smith says.

And area ranchers will be glad to know that the eagle nests are far from West Texas. Two are located in the Victoria area, two in the Houston area, and one new nest was found in Orange County. The U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service got into the act and paid for some 60 hours of fixed-winged aircraft time in February, which led to the discovery of the Orange County nest. The TP&WD picked up the tab for two days of helicopter time surveying the four known nests.

And there you have it ranchmen. Those big birds with six or seven foot wing spans that you have been seeing around your lambs—even the dead lambs that are near the birds—surely must be just Texas-size black-birds. Eagles are hard to find and a lamb is not a mammal—I don't think—and besides that, if there were any eagles, they would probably get run over by all those fixed-winged aircraft and helicopters being flown around by the Wildlife people. It's all for the birds.

REDDY'S REFRIGERATOR SAVINGS TIPS

Don't open refrigerator door unnecessarily. Plan your trips to the refrigerator while cooking. Make sure the children maintain a closed-door policy.

Buy the size that fits your needs. An over-large refrigerator or freezer wastes space as well as electricity.

Clean external coils, fins and motor often and keep them free from dust.

Defrost your refrigerator and freezer before ice deposit exceeds 1/4 inch. Excess ice causes your refrigerator to work harder.
