Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Shelton were installed as Worthy Matron and Worthy Patron of Morton Chapter No. 841 O.E.S. Friday night in the Masonic Lodge.

Other officers installed were: Ada Long, Associate Matron; Joe Gipson, Associate Patron; Mrs. Ona Payne, Secretary; Mrs. Marie Dupler, Treasurer; Mrs. Marie Toombs, Conductress; Mrs. Winnie Mae Byars, Associate Conductress; Mr. Hetford Rowland, Chaplain; Mrs. Beulah Toombs, Marshal; Mrs. Lois St. Clair, Organist; Mrs. Hattie Tyson, Ada; Mrs. Mrs. Williams, Ruth, Mrs. Lena Gipson, Mrs. Jo Ann Watts, Martha; Mrs. Sophia Moore, Electa; Clifford Moore, Butler and Fred Payne, Sentinel.

Installing officers were Mrs. Mozelle Reynolds, Mrs. Jessie Lindsey, Mrs. Billye Miller, Mr. Hessie B. Spotts and Mr. N. C. Shelton.

N. C. Shelton and Zeb Payne were can-delighters and Ivy Jay Shelton presented the Bible.

J. Wayne McDermott sang "Surely Goodness and Mercy" and "How Great Thou Art."

Following the installation ceremonies, a reception was held in the dining room.

Council agenda 'action-packed'

The awarding of bids on a new police cruiser and for the installation of new heating and air conditioning facilities for city hall building were the main items for consideration on an action-packed city council agenda Monday night.

West Chevrolet, of Levelland, was the winner of the police car bid out of a total of eight automobile agencies that were entered in the competition. West won on a low bid of $3,521 gross with a trade-in of $1,250 for a presently owned Morton police car for a net bid of $2,271. This bid was approximately $600 lower than the average bid submitted.

Forrest Lumber Company's bid of $1,519 for a complete new heating and refrigerated air conditioning system was accepted by the council, following study of bids submitted by Higgenbotham-Bartlett Lumber Company for $1,692.35 and by Great Plains Natural Gas for $2,460.24. The Great Plains bid was for a gas system and the other two were for electrical systems.

Bids for extensive repair and remodeling of the building were also studied but all bids were rejected due to a change in specifications introduced by the council. New bids, based upon the additional specifications, will be received until June 28, at which time they will be opened at the regular meeting of the council.

HIS DAY IS COMING . . .

MONARCH OF ALL HE SURVEYS — that's Dad when he has his adoring children's affection to make him feel like a king. His day is coming Sunday, Father's Day, when Dads everywhere are accorded that extra attention and affection that makes them so proud to bear the title of father. Fred Payne was receiving a little preliminary attention when the camera caught him with son Zeb, 11, and Sandra Lee, 5, as he was discharging one of his fatherly responsibilities of mowing the lawn. All three appear to be looking forward eagerly to his 'big day' Sunday.

Marijuana — Innocent?

(Second in a Series)

Marijuana is probably the best known drug to most parents because for years we have been hearing about it. Marijuana has long been in use in what we now term minority groups, but now it has spread across the land like cancer. Its manufacture and distribution is, of course, prohibited by law except for approved research purposes.

Marijuana is the dried flowering or fruiting top of the plant Cannabis Sativa, L., commonly called Indian Hemp. Usually it looks like fine, green tobacco. It is smoked in pipes or cigarette form. Hashish, also a preparation from Cannabis, is taken orally in many forms, and infrequently it is made into candy, sniffed in powder form, mixed with honey for drinking or with butter to spread on bread. The primary effect is a feeling of great perceptiveness and pleasure and an exaggerated sense of ability, resulting from even small doses. Erratic behavior, loss of memory, distortion of time and spatial perceptions, and hilarity without apparent cause occur. There is a marked unpredictability of effect.

Of course, these reactions are usual in the user of alcohol, too, but with the drug user there is no alcoholic breath odor. Breath odor though is most always unpleasant.

★ Basketball

Youth of the various churches are invited to come out Sunday nights after services for a game of basketball.

Last Sunday the First Baptist Church downed the First United Methodist by a score of 29 to 23.

Roger Posey, Youth Director at the First Baptist Church, has announced a tournament will be played in four weeks. The games are held in the high school gym.

Local student awarded scholarship by college

John H. Fincannon, 1971 Morton High School graduate, has been awarded a college scholarship to South Plains College, Levelland.

The scholarship provides for half of his tuition fees for each semester of his freshman year. John received notification of the award in a letter from SPC Academic Dean Dr. Nathan Tubbs.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Fincannon of Morton.

Don Butler graduates from Border Patrol school with honors

Don Butler, 27, of Morton, was graduated today from the United States Border Patrol Academy at Los Fresnos, Texas, and will perform duties as a Patrol Agent in the McAllen Border Patrol Sector.

Patrol Agent Butler was a member of the 99th Session of the Border Patrol Academy and was one of 77 new officers successfully completing the intensive academy course in Immigration and Nationality laws and regulations, Spanish language, duties and authority to act, court procedures, civil rights, physical training, and other studies involving the duties of patrol officers.

Variety of criminal offenses give law officers busy week

A grain company office break-in and several other offenses kept Morton area law enforcement agencies on their toes during the past week.

The break-in and burglary occurred some time Friday night or early Saturday morning at the Beseda and Son grain company office in Whiteface. The intruders jimmied the front door to the office to make their entrance and made off with four cans of Treflan. Sheriff's reports indicate that the Treflan was the only property missing. The burglary was reported Saturday morning to Deputy Sheriff Joe Hodge of Whiteface by Larry Beseda, manager of the company.

In other law enforcement action, Ferris Hall, 68, of Whiteface is free on bond after being charged with two offenses of swindling by worthless check. He pled guilty in county court to the lesser of the two charges and was fined $10, was ordered to make full restitution and assessed $39 in court costs. His bond on the other charge was set in district court at $500 and he was freed June 10 after posting the bond.

Johnnie Cornish, 33, of Enochs, was freed on $250 bond set in county court following a charge of swindling by worthless check June 12. Cornish was charged with passing a worthless check in the amount of $38 to Allsup 7-11 store in Morton.

Lossie Jordan Jr., of Levelland was still in sheriff's custody Wednesday after being fined $100 and assessed $39 court cost for carrying a pistol.

Five Slaughter sons 'individualists'

BY DAVID MURRAH

The five men strode across the sandy ground toward the distant earthen tank just as the sun was setting on a typically hot Cochran County day in August of 1914, just 57 years ago this summer. The place was not so unique, but the men and the event were.

Two of the five were obviously grizzled cowboys, their unnatural gait on foot indicated that they had spent much of their lives in the saddle. The other three emitted a bookish, college-educated image, armed with notebooks and records.

The event? That summer day marked the first and one of the only executive sessions of the board of directors of the C. C. Slaughter Cattle Company that was ever held at the headquarters of the vast Lazy S Ranch of Cochran and Hockley Counties.

The men all enjoyed the distinct status of being sons of the famed Cattle King of Texas, C. C. Slaughter, and had gathered at the ranch all at the same time for the first time.

Three years before, in 1911, the aging Colonel Slaughter had relinquished control of the quarter million acres to his wife and nine children, as he had planned to do for many years. Establishing what he wanted to be a "living insurance policy" that would forever be undivided, Colonel Slaughter had bought the vast stretch of Llano Estacado prairies beginning in 1898 and had developed the ranch into a highly profitable venture. But after the land debt had been retired, he turned over the full ranch operation to his five "boys," the directors of the C. C. Slaughter Cattle Company.

The two oldest of the brothers, George and Bob, had ranched for many years, both having served as managers for their father's vast West Texas ranches. The other three, Dick, C. C. Jr., and Al, although they had worked on the ranches, had won college degrees and had worked in the Colonel's Dallas office on various occasions.

For many years, the ranch's financial operation was run from Colonel Slaughter's office in his Slaughter Building in Dallas. In 1914, the three younger boys still maintained offices there, while George resided in Roswell, and Bob in Midland.

But for three days that August of 1914, they had all been roaming the ranch under the guidance of its manager and their eldest brother, George.

George Slaughter was somewhat put out with his brothers (actually, C. C., Jr.,

ay rural highway accident toll light

The Texas Highway Patrol investigated accidents on rural highways in Cochran County during the month of May, according to Sergeant H. E. Pirtle, Highway Patrol supervisor of this area. These crashes resulted in no person killed and four persons injured. The rural traffic accident summary for Cochran County during the first five months of 1971 shows a total of 19 accidents resulting in two persons killed and 22 persons injured.

The rural traffic accident summary for Cochran County of the Lubbock Department of Public Safety Region for May, 1971 shows a total of 543 accidents resulting in 23 persons killed and 354 persons injured. This was 89 more accidents, six more fatalities, and 78 more injured than during April.

The 23 traffic deaths for the month of May, 1971 occurred in the following counties: Montague and Parker with three each; Archer, Palo Pinto and Oldham with two each; Dickens, Haskell, Hockley, Wise, Young, Armstrong, Cottle, Deaf Smith, Gray, Potter and Randall with one each.

Variety of activities planned for TTU swine short course

A market hog show and gilt selection contest, lectures on the latest advancements in swine production and tours of Texas Tech University's recently opened swine teaching and research facilities will highlight activities of the 19th annual Swine Short Course expected to attract more than 200 persons to the Tech campus July 8-9.

The short course, co-sponsored by Texas Tech and the Texas Pork Producers Association, will also feature something for the ladies — a "Make It Yourself With Pig Suede" workshop under sponsorship of the Texas Porkettes on July 8.

Weighing in of market hogs will get the short course under way at 8:30 a.m. Thursday (July 8), to be followed immediately by judging. Entry deadline for the market hog show is July 5, and producers are limited to one entry each ranging in weight from 200 to 240 pounds. Date of farrow will be required.

Judges for the show will be Tech Animal Science Prof. Max Lennon, T. D. Tanksley from the Animal Science Department at Texas A&M University, and James Stuart of the Farm Pac Kitchens in Lubbock.

Next will come the gilt selection contest with Lennon, Tanksley and Larry Tackitt, a pork producer from Happy, as judges.

According to Dr. Leland Tribble, animal science professor and swine specialist at Texas Tech, the purpose of both the show and contest "is more educational than competitive." He said the hogs in the market hog show would be slaughtered for use in a later carcass data lecture and that the gilt selection contest would "point out some things producers should look for and consider in choosing breeder stock."

Dr. Sam E. Curl, associate dean of Tech's College of Agricultural Sciences, will preside over the afternoon session July 8. Highlighting the session will be a lecture on baby pig disease problems by Dr. Robert F. Behlow, Extension Service veterinarian from North Carolina.

The afternoon session will also feature Southwestern Public Service swine specialist Carter Snodgrass speaking on factors influencing production costs; ACCO Feeds nutritionist Gene Waddill of Abilene discussing feed additives for swine; Tech Agricultural Engineering Prof. Walter Grub examining swine building ventilation, and Raymond Mittell of the Texas Water Quality Board in Lubbock discussing water quality control in relation to the swine industry.

There will also be a review of pork producer activities on the state level by Texas Pork Producers president John Fair of Gunter, and on the national level by National Pork Producers Council president Euel Linder of Lubbock.

A progress report on swine research being done at Texas Tech University will kick off activities for the second day of the short course on July 9, presented by Lennon, Dr. Tribble, James McManigal of the Tech Animal Science staff and John McNeill of West Texas State University at Canyon.

Then, at 9:30 a.m., Dr. Behlow will again address the meeting with a discussion of general swine health problems. The session will also feature a report on services available at the Texas Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Laboratory by Dr. W. L. Schwartz of College Station, and a lecture on selection of breeding stock by Dr. Lauren Christian of Iowa State University. A question and answer session will follow.

At the afternoon session on July 9, Tech Animal Science Prof. Keith Lind will present carcass data from the previous day's market hog show, and gilt selection contest winners will be named. Presiding over the session will be Dr. C. B. Ramsey of Texas Tech.

The course activities will conclude with tours of Tech's new swine facilities composed of three buildings which were completed last November at a cost of more than $14,000. The complete confinement facilities feature a sow-house for breeding, a farrowing-nursery combination and a growing and finishing house.

The facilities are designed to handle a 96-sow herd. The farrowing house will handle 32 sows at one time.

Mrs. Roy Poage of Slaton, president of the West Texas Porkettes, will preside over the pigskin workshop to be conducted in conjunction with the short course on July 8: "Make It Yourself With Pig Suede."

"Pig suede is beautiful, flexible both in texture and versatility and brightly colored," Mrs. Poage pointed out. "The uses are practically limitless — garments, purses, shoes, belt, jewelry, pillows, boutique items just to name a few."

She added that sewing machines, thread, needles and other necessary items will be provided. A banquet and Pig Suede Style Show will cap the activities July 8 (Thursday) in the University Center Ballroom on the Tech campus.

SAYING SAD FAREWELL . . .

THE GRIM FACTS OF LIFE, along with the advantages of being a goat owner rather than a goat, were about to be demonstrated when the above photo was taken last Thursday on the square in Morton. Sr. Matias Lopez, of near Hobbs, New Mexico, had exhausted all efforts to sell his three-year-old goat and had steeled himself for the trip to the Morton Packing Company where the animal, of whom Lopez had admittedly become very fond, would be processed into meat for his family's consumption. "I would much rather sell him, even at a low price," Lopez said, "but no one will buy and I have too many others to feed." Such is life on the farm.

COUNTY AGENT NEWS

From the Office of Roy L. McClung, Jr.

(Editor's Note: This is the fourth in a series of news articles on narrow-row cotton production.)

If any one thing could be singled out as the key to successful narrow-row cotton production on the High Plains this year, it would have to be weed control, believes Dr. Dudley Smith, research scientist at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center at Lubbock. His weed control research program is supported by Cotton, Inc. and Plains Cotton Growers, Inc.

"Weed control is essential in cotton planted in narrow rows since the crop cannot be cultivated once it is planted," points out Smith. "The wisest choice a producer of narrow-row cotton can make is to select a field that is relatively weed-free. Areas infested with perennials such as Johnsongrass, whiteweed and blue-weed should be avoided as well as fields where morningglory, cocklebur, devil's claw and pig melon are severe problems."

The many producers who have already incorporated a preplant herbicide such as Treflan or Planavin are ahead in the game of weed control, Smith points out. However, these herbicides do not control some annual broadleaf weeds such as morningglory and devil's claw.

"Producers who have not applied a preplant herbicide can still plant narrow-row cotton and then follow with a premerge chemical such as Caparol, Karmex or Lasso. These materials have worked well in close-spaced cotton but should be sprayed before weed and cotton emerge. They can be applied directly behind the planter to save a trip over the field."

Premerge herbicides should be applied according to the manufacturer's recommendations, as is the case with all chemicals, cautions Smith. Some cotton injury may occur on light, sandy soils or following heavy rains or sprinkler irrigation right after planting.

"The main objective of a good weed control program is to get the cotton off to a good start, ahead of the weeds," says Smith. "Producers should strive for a weed-free seedbed. But, if small weeds pop up before planting, use tillage or apply premerge herbicides. Add surfactant to Caparol or Karmex or spray Paraquat ahead of Lasso."

Once the cotton becomes established in narrow rows, the plants develop a total shade canopy. This reduces the amount of sunlight reaching the soil, thus "shading out" many small weeds.

"For those weeds that manage to survive and infest the cotton, application of a postmerge herbicide is a possibility," points out Smith. "An experimental spray rig has been developed at the A&M Center that works well in narrow-row cotton without damaging the plants. Much of the work on this sprayer was done by Alan Brashears, USDA agricultural Engineer. The rig mounts on the tool bar and has trailing angle-iron fingers. Flooding nozzles mounted on these fingers spray a 40-inch wide path. The trailing fingers are 20 inches apart and move freely around and between cotton plants."

Details on the sprayer as well as other information on weed control can be obtained at the Texas A&M Center, Route 3, Lubbock.

Electrical power needs in Cochran county said growing rapidly

In what shape will Cochran County be this summer with respect to its electric power needs? Will the local area be faced with the power shortages that are in prospect in many sections of the country

The situation is so critical, nationally, that President Nixon called his cabinet into special session recently to devise steps that might be taken to ease the expected summer crisis and to discuss ways and means to provide for the steadily rising demand for electricity.

The demand double in the United States every 10 years or so, the Federal Power Commission's figures show.

In the area embracing Cochran County, residential consumption alone rose about 22 percent in just 5 years.

Despite the efforts made by most utility companies in the country to add new generating units to cope with this rapidly expanding demand, they have been unable to keep abreast. It takes a long time and a big investment to build new power facilities.

As a result, according to John A. Carver, Jr., of the Federal Power Commission, "a crisis exists right now. For the next three decades we will be in a race for our lives to meet our energy needs."

In Cochran County, the amount of current required for residential consumption has jumped because of the great increase in the number of electrical appliances that have come into use in recent years.

In a period of five years the rise in the local area was from 9,000,000 kilowatt hours annually to a high of approximately 11,000,000 kilowatt hours. Per household, the average went from 4,995 to 7,574.

Elsewhere in the United States, the average consumption per household is 6,430 kilowatt hours. It is 7,240, on average, in the West South Central States.

The figures are exclusive of the amount required for commercial, industrial and municipal purposes.

Shortages are expected to occur this summer in many parts of the country. Voltage drops may effect TV reception, air conditioners, electric razors, elevators, X-ray machines and other equipment.

The penultimate day of the month is the next to the last day.

Regional cotton cooperatives form world-wide sale force

Four large regional cotton cooperatives marketing 25 percent of U. S. cotton production from the Carolinas to California have agreed to merge their world-wide sales forces into one organization effective July 1, according to an announcement by Plains Cotton Cooperative Association in Lubbock.

The new organization will be known as Amcot and will operate through offices in Charlotte, North Carolina; Greenville, South Carolina; Atlanta, Georgia; Brussels, Belgium; Osaka, Japan; Seoul, Korea and Hong Kong.

Russell Kennedy, Chairman of the Board of the new sales organization and President of Calcot, stated at a press conference that, "Opportunities for improved grower returns through broader market coverage, better market coordination and economies of scale prompted Calcot, Ltd., Plains Cotton Cooperative Association, Staple Cotton Cooperative Association and Southwestern Irrigated Cotton Growers Association (SWIG) to establish the joint sales organization."

General offices of each farmer-owned association will maintain individual sales programs and responsibilities with their organization expects to move to added services for customers based upon each buyer's requirements."

Serving on Amcot's Board of Directors will be G. L. Seltz, Bakersfield, California; Dan Davis, Lubbock, Texas; C. R. Sayre, Greenwood, Mississippi; and Edward Breihan, El Paso, Texas. Each is the Chief Executive Officer of his respective regional association.

Dan Davis, General Manager of PCCA stated, "The four regional associations operate in every major cotton production region of the United States. The volume of cotton that will be sold through Amcot will be the largest block of cotton produced in the U. S. Furthermore, it will improve the sales efficiency of each of the four associations, allow improved ser-

Marine recruiting station is moved

The U. S. Marine Corps Recruiting Station for the South Plains area has been moved from 1009 13th Street to Room 101 of the new Federal Building at 1205 Texas Ave., Lubbock, according to GYSGT T. Booth, non-commissioned officer-in-charge. The office hours are eight to five daily. The phone number at the new office is 747-3711, extensions 605 and 609.

Services to our customers, and provide larger net returns to our grower-members. Davis pointed out, "The sales staff of each office will be drawn from each association's sales personnel."

PCCA handles a substantial amount of cotton for Texas and Oklahoma growers and this will add to the excellent marketing efforts that PCCA members have come to expect. This plan was presented to PCCA's Board of Directors and was enthusiastically endorsed.

Both the highest and the lowest points above sea level in the United States are in California.
