Fischer Closing His Campaign for Gov.

Dallas, Tex., July 15.—F. W. Fisher of Tyler, regarded by a majority of the State's newspapers as a virtual certainty for a position in the second primary to select a governor of Texas, re-enters South Texas next week to close his pre-July 25 election campaign.
Fischer, just concluding his campaign in Central and East Texas, will speak in Dallas on Friday night July 17, and Fort Worth Saturday night, July 18, before returning to Houston and the Beaumont area. His addresses in Dallas and Houston on the night of July 24 will be broadcast over a statewide radio hookup, embracing stations at Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, and San Antonio.

First heckling of the gubernatorial campaign came during a recent Fischer talk at Waco where Alfred men failed in an attempt to interrupt a rally which drew the largest crowd of any political rally in that city this year. The Alfred representatives attempted to interrupt Fischer's speech with loud yells, but were booted away by the crowd of several thousand hearing the East Texan's address.

Fischer has repeatedly rapped the "governor for mis-statement" of the government's attitude toward the old age pension question in Texas. In refuting Alfred's statements that Texans would not receive aid from Washington if all of the State's old people entitled to pensions were paid, as provided in the constitution, Fischer has pointed to a telegram in the House Journal at Austin from a member of the Social Security Board which explains Texas' eligibility for Federal funds to match the State's pensions to needy persons regardless of how many others of the State's old people are paid.

Meanwhile, Fischer's program stands for adequate and fair taxes on the State's natural resources such as oil, natural gas, etc., to defray expenses of the State government and pay the old age pension in full, continues to gain the endorsements of scores of candidates for the legislature.

Maj. John W. Hawkins Asks Commissioner Land Office

Austin, Tex., July 15.—When Texas taxpayers and parents awake to the importance of the State's most important trust—snip—the office of Land Commissioner—they will regard only the highest degree of experience and proved competence from candidates for this position.

That was the theme which Major John W. Hawkins, chief clerk in the office, was carrying into his campaign this week for the office of Land Commissioner which he seeks with the endorsement of the retiring Commissioner, J. H. Walker.

"This $8,000,000 trust fund, built up for the cause of free education, must not be placed in inexperienced hands," Hawkins declared. "During the thirty years I have served the department as legal advisor and chief clerk, I have watched it grow, and had a part in its growth. I know that a single misstep in the trusteeship would affect every school in Texas."

"The Land Commissioner has one job that surpasses all the others: The guardianship of the school fund. It is my sincere desire, in my campaign to stick by that single issue. The Land Commissioner has no concern with old age pensions except in keeping Texas as prosperous as possible so there would be fewer needy aged persons. He has no concern with the labor used to drill wells, except to encourage the widest possible drilling of wells for the benefit of the school fund."

"Any one who tries to tell different is wholly wrong. He would be incompetent to handle the $8,000,000 school fund."

A. E. F. Reunion.

"Major General Beaumont B. Buck, National Chairman of the A. E. F. Reunion Association the first annual National Reunion of the American Expeditionary Forces in Dallas, Texas, Sept. 3rd thru 13th, 1936, as a feature of the Texas Centennial Exposition. Every division that served with AEF will have separate reunions and the Gobs tent served on ships will have Ship Reunions. September 12th will be St. Michael Day, and September 12th, will be Pershing Day a combined meeting of all the AEF Military and Naval forces being held on these last two days. Many splendid features are being planned for your entertainment, such as Company and Regimental Lunches, Divisional banquets and dances, in addition to the hundreds of attractions on the grounds of the great Texas Centennial Exposition. The finest attraction of all however is the fact that you will meet the Buddy you went through Hell with during the great war and relive the many happy memories of the AEF when we shared a common danger in the service of our beloved country. Thousands of the rank and file have already sent in post card registrations and we have letters from practically every commanding general of the AEF."

So load up your gang, Buddy; let's all fight the war over again in our memories. Low rates on all railroads and bus lines."

Come to the Old Settlers Reunion July 31.

Retreat of Lee's Army.

The annual return of April brings forcibly to my mind the stirring events of April, 1865.

Immediately after the evacuation of Richmond and Petersburg, the most alarming rumors preceded our army as the citizens greatly feared a repetition of the horrors and devastations by Sherman in Georgia and Sheridan in the Valley. Provisions and valuables were hurriedly buried or hid away and every precaution taken to save what was left after four years' struggle. Our home was on "Winterham" farm, three miles from Amelia Court House and a little off the line of General Lee's retreat, but we were soon overrun by our half-starved soldiers who had eaten little or nothing for several days. "Aunt Prudence," our good old cook, worked faithfully day and night until entirely exhausted. All the boys were furnished with salt and corn meal and told to help themselves.

Every variety of opinion was expressed: some thought that the cause was lost, others were confident that it was a strategic move on Gen. Lee's part, and that we would eventually be successful. During the confusion and discussion a letter report, made by the blowing up of a large quantity of ammunition at the courthouse, caused a general scatteration, and most of the soldiers hurried on to join the army.

Among them was my brother, Eugene C. Jefferson, a member of the O'ey Battery, who had been detailed by his captain to hunt for provisions. Being unable to rejoin his comrades, he mounted one of our fine horses and went along with Lieutenant George J. Hundley's cavalry company. Among my most cherished papers is a letter from Judge Hundley, telling of his gallant conduct at High Bridge.

The day after the explosion, ambulances began to bring the worst wounded soldiers, and after short prayers by their faithful chaplains, they were left to die at the different farmhouses. Straggling and broken down soldiers continued to come. About noon the cry was raised, "The Yankees are coming," and we saw a detachment of about thirty cavalymen, with carbines presented dashing down the road at a full run. The gallant lieutenant in command had captured a long-necked gander from the Widow Quinn, at the Courthouse and carried it tied to his saddle.

We had fully as many Confederates in our yard, with a good many muskets, but under the circumstances, as Lee's army had gone on, discretion was the better part of valor. Some ran to the woods and garden, some took to bed with the wounded, and others were captured. My uncle, Garland Jefferson, and I constituted a self-appointed reception committee. Standing at the front door, he pointed to the yellow hospital flag over the building and was told that it would be respected.

The Lieutenant snatched my uncle's new felt hat from his head and exchanged his army brogans for my uncle's nice calfskin boots. The soldiers then searched our buildings, found a few eggs and other provisions, including a small quantity of medical spirits, and went on their way. We were

Credit Where Credit is Due

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

Who is doing the real work that leads America toward Recovery?

During recent weeks we've heard many answers to that question. Headlines have bristled with claims and counter-claims . . . with reports of speeches that give the credit to political officeholders . . . with statements that would award the honor to the prophets of strange and unproved economic theories.

But amid the thunders of oratory the true claimant is ignored.

He is the man who, while politicians clamored and theorists argued, continued quietly, faithfully, effectively to do the day's work; to support himself, his family—and America.

He is the man—whether farmer or hired help, merchant or clerk, executive or mechanic—under whose hand and care the fields maintained their yield, the products of farm and factory kept moving, the wheels of industry continued to revolve.

He is the man who earned and paid the taxes—direct or indirect—that kept this country a going concern and met the payrolls of the political jobholders who would take the credit unto themselves.

He isn't one man. He represents millions of self-reliant citizens who maintain and support and operate the homes and the farms and the workshops of America.

He is the type that built America in the past, that is upholding America in the present, that will make America more glorious in the future.

Individually, he is the Real American. Collectively, he is the Real America.

Let the political and economic soothsayers continue their claims and their promises.

But, meanwhile, let's give credit where credit is due.

greatly relieved to see them move off, but were, of course, sorry to see a number of prisoners carried away.

I have been in a good many dangerous positions at different times, but I was never as badly scared in my life as on this occasion, and these eventful days made a very lasting impression upon my youthful memory. — George Jefferson, Richmond, Va. in Confederate Veteran.

Two Texas Governors on Midway

ALLRED AND NEFF RELAX A BIT.—Gov. James V. Allred found a bit of time to frolic on the $5,000,000 Midway as he helped open the Texas Centennial Exposition in Dallas. He is shown here pushing former Governor Pat Neff, now president of Baylor University, in a ricksha. Janice Jarratt, "Sweetheart of Texas," is in the other ricksha.

Dallas Streets of Paris Thronged

BOAT CENTER OF FAIR FUN SPOT.—An exact reproduction of the outlines of the liner Normandie forms the front center of "The Streets of Paris," gay fun spot of the $25,000,000 Texas Centennial Exposition which will run in Dallas until November 29. Flanking the ship is a French Village forming an open-air court of concessions.

On Texas Farms and Ranches

Landra county farmers are starting in to bud or graft ten or 12 native pecan trees a year. In this way they will be able to take care of the trees and get them to bearing earlier than if they grafted a greater number.

Mr. Harry Tiekot, of Pleasanton, Atascosa county, has a very good demonstration in legume inoculation for both black-eyed peas and peanuts. The peas show a marked difference in vine growth and nodules on the root system. Peanuts are not far enough along to notice any difference. Tiekot is keeping a record of the harvest of both inoculated and uninoculated peas, and plans on doing likewise on his peanuts.

Emil Waida of the Gaudalupe community in Victoria county put barnyard manure on an acre of land and planted cane. The cane will more than double the yield of that planted along side on the same kind of land. Size and color of the feed tell exactly where he began and ended fertilizing. In a strip planted on what had been a turnrow, the color and size of the feed was also noticeable and no doubt this will also yield considerably more than his other land. Asked if it had been fertilized, he replied that "it had not, the growth and color was due to the fact that he hadn't planted anything on it for several years and just hadn't worn it out."

Rough Work, Gentle Work

There must be work done by the arms, or none of us could live. There must be work done by the brains, or the life we get would not be worth having. And the same men cannot do both. There is rough work to be done, and rough men must do it; and there is gentle work to be done, and gentle men must do it; and it is physically impossible, that one class should do, or divide, the work of the other.—John Ruskin.

Danzig Crisis Worries

WAR-WORRIED Europe shifted its anxiety from the Italo-Ethiopian sanctions problem to the newer and baffling question of what to do about the Free City of Danzig now seeking to free itself from the bonds of the League of Nations.

The league disposed of the sanctions problem by voting to abolish them, thus to all practical intents and purposes removing Ethiopia from the family of sovereign states. Appearing personally before the league assembly, the refugee emperor, Haile Selassie, made a last moving bid for Ethiopia's freedom.

The "king of kings" denounced France and Great Britain without mentioning their names. To the generally expressed desire to reform the league, he said the weakness was not the league covenant itself, but a lack of international morality. The Negus' request for a loan of $50,000,000 to Ethiopia was voted down. Previously Haile had informed Capt. Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, that he would return to Ethiopia immediately and fight for Ethiopian independence.

With Mussolini given satisfaction, the Danzig situation brought into the foreground the figure of Adolf Hitler, chancellor of Nazi Germany. It was a Nazi follower of Hitler, Dr. Arthur Greiser, president of the Danzig senate, who demanded independence for the former German city now surrounded by Polish territory and who denounced the league and Sean Lester, league high commissioner for the part.

Observers were of the opinion that Greiser was acting under orders from Chancellor Hitler. In view of Germany's expansionist program and its rearmament, they feel that Danzig will be the next Nazi objective now that the Rhineland is remilitarized. By the elimination of Commissioner Lester on the curtailment of his authority over the international affairs of the city, it is believed the Nazi would be in a position to crush the opposition party and pave the way for annexation of Danzig by Germany. In the event of a Nazi putsch on Danzig, it was believed that Britain and France would co-operate in opposing it.

July 4th Celebrations

A TOLL of 346 lives was exacted in the celebration of the Fourth of July throughout the United States.

Booming cannon crackers played a comparatively innocent part in the slaughter, for only 11 lives were lost in accidents due to fire-crackers.

But if the nation heeded warnings about the danger of fireworks, it forgot the menace of motoring accidents, for 208 people in 26 states were killed as the result of accidents on streets and highways. Ninety persons were drowned in 36 states. Miscellaneous tragedies accounted for 37 additional fatalities in 15 states.

Not since 1931 has the celebration of America's patriotic holiday claimed so many victims. In that year the death total from accidents reached 493.

Roosevelt and Landon Return to Their Desks

THE Presidential candidates of both the Democratic and the Republican parties returned to their desks in their respective capitals following absences.

President Roosevelt came back to Washington after a three-day pilgrimage to Virginia. Included on his program was the dedication of the Shenandoah National park, his Fourth of July address from the portico of Thomas Jefferson's home at Monticello and his visit to Williamsburg, capital of the Old Dominion from 1699 to 1779. In his address at Jefferson's home, the President called on the nation to rekindle the "sacred fire" of "true freedom" which had lighted the "golden age" of American history. He declared the present emergencies require the same leadership as that displayed by the founder of the Democratic party.

to the state constitution was in prospect. Discussions of the farm program and conferences with Governor Landon's political advisers were on the program. The Republican standard bearer was not expected to return to Colorado until after the notification ceremonies.

In the meantime, great activity was apparent in opposing campaign headquarters.

President Roosevelt summoned Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley to Washington for a conference on the political campaign. It was expected that the question of Mr. Farley's retirement from the cabinet about which there has been considerable rumor lately, would be decided. The Democrats have established national headquarters at the Biltmore hotel in New York and it is from here Chairman Farley will direct the campaign.

John Hamilton, national chairman of the Republican party, opened national headquarters in Chicago. He addressed 2,800 banquets at a dinner in his honor and declared that the reaction of voters in recent days has been disheartening to the Roosevelt administration. Since the Cleveland convention, he said, the Democrats had offered the Republicans the "sincere flattery of imitation."

Pope Pius Orders World Censorship of Movies

A WORLD censorship of movies was ordered by Pope Pius, in an encyclical letter addressed directly to the bishops and archbishops of the Roman Catholic church in the United States.

The pope also ordered bishops throughout the world to obtain from their communicants annually renewable pledges "to abstain from witnessing bad films." The encyclical of his holiness was addressed to the American bishops because they originally took the lead in movie censorship. He invited bishops of the entire world to follow their example.

To carry out the plan of censorship, the pontiff directed that a permanent national movie reviewing office be established in each country. He urged the exchange of information between the various offices for making the censorship effective. He urged bishops to appeal to Catholics connected with motion picture productions to use their influence in accordance with their faith and ideals.

Labor Leaguers Begin Drive for Steel's Unionization

WITH labor organizers spreading throughout the nation's steel mills in a drive to enroll 500,000 workers into one big union, the National Labor Relations Board reopened a fight in the courts to force steel companies to accept the National Labor Relations act as a means of keeping peace.

The board announced it had petitioned the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans in a new effort to enforce the act. Meanwhile the full resources of the $5,000,000,000 steel industry were marshaled against the unionization drive. Observers pointed out that the situation was fraught with grave possibilities of industrial warfare. Principal steel companies who have banded together in a militant effort to maintain the open shop warned employees not to be "misled" into affiliation with the Amalgamated Iron, Steel and Tin Workers Union, which forms the basis of organized labor's drive.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers and head of the committee for industrial organization, in a radio address broadcast from Chicago entitled "Industrial Democracy in Steel," sought the support not only of union labor, but of the public generally in his crusade.

STAR DUST

By VIRGINIA VALE

IF YOU'RE interested in watching a career grow, keep your eye on young Larry Blake, who has been giving character interpretations of Charles Laughton, John Barrymore, Edward Robinson and Clark Gable at the Rainbow Room of Rockefeller Center. First thing you know he'll be on the air and in the movies; though he is in his early twenties now, he has made a good start.

He went to Brooklyn college, and has appeared in vaudeville and at smart hotels and night clubs here and there about the country; the Congress and the Stevens hotels in Chicago featured him not long ago. Landing in the Rainbow Room crowns him with success; talent scouts make it one of their first stops in New York, and no visitor wants to leave town till he's been there.

Four members of the Abbey Players of Dublin, one of the most famous theatrical organizations in the world, arrived in the United States recently to appear in RKO's screen version of "The Plough and the Stars," which they've often performed on the stage. One of them, Barry Fitzgerald, was thrilled to death—because he'd met James Cagney.

Barbara Stanwyck will be starred in this new Irish picture, which is being made because all of us liked "The Informer" so well. And it will be made by the producers, director and scenarist who were responsible for "The Informer," so it's going to be good.

Seems there's a rumor around that Major Bowes isn't so popular as he once was; people have heard that performers on his programs don't get paid much, but that he gets plenty. And some of the people who go to the broadcasts feel that he isn't dignified enough.

All that may or may not be true—but a high-powered publicity organization has been engaged to change public opinion regarding the genial Major; his new sponsors feel that the public must go on liking him, or else!

Want to know the low-down on how to play bad man on the screen? Noah Beery, brother of Wallace, can give it to you. He's now playing a hired killer in "Strangers on a Honey-moon," at the Gaumont British studios, along with Constance Cummings and Hugh Sinclair—he's been appearing as various kinds of murderers for years and years.

He says that, if a criminal is to seem to be a real man, he must show a streak of human kindness—"A screen killer can mow a guy down with a shot-gun, but he's got to stoop and pat a kid on the head on the way out"—otherwise he's a madman, not a human being.

Columbia Broadcasting System is going to give a lot of young men a chance this summer. With regular announcers going on vacations, others who have been auditioned in the past and are working here and there on the network will be brought in and given a chance to show what they can do in more important spots on the air.

The most important arm in the movies at present is Margaret Sullavan's. She broke it a while ago, you'll recall. It was n't healing properly, so she hid her to New York for special treatments. Now she's back again in Hollywood and hopes to go to work soon. But friends have cautioned her to be careful of that arm. Only the other day she was reported as whizzing to the west side tennis matches on a motorcycle with Willie Wyler.

ODDS AND ENDS . . . Kay Francis played the role of a famous nurse in her Florence Nightingale picture, and now she needs one; has two impacted wisdom teeth . . . Seems that that story about Clark Gable's knocking out his sparring partner was just a faked-up publicity yarn . . . Joan Blondell and Dick Powell seem to be getting all set for that long-heralded wedding. Have you joined one of the flourishing Lanny Ross clubs? . . . Shirley Temple is cuter than ever in "Poor Little Rich Girl" . . . You'll want to see "San Francisco" because of the earthquake scenes if for no other reason . . . Though Jeannette MacDonald's singing should be reason enough . . . Carole Lombard's illness is holding up "Spain of the North" indefinitely.

It acts like a motor that gives to the life an upward trend, as the unkind word too often gives a downward impulse.

Ten-Gallon Actor

It was recently brought out that film players standing for long periods in the glare of powerful and hot lights suffer a peculiar though not serious malady, according to Pathfinder. It is claimed that the heat of the lights reduces the water content of the body below normal and produces the ill-effects. The cure of this dreaded disease is quite simple, consisting of drinking a glass of water. It has been termed as "body dehydration." If a human body were completely dehydrated there would be no much left. A 140-pound film player has enough water in his body to fill ten one-gallon cans. The weight of that amount of water would be in the neighborhood of 85 pounds. The other 55 pounds would be made up of small amounts of iron, carbon, lime, sulphur, phosphorus, magnesium, and a few volatile elements.

TALK with priests at the old missions and they will tell you that pioneer padres trained Indians to do the first irrigation work in Southern California. Some of their old ditches still exist.

You can tell by where these missions stand what good judges of land the priests were. They never built a church on poor soil.

Local farming owes these padres a great debt. They not only brought the first cattle and horses, but they experimented with seeds to see what would grow best in California. They planted the first oranges and grapes. Lemons, figs, and olives they brought, too, and wheat, destined to become a tremendous crop.

Almost feudal in aspect were these mission farms. Indians were trained as farmers, cowboys, carpenters, saddle makers, and weavers. They made things not only for the use of priests and themselves, but for Spanish soldiers as well.

Cattle became the mainstay of life, with beef the chief food; hides made leather for saddles, harness, and shoes, and even served as money. Early sea traders from New England called them "California bank notes."

Sheep, too, were raised; and Indians made blankets and cloth for suits from the wool. They raised some hogs also, mostly for lard to make soap.

Missions served as stock farms from which private owners could borrow enough breeding animals to build up their own herds. Horses of a tough, speedy type, with a strain of Arabian from those brought to Mexico by conquistadores, thrived there, multiplying so fast that in time wild herds became a nuisance. Men used to drive them into the sea to drown them.

Cattle often ran wild over the open range. In self-defense travelers sometimes had to shoot savage bulls. At slaughtering time, vaqueros rode down the thundering herds, slew what they wanted, and left carcasses to be skinned by butchers who followed. Melted tallow was packed in hides and transported to sailing vessels along the coast. This trade dwindled after gold was found.

"The infowing of population made an end to the great droves of cattle," wrote Dana in 1859, on his second trip to California.

Old Ranches Cut Up

Today this once huge industry, which kept the shoe and leather trades of New England supplied, is a dim tradition. In museums you see old oxcarts and horse gear, massive hand-made furniture and pioneer weapons.

Santa Barbara stages a fiesta each season, in which modern beaux and belles dress in pioneer Spanish costumes, ride horses with Spanish saddles, sing Spanish ballads, and dance fandango to early Spanish music.

But the modern spectacle is more splendid than the original hard, frugal life of toil ever was.

Practically all old ranches are cut up now. One or two, like the Santa Margarita and the Tejon, remain; but overseers make their rounds in motor cars. In fields where grunting oxen once pulled wooden plows, you hear now the staccato voice of gas tractors.

Among long-tailed, squawking macaws and tinkling bells in the Mission Inn garden at Riverside stands an old, old orange tree. It is one of two navel seedlings sent here from Brazil, by way of Washington, in 1873. Both lived and are ancestors now of countless trees whose fruit reaches not only the most obscure nooks of the United States, but goes to forty-odd ports overseas, even into Alaska by dog-sled delivery.

What a colossal feat of distribution! Think of 100,000 carloads a year, cars riding an average of 2,600 miles each. Fantastically, you visualize this endless orange flight as a universe of tiny yellow planets flying forever out of California and into space! Orange picking never stops. Navels move from December to May and Valencia's the rest of the year. With oranges go lemons and grapefruit, picked, packed and shipped from some part of California every day in the year. Europe alone takes upward of a million boxes, and Canadians drink orange juice even as we do.

To move and sell such incredible cargoes, more than 13,000 growers form the Fruit Exchange. Their salesmen are posted in 59 central markets, here and abroad. Their brand stamped on fruit is known around the world. They even own their own timber lands and sawmills, where millions of crates are made for packing fruit. By-products, like orange and lemon oils, citric acid and citrus pectin, are made and sold by this organization.

Ships that carry its fruit abroad are vast floating refrigerators, for they must pass through the Panama canal and other tropic waters.

Frost is fought with oil-burning orchard heaters, while millions are spent on sprays and fumigation.

Value of Co-operation.

Individual growers, competing, could not have obtained such methodical, world-wide distribution of oranges now graded, inspected, and sold by the Exchange. It is conspicuous among all man's co-operative efforts. Common interests unite its members, both in business and social affairs.

One visit to an annual orange festival, with all its music, drama, pageantry, and carnival spirit, shows what a role this fruit plays in California life.

More than any other force, it was the lure of life in a sunny California orange grove which started easterners migrating here in the 1880's—and it still brings them.

From its trees, since the Exchange started its records in 1894, have been picked and sold nearly $2,000,000,000 worth of citrus fruit—more than the value of all gold mined since its discovery in 1848!

The Bible story of the miraculous gourd vine that grew in one day to make shade for Jonah is hardly more astonishing than the rise of the western vegetable trade. It is an exciting page in the annals of our national farm life. New food habits, the call for more green things, is one cause. Advent of the ice car, overcoming California's former disadvantage of remoteness from eastern markets, is another.

Due to geographic barriers, as late as 1900 this trade was a mere trickle. Now, with refrigeration, standard packing, and advertising, more than 100,000 carloads of garden truck, largely grown in California, ride east every year.

Busy Imperial Valley.

Imperial valley, that below-the-sea "Hothouse of America" once called the Salton Sink, grows more cantaloupes, watermelons, and cabbages than any area its size in the world. Its large-scale operations are indeed "industrialized farming."

Terrific heat, dust, and the frantic picking, packing, loading, and icing of more than 6,000,000 crates of melons in a few weeks turn this valley, from May to June, into an inferno of nervous haste.

Only Mexicans and Japanese seem able to work in the sun-scoured fields; some say that only they can tell just when a melon should be picked, or when a mule will surely drop from being overheated if driven another rod. Yet 60,000 residents endure this climate!

Frost-free regions along the San Diego coast send their share of tomatoes, celery, and other green foods. Los Angeles county was the pioneer garden spot; there first grew that lettuce now called "iceberg head," an Italian strain introduced through Vilmorin, famous seedsmen of Paris.

Electricity for Everything.

You marvel at miles of power lines carried on steel towers. Hardly a country home is without electricity. Farmers throw a switch and machines cook food, heat water, milk cows, sterilize milk, and separate the cream. Electric power hatches eggs and warms the coops. Long, dry summers call for much pumping, and electric irrigation pumps run almost continuously from April to September.

Walnuts, formerly dried in the sun, are dehydrated now by electricity. To make seeds germinate faster, cables laid in the soil are heated by this power.

With electricity oranges are colored and precooled for shipment. Motors hum in myriad industries. In busy oil fields, shops, and harbor sheds, bright lights turn night into day. With electricity men drill for oil, pump it when natural flow subsides, and refine it. The same source heats enormous furnaces and annealing ovens.

In California electricity spurred imagination long before the rest of the world appreciated its versatility. The reason is that California, when most of the present electric systems started in the 1890's, had no native fuel except wood. Coal, transported from far places, was costly; but in the mountains was abundant water power. The market for electric light was small in pioneer times and few industries had then started; but the farmer was there, and entrepreneurs taught him to use power for irrigation as early as 1893. Now power lines cover the state's map like a web.

Luxurious Peacock Motif

The Peacock's regal beauty—worthy of your finest linens—inspired this beautiful design, and is sure to inspire you with the desire to embroider his splendid image in cross stitch. You can, you know, for the pattern's a very easy one, despite its rich effect. Labor and Wait

IT IS easy to make a sput, but hard to keep pegging away. Confucius taught the Chinese this lesson by a parable: "If I am building a mountain," said he, "and stop before the last basket of earth is put on top of my work, I have failed; but if I have placed the smallest basketful on the ground, and go on, I am really building a mountain." Like the soldiers of Nehemiah at the building of the wall of Jerusalem that "held the spears from the rising of the morning till the stars appeared"; so let us labor and wait, if necessary, until the stars appear.

All Around the House

The fat side of beef should be placed nearest the flame when roasting. The melting fat will flavor and baste the meat during the cooking.

Cloths saturated with polishing liquids if stored away in a closet often cause spontaneous combustion. Keep these cloths in a covered tin container.

When making pastry use only enough water to hold ingredients together. Mix quickly, roll and handle as little as possible if you wish pastry to be flaky.

Use the purest of cider vinegar for pickles and pickled preserves. Do not mix two different kinds of vinegar.

Annual seeds of such plants as annual poppies, larkspur, sweet alyssum if sown out of doors now in equal parts of soil and coarse sand will be strong enough to live through the winter if well protected.

A Lesson in Loyalty

When a dog experiences that transition we know by the stark name of death it affects us the more poignantly because he goes over the horizon with such magnificent valor.

I have had my heart wrenched many times by a close-up of this extraordinary courage. Invariably dogs meet what mankind regards as the terror of terrors with a beautiful complacency, an instinct, if you will, that should hearten us all for a journey that is inevitable.

Dogs have taught those of us who love them many excellent things. Foremost, perhaps, is the divine quality, loyalty. They have also taught the art of forgiveness and forthright honesty.

So it does not seem at all strange to me that they should help us to banish fear of the last enemy. I had a dog whose obedience to my command sent him to death under a careening joy-rider's wheels. He crawled back to me, licked my hand as though to say, "I don't blame you!" and stiffened in death.—O. O. McIntyre in Cosmopolitan.

"I WOULDN'T RISK MY LIFE ON ANY OTHER TIRE"
 Says Louis Meyer—
 Only three time winner
 Indianapolis Race 28 33 36

EQUIP YOUR CAR WITH Firestone
 GUM-DIPPED TIRES
 for Greater Safety!

THERE is a reason why Louis Meyer won the 500-mile Indianapolis race this year—and why he is the only man ever to win this gruelling race three times. He always used Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires, and never experienced tire trouble of any kind.

Louis Meyer knows tire construction. He also knows that to drive for 500 consecutive miles over this hot brick track, negotiating the dangerous curves 800 times at the record-breaking average speed of 109 miles an hour, requires tires of super strength and greatest blowout protection, as a blowout on any one of the dangerous curves would likely mean instant death. By the Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process every cord in the tires on Louis Meyer's car was soaked and coated with liquid rubber, thereby preventing internal friction and heat. This is the secret of the extra strength and reserve safety built into Firestone Tires.

You of course will not drive 109 miles per hour, but at today's higher speeds you do need tires that will give you greatest blowout protection and will stop your car up to 25% quicker. Take no chances! Let your Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store or Firestone Dealer equip your car with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires, the safest tires built. It costs so little to protect lives worth so much!

Secretary,

One of the largest as well as finest religious art exhibits ever shown in this country is assembled in the Holy City at the head of the Midway at the Texas Central Exposition. Included in the exhibit are more than 200 authentic shrines of the Holy Land. The masterpiece of the display however, is the 8-foot mother of pearl, hand carved cross designed and assembled by Antonio Bardi in the Holy City of Jerusalem in the eighteenth century. The crucifix, which displays the fourteen stations in the life of Christ is made up of more than 15,000 pieces of mother of pearl and took more than ten years to complete.
