News From Waneta.

Waneta, Texas, Nov. 10.—Going west is the order of the day. N. J. Tims and Alton Lively have sold out and are nearly ready to start. We regret to loose such good people, but hope they will do well.

We enjoyed Mr. Cutler's letter and are always glad to hear from our friends.

J.F.Rich is moving back to our midst. Glad to have him with us again. Guess his western fever is over.

Mr. Bill Foster is back from the west and has rented land. Guess he intends to bump the stumps again.

Jim Rich is in from the west to see his friends and relatives and his best girl.

Oriole News.

Oriole, Nov. 11.—I was sorry to learn of the death of Mr. August Peterson. He wrote some good articles for the Messenger and I believe he was a good man. Also sorry to hear of the death of Mr. Jess Duren in Crockett.

We are having some pretty weather now and the farmers are busy repairing their farms and getting ready for another crop.

Glad to report that the farmers union of this place is gradually growing in members and I believe before a great while all the farmers here will become members.

The union at Chapple Hill has disbanded and some have joined this union.

From letters just received I learn that H. M. Walker and family have moved from Young to Clay county. He lost one of his girls in Young county, Miss Minnie, who married Mr. Ed Bohn, a prosperous young farmer.

Reynard News.

Reynard, Texas, Nov. 10.—Hardly know what to write as things are kinder blue. Of course to say something in regard to the financial situation would be in order, but could only like some others, say what I believe. There is going to be a great revolution worked in some way, and of course all great revolutions cost something, and hurt too. And then again I believe God rules and after it is all over we will wonder how we stood it, and how it was done.

The syrup turn out was kinder like everything else—sorry.

Jack Beazley and John Chiles are billed for Crockett on the Clint Lane case.

G. H. Beazley was taken quiet ill last Sunday, but was glad to see him at his place of business yesterday.

Ginning is winding up and about 45 or 50 bales are stored in T. S. Kent's warehouse and very near that much on the gin yard.

Daly's Items.

Dalys's, Texas, Nov. 9.—We have had one week of pretty sun shine and it was greatly appreciated by those who are making syrup.

Miss Annie Belle Laster is at home again after spending several days in Grapeland.

Miss Laura Kyle went shopping in Grapeland two days last week.

Our school seems to be progressing nicely under the management of Miss Fitchett, who seems to be giving satisfaction to all.

Mrs. W. P. Kyle was the guest of Mrs. Laster last Friday.

Mrs. Callie Huff was on the sick list last week.

"Nails."

"Nails are a mighty good thing—particular finger nails—but I don't believe they were intended solely for scratching, though I used mine largely for that purpose for several years. I was sorely afflicted and had it to do. One application of Hunt's Cure however relieved my itch and less than one box cured me entirely."

Mr. Ed Harmon and family have moved out in the country to the Zack Harmon place. We understand that Mr. and Mrs. Doty will move to Mr. Harmon's residence.

NEW TYPE OF MOTORBOAT.

Inventor of the "Typhonoid" Guarantees Speed of 62 Miles an Hour.

The latest type of motor boat was launched last month at the Bellvalre shipyard, near Nantes, France. The boat is the invention of M. Andre Gambin and presents a novel and distinct departure from present styles of motor boats. M. Gambin, after 15 years of fruitless attempts to improve the action of the ordinary screw propeller, conceived the idea of converting the defects of that apparatus into advantages by the adoption of the "typhonoid" screw, from which the boat takes its name.

When afloat the boat presents a very trim appearance, with no suggestion of the peculiar apparatus by which it is propelled. M. Chauvalon, the assistant constructor of the little vessel, claims that it cannot be capsize, except possibly when making a short turn at high speed, when great skill on the part of the steersman is required.

The motive power consists of two four-cylinder V-type motors of 60 horsepower each, coupled together and to the propeller shaft. Double ignition by magnets and by accumulators is provided to lessen the chance of failure. The screw is 31 1/2 inches in diameter, which is placed at the bow. The inventor has guaranteed a speed of 100 kilometers, or more than 62 miles an hour.

In the new boat the centrifugal displacement and the central void are thus converted into beneficial effects, and the limit to the advantageous increase in the velocity of rotation of the propeller is removed. The "typhonoid" is derived from a Greek word which means a whirlwind, and the apparatus is designed to act by suction in the manner of a waterspout.

According to experiments, the typhonoid will produce the maximum of speed for a given expenditure of power, and as it presents no projecting edges, it is manifestly superior to the ordinary screw propeller for the navigation of shallow waters containing vegetable growths. The typhonoid propeller consists of a number of blades—six in this instance—symmetrically distributed around an axis and terminating in a cylindrical tube. Each blade is composed of two sheets or surfaces. One sheet is spiral-cylindrical, like a loosely-rolled sheet of paper, with its inner edge at the axis and its outer portion forming part of the enveloping tube. The other sheet is smaller, inclined and helicoidal, like the blade of an ordinary screw propeller. It extends from the front edge of the cylindrical sheet to a spiral line traced some distance behind the front of the cylindrical sheet of the preceding blade.

The principal dimensions of the typhonoid are: Length over all, 59 feet; length on waterline, 52 1/2 feet; greatest width over all, 5 1/4 feet; greatest width at waterline, 4 feet 7 inches; moulded depth, 4 feet 4 1/2 inches; mean draft, 2 feet 7 1/2 inches; area of amidships sections, 7.14 square feet.

EVOLUTION OF HORSE'S HOOF.

The horse had originally five fully developed toes; but in the course of ages the two at each side wore away, and the middle one was developed until it became the hoof, as it is now seen. The evolution of the horse's hoof is illustrated by the analogy of the human hand, where the middle finger represents the toe of the horse which has remained in use. In the hoof of the modern horse two narrow splint-bones still represent former toes.

In round figures the area of India is 1,500,000 square miles; the United States, 3,500,000, and Russia, 8,000,000.

THE PRINCESS ELOPES
By HAROLD MACGRATH
AUTHOR OF "THE MAN ON THE BOX,"
"HEARTS AND MASKS," ETC.

CHAPTER I.

It is rather difficult in these days for a man, who takes such scant interest in foreign affairs—trust a whilom diplomat for that!—to follow the continual geographical disturbances of European surfaces. Thus, I can not distinctly recall the exact location of the Grand Duchy of Barscheit or of the neighboring principality of Doppelkinn. It meets my needs and purposes, however, to say that Berlin and Vienna were easily accessible, and that a three hours' journey would bring you under the shadow of the Carpathian range, where, in my diplomatic days, I used often to hunt the "bear that walks like a man."

Barscheit was known among her sister states as "the meddler," the "maker of trouble," and the duke as "Old Grumpy"—Brummar. To use a familiar Yankee expression, Barscheit had a finger in every pie. Whenever there was a political broth making, whether in Italy, Germany or Austria, Barscheit would snatch up a ladle and start in. She took care of her own affairs so easily that she had plenty of time to concern herself with the affairs of her neighbors. This is not to advance the opinion that Barscheit was wholly modern; far from it. The fault of Barscheit may be traced back to a certain historical pillar of salt, easily recalled by all those who attended Sunday school. "Rubbering" is a vulgar phrase, and I disdain to use it.

When a woman looks around it is invariably a portent of trouble; the man forgets his important engagement, and runs amuck, knocking over people, principles and principalities. If Aspasia had not observed Pericles that memorable day; if there had not been an oblique slant to Calypso's eyes as Ulysses passed her way; if the eager Delilah had not offered favorable comment on Samson's ringlets; in fact, if all the women in history and romance had gone about their affairs as they should have done, what uninteresting reading history would be to-day!

Now, this is a story of a woman who looked around, and of a man who did not keep his appointment on time; out of a grain of sand, a mountain. Of course there might have been other causes, but with these I'm not familiar.

This Duchy of Barscheit is worth looking into. Imagine a country with telegraph and telephone and medieval customs, a country with electric lights, railways, surface cars, hotel elevators and ancient laws! Something of the customs of the duchy must be told in the passing, though, for my part, I am vigorously against explanatory passages in stories of action. Barscheit bristled with militarism; the little mar always imitates the big one, but lacks the big man's excuses. Militarism entered into and overshadowed the civic laws.

There were three things you might do without offense: you might bathe, eat and sleep, only you must not sleep out loud. The citizen of Barscheit was hemmed in by a set of laws which had their birth in the dark dungeons of the Inquisition. They congealed the blood of a man born and bred in a commercial country. If you broke a law, you were relentlessly punished; there was no mercy. In America we make laws and then hide them in dull-looking volumes which the public have neither the time nor the inclination to read. In this duchy of mine it was different; you ran into a law on every corner, in every park, in every public building; little oblong signs, enameled, which told you that you could not do something or other—"Forbidden!" The beauty of German laws is that when you learn all the things that you can not do, you begin to find out that the things you can do are not worth a hang in the doing.

As soon as a person learned to read he or she began life by reading these laws. If you could not read, so much the worse for you; you had to pay a guide who charged you almost as much as the full cost of the fife.

The opposition political party in the United States is always howling militarism, without the slightest idea of what militarism really is. One side, please, in Barscheit, when an officer comes along, or take the consequences. If you carelessly bumped into him, you were knocked down. If you objected, you were arrested. If you struck back, ten to one you received a beating with the flat of a saber. And never, never mistake the soldiery for the police; that is to say, never ask an officer to direct you to any place.

This is regarded in the light of an insult. The cub lieutenants do more to keep a passable sidewalk—for the passage of said cub lieutenants—than all the magistrates put together. How they used to swagger up and down the Konigsstrasse, around the Platz, in and out of the restaurants! I remember doing some side-stepping myself, and I was a diplomat, supposed to be immune from the rank discourtesies of the military. But that was early in my career.

In a year not so remote as not to be readily recalled, the United States packed me off to Barscheit because I had an uncle who was a senator. Some papers were given me, the permission to hang out a shingle reading "American Consul," and the promise of my board and keep. My amusements were to be paid out of my own pocket. Straightway I purchased three horses, found a capable Japanese valet, and selected a cozy house near the barracks, which stood west of the Volksgarten, on a pretty lake. A beautiful road ran around this body of water, and it wasn't long ere the officers began to pass comments on the riding of "that wild American." As I detest what is known as park riding, you may very well believe that I circled the lake at a clip which must have opened the eyes of the easy-going officers. I grew quite chummy with a few of them, and I may speak of occasions when I did not step off the sidewalk as they came along. A man does more toward gaining the affection of foreigners by giving a good dinner now and then than by international law. I gained considerable fame by my little dinners at Muller's rathskeller, under the Continental hotel.

Six months passed, during which I rode, read, drove and dined, the actual labors of the consulate being cared for by a German clerk who knew more about the business than I did.

By this you will observe that diplomacy has degenerated into the gentle art of exciting jaded palates and of scribbling one's name across passports; I know of no better definition. I forget what the largess of my office was.

Presently there were terrible doings. The old reigning grand duke desired peace of mind; and moving determinedly toward this end, he declared in public that his niece, the young and tender Princess Hildegard, should wed the Prince of Doppelkinn, whose vineyards gave him a fine income. This was finally; the avuncular guardian had waited long enough for his willful ward to make up her mind as to the selection of a suitable husband; now he determined to take a hand in the matter. And you shall see how well he managed it.

It is scarcely necessary for me to state that her highness had her own ideas of what a husband should be like, gathered, no doubt, from execrable translations from "Ouida" and the gentle Miss Braddon. A girl of 20 usually has a formidable regard for romance, and the princess was fully up to the manner of her kind. If she could not marry romantically, she refused to marry at all.

I can readily appreciate her uncle's perturbation. I do not know how many princelings she thrust into utter darkness. She would never marry a man who wore glasses; this one was too tall, that one too short; and when one happened along who was without visible earmarks or signs of being shop-worn her refusal was based upon just—"Because!"—a weapon as invincible as the fabled spear of Parsifal. She had spurned the addresses of Prince Mischler, laughed at those of the Count of — (the short dash indicates the presence of a hyphen) and General Muerrisch, of the emperor's body-guard, who was, I'm sure, good enough—in his own opinion—for the finest in Europe. The prince was a widower, and among his own people was affectionately styled "der Rotnasig," which, I believe, designates an illuminated proboscis. When he wasn't fishing for rainbow trout he was sleeping in his cellars. He was often missing at the monthly reviews, but nobody ever worried; they knew where to find him. And besides, he might just as well sleep in his cellars as in his carriage, for he never rode a horse if he could get out of doing so. He was really good-natured and easy-going, so long as no one crossed him severely; and you could tell him a joke once and depend upon his understanding it immediately, which is more than I can say for the duke.

Years and years ago the prince had had a son; but at the tender age of three the boy had run away from the castle confines, and no one ever heard of him again. The enemies of the prince whispered among themselves that the boy had run away to escape compulsory military service, but the boy's age precluded this accusation. The prince advertised, after the fashion of those times, sent out detectives and notified his various brothers; but his trouble went for nothing. Not the slightest trace of the boy could be found. So he was mourned for a season, regretted and then forgotten; the prince adopted the grape arbor.

I saw the prince once. I do not blame the Princess Hildegard for her rebellion. The prince was not only old; he was fat and ugly, with little, elephant-like eyes that were always vein-shot, restless and full of mischief. He might have made a good father, but I have nothing to prove this. Those bottles of sparkling Moselle which he failed to dispose of to the American trade he gave to his brother in Barscheit or drank himself.

A nephew, three times removed, was waiting for the day when he should wobble around in the prince's shoes. He was a lieutenant in the duke's body-guard, a quick-tempered, heady chap. Well, he never wobbled around in his uncle's shoes, for he never got the chance.

I hadn't been in Barscheit a week before I heard a great deal about the princess. She was a famous horse-woman. This made me extremely anxious to meet her. Yet for nearly six months I never even got so much as a glimpse of her. Half of the six months she was traveling through Austria, and the other half she kept out of my way,—not intentionally; she knew nothing of my existence; simply, fate moved us about blindly. At court she was invariably indisposed, and at the first court ball she retired before I arrived. I got up at all times, galloped over all roads, but never did I see her. She rode alone, too, part of the time.

MUSIC OF MAN AND BIRDS.

Interesting to Trace Evolution of the World's Harmony.

If the discovery of independent evolutions of human music all tending in the same direction indicates the existence of an ideal standard toward which progress leads, how much stronger is the evidence afforded by the fact that bird music is developing along the same lines! It seems a far cry from a Beethoven symphony of a Wagnerian opera to the simple lay of a sparrow, but as we trace the course of the mighty river of music back toward its source, the stream becomes narrower and narrower, until it is contracted to a point where it is no broader than the little rill of bird music. Nor does the decrease stop there; for, remarkable as it may seem, there was a time when the music from which ours has been evolved was inferior to some of that which floats to our ears from the woods of spring. This is not to say merely that the songs of certain of the birds involve more intervals and greater variety, but that they are of a higher order judged by our own modern standards.—Henry Oldys in Harper's.

Antiquity of Playing Cards.

The origin of playing cards is lost in antiquity, though some historians have attempted to fix approximate dates. In the year 1377 a German monk living in Switzerland mentions the fact that card games had been introduced into that country.

Last of London's Old Inns.

A century ago London was noted for its coaching inns. To-day only one remains in London proper to recall the gayer of coaching parties that assembled in the comfortable parlors for an evening of pleasure. George's Inn, the last of the famous taverns where the nobility of England gathered in years gone by was probably the most popular that lined the roadways of the English capital. It was through his association with the people who frequented George's Inn that Charles Dickens began to attract widespread attention as a novelist and writer. More than three score years ago he was a familiar figure when revelry held sway in the now antiquated tavern. Here it was that Mr. Dickens met Mr. Pickwick and the various characters he immortalized in "Pickwick Papers" and bounded at once into popular favor as a humorist and close student of character. The attractiveness of the old inn is still maintained at a high standard, and it is to-day a favorite stopping place for travelers and coaching parties. Nothing has been removed from the place to dim the memories of the past. The same old-fashioned chairs, benches, tables and furniture are there that were in use a century ago, and the decorations have never been altered. Ownership has remained with the same family for many generations, and it is said the present owner is a descendant of the man who opened it.

La Texo News.

LaTexo, Nov. 10.—Well what's the matter with the country? The banks are shutting down and failing to pay or let any money out, Cotton is tied up, sawmills closed down, and we are in the middle of a bad fix. Of course we "Common Piney woods folks" don't know a whole lot of things, but I honestly believe it is a death straggle of the money powers to squeeze cotton out of the warehouses and if the farmers will do like we did during the war until battle is over the victory will be won and cotton will go up like it did after the late war. What's the use of trying to raise cotton any more? It is almost a played out crop. But if you were to hit a cotton man between the eyes with a sledge hammer full of argument you couldn't convince him.

"Hello, Bill, how much cotton did you raise this year?"

"Why, Jack, me and my boy planted twelve acres in cotton and fifteen in corn, and we made a bale and a half and I do believe if the boll weevils hadn't struck us we would have made ten and a half."

Have you put it in the warehouse?"

"Yes, and I am going to freeze so it will get 15c. You see we have got some debts to pay and the old woman and kids are about out of clothes."

"How are you getting along Jack?"

"O, very well since I moved from Houston county to Jacksonville and quit cotton. I am doing fine."

"Well, what are you raising?"

"Well, Bill, I had three acres in tomatoes this last year and sold $450.00 worth off of it, and I had five acres in potatoes and got $400.00 worth off of that, and then I planted a fall crop of peanuts, the Spanish variety, and netted $25 an acre on ten acres, but I hate to tell you, this for fear I will render you discontented, but let me tell you: you have just as good lands in Houston county as we have here and all you want to do is to quit raising food for the boll weevils and go to making some thing for your family. I have $500.00 in the bank and when I left Houston county on account of the boll weevils I didn't have a dollar."

"Gosh! I believe I'll try it."

Mr. Seth Brimbery of Arkansas is spending a few days here visiting his sister, Mrs. T. H. Leaverton.

Mr. J. H. Patton attended the Woodmen lodge at Crockett last week and reports a good time.

Mrs. C. E. Hayes is visiting Mrs. Clinton on Lone Star farm again this week.

Mr. C. E. Hays has about four acres of cabbage that are looking fine and will bring about $100.00 per acre net. Now don't that beat raising boll weevil cotton?

Mrs. Cummings, who had a relapse, is improving.

An Aged Negro Missing.

Crockett, Texas, November 9.—Charley Coulter, an old and respected darkey, who claimed to be 106 years of age, disappeared from his home six miles east of Crockett about two weeks ago, and has not been heard of since. His relatives at first supposed that he had gone on a visit to one of his sons living at a distance of about twenty miles from his home, but it now develops that he did not go there. His mysterious disappearance can not be accounted for, as he is not known to have had any enemies. So far as known he was the oldest resident of this county and had lived here for fifty years.

Colds and Croup in Children.

"My little girl is subject to colds" says Mrs. Wm. H. Serig, No. 41, Fifth St., Wheeling W. Va. "Last winter she had a severe spell and a terrible cough but I cured her with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy without the aid of a doctor, and my little boy has been prevented many times from having the croup by the timely use of this syrup." This remedy is for sale by B. R. Guice & Son.

We call the attention of the readers of the Messenger to Geo. E. Darsey's two page add this week. Mr. Darsey means just what he says and you can depend on finding his cut prices just as advertised as he is known as a merchant that never advertises any thing that he does not live up to.

What Shall I Do?

Young friend, you are asking yourself that question to-day. Life is ahead of you—life with its glittering prospects and its dismal failures. With bated breath and straining eyes, you peer into future striving to read your fate. All is not gold out there—all is not laughter and music and joy. This is a hard old world as well a good one. Mixed with its pleasure is sorrow, and success is seeded with failure. and, in the rush for gain, you must have a well skilled mind to hold your own.

What will you do? You must prepare. In this commercial age only those who are prepared succeed. Great opportunities are ahead, splendid success is within your reach. Are you ready? Do you know how to transact business? to record it? to catch and fix, with flying pencil, the thought as it falls from the lip of the manager? To handle the keys that moves the rich cars of commerce over the busy rail? To the young man or woman, these are the broad and roomy ways to success; all others are crowded. True, there's room at the top in the professions, but it takes most of life to get there. The book-keeper, or stenographer, or operator succeeds and earns from the start; the ladder is only half as long, and its rounds are the solid gold of a fine monthly salary.

Prepare! Prepare! Prepare! at the Tyler Commercial College of Tyler, Texas, the greatest business training school of the south—the school that guarantees to prepare you for the best positions and will then place you.

Letter to Ike Whittaker.

Grapeland, Texas.

Dear Sir: You know diamonds don't go by size. So with paint.

We make paint, one gallon of which goes as far as two of another and lasts twice as long; that's four to one.

You know it is true in diamonds; they don't go by the gallon, do they?

If you're going to paint your house, you go first to your painter and say: "I'm going to paint do you want the job? and what'll it cost?"

If he happens to know, he'll say: "Depends on the paint. I can do it for somewhere about $100 or $200, whichever you like: $100 will make a good job; $200 a poor one."

And you if you happen to have your wits, 'll say: "I'll take the good one, when'll you do it?"

Painters ought, all to know about paint; and jewelers ought to be able to get a good job. We do what we can to help both.

One gallon Devoe better than two of average paint, goes as far—that is, your house will take about 20 gallons Devoe and 40 of average paint—and Devoe will wear a long time; the life of average paint is very uncertain it may be a year, it may be five.

Why is it that painters don't know about paint? Do jewelers know about diamonds? They know more than they tell sometimes. There are painters and painters; so there are jewelers; so there is paint, and the least-gallons paint is Devoe.

Yours truly,

F. W. DEVOE & CO., New York.

How to Cure a Cold.

Be as careful as you can you will occasionally take cold, and when you do, get a medicine of known reliability, one that has an established reputation and that is certain to effect a quick cure. Such a medicine is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It has gained a world wide reputation by its remarkable cures of this most common ailment, and can always be depended upon. It acts on nature's plan, relieves the lungs, aids expectoration, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. During the many years in which it has been in general use we have yet to learn of a single case of cold or attack of the grip having resulted in pneumonia when this remedy was used, which shows conclusively that it is a certain preventive of that dangerous disease. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by B. R. Guice & Son.

WIND GUARD FOR PIPES.

Smoker Made Comfortable in Strong Breeze.

A large number of devices have been invented for the purpose of protecting the bowl of a tobacco pipe from the wind. The particular novelty in the device which is shown here with consists in the fact that the wind guard is adjustable to any particular direction of the wind, that it will cover the bowl to any extent desired, and that it may be readily folded out of the way in order to give the smoker ready access to the bowl when desired. The guard is formed of telescoping plates, which in folded position lie approximately level with the top of the pipe bowl. They are hinged to a ring which is secured to the pipe by means of pins that project into an annular groove near the top of the bowl. This method of attachment permits the guard to be rotated to any desired position. When in use, explains Scientific American, the telescoping plates are raised, and form a hood which rises over the mouth of the bowl, at the same time leaving sufficient opening for the admission of air. The extent to which the bowl is covered may be governed by the number of members which are raised.

ASSORTS SMALL COINS.

Divides and Stacks Quantities of Quarters, Nickels and Dimes.

It would be impossible for any one person to assort and stack a million small coins in six months, yet the task could be readily accomplished with the aid of the apparatus shown here, the invention of a Kansas man. This coin assorter and stacker comprises a series of superposed sorting plates secured equal distance apart. A case surrounds the plates, the latter being adapted to be vibrated. The respective plates have apertures of different sizes, the apertures of one plate being smaller than the plate above. A stacking arrangement is attached to each plate. The coins are dumped into the apparatus and the plates vibrated by the handle. They are thus caused to circulate, the smaller coins dropping through into the proper compartment. They are then gathered into the stackers, being then removed and tied in bundles, as is customary. Street railways and other concerns handling immense quantities of small coins daily, suggests the Baltimore American, would undoubtedly find this apparatus a great time and labor saver.

TRY IT NEXT FOURTH.

Powder May Be Exploded with Electricity.

A one-inch hole was bored in the center of a two-inch square block. Two finishing nails were driven in, as shown in the sketch. These were connected to terminals of an induction coil. After everything was ready the powder was poured in the hole and a board weighted with rocks placed over the block. When the button is pressed or the circuit closed in some other way, says Popular Mechanics, the discharge occurs. The distance between the nail points—which must be bright and clean—should be just enough to give a good, fat spark.

FIVE MONTHS IN HOSPITAL.

Discharged Because Doctors Could Not Cure.

Levi P. Brockway, S. Second Ave., Anoka, Minn., says: "After lying for five months in a hospital I was discharged as incurable, and given only six months to live. My heart was affected, I had smothering spells, and sometimes fell unconscious. I got so I couldn't use my arms, my eyesight was impaired and the kidney secretions were badly disordered. I was completely worn out and discouraged when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, but they went right to the cause of the trouble and did their work well. I have been feeling well ever since." Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Delicate Shade of Meaning.

A keen retort is credited to the late Dr. Haig-Brown, master of Charterhouse.

His brother-in-law, Dr. Porter, the master of Peterhouse, another famous English school, wrote him, inquiring his precise meaning in a certificate that a boy's character was "generally" good.

"When I say generally," he replied, "I mean not particularly."

"Do you believe Bygmutt really needs an operation for appendicitis?" "No; but his doctor has just returned from his vacation."—N. Y. Press.

IN LIFE'S BRIEF SPAN.

Experiences, Joys and Sorrows of the Human Existence.

The loves and friendships of individuals partake of the frail character of human life, and are brief and uncertain. The experience of a human life may be shortly summed up: A little loving and a good deal of sorrowing; some bright hopes and many bitter disappointments; some gorgeous Thursdays when the skies are bright and the heavens blue, when Providence, bending over us in blessings, glads the heart almost to madness; many dismal Fridays, when the smoke of torment beclouds the mind and undying sorrows gnaw upon the heart; some high ambitions and many Waterloo defeats, until the heart becomes like a charnel house filled with dead affections, embalmed in holy but sorrowful memories; and then the chord is loosed, the golden bowl is broken, the individual life—a cloud, a vapor, passes away.—Matthew Hale Carpenter.

Stretching Rings.

A jeweler in Third avenue, New York city, advertises "Wedding rings purchased here will be stretched to any size without extra cost." His enterprise is based on a knowledge of human frailty. "The girl often happens to balk," he says, "and the fellow gets it in the neck. The ring for that intended may not fit the finger of the next intended; so I stretch it for nothing. I have stretched rings as many as five times for one man." Why not use rubber rings?

SKIN DISEASES

HUMORS IN THE BLOOD

When the blood is pure, fresh and healthy, the skin will be soft, smooth and free from blemishes, but when some acid humor takes root in the circulation its presence is manifested by a skin eruption or disease. These humors get into the blood, generally because of an inactive or sluggish condition of the members of the body whose duty it is to collect and carry off the waste and refuse matter of the system. This unhealthy matter is left to sour and ferment and soon the circulation becomes charged with the acid poison. The blood begins to throw off the humors and acids through the pores and glands of the skin, producing Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Psoriasis, Salt Rheum and skin eruptions of various kinds. Eczema appears, usually with a slight redness of the skin followed by pustules from which there flows a sticky fluid that dries and forms a crust, and the itching is intense. It is generally on the back, breast, face, arms and legs, though other parts of the body may be affected. In Tetter the skin dries, cracks and bleeds; the acid in the blood dries up the natural oils of the skin, which are intended to keep it soft and pliant, causing a dry, feverish condition and giving it a hard, leathery appearance. Acne makes its appearance on the face in the form of pimples and black heads, while Psoriasis comes in scaly patches on different parts of the body. One of the worst forms of skin trouble is Salt Rheum, its favorite point of attack is the scalp, sometimes causing baldness. Poison Oak and Ivy are also disagreeable types of skin disease. The humor producing the trouble lies dormant in the blood through the Winter to break out and torment the sufferer with the return of Spring. The best treatment for all skin diseases is S. S. S.

S. S. S. neutralizes the acids and removes the humors so that the skin instead of being irritated and diseased, is nourished by a supply of fresh, healthy blood. External applications of salves, washes, lotions, etc., while they soothe the itching caused by skin affections, can never cure the trouble because they do not reach the blood. S. S. S. goes down into the circulation and forces out every particle of foreign matter and restores the blood to its normal, pure condition, thereby permanently curing every form of skin affection. Book on Skin Diseases and any medical advice desired sent free to all who write. S. S. S. is for sale at all first class drug stores.

Mr. Cain's letter

Arayat, Pampanga, P. I.—
The latest is that Mr. Roosevelt is to become Governor General of the Philippines as soon as his term of office expires. I hope he will. There are no bears here for him to hunt but why not chase a wild boar? This quadruped was monarch of the forest before bears floated on banners or muck rakes went into politics. If this failed to satisfy the President's love of adventure he might use his 'big stick' on a few savages or capture a band of outlaws. Then it would certainly be gratifying to him to live in a country where there is no race suicide. It is true he might hunger and thirst after an example of the strenuous life were it not for the stork, but here this important functionary knows no end of business.

For a while we did our own house work, cooking and all. We enjoyed the novelty of the experiment but as we had a little too much work on hand we hired a cook. He is able to prepare several native dishes that are very palatable, and thus reduce the amount spent for imported foods. He had such an outlandish name that we had to re-christen him. We call him Arkansas. When we told him that he was named after one of the states in America he felt very proud of his new name.

I have been trying to secure a picture of our school janitor to show you. As I have failed to obtain the picture and as he baffles description, I shall have to pass him up to your own fertile imagination. You may hoot at evolution if you like but if you could see this creature you would willingly be sworn that he would not have to count his ancestors more than two generations back to find them wearing tails. The people here say that some of the Igarotes living up in the mountains still wear little stump tails about like that worn by a goat. I heartily discredit the story but am going up there to learn the truth of the matter.

The greatest of all great luxuries in the Philippines is smoking. If a certain half-dozen of my former school boys were here they would find this a paradise. I will venture to say I have chased those fellows, all told, a hundred miles in order to reduce their smoking to the minimum, but in spite of that, they have made the cigarette their companion so constantly that their minds are already stunted and before they cast a vote their physical constitutions will be affected. The results of excessive child smoking are strikingly illustrated in the frail little bodies and the none to powerful minds of the Filipino. Every Filipino man and boy and a majority of the women smoke. The boys are never found without their package of cigarettes and a box of matches. Then there is a giant cigar for family use. I can hardly expect you to believe me when I say this cigar is as large as a chair post and almost a yard long. One such cigar tied with a cord and suspended from the ceiling of the house will last a whole family several days. When required for use a match is applied, and if there are visitors in the home they are invited to smoke first. Then each member of the family passes around and takes a few puffs, after which the colossus is carefully extinguished until next time. I have not yet seen any one chewing tobacco I don't know why unless it is because there is not enough tobacco left to chew after they get through smoking. But really they don't need to chew tobacco; they chew betel-nut, which has tobacco skinned a mile when it comes to real filth. The betel-nut grows on a palm tree. When chewed it produces a spittle that looks exactly like blood. When I first arrived in Manila I thought a new kind of plague had seized the people and that everybody had hemorrhage of the gullet.

The greatest ambition of most Filipinos, aside from a desire to figure in the government, is to be a merchant. Almost anything will do for their stock in trade. They are not at all choosy as to what they sell nor how little they sell; they do not like to sell too much and indeed will not sell very much to one person without raising the price. For instance, eggs sell at three centavos each if you wish to buy only four or five but if you desire to purchase a few more, each egg will cost a little higher. If you tell the merchant you want all the eggs he has, they will likely cost you four centavos each. He will not sell all his goods at any price. In that case he would have to close up his store until he could get a fresh supply. You see it is the pleasure of keeping store and not the profit that he is hankering after.

Market day is a great day for all Filipinos. In order that I may explain what the market is, let's think of each town as having something on the plan of the old-time camp ground arbor, but about four times as large. Each side of this arbor is lined with little stalls like the fruit stands in a city. Then there are many long bamboo tables running lengthwise from one end of the arbor to the other. This is the place where market is held one day in each week. The towns in the same section of the country all have different days of the week so there will be no conflict, for the people come from far and near to the market. It happens that Sunday is the market day for Arayat. Saturday evening the people begin to arrive on the river boats and by the time I can get my eyes open Sunday morning the town is alive with trade. The regular merchants transfer a part or all of their stock to the market place and occupy the stalls mentioned above. The hundreds of people who come from other places bring every description of things to sell and arrange their chattels on the long tables. It would afford you a variety of scenes and some pleasure to stroll through the market on a Sunday afternoon. You would encounter the cigarette and betel-nut stand next the rice dealer and the fish woman, then the oil vender with his various grades of coconut and John D. Standard, the dry goods man with his bright colored clothes, the meat man and his rank pork, the fruit seller with a score of native fruits, and perhaps a hundred things too tedious to enumerate. In fact everything that a country produces or the people use is bought and sold at the market. The Sunday business of the merchants often equal that of all the rest of the week. A large percent of the traders are women. The social chat holds a prominent place in the day's business. As the dusk of the evening draws on, this motley throng gradually disperses. The merchants haul their goods back to the stores, the boats are loaded with visitors returning to other river towns and the people of the neighboring barrios balance their huge baskets on their heads and file out as silently as a band of Indians.

Did you ever read about bread growing on trees? When I used to read such stories I thought they were written just to make books interesting. Now I am convinced otherwise. We have bread-fruit almost every day. It is not bad just as it is taken from the tree but when sliced, fried and sprinkled with sugar it is very delicious. Some of my old friends have been asking me how I like the Philippines. I can tell you in all candor that I like them much better than I anticipated. Pleasant climate, easy work, short hours and good pay is a brief statement of the case. As far as real pleasure goes, this does not come up to Grapeland. I miss my old students so much. They were the most congenial and high-minded set of young people I ever knew. My richest benediction remains with them.

A. W. Cain.

"We Have Many Similar."

The following is an extract from a letter received from Mr. H. H. Meyers of Stuttgart, Ark., "You would greatly oblige me if you would introduce Hunt's Lightning Oil at Milligeville, Ill as I have many friends and relatives there, in whom I am concerned, and I understand the Oil is not kept there. I can recommend it as the best medicine I ever had in my house. It cured me of a bad case of the Blood Flux in less than a half-hour, and it cured my granddaughter of a bad case of Cholera Morbus in a very short time."

Saw Mills Closing Down.

Crockett Texas, November 7.—
Nearly all of the saw mills in this country have either shut down, or are curtailing their output for the present, which is due to the fact that there is practically no market for lumber at this time. Most of the small mills of the county have large stocks of lumber on hand, and are getting no orders and they prefer to cut down expenses and let their timber stand until the lumber market improves. Although the stock on hand at the mills is larger than usual at this season of the year, what sales are made are at a fancy good price.
