COLD WINTERS

Texas farmers are being warned against placing faith in forecasts of an extremely cold winter ahead to be followed by an unseasonable summer in 1926. The winter may be extremely cold and the summer unseasonable, but scientists have no means of telling it at this early date. A week is the longest dip possible into weather future.

Neither is there reason for believing that the winters in this section are no longer so cold nor the summers so hot as formerly, considering weather bureau figures on the point, running back three decades. The mean December, January and February temperature over the decade 18-95-1904 was 48.4 degrees. For the decade of 1905-1914 it was 49.7 degrees, and for 1915-1924, 51.9 degrees, a difference in the total range of 3.5 degrees. The mean temperature for the same three months last year was 49.8 degrees.

Shows that lay on the ground for months on end, skating that began in November and lasted until March, snow drifts that reached almost any height one might mention, were the exceptional occurrences in grandfathers day as they are today, scientists say. One mild winter starts the rumor that overcoat manufacturers had better get into the Palm Beach suit business, while an extremely cold winter is dubbed as a good old-fashioned winter.

One exception for this is that memory is tricky and recalls the exceptional rather than the average. Another is that modern living has taken the edge off the extreme weather. A snowfall that our forefathers would have trodden under foot for days now is shovelled away before we get up in the morning. Better heating, too, makes us feel the low temperature less, and ice refrigerating plants and electric fans made extremes of heat more endurable.

While the weather is constantly changing from one year to another, big climatic changes are too gradual to be observed in the lifetime of one or even a hundred generations, scientists say. They figure that the climate of this continent has not changed in some ten million years, and probably will not for another ten million.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Well, my good man, you might as well take that dirty old pipe of yours out to the back porch steps, if you want to smoke alone and read your paper in peace. If things keep going the way they are, it will not be long until the Missus will be interrupting you every five minutes with a request for a match—you know how an inexperienced pipe smoker is.

Six months ago one swanky shop on Fifth avenue displayed pipes and smoking requisites for women. Now there are dozens of shops in town selling pipes for women, special blends, tobacco pouches and match cases. And within the last few months I have seen several women smoking cigars.

On one occasion I saw a flapper attempt to smoke an Italian story, then which there is nothing stronger; she smoked all of it and professed she enjoyed it. At the same time I saw a man who was a confirmed cigar smoker turn deathly pale from the effects of just a few puffs of a similar character.

And now come the sporty new trains to Florida. They have provided special smoking lounges for women. Men will not feel quite so cocky now about their club car privileges.

Broadway buzzes with news of anatomizations in the movie industry. Most of the reports have to do with deals being made by Famous Players-Lasky in an attempt to gather all of the motion picture interests in a monopoly under the standard of Adolph Zukor. Of course, most of these reports are denied by Famous Players. And while all of this gossip goes on there is being disclosed some very interesting sidelights on property values. For instance, one reported deal involves the sale of Palustris Pictures and it is declared on Broadway that the contract to Reginald Denny's services is worth $2,000,000. That, because he is the only player on the screen suited to play the same sort of role that Wally Field played.

Brown glassware is becoming very popular in the hooch emporiums along Incandescence Row. The reason: you can't tell what color your liquor is or how anemic it looks through brown glass.

If you're going to be a success in New York it will not take you long to know it. I doubt if there is any other place in the world where the fate of a new business or a new career is decided so quickly. There's Mitt Gross, for instance. Two years ago he was drawing "filler" comics on an afternoon paper. Then he developed a comic strip that proved wildly successful. Then he developed a Yiddish comic which is a featured article each week in a Sunday paper. It is wildly successful, probably the most quoted feature in town. And now Charlie Chaplin has signed him up as a scenario writer. Gross is in the early twenties and is very modest.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

By C. R. Nowell

Use the Gun Less and Yell More. It is never the burglar that is shot. A young woman had the foolish notion of "surprising" her aunt by slipping in through the window on an unexpected visit. So her uncle, who was a constable and therefore armed, shot her dead, as she supposed.

Even if it had been a burglar, the homeowner could have frightened him away by one loud yell, and, being an officer of the law, he would have been at least as likely to make a successful arrest without the "gun" as to shoot the right person with it.

A Los Angeles woman found a burglar in the house. Seizing the nearest weapon, which happened to be a feather pillow, she awaited him over the head with it.

Naturally he was not hurt, but he fled precipitately. The most harmless implement of combat in existence was enough.

If she had had a gun and attempted to use it, the burglar would have used his first, and she would have been dead.

The best weapon against an armed burglar is a soft pillow or a loaf of bread. And the most formidable watchdog is a brainless and cowardly terrier.

Criminals are arrested in other countries by unarmed officers, and the people of countries where revolvers are unknown in the hands of the law-abiding are safer from robbers and burglars than we have ever been.

Abolish the "gun" in everybody's hands, including the policeman's. Then, if the criminal has one by outgunning processes, hold him conclusively guilty a fassault to commit murder, regardless of what his other crime was. The pocket "gun" does no good to anybody. Whoever needs a firearm, whether soldier, policeman, or private citizen, needs a rifle.

Cabinet Members Should Go Before Congress

Secretary Mellon will go personally before the House Ways and Means Committee, to argue his plan for tax reduction. This is good as far as it goes.

But would it not be infinitely better if the secretary, instead of going before a committee of Congress, could go before Congress itself, where all the rest of us could know what he was doing, too?

Before the committee, he is a witness, to give information and be cross-examined. Before Congress, he would be a leader, in advocating his plans and meet his opponents and critics face to face.

If he could not meet the real objections of his opponents, he would stand discredited before the country. On the other hand, the demagogic and specious part of their objections could not long survive the test of facts to which his presence would subject them.

This is the only important country in the world in which the chief official of the nation, with a definite piece of legislation to present to the legislative body, would not have the opportunity to make his presentation in the body itself.

It is "unpatriotic" to suggest that government in America is less than perfect. But not when the critic has so well earned the right to see faults, by constructive service in correcting them, as former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois.

Said Governor Lowden, in an address at the University of Chicago, "Taxation's growing burden has been the only stimulus that has awakened our people into the fearful knowledge that democratic government, as America is practicing it, is a failure at the moment."

If we needed a "stimulus," it is well that taxation has furnished it. "Efficiency" is a good thing, but most of us do not get interested in it until inefficiency costs us something.

It was high taxes that made the budget possible. But no budget can produce economy enough by mere cheese-paring.

We have already doubtless as much of that as is possible without verging over the line from economy to extravagance. The real economy is the sort of constructive reorganization of the whole business of government of which Governor Lowden gave the nation so fine an example in Illinois.

The first step toward that is to realize that we are not perfect. And doubtless the surest way to realize that is to pay the bills.

just retired as White House chief clerk to become publicity director for the American Petroleum Institute, got his start as a public character by disagreeing with President Roosevelt.

Jud was Washington correspondent for the Munsey publications at the time. One day the President sent for the newspaper men, among them Jud, to outline, for their benefit, a scheme he had doped out looking toward a solution of the country's railroad problems, just then pretty numerous and acute.

Concluding, he looked expectantly at his auditors, awaiting their verdict evidently in full confidence that it would be favorable. It was. Presidential plans selected were looked very closely in the mouth. President Roosevelt's was accepted, almost unanimously, with enthusiastic acclaim. Almost, but not quite. Jud was glumly silent.

"Mr. Welliver," said the Colonel, severely, "what do you think of my program?"

"I don't think much of it," rejoined Jud. "Wh-hat!" stammered the President, aghast at such lese majesty. "You don't? Why not?"

"Before you can do a thing toward straightening out the transportation tangle," explained Jud, who had specialized on railroad news for years. "You've got to have a valuation of all the companies' properties made, and you don't say a word about that."

A pretty hectic 15 minutes followed, but the upshot was that Jud "sold" his idea to President Roosevelt. It really was the origin of the reevaluation of America's railroads which has been going on ever since. Senator LaFollette introduced the bill, but it was Jud who won for the undertaking its first presidential support.

The so-called Emory building, chosen by the War Department for the Colonel "Billy" Mitchell court-martial, is the worst old shack the government owns in Washington, and that's saying a lot.

They say this is tradition, the ruins are so aged—that the venerable pile was built originally for the census bureau, which occupied it until it threatened to collapse and then moved out, scared. Somehow it hung together until the war, when Mitchell's friends swear the War Department picked it for his trial on purpose, but this isn't likely. The department's own judges and prosecutors knew they'd have to endure its discomforts, too.

Does Your Doctor Know?

Any person who makes it his business to treat sick people ought to know what he is doing. To give you good service he ought to know about the human body. He ought to know what makes you sick. You have the right to demand that he know his business. Here are the things he must know for your safety:—

ANATOMY

Anatomy is the study of your body's parts such as the heart, the stomach, the intestines, the liver, the kidneys, etc. Your doctor must know the parts else he can't put them back in order. There is no such thing as "medical" anatomy or "chiropractic" anatomy. Human anatomy is a science your doctor must know.

PHYSIOLOGY

Physiology is the study of how the parts of your body work, how the organs function. Digestion is an example. There is no such thing as "medical" digestion nor "chiropractic" digestion. Human physiology must be understood by any person who treats the disordered body.

PATHOLOGY

Pathology is anatomy and physiology gone wrong. An ulcer in your stomach is an example. There is no such thing as "medical" pathology or "chiropractic" pathology. Human pathology must be known by your doctor else he can't overcome your trouble.

DIAGNOSIS

Diagnosis is the analysis of your trouble. Your doctor studies your symptoms—the facts in your case. They tell him what is the matter with you. There is no such thing as "medical" diagnosis or "chiropractic" diagnosis. Your doctor must know how to interpret facts else he can't know what your trouble is. If he can't diagnose your trouble—can't read the facts—he can't know whether his treatment will cure or kill you.

BACTERIOLOGY

Bacteriology is the study of germs and microbes which cause many, many diseases. Bad colds, flu, diphtheria, pneumonia, small pox, typhoid fever, tuberculosis and spinal meningitis are examples. There are no such things as "medical" germs or "chiropractic" germs. Disease producing germs must be familiar to your doctor else he can't be sure what disease you have.

GYNECOLOGY

Gynecology is the study of the diseases peculiar to the female sex. Women have a different anatomy from men. There is no such thing as "medical" gynecology or "chiropractic" gynecology. Human gynecology must be understood by your doctor else he can't relieve and cure women suffering with female troubles.

OBSTETRICS

Obstetrics has to do with motherhood and childbirth. There is no such thing as "medical" obstetrics or "chiropractic" obstetrics. Human obstetrics must be familiar to doctors for the bring the next generation into this world.

SURGERY

Surgery may be called human carpentry. Removing an appendix is surgery. Setting a broken bone is surgery. Replacing a dislocated bone is surgery. There is no such thing as "medical" surgery or "chiropractic" surgery. Your doctor must know human surgery else he can't help you when surgery is the best remedy. He may not practice surgery, but he should know something about it so he can advise you that your case requires surgery.

CHEMISTRY

Digestion is a chemical process. Diseases cause chemical changes in the body and in the blood. Poisons produce chemical changes in the body. There is no such thing as "medical" chemistry or "chiropractic" chemistry. Nature's chemistry should be understood by your doctor else he will be helpless many times in fighting disease.

HISTOLOGY

Histology is anatomy under the microscope. The body is composed of millions of tiny cells which are too small to be seen with the naked eye. The study of histology enables your doctor to know the body's fine points. There is no such thing as "medical" histology or "chiropractic" histology. Human histology is necessary for your doctor to know if he really and truly knows the body.

MEDICAL JURISPRUDENCE

Medical jurisprudence is the law regarding you and your doctor's relation. Injured persons have legal rights to collect damages. The insane have legal rights protected by law. Your doctor should know medical jurisprudence in order to look after your rights when you are injured, unconscious and helpless.

HYGIENE

Hygiene is the science of keeping well. There is no such thing as "medical" hygiene or "chiropractic" hygiene. Your doctor should know hygiene in order to prevent filthy diseases. Hygiene tells him to keep things sanitary and clean.

The Sick Room Is No Place for Ignorance

Every person who administers to the sick for pay is required by law to know the above subjects and to pass an examination in them before he can legally practice. He must qualify scientifically before he can qualify legally. These subjects are not hard to learn. Any man who wants the State to permit him to follow the business of helping the sick certainly ought to come up to the reasonable requirements of his State. No short-cut fellow should be allowed to defy the law. Licensed doctors, those who have obtained a license, make mistakes. How much more, then, should ignorance be guarded against.

Appendicitis Is No New Fangled Malady of Humans

By DR. HUGH S. CUMMING.

Surgeon General, United States Public Health Service.

Many people consider appendicitis a comparatively new disease, an ailment that up to a generation ago was not heard of. Appendicitis is as old as the human race. It is simply known by another name, or rather by a variety of other names, before it was discovered that the little organ called the appendix was causing all the trouble.

The first accurate and definite description of this disease was given by Dr. Reginald Fitz of Boston in 1856. Previous to that time the medical profession did not regard the appendix as the seat of any dangerous disease.

It is perfectly true that before 1856 diseases due to disease of the appendix had been opened and drained, but the appendix had not been removed and the operation did not involve any extensive opening of the body cavity. In 1855, however, an operation for appendicitis was performed, an appendix removed, and the patient lived until 1919, in no way affected by the removal of that organ.

In order that you may understand something of the nature of appendicitis, it is first necessary that you know something about the appendix. You should know that man is one of the few animals having a vermiform appendix.

We do not know that it has any useful function. It has been called a rudimentary organ. Some people believe that it is simply an organ that has deteriorated from lack of use, until it is now but a remnant of a once active and important part of the body.

The vermiform appendix is a finger-like appendage about three inches in length and a quarter of an inch in diameter, having a canal running throughout its entire length. It is situated at the end of the cecum or large intestine, just below the point where the small intestine opens into the large intestine. It is found in the lower right side of the abdomen. Sometimes it is shorter than three inches, and specimens have been found that were six to 11 inches in length.

Some time, the year which appendicitis was first recognized as the seat of various diseases, the great French bacteriologist, Louis Pasteur, was conducting his studies of the causes of the disease. He found that ty-

Four Shots

When Mrs. Helen Allard (below) of Shiner, Pa., Wis., discovered her husband was out riding with another woman, she got a revolver and waited for them to come back. As the girl, Miss Emma Schultz, above, got out of the car, she shot her four times. She is under arrest and Miss Schultz is recovering in a hospital.

phoid germs were responsible for many infections of the human body and proved that germs were the agents which caused disease.

The discovery of Pasteur was taken advantage of by Lister, the father of modern surgery, who applied his principles to all operations, and revolutionized surgery. Previous to this time surgical operations were attended with great risks because of the infection which set in after the operation. Now, however, these infections have ceased to appear and surgery has been brought to a stage that is comparatively safe.

The germs which cause appendicitis may enter the appendix through the blood or through the intestines, with which the appendix is connected. Apparently these germs may originate in distant parts of the body, in the tonsils, in bad teeth, or in the stomach.

The structure of the appendix is such that it favors infection. There is a great deal of tissue which may easily become swollen, thus shutting off the canal and allowing the material retained to decompose and produce inflammation.

It may be said in general that any condition which tends to interfere with the drainage of the appendix into the large intestine is of importance in causing appendicitis. Free drainage of the appendix is essential for the healthy condition of the individual and the retention of any material in the organ may produce inflammation.

The treatment of an attack of appendicitis is surgical.

May Peterson is coming to Sweetwater, November 12. 23719c.

PEOPLE DON'T ADMIRE ROUGH, PIMPLY SKIN

Before you can impress some one of the opposite sex enough to get them to share the happy state of love with you, you certainly must keep your appearance pleasing and attractive. Puffy, blotchy, eczemic skin seems ten times worse to strangers and new acquaintances, and even husbands, wives, parents and kin feel sorry for loved ones who suffer from such skin diseases.

The way to get rid of all these drawbacks to affection and devotion from dear ones is to use Black and White Ointment and Soap like thousands of people are doing. They are economically priced in liberal packages. The 50c size Black and White Ointment contains three times as much as the 25c size. All dealers have both the Ointment and the Soap. (adv)

High School P-T

The high school Parent Teachers Association will meet at the high school Thursday at 4 p. m. Parents are urgently requested to attend these meetings in order to win the picture Rufus. It is offering for the best attendance of the year among the four Parent Teacher organizations.

The high school association is giving a picture to the grade having the most mothers present during the year among the four high school grades.

The Freshman class won this last month. Another picture will be given in the same manner to the three grades of the Junior high.

The Juniors will render the program Thursday. Mrs. Roberts, domestic science teacher, will give a paper on proper diet for children. There will be a round table discussion on this subject also. Refreshments will be served.

MUCH MARRIED GIRL MAY BREAK RECORD

EL PASO, Nov. 10.—She's only 18 years old—she has been married four times and divorced three times—

She's now starting in on her fourth husband, and she vows that before they lay her among the daisies she'll set a world's record as a matrimonial quick change artist.

She started in life as Pauline Nixon, out in the great open spaces of Texas, where men are plentiful as well as chivalrous.

Pauline hardly got a square deal in life, at that. When she was 14 she had got enough cards from the bottom of the deck to make many an older person throw the whole hand into the discard and call for a new deal.

To begin with, her father and mother were at odds. Each one wanted the sole custody of Pauline. Once the father kidnapped her and immured her in a convent for three years. Then motoring in the desert, he ran afoul of bandits and was shot to death. This ended the family row but not Pauline's troubles.

Craved Pleasure

The girl had grown up fast, amid such fast-moving home surroundings and at the age of 13 she became filled with a craving for life—life with its pleasures and gaieties that the older people seemed able to take, but that always were denied her.

So she dropped out of high school abruptly and married a young man named Austin P. Carlton. This at Las Cruces, N. M., in June 1922.

The marriage went on the rocks after nearly two years and Carlton left her. She was granted a divorce.

The girl's acquaintances began to poke fun at her.

"Married and divorced at 16—where will you end up?" they taunted her. And that gave her the idea.

"I boasted in jest that I'd break De Wolf Hopper's marriage record," she says. "Then I got to thinking it over and decided I'd go ahead and do it."

A Very Canny Lass

Now observe the caniness that can descend upon a girl of 16.

Twenty-four days after her first divorce she remarried, this time a Cisco druggist by the name of Lolei B. Stagner. Under the law she should have waited a year after the divorce decree. She didn't. Consequently, when she and Stagner tired of one another, four months later, she didn't have to work hard for a divorce. All she did was get an annulment, on the ground that the marriage was illegal in the first place.

A couple of weeks later she went to Las Cruces, N. M., with another boy friend, one W. B. Wizinread, to attend the wedding of a pair of mutual friends. The friends dared them to get married too. Pauline, not being the girl to be kidded in that manner, they up and did it.

Somehow, this marriage wasn't any luckier than the other two. Finally Pauline drifted into court again. It was still less than a year after her first divorce, so another automatic annulment was in order. Again she was free.

But not for long. Outside the court room she fell in with a bosom friend of the late lamented Wizinread, a chap named E. L. Page. One thing led to another, and nine hours after she and Wizinread had become nothing more than friends, she became Page's wife. For the present she still is.

Only thing on earth more trouble than raising a family is taking care of a young bird dog.

MOVIES.

Palace

Meet her face to face (or face to screen, perhaps) for the first time—the girl with the dulcet tones who induces you to run that "want ad" again if the first hasn't brought results.

She's at the Palace Theater today, an ingratiating smile for everyone—a deliciously droll characterization such as you hadn't thought Corinne Griffith capable of.

Fans of Miss Griffith, of course will declare that she is able to work miracles of characterization, but never before did she invest such a role as that of Babs Comet in First National's picturization of "Classified," an adaptation of an Edna Ferber story.

Gleaners Meet

The Gleaners met with Mrs. J. P. Hefley Monday afternoon with fifteen members present. Mrs. Joe Bowen was enrolled as a new member. The Gleaners and Missionary Society as a Calendar Club will entertain next Monday for Mrs. R. A. Stewart.

Prayer Circle

The Bowie street Prayer Circle will meet Wednesday afternoon, at three o'clock with Mrs. Cline hostess and Mrs. Ben Jones leader. Mrs. J. Sheppard was hostess last week with Mrs. Smith leader and nine ladies were present.

The Mary Martha Class will meet in the basement of the Methodist Church Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Society gets plenty of exercise trying to cut head lettuce with a fork instead of a knife.

Down Talk

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Bradford went to Roby Sunday to attend the funeral Monday of J. W. McWhirter, a long time resident of Fisher county.

Mrs. R. A. Musgrove is in Dallas with her daughter, Mrs. Ned Shelor. She is recovering nicely from an operation on her eyes.

L. L. Armor and wife drove to Dallas Sunday.

G. E. Ramsey and W. W. Beall left Tuesday for Canyon to attend the Methodist conference.

Rev. Hanks of Loraine was in Sweetwater Monday on his way to Sylvester to hold funeral services for Philip Lawles, who died at that place.

Rev. A. L. Moore, presiding elder of the Stamford district, passed thru Sweetwater Monday enroute to conference. Rev. Moore has been secretary of the conference for many years.

Mrs. R. A. Stewart will attend the conference at Canyon.

The Wesley Bible class will meet with Mrs. J. T. Hughes Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. Willard Gibson leaves Tuesday night for Fort Worth for a few days' visit.

Otis Grisham, manager of Wooten Motor Co., will spend Armistice Day with his parents in Moran.

At the West Texas Lumbermen's Convention at San Angelo Wednesday, November 11, Burton Lingo will be represented by Bryan Buck; Bryant Lumber Co. by C. W. Bryant; and Gray Lumber Co. by Alvin Gray.

Among the ancient relics given Simmons University by R. C. Crane here some time ago was a piece of the timbers of the old ship Constitution secured by C. C. Prim while on a visit to the Boston harbor in 1898 and a receipt given in acknowledgement of rent paid for ground used when the ship was constructed in 1798. The receipt called for payment of around 15 pounds.

Dan Childress came in Monday from Fort Worth reporting R. S. Baxter as much improved. Mrs. Childress remained with her father.

District Court circles here are quiet this week, with no cases up for hearing. The balance of the criminal calendar with jury are called for next Monday.

Oran Sumrow of Lyford and Miss Opal Kennimer were granted a marriage license late Monday by County Clerk Gus Farrar.

Bonnie Belle Bradley spent the week end in Snyder visiting relatives.

DEAD TREES NEMESIS

Peculiar Coincidence Features Attempts to Unroot Eyesores

PARIS, Texas, Nov. 10.—November 2 will forever be D. Wingham's Nemesis, or dead trees will be.

On November 2 he attempted to cut down three dead trees, and something happened to thwart his efforts in every case.

A limb from the first one fell on him, knocking him unconscious. After recovering several hours later, he tackled another.

A nest of yellowjackets inhabited tree number 2, and they had a meal off Wingham before he finally managed to escape.

After a physician relieved his pain, he went after three number 3. It uprooted, landing him head foremost and backwards into a patch of briars and grass burrs.

When he finished picking the sand burrs and thorns from his skin the day was too near over and he gave it up.

CHAMPION HEN

White Leghorn Lays Total 315 Eggs During Year

COLLEGE STATION, Nov. 10.—A single comb White Leghorn hen from the Alex Stewart ranch, Santa Cruz, California, is champion egg layer this year, as the result of the Eighth Texas National Egg Laying Contest which closed at the A. & M. College of Texas on October 31. This hen, No. 525, of the contest, laid a total of 315 eggs during the last twelve months. The Ninth Texas National Egg Laying Contest started on November 1 with 110 entries registered from twelve states.

THE PATHS OF GLORY
Lead to Immortality

The poet said: "The paths of glory lead but to the grave." Can this be true? Are we, who sacrificed sons, brothers, husbands—fathers to be satisfied with ignominious death as finale to their efforts. A thousand times NO!

In their glorious stand for Liberty they perished, and so passed from the finite to the infinite.

Now, our boys will live forever!

On this day let us show how immortal is their glory by standing in silent reverence to the unfading memory of our Heroes.
