Report of the Baptist Missionary Aid Society

The Baptist Missionary Aid Society met Nov. 3, with Mrs. F. S. Truitt as hostess. The Pres. Mrs. John Gichler called the society to order, after which it elected the following officers: President, Mrs. F. S. Truitt, Vice President Mrs. Burton; Secretary and Treasurer, Mrs. Eberling; Reporter, Mrs. Ballard. There were 12 members present.

The society voted to have its annual Thanksgiving dinner Nov. 26, 1925. The dinner will be served in the lumber office of Truitt and Landrum, between the hours of 12 and 1:30 o'clock. The menu is as follows: Chicken, all kinds of cake and pies, celery, cranberries, Irish potato, bread, butter and coffee. Price for adults is 40 cents, for children 12 and under 12 years of age 25 cents.

At 4:30 Mrs. Truitt served, in her charming manner, a nice collation for which the society adjourned to meet with Mrs. Ballard Nov. 9th, from 2:30 to 3:30. Mrs. M. J. Shaw of Tulia, our Auxiliary President is expected to be present and give a talk to the society. Be sure and come. —Mrs. T. D. Ballard, Reporter.

C. L. LILLARD MUCH IMPROVED

C. L. Lillard, one of our local insurance and real-estate men, who has been in the hospital at Clovis last week, is able to be at his home. He came up with Mrs. Lillard Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Lillard became injured some time ago while lifting at his car which produced something akin to hernia and was taken to the hospital for treatment, where he underwent a surgical operation which promises to give permanent relief. His friends are rejoiced at his recovery.

The Friona and Farwell Missionary Societies attended the Prayer Week Program at Bovina Wednesday. They had an all day program which was enjoyed by everyone. A delicious lunch was served by the Bovina ladies. Those who attended from Friona were the Mesdames: Walker, McLellan, Beckner, Brookfield, Teague, R. L. Hix, Cleo Hicks, Harris and Parr.

E. M. Benesch (Dinty Moore), salesman for the Amarillo Paper Company was a business visitor in Friona Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mr. O. F. Flange accompanied by the Misses Marie Conway and Treva Drake were Hereford visitors on Tuesday.

IS HE ANOTHER?

Robert Brown, captain and center for Michigan this season, may bring All-American honors again to Michigan. Vick and Blott have made the All team during the last three years, and sport writers are picking Brown to repeat. He is a protégé of Blott and already is recognized as probably the best center in the Big Ten.

W. N. PARISH HAS COMPLETED NEW HOME

W. N. Parish, formerly of Merkle, Texas, has just completed a new homestead on his section of land which he recently purchased about five miles northeast of town.

He has completed a seven room house, 32 feet by 40 feet and the plasterer will have it ready for occupancy by the last of this week and he will depart for his former home within a few days to bring his family and household goods to their new home. The new home will probably be occupied by his son-in-law and Mr. Parish will build another home for himself and Mrs. Parish.

He has also built a complete set of stock sheds and all necessary out buildings. He will have his well completed within the next few days and thus complete his homestead. He is also planning to break out 500 acres for spring farming.

WITH THE CHURCHES SUNDAY

Rev. I. E. Walker, pastor of the Methodist Church filled his regular appointment here Sunday. He was greeted by the usual good attendance.

Rev. W. T. Wilson, pastor of the Congregational Church at Spring Lake, preached at the local Congregational Church here both morning and evening. He was accompanied by Mrs. Wilson and will probably visit us on the first Sunday each month for awhile at least.

Rev. Blair will preach here next Sunday for the Baptist congregation.

THE TEACHER

Palmer in his "The Ideal Teacher" says that, "In America, a land of idealism, the profession of teaching has become one of the greatest of human employments." Then when entered into as a profession, realizing that "it's service that counts, service is blessedness," there is no employment quite so satisfying.

A teacher who has achieved, or is to achieve real success in the profession, has a sense of duty, a desire to serve, and a love for children, as well as a hunger for knowledge. The able teacher is alert and eager to improve, he does his own thinking, and he applies his own theory. He is not a tool but an individual. He is free from that unchangeable ego.

Though his work is at times strenuous and even baffling, he realizes that to teach a small thing well, he must be large, and he strives to become a larger person by being a better teacher.

The love of praise and recognition is not for the teacher. He thinks not of giving according to measure but, knowing that it is "not to command success but to deserve it" that counts, gains his satisfaction from a deed well done. —H. J. Buckner.

Owing to the scarcity of farm labor, school was dismissed for this week, in order that many of the older pupils could help in the field. Our janitor, W. H. Kirk has resigned his position and it is with deep regret that the faculty and students see him leave. During his service with us he has been all that could be desired of a janitor and we come to feel that he is in reality a part of the school.

Our picture program will present "The Ten Commandments" which will be shown within the next few weeks. Watch for the date.

Ten Commandments of Health

1. Keep your mouth closed when breathing.
2. Drink cool water with all your meals; also between them.
3. Bathe daily.
4. Eat slowly, which leads to eating sparingly.
5. Exercise daily, but avoid over exertion.
6. Never read or transact business while eating.
7. Work ten hours, sleep eight and balance the remainder between rest and recreation.
8. Ever keep a contented mind. Equanimity means longevity.
9. Have a physical examination at regular intervals.
10. Moderation in all things.

The following people were entertained at the E. B. McLellan home Sunday evening: Misses Brownie McCandless, Mable Scroggin and Stella Hines, and Messrs. Clarence Day, Sloan Osborne, Dewy Porter and Casson Jones.

Pick out the folks you like the least
And watch 'em for a while;
They never waste a kindly word,
They never waste a smile;
They criticize their fellow man
At every chance they get,
They never found a human
Just to suit their fancy yet.

From them I guess we'd learn some things,
If they were pointed out—
Some things that every one of us
Should know a lot about,
When some one "knocks" a brother,
Pass around the loving cup—
Say something good about him
If you have to make it up.

Hats off to "Oscar"

It's a nine pound girl. Born to Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Lange on Tuesday, November 2, a daughter. Mrs. Lange was in Hereford when the little lady arrived and since then her "daddy" has been spending most of his time either in Hereford or on the road between Hereford and Friona. Oscar's usually sunny smile seems to have permeated his entire being and he is apparently all smiles. We extend congratulations.

SOME FINE PECANS

On Thursday afternoon the editor of the Star was presented with a box of the finest pecans we have ever had the pleasure of receiving.

They were presented by Mr. O. F. Lange, manager of the Rockwell Bros. & Company lumber yard and were produced on Mr. Lange's home farm at Llano, Texas. The pecans were real beauties and we heartily appreciate them, for if there is anything we like better than pecans it is evidently more pecans.

Along with the pecans was a small package of a species of nuts we have never seen before, which, Mr. Lange informs us is a cross between the pecan and the English walnut. In appearance they are a fine variety of nuts and present many of the characteristics of both the pecan and the walnut. These nuts were also produced on Mr. Lange's home farm near Llano.

RADIO PROGRAM POSTPONED

Owing to the absence of some of our musicians at this time, it was impossible to render our radio program on the date announced, Nov. 7.

Mr. Buckner has therefore arranged with the management of station WDAG of Amarillo to postpone the program until Saturday night, Nov. 14 at 9:00 to 10:00 o'clock p. m. Tune in at that hour and hear a good program.

Nath Morton and Dewy Porter left here Tuesday night for El Paso. Mr. Morton was called there on account of the death of his brother Ellis. Ellis spent last summer here and is well known by most of the people of Friona.

Read Our Advertisements

We feel it our duty and we take rare pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to the advertisements carried in our columns by the business men of Friona and the neighboring towns.

Many people do not fully realize that often the reading of a single advertisement will save you more than the price of a full year's subscription, and this may occur every week in the year. It is through advertising that the dealer makes known his wares and price to the consumer, be the advertising done through the columns of a newspaper or by some one of the thousands of other methods, for, no matter how it is done it is a method of advertising. Old "Robinson Crusoe" knew the value of advertising and practiced it though his only method was to tie an old shirt to the end of a long pole and fasten the other end of the pole in the ground so the shirt would wave in the air. He did not get a customer the first day nor for many days, but he kept persistently at it and finally got results, or, in his case relief from the loneliness of his desert island.

ANOTHER NEW STORE TO BE ESTABLISHED IN FRIONA

The spirit of progress seems to be manifesting itself daily in our little city as one new enterprise after another makes its appearance.

On Thursday Mr. E. B. McLellan began the erection of a building on the south side of the Friona Hotel on the lot adjoining the hotel property. When the building is completed, which will be within the next three weeks, Mr. McLellan will stock it with a complete line of dry goods and groceries and will operate a first class dry goods and grocery store.

The Star wishes success to the new enterprise.

HALLOWE'EN SPIRITS GATHER AT RHEA

Last Saturday night at 8 o'clock Halowe'en spirits began to gather at the Rhea School house. In a short time the house was full of spooks, witches, ghosts, clowns, negroes, chinese, brownies, fairies and many other representations. After all the guests had gathered each masked spirit was led under a light and all others were to identify it. Then judges were called to judge who was the best masked.

It was decided that Miss Tipton, who was dressed as a chinese girl, should receive the prize which was a silver dollar. An interesting contest was that in which the married men competed against the married women in a relay race of passing several pieces of chalk, one at a time, down the lines. In this the women won. They received for a prize large sticks of candy which they ate while the men looked on. Next was given a very interesting contest between all the small boys that had lace shoes on. These they took off and mixed in a basket. The one who could, first, find his shoes, put them on and lace them up won the prize. Herman Helms finished first and received a large rubber ball. The children also amused themselves by bobbing for apples in a large pan of water. There was a contest between the young people to see who could eat a number of crackers and whistle first. The prize, a jaw-breaker and a lollipop was won by J. H. Wheeler. An interesting contest in which all took part was that of guessing the number of beans in a jar. W. R. Grayson Jr. guessed within forty-seven of the number and Mr. C. N. Dision of Farwell guessed within fifty-five of the number. The prize was a nice stand mirror.

After the contests were over the guests visited the Chamber of Death in which a few of the remains of a terrible outlaw were passed around. Next the guests, especially the children, entertained themselves by fishing for small prizes. The interesting fortunes that were told by Mrs. Hickman was the closing feature of the party. Each of the last two mentioned had a small charge in order to make up some money to go for buying a sand table for the primary room.

The house was decorated according to the spirits of Halowe'en. There were several shocks of feed with a Jack o'Lantern lurking near each and also there were ghosts, skeletons, witches, cats and other represented spirits ready to receive the guests. Many of the decorations were made by the primary pupils.

About seventy-five people enjoyed the party and there were visitors from Bovina, Farwell, Friona and several other places.

School closed Friday until Monday November 9th on account of shortage in farm labor. Misses Grace and Carmen Brewer returned to their home in Perryton, Texas. They were accompanied as far as Canyon by Miss Fern Bowman. Mr. Sherer accompanied by Mr. Robinson went to Amarillo. The other teachers remained at Friona.

Mrs. R. L. Nix who has been under the care of an eye specialist in Amarillo has returned home. There is very little improvement in the condition of her eyes. She will return to Amarillo Tuesday for further treatments.

For the past few weeks the Santa Fe Grain Company has been having difficulty in having its orders for coal filled; but during the past ten days it has received five cars of coal; one for the gin and four for the regular trade.

Be sure and remember the Box Supper at the Methodist Church on Saturday night, November 14th at 8 o'clock. Everyone come and bring a box.

Cattle Shipments For Last Week and This Week

Last week's shipments were a little lighter than usual. There being only 33 cars of cattle and 2 cars of sheep shipped during the week.

For this week there were 39 cars of cattle shipped out and 14 cars shipped in, and there will be 14 more cars go out this week during Friday and Saturday.

On this shipment, Clyde Seamond shipped two cars last week and seven this week. He accompanied the last shipment, departing for Kansas City Thursday evening. Of the past two weeks' shipments, T. H. Hines has shipped to Elkins, New Mexico, 45 cars, or about 2,500 head.

OATS AND SWEET CLOVER FOR PASTURE

Hoard's Dairyman: No shortage of pasture ever comes to the man who uses a combination of oats and sweet clover for that purpose. If the soil is fit for sweet clover, then make the sowing as early in the spring as possible, and turn the cows in just as soon as the oats are big enough to give grazing.

One of the dairymen who follows such a plan is R. A. Ellsworth of Pottawattamie County, Iowa. All through last summer's severe drought Ellsworth's cows went with plenty to eat, for the pasture was several inches high. Much of the oats came to maturity, so here was grain food along with the foliage.

In the middle of August I paid Ellsworth a visit and found his cows almost knee deep in their field. It would not have been necessary to have so much acreage, but Ellsworth wanted assurance. His seventeen cows and a few head of young stuff were on fifteen acres.

The oats give pasture quite early in the year. Along in July the sweet clover shows fine stems and will carry through the winter without tramping the sweet clover to make it better.

Ellsworth finds no fault with clover. Some in the neighborhood claimed that it takes a long time to grow, but he contradicts that with emphasis.

He has lost cattle on it with bloat, but never a case has Ellsworth seen among his own. He works for flavin in milk, and he claims that a clover is even beneficial for this plan is to wash all udders before milking, cool the milk as soon as possible over an aerated cooling system, and then store it in a hollow tile tank with ice. He sells to the best trade in the city, several miles distant.

His grain ration; some of which is fed the year round, consists of shorts, bran, ground ear corn, ground oats and a little oil meal. He has seen a time when it paid him to buy rolled oats. Alfalfa hay for winter, and sweet clover and oats pasture for the summer completes his feed formula. —Geo. F. Harrison.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Kingsley accompanied by Mrs. Jess Osborne and baby spent Tuesday in Amarillo.

SPEED KING.

Lt. James Doolittle set a new record for the world when he piloted his army seaplane at a speed of 232.573 miles an hour in the Schneider Cup races at Baltimore, October 26. In addition to hanging up a new world record, Doolittle gave the U. S. a two-leg lead on the cup.

LITTLE LADIES IN WARM ATTIRE; PARIS SHOWS GENIUS IN HATS

ADDED to the usual staple shades used for coats, the live, warm colors of this season are chosen for young girls—the wine and copper tones, new blue, greens and reds. They are all particularly cozy looking in suede cloths and pile fabrics, and velveteen is a popular addition to the latter group. It is a featured material in both coats and dresses and is often used in combination with other goods—nothing is prettier in the warm brown and strong blue tones, or in the new, deep maroon, called "Black Prince." Kasha is among the popular.

What has made them what they are today and which of their several charms has contributed most to the tremendous success of those small velours and felt hats that fill so much of the millinery horizon? They are the darlings of the mode and fate has been kind to them; for their success is not transitory—they are here to stay for some time.

Paris reveals its genius in the group of six chic hats, in fine velours or felt, that are at once so simple and so superior. It takes a good grade of soft velours, or felt, to get the best Typical Good Style for Girls.

Lighter-weight clothes and there are several smooth-surfaced weaves available among the goods mentioned—all suited to the dressier styles in coats for children. Heavier and coarser cloths are used for utility coats.

Nearly all the dressier coats boast a fur collar and fur is generously used on garments for girls in the last half of their teens. The coat shown in the picture is typical good style for younger misses, and speaks for itself. It is made of suede cloth in a warm brown shade—with hat to match. This pretty affair has an ornament at the front, set with a dark topaz jewel—of the millinery sort—thus paying tribute to the fashion, set by Queen Mary, of wearing a jewel on a plain hat. The coat-and-hat-to-match idea deserves effects—that is the most becoming lines and most pleasing colors. Even so, hats of this kind are not extravagant in price and they stand much wear. Just at present there is a fad for gold in collars, appliqued figures and other trimmings, on felt and velours hats, but the variety of ways for adorning them is endless. In the hat at the upper left, two slashes are cut in the crown at the right side and one at the left. Folds of satin emerge from the lower slash and form a collar across the front, disappearing in the slash on the left side. Another slash allows three folded ends to escape, and lest we forget to notice this bit of artistry, small embroidered figures are placed by the slashes. The soft velours hat at the right is among the success it has made, having the chic that belongs to ensembles. Coats for girls from sixteen to twenty employ more lavish fur trimmings and feature the season's new style points, in flared skirts, fabric details in trimming, new styles in collars and revers, and even the introduction of side plaques of fur and pyramid cuffs. But these are all discreetly used—especially for sweet sixteen—whose charm is dimmed whenever she is overdressed.

the most becoming models, with its irregular, upturned brim. It has a narrow gold collar and a fancy gold pin thrust in the brim. A dignified, square-crowned black felt, at the center of the group, disdains any other decoration than a band of felt about the crown crossing at the front, where an ornamental pin holds it in place. A small, flat cluster of bright feathers is added to the hat at the right with collar of self-colored beiting ribbon. A similar hat at the left has tailored loops of ribbon under a fold in the brim, and two ends of it posed against the side crown. A velours hat with velvet brim facing finishes the group. Of all brim movements this has proved most popular. Two small gold ornaments are placed where the brim is caught to the crown.

MAN'S HIDDEN HEART

By HUBERT HAINES

(© by Short Story Pub. Co.)

THE two men stood by the pile of "grout," as the refuse from a copper mine is called, and glared at each other with looks that would kill if hate could be molded into bullets. They were young miners, lean, deep-chested, iron-sinewed fellows in their mid-twenties, with hands and faces stained by the reek of the mine, and perspiration from the fierce heat of the noon sun flowing in little beads of white across swart cheeks and foreheads. Carrying dinner-pails they were making for the shade of the engine house to eat luncheon, when here on the grout pile they decided to have it out.

The quarrel began months before in a trifling jealousy over their workmanship; it had been kept alive and intensified by tale-bearers; and recently it had been inflamed to danger temperature when into their field of rivalry came a woman. This very morning they had fought down in the mine, and the foreman, after he had torn them apart and emptied on them the vials of his profanity, had assigned them to different crews. Within the hour fate brought them together on the grout pile.

"Tears to me, Sam Glidden, like you and me had better end this thing right now."

"Whenever you say the word, Ned Terry. You won't have to call twice when you want me. Tonight if you say so."

"No," said Terry, "not tonight—now. When tonight comes it must be settled for good and all. If you're a man get your rifle and drive out with me to Nivo hill. There'll be nobody to disturb us there and one of us must never come back."

"I never refused a dare in my life, Terry, and I certainly won't refuse it from you. Let's write a paper right here to be opened two hours after we start so there'll be no suspicion of murder. Then get your wagon and I'll be on hand."

Glidden, who was the better educated, sat down on the rough rocks, tore a page out of the blank book in which he kept his "time," and wrote this:

"We the undersigned, will start for Nivo hill at half-past twelve to fight it out with rifles. It will be a fair fight, and the man that is left dead on Nivo wishes to state right now that he has no kick coming against the man that killed him."

"SAM GLIDDEN.
"NED TERRY."

This note they gave to the engineer after exacting from him a solemn promise that he would open and read it at two o'clock and not before. Then with dinner-pails untouched they went their several ways to make simple and deadly preparations. In thirty minutes they were both in Glidden's wagon headed for open country, their unloaded rifles tied together under the seat. Glidden drove. Terry sat on a gunnysack in the rear. It would be a drive of an hour and a half to Nivo hill.

Never, it seemed, had the sun been so furnace-hot as it was that day. The pitiless blaze made their heads reel as they jolted over the unshaded roads between dismal hills burned brown and bare. They rattled over crazy bridges, shambled down steep slopes, and toiled laboriously, drearily, up one ascent after another, the ancient nag looking at the end of each climb as though he must fall dead on the next. Midway of their journey they came to the bed of a stream through the rocks of which a thin ribbon of water barely made its way. They stopped. Glidden filled a tin cup and held it out to Terry.

"After you," said Terry.
"Go on!" ordered Glidden.
"Thanks," said Terry.

They returned to the wagon and labored on again, each man living with his own thoughts—but thoughts of a common subject—where he would aim, how quickly he could fire, how he would see his rival stretched bleeding on the ground; or—on the other hand—how it would feel to have a cylinder of steel crashing through the brain, what kind of home a grave on these bleak western hills would make, and what manner of place or existence is the hereafter, a hereafter for at least one of them only a few minutes away. Glidden thought of his mother in Massachusetts, and was suddenly startled at remembering that he had given no one her address—if—if—anything should happen. He turned sharply to Terry.

"Say, Terry!"
"Well!"
"If you're the man to come out of this, write to my mother, will you, and try to break it a bit gently; I'll give you her address." He stopped the horse, took out pencil and time-book, and wrote: "Mrs. Samuel Glidden, St. Lynn, Mass."

Terry took the paper. "Say, Glidden!"

"Yes?"
"If luck is with you, I wish you would drop a line to my sister. It's too late to ask anyone else, now."

"All right!"
And Terry wrote on another sheet: "Miss Lucy Terry, ——— St. Cleveland, Ohio."

They drove on again. The furnace in the sky grew fiercer. The very air was too hot to breathe. It parched their throats and seemed to dry out the blood and moisture from their lungs. Terry held his hand to his temple to stop a throbbing as though the artery would tear itself loose. His head ached and specks floated before his eyes. He gave a convulsive start of terror when a deadly mountain adder sped across the dust of the road to escape the wheels.

Turning a bend of the road they saw Nivo hill two miles away. The sight of it braced them. Glidden cracked the whip over the horse and straightened up. Terry tightened his belt and wiped the perspiration from his hands. Fifteen minutes more! But Terry's hands were trembling uncontrollably. He spat out a rivulet of perspiration that had dropped into his mouth, and swore. How could he kill Sam Glidden with these quivering fingers and these darkening eyes? Well, let Sam Glidden kill him, he didn't care—he didn't care. He was going to sleep. He would drop over this precipice and—

Glidden heard him fall, jerked the horse to a stop, and flung himself over the seat. Terry was unconscious. Sweat was pouring down his face in streams, and in his look was a ghastly suggestion of death. "Hell! I've got to get him out of this sun," said Glidden. He lifted the limp body on brawny shoulders, and struggled with it to such shade as a thicket of dwarfed hazel trees afforded. There he laid his burden down, ran to the wagon for the tin cup, and started back to the spring. "Poor devil! Funny how things work out," was his soliloquy.

In twenty minutes Glidden returned, holding a dock leaf over the cup to keep the water as cool as might be. He left the roadside and was about to stride into the thicket where Terry lay, when his face went pale with sudden horror. Coiled beside the unconscious man was a mountain adder ready to spring. It had been gliding by doubtless when Terry made some convulsive movement that alarmed it. Now with head raised and immovable it was watching him. Another stir from Terry and the snake must strike. A deep moan came from the prostrate man. Not a second to lose! With a shout, Glidden dashed toward the snake, whirling a slender branch that he tore from a shrub. Down came the rod across the adder's back. But the weapon was too weak. In the twinkling of an eye the brown coil whirled along the length of the stick, and two fatal fangs were driven to the hilt in Glidden's wrist.

Not a cry came from the doomed man's lips. Half dazed he watched the snake disappear in the brush, looked at Terry who was now tossing restlessly, and then a faint shadow of a grim smile stirred the muscles of his mouth. His left hand still held the cup, and only a third of the water had been spilled. He dashed some of it in Terry's face. Terry's eyes opened for a moment and then closed, and he began to breathe stertorously.

"No good tryin' to tell him anything," said Glidden. He placed the cup on a level rock a few feet away, and lay down. The weakness was coming on. He closed his eyes. "Funny how things worked out," he murmured. "Here I was goin' to kill Ned Terry, and now—let's see! how does it go? 'He gave his life as a ransom.' That's it. Maybe he won't be hard on a feller. Our Father—"

Two hours later the party from the mine, led by the engineer, found them. Terry was holding an empty cup to Glidden's lips, and in delirium was calling: "Sam."

Epidemic of "Flu" Had No Terror for Monks

The Carthusian monks at Crawford, Surrey, England, have received much attention in medical journals both of the United States and England because of their immunity from a violent epidemic of "flu," which raged through the community. Although working and going freely among the inhabitants, the monks were free from the disease. As the disease had assumed a particularly violent and unusually contagious form, the freedom of the monastery aroused much comment and superstitious awe, says the Kansas City Star.

Medical authorities began an investigation as to the cause of the healthiness of the religious community and in their research found that total immunity from tuberculosis and other diseases prevailed in this institution, a fact that the local physicians had known for years.

The health experts after thorough investigation decided that the physical vigor and freedom from disease of the monks were because of their use of natural foods, their diet consisting almost exclusively of fruits and vegetables. The experts at once began applying the dietary principles employed to the treatment of cancer and tuberculosis.

Profiting by this study and the experience of others, arctic expeditions during the last decade have taken large rations of canned and dried fruits and vegetables and lessened the meat diet, and as a result have come through the rigors of the arctic and antarctic free from scurvy. The Shackleton expedition relied almost exclusively on a diet of whole-wheat biscuits, dried fruits and vegetables.

Opening Up Brazil

While other South American countries have unexplored territory, the largest area of this kind is in Brazil. In the tropical forests of the Amazon basin, the dense undergrowth makes these forests almost impenetrable, but the persistence of the rubber hunters is gradually overcoming the natural obstacles.

Entered as second class matter, July 31, 1925, at the post office at Friona, Texas, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

It is stated that when Congress assembles in December, Secretary Mellon of the Treasury Department, will ask that income taxes again be reduced and that instead of paying two per cent on taxable incomes up to the sum of three thousand dollars, the tax be placed at one per cent.

The majority of citizens around Friona who pay on their incomes will fall within this class, because there are not many in this section who can count earnings of $3,000.00 a year clear after they have taken advantage of all the exemptions allowed. So the relief will be readily felt in this community. If a man paid $40.00 on a taxable income of $2,000.00 last year, it will mean that his tax next year will be but one-half of that amount, or $20.00. Every man who pays income taxes will pay less in 1926, and that means he will have the difference to put into other channels. With many thousands spending this extra money instead of banking it, it is only natural that trade of all kinds will be better next year.

It will be a good many years before Uncle Sam gets his war bills paid. But so long as he keeps trying to lessen our burdens by cutting taxes whenever it is safe and possible to do so, the average citizen is going to be a better citizen because he will have less to grumble about.

When a Friona man goes to buy a car, the one thing he can't understand is why it is a new car as long as the salesman is driving it and a used car after he has bought it and driven it a mile.

A few weeks ago we mentioned the fact that many of our school boys and girls have made attendance records at school that are worthy of mention in the columns of the local newspapers, and stated that if any such were known in the county, we would be pleased to publish them in the Star office. We feel that this will be a worthy emulation as regular attendance at school is one of the agencies for securing a common or high school education. Thus far we have received no reply to our invitation. Just remember the invitation still stands.

A government report shows that during the last school year, the pupils of the public schools of this country practiced the saving habit to the extent of $16,961,560, or two million dollars more than they ever saved in any single school year. There is something to think about—school children saving their pennies and nickles until they reach the staggering total of nearly $17,000,000 in a single year. And it is something that should set the elder heads to thinking, too. If these small savings will pile up such an enormous total, what would saving a few dollars each week amount to? Thrift is in the air in the United States and we feel that the teachers in the Friona school are adding immensely to the value of their profession by including in their teaching program the habits of thrift and economy; for the child who is not being taught this now is going to lag behind the profession when he gets out into the world of business.

19 KILLED IN RAIL WRECK MORE THAN FIFTY OTHERS WERE INJURED

Invisible Defect in Steel Part Blamed for Train Plunging Into Twenty-Five Foot Ditch.

Memphis, Tenn.—An invisible defect in a ninety-six pound steel rail was held responsible for the loss of nineteen lives and injury to more than fifty other persons, when the Sunnyland, St. Louis and San Francisco passenger train—one of the fastest and best equipped trains operating in the south—was derailed near Victoria, Miss., thirty-three miles south of Memphis, plunging down a twenty-five-foot embankment.

Four Pullman sleepers, a chair car, a combination negro coach and smoker, with the baggage, express and mail cars hurtled down the embankment and into a ravine, telescoped and pounded by the impact into a mass of tangled wreckage.

With the exception of one man all of those killed were riding in the chair car and the combination negro coach and smoker. A real estate salesman was found dead in his berth in one of the Pullman sleepers. His body was not extricated until about five hours after the wreck, when a wrecking train derrick lifted another coach so that rescuers could get to the body.

The conductor was passing between the chair car and the smoker when he was killed. The end of the two coaches were smashed in as they hurtled down the embankment. He apparently was killed instantly.

None of the men in the baggage, express or mail cars was injured seriously notwithstanding the fact that the cars were of wooden construction and fell from a street at the end of the embankment, a distance of probably thirty feet. The cars were smashed badly. The baggage car went into the ditch upside down and imbedded itself in the soft clay.

The damage to the Frisco railroad equipment was placed at about $50,000, making the total loss approximately $100,000.

President to Open Bureau Federation Conclave and Attend Luncheon.

Chicago, Ill.—President Coolidge will be heard and seen by every member attending the annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau federation here in December.

The president will open the meeting on the morning of December 7. Members will have 2,000 reserved seats in the main hall at the Hotel Sherman.

Seat reservations are to be made in advance by mail and all seat assignments will be made through state farm bureau headquarters.

At the luncheon, President Coolidge is to meet the presidents of each of the forty-four state federations, the voting delegates representing the state federations, and the board of directors of the American Farm Bureau association.

Industry Men Slap at Union

St. Louis, Mo.—The highest function in American industry is not to make profit but to bring betterment of conditions to the worker as well as the owner, and to make its product available to the public at a cost as low as possible.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Federation of Labor Spurns Briton's Plea for Union With Russian Workers.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

GRREAT BRITAIN is alarmed by the spread of communism in that country, but Americans need not worry about it over here, if the words of President William Green of the American Federation of Labor and the cheers that greeted them in the federation's annual convention are a true indication.

Arthur A. Purcell, member of the British parliament, president of the International Federation of Trades Unions and a fraternal delegate in the meeting in Atlantic City, told the convention of his recent visit to Russia and his study of industrial conditions there, and then advised the workers of America to establish the closest relations with the Russian workers.

"We must not be afraid of new ideas," he said. "It has often struck me that, while the Americans have been the most advanced, the most receptive, in ideas concerning mechanical inventions and business organization, they have been slow in accepting new social and political ideas. Just as British workers have sent delegations to Russia, so I hope and trust the American Federation of Labor will do the same. Do not be afraid of being called names. Were Abraham Lincoln, Samuel Gompers or Gene Debs, those great sons of the American people, ever afraid of being called names or being reviled, maligned or persecuted?"

Whereupon President Green arose with fire in his eyes and said: "We in America know something of the teachings of communism and the control the communist party exercises over the so-called Russian Internationale. We know that influence emanating from Moscow is seeking, as it has always sought, not to cooperate with us but to capture and control us. They call the officers and representatives of the American labor movement fakers, crooks, and scabs. Frankly they say they do not believe in collective bargaining. They do not see in any strike an opportunity to increase wages, to shorten hours, to improve the condition of the employment for workers, but they see in every strike an opportunity for revolution.

"The Trade Union Educational League here in America, which is a creature of the communist party, frankly announces that its policy is to bore within the labor movement, to destroy it and substitute for our philosophy the philosophy of communism. We are not ready to accept that, and we wish that our friend who has so kindly offered such frank suggestions might take back to the Russian Red Internationale this message: That the American labor movement will not affiliate with an organization that preaches that doctrine."

Jumping to their feet, the delegates all shouted their approval of Green's declaration.

In the opening of the convention Mr. Green voiced the determination of organized labor to fight for passage of the child labor amendment to the Constitution. The executive council reported an increase of 13,000 in membership over last year.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE won new laurels for himself by his address before the convention of the American Legion in Omaha. "Tolerance" was his main theme, and he pleaded eloquently with his fellow Americans to drop every vestige of racial, religious and sectional intolerance. "It seems clear," said he, "that the results of the war will be lost and we shall only be entering a period of preparation for another conflict unless we can demobilize the racial antagonisms, fears, hatreds, and suspicions, and create an attitude of toleration in the public mind of the peoples of the earth. If our country is to have any position of leadership, I trust it may be in that direction and I believe that the place where it should begin is at home.

"If we are to maintain and perfect our own civilization, if we are to be of any benefit to the rest of mankind, we must turn aside from the thoughts of destruction and cultivate the thoughts of construction. We cannot place our main reliance upon material forces. We must reaffirm and reinforce our ancient faith in truth and justice, in charitableness and tolerance. We must make our supreme commitment to the everlasting spiritual forces of life. We must mobilize the conscience of mankind."

Mr. Coolidge paid warm tribute to the service rendered to the country and to humanity by the members of the Legion, and thus summarized remarkably well America's effort in the World war:

"In the victory which was finally gained by you and your foreign comrades, you represented on the battlefield the united efforts of our whole people. You were there as the result of a great resurgence of the old American spirit, which manifested itself in a thousand ways, by the pouring out of vast sums of money in credits and charities, by the organization and quickening of every hand in our extended industries, by the expansion of agriculture until it met the demands of furnishing continents, by the manufacture of an unending stream of munitions and supplies, by the creation of vast fleets of war and transport ships, and, finally, when the tide of battle was turning against our associates, by bringing into action a great armed force on sea and land of a character that the world had never seen before, which, when it finally took its place in the line, never ceased to advance, carrying the cause of liberty to a triumphant conclusion. You reaffirmed the position of this nation in the estimation of mankind. You saved civilization from a gigantic reverse. Nobody says now that Americans cannot fight."

Earlier in his address he said he was "a thorough believer in a policy of adequate military preparation, and after the cheers subsided he continued: "No doubt this country could, if it wished to spend more money, make a better military force, but that is only part of the problem that confronts the government. The real question is whether spending more money to make a better military force would really make a better country. I would be the last to disparage the military art. It is an honorable and patriotic calling of the highest rank. But I can see no merit in any unnecessary expenditure of money to hire men to build fleets and carry muskets when international relations and agreements permit the turning of such resources into the making of good roads, the building of better homes, the promotion of education and all the other arts of peace which minister to the advancement of human welfare."

The Presidential party, which included Mrs. Coolidge, returned at once to Washington, with a short stop in St. Louis.

The Legion gathering was considerably stirred up over Colonel Mitchell and his air service charges and theories. Finally a compromise resolution was adopted which, without naming Mitchell, recommended the reorganization of the national defense under one cabinet officer with subdivisions of equal importance for land, sea and air.

Philadelphia was awarded the convention of 1928 and it was decided to hold the meeting of 1927 in Paris, France.

WITH Judge E. Finley Johnson of Michigan, a member of the Philippine Supreme court, presiding, the international judicial commission to investigate the Shanghai riots opened its inquiry. The body is composed of American, British and French judges, and, according to the Chinese, is dominated by the British with the Americans as their dupes. Therefore the Chinese are violently opposing the investigation, asserting that there is no chance of a fair decision.

ALTHOUGH the allied and German statesmen in conference at Locarno, Switzerland, are working earnestly and apparently amicably to draft a security treaty, they have not, at this writing, solved the main problem, the eastern frontiers of Germany. Briand insisted that France should have the right to guarantee the arbitration treaties between Germany and Poland and Germany and Czechoslovakia, and Chamberlain for Great Britain supported him, but the Germans, Stresemann and Luther, objected, preferring England as the sponsor for the treaties. They also declared firmly that they would not agree to any provision in any of the treaties which would prevent Germany's seeking revision of the eastern frontiers. The security pact for the Franco-German frontier could be fixed up speedily except for one point—the right of France to send troops through German territory to aid her allies of the little entente in case they are attacked.

ITALY'S Fascists are going ahead at a great pace. Last week they brought about an agreement of closest co-operation between the confederation of industry, representing the employers, and the federation of Fascist labor unions, and then the grand council of the Fascist framed constitutional changes giving the government absolute control of every phase of industrial, political and administrative activity. One provision creates a board of compulsory arbitration for industry and labor, and another makes strikes crimes punishable by death. The Fascist also are conducting a violent campaign against Freemasons and there have resulted serious disorders in various cities, especially Florence where several murders were committed.

COL. WILLIAM MITCHELL, on the eve of court-martial for insubordination, was ordered by the adjutant general of the army to appear before the naval court investigating the airship Shenandoah. He showed up in full uniform and accompanied by his counsel, Congressman Frank Reid of Illinois. The colonel objected to taking the oath but asked leave to read a brief statement. Admiral Jones, president of the court, refused to allow this and Mitchell still declining to testify, the court took the matter under advisement.

The President's air board heard a large number of officers of the various services. The air officers were about equally divided for and against the proposition of a defense department with a separate air force. Rear Admiral Moffet, chief of the bureau of aeronautics, was an especially interesting witness, giving his opinion of the air service as of the greatest value and telling the board at length what he thought should be done to improve it. On Wednesday the board adjourned to attend the three days of air racing at Mitchell field.

DEFYING the known wishes of the President, the federal shipping board, after depriving the Fleet corporation of its powers, removed Leigh C. Palmer from the presidency of the corporation and ordered that Elmer E. Crowley be elected to succeed him. Palmer was offered a vice presidency in charge of European affairs but declined and severed all connection with the corporation. Other changes of personnel were ordered by the board and carried out. Rear Admiral Cone, retired, vice president and general manager of the Fleet corporation, then resigned, telling Chairman O'Connor that "without regard to other considerations, I cannot, as a retired naval officer, serve any organization that defies the wishes and policies of the President of the United States."

FRENCH and Spanish forces in eastern Morocco have effected a junction, the former advancing northward from Kifane and the latter moving south from Alhucemas bay. Thus the Rifis are completely surrounded. But the rainy season on which Abd-el-Krim has been counting has come and the Europeans are finding their operations increasingly difficult. Jules Steeg, minister of justice, has been selected as resident general of French Morocco to succeed Marshal Lyautey, who resigned.

In Syria the rebellious Druses have been thoroughly routed by the French tanks and bombing planes.

JUST as the world's championship series between the Washington and Pittsburgh ball teams was opening, all lovers of the national game were saddened by the word that Christy Mathewson, one of the most famous and best loved of all pitchers, was dead at Saranac Lake, N. Y. "Big Six," as he was called, succumbed to tuberculosis which attacked him after he was gassed in the World war.

Old Folks Must Not Use "Physics"

While Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, knew that constipation was the curse of advancing age, he did not believe that a "purge" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

DR. CALDWELL AT 47 YEARS

To him, it seemed cruel that so many constipated old people had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils every day or two.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which regulates the bowels of old folks. A single dose will establish natural, healthy bowel movement for weeks at a time, even for those chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it is often months before another dose is necessary. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

If past fifty, buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine, and just see for yourself.

ARMISTICE DAY

By JOHN DICKINSON SHERMAN

HATS off! Face to the East! It is the recurring moment sacred beyond all the power of the spoken and written word—the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month, when silence fell upon the guns. So has it been for six anniversaries of "Armistice Day. So may it be in 1925. So may it be as long as the United States of America endures.

For when the clamor of conflict died on that fateful day the cheers of the victors were more than cheers of victory. Thanksgiving thrilled every heart. Hope once more sprang eternal in the human breast. Joy came upon the earth once more. Each good American will interpret the moment of silence of Armistice Day according to his experience and understanding. And may each say to himself: "I will remember while the light lasts and in the darkness I will not forget."

War
I abhor;
And yet how sweet
The sound along the marching street
Of drum or rifle, and I forget
Broken old mothers, and the whole
Dark butchering without a soul.

Without a soul—save this bright treat
Of heavy music, sweet as hell;
And even my peace-abiding feet
Go marching with the marching street,
For yonder goes the life,
And what care I for human life?
The tears filled my astonished eyes,
And my full heart is like to break,
And yet it is embannered lies,
A dream those drummers make.

Oh, it is wickedness to clothe
Yon hideous, grinning thing that stalks
Hidden in music like a queen
That in a garden of glory walks,
Till good men love the things they loathe;
Art, thou hast many infamies,
But not an infamy like this.
O, snap the life and still the drum,
And show the monster as she is.

Yes; "War is hell," as Sherman said. And no small part of the prayer and resolve of Armistice Day is for "Peace, on earth good will toward men."

But—
Hats off!
Along the street there comes
A blare of bugles, a ruffle of drums,
A flash of color beneath the sky,
The flag is passing by,
But more than the flag is passing by.

Sea-fights and land-fights, grim and great,
Fought to make and to save the State;
Wearied marches and sinking ships;
Cheers of victory on dying lips;
Days of plenty and years of peace;
March of a strong land's swift increase;
Equal justice, right and law,
Stately honor and reverent awe;
Sign of a nation, great and strong,
To ward her people from foreign wrong;
Pride and glory and honor—all
Live in the Colors to stand or fall.

And this, too, is no less a part of Armistice Day. For Old Glory—the oldest flag of earth and the handsomest flag and the flag that has never known defeat—will be much in evidence at the tomb of the "Unknown Dead" in Arlington, the national shrine where the nation-wide observance of Armistice Day will have its focus. And Old Glory and the "Unknown Soldier" stand for one and the same thing—the old old American ideal: Peace with honor and patriotic devotion to country.

"Old Ironsides" and Mayflower.
Competition and Mayflower side by side—a fitting picture (No. 4) for Armistice Day and a fittingly one: Glorious "Old Ironsides" built at the close of the first President of the United States, Washington, and the President's yacht of the thirtieth President, Calvin Coolidge! For it was the Constitution that put the American Navy on the seas more than one hundred years ago. And it is from the Mayflower that the President views the American Navy of today as its chief. One would wish mightily to be privileged to know the thoughts of this thirtieth President as he paid his homage at this national shrine this summer at Boston.

"Old Ironsides" is as truly an American national shrine as is the tomb of the "Unknown Soldier." For she was truly symbolical of the nation in her day as is the Arlington tomb in this.

The Revolution gave us our independence, but left our affairs in chaos. The adoption of a written constitution and the election of George Washington as President made us a nation—but a nation without a navy. Said Washington in an annual address: "To secure respect to a neutral flag requires a naval force organized and ready to vindicate it from insult and aggression." Congress turned a deaf ear. But the piratical extortions of the Barbary states enforced the truth of his words and the Constitution and her sister warships were built. Thereupon we brought the Mediterranean pirates to terms and taught France to let alone our merchant ships.

But We Had the Constitution.

But by 1812 Great Britain, fighting for her title of "Mistress of the Seas," was impressing our seamen and seizing our cargoes. So war was declared to assert our inalienable rights upon the seas. It was a forlorn hope, if there even was one. There were then 1,042 warships in the British navy and in the American navy there were just seventeen.

But we had the Constitution—American designed, American built and American manned. First she escaped from a whole squadron of British frigates in a historic chase of three nights and two days. Then she fell in with the Guerriere. The two crack frigates closed like two fighting bullterriers. They knew each other. They were looking for each other.

Then Decres loudly cries: "Make the Yankee ship your prize—
You can in thirty minutes, neat and handy, Oh! Thirty-five's enough, I'm sure, and, if you'll do it in a score,
I'll treat you to a double share of brandy, Oh!"

That was Captain Decres to his men—typical of the British naval commander made arrogant by easy victories over Frenchman and Spaniard and the rest of the world; sneeringly scornful of the "American pine boxes with their gridiron flags." Decres had laughed at Capt. Isaac Hull just before the declaration of war, warned him to keep in harbor and bet him a hat the Guerriere would knock the Constitution into kindling wood in short order if they ever met.

Let us imagine the spirit of the Americans as they closed in, Hull had slipped out of Boston just before an order arrived for him to stay in port; on the outcome of his battle hung glory or "death for sailing without orders." Many of the crew had martyred ancestors who had died in the British prison ships of the Revolution; Hull's father had so died in the post ship Jersey. Many bore the scars of British lashes after impressment. The war on land had been a failure from the beginning. And for the first time an American frigate was to meet on equal terms a first-class warship of the "Mistress of the Seas!"

After just 40 minutes of fighting the Guerriere was a dismantled and sinking wreck, with 78 of her crew dead and wounded; the Constitution was intact, with 14 dead and wounded. Decres was too dazed at the outcome to surrender. Hull said, "No, keep your sword. But I'll trouble you for that hat." And Great Britain was no less stunned than was Captain Decres by the Constitution's victory.

August 30, 1812, all was gloom in Boston. Gen. William Hull had surrendered Detroit without a semblance of defense. The garrison at Fort Dearborn (Chicago) had been massacred. On land the war was a story of disaster after disaster.

And then appeared the Constitution bedecked with flags and guns booming victory. The nation rejoiced and took fresh heart. The Constitution soon departed to outcall, outmaneuver and outfight the enemy as before. Was "Old Ironsides" providential? Judge for yourself. Anyway, she is a national institution, worthy of her third restoration—this time at the hands of American school children!

Object Lesson in Peace.

What an object lesson of peace is shown today by our two countries to all the world! No grim-faced fortifications mark our frontiers, no huge battleships patrol our dividing waters, no stealthy spies lurk our tranquil border hamlets. . . . Our protection is in our fraternity, our armor is our faith, and the tie that binds, more firmly each year, is ever-increasing acquaintance and comradeship through interchange of citizens; and the compact is not of perishable parchment, but of fair and honorable dealing which, God grant, shall continue for all time.

These words by Warren G. Harding, twenty-ninth President of the United States, are written in bronze on the Harding International Good Will memorial recently dedicated in Stanley park, Vancouver, B. C. (No. 2). It was erected by the voluntary subscriptions of 95,000 American and Canadian members of Kiwanis International. It was placed there, rather than in Washington or Marion, because it was at Vancouver that the first President of the United States to visit Canada spoke these words. A bronze tablet contains his profile portrait. Bronze figures symbolizing the United States and Canada stand guard. Another fitting picture for Armistice Day and a suggestive one!

In the seven years since November 11, 1918, all the world has come to know what the Star-Spangled Banner and the "Unknown Soldier" stand for. And the great of earth, setting foot on our shores, hasten to pay homage at this national—and international shrine. One day it is President Machado of Cuba (No. 1). And the next it is Joseph Caillaux, minister of finance of the French—who worship the individual hero, as shown by their memorial to Alan Seeger, American soldier poet who kept his "Rendevous With Death" (No. 3).

"We do not know the eminence of this 'Unknown Soldier's' birth, but we do know the glory of his death. He died for his country and greater devotion bath no man than this."

So said the kindly gentleman and true patriot who has "Gone West" to join the boys "Over There." And President Harding's words are founded on the eternal verities.

We Americans are fortunate in having national holidays that are peculiarly our own. On Independence Day we celebrate our birth as the one nation of earth dedicated to freedom and the rights of man. On Memorial Day we honor our patriotic dead who had the will to offer life itself in loyalty to the flag. On Thanksgiving Day we give to Divine Providence our thanks—the thanks of a Christian people for the guidance that has made us the most prosperous and powerful nation of earth. Flag Day and Defense Day and Navy Day are equally in accord with the true national spirit of the American people. All the holidays embody the genius of the American nation.

Armistice Day has something of each of these truly American holidays. The "Unknown Soldier" truly symbolizes every man and every woman who give their best when the nation calls.

SIX BANDITS SEIZE $93,000

ROBBERS ATTACK BANK CAR KILL TWO GUARDS AND MAKE GET AWAY

CAUSE BUFFALO STREET PANIC

This Holdup Brings the Total Loot Attributed to the Harris Gang to Nearly $200,000 in This District, Says Officers.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Six desperadoes attacked a Bank of Buffalo armed car, shot dead the driver, fatally wounded a guard, wounded a messenger, and escaped with $93,000 in cash.

Five witnesses identified the leader of the gang, through photographs, as Harry Harris, alias Garfield, who jumped bail of $50,000 in Detroit recently. Two others were identified as Polack Joe and Mike Sperazzi.

The driver slain was Charles W. Clifford, Lewis M. Yarrington, bank guard, was shot in the abdomen, and died later. John M. Meyers, messenger, was shot in the arm.

The money was being transferred from the Federal Reserve bank to the Bank of Buffalo, a distance of three blocks.

When the bank car stopped at the Bank of Buffalo entrance and bank employes began to remove the currency, two robbers who had been standing near the entrance opened fire. Two other gangsters began firing at the same time from the robbers' automobile, parked across the street. Pedestrians scurried into doorways.

Meyers refused to drop a package containing the $93,000, and one robber grappled with him, finally shooting him. Meanwhile, Clifford had been shot dead and Yarrington, who had opened fire, was dropped with two wounds in his abdomen.

Seizing two packages of money, the two men who were on foot ran to the robbers' car. One dropped a package when, it is believed, he was shot in the wrist. The car, containing the five men shot east and out of sight.

The handi automobile, abandoned, was found later, bullet-riddled, about a mile and a half from the scene of the holdup. Here another large automobile had been parked and this was used in continuing the flight.

RAIL AID GIVEN DRY FORCE

Official Who Routed Cars Admits He Worked for Rum Runners.

Chicago, Ill.—Investigation by federal authorities of the workings of the $800,000 month beer syndicate operating here from eastern cities resulted in the arrest of one man and the issuance of a federal warrant for another.

Alfred F. Borener, a department chief of the New York Central railroad in Chicago, was jailed on a warrant sworn out by U. S. Commission Glass, after he had admitted being an important link in the beer-running operations. Patrick Roche, internal revenue agent, who presented evidence for Borener's warrants, also asked a warrant for William J. Kelley. The latter's connection with the investigation was not announced, but it was rumored he was mentioned by Borener.

Immediate co-operation of all the railroads in preventing shipments of beer and liquor into Chicago has been promised dry enforcement authorities. Edwin Olson, federal district attorney, announced. Officials have shown the railroads that certain employees were involved in illegal shipments, and the purpose of the beer probe accomplished, he added, no high railroad officials would be involved.

FORMS PAINLEVE CABINET

New Body Will Conform to Resolution Adopted by Radical Faction

Paris, France.—M. Painleve, after conferring with M. Herriot and M. Briand, accepted the mission to form a new government, tendered him by President Doumergue. The new cabinet, according to present indications, will have M. Briand as minister of foreign affairs and M. Loucheur as minister of finance, with the premier remaining at the war office.

The new ministry will be composed so as to conform to the resolution adopted by the radical convention at Nice, in favor of a capital levy, and to a resolution adopted by the groups demanding the return to power of several members of former Premier Herriot's cabinet.

A similar canvass of the senate showed an overwhelming majority against the measure which the socialists and extreme radicals insist upon and which is the price of their support of M. Painleve's second government.

A Sensational Change in our Business

Beginning November 1st, we will sell every item in our line at prices never heard of before in Friona. But to be able to make this reduction we are compelled to have the cash for everything sold. We absolutely will not charge anything to any one under any consideration.

In our several years of credit business we strived to give every one a square deal. But we know we can make it worth your while to get the money and pay cash.

We know there is a loss in the credit business and that the man who pays promptly must help pay this loss. So in all fairness to every one we will sell for cash only, and sell for less. Watch for the big sign in front of our Garage on November 1st announcing our new prices.

CAUSES OF WRECKING HOMES REVEALED IN REPORT MADE PUBLIC

Denver, Nov. 4—"Paper bag" and "Delicatessen" wives, actual poverty induced by ownership of an automobile, too many "in-laws" rank with nagging and the "other man" and the "other woman" as contributing causes to the wrecking of Denver's homes.

This is revealed in the report made public today by Harry Ruffner, director of the domestic relations department of the Denver juvenile court.

His report shows that in the year ending July 1, last, there were 2,898 homes "broken" in the city, balanced against 3,064 marriages in the city during the same period.
