Domestic Wheat Price Follows AAA Loan Price

Prior to the AAA's wheat program, huge supplies always meant low prices, Olin Schleuter, chairman, Deaf Smith county AAA committee, said this week.

"In 1931 we had a supply of 1,255-million bushels which brought 39 cents per bushel as compared to a 1,331-million bushel supply last year which averaged 95.6 cents per bushel," the chairman said.

Through marketing quotas, acreage allotments, and government loans, farmers have built adequate reserves and at the same time have strengthened prices for continuation of sound agriculture, he pointed out.

Other comparable years include 1932 with 1,132 million bushels which averaged 38 cents per bushel and 1939 with a 1,004 million bushel supply which sold for an average of 69 cents. In 1940, Schleuter said, the supply was 1,097 million bushels which averaged 68 cents.

During the last few years domestic wheat prices have consistently followed loan prices, Schleuter said. During 1938, 1939, and 1940, farmers received 56.1 cents, 69.2 cents and 68.2 cents per bushel, respectively, while the average loan rate for the same years was 53 cents, 63 cents and 65.5 cents per bushel, respectively.

During 1941, with 85-per cent of parity loans available, farmers received 95.6 cents per bushel for their wheat and the average loan rate was 98 cents per bushel, the chairman said.

"Those are a few of the things wheat farmers should consider when they vote in the national wheat referendum Saturday, May 2," Schleuter said.

It is my present intention to operate my machinery again during the coming threshing season, and I trust that my work has been so satisfactory that I may then be favored again with your patronage, which I most respectfully solicit.

Volunteer wheat may be cut for hay or grazed or it may be harvested providing it is farm-stored and is not used for feed.

This announcement was made this week by Keltz Garrison, county AAA administrator, who explained that no further written instructions on the disposition of volunteer wheat has been received by his office since the announcement several weeks ago that the grain could be grazed or cut for hay. However, Garrison states, the further information that the grain can be harvested has been received verbally from district officers of the AAA, and so far as is known, these rulings will be in force.

Farmers will be eligible for a 50 per cent loan on the volunteer wheat, but this loan, as do other wheat loans, depends on the voting of marketing quotas in the election set for May 2.

To be eligible for a loan, a farmer must have seeded within his allotment for 1942, and the stored wheat cannot be released until it is determined that the farmer is in compliance for 1943. Further information indicates that the volunteer wheat may be used to bring production up to normal in 1942, should the regular allotment fall below the normal production. Also, the farmer may under seed in 1943 in the amount necessary to take care of the volunteer wheat harvested.

In announcing the rulings for volunteer wheat, Garrison emphasized the fact that they are as far unofficial and subject to change by any further regulations sent out by the state office.

COGITATIONS and APHORISMS of Jodok

I am learning that when a fellow thinks he has learned quite a bit about a certain subject and begins to elucidate on what he has learned, he is quite likely to learn that he has got under something that it is not so easy to get out of, just as I was when I delivered my dissertation on "friendship" two weeks ago.

I was perfectly honest in what I said, but I just simply did not know it all—not by a jug-full. I told the truth so far as my intelligence had led me at that time. I stated that "friendship was one of the noblest, if not the noblest quality of character which humanity possesses or can express, and that there seems to be less said and written about it than about any other human virtue."

Then, right away I received a letter from a lady saying much about friendship and inclosed a short poem about it. Then this week, I received a letter from my good friend, Dr. H. H. Lindeman, of Oklahoma City, which read thus:

"Dear Jodok:
Anent your fine tribute to friendship in current issue of Star, please accept the inclosed, with compliments of,
Yours sincerely,
H. H. Lindeman."

The inclosure was a small 15 page leaflet, about two and a half inches by four inches in size, and each of the 15 pages was wholly taken up with quotations about friendship. The quotations bore the names of such men as Aristotle, Cicero, Epicurus, James Howell, Benjamin Franklin, H. W. Longfellow, Shakespeare and many other people of renown and great learning. And there was the one from the Bible which I quoted two weeks ago—the words of Jesus, when he told his disciples: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

However, I have said nothing which I wish to retract. And I might go a little further and state that there is very little which one may want that he may not have if he has friends and money, or if he has friends who have money. For money is that which can be given in exchange for anything but happiness, and will serve as a passport to any place but heaven. But "the only friend that maney will buy is a dog," and at that, it cannot buy the "wag of his tail."

It thus appears that one may go where he pleases, do what he pleases, say what he pleases and have what he wants if he has friends and money—or his friends have money—with the two exceptions quoted above.

Friends, or friends plus money, have been known to control courts of justice with their judges and juries, boards of pardon and other similar boards or organizations, and I have heard it stated, with apparently good grounds for such assertions that either friends or money have been known to pervert many other important boards. Therefore, what is more to be desired, so far as this world's affairs are concerned, than friends and money, or friends with money?

When a man secures the possession of anything which he has no moral right to possess, through the influence of either friends or money, he cannot be really happy. He may pretend that he is, and he may be in a measure satisfied, but never really happy; or if he is, he is deserving of pity, for he is suffering from some sort of a mental quirk or brain cramp and is thus not mentally sound and therefore not a normal person.

I stated last week that it gets under my hair and raises my dander when a fellow expresses views that differ from my own, and then tries to make me accept them, and becomes arrogant and strutting when I refuse to do so. He is perfectly welcome to his ideas, but he has no moral right to try to impose them upon me. This is just by way of preface to the following paragraphs.

There is another thing that makes my dander rise, and that is the continual accusation from the "High Muckity-mucks" at Washington, that the people of the nation are TOO complacent. The fact of the matter is, the people are not complacent, but the complacency rests with the said "muckity-mucks" who are making accusations.

And there is where the great trouble lies. When our leaders are ready to quit their bamboozling about this war business and begin to do something about it instead of devoting all their efforts to feathering their own political nests and retaining themselves in office, they will see the American people come awake in a manner that will utterly surprise them.

They are calling on the people to make sacrifices, even to the SUPREME sacrifice for the support of their country, but I have yet to hear on the streets or read in the papers where one of them has made any such sacrifice. The poor devils in the work shops and on the farms, who have no political influence nor friends who have money are the ones who are making these sacrifices. At least this seems to be the sentiment being expressed on the streets of Friona, and what I read in the papers and if Friona is a sample of our nation as a whole, then the complacency does not rest with the people. We are asked and almost commanded to give of our meager incomes to buying defense bonds and stamps, but still the leaders at Washington continue to spend our money extravagantly and uselessly through their innumerable bureau and political boards and continue to load the PEOPLE with ever-increasing taxes, and then accuse them of COMPLACENCY. Bah!

As an evidence of the above remark, the papers state almost daily of some new board, bureau or committee, which has been appointed by the president from men of his own choosing, who are responsible to him alone, each receiving good salaries to be paid with the money of the people who have not the least word to say about the hiring. Yet we must buy bonds to provide the funds with which to pay the salaries of these needless boards and bu-

Here's 'American Mother for 1942' and Her Large Family

Selected as "American Mother for 1942," Mrs. W. N. Berry, left, of Greensboro, N. C., is proud of the war record of her husband and 13 children. One son is a West Point graduate, another graduated from Annapolis, and one each has volunteered for action with the Navy and Marines. One son is a priest and two daughters are Sisters of Charity. Others of the family are in national defense work. Photo was taken several years ago.

When our government cuts this out and our "muckity-mucks" begin to show some sign of patriotism other than pure politics, they will find that patriotism and love of country are just as strong in the minds and hearts of the common people of America as they have ever been and there will be no reason, even imaginary, to accuse us of complacency.

Just to show that I am not alone in this view of the matter, I am going to quote a paragraph from Lynn Landrum's column, "Thinking Out Loud," in the Dallas Morning News, in its issue of April 13, 1942:
"No alibi is acceptable. We have no time for such things. We have no time for fighting lost battles. We do have a right to see to it that Washington swings into full war action. We do have a right to say to Washington that we want all foolishness adjourned until after this war is won.

And that we will keep on saying until the gentlemen in Washington quit worrying about the presidential campaign of 1944 and get busy on the military campaign of 1942.

If our public servants feel it an insult to be asked to hang up the honored roll of the dead as a reminder, we can replace them with servants who will. And we will."

It would be a good thing for our country if every citizen of the United States could read the entire column from which the above quotation is taken; also his entire column in the issues of April 17, 18 and 19. Mr. Landrum is one of the ablest and fairest writers of this country and always knows whereof he speaks.

Our people are not complacent. They are only impatiently waiting for our LEADERS to begin to LEAD.

The above expressions are mine individually and I alone am responsible for them. They are the results of my own cogitations and are prompted and corroborated by the expressions of those with whom I converse or whose writings I read; they being chiefly such writers as Lynn Landrum, David Lawrence, Peter Molyneux, Raymond Clapper, Westbrook Pegler and others.

"What we call Luck is simply Pluck,
And doing things over and over;
Courage and will, Perseverance,
and Skill—
Are the four leaves of Luck's clover."

Summerfield MRS. JIM CLARK

The scattered showers of the past week turned into a deluge Monday morning. Total rainfall since the ice storm about two weeks ago is estimated to be about 2 1/2 inches.

Wheat is looking fine in this community and as far as this writer has been able to learn no greenbugs have been found on the wheat.

Almost every family has at least a part of their victory gardens planted. A number of families are putting out strawberry plants this year.

Several weeks ago Mrs. Lee Curry, cafeteria supervisor, asked that extra rows of the cafeteria be planted in the gardens. She explains further that these vegetables will be canned at the cafeteria with cans being furnished by the cafeteria. Some thought they would be expected to furnish cans and can the vegetables for the cafeteria. Mrs. Curry suggests that green beans, carrots, corn, spinach, greens, beets and tomatoes will be needed by the cafeteria this year.

Farm families in this community are receiving their baby chicks or started chicks. Almost every family has at least 100 chicks or plans to have as soon as they are available. Many families are raising 200 or more chicks. Certainly these people are doing their part in the Food for Freedom Program.

J. R. Euler is back in school after having had the measles. Visitors in the Earl Lance home Sunday afternoon were Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Walser, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kendall, Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Roberson, and Mrs. J. C. Lance all of Hereford.

Mr. and Mrs. Tandy Legg and family and Rev. and Mrs. M. D. Rexrode and family called on Mr. and Mrs. Lee Kendall and Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Shaw of north Hereford Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Walser and Mr. and Mrs. Ky Lawrence were also visitors in the Lee Kendall home Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Story and daughters of Plainview visited relatives here over the week end. Thursday was guest day for members of the Summerfield Study Club when they met at the home of Mrs. L. L. Cannon with Mrs. Jim Clark as co-hostess. Eighteen members and 14 guests enjoyed the interesting program which Mrs. B. E. Roberson directed. Out-of-town guests present were Mrs. Urlin Stue, Hereford, who is Deaf Smith County Federation President and Mrs. O. H. Culpepper, also of Hereford and Mrs. Al Werner of Westway.

Mrs. Rosa Carl and Mrs. Edgar Moseley of Hereford and Mrs. Keyes Medlin and daughter, Patricia Ann, of Dallas spent Wednesday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lance. Sunday School enrollment has climbed from 102 to 117 and the attendance Sunday was 85. Let's have 100 in attendance next Sunday. "We did it before, we'll do it again."

And don't forget the date, May 3. One-hundred-twenty-three in Sunday School and the Wayland Volunteer Band is to be here for Saturday evening and Sunday service.

Sunday School begins now at 10:30 instead of 11. Leaton Clark, Jimmy Lookingbill and Jesse Stipes were honorees Tuesday when Mrs. Curry, assisted by the mothers of the honorees, prepared a birthday dinner at the Cafeteria.

Max Stipes spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Stipe. He has been working near Adrian.

Thurman Atchley visited relatives in Olney recently.

Mrs. Lloyd Lookingbill spent Monday and Tuesday in Hereford with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Johnson, who were ill with colds.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Ratcliff and family of Amarillo visited in the R. D. Lance home Sunday afternoon. They had come to Hereford to be near Mr. Ratcliff's mother, who is ill.

Japs Shellacked ... We Mean Literally

Step by step, little by little, the War Production Board is closing in, depriving civilians of little things we had come to take for granted; but added up, they represent important quantities of precious materielas we now must conserve.

Among these is shellac, and the need to conserve shellac is behind the order reducing the amount of shellac in the manufacture of phonograph records and radio transcription discs. In a practical way, that means that from now on we'll have only 30 per cent as many new phonograph records and radio transcriptions as we used to have. Do you wonder why? Simply this: Every signal flare fired from an officer's Verey pistol uses up shellac.

Each one of our artillery's big shells, being accumulated for the day when we can blast our Axis enemies with them, is coated with shellac.

In those navigation instruments that keep our warships and our Flying Fortresses on a true course, the jeweled bearings are cemented with shellac.

We used to import almost all of our shellac from India. Now, with the Japanese navy roving the Bay of Bengal, and the sea lanes to India threatened, we can't expect to get as much shellac from India as we did in more peaceful times.

But much depends on shellac. Consider the two ounces of it that a 10-inch phonograph record contains. That two ounces is enough for one signal flare—and a lot may depend on that flare in the darkness when a ship is in distress from submarine attack, or when a seeping patrol float itself surrounded on a battlefield.

And the shellac in 900 of those 10-inch phonograph records is enough to cement all of the jewell bearing in a whole yearly output of navigation and scientific instruments.

Every phonograph record you do without will help shellac the Japs.

Let's Cook Something

Men like this dish and the advantages of this method of preparing it are the ease with which it can be prepared and the convenience of putting it in the oven and forgetting about it until time to put it on the table.

Spanish Fried Chicken is of Mexican origin and Mrs. Phil Radovich recommends it to you. A relative who lives near the border gave her this recipe years ago.

SPANISH FRIED CHICKEN

Cut up a frying size chicken and brown on both sides in deep fat. Remove from skillet leaving a small amount of drippings in the pan. Brown 1 sliced green pepper and one sliced onion in the drippings and return the chicken to the skillet. Pour over the chicken 1 cup of uncooked rice, 1 sliced bell pepper, 1 teaspoon chili powder and 1 no. 2 can of tomatoes. Salt and pepper to taste and add 1 cup of water. Cover and cook slowly from 1 1/2 to 2 hours. Serve with corn bread sticks and a leafy green salad.

Note—An iron skillet or dutch oven is the best cooking utensil for this.

A Salon of Religious Photography will be held under the auspices of the Arts Guild of the Congregational Christian churches in the United States at the biennial meeting of the denomination's General Council, from June 18 to 25, at the University of New Hampshire, Durham, N. H. This is believed to be the first salon of its kind. The Arts Guild is designed to foster the use of the arts in religion. The exhibits in connection with the photography salon will be on ecclesiastical architecture, modeling, altars, etc.

Dr. Brayton Case, New England born agricultural missionary of the Northern Baptist Convention in Burma, has been cited by newspaper correspondents "behind the battle lines in Burma" for bravery in disregarding danger from Japanese bombers and soldiers in order to "grow vegetables for victory" in his world-famous agricultural training school. For a quarter of a century he has been carrying on this school that has helped modernize Burma's agricultural products and farming methods, and has helped the "little farmer" to better feed his family. He is reported as sending cabbages, hogs and other foodstuffs to the Chinese troops who are fighting with the British and the Burmese against the Japanese.

Youngsters Have Choice of Branches For Army Service

A War Department announcement will be welcome news to the young men of 18 to 19 years who wish to get in the Army and have a favorite branch in which they wish to serve.

The West Texas Recruiting & Induction District has been allotted quotas of enlistments for the Air Corps, the Armored Forces, the Coast Artillery Corps, Cavalry, Field Artillery, Engineers, Signal Corps, and Infantry, exclusively for men who are not yet 20.

Enlistments of men who are 20 and over, and are therefore of draft age, are welcome in the Army of the United States, unassigned. Their preferences are followed in assignment whenever possible. But only men of 18 and 19 years of age are allowed the preference of enlisting direct into the branch in which they wish to serve. 18 and 19 year old men should see the Army Recruiting Service today.

George E. Taylor, who was taken seriously ill several weeks ago and was taken to the home of his daughter in Kansas, returned to Friona Monday.

Mr. Taylor was out on the streets Tuesday and reported that he is feeling much improved, but far from feeling well yet.

NEWS IN THE WORLD OF RELIGION BY W. W. REID

Based on experiences of the Salvation Army through many years, directors of United Service organizations centers are urging soldiers and sailors away from home to go to church in pairs or groups, because men in uniform are often shy of entering a strange church alone. In some of the USO centers, large autos and baby trucks are provided to take the men to church; and at men are invited to conduct vesper and evening services at the club house during the week. "Every attempt is being made to give soldiers and sailors the same opportunity for spiritual development and religious worship that they receive in civilian life" says a USO report.

Toungoo, scene of recent bitter fighting in Burma, holds high place in the history of American Baptist missionary pioneering. Sau Quala, son of proud Karen parents who rebelled against Siamese and Burmese domination of their country and welcomed the British as liberators, was the first Christian evangelist to his own people in Toungoo, beginning in 1853. He signed himself, later, in life, "a wild man, a son of the forest," but he learned to read the hitherto unwritten Karen language, assisted in the translation into most centers neighboring clergy of the New Testament, and helped in the development of more than 30 Baptist mission stations. From Toungoo others went out among other Karen tribes with different dialects. Today most of the Karens are Christians.

Behind the "iron curtain" of the present war, there is network of friendship and understanding among the Christian churches of the world that shows itself in many ways and that is significant for future world unity, according to Dr. William Patton, secretary of the World Council of Churches, now in America from England. He points out these instances of friendship; the salvaging of Asiatic and African missions of many denominations by American and British Christians when those missions were cut off from support by continental Europe; the committee formed by German Lutherans to care for the religious welfare of French and British prisoners in Germany; the "return to religion" in Scandinavian countries; the protest against Nazi Anti-Semitism by the churches of Holland and by the Protestant churches of France; the pastoral letters of Norway's church leaders against injustices.

While there has been no direct word concerning missionaries of any Christian church in Manila, P. I., since the entrance of Japanese forces into that city, there is now some reassurance of their safety in a cablegram received by the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions through the Department of State. This message, relayed by Acting Secretary Sumner Wells, states that there are no known missionary casualties at Manila and that missionaries (including those from other fields who were passing through Manila when war started) have been "released for service." The Presbyterian Board lists some twenty missionaries

VERY OFTEN these days, I get to thinking about the soldier boys at camp. And the sailors, too.

What worries me is . . . what happens when they get a day off after working their heads off all week? They go to town . . . and what then?

What happens? The answer is . . . mostly nothing! Because most towns near army camps just don't have nearly enough entertainment facilities to take care of the soldiers on leave. So the boys just stand around, leaning against lampposts or sitting on doorsteps. And sometimes, the local townsfolk find themselves wondering what's changed the town . . . instead of pitching in to help the boys have a good time in decent surroundings.

In many towns, however, the situation is better. Many towns have nice, community places where a soldier can go sit down and "chew the fat" and enjoy some cake and milk, or maybe a good glass of beer. The boys like that. And they're not likely to get in trouble . . . because common sense tells you nothing can be wrong about a couple of glasses of beer.

There's another reason, too. The beer industry is cooperating with the army and with the law-enforcement officers to help keep the places where beer is sold, clean and decent. The brewers don't want their beer sold to soldiers in places where bad conditions exist . . . and they're right.

Seems to me that we Americans ought to get together and do everything we can to make things pleasant for the boys who are in training. They're doing their duty . . . maybe we have some duties, too, in this direction.

There are lots of ways of helping. We ought to support them all. All of us have our part to play in winning this war . . . and making life a little easier for the boys in camp is something we all can do something about.

HOW to SAVE those

"Important Vitamins"

Your gas range is ideally suited to modern "waterless cooking" which saves vegetable vitamins and minerals. Because of its flexibility you can regulate the heat to any degree you need.

So use your gas range wisely—and follow these simple rules for food that is really health-giving:

- Cook vegetables in as small an amount of water as possible.
- Bring to boiling point quickly over high gas flame.
- When boiling begins, turn gas flame down and boil gently.
- Use covered utensils to keep steam in.
- Do not use soda, as it destroys vitamins in vegetables.
- Cook vegetables as short a time as possible.
- Serve foods soon after cooking.

Betrothal of Miss Reba Hill And Mr. Ralph Arceneaux Announced Portales

Announcement was made Sunday afternoon at Portales, N. M., of the betrothal of Miss Reba Hill, formerly of Friona, to Mr. Ralph Arceneaux. Announcement was made at a seated tea in the home of Mrs. J. V. Mauk, of 301 Southeast Nevada Street, with Misses Louis Ohlenbusch and Ione Potter as assistant hostesses.

The table was attractively set with spring flowers and the gay spring colors were carried out. Place cards were tiny May baskets filled with candy. Refreshments of punch from a crystal service and cakes in basket shape were served.

Announcement was made on three miniature bells tied to individual corsages of apple blossoms. One one was "Reba", on another was "Ralph" and on the third was the date, "May 26".

Miss Hill is the librarian in the Portales Senior High School. She is a daughter of Mrs. S. Mitchell, of Canyon. She took her B. A. degree at West Texas State at Canyon and her B. S. and L. S. degree at Illinois University.

Mr. Arceneaux is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Arceneaux, of New London. He lives at Sundown and is teaching in the public schools there. He is also minister of the Christian Church at that place. The couple will make their home at Sundown.

Miss Hill formerly lived for several years at Friona with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Mitchell, and is an honor graduate of the Friona High School. She also served as part-time assistant in the Friona Star office, and is one of the editor's most highly esteemed friends. She was well known and universally loved by the people of this city.

Sets Record for College Editors

Mary Elizabeth Lasher, first woman editor of the tri-weekly Ohio University Post, set more records than any of her masculine predecessors. She has had the highest scholastic record of any editor, issued the largest single edition and largest total number of pages for the year. Her father, Prof. George Starr Lasher, is director of journalism at Ohio University but showed no favoritism—in fact "B's" given by him prevented her from having an all "A's" record one semester.

warm weather causes the waters of a small lake to become thickly populated with a teeming mass of microscopic plants and animals. These plants and animals are so small that with your eye alone it would be impossible to distinguish just what they are, but their numbers run into astronomical figures. The small plants that are present are capable of making their own food just like trees, grasses or any other higher plants. Herein lies the secret of why some fish die. All plants that can manufacture their own foods are green. The green coloring is caused by a green substance present in the for most pigments which are known as chlorophyll. The chlorophyll is able to arrest the sunlight shining on the plant and transform a small part of the energy given off by the sunlight to the substance filling the body of the plant (protoplasm). The protoplasm can then employ this energy to separate the carbon from the carbon dioxide that the plant takes from the water and combine the carbon with particles of water to form simple sugar, which is the plant's food. When the carbon is separated from the carbon dioxide, pure oxygen is left over and is discharged into the water.

"Now everyone knows that water is composed of hydrogen and oxygen, the expression "give me some H₂O" being a stock remark, but what many people don't know is that fish can't extract the oxygen component of water in order to breathe.

"Although the plants liberate oxygen they must use a small portion again in order to breathe. Consequently we have these teeming masses of plants and animals along with the higher animals such as fish breathing the free oxygen that is present in the lake. All is well as long as the sun shines continually because the plants can liberate more oxygen than is needed, but should a shower with its clouds which are only too common at this time of the year obscure the sunshine for a day or two, then the oxygen supply in the water is soon used up and the small plants, higher plants and fish are suffocated and naturally die. When these plants and animals die carbon dioxide gas is given off in such great quantities that it fills up the space between the particles of water and prevent the water from picking up as much oxygen as it would normally be able to hold.

"From the above you can see that should your water surface be agitated by wind action and should sunny weather prevail for a while the condition would correct itself.

"There are several remedies that you can use, however, when you notice some of your fish dying. If your lake is large enough to allow an outboard motor boat to run over the surface, run one over it, tilting the motor so the propeller churns the water. Large amounts of oxygen can be added to the water by this method. If your lake is small and you have a well handy that could supply water to your pond, it is good to drain out part of the water in the pond and run the fresh water in, being sure to aerate it thoroughly by running it through a ditch in which you have placed baffle boards. If the water can be sprayed in it will also work.

"Remember not to be mad because these microscopic plants are present because if they were not you wouldn't be able to raise fish in the first place. They are the fundamental food for your fish."

Arrangements For Registration Of Trade Sugar Users Completed

Farmer County retail wholesale and industrial users of sugar should make application for a rationing form which must be filed with the local board on April 28 and 29.

Friona registration is in charge of Supt. W. L. Edelman of the Friona School.

The rationing board also points out that this registration is for trade users only—that is retail (such as grocery stores) industrial (cafes, drug stores, creamery, etc.) and institutional users (hospital) and not for domestic sugar users, who will register at the elementary school of their home school districts on May 4, 5, 6 and 7. Complete details of registration of domestic sugar users will be contained in next week's Star.

TEXAS OUT-O-DOORS

Owners of small lakes who in considerable numbers have complained that fish in those waters are dying were advised today by the chief aquatic biologist of the game department not to worry about it too much.

This is spring, and in the small lakes or ponds there is taking place a dramatic battle between fresh vegetation and fish life. They are fighting for oxygen, fighting for air to breathe. It wouldn't do to remove the vegetation, for it produces microscopic food on which fish largely live. And the battle is a see-saw affair, depending on the weather and various other conditions. Usually, the biologist said, the thing works itself out satisfactorily and there is no cause to be alarmed.

But man can help the fish in this underwater struggle. Here's the way the chief aquatic biologist turns to the entire problem and offers suggestions for its relief.
