New Pastor

New Pastor Has Good Training For Work Here

Rex Paxton Smith and family arrived in Friona last Friday from Fort Worth and moved into the recently remodeled Congregational pastorage. The pastor's arrival had been delayed about a month because of illness in his family.

A special program was presented by the children of the church at the Sunday school hour, Easter Sunday, and a group of young people and the pastor held a sunrise Easter service about ten miles from town. More than 100 persons heard Reverend Smith in his first sermon at the morning service, and five persons were received into the membership of the church.

The new Congregational pastor has been in the ministry for 12 years, has preached eight of those years in Tarrant County and Fort Worth. He is a graduate of Trinity University, Waco, Tex., and received his theological at Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill., and in the school of theology of Southern Methodist University, Dallas. He holds the bachelor of arts and bachelor of divinity degrees, and was for nine years secretary-treasurer of the Board of Pensions of the Central Texas Conference of the Methodist church, and was listed in the first volume of Who's Who in the Clergy published in 1936.

Mrs. Smith is a graduate of Texas State College for Women at Denton, and has done post-graduate work at the University of Illinois and Southern Methodist University. Prior to her marriage, she taught at Mayfield, Hill County, Tex., and in Burk Burnett High School, was in charge of the Sims Public Library at Waxahachie and served later on the library staff of Garrett Institute and Southern Methodist. The nine-year-old twin sons, Paxton and Payton, have enrolled in the Friona School. The youngest member of the family is Sylvia, two and a half years old.

10-Year-Old Makes 4-H Club Report

By GLORIA KEPLEY

"My report for the 4-H work for this year is complete with the following: I have a well equipped sewing box; have learned to make seams; have selected patterns and materials; have sewed on buttons where they were needed; have made a nightgown; I have made peach preserves and plum jelly; have also learned to patch.

Some of my hobbies are: Saving tinfoil; I have a nice collection of rocks, some of the are the negro head rocks that came from Indiana, and are like the ones the Hays monument is built of.

I also, have about a hundred different kinds of stamps. I think this hobby is profitable as well as educational.

I have spent a good many hours on my club work. I think that it has been profitable to me.

I had a very pleasant and instructive time at 4-H encampment."

Every member of the Kirvin Club of Freestone County chose peanuts for oil as his 1942 demonstration.

FSA Families Do War Work

Contributions to the nation's war effort being made by farm families in Parmer County can not be measured completely in amounts of Defense Bonds and Stamps purchased by these families, in the opinion of Mrs. Edna P. Elms, home management supervisor for FSA.

"Few farm families being assisted by Farm Security are financially able to invest greatly in bond and stamp purchases," said Mrs. Elms. "Yet these people are making many sacrifices and they are contributing very materially to their nation's all-out program to blast the dictators."

"By producing greater quantities of food, and by building up their own strength, security and well-being, they are 'the men behind the men behind the gun.'"

"War-time shortages are not entirely new to these people," Mrs. Elms continued "because they seldom have experienced abundances of many things. And yet, they are learning and striving to conserve materials vital for the war effort."

Mrs. Elms explained the Farm Security Administration calls for helping farm families contribute to civilian defense by wise use of money and time, avoidance of waste and conservation of resources.

A homemaker, for example, who makes over a dress, who repairs old furniture, who makes curtains and wearing apparel from low cost material, who buys wisely and practices the common-sense economies known to our pioneer grandmothers is making a contribution to victory.

"Money can be more skillfully used if farm families learn thrifty buying practices, keep and analyze records, and buy cooperatively whenever possible. Economies can be made by saving food and material of all kinds. Better use of farm-grown foods, satisfactory storage space and careful cooking and use of waste fats for soap are examples of some economies that can and are being used by farm homemakers."

Mrs. Elms said America had become alarmed because so many of its rural youth were found unfit for military service, very largely because of dietary conditions.

"These," she said, "are among the conditions the Farm Security Administration is working to correct. Adequate nutrition through home production and preservation of an all-year food supply, and economical planning of wholesome meals, are of major importance," she declared.

"When we know the facts about the annual incomes of small farm operators, often as low as $250 a year, it is obvious they cannot invest much money to help win the war. But on

J. A. Blackwell Elected Mayor

Friona Honors Own Six Star Mother

Friona citizens have always been proud of their city, and home town patriotism took a jump this week in the splendid response for a 100 per cent "close up" and "all out" for the monster Army Day Parade at Amarillo, where one of our most highly esteemed citizens was one of the guests of honor.

And when we say 100 per cent, we mean ALL and maybe a few more, for every business place in Friona was closed for the entire day.

Friona's wholehearted cooperation was prompted by the honor being done to Mrs. George M. Baker, Six-Star Mother, and one of the honor guests in Amarillo.

Friona cars were decorated with banners, and a long motorcade of cars, headed by the bus bearing the Friona High School band, left town for Amarillo at 9 o'clock Monday morning, bearing with them, apparently, the greater part of our population.

Led by the Friona Lions' Club and the American Legion, assisted by every social organization in the city, citizens got busily to work making preparations for the occasion and every attention and courtesy within their means was shown Mrs. Baker, who was taken to Amarillo Sunday afternoon.

Friona citizens are proud of their part in honoring Mrs. Baker and in thus honoring national and home town patriotism.

J. A. Blackwell Tuesday was elected mayor of Friona in a quiet city election which saw no other change in the list of present city office holders. Blackwell defeated the present mayor, F. W. Reeve, by a vote of 65 to 31.

For commissioner F. A. Spring and Carl Maurer were re-elected, and Logan Simpson was again chosen city clerk. Jones was re-elected as night-watchman.

Total vote was as follows: For mayor, Blackwell, 65, Reeve, 32, Roden, 2, F. A. Spring, 1; for commissioners, Spring, 94, Maurer, 88, scattered, 3; for city clerk, Simpson, 65, Hamlin, 29, Roden, 2, Galloway, 1; for nightwatchman, Jones, 64, Schlenker, 31, Crow, 1, Simpson, 1.

Expert To Give Demonstration On Canning

Homemakers of Parmer county will learn the latest and best methods of canning fruits and vegetables next week when Miss Margaret Murphy, canning expert, gives a demonstration, Edna P. Elms, FSA Home Management supervisor announced today.

The demonstration will be given at Friona, in the High School Homemaking Laboratory, at 2:30 p. m., on Monday, April 13.

Miss Murphy, who will conduct the canning program, is a home economics graduate of the Iowa State College at Ames, who for the past several years has specialized in home canning and is now a staff member of the Educational Department of the Kerr-Mason Jar Company. She has traveled widely and her lectures are as interesting as they are instructive.

Because of the increased interest in food conservation, a large crowd is expected to attend the lecture.

Legion Will Meet Tuesday

Next regular meeting of the Friona Post, American Legion, No. 206, will be Tuesday night April 14 at 9 o'clock, and we urge all our Buddies to be with us. We especially urge you to do this as our Chaplain Buddy Hill thinks this may be the last time he will be with us since he has offered his services to our Government as Chaplain, and is now in Washington, D. C., taking examination. He will be back, Saturday of this week to fill his regular appointment in the pulpit of the local Methodist church, and he will be with us next Tuesday night for our regular meeting in the Legion home. He will report to San Antonio for another examination later on.

The ladies are expected to come and bring a covered dish. Foister Rector, Commander, Friona Post, 206.

Ola Mae Mixon, Kleberg County 4-H girl and one of two chosen to represent Texas at the National 4-H Encampment in Washington, D. C., which recently addressed the Kingsville Rotary Club in "Food For Victory."

JOB OF THE MONTH

By Elsie Cunningham

Home Demonstration Agent

Hundreds of women on farms all over Parmer county will soon be taking part in producing the tremendous quantity of food needed by this country and the other United Nations. So now is the moment—now before the big spring rush begins—to get all the necessary household equipment in condition for efficient running during the heavy days to come. Get adjustments and repairs made now while you still have time and while the stores still have the materials for repairing.

Take an inventory of your household equipment. Examine every piece carefully as you list it, and make a check mark beside any piece that needs repairing—or looks as if it soon may need repairing.

The stores still have most extra parts and other materials for repairs. You can still buy metal pieces, rubber, paint, oil and so on. But if you let things slide—if you don't bother to look over and fix up your household equipment, a break may come when repairs are difficult or impossible.

Parts are becoming scarce. Many that are now available cannot be had later—for after this supply is gone there won't be any more. An electric equipment salesman told me this past week that there would not be any more electric iron cords, extension cords, plugs, etc. for sale after the supply now on hand is exhausted.

Look ahead and imagine what a fix your whole family would be in if, right in the middle of harvesting, the grate in your stove gave way and you couldn't replace it, or your washing machine broke and couldn't be fixed. What if the gauge on your pressure cooker proved to be out of order just when you had a fine batch of new peas or green beans ready to process?

For your country's sake and your own, check and repair now.

On April 18 a repair clinic will be held in Friona for the purpose of assisting you. The Friona Lion's Club, Extension Ser-

Marketing Quota Considered In Vote On May 2

Uncle Sam already has his hands full and should not have to worry about a problem farmers can decide for themselves, the chairman of the Parmer County AAA Committee, pointed out this week.

Solution of the problem is marketing quotas, which will be decided at community ballot boxes, Saturday, May 2, when wheat farmers vote in a national referendum.

"We must produce the feed and food it will take to help whip international gangsterism instead of spending time, labor and money raising crops we don't need," the chairman said in explaining that a two-year wheat supply is in sight and the United Nations are in desperate need of meat, milk, vegetables, eggs, fats and oils.

Wheat marketing quotas, divide a limited market equally among all wheat producers.

vice and County Home Economic Association are cooperating to make this possible. We will have an expert on electric equipment there to help you with your problems. We will test gauges of pressure cookers and will show you how to mend rubber goods, etc. An expert repairman will be there to check sewing machines and put them in order. Plan to come to the repair clinic, bring your sewing machine head, your electric cords, your pressure cookers, or any rubber goods you need mended. The Home Demonstration Council will have a refreshment center. The Lions Club will sponsor the sale of defense bonds and stamps. The County Home Economics unit will have an interesting nutritional exhibit. You are welcome to drop in any time from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. on Saturday, April 18.

COGITATIONS and APHORISMS of Jodok

I have been cogitating quite a bit here of late about that exquisitely fine sentiment known as friendship, which is the condition of being or having a friend. And I have been doing quite a bit of reading, of various authors, both of high and low estate as such, and I have been rather surprised to note that of all worthy attributes of humanity and virtues of the race that are mentioned by them, there is so little said about friends or friendship.

Now, I do not refer to that superficial, cheap or trashy sort of friendship, but the real, unadulterated, fully ripened, died-in-the-wool, tried and true sort. I am tempted to believe that there is no higher virtue than that of such a kind of friendship. Even Jesus in one of his last talks with his disciples, seems to have exalted friendship above all other virtues, when he said: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friend."

And such friendship no man can buy. The only friend that money can buy is a dog; and even then it will not buy the "wag of his tail."

But I sometimes feel thankful for the fact that I have quite a number of that real sort of friends, such as I have described above. Of course I could be mistaken, but I hardly think so, and sometimes these friends show up where one least expects it, and in a way that one has no right to doubt their genuineness. I remember one time several years ago, I was called on to make a few remarks to a gathering of people, not many of whom I had ever seen before, and only with a very few of these with whom I could really claim an acquaintance, and I was making my remarks in my stumbling, stuttering manner, when I chanced to remark that I did not know that I had any friends in the audience. In a few minutes the gathering broke up into a short recess, and one of those present came to me and assured me that I did have some friends there, and mighty good friends they were, too. I had no right to doubt that this assurance was genuine, and many times since, when I have felt rather disconsolate and dejected I have recalled that incident with comfort and greater confidence in myself.

Then there was a time only two or three weeks ago, when another incident occurred which made a deep impression on me, and that was when my good friend Ed New, returned from a sight-seeing trip, which took him almost to the southern limits of our great State, to the noble city of Houston, only a few miles from the Gulf Coast. And while there, Ed was viewing the great ocean liners as they disgorged their cargoes on the piers or were taking on other cargoes to be carried to the uttermost parts of the earth. Such a sight Ed had never seen before and he was highly elated by what he was seeing, but his elation did not keep him from thinking of his old friend, "Jodok," back here on the street corner at Friona, and to prove to me that he did think of me, he purchased a copy of the Houston Chronicle, and carried it all the way back home and brought it to me and gave it to me, and told me of the wonderful sights he had seen and how he had enjoyed that trip.

Well, the copy of the Houston Chronicle was, in itself, of no great value, for I had already read from other papers most of the news it contained. Well—just the same—you know—sometimes I am afflicted with some sort of a hard lump forming in my throat, and I have a case of it now and the keys on my typewriter look so glimmery, that I can hardly see them. Well, somehow that is what I call friendship.

Then I have a package of letters that I have received from many of those who claim as my friends and whose friendship I frequently dote upon, and which I am keeping, as priceless to me as the rarest of gems. I will not embarrass these friends by quoting their names here. Some of them are men and some are ladies, but whichever they may be their friendship is inestimable to me.

I have stated above that there seems to be a paucity of expressions about friendship from the various authors whom I have read and I have a small book of sixty pages, which contains nothing but pithy and wise quotations from talented writers and speakers, and of these sixty pages I have found but two quotations from them about "friendship."

We just shake hands at meeting
With many that come night;
We nod the head in greeting
To many that go by—

But welcome through the gateway

Our few old friends and true;
Then hearts leap up, and straighten

There's open house for you,
Old friends,
There's open house for you.

Well, I am not going to commit the crime of plagiarism, because it is not; neither am I going to present a parody, for a parody is a burlesque; but I am going to borrow the style of the loved poet Whittier in his poem, "Maud Muller," in quoting this little couplet by Homade & Boughten, which will close my harangue about "friendship."
Of all the fine words that have yet been penned,
The finest are these—"He was my friend."

I have always been proud of my home town, "Friona" and my pride in her and her people has been a thousand times enhanced by the really true-hearted, full-blooded American manner in which it and they did honor to our really esteemed citizen and six-star mother at the parade on Army Day at Amarillo, Monday.

I was not present at the parade as I had justifiable reasons for my absence, as I preserved my honor (if any) and served my city by remaining at home; and I could not have added anything in the way of honoring this fine mother by my presence at Amarillo; and since I consider her as one of my real friends, I am sure she understands my feeling in the matter.

The school election has come and gone, and the city election will have passed into history before these lines appear in print, and it is hoped that the results of neither of these elections will have left any heartaches or sore spots to mar the unity of our citizenry.

Farmer John SEES THINGS

On May 2nd, the AAA will again be calling for a referendum vote on wheat quotas. The publicized object will be to curtail the production of the "staff of life" in America. In reality it is an attempt to encourage a slow-down strike among farmers.

New Deal propagandists and administration henchmen will soon be flooding the rural mails with "scare" information and a camouflaged victory appeal. It will warn that farmers must surely starve, lose their farms and reap general chaos if they fail to vote to the government authority to further regiment the wheat farmers. This same propaganda will with some skill and much ardor, attempt to convince all wheat farmers that the patriotic and loyal thing to do is follow the lead of the Washington agricultural bureaucrats and inflict on all people affected by short rations, the wheat quotas. They may even go so far as to draw a relationship between the Pearl Harbor catastrophe and the fellow who does not approve of dictation in agriculture or the common business activities among people.

That same source of information will have little to say about the rights of the underfed throngs in America or the millions of Chinese and India allies who are starving. But one thing sure, there will be no shortage of paper when it comes to putting out AAA propaganda.

It seems an insult to a farmer's patriotism, his sense of humanitarianism and his business judgment to be asked to vote this thing on the country for the sake of a monopoly wheat price. Surely the love of country flows much deeper among farmers than the love of a few dollars that are promised to be extracted from the public under government regulated agriculture. Again, the wily individualistic farmer will naturally have some misgivings about the price the politicians will permit, even if the government is voted the authority to regulate prices through the quotas.

Farmers should swat this attempt at government regimentation of free business—the wheat quotas—in the same spirit that they give their all to haul down dictatorial domination by Hitler and fight Japanese treachery. Anything that threatens or disrupts the free thinking, actions and planning of the individual, is a threat to Americanism. Farmers should help rub out the blot on American free enterprise by covering up the quota referendum with an avalanche of "no's."

A Letter From Farmer John
Enclosed with the "Farmer John" column this week was a letter from "Farmer John," who is still over at Hot Springs, N. M. Feeling that our readers will like to hear from Farmer John direct, we are printing his letter herewith.

Monday morning
Dear John: We are still at Hot Springs. We will probably be here a day or two yet. Will likely not be back to Friona until the last of this week or first of next. There is hardly a New Dealer to be found here. They all rave like George McLean.

Do as you please about using this "Farmer John" stuff. I believe I have said nothing but the truth, but sometimes, even the truth is better unsaid. I see by Ed McLellan's Friona Star that Friona is having a mayor election. I hope Friona gets a good one.

Let's Cook Something

BAKED POTATOES WITH MILK AND HAM
Peel large white potatoes and slice the round way. Place a layer in a greased baking dish, add salt and pepper to taste and then add a thinly sliced layer of raw ham. Repeat a layer of each until baker is nearly full, ending with ham on top. Cover all with sweet milk and bake in moderate oven until the potatoes are tender and the ham is browned.

You might as well be a Pollyanna about priorities. You might as well—because they are here—on foods as well as on rubber, silk and metal. That doesn't mean you will have to do without, but it does mean that you will have to use substitutes and you will have to think of ways to combine foods in order to meet higher costs of living. Since meat has gone sky high, recipes using smaller portions but still satisfying to the taste are in demand. Mrs. Wilbur Kramer, who has been visiting here, brought this one with her from Louisiana. It sounds good and it tastes wonderful.

From where I sit...
by Joe Marsh

BEST storekeeper I ever knew was a fellow named Sam Abernethy. Sam's specialty was to take over some run-down store that somebody else had given up as a failure. Then Sam would turn it into a gold mine.

"But the most important thing of all," he used to say, "is to remember who's Boss!"

"You may think you are Boss of your business... but you're not. The public, your customers, are the real bosses... and you've got to run your business the way they want it."

That little statement of Sam's made a big impression on me... particularly since it certainly seemed to work so well in Sam's case.

And Sam isn't the only one. I see the beer industry feels the same way... certainly, the brewers believe in running their business the way you and I would like to see it run.

Well... the brewers feel the same way about it. They don't want their beer sold in wrong surroundings. They know it doesn't pay. And they know it hurts the good name of beer.

I was reading the other day how the brewers and the beer distributors work together and cooperate with law enforcement authorities. The idea is to make careless beer retailers clean up their places and practices... or close up.

It's a good plan... and it seems to me it ought to work. I understand it is already in operation in a number of states and is being extended.

It's a mighty fine thing when a great industry has the gumption to do a job like that on its own initiative. And if Sam Abernethy was right, the brewers should be mighty successful... because they're running their business the way the public wants to see it run.

Folks like us like to see beer sold in clean, quiet, decent places.

MILK AND EGGS

Help Build Strong Bodies From The Texas Food Standard For a Good Diet I Need To Include Milk—

Daily: 1 pint to 1 quart (Children under 16 need 3-4 to 1 quart) For 1 Week: 3 1-2 to 7 quarts. For a Good Diet I Need To Include Eggs—

Daily: 1 egg (Dried beans, peas, or nuts may sometimes be substituted for eggs or meat as a protein food for adults.) For 1 Week: 7 eggs.

IN BUYING MILK I SHOULD REMEMBER TO:

Be sure that the milk is safe. Buy grade A pasteurized milk if possible. Encourage bottle top protection.

Ray milk may be made safe by bringing it to a boil quickly, cooling quickly, and storing, covered, in a cool place.

Check on source by personal visits to dairy or creamery and by records of the Health Officer of the county.

Provide a shaded, protected place for milk to be delivered. Store quickly in cool place. Keep milk cool and covered. Rinse the bottle before storing.

Sterilize utensils used for milk. When straining milk, a filter paper strainer is better than a cloth strainer.

Buy milk, skim milk, and butter milk by the gallon of a large quantity can be used. They are cheaper by the gallon.

IN BUYING EGGS I SHOULD REMEMBER TO:

Buy eggs by grade whenever possible. Medium-size eggs weigh 24-25 oz. per dozen.

Ask whether eggs have been candled. They are more dependable than those that have not been candled.

Find out whether eggs are infertile. They keep longer than fertile ones.

Inquire about prices of storage and fresh eggs. Storage eggs may be cheaper than unstored eggs and just as satisfactory for some purposes. When there is a locker storage available, eggs may be separated and the whites and yolks frozen and stored. They are satisfactory in cooked products.

Consider that the color of the shell is not an indication of quality. The color of the yolk is due to the hen's feed. A light color does not indicate freshness. Color is not an indication of the amount of Vitamin A.

Leave a standing order with a producer if possible. It saves marketing time and may be economical.

Be willing to pay more for eggs of high quality and even size than for eggs of less high quality and uneven size.

IN USING MILK I SHOULD:

Be sure to include the recommended amount in the diet. If income decreases, let milk be among the last foods to decrease. Never use less than half the recommended amount.

Keep in mind that the following amounts of milk products are equal to 1 qt. of whole fluid milk:

17 oz. of evaporated milk plus an equal amount of water. (1 tall can contains 14 1-2 oz.)

1 1-5 cups of powdered whole milk plus 3 1-2 cups of water.

1 qt. of skim milk plus 1 1-2 oz. of butter.

1 qt. of butter milk plus 1 1-2 oz. of butter.

1-4 lb. cheese.

Make cocoa or fruit-milk beverages if the family does not like milk to drink. Use milk in sauces, puddings, custards, frozen desserts, etc.

IN USING EGGS I SHOULD:

Ask for or select clean eggs. Store them in a dry, cool ventilated place. Use only fresh, clean, unwashed eggs; eggs when storing them in quantity to keep for a long period.

Wash soiled eggs, if any, as purchased in small quantity before storing in a refrigerator or other cool place.

Use eggs of medium size in flour mixtures, because standard recipes have been planned for this size egg.

Measure egg of medium size in flour mixtures, because standard recipes have been planned for this size egg.

Measure egg whites for angel food cake instead of using a definite number of egg whites.

Cook eggs both on top of the stove and in the oven at a fairly low temperature, because high temperature makes them tough.

Add hot ingredients to beaten eggs slowly; not eggs to the hot ingredients.

"Your Town and Mine"

By Charles L. Allen

HE was a real Boogie Man in the flesh. All a mother had to say when a recalcitrant youngster balked at parental orders was "Harry Belton will get you!"

Every one of us knew Harry Belton, and until we were big fellows in high school we went about the village with fear and trembling.

Harry Belton would never come after us. When I think about it, I cannot recall a single time when Harry Belton actually arrested anybody and only twice that he went so far as to threaten any of the townspeople with incarceration.

If all the fast-talking, abusive, officious, blustering, braggadocio traffic cops of America's greatest metropolis were lined up in neat rows along the bank of the Hudson, I wouldn't trade Harry Belton for the lot of them.

They haven't yet realized one utterly simple attribute of the human race. They don't know yet what Harry Belton figured out for himself when he started to be the entire police force of our small town—that people are human beings with the feelings and thoughts and reactions of human beings.

It is clear that respect for law and order, and not fear of the bluecoats, keeps most of us going down the paths of legal security. We youngsters grew up to the place where we had no fear of old Harry Belton at all. In fact, we learned that he was one of the kindest men in all the world. We left things alone on Hallowe'en, not because we thought Harry might catch us and put us in the town's tiny bastille, but because we knew very well he'd need help to get all that stuff out of the streets the next day and we would most certainly be right there helping him remove it. In short, we gave up a lot of childish ideas of fun just because we knew Harry had been good to us and we wanted to return the favor.

We could use several thousand men like Harry Belton on the police forces of our cities, large and small. It takes a big man, not physically, but mentally and in spirit, to be the kind of personification of law and order that can gain a child's trust and a man's respect. The American Way of Life never contemplated forcing citizens to be law-abiding; you cannot insult and abuse an intelligent person into obedience.

Miniature Ice Storm Hit City In Delayed "Easter Weather"

Rain, sleet and snow brought needed moisture to Friona within the past two days in a delayed session of "Easter Weather." Accompanied by cold winds, the moisture froze and brought a miniature edition of the 1940 ice storm, with considerable damage to light, telephone and telegraph lines. Long distance telephone communications were out, with no lines open, even to Amarillo, yesterday; and telephone linesmen were searching for breaks in the line. Telegrams were having to be relayed by mail and bus and train connections were haphazard.

Clearing and warmer weather Thursday morning seemed to spell the end of the ice storm, and farmers of the territory were glad to receive the moisture, which the wheat had been needing.

Damage to trees, flowers and gardens had not been calculated this morning but did not seem to be as serious as was at first thought.

City Boys Go Back to Farm

Some of the 33 boys who have enrolled at Bowdoin Farm School, near New Hamburg, N. Y., never saw a farm before. Now they have learned something of planting, crop storage, harvesting, care of livestock, milking, and how to get the most eggs from the fewest chickens. After graduation they'll be placed in farm jobs with farm families. Fred Dittmar, 17, checks the harness on a team of horses.

Increased Demand For Grade A Milk

With the greatly increased demand for Grade A milk comes an opportunity for farmers to meet this demand and at the same time improve dairying facilities at very little extra cost, according to County Agent A. R.

Bateman, who points out that dairy companies in neighboring cities are now eager to buy Grade A milk and will call for the milk in their trucks.

Bateman has blueprints and other plans and will be glad to help farmers who want to rebuild or build new dairy barns in order to qualify as producers of Grade A milk. Many farmers in this terri-

Psychology Plays Part In Sports Performance

BY ART BRONSON

SOMETIMES psychology plays as big a part as ability in sports. War days are emphasizing the importance of the psychological factor.

Red Sox star Ted Williams, for instance, may be affected by the psychological drawback of his draft deferment. Williams has always been popular, and if he falls into disfavor with Boston fans he may have a hard time trying to maintain last year's .408 batting average.

For psychological reasons, too, Gene Tunney points out that he'd rather have men like Bob Feller as physical instructors and recreation leaders for the Navy than men who hold degrees in physical education.

Mentally, the boys who follow Feller's advice concerning physical fitness will say to themselves that it's wise to do what he tells them to. Knowing that Feller has been successful, they feel that they have a chance to emulate him.

Then there's Lou Novikoff's remark concerning his ambitions to make a serious effort to do big things this year. "After all," the Mad Russian says, "whether it's the minors or majors, there's a guy out there throwing and you have a bat in your hand." That confidence in his own ability to hit is good psychology and should pay off in a better batting average.

The Yankees, Dodgers, and Giants will admit 600,000 men in uniform to their home games this season—which is not only good psychology, but worthy of high praise.

Hen Outraged When Kittens Impose On Mother Love Instinct

Turkeys are bad enough, but to ask a self respecting hen to mother four yowling kittens is stretching the mother love instinct too far. At least that seemed to be opinion of the setting hen whose outraged clucks were heard by Mrs. R. R. Fitzer of Dawn last week.

The hen had a setting of turkey eggs and Mrs. Fitzer, feeling in the nest expecting to find small turkeys was astounded to find the kittens, on top of the eggs and under the hen, who was very unhappy about the whole thing.

Vernor Bippert recently was enrolled in the LaCosta 4-H Club under County Agricultural Agent C. M. Merritt, who induced the boy's father, Rudolph Bippert, into the same club in 1918. Bippert is the club leader.

Five members of the Grover 4-H Girls' Club and one of the Grill Club in Harrison County have enrolled as USDA Victory demonstrators. The six include two Gold Star girls.

Producers could qualify as Grade A with only slight changes in their present set-up and with the increased demand for Grade A milk, it will be worth their time to investigate changes necessary, Bateman says.

Marketing Quota

dum is the 85 per cent of parity loan program which is one of the principal reasons for the present price of wheat, the chairman said and added that with abnormal supplies, wheat quotas are essential to maintenance of fair prices.

"We've done a good job of producing wheat, we have ADEQUATE reserves, and we're getting a fair price. Wheat marketing quotas is just another way we have of keeping our business house in order," the AAA official said.

Tree Stocks Are Available Now Until April 15

Deaf Smith County farmers have an opportunity to get trees, a choice of selections in 14 varieties, all suited to this climate and available for shipping cost according to officials of the agricultural extension service.

These are trees now at the shelterbelt stations in Chickasha, Okla., and Childress, Tex., and are being shipped out because of the closing of the stations whose personnel and equipment will now be used in California, where the government is experimenting with guayule and other rubber producing plants. The trees are of varieties suited to field shelterbelts, farm orchards and postlots or woodlots, and farmers who want some of these trees are asked to see the extension workers. Since about 50,000 trees make a truck load it will be necessary to pool orders.

The trees are planting stock size. They are top-pruned in the field to a height of approximately 18 inches; although this may be somewhat less on some species. These trees must be removed from the government stations by April 15.

Thirteen Young County 4-H clubs have built producing frame gardens at their schools. Boys and girls alternate in caring for them, and several are building frame gardens at home for family use.
