TURCO-AMERICAN TREATY SIGNED MONDAY MORNING

LAUSANNE, Aug. 5. (AP)—The Turco-American treaty was signed at 4:15 p. m. today.

LAUSANNE, Aug. 5. (AP)—The Turco-American treaty which was signed at 4:15 p. m. today, is the fruit of long and difficult negotiations; it accords Americans most favored nation treatment and replaces the antiquated agreement negotiated in 1912. It regulates in detail the official and commercial relations between the two countries and brings relief to Americans and American interests in Turkey by clarifying the therefore equal position created by Turkey's abolition of capitulations.

Americans often were in a quandary, particularly over the taxes, from which they had been legally exempted under the old treaty, and constant appeals were made to the American high commissioner, that American educational institutions be accorded the same treatment as that of Turkish institutions.

The Turkish government and Americans likewise benefit by the system of foreign legal advisers that Turkey agrees to appoint to hear complaints over the arrest and imprisonment of foreigners.

Joseph C. Grew, the American minister to Switzerland, who was the chief American negotiator, signed the treaty, head of the delegation, as difficult to deal with as the allies did, and that negotiations dragged on longer than had been expected, largely because of the Turkish hesitancy in making decisions of the important issues.

Rattler Invades New York Store

NEW YORK, Aug. 5. (AP)—There was a thrilling holdup in New York's diamond district today. When Max Low, jeweler, started to open the safe in his Fulton street shop, a hiss interrupted him. Turning, he confronted the poison fangs of a diamond back rattlesnake.

Low yelled, Patrolman Mitchell came, saw and conquered with a blow of his night stick. The rattler was three and a half feet long. How the snake got in the store is a mystery.

DALLAS ROOMING HOUSE IS BURNED WOMAN INJURED

DALLAS, Aug. 5. (AP)—Nearly a score of persons had narrow escapes in their night clothing shortly after midnight when fire destroyed the rooming house of O. P. Jordan in Cadillac street and badly damaged two adjoining buildings, causing a loss estimated at $35,000.

Sparks from the burning building started fires on the roofs of houses several blocks away, but flames, scouting for blocks in all directions, discovered the new fire in time to prevent a spread of flames.

Mrs. Meta Richter suffered severe injuries as she jumped from the second floor of one of the burning houses. Mrs. Allie Blankenship and several firemen were overcome from heat.

Dallas Woman Is Found Dying In Bath Room

DALLAS, Aug. 5. (AP)—Miss Lucile Mae Hamilton, 19, was found dying in the bath room of the home of her mother, Mrs. Hamilton, late last night, and died while being taken to a hospital. A bullet had penetrated her body just above the heart, the bullet appearing from a small pistol found on the bath room floor. Police said they believed the girl's father had shot her, but a statement that she heard her daughter scream before the shot was fired.

Gov. Davis Suffering With Attack of 'Flu'

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 5. (AP)—The report of a severe attack of influenza on Governor J. M. Davis shortly before noon today "looks very auspicious of pneumonia," Dr. L. M. Powell, the governor's physician, declared in a statement issued at 1 p. m. "The governor is a very sick man," the statement said. "There was a temporary drop in temperature last evening to 102.1-2, but it has remained at 103 1/2 since and at noon today had risen to 104."

STOCKS AND BONDS REACT READILY TO BANK CONFIDENCE

NEW YORK, Aug. 5. (AP)—Stock and bond prices responded readily to the expressions of confidence voiced by banks and other representatives of the new Washington administration in the early trading today.

While there were some individual losses, the general market moved forward, reflecting the absence of uncertainty which characterized transactions on Saturday, the 17th day of trading after the death of President Harding. Market observers attributed most of the buying to short covering operations, but they said also that the number buying for the long account had been increasing materially.

PRESIDENT HAS NOT REACHED DECISION ON EXTRA SESSION

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5. (AP)—President Coolidge apparently has no intention of calling an extra session of congress, but those who called on him today received the impression that he had not made a final decision.

The possibility of an extra session was discussed by the president with Samuel Gompers, president, and Francis Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor. Mr. Gompers said the president appeared to have no intention now of calling congress together again, but was reserving any definite decision.

The subject was brought up by Mr. Gompers, because of his desire to submit legislative proposals on behalf of organized labor. He made an engagement to see President Coolidge early next month to submit labor policies which are to be discussed at a meeting this month of the federation's executive council.

FUNERAL PLANS AT WASHINGTON AWAIT WISHES OF WIDOW

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5. (AP)—Plans, as yet incomplete, for the state funeral here Wednesday of the late President Harding will be made in accordance with the wishes of Mrs. Harding.

As arrangements proceed President Coolidge and Secretary Hughes keep in touch by telegraph with the funeral train that will arrive in Washington tomorrow. Mrs. Harding already has suggested that the ceremony here closely follow those held 22 years ago for President McKinley, and that the funeral party accompanying the body to Washington be kept intact for the trip to Marion, where burial will be Friday.

On its arrival here tomorrow afternoon Mr. Harding's body will be taken to the east room of the white house. No announcement has been made as to whether a brief service will be held there before the casket is taken to the capitol grounds where the body will lie in state from 10:30 a. m. until 6 p. m. Wednesday, an hour before the funeral train will leave for Marion.

Departure of President Coolidge, chief justice Taft, other high government officials and foreign dignitaries for Marion will be deferred until Thursday evening. Mr. Taft has not yet decided whether he will participate in the ceremonies here and in Marion.

Woodrow Wilson hopes to take some part in the Washington ceremonies.

Two Women Die From Starvation Fortune Is Gone

CARTHAGE, MO., Aug. 5. (AP)—Death claimed the second victim of an apparent starvation pact when Miss Nonna Cox, 37, was found dead in the county farm hospital here late yesterday.

OFFICIAL BUSINESS AWAITS COMPLETION PLANS FOR FUNERAL

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5. (AP)—Rescheduled by a Sunday rest President Coolidge devoted himself today to a study of plans for the funeral of Warren G. Harding. To this end other official business was put aside.

With endless details incidental to the funeral arrangements to be disposed of, conferences on the subject made the temporary executive offices near the Coolidge hotel suite a scene of uninterrupted activity.

The stream of visitors which has flowed into the presidential suite since Mr. Coolidge's arrival here Friday night from Plymouth, Vt., continued, various government officials calling there to discuss funeral plans or to pay respects.

When he attended morning services yesterday at the First Congregational church Mr. Coolidge made his first appearance in a public assembly since becoming president.

COOLIDGE, WILSON AND TAFT WILL RIDE IN PROCESSION WEDNESDAY.

WHEELS OF GOVERNMENT TO COME TO STANDSTILL

All Departments and Bureaus Will Remain Closed Until After Funeral Friday.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5. (AP)—The American government responding to the grief of the hundred million and more for whom it acts, prayerfully made ready today to perform the funeral rites for the late President Harding. Not only President Coolidge, but all other high officials in Washington made the funeral plans their first consideration, putting into the background for the present all issues of foreign and domestic concern which so recently had seemed of overshadowing importance.

In all departments and bureaus ordinary business of federal administration had almost come to a standstill. While agencies in every subdivision of the government were called into service for the sad task of preparations, work will stop entirely at 1 p. m. tomorrow when the funeral train ends here its long journey from the Pacific coast and every federal building will remain closed until the body of the chief executive has been laid to rest in Marion, Ohio, on Friday.

Three presidents will be in the funeral procession which follows the body of Mr. Harding Wednesday when it is taken from the east room of the white house to lie in state at the capitol. President Coolidge will ride directly behind the immediate members of the family and both Woodrow Wilson and William Howard Taft will follow in the long line of officials, personal friends and military, fraternal and civic bodies that will move up Pennsylvania avenue to symbolize the mourning of a nation.

Army orders completed today will see the funeral train escorted by a selected group of non-commissioned officers to act as a guard of honor about the casket, both at the white house and at the capitol.

From the time it is placed in the east room tomorrow there will always be five non-commissioned officers standing at attention in khaki uniforms with caps and bayonets fixed to their rifles. The military contingent in the funeral procession which will lead the casket to the capitol on Wednesday will be composed of a provisional regiment of engineers, two battalions strong, and the engineer band of the 10th Cavalry. A provisional regiment of infantry drawn from the Sixth United States Infantry brigade at Camp Meade, Md., and with headquarters at Fort Belknap, Mont., will be detailed to carry the casket to Marion.

The cavalry troop will be an escort when the casket is borne to the capitol. The 10th Cavalry will lead the way from the capitol to the train after the services in the morning.

Brother of Late President and Others Board Special Enroute to Washington for Funeral Service

CHICAGO, Aug. 5. (AP)—The Harding funeral train reached Dixon, Ill., at 1:31 p. m. yesterday, stopping at 1:45 and left the city limits at 1:54 o'clock after taking aboard the Marion, Ohio, party which left Chicago on a special train this morning.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5. (AP)—The funeral train bearing the body of President Harding passed through Calamus, Iowa, 100 miles from Chicago, at 11:38 a. m., running 40 minutes behind schedule. It was holding up the funeral special all along the line, according to reports to the Chicago & Northwestern railroad.

ON BOARD HARDING FUNERAL TRAIN, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Aug. 5.—Members of the party on the train were continually touched and their eyes grew misty today as the train sped through the broad state of Iowa. The funeral train at the stations such as Boone, Ames, Marshalltown, La Grande, Belle Plaine, and here at Cedar Rapids was impressed by the fact that it was the individuals beside the railroad tracks that touched hearts to their depths. A farmer standing among his corn rows, his head bowed, and his rough straw hat clasped to his breast, radiated sympathy. A man standing as much at attention as his crippled condition would permit, an engineer standing at the controls of the train, a locomotive and an old lady crying softly to herself. Thus was the truth made known to those aboard the funeral train that America need fear no threats of revolution and no warning of racial impetuosity. The heart of America is sound and true.

Large and Impressive Demonstration in Iowa

BOONE, IOWA, Aug. 5. (AP)—One of the largest and most impressive demonstrations in Iowa was that at Boone, where the funeral train made a brief stop. Nearly every town in the western part of the state was represented in the crowd that numbered at least 10,000 persons.

All lodges to which Mr. Harding belonged sent delegations which formed a line for blocks on either side of the funeral train. Knights of Columbus, American Legion men, Civil and Spanish American leagues, and the Daughters of the American Revolution, among other organizations were represented in the uniform ranks.

There was no ceremony—only a reverent silence as the body of the dead president was in their midst.

RELATIVES AND FRIENDS TO MEET FUNERAL TRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 5. (AP)—Riding in a special train, the relatives and friends of the late President Harding, brother of the late president, Dr. Carl W. Sawyer and one other man from Marion, Ohio, accompanied by W. B. Finley, president of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad, left Chicago at approximately 10:30 a. m. for the funeral train today to meet the Harding funeral train.

At the time the funeral train was approaching Cedar Rapids, Iowa, having a head start of 15 minutes distance from there, at 9:55 a. m. central standard time. At that time the funeral train which left Chicago about one hour late and had traversed half the distance between Chicago and Marion, had made up its time and was in the lead by 15 minutes.

It is with inexpressible sorrow that the heart of the death of our beloved and dearly loved President Warren G. Harding. In his passing we have sustained an irreparable loss that will be felt in the hearts and minds of all true citizens of the republic. We bow in humble submission to this affliction with the hope that the God whom our departed president believed in and in whom he placed his faith, will guide our people in the future as in the past.

The faithful wife, whose heroism and Christian fortitude have been an inspiring example, we wish to convey the sympathy of our state.

In Omaha some folks were carrying babies in arms, while out in the North Plains rain storms at Bruce, Neb., did not stop them. At points along the route special religious services were held as well as in other cities, the memorials including the singing of Mr. Harding's favorite hymns.

Train Late to Omaha.

The train was somewhat late in Omaha because of the storms and because the locomotive slipped a tire at Chappelle. This caused some inconvenience as another engine from a train following was substituted at the junction.

Reaching Council Bluffs the train did not stop, but slowed down, from 1,000 to 10,000 persons viewing its passing. The train stopped there in full uniform uncovered and saluted and Boy Scouts handed in as the train passed a tribute of wild flowers.

The American Legion, 150 strong, was present.

While the funeral train was passing through Nebraska many members of the party recalled how the late chief executive in his last principal address paid tribute to that state.

STATE RANGERS TO CANYON FOR TRIAL BEGINNING MONDAY

CANTON, TEXAS, Aug. 5. (AP)—State rangers will be sent here for the trial on August 13 of J. L. Payne for the slaying of J. S. Swamy and Maud Rippey on the court house steps at Crosbyton, May 14.

Sheriff W. R. Black requested the rangers as a precautionary measure.

No feeling prevails at Canyon over the feud which will be aired in the proceedings. All according to Sheriff Black. However, the sheriff explained some 100 witnesses are scheduled to come from Crosbyton and Castro counties and it is feared that feeling may run high at the time of the trial. There is said to be considerable sentiment in those counties over the case.

REPORTED AGRICULTURE IN EUROPE IS REVIVING FASTER THAN INDUSTRY

CHICAGO, Aug. 5. (AP)—American farmers should note the tendency in Europe toward breaking up big estates into small farms because this is causing a decrease in foreign markets for American agricultural products, according to the August letter of J. H. Tregoe, secretary-treasurer of the National Association of Creditmen, made public here today.

Agriculture is reviving in Europe faster than industry, according to Mr. Tregoe, who said it may mean within a few years a revolution in our agriculture.

Has Suggestion For Inscription

BERLIN, Aug. 5. (AP)—To William, the Brilliant Wind-Bag and "Frying Dutchman" is the inscription which the Wall on Monday suggests be put on the monument to William II, which stands on a hill overlooking the Baltic near the bathing resort of Bismarck. The monument—a base relief of the former monarch—now bears the words "To William, ruler of sea, Master of Arms, this ancient stone pays homage."

Coolidge Stands Solidly on Feet Sure-Stepping, Steady, Dependable "Old Reliable" From Vermont Hills

By MARE SULLIVAN
Political correspondent of the New York Tribune and Wichita.
Copyright, 1922, by the New York Tribune.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—At the time President Coolidge came to Washington, the public impression of him was chiefly on a single dramatic act, the suppression of the police strike in Boston, in which the conspicuous characteristics were firmness, courage and the quality popularly called "nerve." There were many other things which gave confidence in him as a leader.

His broader foundation of his steady, sure-footed administration of the government as the other offices he had held and his discharge of all the ordinary duties of his offices with such common sense and judgment that no one could recall anything that could be called a mistake. But because Washington is a kind of a museum where the most dramatic act of his career, there arose, during his two and a half years in Washington, a kind of curiosity that almost went to the extent of reappraisal. It has been common to hear the question frequently put to persons in Washington traveling throughout the country: "What is Coolidge doing all day?" "What kind of impression is Coolidge making?"

The fact is that as vice president Coolidge has followed the line of a nature in living up to the precise measure of his responsibilities. One who has known him in his previous office, in Washington, Coolidge has had three functions: one as a legislator, one as a presiding officer over the sessions of the senate, and one as a member of the cabinet.

His second function has been to fulfill certain social duties, which, during several administrations, have come to be the recognized business of the vice presidency. It is in living up to this latter function that Coolidge has made a rather passing impression on those who came into contact with him at dinners and similar social occasions. One of his most characteristic personal traits is silence, and as silence is not the quality generally expected in a dinner guest, there came about a rather wondering feeling on the part of persons whose contacts with him were limited to these official and semi-official dinner tables.

It can be taken for granted that in entering upon his new office Coolidge will give emphasis to the value of continuity both of policy and personnel, because continuity is called for by the nature of the situation. But an utter misapprehension will be made by any one who might think that the self-effacement Coolidge has practiced for a year and a half years as being the expression of a negative or even neutral personality. It is the kind of humor that Thomas B. Reed had, a humor that is too much on real points and philosophy to be satisfied by mere dinner table vivacity. The result is that some of the hosts of these functions because they did not believe enough of personality to the table themselves, have ended the feast feeling they have had to be satisfied with merely the physical presence of the vice president of the United States.

Attended Cabinet Meetings
Coolidge's third function has been one that was added to the office of vice president by President Harding's initiative. Harding invented the theory, now justified in its wisdom, that it would be well for the vice president to sit at the meetings of the cabinet, so that in the event of just such a turn as has now come, he should be familiar with the current of public business and the better equipped to carry on if the presidency should happen to devolve upon him. And so, for two hours every Tuesday and Friday, Coolidge has left his chair on the rostrum of the senate to sit with the cabinet. For several reasons this innovation, so fundamentally carried with it considerable necessities of tact and self-restraint; and if it had not happened that Coolidge's personality and philosophy in his relation to his duty had been just what they are, there might have been many occasions for embarrassment. For one reason, the senate, over jealous of its prerogatives, and ever meticulous about the completeness of separation between the senate and the white house, were necessarily a little inclined to be dubious about the additional role which Harding had given to the vice presidency. To the senate, Coolidge was never wholly one of them. They looked askance on his semi-weekly departures from among themselves to sit in the intimacies of the cabinet. In the course of time, due precisely to the way in which Coolidge handled himself, this feeling on the part of the senate has died down. If Coolidge had been a less cautious man, or if he had not happened to have, as the first of his qualities, a sense of careful and exact definition of his prerogatives and responsibilities, more than one case of tension might have arisen. A man of different temperament or less sure-footed personal management of himself, might have fallen into one of the two errors of becoming in the senate a representative of the wishes of the white house, or of becoming in the cabinet an ambassador from the senate. But it has been precisely this that Coolidge has avoided. In the cabinet he did exactly what the definition of his anomalous position called for. He sat as an observer wholly, spoke only when called on to speak, and answered just as far as each particular question called for reply. On the other hand, when he returned to the senate, if he carried cabinet confidences with him, or the knowledge of wishes on the part of the administration, as to what the senate should do, he kept such knowledge wholly within the boundaries of his own exceptionally well-kept shutters. All the embarrassments, all the personal antagonisms, which a less canny man, or a man of less exact mind, might have fallen into, Coolidge avoided completely. And as a result he stands today with the complete confidence of both of the senate and of the cabinet.

Exceptionally Well Equipped
It has followed from the innovation into which Harding introduced this vice president, that the latter has two unprecedented equipments for stepping into his new duties. One is that he knows the history and present status of every piece of executive business as it comes before him, and he knows it. The other is that having sat as a silent and extremely alert observer at every cabinet meeting, he knows the qualities of every member of the cabinet in a way never approached by any other president on his assumption of office. As a final equipment, he has perfect familiarity with the state of senate business and the personal equations of individual senators.

Perhaps the most fundamental thing about Coolidge is the conception of his duties, which rests upon a mind whose principal characteristic is exactness. One is that he will never go beyond those limits unless there is some occasion of a kind which appeals to his logical mind as being called for by extraordinary circumstances.

When the League of Nations first became an issue in American public life, Coolidge and his cabinet of Massachusetts. To a caller who asked his views about the league, he replied: "I am governor of Massachusetts and Massachusetts has no foreign relations. If ever I should hold an office calling for action or opinion on this subject, I shall put my mind to it and try to arrive at the soundest conclusions within my capacity." The answer had a New England soundness, neither extreme caution or brusqueness, but it was delivered with the dry New England smile that disarms an opponent of brusqueness, and with such an instantly machine like exactness of thought and expression that you never had any misapprehension about Coolidge merely practicing caution for cautious sake. You knew perfectly well that whenever it became a part of his responsibility or prerogative for his mind to react on this question, he would carefully place all the elements of it in a mathematical row and come to an answer as sound as the multiplication table.

Value Continuity
It can be taken for granted that in entering upon his new office Coolidge will give emphasis to the value of continuity both of policy and personnel, because continuity is called for by the nature of the situation. But an utter misapprehension will be made by any one who might think that the self-effacement Coolidge has practiced for a year and a half years as being the expression of a negative or even neutral personality. It is the kind of humor that Thomas B. Reed had, a humor that is too much on real points and philosophy to be satisfied by mere dinner table vivacity. The result is that some of the hosts of these functions because they did not believe enough of personality to the table themselves, have ended the feast feeling they have had to be satisfied with merely the physical presence of the vice president of the United States.

FAVORS AMENDMENT TO LIMIT PRESIDENTS TO FOUR YEARS IN OFFICE

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—(AP)—A federal amendment limiting future presidents to one term was advocated here yesterday by Senator Albert B. Cummins, republican, Iowa, president pro tem of the United States senate.

Senator Cummins was en route to Washington to aid in preparation for President Harding's funeral.

"Of course, President Harding would have been renominated had he lived," Senator Cummins said. "But I always have believed that one term is enough. The great responsibilities and the tremendous strain of the office are more than any man can stand."

W. H. Mason
President

We are a nation of builders.

From the rough hewn stockade of the pioneers to the latest towering marvel of steel and cement, the need for better materials has increased with the growth of our Country.

To supply these materials hundreds of factories were built and expensive sales forces were organized, each with its own standard of production and system of distribution—many with little or no standard or system. Waste was inevitable; quality uncertain; price a matter of barter—so that buyers of the previous generation might well heed the old Latin warning caveat emptor—"let the buyer beware."

But within twenty-five years a peaceful revolution has relieved the buyer of all uncertainty and placed the responsibility squarely on the shoulders of the manufacturer.

Certain-teed fully accepted this responsibility. Today, over one hundred products of usefulness and beauty are made in the sixteen plants you see on this page; each product uniform in its enduring quality; each made by the most modern and economical process, each reaching you over the shortest possible distance with the least possible expense.

Each and all are united under one policy, one sales organization and one brand—the brand that means—Certain satisfaction—Quality guaranteed, the brand known everywhere as Certain-teed.

CARRIGAN SPEAKS TO KIWANISANS ON FATHERS AND SONS

The Carrigan was the principal speaker at the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis Club at the Kemp hotel Monday when he talked briefly on the necessity of fostering the father and son movement. Mr. Carrigan spoke of the movement from the viewpoint of the son and died for a better understanding between father and son.

Mr. F. E. Colliard brought up the matter of ceiling fans and awnings for the nursery and maternity ward at General hospital. Mr. Colliard said that the appropriations made by city and county did not provide for this expenditure and that many of the patients in the ward were on account of the lack of these comforts. He suggested that the club finance the furnishing of fans and awnings for this department of the hospital. The matter was referred to the board of directors for discussion.

Miss Theodora Darr, accompanied by Miss Beulah Gardner, entertained the club with two dance solos. Miss Ella Morris Mathis read a letter from "Mary Carey" and responded to the applause of the club with a negro dialect selection. Henry Dent, of Oklahoma City, read "The Bridge Builder."

Even as the wandering troubadour of Old Spain, William S. Armour, se-service man, is singing his way across the continent for the second time since the world war, during which he was given up to die as a result of wounds received in the Argonne forest.

Armour left New York on his transcontinental tramp, he has covered several thousand miles. He carries a regulation army pack, and travels an average of 50 miles per day, he states.

Armour was a singer before the war, and now pays expenses by singing. Although he was severely injured during the war, and in spite of the fact that he wears a 15-inch silver plaster in his right leg as a result of shrapnel, he is making good time and expects to reach the coast within two months.

COUNTY JAIL PRISONERS PETITION FOR ICE IN DRINKING WATER

A petition, signed by practically all of the prisoners in the county jail, was submitted to the commissioners' court at the regular session Monday morning. The petition pointed out that ice for cooling the drinking water was almost an absolute necessity for the health of the prisoners confined in jail.

The commissioners refused to take any action on the petition, but referred it to Sheriff Murphy. They were of the opinion that the matter should be left entirely to Sheriff Murphy, as it came under the care of prisoners.

R. L. Frances was appointed deputy constable to replace Joe Blocker, at the Monday morning meeting Blocker submitted his resignation as deputy to the commissioners.

The Knicker

Letter From Mrs. Joseph Graves Hamilton to Beatrice Gingham
My dear Beatrice:
It was very sweet of you to write just when I had just had a letter to answer it.

I am enclosing Alice's last letter from England, as I think you will enjoy it. Will you please return it to me, because, although I have read it to Leslie, I do not think she was able to enjoy it as she will later.

Poor Leslie, Beatrice, has been and is still very ill. We have not been able to induce her in anything. It is such a grief to her that she lost her baby.

Leslie, you know, is one of the unfortunate girls who as children are concerned. She always declared she was going to have a large family. In some way she seemed to feel that her mother had done her since the accident—that Jack did not care for children.

This is a mistaken idea. Jack loves children. As an child he had not told him of the baby that was coming. Consequently after the accident his loss was much harder for her to bear than it should have been. We have just about come to the conclusion that it will be necessary to adopt a baby. Anyway, I am going to try and find one tomorrow and bring it over to the Convalescent Home, where we have taken Leslie, and see how it affects her. We are doing this as a last resort, because if this does not fill her heart and she is left with a despair of doing anything for her.

My dear, it is rather selfish of me to burden you with Leslie's troubles just when you have to care for her as a part of her destiny, and probably she will say that it was all for the best after all.

You know when I was a very young woman I lost a boy baby. At the time I thought I would never get over it, but now it seems only an unpleasant dream—but a dream from which I awakened to a closer companionship with, and a deeper devotion to, my husband. I learned to appreciate our "oneness" at that time.

If I could only make Jack and Leslie talk over the loss of their child, I am sure everything would come out all right. But for some reason Leslie seems to feel the child belonged to her alone, and Jack is afraid to mention it to her because he does not want to grieve her any more than she is grieving now.

Both Mr. Hamilton and myself are very glad to know that young Albert will probably regain his sight. Mr. Hamilton is going to ask Sally to bring her husband over to our city, because you know we have one of the greatest eye specialists in the country here, and the sooner Sam regains his sight, the sooner Mr. Hamilton can put him to work.

I am expecting to see Karl Whitney today before he sails for England. We have not told Alice yet that Leslie has been ill, as you will see from her letter. I am sending my answer by Karl to tell her the sad news. It will be easier for her to hear it from Karl than from me. Please write me, my dear, and remember that if it is not so that I can come to your wedding, to which you so kindly invited me, I shall send you all best wishes that are in my heart. I heartily congratulate the young man you are going to marry, because of all of Leslie's friends, you, my dear Beatrice, have always seemed the nearest to me.

Because I have not been able to make any purchases, I am asking Mr. Hamilton to send you a check today. Will you please pay with it the thing you desire most, except it with the love of the mother of Leslie?

Sincerely yours,
ALICE CARTON HAMILTON.

Tomorrow—Mrs. Hamilton writes to her daughter, Alice—Why Leslie doesn't write.

JACK DAW'S ADVENTURES UNDER THE SEA

Story by Hal Cockshaw Drawings by Lee Wright

Just before Jack got the headpiece of the diver's suit fastened about the water came. "You are going to leave me," he exclaimed. "Yes," replied Jack, "I want to be sure that the men on the diver's boat don't pull this suit away." And then he shook hands.

And then the tubes holding the diver's suit lightened and Jack felt himself rising in the water. As he traveled upward he saw that the men were swimming on the surface of the sea. He was pulled up by the diver's boat, and the little adventurer was pulled up beside the diver's float.

All of the divers were standing on the edge of the boat and they looked down on Jack. "You have been asked," they said. "But Jack said he would not go down to the bottom of the sea. He would not believe it. Jack Daw's next adventure is on the Florida Key."

WHEELER, L.A. Aug. 5.—About the time they had a double victory within their grasp and were heading to make it a new one for the Spudders, Wheeler's Spudders cracked Sunday afternoon and the best they could do in the Sunday double bill was to win the first game 4 to 3 and at the start of the second half of the sixth in the second game were down by a score of 4 to 2. In the first game Wheeler's Spudders were assisted by an error scored by a runner, enough to win the game.

TIMES DAILY MARKETS

COTTON MARKET

New York Cotton. NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The continuation of dry hot weather in the southwest was evidently considered alarming by cotton traders at the opening of the market today. The belief was more or less generally expressed that the crop must be suffering in Texas and after opening firm at an advance of 40 to 57 points, active months soon showed net advances of 65 to 70 points by October selling at 23.25 and January at 22.95. Trading was active and general for some time past and buying on the unfavorable weather news was particularly encouraged by reports of a slightly more active demand for cotton goods toward the end of the week. Owing to the bank holiday the Liverpool market was closed, but houses with Liverpool connections were moderate sellers here at the opening.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Local Grains Market. Wheat: Receipts low. Basis No. 2, 77 cents. (late Receipts nominal. Basis No. 3, 49 cents. Chicago Grain Market. CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Wheat offerings limited and demand fairly active, wheat showed an upward tendency in price today during the early dealing. It was generally conceded that to a considerable extent, low prices had discouraged harvest factors. Some attention was given to statement that wheat supplies east of the Rockies are virtually on a domestic basis. The opening, which varied from unchanged to 1/2 higher, with September 90¢ to 91¢, and December 1.00 to 1.01, was followed by a moderate general advance. Subsequently gossip about re-selling by exporters, together with a big increase of the domestic visible supply, cooled the market somewhat. The close was unsettled at 1/2 net decline to net advance, September 91¢ to 1¢, and December 1.00 to 1¢.

STOCKS AND FINANCIAL

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Irregular opening of today's stock market with the main trend upward. Good buying was noted in the steel, equipment and other standard industrial, Baldwin and American locomotive each rising a point and 1/2, United States Steel 1/2, Chicago and Eastern Illinois dropped 2 points to a new low for the year. The general list strengthened as trading progressed with some heaviness noted in the chemicals, rubbers and some of the western rails, notably Omaha and Frisco preferred, which were off 1 and 1 1/2 respectively. American Zinc preferred, American Can, United States Steel and Studebaker each extended their gains to more than a point. Foreign exchange opened heavy, German marks breaking to another new low. Trading was on a diminishing scale in the afternoon, but the trend continued steadily upward. Sugar issues were in general good demand and rose 1/2 to 3/4 points, while Union Pacific, Tobacco Products "A" American Zinc preferred and DuPont were also listed 2 to 3 points.
