MARTIAL LAW HINTED AS RESULT OF FLOGGING AFFAIR HERE WOMAN KILLED, HUSBAND AND BABY HURT, AT TRAIL CROSSING MORE OPTIMISTIC VIEW TAKEN OF FRANCO-BRITISH AFFAIRS

Acting Governor Urges Inquiry After Telegram From Brother of Victim Says Officials Are Lax

RANGERS PROBING FLOGGING CASES IN THREE TEXAS CITIES

AUSTIN, Aug. 18. (AP)—Texas Rangers, known the nation over as guardians of law and order, tonight were dispersed over the state, investigating a series of "dnapings and floggings during the past few nights."

Reports of floggings have reached the state executive offices from Texarkana at the northeast corner of the state, to Amarillo in the panhandle, more than 500 miles away; at Wichita Falls, in the north central portion, and at Port Arthur, on the Gulf.

Acting Governor T. W. Davidson today ordered a detachment of rangers to Port Arthur, where they were kidnaped in front of the police station last night, flogged and turned loose. Mr. Davidson said he probably would order rangers to Wichita Falls, near the home of Davis, farmer, was seriously lashed with a wet rope by five unknown men late Wednesday night.

Ranger Captain Frank Hamer today reported from Amarillo the arrest of Sheriff James Whitaker of Potter county on charges of conspiracy to commit a felony and of having been an accomplice in an assault with a prohibited weapon.

The rangers were ordered to Amarillo in connection with the flogging of E. E. McDonald, Wednesday night.

Reports from Texarkana have reported the whipping of Miss Olive Tucker, 14 years old, and the father as a result of incidents at Macoupin.

Several tangible theories have presented themselves in the investigation. It is reported that a closed session was held Saturday afternoon behind locked doors in the city of Amarillo, the details of which are being closely questioned.

Among the things brought out at the inquiry Saturday was the fact that one man, as reported, was killed in the place where Davis was kidnaped by the five men.

While the examinations and investigation is being made and the various threads followed out by the investigators, Lonnie Davis lies in his cot in the Wichita General Hospital, where he was brought Friday night from Iowa Park, a most pathetic figure. Hundreds of people, prompted by sympathy, called at the hospital Saturday and it is reported that a most bitter feeling has arisen in that community against the perpetrators of the act.

BROTHER'S MESSAGE CHARGES INACTIVITY

By Universal Service. AUSTIN, Aug. 18.—Telegraphic orders were sent to Rangers in Wichita Falls tonight by Acting Governor T. W. Davidson to make immediate investigation into the alleged brutal flogging of Lonnie Davis, of Iowa Park. The request was stated in the following telegram to Governor Davidson from Z. W. Davis, brother of the victim:

"I have written you several times in the past few weeks to make investigation of kidnapping and brutal beating of my brother, Lonnie Davis, of Iowa Park, who is in hospital unconscious and is not expected to live. As is generally known our county officers are in a state of inactivity and they are not making effort to arrest the guilty mob."

It was intimated at the capital that the situation cannot be controlled by the Rangers.

Machine Stalls on Track as Freight Approaches; Infant Not Expected to Survive; Mother Is Instantly Killed

ELECTRA, Texas, Aug. 18.—Mrs. E. A. Beckman was instantly killed today at an o'clock today at Fwikee station, six miles south of Electra, when the Fred touring car in which she was riding with her husband and 11-month-old baby was struck by a south bound Port Worth and Denver Freight train.

Mr. Beckman sustained a broken left arm and possible internal injuries, which are not thought to be fatal. One of the baby's arms and one leg were fractured. It was frightfully lashed and pinned to the ground. Little hope is held out for its recovery.

Mr. Beckman was returning with his family from Electra to the Rotary Oil Company's lease, where he is employed when the accident occurred. He left the paved highway to cross the railroad at Fwikee station, where the approaching train was some distance away.

A passing automobile rushed the surviving victims to the Electra hospital where they were given immediate attention by Dr. F. D. McCreary. Mrs. Beckman was pronounced dead at once.

Mr. Beckman is 32 years of age. His wife was 20.

OFFER CAR FOR SALE IN GUISE OF BEING BROKE

OFFICERS THINK THEY HAVE UNCOVERED AUTO THEFT RING.

WOMAN IS ARRESTED AT ELECTRA HOTEL

Constable Not in Pursuit of Two Men Late Saturday Night.

A ring of statewide automobile thieves was broken Saturday through the efforts of Constable Frank Mayfield and other officers.

One woman is under arrest and the officers were out on the trail of two men late Saturday night. They were confident that before morning they would have the two men in custody.

A lead to the situation was gained early Saturday morning when a man out of breath appeared at the constable's office, stating that he believed he had a "hot" car in custody.

The man told the officers that while he was on his way to the city he passed through Scotland Park, where he was accosted by a man and his wife. He said they appeared to be tourists and led him to believe that they were the same.

The man took Constable Morgan and a deputy back to the park, but the couple had disappeared. The man and his wife were seen with bags and suit cases and several other pieces of baggage but not a trace of the people or the baggage.

A survey was made of every hotel and rooming house in the city Saturday afternoon and late in the day it was learned that a service car driver had taken a woman and a man to Electra with baggage which corresponded with the description given the officers by the man to whom the couple sought to sell the car.

At Electra at 10 o'clock Saturday night the woman was found and placed under arrest, but no suspicion of the man was formed. Sufficient information was given the officers for them to ascertain that the woman was only a link in the chain of thieves who have been operating throughout this section of the state, stealing automobiles, motor cars, touring cars, trucks and disposing of their booty in the manner in which they sought to sell the car Saturday morning.

Poincare's Reply Believed To Insist on Previous Reparation Figure and to Reject Proposals

PARIS, Aug. 18. (AP)—A certain amount of optimism is felt in official circles and shared in part by the press that the present negotiations with the British will end in a satisfactory compromise, although there is apparently nothing tangible on which to base such feeling.

One official who has been closely connected with the reparations question said he was hopeful because he felt the justice of the French cause was so patent that the British must finally see the situation in its true light.

This opinion is largely shared but no one can be found to venture an opinion as to the source of the compromise, or as to the terms of an agreement.

It is learned on good authority that Premier Briand's reply to Lord Curzon's proposals for the reparations is a rejection of the proposals for a re-estimate of Germany's capacity for payment and a refusal to discuss the terms of the reparations.

This being so, the political situation here is difficult to find a basis for the optimistic dispatches received from London unless the British government is disposed to make concessions that have not been made to the knowledge of the French.

Trains leaving Wichita Falls Saturday night carried with them many of the editors and members of the Northwest Texas Press Association, who spent the past two days in this city attending the annual convention of the association. In taking their departure from the city the newspaper men were loud in their praise of the courtesy and hospitality extended them during their stay here.

There has been one of the most successful in the history of the organization. The convention opened Friday morning in the hall of the Kemp Hotel with addresses of welcome by representatives of the city and its publications. The Friday morning session was devoted to the president's annual address by O. C. Harrison of Seymour, short talks on the problems of the newspaper industry by the Hon. H. H. Hamlin Herald, and R. H. Nichols of the Vernon Record and the appointment of the various committees.

CARPENTER TELLS OF INFLUENCE OF NEW WOMAN IN FINLAND

Has Talk With Annie Farnhjelm Who Is a Member of Parliament And Helps Run the Government

The Three Thousand Marthas and the Latta Svard Girls— Some Queer Marriage Customs—Advice to New Hus- bands—How to Make Your Wife Call You Bifidie—Home Life Among the Poor.

By FRANK G. CARPENTER
(Copyright, 1923, Carpenter's World Travels)

HELSINGFORS, FINLAND.—One of the leaders of the new woman movement in Finland was born in Alaska. Her father was governor of Sitka when that territory belonged to Russia. This was in the latter part of the sixties. When the Czar proposed to sell Alaska to the United States for something like two cents an acre, the governor objected on the ground that it was a bad bargain. The governor then lived in the great log house which formed the official headquarters. It is still standing, and I saw it when I visited Sitka a few years ago.

After Alaska was transferred to the United States, the little girl who is now leading the women of this country, was taken with her parents to Finland where the family had large estates. As time went on she became one of the live, active factors in the demand for independence for women. She holds that position today, ranking high among the representatives of the suffrage movement of the world over.

A Talk With Annie Farnhjelm
The woman I refer to is Miss Annie Farnhjelm, one of the leading congresswomen of the Finnish republic, and one of the most up-to-date amongst the new women who are doing in Finland. She is now in the house of representatives of the Finnish republic. She came from her seat in the house of representatives out into the restaurant devoted to the members to see me and we chatted together for half an hour. Miss Farnhjelm speaks English, and she expressed her views as to women's rights without reservation. She says: "To get woman suffrage is little but to make something out of it is much harder and far more important." She tells me the women make stump speeches and electioneering just as the men, and that they have an equal say with the men in the making of all legislation. There are nineteen female members in the Congress of Finland. They are not joined together in one women's party, but are scattered through the six political parties which form the national congress. She does not believe in a woman's party pure and simple, but favors the custom they have here of the women standing on the same platform as the men and working side by side with them for the cause. These platforms represent just now the women are especially interested in a new marriage law which would equalize the property rights of the wives with their husbands. According to the present law, the husband gains the control of his wife's estate before marriage and he has a superior parental right over the children.

I asked her if the republic of Finland would last. She replied: "There is no doubt of it. Our independence has come to stay, and its foundation is as firm as the granite upon which the country is built. I expect this government to grow in its strength and to give to all men and all women, and as it is we are doing quite well. The United States has been a republic for one hundred years and we are doing as well as it has had only one woman at a time among its members of congress. Finland has been a republic for less than ten years, and it has already had three women legislators already number thirteen."

Prohibition Among the Finns
The prohibition here is not to prohibition, the laws concerning which are much the same as those of the United States. No figures except two are given here, and it is almost the result is that they have about as much illicit distilling as some firms in America. Many houses have their private stills. Alcohol preparations under different names are sold in the stores, and one can buy the ingredients of whiskey, drinking cocktails and under the guise of soda water and when I asked the headwaiter what drinks he thought of, he mentioned Scotch whiskey, sherry, brandy and champagne, with bread and cheese or chocolate to close. Practically every one I meet tells me that prohibition has been a failure, and it seems to be the consensus of opinion that the law will be modified or repealed very soon. Miss Farnhjelm does not believe in it, she says: "It is a prohibition in name only, and it does not prohibit. It is a paper law and you cannot reform the world upon paper. It is not practical and it is very demoralizing."

The Marthas of Finland
It was through Miss Farnhjelm that I became acquainted with some of the leading "Marthas" of Finland and learned of the wonderful work they are doing. The "Marthas" take their name after Martha, the elder sister of Lazarus, who lived at Bethany with her affectionate but rather lazy sister, Mary, and entertained our Lord at the time he raised her brother from the dead. Martha was a good housekeeper but Mary seems to have been something of a shirk. Martha believed it was her duty to serve, and "service" is the motto of the "Marthas" of Finland. They are doing all they can for their country and people. The Martha movement was started about twenty-five years ago when the czar taxed a manifesto depriving Finland of many of its rights. The women then organized themselves into bands, and did all they could to foment and maintain a national spirit. As time went on they added to this patriotic work a welfare and educational system which is now more important than the stimulation of patriotism.

These "Marthas" are trying to teach the women how to live better. They have schools for instructing them in household economics and gardening. They teach sewing, cooking, and canning, and the dying with vegetable colors. There are altogether 20,000 members, and the local branches number more than 300. In 1922 they established 15,000 new gardens and 400 new courses in cooking. They had many schools, the teachers traveling from village to village, going over the frozen lakes on skates and now and then on skis over the snow. They have popular meetings and give prizes to mothers for healthy and well bred children.

They have exhibitions of home industries and in some respects take the place of the demonstration agents of our Southern states. The "Marthas" have weekly social meetings and to some extent are a success. They organized last year they held more than 1,000 meetings, and had 1,000 conferences on market days to which the delegates from the local societies came to discuss the advancement of women.

Another interesting women's organization is a sort of a cross between the Battalion of Death of the Russians, our Red Cross workers and nurses, the Y. M. C. A. women and the Salvation Army. The Latta Svard women do not fight, but they go along with the army and cook and sew for the soldiers. They have to do with the sanitary conditions of the camp and the raising of money for the "Red Cross".

The Latta Svard is a military organization. Its members have the regular uniforms and are organized to do things that will help the soldiers. They are divided into sanitation, another to cooking a ration and a third to outfitting the men and taking care of their clothing and a fourth to the raising of funds for the army. They hold an annual camp near Helsingfors which is attended by women from all parts of the republic. At last meeting there were some girls from Lapland who walked several hundred miles to the nearest railroad station and paid their own fare to get here.

The Finns have other women's clubs of various kinds, and the people are more like us than any of the others of Europe. They are all intelligent, educationally, and they are all really very young people's societies and dancing clubs, and home research organizations devoted to the welfare of the community. The building for the young people's societies are made by the workmen and citizens more than they can charge for their labor, and there is considerable town spirit as well as national spirit. Both sexes engage in sports of all kinds and has been so from time immemorial.

How They Marry in Finland
I have been interested in the local customs of marriage. The legal age for the groom is eighteen and that for the bride fifteen, but if a man takes so young a girl he must demonstrate that he needs a wife to help carry on his farm. The banns are always published and the wedding takes place at the bride's house. The groom expects to give presents to his father-in-law and mother-in-law and he gives each bridesmaid a pair of stockings as soon as he can afford. When the family is well-to-do, the wedding feast lasts for two days, some of the guests bringing food with them. If the families are poor they spend as much and sometimes more than they can afford. If the young couple takes up new land, it often first cuts down enough trees to build a bath house, and they may live in the bath house for the first year while building their dwelling house.

At weddings are before a minister civil marriages being unknown until the new republic was formed. Sometimes a couple will advertise in the papers that they are married, and such an announcement is considered as binding. Theoretically no man can marry until he can read and write, and no one is supposed to be admitted to church communion unless he can read the same text. Some marriages are made by go-betweens, to whom both the bride and groom give a fee.

According to the general opinion of the wife, the Kalevala, or national poem, which as I have said, has the same metre as Longfellow's "Hiawatha" and gave that poet the rhythm for his Indian verse, deals with the marriage of the hero to the beautiful daughter of the Rainbow, chronicling many of the customs. In this the groom is given instructions as to how he should correct his wife after marriage. The advice corresponds to that of the soldier who said: "Treat 'em rough, they like it." It suggests that no corporal punishment should be used until after the third year, and for the first three years the treatment should be as follows:

For a whole year thus instruct her, Thus with word of mouth advise her, Thus with thine eyes the next year teach her, And the third year teach by stamping.

The poem goes on to say if this does not bring the wife to time, the husband should spend the fourth year whipping her lightly with reeds and if that does not suffice, he should cut a birch rod in the thick and thus bring her to time. The poem warns him to be careful in what places to whip her, and just where to lay on the blows. I quote: "Do not beat her in the meadow, Do not whip her in the cornfield, Lest the noise should reach the village."

(Copyright, 1923, Carpenter's World Travels)
The Latta Svard girls correspond to our Y. M. C. A. or Salvation Army women. They are organized in four sections, one doing the cooking at army camps, another mending and sewing for the soldiers, the third supervising camp sanitation, and a fourth raising funds for the army.

And to other homes the quarrel, Neighbors' ways should hear the crying. And the uproar in the forest, Always strike her on the shoulders, On her soft cheeks do not strike her.

relates how he gave her the best of food including butter, home brewed ale, and wheat from foreign countries, but that nothing would improve her temper.

"For one day the room she entered, And she clasped my hair and to me, And her face was quite distorted, And her eyes were wildly rolling, Always scolding in her fury, To her heart's content would scold, Heaping foul abuse upon me, Hoarding at me as a slaugard, Then I took another method, Sought another way to tame her, So I peeped myself a birch-rod, Then she came and called me lardie, And when I whinger I scoldered, has then she stooped and called me dar ling.

When I lifted rods of willow, On my neck she fell embracing, I am surprised at the low standard of living among the poorer classes here. Miss Farnhjelm tells me that before the war 50 per cent of the citizens of Helsingfors lived in apartments of one room and a kitchen. Many families of seven or eight had no more accommodations and even then they might take a bachelor of six to board. Today the standard of comfort for the working man seems to be two rooms and a kitchen and the government has homes for poor people which are restricted to houses of that nature. If they have more than two rooms and a kitchen, they are living luxuriously and do not deserve the assistance of the government. There are many one room houses scattered over the farming districts, although there is usually a bath house adjoining.

In his next letter Mr. Carpenter tells about Finland's great light on skills and how the Finns handled American cotton. This is a story from one of the guests I think he brought his wife to order. He

BOY SCOUT TROOPS MARK TIME DURING SUMMER MONTHS

Scouting in Wichita Falls during the summer months is dull. Work of the Boy Scouts of America in Wichita Falls this summer is especially quiet because of the lack of a scout executive and the absence of many members from the city.

At the close of the public school term in May there were about thirteen active troops of Boy Scouts. With approximately 400 boys enrolled almost every church in the city housed a troop of boys, interested and enthusiastic in Boy Scout work.

Local Boy Scout work was at its apex in the early part of the summer. Almost every church in the city housed a troop of boys, interested and enthusiastic in Boy Scout work.

At present, only two troops in the city have remained active during the summer months. Troop 1, of the First Methodist Church South under J. T. Hamilton, scoutmaster, and Troop 2, Floral Heights Baptist Church, with J. J. McClain, scoutmaster.

Let's Treat Our Presidents Like Human Beings

By WILL ROGERS

As I am writing this away out here in California days before you read it, it's Sunday and everybody's thoughts and sympathies are with a train rushing clear across our Country, passing sorrowfully through Little Towns with Just Folks standing bareheaded paying their respects to Just Folks going back to Marion to stay with Just Folks.

He goes to his resting place a Martyr, a martyr to the Bone-headedness of Reception Committees. You wouldn't ask your hired hand to do in one week the amount of real physical work that each Committee asked him to do on one day.

Just suppose for instance you had a Guest coming to visit you. Would you start in having him entertain the Neighbors the minute he got in the House, and then keep every minute of his time occupied till train time, and then turn him over to the next bunch? Why, no, you wouldn't think of such a thing.

So when the next Congress meets they should pass a law to shoot all Reception Committees, or teach them consideration for other People.

If Jack Dempsey had left Washington and undertaken this same strain, when he got back Uncle Joe Cannon could have licked him.

Any of you who have slept, or tried to, on a Train at Night and got into a Town early in the morning, you know you don't feel like speaking or Parading. You want to go to a Hotel and go to bed.

Now, every man on that Committee was nearly tired out at night and took a vacation the next day, but the President must go right on the same thing the next day, only worse, for every Town was trying to outdo the other.

One town will have a Flag composed of 5 thousand children, assembled and standing in the Hot sun for hours, not only spoiling their whole day but subjecting them to every known contagious disease.

Then, of course, he is always asked to speak out in the open. They have 60 acre fields and put seats around them and call 'em Stadiums, and expect a man to talk in them.

I have always claimed that Parades should be classed as a Nuisance and participants should be subject to a term in prison. They stop more work, inconvenience more People, stop more traffic, cause more accidents, entail more expense, and commit and cause—I don't remember the other hundred misdemeanors.

Now, President Harding was quite an Admirer of the Movies so I imagine he liked sausage, too. But Chicago didn't rush him off to the Packing Houses the minute he got there, to see it made.

According to his Itinerary here, he was allowed 15 minutes to call on an Aunt whom he hadn't seen in years that lived here. That was to be his only relaxation while here.

Now, as just an example of the trip, he loved Golf, (and as the later sad events have proven) it was good for him; it was the very Recreation needed.

I was on the Reception Committee of the Movie Industry that was to have met the President here in Los Angeles. Well, just as an example of what I said about the others, they decided that it might be showing partiality if they took him to any one Studio, so they decided to take him to all of them.

Well, my plan wasn't adopted; it was too late. But if it had been even partly tried in all the Towns on this trip we would have all been happy and had him with us today.

You may have read in the Papers last year that the Diplomatic Relations were strained between President Harding and some of my Jokes.

If Jack Dempsey had undertaken the same strain, Uncle Joe Cannon could have licked him when he got back.

on the Administration. Now, I want to say that nothing was farther from the truth. That was simply newspaper stuff. It was reported that he couldn't stand jokes about the Administration.

And I told him then: "Now Mr. Harding, I don't want you to think I am hard on you—all. You know I told some pretty hard ones on the Democrats when they were in; in fact I think I told funnier ones on the Democrats, as they were doing funnier things."

No, I don't think I ever hurt any man's feelings by my little gags. I know I never willfully did it. When I have to do that to make a living I will quit.

I never go to Detroit that I don't spend an entire day out with Henry Ford and I don't suppose there is a man living (barring the owners) that have told any more jokes on him than I have.

I liked President Harding. You see I had met him, and I don't believe any man could meet him and talk to him and not like him. Why, I said after first meeting him, "I thought I would be scared when they took me in but he made me feel just like talking to some good old prosperous Raachman out home."

I only hope our future Presidents can be gifted with his Sense of Humor and Justice.

He was a mighty good friend to us Theatrical People; he was a good friend to ALL kinds of People. For he had the right dope after all. Everybody is JUST FOLKS.

HE WAS A REAL HONEST TO-GOD-MAN. (Copyright, 1923, by The McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

WOOD BLOCKS MAY BE REPLACED ON BUSINESS STREETS

Following several months discussion on the replacing of the wooden block pavement on the downtown streets, the city street officials announced Friday that they were in the market for another carload of blocks with which to repair the block pavement on Indiana.

ment of the wooden blocks with some more satisfactory pavement. There is at present an appropriation of $10,000 for use on the downtown streets and the city council is willing and anxious to make this expenditure.

"Buds of Promise" Have Grown To Womanhood In Unique Class Born In "Little White Church"

When the rays of sunlight slant softly through the stained glass window of the "B. O. P." class room of the First M. E. church, South, and color a delicate cream the white rosebud that has been for years the symbol of the little group of young women who gather there on Sabbath mornings, it renders a little daily tribute to the memory of the man who, years ago when the young women were little girls, welded the golden circle which has held them close together in study and service for the Kingdom of God.

The tribute is not alone for P. C. Miracle, though; it is also for the short succession of strong, purposeful leaders who have given their bit of time and work since he passed away to the upbuilding of the class which was started in the "little white church" where the Southern Methodist folks worshipped years ago. For the little girls who formed the first band of "Buds of Promise" have grown to womanhood retaining the spirit of the vision of their first leader, bequeathed to those several others who have succeeded him in the service.

Mrs. Hardy, the present teacher of the First church class, and Mrs. Sam Black, teacher of the Floral Heights class, are splendid examples of those who "hold the torch on high" in Sabbath school work, and both have inherited the traditions of an unusual leader, and an unusual class.

Charter Members.

Of course the "Buds of Promise" classes are not confined now to those who made up the little circle of the class in the little white church, originally founded and taught a short time before its naming by Professor Keeple. There are many others who have come and gone and are still coming for the doors of the circle are wide open. But of those who formed the first group, the classes at the First and Floral Heights churches still boast: Cora Lee Waggoner (Mrs. Perry Richardson), Mabel Williams (Mrs. H. A. Wright), Beryl Murph (Mrs. Glenn Berry), and Annette Coffield. The next teacher was Ambrose Yeager, and one member joined who has continued in the class—Marian Crabtree (Mrs. O. C. Camp).

Later the very much beloved leader, Mr. P. C. Miracle, took over the class and organized it again as "Buds of Promise"—young girls budding into womanhood in Christ. It was under Mr. Miracle's influence that a number of the girls joined the church.

When the present edifice of the Southern Methodists was built, the class was given a pretty little room with a stained glass window and its symbol—a rosebud—above the initials "B. O. P." and the motto Mr. Miracle gave—"Guard Well Thy Thoughts." While Mr. Miracle was teacher the class grew rapidly, and the teacher held the little band together socially, in Bible study, and in its social service work. He loved to entertain "his girls," and gave many parties and picnics for them from his home. When ill health forced him to give up the class it was with genuine grief that its members bade him good-bye.

The leadership passed then to Mrs. Marcus P. Kelly, now of Bontonville, Ark., and one of the pretty customs which Mrs. Kelly instituted was the "Christmas box," which the girls still have annually. During this time Mrs. Dan Hardy was made an assistant teacher, and after Mrs. Kelly resigned she took up the reins alone. The class continued its rapid growth, and when Mrs. Hardy had to resign on account of sickness in her family, Mrs. Charles E. Hartsook took charge. The class doubled in number with Mrs. Hartsook, many young business women adding themselves to its roll, and finally, when a division seemed necessary, Mrs.

Five, Mrs. H. A. Wright (Mabel Williams); six, Mrs. P. S. Richardson (Cora Lee Waggoner); seven, Mrs. Dan W. Murphy, of San Antonio (Tula Stokes); eight, Annette Coffield; nine, Mrs. O. C. Camp (Marian Crabtree); ten, Mrs. Glenn Berry, (Beryl Murph); all charter members, the first of the little "Buds of Promise" still left of the original class.

Inset to the left, without number, is Miss Vera Hale, secretary-treasurer of the Floral Heights class. Mrs. Wright is secretary-treasurer of the First church class.

Mrs. Stout, of Breckenridge, formerly Miss Hazel Erika of this city, is another charter member who, on her frequent visits home here enjoys meeting with her old class.

Both of the classes hold their regular weekly meetings on Sunday during the Sunday school hour, with monthly social and business meetings on week days, their annual parties, the Christmas parties and the semi-occasional parties "for husbands."

The Floral Heights class has been studying a mission course on India in monthly meetings, and the First church class has been holding weekly Bible classes on Thursdays with Mrs. Wayne Somerville teaching. The Floral Heights class has a big home department, and a big cradle roll, with thirty or forty babies enrolled, all in the families of its members. There are fewer babies in the smaller group at the First church.

Both classes do social service work locally and elsewhere, and share their part of church work and debts. The First church recently sent a gift of $25 to an unfortunate little mother in a San Antonio mission. Mrs. Hardy bearing the gift while on a visit in the south Texas city. The Floral Heights class has completed arrangements to pay for the schooling next year of the daughter of a native Cuban minister.

The memberships of both classes follow with the credit roll of the Floral Heights church, of which the members are very proud:

First church class: Madamsen, A. L. Proctor, Lutz, Frank Dorsey, Lucia Childs, H. O. Bowman, Verne Baker, Stanley Marlowe, A. E. Miller, J. W. Akin, C. S. Taylor, Frank Subanks, H. A. ### Peel Peaches With Concentrated Lye Is Advice Given; Found To Be Time Saver and Very Economical

Canning time for peaches is now on in full swing in this county and vicinity and with the crop a good one, a large amount of fruit will be stored away for winter use.

Mrs. G. L. Johnson, home demonstration agent, tells of a new way to peel the peaches. Concentrated lye is used in taking the peeling off the fruit. Not only is this found to be a time saver but it has been proven to be a most economical measure.

Granite or iron kettles are used for the lye solution. Two kettles of boiling hot water are prepared, each kettle containing approximately two gallons of water. A third kettle is filled with cold water.

Two tablespoons of lye is added to each gallon of boiling water in the first kettle. The second kettle of hot water and the kettle of cold water is left pure.

A cheese cloth sack or a wire basket is used to place the peaches in and the fruit is rolled through the lye solution until the skin begins to slip well. Then the fruit is rolled through the second kettle of hot water four or five times and then into the cold water and deposited in a pan to take out the spots and the seeds.

Two persons can peel a bushel of peaches in this manner in less than an hour.

Five people in Wichita Falls tried this new method recently and found that it was a most economical measure. Usually 14 quarts are secured from a bushel of peaches. These two people who used the lye method of peeling the peaches secured 23 quarts out of the bushel.

It is pointed out that the large canning houses in the west use this method in peeling peaches which are canned there should be no hesitancy in using the lye.

TOTAL OF $21,920 BUILDING PERMITS ISSUED LAST WEEK

Although still running below the weekly average for the year building during the week ending showed a slight improvement in amount and the number of permits over the last few weeks.

Twenty-one permits, involving an expenditure of $21,920, were granted from the office of the city clerk during the past week. Seven of the numbers were for the erection of new buildings for domestic purposes; Mytinger and Walker continued their extensive building program with the erection of six new houses in Southland addition.

Fourteen of the permits granted called for additions and improvements to residential property. Permits for buildings and improvements were issued to the following: Wingham and Allen, Virginia, and Fort Worth, sitting station, $290.

Your Blood—the secret of Vitality!

YOU, too, may be more attractive. It is the blood that circulates thru your body and comes to the skin that makes the "glow." It is the rich blood that clears away pimples, skin eruptions and makes the skin youthful and clear. It is rich blood that feeds the flesh and rounds out the body naturally.

Then why not use this simple, reasonable way to have more strength and more vitality and attractiveness that follows?

S. S. S. is one of the greatest blood-cell builders, body-builders and blood-cleansers of all time. Its medicinal ingredients are purely vegetable.

S. S. S. because of its blood-building powers, is a remarkable builder of firm flesh. It fills out hollow cheeks and beautifies the complexion as thousands of men and women can testify.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in your town. The larger size is more economical.

"DOWN EIGHTH STREET"—By Jane Tramp

"I stopped myself, now didn't I? I stopped before you got the brake on. I stopped."

"Yes, you stopped. But I couldn't read your mind. You might not have. And the Lord took care of you the last time, so I thought it was my time. Turn your motor off if you don't want to pay seven dollars and a half to have your battery recharged. It'll have about two hours to run down in."

"What did you put the brake on for?" demanded one of the office villains who drives a battered Ford and had witnessed the scene which brought on the brake episode. "Let her have a little accident, and she'll be a better driver. She's got too much self-confidence."

Well, well; but it certainly is hard to straighten out these little homely philosophies. "The bird with the broken pinion," chants one singer, "never flies so high again."

Of course, it may be just as well for the bird to keep out of the rarified atmosphere. I never talked to a bird about it; that is, I never talked to one before and after a pinion fracture. It takes Bertan Brayer to talk to the birds, and it may be that even he couldn't do it within the Volstead boundaries.

But human beings need to fly high. Even those who refuse to cast so much as an occasional glance toward terra firma and things mundane are getting things done very day that those of us who keep one foot on earth will never achieve nor vision.

We need to fly high, and we need all the self-confidence.

If human beings, with the natural limitations ninety-nine per cent of us labor under, were not possessed of an amazing over-confidence in our gifts and abilities the affairs of mankind would progress about as

The Knowledge

Notwithstanding this might possibly be another boy in our family, he has given to this one, this little, nameless waif—this child whose parents he probably will never know—his own name.

I would not have dared suggest it, although I wanted him to be called Junior, but Jack said, "Leslie, wouldn't you like to have him called after me?" He is such a sturdy little chap that I'm sure you and I will both be proud of him. Perhaps even a better man than I was his father.

"But Jack," I whispered, "some time in the future you may really have a boy of your own. Then, but honestly, I know no difference. You see, little Marquise, there were weeks of which I have no memory and then this baby was laid in my arms."

To me it was the baby I had longed for. To me it was the baby I knew was coming. It was nothing different to me than one of my very own.

You missed the great primal thing, little Marquise. You missed the greatest thing, the most wonderful, the most miraculous and the thing that can come to a woman. It is the one thing that makes her glad she is a woman and not a man.

Only to you, little Marquise, who must always dwell within the shadows of this locked drawer, may I say that I am proud of you. I am proud of you, mother, for you are a woman who is always connected with it, a subconscious feeling that I am bringing joy and happiness into the life of a little child who might otherwise have never known it. I feel that I have really given this child more than life.

Jack has been so lovely about it.

Tomorrow: Karl Whitney to Mrs. Hamilton—A report on Alice.

INSANITY CHARGE DISMISSED AFTER EVIDENCE HEARD

The insanity charge against the young man who was taken into custody at a revival service at the church early in the week was dismissed at noon Saturday, after evidence in the matter had been heard. The county attorney moved the court to dismiss the charge after three witnesses had been heard.

The young man, according to the evidence, had had some domestic trouble and had met his wife at the revival services and had pleaded with her to return to him. One of the witnesses, a man who filed the insanity charge, stated that the young man had a knife in his hand and that he, along with others, feared that he would do bodily injury to his wife or himself.

The witness stated that the young man was overpowered and the knife taken from him. Several men who had known the young man charged for several years, testified as to his mental condition, as did a physician who stated that in his opinion it would be a crime to send the defendant to the asylum.

WOMAN SURPRISES HER FRIENDS

"After a spell of Typhoid Fever seven years ago I began to suffer from indigestion and gas in my stomach and colic attacks. I gradually became so bad that my doctor advised an operation for gall stones. A friend advised me to try Mrs. Sherman-Williams' Compound. I did with splendid results. My friends were astonished at my rapid improvement. I have no more bloating, indigestion or anything I wish." It removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract, and allays the inflammation which causes the cramps, flatulence, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince you in all parts of the country. Taylor and druggists everywhere—adv.

ORIENTAL RUGS

Prices unequalled in this city have a unique appeal in connection with Oriental Rugs since buyers are accustomed to judge quality by the price.

Few people realize that the tremendous overhead of some dealers and the heavy traveling and express expenses of others are the cardinal factors in the excessive cost of Oriental Rugs.

Our overhead is reduced to a minimum by locating our display room in the center of the shopping district but away from the high rents.

Our sound business principle is more sales at small profit, and it is the number of sales that is making our business a success.

The entire selling plan of this new Oriental Rug store at 708 Tenth street is wrapped around the idea of giving to the people of Wichita Falls Oriental Rugs of supreme quality and rare liveliness at prices that have an irresistible appeal.

May we serve you?

Tax Rolls for 1923 One-Third Completed Now

The 1923 tax rolls, as being prepared by the county tax assessor and his deputies, are one-third complete, according to Irvan Deaton. Two large machines have been at work throughout the week and work is progressing rapidly.

Mr. Deaton is keeping a close check on the rolls as quickly as a page is completed and in his opinion there will be but little checking to do when the rolls are in their entirety.

The assessor has until October 1 to complete the rolls. On this day the collection of taxes will begin.

AMUSEMENT CALENDAR FOR WEEK AT LOCAL THEATERS

'Cherokee Strip' Opening Will Be Seen at Empress

High noon, September 16th, 1891! Bang! A pistol shot, they're off! The big race was on for home and fortune, from all points of the compass they came, the good and the bad, the strong and the weak, for days they waited for the hour to come, for hours they stood, fighting, struggling, vainly trying to hold their advance positions in the line. The dust, the unbearable heat, famishing for water, the suffering struggle for life is but mildly pictured in the new 101 Ranch feature, "The Cherokee Strip," which will bring back the yesterday to today at the Empress Theatre Monday and Tuesday.

Intervened with the actual historical events a romantic story of these common people who made the Cherokee Strip the "Garden of Eden of Oklahoma." A story of a cattle king—a romantic and a girl. Again at the close of the drama we see these gray haired fathers and mothers, the cattlemen and cowpunchers of yesterday with their tents pitched on cowboy hill at the 101 Ranch Buffalo Park to renew their old associations and friendships, to participate in the big round-up during which events are rapidly pictured in bits of science and skill by the world champion cowboys and cowgirls.

Of all pages of pioneer history of the west, greater hardships—greater sorrows—greater happiness, has never been recorded than the opening of the Cherokee Strip—Oklahoma's last big open range and cattlemen's paradise, today the great wheat belt and oil field of the state.

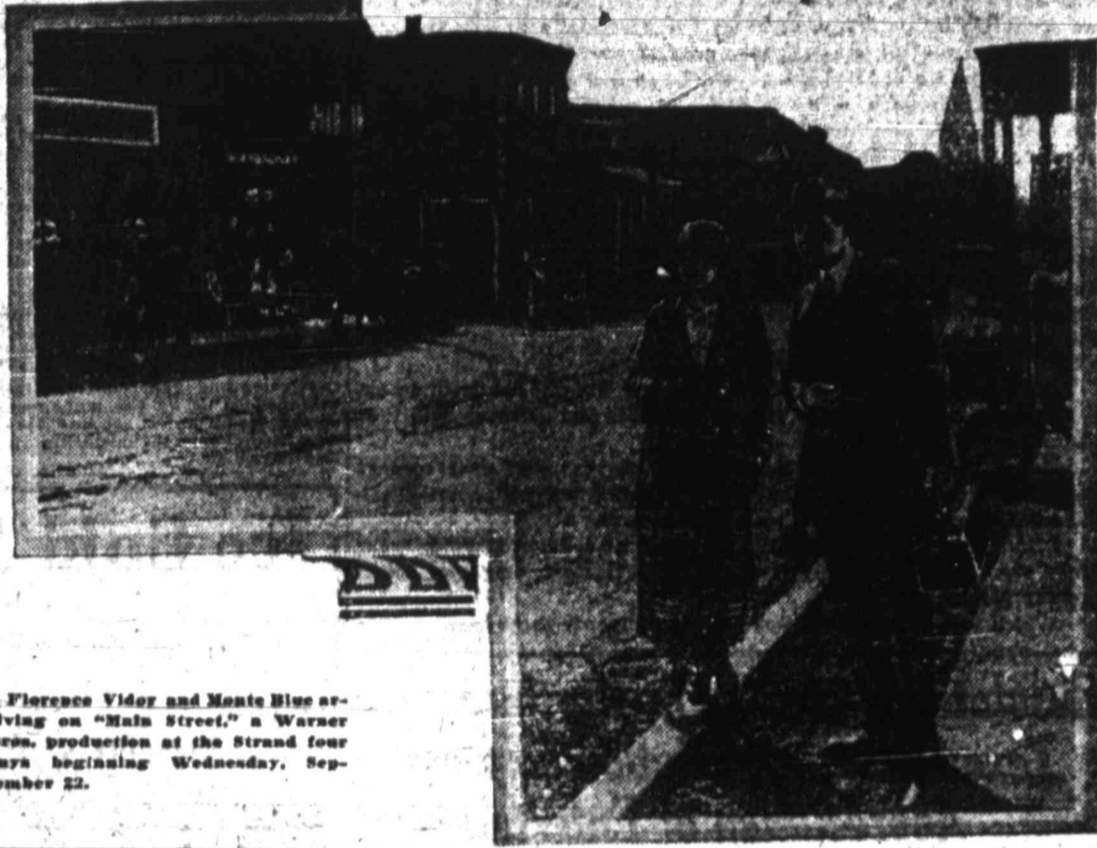

The young men of yesterday speak with pride of their adventures in this land of promise and r—side stories of that memorable time begins September 16th, 1891, when at high noon a pistol shot—and the race for home and fortune was on.

It's a romance of the plains that is told in this new 101 Ranch film, the Cherokee Strip—a story of love, romance and thrilling adventures of a cattle king—a renegade, and a girl. It is a drama that will bring back the frontier days of long ago, and show the west as it really is today when these old-time "cow punchers," thousands of Indians, cowboys and cowgirls gathered for Labor Day to celebrate and contest for prizes in dare-devil and death defying stunts of the range at the 101 Ranch Buffalo Park.

This new production is not a round-up, and not to be confused with any of the old 101 Ranch pictures. It is the most comprehensive drama ever made at the famous Miller Brothers 101 Ranch, realistic and as fascinating as any Western story ever filmed.

Luelle Mulhall, Helen (Mrs. Wood) Gibson, Herbert Bethow and Charles Hamilton—a competent cast of real western people, supported by the greatest aggregation of wild west performers positively ever shown in a western film.

STRAND ATTRACTION STARTING WEDNESDAY

Florence Vidox and Monte Blue arriving on "Main Street," a Warner Bros. production at the strand four days beginning Wednesday, September 22.

A snag little sermon, which is worked out dramatically and not by a preacher.

Milton Sills hasn't as many opportunities to display his finished talent as Miss Lake, but he demonstrates again that he is always dependable—no matter what he is called upon to express. Others in this vital picture who acquit themselves in admirable fashion, are Ralph Lewis, who plays a political power to the life; Gertrude Claire, whose sweet simplicity is manifested again in a grandmother role, and the charming youngster, Richard Headrick.

Harvey Gates wrote the story which is said to have been suggested to him through an acquaintance with the cabinet life of Chicago—cleaned in his old newspaper days. "Environment" is produced and directed by Irving Cummings and is offered as one of the best pictures ever issued by Principal Pictures Corporation.

EMPRESS ON MONDAY AND TUESDAY

The Race for Home—Opening of The Cherokee Strip

'Penrod and Sam' Coming Thursday Olympic Theater

All roads will lead to the Olympic theatre next Thursday, Friday and Saturday because it will have as its feature attracting another "big story" by Booth Tarkington. It is "Penrod and Sam," and it was directed by Fred C. Katznel by William Houshain. This picture has met with sensational success in all theatres where it has played to date, and it is said to have an appeal that is limited to no age or class.

"Penrod and Sam" abounds in irresistible humor, which is interspersed with pathos, which helps to make the film a really human portrayal of the life of a true American boy.

Penrod and his "gang" cavort from one mischievous adventure to another. First off the bat they stage a "milk war," then they initiate the "penrod" contest, which helps to get into their secret society; they follow this up with a "mammoth circus" and, in general, get on the nerves of their elders.

Benny Alexander's portrayal of the character of Penrod is without a doubt the best work that this young artist has ever done for the screen. He is a natural actor and can draw tears and evoke laughter with a facility that is uncanny. Joe Butterworth, who is Sam, is equally well cast. Other popular screen kiddies in the picture are Buddy Messinger, Joe McCray and Gene Jackson.

"Penrod and Sam" takes one skip-ping back over the years to childhood days, bringing to life fond memories of the period when one is too carefree and joyous.

A butterfly's eye has been adapted as a photographic lens by an Australian scientist.

Miss MacDonald In Auto Collision Filming Picture

It is easy to understand how an automobile was partly demolished in the making of a very thrilling scene for "Money, Money, Money" which is Katharine MacDonald's latest at the Empress Wednesday and Thursday, but we can not see how the star was fortunate enough to escape unhurt.

Bringing the story up to the point where it is necessary for Priscilla Hobbs to drive her high powered car through a terrific storm, Katharine MacDonald in the role of Priscilla throws her car into gear and loses no time in picking up speed. To photograph the scene it was necessary to precede the star's machine with a car carrying Director Tom Forman, the cameraman and his equipment. Miles of thrills and auto driving were registered by the cameraman and just at the point where the story calls for a furious burst of speed on the part of Priscilla's machine, the car with the director and camera skidded into an embankment and the star in her machine plunged into the director's car, wrecking both autos to such an extent that the taking of the scene was postponed until the next day. Miss MacDonald suffered no more than a slight shock which was regarded as miraculous considering the force of the impact. At the time of the collision her machine was making over fifty miles an hour.

In the machine with Miss MacDonald at the time was Charles Clark, who has an important role in the picture. He was thrown from his seat and slightly injured, but was on hand on the following day when the scene was remade.

Demonstration Better Pictures For September

The Sunday Times has been chosen as the best medium in this part of the country to carry the big announcement of Famous Players-Lasky Corporation of New York for the National Demonstration for better pictures.

This demonstration will enlist the support of more than 15,000 theaters in the United States—more than a thousand of which are in Texas and Oklahoma. During the week of September 1 they will exhibit only those pictures which represent the conscientious efforts of motion picture producers to improve the artistic, intellectual and moral level of the screen.

Adolph Zukor, president of Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, has been conducting this campaign for the last six years, but during the season of 1923-1924 he has made what has been termed "the greatest stride in the history of the industry."

June of this year he summoned the members of the Authors' League of America, as well as representative authors from Europe to the First International Congress on the Motion Picture Art, Henry W. Taft, brother of the chief justice and himself a noted essayist, was presiding officer. Among the delegates were Ellis Parker Butler, Fannie Hurst, Rex Beach, Basil King, George Barr Baker, Thomas Dixon, and almost every other author of note.

As a result, a $10,000 award was set aside for the best story written next year, and many other resolutions were passed to improve certain phases of the screen.

Mr. Zukor said that one of the greatest evils of the motion picture industry was the fact that producers were striving for quantity instead of quality. He took the leadership in announcing that the production of Paramount pictures would be decreased from more than a hundred a year to fifty-two, or one-a-week, so that each production might have the attention and care it deserves.

As an example of the improvement of pictures, Mr. Zukor points to "The Covered Wagon," the great epic of the "winning of the West" which has been termed "The Great American Picture at Last."

"Another 'Hollywood'—an amazing comedy of film life in which more than one hundred stars have important parts in the story. Other pictures promised the public for the new season are "Bluebird's Eighth Wife" with Gloria Swanson, "Rugles of Red Gap," Harry Leon Wilson's famous novel, "To The Last Man," a Zane Gray picture supervised by the author himself, "Woman of Straw" with the famous George Ad. wrote for Thomas Meighan, "The Cheat" with Pola Negri; and next spring will see Cecil B. DeMille's famous modern exposition of the decalogue, "The Ten Commandments," one of the most monumental and lavish works ever filmed.

Among the actors and actresses who have survived the test, and who are to be seen next season are: Gloria Swanson, Thomas Meighan, Pola Negri, William S. Hart, Lon Chaney, Lila Lee, Antonio Moreno, Lois Wilson, Richard Dix, Huntly Gray, Glenn Hunter, Mary Astor, Theodore Roberts, Robert Agnew, Jack Holt, Ricardo Cortez, Walter Hiers, George Pawcett and Ernest Torrence.

Among the directors will be Cecil

'Alice Lake and Milton Sills at Strand Monday'

"Alice Lake and Milton Sills in 'Environment' come to the Strand Monday and Tuesday.

In this excellent offering, Miss Lake is seen as a young woman of Chicago's underworld who finds love in the strangest manner possible to conceive. You can never think that love could come at midnight—when you are rebelling an honest farmer's house. But Chicago Hal found it and it brought her not only the big thrill of her jaded life—but exerted such a powerful influence that she found redemption. And with that redemption she found a clean environment.

"Environment" The only back-around she ever knew was the fast underworld life of Chicago which harbored crooks and men who make a specialty of picking up easy money—no matter how it is done. There are many thrilling moments in the development of the story, all of which holds one as by a spell. The finish is a smashing surprise. The romance is of more than absorbing interest. It is a picture of an equality. Indeed, the picture offers quantities by the British Air Service to Creighton, whence they are dispatched to their destination.

Julien Josephson wrote the scenario and Harry Beaumont directed. This director himself is a Main Street product and throughout the filming of the picture aimed to reproduce atmosphere of the story without losing any of the dramatic possibilities.

"Main Street" is the well-known story of life in a little western town after the advent of Carol Kennicott from college, bent on making the town adopt all her new-fangled ideas.

Thomas M. Comes Home

The following from the Motion picture "Homeward Bound" which shows Meighan Wednesday at the Olympic Theater in some lines.

"We find Thomas Meighan's 'Homeward Bound' a fine, absorbing, woman-appealing story which has flashed across the screen since its inception. There is in its action and characterization—executed by Ralph Meighan with emphasis and background.

Thomas Meighan Comes Monday in Homeward Bound

The following review clipped from the Motion Picture News on "Homeward Bound," Thomas Meighan's new Paramount picture which opens Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Olympic theatre gives the picture as good a review as that publication has given one in some time.

"We find Thomas Meighan's latest feature, "Homeward Bound," to contain a fine assortment of highlights woven around a subtle romance as has flashed across the screen in some time. There is rich adventure in this action-packed picture, and the characterizations—and it has been executed by Ralph Ince with well marked emphasis upon its realistic background.

"The idea is simple and compelling revolving around the determination of a colorful skipper to bring a couple of boats to safety as well as winning the heart of the ship-owner's daughter. It is a story which could have been spoiled by too many heroics, but because of a subtle vein of humor and characters who seemingly step out of life, the picture takes on a value which makes it doubly appealing. Ince places most of his action on the briny deep—with the immediate background of a trim-looking yacht and an old hulk of a schooner. And he doesn't waste any time planting his figures and romance.

"Meighan is the first mate to a drunken skipper who takes the wheel and pilots the boat to safety. The humorous note enters when he again assumes command of the yacht, forming the captain to leave. He will not see the girl's life jeopardized by the careless skipper. The following scenes take up two or three reels of the picture with Meighan showing that he can make love with the best of them. The incident on the bridge will surely appeal to the romancers everywhere. The picture doesn't sag for the conflict is established when he refuses to dock in a stormy sea. He pilots the yacht home and secretly marries the girl.

"The adventurous action carrying real thrills enters when he commands a decrepit schooner, though he is ignorant that his wife has embarked as a stowaway. There is a fascinating storm scene which shows the angry waves tossing the men about on deck—a storm which invites the suspense. When he rescues the pursuing yacht carrying the heroine's angry father and tows it to safety there is sufficient reason for his position as a respected son-in-law. A capital story, finely staged and acted—one saturated with adventure, romance and realism.

'Human Wreckage' Empress Feature Beginning Friday

While statesmen falter in their efforts to bring the dope menace to an irreducible minimum, and reform bodies appoint investigating committees to do lots and lots of talking, a moving picture appears on the screens of the country's leading theatres, which places squarely before the eyes of the world a truthful presentation of the facts. It is opening to the Empress Friday and Saturday.

"Human Wreckage," Mrs. Reid's smashing presentation of the dope evil, should do more than all the tons of printed matter, speeches, editorials, and committees that have been brought forth since the question first became a live issue. Because it is authentic in every detail, because it is masterfully handled by a writer, director and company, and because it is made by a woman whose chiefest motive in making it was an unselfish one, the picture should be the most convincing, preachment ever delivered on the subject, according to critics. "Human Wreckage" is not a story of Wallace Reid's life, but it is his spirit which actuated the production of this, the greatest moral play ever conceived. The story itself was constructed, not for the purpose of reproducing the life of any individual, but was rather planned to put over forcefully as many salient truths as could be logically included in a compact film, without injuring its value as entertainment.

The play is entertaining—not in a light, frothy sort of way, to be sure, but in its power to absorb, to move, to teach. It has been found, in observing popular reaction to the so-called film magazines, in which the realms of science and modern thought are pictorially explored, that people are most entertained when they see a picture from which they gather new information. ## Costly Settings Seen in Picture At Strand Soon

"Enemies of Women," Cosmopolitan Corporation's gigantic production of the Ithaca story, which will be seen at the Strand Theater for one week starting September 3, proved a happy hunting ground for the scenic artist, Joseph Urban. It is full to the brim with atmosphere. The artist's favorite setting of his may be "Enemies of Women," the boudoir of Alicia, Duchess De Delle, the role played by Alma Rubens. The room is a half-circular enclosure, raised two steps from the remainder of the room. In the center of the room, a half-circular dressing table set in a half-circular enclosure, raised two steps from the remainder of the room. ## The Two Biggest Sets

Perhaps the two biggest sets of the production are the ones representing the great hall in the Russian palace of Prince Lubinoff, played by Lionel Barrymore and his villa at Monte Carlo, with its fragrant big patio. The interior of the prince's palace at Moscow presents a picture that for imaginative power, magnitude, camera value and convincing realism, has perhaps never been equaled in a setting for picture or stage. ## Farmers South and East of Wichita Falls Using Shallow Well Water Successfully, Awaiting Irrigation

In spite of the fact that irrigation ditches have brought them no water for many months, farmers in the irrigated area south and east of Wichita Falls have been able to carry on this year, by making use of shallow well water. The results have been so satisfactory that substantial independence of the ditch system has been attained. The section immediately surrounding Wichita Falls overlies a "sheet" of water contained in gravel strata 10 to 25 feet below the surface of the ground, and this subterranean water supply has been a life-saver for the farmers along the ditch from Lake Wichita. Wichita Falls formed an intimate acquaintance with the shallow well water in 1918, when Lake Wichita virtually ceased to exist and emergency water measures became necessary. Profiting by the lessons of that experience, farmers in the present irrigated belt have turned the shallow water to good account this year. It had been in use in previous years, but not on such an extensive scale.

Since an Emergency Measure Since 1918, Lake Wichita has been inadequate to supply both the city and the farmers, and the water for the latter has been shut off several times during the four years; this year, with scanty rain, there was almost no water at all for irrigation purposes. Municipal needs being enough to absorb all the lake's content, and, judging from present emergency measures, then some. The irrigation farmers, dependent entirely upon the yields of their small tracts, would have been up against it good and hard had there not been available a second source of supply. The water thus obtained is more costly than ditch water, as there

'Life-Saver' Car Visits Wichita Falls Saturday

An advertising automobile with a unique "stump" body visited Wichita Falls Saturday. Its appearance on the streets attracted interest on the part of all who saw it. The car is a one-ton truck with an extension frame. On it has been fitted a large tubular body, over fifteen feet long by fifty inches high. The body, as to shape, color and lettering, is a faithful reproduction of Pop-O-Minto Life Saver.

H. A. Stagers, who is traveling with this car through Texas, states while in Wichita Falls that this advertising car is one of thirty traveling all over the United States and Canada. Several million samples of Life Saver are to be given away during the travels of these cars. It is anticipated that during 1923 every important city and town along the principal highways of the United States and Canada will have been visited by these cars.

Colored globes in chemists' windows were first displayed by Mount-citon or wheat, is probably not feasible, but it will permit well-watered garden patches and orchards in places where there is now no attempt, on account of the dry spells, to have them.

Total Production of Motor Vehicles For Year Ending August 1, 2,344,000 Industry Is In Flourishing Condition

By ROY C. HAYES
Universal Service Special Correspondent.

DETROIT, Aug. 18.—Pessimistic prophets who have excited themselves unduly in recent weeks over the immediate future of the automobile business, have lost much of their boasted prestige in the eyes of those in intimate touch with the industry in Detroit. Usually slow, the summer season now about over has been the most active and healthy in the annals of the trade.

Aside from unbounded prosperity enjoyed in recent months there is a note most interesting at this time, when reports emanating from the desk of a western financial expert point to a "pinch ahead." Just how sound the automobile business now is may be appreciated from the fact that the industry is still making still greater strides in the face of these ill-timed predictions that might have caused the very conditions they predicted.

Fortunately, these vicissitudes were not true and more fortunately still they did not bring about the damage that could have resulted from inaccurate and depressing reports, given widespread publicity.

July production of 211,000 cars and trucks was 25 per cent larger than that of the same month one year ago and brought production for the current year to August 1 up to 2,344,000. This figure represents the total output for the last seven months.

The great majority of Detroit factories are pushing production, and there is no question but that August production will far outstrip July in the total. This is due in great measure to the recent announcement of new models by eight or nine of the larger companies.

Retail sales in Detroit are running unusually high. Buick is doing especially well in the local market, as the sale of 750 cars in the first week after the announcement of the new line indicates.

Ford continues to jump production at record speed. The mammoth Ford plants are now turning out an average of 7,500 cars a day. Last week's production was 80,000 cars, a new production to new heights, another telling blow at pessimistic reports.

One Thousand a Day.

Dodge is running up its output and hopes to attain the one thousand a day mark this month, a mark hitherto unattained in the great plants in Hamtramck. New buildings, doubling the capacity of the plant, have been added. Chevrolet is operating at capacity and endeavoring to find a way to increase its output.

Cadillac enjoyed the best July in its history and is looking forward to a record August. Gray reports more than four thousand unfilled orders on hand. Oakland is anticipating even greater business, as is evidenced from the fact that the recently completed two-million dollar Fisher body plant in Pontiac will be devoted to the manufacture of Oakland bodies in the very near future.

Industry's True Condition.

The exceptional progress being made by Maxwell Chambers' 1922 report in a report issued by William Robert Wilson, president of the industry today. The report shows that the corporation earned a net profit after provision for taxes, insurance and interest charges of $12,521,121 for the first six months of the current year. This is an increase of the profit for any of the full years of 1914, 1919 or 1921, generally regarded as exceptionally profitable ones for the industry.

Sales of new Peoria cars by the eight branches of the Peoria motor car company during July aggregated nearly $2,000,000. Production at the Willys-Overland plants in Toledo has shown a 10 per cent increase each month since January, July reaching the record figure of 25,000 and bringing the total output for the seven months up to 138,000. This more than assures a total of 200,000 cars for the current year, as was scheduled by John N. Willys, president.

The foregoing facts and figures picture the true condition of the industry.

Boy, page, Sir Isaac Walton—James King of King-Weaver Automobile Company can't even wait to get home to tell about how he is catching the big mountain trout in Colorado. Messages from Mr. King, who with his family is spending the summer in Creede, Colo., state that "fishing is fine." The trip was made overland in a Lafayette. They will return home about September 1.

Arthur Huff of the Arthur Huff Motor Company who left early in the summer for a tour of the northwest is now in route to Alaska. He will return home in September.

Frank Quieser, of the Overland Motor Company, accompanied by Mrs. Quieser and family, left the latter part of the week in his Willys-Knight, for Kansas City, Kansas, where they will spend the remainder of the month.

"LION OF THE ARGONNE" AND GENERAL PERSHING RIDING IN PACKARD SINGLE SIX AT INDIANAPOLIS

When General Henri Gouraud, one of the outstanding heroes of the French army in the world war, attended the reunion of the Rainbow Division of the A. E. F. at Indianapolis he was greatly enthusiastic over the Packard single eight car which was placed at his disposal. The accompanying picture shows the famous general riding in the single eight with General John J. Pershing.

OVERLAND MAKES SPLENDID RECORD THROUGH COLORADO

Jim Clark, shop foreman of the Lloyd Weaver Automobile Company, left Saturday for a motor trip through Colorado. He was accompanied by Mrs. Clark. The trip is being made in an Essex touring car.

W. F. Langford, of the Langford Motor Supply Company returned Saturday from Dallas, bringing a Lincoln coupe and Lincoln phaeton. The company recently delivered a Lincoln sedan to H. A. Rappha of Electrica and a Lincoln coupe to Roy L. Tiner of this city.

L. R. Costley, general sales manager of the Chevrolet, with headquarters in Dallas, was a visitor at the local Chevrolet agency, the Lockhart Motor Sales Company, the past week.

Trouser were first issued to British infantry a century ago; before that soldiers wore breeches.

Covering more than 2,000 miles without a "nickle's worth of trouble" is the record attained by J. G. White of the White Sign Company of this city who, with his family is touring Colorado in his Overland, and who wrote the foregoing to local Overland dealers, Overland Motor Co. Mr. White is very enthusiastic over the performance of his car and his message is similar to others being received daily, according to the local managers.

"HIT THE DIRT," OAKLAND DEALER TELLS MOTORISTS

Many automobiles drive thousands of miles each season yet never see the real country, writes C. J. Negley, sales manager of the Oakland Motor Car Company, Pontiac, Mich., to local Oakland dealers, Arthur Huff Motor Company.

"With summer waning and autumn, one of the most beautiful motoring periods of the year approaching, pleasure drivers should 'hit the dirt,' he advises.

"Stay on the concrete if you are bound for a specified destination," he said, "but if you are taking the family out for a week-end or Sunday trip away from the city leave the improved, main-line arteries once in a while. Those dirt cross-roads you so scornfully shoot past are not so bump as you think; they are far safer to drive on and lead to enchanting places you never dreamed were so near home.

Visit the Farm Folk.

"Along the road are real farms, not a few acres of tiller ground just existing until the real estate speculator cuts them up in subdivisions. And those living on the farms still have a pleasant smile for the passerby.

"Likely there will be a stretch of forest, with big trees casting their shade over the road, reducing the temperature by several degrees. Further on is a brook with grassy slopes that invite the family to spend an hour in old-time picnic style.

"What if there are a few rats? Automobiles today are built to stand strains and, anyway, a rough place in the road taken at moderate speed does not hurt a car as much as the sudden brake application to speeding cars on concrete.

"Speed is no object, at 15 to 20 miles an hour you can view the scenery with real enjoyment, and if there is a particularly beautiful view, one can halt at the side of the road without the fear of having a score or more of impatient drivers honking to pass."

GLAMORGANSHIRE, England.—This mining district has more men than women, statistics show. For the whole of England and Wales the proportion is 1,095 females to 1,000 males. Here it is 964 females to 1,000 males.

A Good Name Plus a Good Product Made This Record Possible

August 4, 1921, the first Durant car was exhibited in New York City. Production began in the fall of 1921. Today there are more than 75,000 Durant Fours and Sixes in the hands of owners.

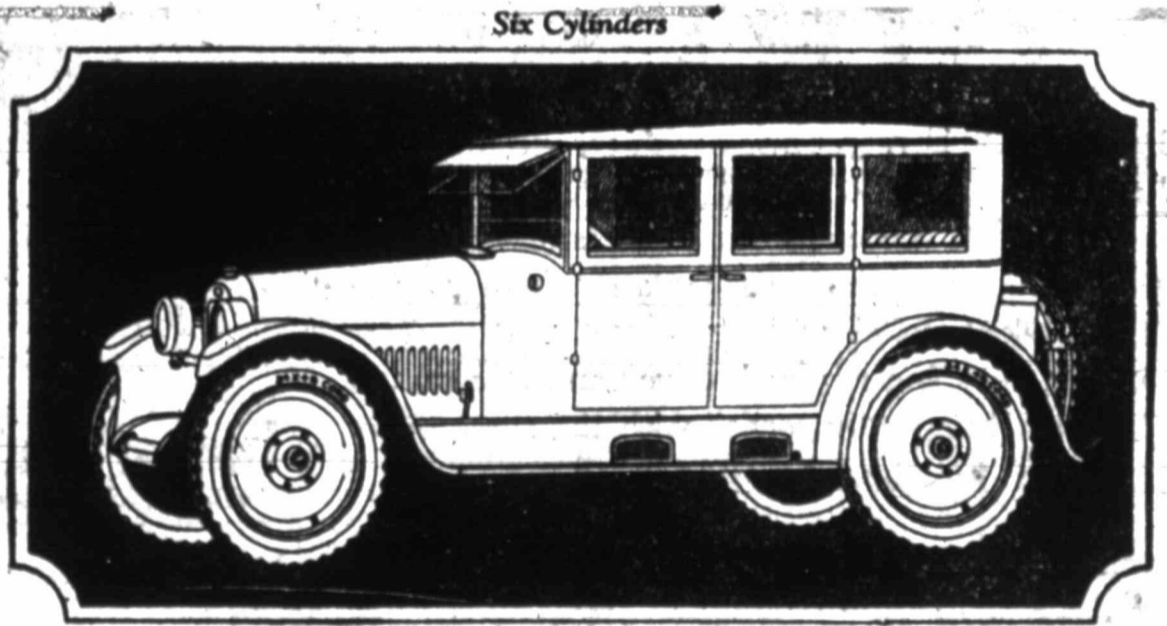

On July 24, 1922, the first Star Car was delivered to a purchaser. Today more than 100,000 have been built and sold.

A good name plus a good product made this record possible. Today there are nearly 4000 dealers engaged in the selling of Durant cars.

THE STUDEBAKER BIG-SIX SEVEN-PASSENGER TOURING CAR $1750

1924 Model Big-Six Again Leads in Intrinsic Value

Many motorists who have always insisted on the best in everything they buy, have discarded their heavy, bulky, high-priced cars and have replaced them with the Studebaker Big Six. And they report that, in every way, it represents precisely their conception of what a really fine motor car should be. They are enthusiastic over their all-round satisfaction with the Big-Six because of its dependability, surplus power, extreme comfort for seven passengers, the completeness of its equipment and its fine appearance.

The series 24 model—the finest Big-Six Studebaker ever built—presents a value unapproached by other cars at anywhere near the price. And its nominal cost of operation is a source of continual satisfaction.

Everything for which one can wish in motoring convenience, comfort and utility has been provided—even to an extra wide wheel complete with tire, tube and tire cover; handsome nickel-plated bumpers, front and rear; automatic gasoline signal mounted on instrument board, and many other features.

The low price of the Big-Six is due to large volume, the fact that Studebaker covered it in three models, the manufacture of all vital parts in Studebaker plants and Studebaker's vast physical and financial resources.

After 71 years of service, the name Studebaker enjoys confidence and respect more than ever.

SHE TAKES TO KNOCKING

By C. T. BANGS, Illinois Service Engineer, Vacuum Oil Company

One of the things that stamps the long-neglected motor car as "almost human" is its marked tendency to "take" seemingly on the slightest provocation.

You can go along for days—For weeks—for months—with everything running just as smoothly and as sweetly as can be expected of any well-behaved motor that is treated with ordinary consideration. Then, suddenly, when you step on the gas away from some dust burier ahead of you or to get over an incline which makes her labor a bit, "she takes to knocking" and like mortals beset with bad habits, she persists in knocking, usually, until radical steps have been taken to overcome the trouble.

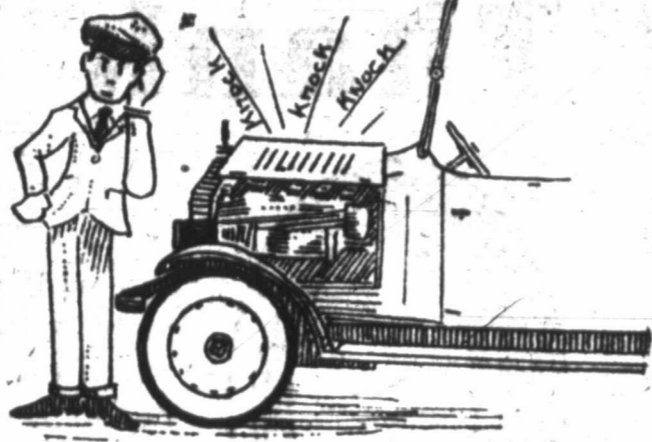

Some cars—or rather their engines—are more prone to this tendency than others; again a topic of "human-ness."

Spark-knock or carbon-knock are the terms that motoring folk usually apply to this malady; spark-knock because in most instances the knocking tendency can be corrected for the time being by retarding the spark somewhat. Hence to the uninitiated it would seem that the real seat of the trouble is excessive spark advance.

Such, however, is not exactly the case. For with an engine that is highly sensitive to this knocking tendency, full retard of the spark helps little or none. On the other hand, care that will carry full advance when new without any tendency to knock may, after several thousand miles of operation, become so sensitive that little if any spark advance can be carried when the engine is loaded or worked hard.

Obviously, there is more to it than the mere matter of spark advance. Nor is carbon-knock truly descriptive of the actual condition that provokes this motor ill which robs motoring of much of its joy. It is true—too true—that a carbon-laden spark plug will knock badly, whereas when clean, it will perform perfectly. And from this fact many of us have come to look upon carbon as the combustion chamber, particularly on those engines where the plug is not set over the inlet valve where it is cooled somewhat. It pays, with such engines, to follow the advice of the manufacturer explicitly, concerning the plugs to use. Just such a simple thing as a wrong plug may cause you hours of unpleasantness.

She persists in knocking.

That being so, I need not emphasize unduly the importance of keeping the cooling system in perfect trim so that it will be capable of throwing off the amount of heat it was designed to get rid of. We have all noticed that when the engine is very hot it will knock badly, however sweet-running it may be at moderate operating temperatures. A clogged water system, a broken or slipping fan belt, an under supply of water are all instrumental in elevating the engine temperature and thus are contributory causes of fuel-knock.

The Part That Carbon Plays. You may wonder at the part that carbon plays. It is a very simple thing. Carbon is a good heat insulator. When the inside of the combustion chamber is coated with it, and a firm layer reposes on top of amounts reaching the combustion chamber. So, before the correct oil can be recommended for any engine to satisfy this condition, the engine design must be analyzed very carefully in the light of past experience to determine first, the quantity of oil that will reach the combustion chambers under average service conditions; second, the amount of oil available to burn up the excess oil. If there is ample heat, as for instance on aviation and tractor engines, which work hard and burn a lot of fuel, the heavier-bodied oils can be used. But in the case of engines which are lightly loaded, which rarely run at full throttle and then only for a short time, and which idle a lot—like your automobile engine, for instance—the lighter-bodied cleaner-burning oils must be recommended in order that the excess amounts will be burned cleanly under the moderate temperatures prevailing.

STUDEBAKER WILL NOT CHANGE TO FOUR-WHEEL BRAKE

Frank D. Keim, of the Keim Motor Company, states that the 1924 model Studebaker cars are equipped with rear-wheel brakes only. Studebaker brakes are sufficiently powerful to lock the rear wheels, which is ample braking power for any emergency. There are no more reliable brakes in use on any automobile.

By reason of the use of four-wheel brakes on European cars, there has been more or less discussion in the United States for some years as to their advantages and disadvantages. Several American cars are now equipped with four-wheel brakes, and time alone will determine whether the American public will be satisfied with this equipment.

Mr. Keim further states that

Studebaker research and engineering departments have been studying, experimenting with, and testing four-wheel brake mechanisms for two years at an expense which has already exceeded $100,000.00. Foreign cars have been purchased and tested, numerous drawings have been studied, and experimental models developed. The net result of these investigations is that we decided to retain our present brakes and take no chances," Mr. Keim said. "The factory has been unable to develop a four-wheel braking mechanism that would be practical and safe in the hands of the great majority of owners and drivers of Studebaker cars. Studebaker have developed and have under severe tests for months several experimental cars equipped with a four-wheel braking mechanism, designed by Studebaker engineers, which equals, we believe, any equipment in use. These brakes and cars are perfectly safe in the hands of engineers and skilled mechanics. When properly adjusted and lubricated, they operate beautifully, and the temptation to put them into production has been great, but the tests have developed some difficulties and dangers which make the factory decide to defer action and continue the experiments. We do not say that four-wheel brakes cannot be made satisfactory, but do say that we have as yet been unable to develop a satisfactory design. "Whenever we can develop a four-wheel braking mechanism that owner drivers can keep adjusted and lubricated without trouble, we will put it into production. The added manufacturing cost would not exceed $25.00 per car, and hence price is no obstacle. Our anxiety is that the mechanism shall be safe, simple, and superior to two-wheel brakes. "No mechanical effect or great outcry for a change warrants the abandonment of two-wheel brakes. Most high-grade American cars use them and are adequately braked. Cars skid on wet pavements, of course, if brakes are suddenly applied before speed is slowed down, especially if the clutch is thrown out when the brakes are applied. Most skidding could be avoided, however, if cars were slowed down and brakes applied gently with clutch engaged. "Four-wheel brakes, perfectly adjusted, eliminate skidding, but they must be perfectly adjusted, and there is the rub. Four-wheel brakes permit quicker stopping, possible in half the length required by two-wheel brakes, but this advantage is of minor consequence except to speeders, who after all are in the minority. The operation of motor cars at very high speeds is always dangerous, and most people avoid it."

There's a Reason Why the Chevrolet Leads the List

The factory turnout reacts to the public demand. CHEVROLETS are selling everywhere; that is why our factory is turning out about as many CHEVROLET cars every day as the factories of five other popular makes of cars combined. Below are the most accurate and recent figures:

- CHEVROLET about 2200 cars a day
- Buick over 700 cars a day
- Dodge Brothers over 700 a day
- Durant and Star over 500 a day
- Overland and Willys-Knight close to 400 a day.

The public knows an economical car when they try it; hence the growing demand for the CHEVROLET. Let our salesman call and demonstrate the CHEVROLET for you; it will be a pleasure to us and put you under no obligation. All we ask is a chance to demonstrate the CHEVROLET before you purchase your car.

Anyone who can afford to buy a car priced at $1500 or more can better afford to own a Packard Single-Six.

Those qualities of performance you have always admired in the Single-Six can be enjoyed at a cost of operation and maintenance so low that ownership becomes an investment in economy.

These are statements any Packard salesman can readily verify. We suggest, therefore, that you investigate the Single-Six before you try to content yourself with a second-choice car.

the seat of the trouble. But this is only partially true. The Source of the Knock—The Fuel. Fuel-knock is the proper appellation for this common motor trouble, for it is the fuel itself which causes it although there are contributory causes having to do with the design, the operation, and the condition of the engine which aid in bringing it about.

If we burn a proper mixture of gasoline and air, such as is taken into the engine cylinder on the intake stroke, at the moderate temperature which prevails when the engine is in perfect shape, the flame will spread through it at comparatively slow rate. It takes an appreciable interval of time for the flame to spread throughout the entire mixture and for the charge to reach its maximum temperature and pressure; and it is to allow for this essential burning period—to permit of its completion before the piston reaches its top dead center—that we advance the spark.

But if we ignite this same charge of fuel at excessively high temperatures, instead of burning smoothly and slowly, the rate of travel of the flame through it is very greatly increased—speeded up to several times a second—and the charge instead of burning as it should "detonates" like dynamite or T-N-T. It is the impact of this flame-wave traveling at excessively high velocity against the cylinder walls which give rise to the actual noise—the metallic "clinkety clinkety" which makes us sensible to the condition prevailing.

Seems strange—almost unbelievable—that a rush of gas waves against a metal cylinder could produce a noise like a hammer blow; yet that such is the case has been proven beyond question or doubt. In fact we have actually secured photographic evidence of the conditions prevailing within the cylinder on a delicate instrument known as a Midget indicator.

The Effect of Temperature. It follows, then, that temperature is the key to the situation—the temperature of the fuel charge during its burning period. Anything which tends to reduce this temperature or conduct heat away from the burning charge at a rapid rate tends to make the engine less sensitive to fuel-knock. On the other hand, conditions which provoke high temperatures are likely to be creative of the annoyance.

High compression, for instance, induces higher temperatures than low compression; and the high-compression engines are—other things being equal—more prone to fuel-knock than engines with moderate compression.

It is for this reason that we rarely encounter fuel knock except when the engine is heavily loaded, for it is only when the throttle is fully open that we attain the maximum compression within the engine cylinder.

And it follows, as most of us know, that we can reduce the sensitiveness of an engine by the simple expedient of putting an extra gasket between the head casting and the cylinder block, or underneath the cylinders in those engines where the cylinder blocks are cast separate from the crankcase.

This raises the cylinders or the cylinder head, increases the size of the combustion chamber, reduces the maximum compression that can be attained and consequently reduces the temperatures and the tendency for the fuel to detonate.

An overheated area within the combustion chamber makes the engine highly sensitive to fuel-knock—for instance a spark plug with a long shell which protrudes well into

William Jennings Bryan's Weekly Bible Talk
A Great Hearted Christian

By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN

In Barabas we have one of the great men of the New Testament whose name has been over-whelmed by close association with a greater luminary, Paul. But Barabas grew upon us as we study his character and the record of his doings.

A GREAT HEARTED CHRISTIAN—TEXT OF TODAY'S BIBLE TALK BY MR. BRYAN

(Acts 4:36-37; 11:19-24)

And Joses, who by the apostles was surnamed Barabas, (which is, being interpreted, the son of consolation,) a Levite, and of the country of Cyprus, had sold his land, and brought the money, and laid it at the apostles' feet.

After the martyrdom of Stephen, the persecution of the Christians spread abroad through the cities of the world. Paul had been preaching the Gospel to the Jews only; but there were some who were not willing to confine the Gospel to the Jews.

Christ was an individualist, in the sense in which individualism is at this time distinguished from socialism. His dealings with men begin with the regeneration of the heart—the individual heart; upon this He builds the brotherhood to which His teachings lead.

In the early days when the apostles gave their entire time to the preaching of the Gospel, they not only needed a common purse but were compelled to rely upon contributions that were made by their fellow worshippers.

The second mention of Barabas occurs when the lately converted Saul came to Jerusalem and "assayed to join himself to the disciples; but they were afraid of him, and believed not that he was a disciple."

"The Barnabas took him, and brought him to the apostles, and declared unto them how he had seen the Lord in the way," and how he had preached boldly in Damascus in the name of Jesus.
