K.K. PARADE PRECIPITATES BATTLE

NEW CHARGES ARE FILED AGAINST 9 IN OKLA. FLOGGINGS

REPORTED WHIPPINGS TOOK PLACE IN WAGONER COUNTY, NOT TULSA.

WILL ALLOW TWO TO RE-ENTER PLEAS

Information Filed By Wagoner County Attorney; Rioting Is Charged.

WAGONER, Okla., Aug. 25.—After the American Legion, Wagoner county veterans had occurred in this county instead of Tulsa county, authorities here today instituted criminal actions against nine men on charges of rioting.

Informations filed in district court charging the men with having whipped Wagner were signed by John H. Moss, Wagoner county attorney.

Warrants were issued by W. D. Price, sheriff of the peace and Sheriff Marsh Corgan left at once for Tulsa county to take the defendants into custody.

The men named are:

Tom E. Barnes, Gomer C. Miles, Sam P. Barnes, A. M. Calloway, W. M. Hill, Avery Harbison, L. V. Venator, W. M. Lewis, Hal Benson, Dick Fisher and Harry Abert.

Both the Wagoner and Tulsa county governments are in the Institute of Politics at Williamsburg.

It is thought probable that they will be given parole.

Wagoner county officials want to demonstrate that martial law is being maintained in this county. In this country it was said by a county authority who declined to have his name revealed.

SPAIN AND PROTESTANT IN WAGONER COUNTY

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Aug. 25.—State aid in apprehending Governors who visited George Elkins and Mexican Ambassador H. M. Wilson was offered by Aldrich Blatz, county attorney of Kingfisher county, at a conference today in Blatz's office, according to an announcement. Blatz said that he believed that Smith would be pleased if the enforcement machinery at his command was inadequate to control the situation, but requested that the national guard be called to the state, declaring that the enforcement machinery at his command was inadequate to control the situation, but requested that the national guard be called to the state, as other means of apprehending the whalers had been exhausted.

Smith appeared at the capital following receipt of a telegram yesterday from Governor E. C. Walker, who informed him of the progress of the whipping and warning that "results were expected in a few days." Smith said no whipping had been reported since the Elver case.

SCHENCK-FRENCH PANHANDLE WELL INCREASES GAS

MCKEAN, Texas, Aug. 25.—The Schenck-French well number one, located three and one-half miles northeast of the town of McKean, oil and gas which has been approximately twenty million cubic feet of gas yesterday morning at 10 o'clock is reported to be increasing its gas flow rapidly. At this time it is said to be between 25 and 35 million cubic feet. The importance of this well lies in its location, being between the producers at Baye and those of Carson county and in the fact that gas was encountered at an exceptionally shallow depth of 1,000 feet. All wells of the state are reaching the well and many of the larger companies have sent representatives to the test.

NEGROES AT QUANAH FEUG ONE OF RACE FOR REMARKS TO YOUNG WHITE WOMAN

They Say:

Wichians away from home are particularly anxious to return home because of the bad weather in eastern Kansas and the happenings at home, according to a letter received here Saturday from H. B. Patterson, who is at present in San Francisco.

Mr. Patterson states that he recently returned to that city from a motor trip to the mountains, San Francisco and other points of interest in the north-western part of California.

"The weather seems to be responsible for a great part of the beauty of California, and one does not have to stretch the imagination very much to figure the possibilities we have in the Big Wichita proposition," Mr. Patterson's letter says.

WILSON WRONG SAYS BIRKENHEAD PROTEST RAISED

Birkenhead Reference to Former President Characterized as Impudent.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Characterizing the references to Woodrow Wilson by Viscount Birkenhead, former lord chamberlain of the British Institute of politics as "impudent," Henry Breckinridge, assistant secretary of war under Wilson, today protested in a letter to John W. Davis, president of the American Bar Association, against the American Bar Association's annual convention.

Mr. Breckinridge urged that if it were necessary for Viscount Birkenhead to make the scheduled address it "be intimated to him that the expression of such opinions concerning a great American statesman is discreditable to any self-respecting audience."

The text of Mr. Breckinridge's letter to Mr. Davis follows:

"Permit me to refer to the impudent references to ex-President Wilson by Lord Birkenhead, which were made in the Institute of Politics at Williamsburg.

As a member of the American Bar Association, I regret that any one with so little sense of propriety has been invited to address its annual convention. If it proves necessary to call a meeting for the protection of the American delegation wished to have a thorough understanding before leaving."

The high spot of Viscount Birkenhead's speech at the conference came when he addressed the theory that self-sacrifice alone and not altruism should determine America's attitude toward European problems.

Mr. Davis' formal address under the chairmanship of Sir Edward Grey, Foreign Minister of Great Britain, could not be reached this afternoon. At his office it was stated that Mr. Breckinridge's letter had been received and would be delivered to Mr. Davis as soon as he could be reached.

Promptly upon the receipt of appeal from the American government, the formal documents returned here.

They brought with them, however, no formal documents and these had to be drawn up by the American commissioners themselves. Hughes, the last to leave, said the American delegation wished to have a thorough understanding before leaving.

For the present at least the two delegations will be the only formal delegations to represent the two governments. The minutes of the three months conference on recognition in which both governments stated their views, are informal, although they convey plenary information.

At the time of the conference it was explained, both governments are taking a pre-emptive attitude that they will be ready to meet.

A delay would cause the trip alone, officials said.

President Wilson indeed came with a noble message of hope, but unhappily in the actual hope proved to be his principal equipment.

It is a fascinating speculation whether he had been given health and strength to pursue the campaign which he participated, his idealism and personality could have affected the forces of the world. I am bold enough, even at the moment when I pay the highest tribute to his unselfish motives, to doubt it.

FRANK G. CARPENTER WRITES ABOUT THE NEW FINLAND

Says New Republic Has A Fine Army and Can Defend Itself Against Russia

By FRANK G. CARPENTER

(Copyright, 1923, Carpenter's World Travel)

Helsingfors—During my stay in Finland I have talked with many leading men as to the perpetuity of the republic. There are some who doubt its success, and prefer a constitutional monarchy. A few think that their destiny is wrapped up in that of Russia, and that when Russia becomes stable it will send an army here to recapture the former province in order to have a better outlet to the Baltic and the Arctic ocean as well. The fact is that there are six political parties in the country, and the diversity of opinion tells in favor of the republic. If Finland is ever attacked the whole people will come to her defense. In the meantime the country is growing. Mr. Falckstrom, a leading financier here, believes that the population will be doubled within twenty years; and Vaino Tanska, one of the Social Democrats of congress also predicts an even greater increase. He says the Finns know they have a great property, and they expect to do all they can to develop it. Finland is about three-fourths the size of Germany, and it has about one-twentieth as many people. Much of the country will never be cultivated, but there are large areas that can be cleared and turned into farms.

The Army of Finland

In connection with the future of the Russian and the future of the army of Finland becomes very important. We have now about 25,000 men and is twice as large as it was in 1920. In addition to this Civil Guard there are 160,000 men. The latter force is well armed and equipped. It has drills every Sunday and encampments and maneuvers at certain times of the year. The soldiers are young, and they are all in uniform, bright and sturdy. They have uniforms of light gray.

A Talk With the Chief of Staff.
I have just had a chat with General Enekel, the chief of staff of the army, in his office at the war department, or to have him speak of the army in the country in time of war. The general is one of the live, energetic young men of the republic. Tall and straight and as lean as a rail, he does not weigh more than a hundred and thirty pounds. He looks to be about thirty-five years of age, but as he was on the general staff of the Russian army before the war, and was chief of the military mission to Italy, I guess he is older. When the war clouded over to Finland, he joined the forces there, and he now leads the army. In response to my questions he said:

"On the whole I am satisfied with our progress. We had something of a revolution in 1917, and we had before the war, but in 1919 the Russians began to re-annex Finland. They shelled our military schools, and from then until 1920 we had no military training. The Finns were not allowed to have any troops, and the Swedes, who were then in control, were afraid to let us have any. It was only after we assisted by the Germans, overcame the Red Finns and established our independence that we tried to build up a military force. We started off with the 100,000 men of the civil army of 1920, and we now have three divisions, each containing three battalions, a regiment of field artillery, and several companies of machine guns. We have a light regiment of cavalry, a regiment of technical troops, heavy artillery, a tank regiment and also a flying corps."

The Finns are soldiers. "Is your army well trained?" I asked.

"I think so. The Finns are natural soldiers. They are sound and healthy. They bear quickly and obey well. They have a soldierly temperament. We could easily increase the army if we had the officers and equipment to do so."

Military Service is Compulsory.
All are called to the colors at the age of twenty-one. The maximum service period is eighteen months. After that the man goes into the reserves for five years, and can be called upon at any time until he is forty."

"What is an important feature of the service?" said General Enekel. "As you know our country is covered with lakes and streams, and in winter fighting would have to be done on ice. Our soldiers are trained at home that they may be snow dry and. They are trained to march over snowdrifts and skis and they have ski-drills during the winter."

"A Melodrama Among the Soldiers. "Do you have any hospitals?" I asked.

"No. The Civil Guards are a protection against bolshevism. They are all volunteers and they work for patriotic duty only. The organization has a hospital in the country, but its health is poor. It is in Finland. The stations are of wood painted white, with platforms of paved cobble held in place by a coping of granite. My ticket was printed in Finnish and Swedish, and all of the signs at the stations were in the language. Our horses now burn wood, and at every stop we found cord wood piled up for the trains."

Finland has a good railway system. "I think so," said the general. "Our roads are such that it would be difficult to march large armies across it. Most of Finland is all woods, streams, swamps and lakes. The roads are comparatively few, and an invading army would have to cross them. There are few roads. There are ample means of ambush and of harassing the enemy in every way. This makes a small army effective. It can move lightly and go across the country, while the roads are few. Motion is limited to the roads, in existence or to those it makes. In going over the good soil and cheap. One is expected to help himself at the counter in Russia, and others in ours. Cream is supplied from a pitcher that stands on the counter. The man who wants some coffee or tea takes as much as he likes. The menu is simple, sandwich and some rolls, cakes and coffee and the whole cost a nickel.

The bread and butter here is especially good. Finland is noted for its bacon and ham. Butter is shipped from here to Denmark and thence to England and Denmark, but the chief bacon-making city is Tampere at the northwest end of the lake, which is connected by the Tammekoski River. This has a fall of sixty feet with a drop of about twenty feet right here in the city itself. The falls are added to by the streams produced from the cold wood of the forests felled in on the lakes in barge and boats.

Cotton Mills Run by Cord Wood.
The cotton mills of Tampere are especially interesting. The cotton is spun directly with wood and another of 34,000 spindles run by electricity generated by water power. Think of running a big cotton mill with cord wood, which is the only fuel used. The factory is in winter and summer over a lake 120 miles long to the factory. Let it come in on barges and be thrown into the furnaces by hand and moving machines. Thirty thousand spindles are with the cotton and scattered about them are those blond-haired blue-eyed daughters of Finland. Some are young and many are good looking. They wear bright handkerchiefs, and their dresses are very neat, short-skirted and almost all are barefooted. The mill owner told me that one-seventh of the birth of the community are illegitimate. He does not consider it a disgrace to be a girl to have a child. If she is to be a maid she has a dressback, and when she has three she is not good as a worker.

The Manufacture of Flax.
Tampere is the Manchester of Finland. It is a textile center having large cotton factories, linen mills and plants that make paper out of pulp and rags. It has a steel plant which turns out locomotives.

During my visit to this mill I noted at its root pile. It is seven acres and is as high as a ten story flat. It takes about 20,000 cubic yards every year and the managers figure that six cubic yards equal one ton of coal.

This cotton mill has eight huge spinning mills all power driven. They get wages of fifty cents a day and their hours of work are from 7 to 11 and 12 until 4. The spinning rooms are a mass of belts and moving machines. Thirty thousand spindles are with the cotton and scattered about them are those blond-haired blue-eyed daughters of Finland. Some are young and many are good looking. They wear bright handkerchiefs, and their dresses are very neat, short-skirted and almost all are barefooted. The mill owner told me that one-seventh of the birth of the community are illegitimate. He does not consider it a disgrace to be a girl to have a child. In the Big Paper Factories.

Leaving the cotton mills I went through several of the big paper factories run by the rapids, all of the big machinery being operated by electricity. One of these mills is owned by a woman for a girl to have a child. If she is to be a maid she has a dressback, and when she has three she is not good as a worker.

The Mills Make Every Kind of Cotton Cloth.
The mills make every kind of cotton cloth, turning out calicoes, table cloths, sheeting and everything demanded by the Finnish market. It competes on even terms with Manchester, England, and with Germany over the way. The paper division now comes from the United States, some of it direct and some via Liverpool. Before the world war it was supplied by Russia, but then that supply was cut off and some of the mills had to get in American cotton by way of the Baltic. Nevertheless the Finns kept the mills going by sending ships from New Orleans into the Arctic ocean, and hauling the bales of wood pulp now runs into hundreds of thousands of tons.

Cotton Goods, Inc., and "Red" of the International Trade Corporation.
The Marlin Bank & Trust company with headquarters handling warehouse receipts. He was released on $10,000 bond covering four affidavits.

The bank charges that Mr. Perkins' affidavits on trust receipts, warehouse receipts, etc., collateral for loans and instead of selling the commodities covered by them and taking up the loan, made other loans upon them.

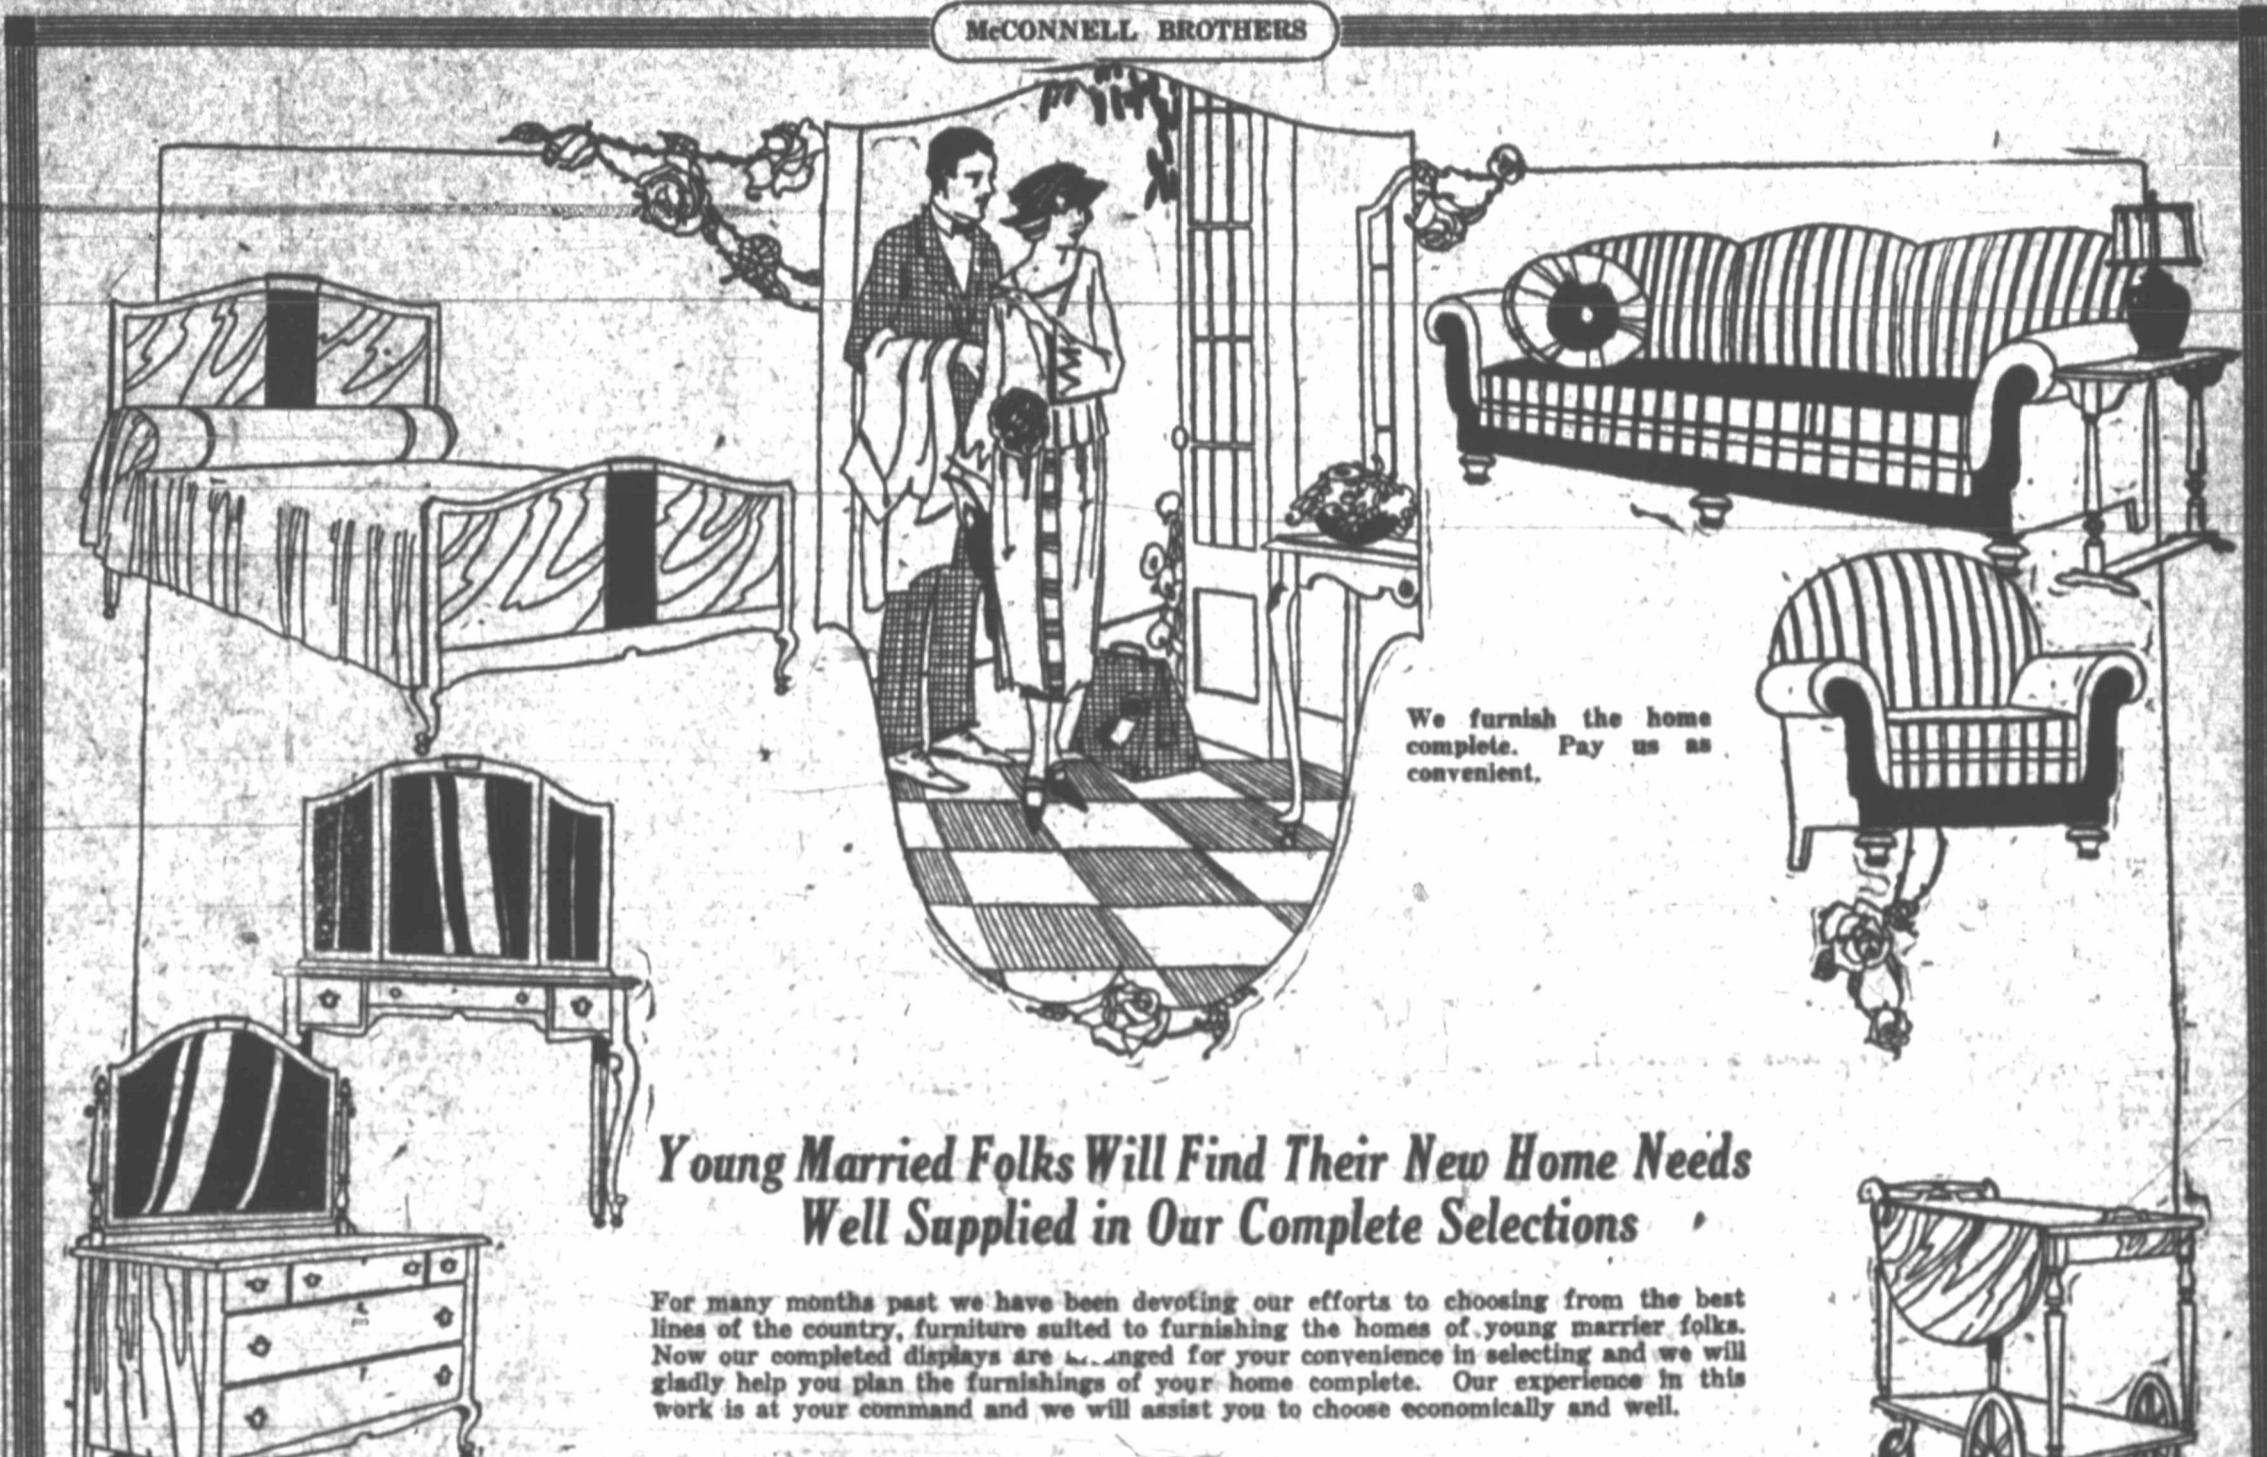

According to reports in financial circles, Mr. Perkins' assets are to owe the Marlin and other banks approximately $222,000 and to have outstanding amounts of $74,000. Mr. Perkins is said to have listed his assets at more than $400,000.

Mr. Perkins stated his assets are ample to take care of all his obligations to the banks and they will not lose anything.

LABOR DAY EVENT EXPECTED TO DRAW A RECORD CROWD

CANTS COMPLETE FOR CELEBRATION AND BARBECUE AT LAKE WICHITA.

ACTIVITIES TO START WITH PARADE AT TEN

say Mr. Congressman Williams, John Davenport and Judge Napier Among Speakers.

All plans are complete for the Labor Day celebration and barbecue to be held at Lake Wichita Monday, September 2. Arrangements have been made to entertain one of the largest crowds that has ever gathered here for a similar occasion. Posters have been sent over the country to the surrounding territory and it is expected that representatives of labor organizations from towns throughout this section will attend the celebration here.

Detailed programs for the events of the day are off the press and include addresses by Congressman Williams, Senator John Davenport, Judge E. W. Napier and Mayor Frank Collier of this city.

The festivities will begin with a parade through the business district of the city at noon Monday.

The parade will start at

Seventh and Lamar, proceeding down Seventh to Ohio and down Ohio to Ninth, up Ninth to Indiana, on Indiana to Eighth, and on Eighth to Travis.

The parade will be headed by the band and the marching units of the day, followed with the following organizations in order: Trade council, shop crafts, carpenters, electricians, painters, plumbers, bakers, cooks and waiters, printers, butchers, bricklayers, plasterers, and other local unions.

The parade will end at Eighth and Travis and the crowd will go to the lake for the day.

QUANAH SCHOOLS OPEN SEPTEMBER 10 AFTER INSTITUTE

QUANAH, Texas, Aug. 25.—The Quanah public schools will open on September 10, following the institute at Wichita Falls where the teachers will be in attendance—the result of a recent meeting.

The school board and faculty are anticipating a splendid school year and with the cooperation of the parents and the children they will make the Quanah people a school minded community.

Mr. E. E. Davis, superintendent.

Football Training

Football training will begin Monday morning under the direction of Coach Gordon Cosley. Mr. Conley, athletic director of the Normal University, was paid by the Rotary Club and will devote his entire time to football. It is expected that he will turn out a strong team this fall.

State Fair

Ber. H. W. Burcell, D. D., medical evangelist of Texas Presbyterianism, will hold a series of devotional services and Bible talks under the auspices of the Presbyterian Church of Quanah on August 26 to September 1.

Farmers to Plant Wheat

Upon the advice of County Agent R. H. F. Pettie a bunch of local agricultural men have investigated the soil and are advising the farmers to plant wheat to be used for pasture this winter.

Children Bathers Here

Children bathers invaded the vicinity Tuesday afternoon in the interest of the Children's State Fair to be held September 12, 13 and 14. Secretary J. W. Davenport was in charge of the delegation and made a short speech before the public. Judge C. Y. Welch extended them a hearty welcome to Quanah and assured them of a visit from the citizenship during their stay.

A BACK-TO-REEL-LIFE MOVEMENT!

By WILL ROGERS

Now my wall this week is on a subject that is really growing serious, and if something is not done about it pretty soon it may bring on very complicated results.

Since I have been out here working in Pictures I have had a chance to see quite a lot of Movies, and observe their looks and style of dress on the Screen.

Now the thing I want to speak about was really prompted by my being asked to speak before a Doctors' Convention at the Hotel where they were meeting. I had not been sick for a long time and did not really know what a Doctor looked like, only of course from the ones I had seen on the Screen, who all wore Vandyke Beards trimmed very neat, and a Cutaway Coat. So I went into the Hotel where I was to speak on the Subject, "Odds and Ends Left Inside after Operations," or "Mistaken Doctors have made and covered up." I saw a room full of them but not one of them had a Vandyke Beard, so I thought I was in the wrong room. Finally I spied one lone Guy with a Vandyke, so I immediately rushed up to him and said, "You are Dr. Alibi, aren't you?" He said, "Why, no, I am not a Doctor, I am the Secretary of this Doctor Association that's in existence down here." I am one of the members.

Now I wouldn't believe these men were Doctors at all as not a one had the earmarks of a Doctor, and to make it still more doubtful there wasn't a Cutaway Coat in the room. There were Alpaca, Cotton, Seersucker and every brand and vintage of Coat in the World, but not a single Cutaway. So you see, by not knowing how to look or dress, I was not realizing what Foot Moving Picture Actors were making out of these Doctors. Why, I bet you a lot of real Doctors have been called in to attend some steady Movie Fan (for no person in the World needs a Doctor more or often than a constant Movie Fan), and I bet you the fan would not let the Doctor in till he went home and put on a Beard.

Now it wouldn't be so bad if it was only the Doctors in real life that were making themselves ridiculous by not knowing how to dress or look, but the same things have percolated into almost every other line of business you can think of.

Another bunch of men that think they are doing well (and they may be financially, but to a Movie Fan they are the laughing stock of the Country) are the Bankers. Any one with a grain of Movie Sense knows that all bankers are big and fat. Still, in New York just before I come out here, I spoke at their Banquet, where the richest were gathered from all over the U. S. I spoke on the Subject, "Windows you have foreclosed on," or "Yes, the Legal Rate is 5 per cent But try and get it."

Well, when I got into the room, the first fellow I saw looked like the ideal screen Banker. He had on a Dykes Suit and was Big and Fat, so I said, "You are one of the Bankers, could you give me some information?" He said, "Why, I'm one of the Waiters here, I am no Banker." So I looked all around to see if I could see one. Finally I did see one, and made for him. He weighed about two city, but after the usual question, he turned out to be the Assistant Manager of the Hotel. So I asked him where the Bankers were. He said, "Why here they are all around here." I said, "What? Those little weakly undernourished men?" They were the most despicable looking bunch of little Runtz I had ever seen gathered together.

Well, I'll tell you how they looked. I got so scared I went to the Manager and told him to "feed 'em before I talk to them because some of them look like they ain't going to live anyway."

So you see how much more popular they would be with all the Movie Fans if they were like they ought and are supposed to be. Big and Fat. And what makes it worse, they do get the money they demand weekly. They could do a lot better. But of course if they was to go ahead and let actors make Fools out of them, why, it's none of my business.

Another case that I had forcibly brought to mind lately was a fellow who sold me a lot and took part of the Money down. I found later he had sold the same lot to three other people and had done the same thing with them. He was a little, fat, blonde, jolly fellow. Now any body in the World that's ever seen just one Picture knows that a Crook or Villain that would do a thing like that is tall with Black hair and Eyes, has a Mustache and smokes Cigarettes all the time. That little fellow will never get any credit at all for being a Crook. His whole life's work is wasted simply because he don't look right. He doesn't smoke at all, or even wear a high hat.

Now you see if he had looked like I have been used to seeing Vilaines look, it would have known right away what he was and given him credit for being a sharper. But this other little grinning Runt that beat us all out of our money over the Lots, will never be known in the Movies as anything. I can't understand it at all, when people know how popular Movies are, that they can't take the tip and be as they are represented.

Even Women who as a rule are much smarter than men make the same mistakes. Now I have seen young women with Babies whom they said were theirs, and some really young ones that claimed they had a whole bunch, maybe five or six. Now you know, and anybody that has ever been to Movies knows, that that ain't so. A woman don't have Children unless she is at least gray-headed. As for being the Mother of a gangster, I have seen just one Picture that shows a woman with a Baby in her arms, and she is as good as any other woman in the world.

Visiting her folks in Arkansas for the past six weeks has returned to her home in Quanah.

Mrs. Lyons and Mrs. Kibler of Lake Charles, La., are here visiting Mrs. Joe Dooley.

Mr. and Mrs. Temple McFarland of the First Methodist Church and wife of this papa have returned to their home in Dallas.

Miss Lucille Hooks will leave about the 4th September for Columbia University.

Mrs. N. W. Walton and mother, Mrs. Branson, returned Saturday night from New York.

Mrs. N. W. Tawwater of the Baker-Harris Company came in Monday evening from New York, where she has been buying goods for the store.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Rowden, who are now in California, will be home soon.

W. W. Hollingsworth, sheriff of Garza county, and J. P. Varney, deputy sheriff of Garza county, were way up their way to Oklahoma. Sheriff Hollingsworth has gained state recognition as a police officer.

One of the prettiest weddings in months was that of Loraine Griffith and Ernest P. O. Griffith and Ernest Smith son of D. D. Smith.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride by Rev. J. M. Story, pastor of the Methodist church. Only the immediate relatives and a few close friends were present. Miss Irene, the bride's girlhood chum, was out-of-town guest. Mrs. N. L. Jones was play-mother at the wedding march.

Both the bride and groom are well known in the community, both having been married. They were well received by relatives.

Children of relatives of the bride and groom, a group of relatives when they took the train for California. After September 18, they will be at home to friends at Quanah.

National Shoe Thrift Week Is To Start Monday

Men and women of the country are being urged to practice shoe thrift by saving their money and sending it to the shoe repairing industry as National Shoe Thrift Week and everybody is being asked to look over their collection of shoes and have them repaired in preparation for the new season.

Mothers are being urged to get into the closets for inspection of the children's school shoes, so that they may be repaired in first class condition when school opens.

These reparations will add to the life of a shoe if the up part is not worn. They certain that there are reparations a shoe so that no trace of its having been repaired will show. With mechanics to work with the modern shoe repairer can put back into the worn shoe more value than it ever had. The leather received from their grandfather, W. H. Holz, a prominent druggist of Wortham, furnished much amusement for the little girls. Daily, the druggist of Wortham, sold cookies, candy, ice cream and fruit punch. Cold cake was served. SUNSHINE STATE GETS 1,000-BARREL WELL IN ARCHER COUNTY

Fourth Producer Completed in Past Few Days in Same Locality Adding Total of 2,500 Barrels Daily Yield

55,000 BARREL STORAGE BEING BUILT AT OLNEY

OLNEY, Texas, Aug. 25.—The Hardy Ark, the well of most local interest at the moment, is coming in steadily again, last Friday. This is the third or fourth attempt they have made to shut off water since striking a very likely looking sand at the Swastik depth, some ten days ago. When last seen, it was about north of town, in the Vernon lease, Crookshank et al are shut down, supposedly on a sand found around 1500'. Reports are conflicting and nothing definite can be said unless possibly on the inside, and we consider it probable that they have some kind of a showing.

Orville Bullington got a small well in his office at Peter-Kerry No. 1, and will move the rig west for an effect to No. 1.

Peter Oils have cut out their drilling program for the present, and will likely do no further development work until the oil market gets nearer to normal. In the two completed wells they have a daily production of approximately 50 barrels, which is being sold for fuel oil.

Drilling Resumes

The test on the Benson ranch, east of town, has resumed drilling after a shut down of several days.

Taylor et al on the Hightower, are drilling around 1275' and report good progress.

They are really hopeful of picking up the Swastik sand within the next two hundred feet.

Bullard and Donehue reported abandoned as dry last week were in wildcat and proven territory of the Panhandle field at present is one such well hundreds of miles from the original producing area. The oil wells in the Panhandle are operating in many instances, operating companies who have not before been interested in the field or seemed uninterested in the market for crude oil.

C. A. Baker, formerly of Wichita Falls, and now editor of the News, is at Plainview, where they have been visiting the past month with members of the Fourth Estate in Texas.

Mr. Brown will make the trip to Oklahoma, and will be in the Panhandle by automobile.

Baker and Donehue will join Mr. and Mrs. Brown as editor of the News.

May School Playground

The Electra school board has purchased the block just south of the high school building, which will be used for a playground and football practice field. The Electra cotton gin, which burned about a year ago, was located on this block.

The purchase includes the gin pool, which was the original source of water for this city. The work of filling the hole and leveling the ground will be done in part by volunteers.

Despite the unsettled condition, many new locations were made in both the wildcat and inside leases.

On the Jackson land in the Aldridge survey, abstract No. 2, James Ferguson has a derrick up for a test well.

Other producers are making preparations to start doing a test at once on the southwest corner of the Tucker survey, abstract 1113, J. H. Parrish et al tract.

Another location was made by Chenuit-Lee & Johnson on their tract, the Wilson tract, offsetting the Chenuit-Lee well to the south.

The Sunshin State Refining company made a location for No. 4, Mrs. Carter land.

Drilling has started on the No. 4, Mrs. Carter, by Bridwell & Haydock, on the northeast corner of block 1113, offsetting the Tucker company's No. 2 Carter lease.

The top of the pay was picked up at 1500' and oil flowed at the rate of 500 barrels per day.

In the south part of the county activity is at a standstill due to the inability of the producers to find an outlet for their oil.

Chenuit-Lee & Johnson brought in a good producer, the best in this part of the field, offsetting the Chenuit-Lee well to the south.

The top of the pay was picked up at 1500' and oil flowed at the rate of 500 barrels per day.

On the Carter tract, the south part of the county, the company has abandoned its No. 1 well as dry at a total depth of 1715 feet.

James Parker also failed to make a well on his tract in the southwest section of the Sunshine pool and pulled the pipe at a depth of 1500' and 400 barrels.

SERIOUS SPARRING PARTNER SHORTAGE IN DEMPSEY'S CAMP

Champ and Firpo Both Unable to Find Sufficient Number of Human Punching Bags for Their Training

By DAMON RUNYON.

Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, Aug. 25.—Sparring partners for heavyweight fighters in training are reported scarce.

Dempsey is searching for men.

Dempsey has only one heavy-weight sparring-mate left. This is George Godfrey, colossus black giant from Leoperville. Jack Moore, who survived the training siege at Great Falls, a light heavyweight Dempsey has been working with hunting and lightweights.

Tommy Dunnigan, former sparring partner to Dempsey, has made the rounds of other training camps, seeking orthodox methods.

It is easy to explain the shortage in the sparring partner market.

About any big man who knows how to put up his hands, who merely calls himself a fighter, can make more money in ring engagements than he could hope to earn serving as a sparring partner.

He can get as much for one fight as he could get in a week, perhaps a month, as a sparring partner. In that one fight he would take less punishment than he might take in an afternoon's work against a heavy hitter such as Dempsey or Firpo.

Giant System

Old timers have held the theory it takes a great experience, for a young fighter to work as a sparring partner to a champion.

They hold that this work enabled the young fighter to learn from the champion how to fight, that it gave him confidence he could acquire in no other way.

The fact that James J. Jeffries was one of James J. Corbett's sparring partners is often cited as proof of the old theory. Jim McCoy, who has a brother living in Saratoga, was one of Tommy Dunnigan's training mates. Dunnigan, King of the middleweight division.

Jeffries was the heavyweight title after graduating from Corbett's camp. McCoy later defeated his old employer. But Jeffries and McCoy were rare exceptions. It is doubtful if many sparring partners traced back to their training camp experience.

Modern managers have discarded the old theory. Most of them think it is harmful to a young fighter to work as a sparring partner, especially with such a thorough worker as Dempsey.

That is to say, that belief, if the story of her system is true, sees that the horse will think he is a horse, or that it will think the place, or that it will think that it will "show" him third.

Thus she will have $1,500 wagered on each race, $600, on Number 3 and on Number 2, and as frequently happens, she is unable to get a "show" price against her horses.

If number 4 or number 5 listed on her program are "scratched" before the race—that is if they do not start—then she moves on to the next multiple of four, taking horses over 12. Her system apparently depends entirely upon that lady's belief that four is her lucky number.

It is said she follows her system regardless of the form or "dots" on horses. The average horse player who loves to pore over horsemanship books, who never goes out along leather running around the paddock and the lawn looking for "dots," would doubtless view Mrs. Vanderbilt's system with horror.

At least, taking it day in and day out, quite likely that the lady will be as 17 winners to the most modest "Dempsey," which proves, perhaps, except that pick-winners is largely a matter of luck.

It is said she follows her system regardless of the form or "dots" on horses.

The average horse player who loves to pore over horsemanship books, who never goes out along leather running around the paddock and the lawn looking for "dots," would doubtless view Mrs. Vanderbilt's system with horror.

At first Dempsey was astonished at Burke's temerity. Now when Burke has made and begins "game," Dempsey, who is a good boxer, is even burlier, a good biter with his right hand, and can take a strong punishing.

Open a Sparring Partner

Dempsey himself once served as a sparring partner. He was a member of Jim Cameron's camp in 1916, in Memphis. The year ago he was a good biter with his right hand, and can take a strong punishing.

Dempsey has often told the writer how Cameron punched him around. He says Ruth seemed to take keen delight in slammimg him, but Ruth, too, was a good boxer, allowing Ruth to land the blow.

MRS. PARAMOR

By Louis Joseph Vance

THE ACTORS: THE ACTION SO FAR

MRS. PENDLETON WAYNE, young and beautiful, an actress surprised in her work but still ready to love with her husband.

PENDLETON WAYNE, somewhat lawyer of forty. He is in love with his wife but she is still ready to love with her husband.

PERLEY REY, a society widower. He unexpectedly meets an old friend, Mrs. Granville, who has been advertising in China and other lands.

GRANVILLE, who has been advertising in China and other lands.

THE HOLBROOK ANNISONS, both and their children old fashioned couple, who have had each other and happy,

EVELYN DRACUP, Nelly's secretary, a young English girl who has adored

Granville since Nelly marry him.

On their wedding anniversary Wayne takes Nelly to the Twentieth Century Club for dinner. There Jill comes from Wayne's promise that he will divorce Nelly and marry her. Nelly pleads with Jill to leave Perley to her, but Jill answers: "A woman who can't hold her husband doesn't deserve to have him." Jill marries Ramillies Wayne. Two years later Rex and Jill start home from France with their new baby, Thelma. Annis, a woman's dreams come true. Mrs. Annis says: "I am a woman now, I am happy." Ramillies' Paramor, first visit of the American home in New York. Wayne calls to see Annis and meets Nelly, but they marry him. He tells Annis his one desire is to win her back. Jill calls for Rex and says his card attached to flowers he has sent to Nelly. She is cold when the letter interests her talk with Rex, but agrees with Rex to close at the Annis' that night. Miss Dracup urges Granville to pack his suit for Nelly's hand, and Granville suddenly discovers the necessary heart is a beauty. Annis' feelings come to light again. Wayne has given up his chance to marry his wife. After Wayne leaves, Rex comes in search of Nelly, but she hides. Jill, trailing him, accuses him of being in love with Nelly.

INSTALLMENT XL

GRANNY AND EVELYN

"OH! Jill retorted in innocent astonishment. "I never supposed you were gathering resources there were anything secret about it." And, warning, "Well, what was there?" she noted with a touch of impatience, she noted with satisfaction that his eyes were none too steady. "Of course," she thoughtfully considered. "I've got my rights worth mentioning; only those my courageous husband grants me—not even the right of believing the testimony of my own eyes."

"If your eyes were trustworthy witnesses, my dear, they'd be a different color."

He gave a small groan. "Now, whatever got that into your head?" He stopped by the desk and set himself on the edge of it, surveying her with a grin that must have been purposefully irritating.

"Thank God!" she cried in exasperation. "I'm above being jealous of that creature. Middle aged and plastered with paint till she doesn't smile."

"Hello! Since when have you turned against rouge and whitewash?"

"With a touch up here," Jill stammered, "and another there, I'm not so happy."

Her eyes veered from the significance of his as if confused. "It doesn't take a great deal to make you happy, does it?"

"Not when it comes from you."

"I tell," she soberly made fun of him. "You think my tongue betrayed my heart. O, but Perley, surely you're noble enough not to take advantage of my innocent girl ship!"

"There you go!" he piously grumbled.

"All the time you laugh at me. And when it means such an awful lot to me."

"It seems to me," she said, dismissing his purely personal viewpoint as not really worth discussion, "you've come to believe either hell comes to you, or heaven with world calamities. Untrue, of course, you think Mrs. Rex would object."

"What Jill thinks," he continued, brusquely gallant, "doesn't matter a great deal, I fancy we two and me."

"My gracious!" The woman's smile rang true as she turned away from his overwrought countenance and strived to the fireplace. "Do you make a little encouragement go a long, long way—don't you?"

He followed closely, as the quiver: "If you only knew how I've waited for a little encouragement."

"Suppose . . ." She lightly seated herself on the fender and made a modest place for him. "Suppose I did know."

"If you did . . ." she knew more.

"Perhaps," she admitted, with ingenuousness.

He stood over her, desirous in his postures.

"You know how fearfully in love with you I've been all along!"

"I feared the worst," she smiled. "You must admit you've given me some enough pain. And, after all, I'm hardly an ingenue am I?"

"You are adorable."

"Please don't say that."

"Why not?"

"It's too sweet to know that some one thinks you adorable." Perley hadn't waited for an invitation to the place on his knees; at her side, now he displayed even less doubt that she would welcome his making free with her hand. But the doctor, or, rather, she had good show of disapproving, which he was well aware had all a part of the old old game. "You wouldn't be a part of the old old game," she quietly said, twisting her fingers in his "please."

"Why?"

"It isn't right."

"Why not?"

"You ask me that!" Her hand was her own again, and what he must have accounted a weakening of her self-confidence to all appearances was now repaired completely.

"Have you forgotten?" she pleasantly reproached him. "Jill?"

"I'm madly in love with you," he avowed with vast intensity. "A man can't think of two women at once."

"Can't he?" But it seemed to me one man will have to—if you truly care for me—be the one to do it."

"What difference does that make to you?"

"That's dodging the issue. What difference?"

"I'm afraid," she equivocated, "that's a question I have to let you find the answer for."

"You do love me, then?"

"Please you go fast, too fast."

"If you care a man of your pretty fingers for me you've got no right to torment me by refusing to answer."

She drew away from him a little, as if guiltily mischievous of him and sensitive.

"What am I refusing to answer?"

"He set it to her demands: "Do you love me?"

"Gosh and gosh!" "Do you think me a woman who could have a man she had to share with another?"

"You mean you want me to leave Jill for you?"

"Nothing of the sort!" A clear gleam of anger shone in her eyes. "What right have you to ask me to put such a burden on my conscience? Far better for you to forget me."

"Never."

"Go back to her; be happy with her once again——"

"Happy!" Delirious was lead in his laugh.

"Not even with me!"

"Oh you, of course."

"I don't like to be tethered to a wistful little boy who'll grow too big."

"Don't sit." Her smile up with his most effective smile. "That's I'd stand for your reasoning if I didn't!"

"Poor boy." Face and tone alike contrast Jill gave his shoulder a series of consoling pats. "I suppose I do say things I shouldn't. But it's only because I'm so crazy about you, I simply can't bear to have you even look at any other woman."

"Dear old girl." He put up a hand to catch her. "Can't you understand it's quite possible to look at other women without seeing them?"

She sank down to the arm of the chair, her hand stole across his shoulders. "I know . . . but tell me you can't see any of the others."

"The only woman in the world I can see, not dear, is extremely presentable, nothing else but that, I mean."

"I hope it's true," she said. "The never be, except you know, to be your girlfriend wife."

"Gardella, with I?" he wondered, not without misgivings.

"A slight one . . . to ornament the buttonhole of a man of affairs!" She bent swiftly, brushed laughing lips to his, and jumped up. "Now I must run, or hold up the game. See Perley!" she paused, appliant. "Promise me something," said Mrs. Annis, "I know you care more, while I'm playing—but you won't like with me."

Highest Ideals of Home and Service Formed in Carrying Out "The Law of Camp Fire"

"Seek beauty, give service, pursue knowledge, be trustworthy, hold on to health, grow work, be happy—such is the law of Camp Fire. The watchword is "Wholeness." It is made up of the first two letters of work, health and love."

How win the influence of this law, its effect on the young girl who strives to keep it in every thought and deed and its effect upon every one with whom she comes in contact? Be measured!

How many of us have seriously considered the aims and purposes of Camp Fire? Given encouragement to the movement? Looked into its merits for our own daughter?

Its inception was the result of one woman's effort to find the right channel through which to guide the thoughts, energy and life of her own daughters. And from this beginning in the private camp of Mrs. Luther Hulley Guilek on Lake Sebago, Maine, the national organization was formed on March 17, 1912, with only the girls of that community as members and has grown to its present status of approximately 200,000. Camp Fire is an educational and the Christian Association includes all guardians of the city and all those within commuting distance.

Purposes of Camp Fire

Camp Fire is essentially a great factor in developing love and appreciation of home.

It is organized efforts to assist the growing young in search of the world to find romance, beauty and real adventure in every day life; to take away any cordial thoughts of what is usually termed dreary, and to make the young girl more cheerful and gay.

In its every phase Camp Fire seeks to develop the highest ideals to make life a glorious, splendid thing. It provides opportunity for the girl to do her best for herself and for others; it brings the mother and daughter into a deeper closer understanding of mutual love; in developing the home spirit and it affects the entire community. The young girl gives the best of herself to the world and only the best comes back.

The Law of Camp Fire

In making the "Law of Camp Fire" the first requirement of members is "obey" but rather to consider its observation a wonderful privilege. Hence, the Camp Fire Girl when she becomes a member of the organization does not "pledge" or "promise" anything. She "adopts" it. "I follow the law and subsequently as she advances in the work her "desires" are expressed and carried out in service."

The law's first requirement demands that the Camp Fire Girl make the first step in seeking beauty to be in tune with it. They learn that it is necessary for one's own mind to be in a beautiful state in order to see the beauties of nature. The aims of Camp Fire are put forth to encourage beautiful thoughts of those with whom they come in contact, rather than to see the faults.

Each phase of the law is carefully taught. Camp Fire Girls are given short, sharp courses in which the importance of the right kind of service is stressed; Pursue Knowledge, in which the responsibility of citizenship is particularly emphasized; and the third, and most important, is the law of health, which is especially aimed at the health of the body and what they contribute to the world, is carefully and practically set forth. Be Trustworthy, wherein the earnestness of the given promise and the mutual obligations between the girl and the organization are explained.

Immediately upon her return, Miss Fisk devoted two strenuous weeks of preparation, including a camp rally for the second annual camp. As a result 36 girls attended the camp at Overholser Park, from July 5 to 12, which was successful from every standpoint. The increase of attendance over last year is significant of the worth and growth of the movement in this country.

At the present time Camp Fire is undergoing a thorough reorganization and is determined to accommodate its growing field.

One of the beautiful phases of Camp Fire is the use of emblem to give expression to "desire" and to denote progress in the work. Poetry, music, ceremony and ritual, costumes and drama is used to express their deeper purpose and vision.

The ceremonial gowns are all similar when first donned but as the young girl progresses, by the use of beautiful colored beads, she marks her progress and成就, and a record of her Camp Fire life on her dress in symbols.

Fire is the symbol of organization, for around it the first homes were built and the sun is used as a general symbol of life.

There are two groups on the Guardian's pin, the campfire and the torch.

A symbol of membership is the star.

"DOWN EIGHTH STREET"—By Jane Tramp

"Well," said Her-Who-Grafs-the-Emergency, "the only thing that saved both of you was the fact that you took so long to start."

"I like to give him a piece of my mind" is my trend of action, talk about a woman driving!

A broad-truck driver had cut in behind me to the right as I turned to park, saving himself the traffic to the left. It was a flagrant violation of traffic rules, to say nothing of common decency on the road.

And added one more incident to the thing I have gathered the most data on for the past two weeks, leading me to a fairly certain conclusion.

Women are not worse drivers than men.

Men are not worse drivers than women.

They both drive badly for different reasons.

And the reasons are fundamentally characteristic.

A woman will cut around to the right of a car because, right down in the bottom of her soul, a woman inherently despises convention, custom and law.

A man will cut around to the right of a car because, right up on top of his soul is the un-submergible conviction that he is the Lord of Creation, and while it is right and proper for drivers to respect ethics and ordinances, he can rise above them if the occasion seems to demand.

Twenty miles an hour is too fast for any driver to go on residence streets or in the business district, regardless of ordinance or state law. A horse drawn vehicle that made twenty miles an hour would be running away at mad speed. It would endanger the life of pedestrians at every turning, even if the animal kept to the right of the road and observed other traffic laws. Every single day the death list from automobile accidents in the business districts and at dangerous crossings alone—not counting those of peddlers in our accidents—rises higher and higher. In the big cities the toll is regular, every twelve-four hours, to say nothing of the serious crippling and less serious injuring of pedestrians and drivers.

We don't need to go that fast. Twelve miles at the residence districts crossings and downtown is enough for anybody. And yet a car on the streets going at that clip will be passed by every other driver on the road, even at some risk, in the general traffic. For instance, a car behind will crowd a slower car on the sections of half-paving, simply to gain twenty seconds of time. And we don't need the time!

It reminds us of the Englishman and the American who were traveling together. At Chicago they both were to take fast trains for the next stop. The American grabbed his bags and "Hi!" the provincial "chuck" for his train. The Englishman waited time to look about a bit. "What's the rush?" he wanted to know, or the English language to that effect. The American explained over his shoulder that if they took a certain train that would pull out in one minute they would get into Indianapolis three minutes sooner.

"But what do we want with the three minutes?" inquired the Englishman in some perplexity.

What do we want with these seconds we are saving, of comparatively free time, that would make up for the lives we are spending for?

For the driver who makes better speed than he could stop almost instantly on, downtown or in the residence section, is contributing his guilty bit to the speed mania which is responsible for from twelve to fifteen thousand deaths and a considerably greater number of crippled every single year. Had you thought about it?

Friends Friday afternoon when guests of honor were their parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Loughbridge, and sons, Walter and Sam Loughbridge, of San Antonio.

The room was beautifully decorated with branches of huckleberries, asparagus fern, yellow canna and alstroemeria. Score cards were artistic designs in the same colors.

Mr. G. N. Loughbridge was presented with a gold watch and chain, Mrs. J. Bradshaw a silver tea strainer for high tea, Mrs. Fowler a tooth pick holder for low, while on out Mrs. Hammond received a bat mat. Grape punch was served during the games and at the conclusion Mrs. Loughbridge, assisted by her daughter, served sherbet and waters.

Guests for the afternoon were Madames El. M. Ashe, J. I. Bert, Bradford, W. H. Clegg, D. D. Dilling, J. H. Fowler, R. C. Hammond, J. W. Hunt, J. R. Huddeleston, R. D. Lewis, H. Jagers, A. F. Stewart, E. B. Stewart, L. D. Townsend, Misses Evelyn Townsend, Misses Stewart, Ruth Peeler, Mrs. J. H. Reed and Joe Hunt.

Mrs. W. N. Langford will be hosting the club at 5:30 o'clock Friday afternoon of this week at her home, 384 Adams.

Society Women Make Good Mothers

BY MARIAN HALSTED
WHA Service Writer.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—"Society women are among the highest types of mothers we have in the country today. Their conscientious development into splendid mothers.

Daughters of first families usually have from four to six children, sometimes more.

This version of "high life" comes from Edith Charlick, who managed to bring up a family of babies to many of the first families of New York.

The young mothers of today have become well educated in the way in which their children should be educated and cultivated. They demand the best of training in their nurses and are constantly reading and keeping themselves up to date in child lore.

Miss Charlick started her agency nine years ago and now has 545 babies' nurses registered with her. Each nurse to qualify for the care of babies must have a high school education, two references from physicians and from a family, and must hold a diploma certificate from a recognized nurses' training school.

With these she may command from $10 to $22 dollars a month and have every convenience living expenses in her contract. The idea is so much in demand that she can choose where she may go for the summer or winter.

In connection with the regular work of the agency, Miss Charlick carries a fine line of made-to-order baby clothes. Some of the work made by nurses who are no longer able to do their regular work. It is with these dainty things she will decorate her booth at the Women's Fair, which will exhibit the fall, which she is to hold next month under the auspices of the League of Business and Professional Women.

Woman Will Be Tried Again on Lunacy Charge

The Iowa Park woman who was tried on a lunacy charge Thursday morning and held not guilty by the jury will face trial again at 11:30 o'clock Monday morning before County Judge B. D. Martin. Another complaint was sworn out before the county attorney Saturday afternoon.

At the former trial the woman took the stand and admitted that she was of a nervous disposition, but explained that her condition had been brought about because of the actions of her husband.

She testified that their six years of married life had been pleasant and happy but that three months ago another woman entered the scene and since that time she admitted having been of a rather temperamental disposition.

The husband testified that in his opinion his wife was of unsound mind and that the allegations made by his wife were a part of the hal-lucinations under which she was laboring.

SUFFERED WITH ITCHY PIMPLES On Face, Back and Arms. Cuticura Healed.

During the past year I suffered dreadfully with pimples. They affected my face and neck mostly. The pimples itched very badly causing me to scratch, and I could not eat. When I scratched them they became inflamed and festered.

I began using Cuticura soap and Ointment and could see good results in a week. I continued using them and now I am completely healed." (Signed) Miss Magnolia Huff, X, Box 104, Athens, Ga.

Cuticura Soap to cleanse and purify, Cuticura Ointment to soothe and heal and Cuticura Talcum to powder and perfume are ideal for daily toilet purposes.

SEVERAL BALES
GINNED AT CHARLIE

CHARLIE, Texas, Aug. 23.—Several bales of cotton have been ginned at the Farmers Gin Company gin in this town. The Charlie Gin Company gin is in good repair for the ginning season. Workmen on the Planters Gin Company gin, which is now under construction, are working hard to have the machinery all ready for ginning and the buildings almost finished. Cotton picking has been delayed a little by the recent rain.

Nice Little Party.
FLORENCE, Tex., Aug. 25.—A bull fight here came to an end without the bull having been killed. Customers, feeling debranded, became threatening. A bull was led in and stuck with a sword three times cold-bloodedly. Everybody was satisfied.

Sister Class Entertained. Among the most enjoyable affairs of the year was the social gathering recently held by the Sister Class to their families, and friends, numbering nearly 200. Through the courtesy of Mr. R. H. Chamberlain they were granted the use of his handsome building, making an ideal receptacle for the affair.

After a few remarks by the general class president, W. E. Williams, the program committee took charge of the evening's entertainment, and humorous amusing games were played by the various groups, the audience being a most appreciative crowd.

Headings by Perry Bryan, Winnie Lee Williams and W. D. Wofford were greatly enjoyed.

Lemonade was served during the program, and at the conclusion refreshments and cold watermelons were served.

The Men's Class socials are always looked forward to with joyful anticipation, for they are live wire affairs, the art of entertaining.

Women's Program. John Muller has returned from Lake Jimaluska, N. C., where he attended a laymen's meeting of the Southern Methodist Church. Mr. Muller represented the Vernon division, and was a member of the group that won the competition.

He reported a splendid trip and one of the very best meetings ever held.

Boyd is President.

R. E. Boyd, a young foreman for the Denver, has been promoted to Wichita Falls and Mr. and Mrs. Boyd left the first of the week for their new home. Mr. Boyd has many friends who rejoice over his promotion, and we wish him every success. Mr. T. Northcutt succeeds Mr. Boyd as "man in this city."

Pilla Baptist Past.

Rev. and Mrs. W. M. Reed and children of Oklahoma were at the Baptist Church in the absence of the pastor, Rev. Lancaster, who was conducting a meeting at Marquette. Rev. Reed is a young man, but is an able and forceful speaker, and his sermons were enjoyed by good crowds.

Forreston.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Jackson and daughter, Miss Winnie, have returned from a two week vacation in New Mexico and Arizona. They report a very pleasant trip.

IOWA BEAUTY CONTEST WINNER TO APPEAR IN "THE BRASS BOTTLE"

This young woman, who writes for the high-brow magazines may answer the Iowa "corn-fed beauties."

But London doesn't

Star motion pictures are produced by men who make the part of Alcats of Buleyman's court in Mansfield. Tournour's "The Brass Bottle" the First National-M. C. Laves picture showing at the Empress theater Thursday, Friday and Saturday, starts at 8 p.m. & in the evening.

Born on an Illinois farm, she spent all but the first of her seventeen summers in Iowa.

Then came the Chicago Tribune beauty contest, and there was added to her luster a list of artists the most beautiful woman in her home state.

The photographs that had won her race and form a place in the contest finals went to London to the terrible "Brass Bottle" and were sold to the highest bidder.

Barbara La Haye, the Iowa girl international photographic fair and there won first prize in the portrait class.

She won an American Legion beauty contest and now heads the new executive member of La Societe des Amis Monniers et I. Chevauzeau, the Legion's star party auxiliary.

Gouverneur Morris picked her as the best-looking type in America, magnified by a magazine picture magazine, in which tens of thousands of photographs were submitted.

Two medals of honor from other motion picture magazines—Beauty contests came her way.

Of course, she moved to Hollywood.

Maurice Tourneur made her, and gave her the part of a beauty beloved by a gimp in "The Brass Bottle."

Discovered by a messenger from the studio as she comes from the bath, Atchka is told of the trial that has been entered against her—to hold the attention of Buleyman while the court is in session.

As our eyes—her—she comes and tells Buleyman, the wife, no when, in a magnificent court scene, she attempts to hold him by her beauty, she fails.

The part offers Miss Kester many opportunities to exhibit her blonde beauty of face and form in gorgeous scenes of Oriental splendor.

Meanwhile,

LONDON, Aug. 26.—Alexander Cimino, Macon, sentenced to dash for murder, made the remarkable statement in court that he had had a perfect alibi and, upon his release, realized he would be "square" guilty.

He was sentenced to death.

Introduction of Many Popular New Models Cause Maintenance Big Sales And Production Levels Motor Cars

By ROY C. HAYES,
Universal Service Special Correspondent

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 26.—High production and sales levels now being maintained in the motor industry are principally the result of introduction of new models by more than a dozen companies in the last week. Profitability in general business is seen as a supporting factor. The foregoing are responsible not only for an active market, but for keeping the public interest keenly attached to the automobile, which is still in its infancy in this country, in later weeks. The coming of cooler weather will give an additional impetus to sales, manufacturers say.

Price revisions in the last ten days have shown a downward trend. Greater economies in engineering and manufacturing, about to come, will result in a reduction of severe competition, which is beginning to show itself. No general price cutting is expected, although one well known Michigan company will bring out a new line next month at a reduction of $100 from the present price.

Various rumors about changes in the Ford cars are afloat in motor circles here. The factory is silent in the face of the reports that the wheel base will be lengthened, cylinder chamber size reduced, and front end body increased. Reports have it that the new car will be available early in September, with no change in price. In the meantime Ford production continues to attain new heights, the factory having output of 5,800 cars and trucks in one day.

Another Recent Year.
Buick is shaking a brave attempt to satisfy all the demands being made on the factory for the new cars. "The influx of orders is keeping us all on our toes," E. T. Morris, general manager, told The Detroit News. "Production is increasing every day and it looks like another record year for us. Good conditions are getting better and better. This is proven by statistics in nearly every line of endeavor."

Buick is now employing extra men in an effort to meet the demands.

FORD ANNOUNCES IMPROVED BODIES TRUCKS AND CARS

By ROY A. HAYES
Universal Service Special Correspondent

DETROIT, Aug. 26.—New and improved body designs of Ford cars are announced by the Ford Motor Company. No change has been made in the price.

The company is now producing and turning out 1200 cars and trucks daily. Introduction of a higher grade of steel has resulted in some minor changes. There are not displaying any radical departure from the Ford standard. The new radiator sets higher than formerly, has an arrow at the bottom which joins a similar apron effect on the front of the grille. The highly finished appearance of the front of the car. The larger radiators also increase the cooling efficiency.

Most conspicuous among the new type is the coupe, which is of distinctive body design and construction. It has a more comfortable interior appearance, more comfortable seating arrangement and a greater luggage carrying capacity. The gasoline tank is under the seat, with divided cushion to afford easy fitting of the tank from the rear. The tank is large enough for the driver to have his seat. The new radiator is extended to the Ford truck chassis, affording improved appearance and better cooling to delivery service.

THE MOTORISTS' PROBLEMS

By WILLIAM H. STEWART, JR.

MOTOR DEPARTMENT: What should be inspected by a skilled mechanic as to the condition of the transmission? What is a good oil? What is the best advantage? Should the side gear head and compressor cases be over oil; the connections from the steering head forward and eliminate all lost motion replacing worn parts where necessary?

THE TRANSMISSION CHAMBER: Should the gear case and oil indicate poor combustion and this in turn indicate too much oil or too rich a mixture. If the piston rings fit badly or if the engine is timed wrong, similar results will be noted.

MOTOR DEPARTMENT: What is the advantage of over-size tires? Are they really worth the extra money?

THE TIRES: A tire is given a rubber surface for the weight carried there is less strain on a given part of the surface, consequently less danger of puncture and a longer life. A larger tire will permit using smaller rim and thus afford easier riding qualities. The added cost is well worth while.

MOTOR DEPARTMENT: My front wheels run in a zig-zag course and the steering wheel has to be turned back and forth to get the car straight again. What is the trouble?

THE STEERING GEAR: Tighten up the adjustment on the steering gear itself. If this, has not done it will be well to inspect new steering head parts. Have it the clutch bearing, clutch collar and clutch shaft bearing or gear in transmission case. By inspecting these parts carefully the trouble may be discovered. The repair would only be undertaken by a skilled repair man. Usually when the clutch thrust bearing needs replacing such trouble is experienced.

MOTOR DEPARTMENT: The other day while blowing up an inner tube, to test for a leak it burst. If the tube will burst with too much pressure why doesn't the shoe do the same?

WHAT IS THE CONSTRUCTION OF A SHOE?

There are several good ones on the market. Your automobile supply dealer will advise you, as we cannot advise you in particular device it to stand so great a pressure.

MOTOR DEPARTMENT: Will you kindly advise me as to how to set a steady grinding hole in the clutch hub? I am having trouble with the clutch hub to gear. Kindly tell me where and how to take up lost motion. Thanking you—MEADEEN.

TIGHTEN UP THE ADJUSTMENT: Tighten up the adjustment on the steering gear itself. If this, has not done it will be well to inspect new steering head parts. Have it the trouble evidently lies between Remove wire from No. 3 spark plug and see if spark jumps from wire to plug. If it shows a good spark, the plug is at fault. If no spark, the trouble is further back. Check the insulation of the wire to plug. After making sure that there is no leak in insulation of wire, examine inside and outside of distributor. There may be a small crack through which the current may leak.

MOTOR DEPARTMENT: The wiring which runs to the tail light becomes hot or cold. It will be difficult to determine the cause of this heat, unless the bulb won't burn. Can the trouble be in the switch? If you will remove the bulb and connect a 12-volt battery across the bulb terminals it will be very hot.

JUDGING FROM YOUR DESCRIPTION: You have a short circuit on the lamp wire in the socket. This causes the contact to stick and so heats up the wire. At other times it sticks and then burns out.

A PIECE OF ELECTRIC TAPE: A piece of electric tape should be used to locate the defective part and replace it.

MOTOR DEPARTMENT: My front lamps forward when the pedal is held in neutral position and so heat the car with a lamp applied to the brake also. What causes this?

THE PLANETARY GEAR: Set the planetary gear set in controlled by contrasting bands for low and reverse speeds, and it is very likely that the band on the low speed drum is too tight, and so holds the drum from rotating when the pedal is in neutral. This band may be released by turning the adjustment screw which projects through the rear case from the second drum.

HELPFUL HINTS: Go over the rims and free them from rust so that tire changing may easily done. Heavy cuts should be filed off from the rim and wire wrapped around a block of wood. Then use aluminum paint or the special rim paint.

REPAIRING A RIM: Most people neglect the tires when repairing a rim. Go over the tread carefully from time to time, digging out small stones and filling the cuts with tire putty. You will be surprised at the increased mileage you will get.

REPAIRING A TIRE: Before you sell all your damaged tubes pick out the best one and turn it inside. Rubber bands cut from old tire tracks wide are just right for this purpose. Tie them together folded twice as they do not heat into it.

WHO SAYS BUSINESS IS TOUGH? They're all "sobbing the blues"—squawking their heads off—and holding "no business, no business." If business is tough they're making it tough. Let 'em bring their price tags down to where we have ours and they'll get the business. "We're getting it." If we were after the same profits some of these birds are getting around this man's town we'd get in front of a "mirror" give ourselves the once-over, and say, "Jesus James ain't dead yet." "No business—how do those birds get that way?" Now look down the list of these interned "babies" waiting for somebody to take them out in their machines for a ride—just giving themselves away.

MOTORING MISSESBy F. D. THOMPSON

By F. D. THOMPSON
New York Service Engineer
Mechanical sense, as they tell us, is not one of the predominating attributes of feminine folk, and this is what the thoughtless girls, noting the over-interested number of women motorists and knowing from his own experience that tires do not always stay hard—carburators do not always accelerate—starters always break—tires always blow up on the back of cars begin to wonder.

"Today's sport spectator."

Now one, not even a dinged-down in Daddy's Sport Spender, can run up any formidable mileage and, how these girls do it drive, without encountering some trouble—some minor mishap perhaps—requiring the exercise of a touch of ingenuity, perhaps, rather than a

And then again, isn't lack of wisdom enough as to essential directions of the proper car and adjustments a small drawback?

Our Periodic "Flashes":

There's ample room for argument that score, of course.

But there is this about it which captivates:

We motorists males beset us, there are menfolk, well antibuted, who do the work."

In tracing the development of motor car design in recent months, we have seen that H. H. Nordyke, manager of the Nordyke & Marmon Company, gave special emphasis to the subject of frame rigidity.

While the conditions under which a motor car is operated may never be the same as a stationary engine or the power plant of a ship, the tendency is to approximate those conditions as closely as possible.

That is, the tendency is in the direction of greater frame rigidity.

Steam engines half a century old are functioning perfectly today. There are boats with reciprocating steam engines on the Great Lakes that you wouldn't recognize.

The like wear out from under them.

"It is, one thing to design and build an efficient and reliable power plant and another to put it under ideal working conditions. The Marmon engineers have met this problem by designing a chassis on the principle of a bridge girder, so that the working parts and the body of the car are positively fortified against strains.

"To add to the strength and increased rigidity of the frame, the frame the running boards are made part of it. They are not merely steps. They serve as a definite structural purpose. Under any road conditions, therefore, it is entirely free from twist and distortion."

New System of Collecting Taxes to Save Much Time and Little Waiting Will Be Experienced by Tax Payers

With the cooperation of the tax payers of the county, the new system of collecting taxes, inaugurated this year by Guy Raley, county tax collector, will be a great time saver and will serve to keep the former long waiting lines down to the minimum.

Members of Mr. Raley's office have already begun the process of mailing to every taxpayer in the county, by October 1, practically every property owner will have before him a complete itemized statement of the taxes due and a description of the property he

The taxpayer will receive two copies of his statement, of taxes which he is urged to bring with him at the time he pays his taxes. The original copy will be marked paid and will serve as evidence for payment. The duplicate copy will be bound in a folder and kept as a permanent record for Mr. Raley's office.

A notice is being inserted with each statement mailed out, which reads that the tax collector, even though he may be compelled to see that all the property is listed on it and properly described, the taxpayer is also asked to bring the statement in duplicate with him and present it at

Persons entering Austria, France, Hungary, Poland, Romania and Yugoslavia should upon first reaching the border declare to the authorities the kind and amount of money they intend to spend in their possession and obtain an attestation of the fact, which attestation will enable them to take out of the country the money and valuables brought in.

The export of Greek money is absolutely forbidden, the circular rules state. Not more than $150 can be taken out of Greece and any amount exceeding $150 will be seized and surrendered to the Greek public treasury. IF YOU want an automobile you can use day in and day out throughout the year; a car to use on good roads or bad; in hot weather or cold; in storm or in sunshine—a car that is ready when you want it and that will stand the test of hard driving—then, you need a Lincoln.

The preference for this beautiful and sturdy model, growing stronger every year, is due primarily to its wide range of utility, to the efficiency of its motor and to its beautiful lines and upholstery.

For shopping, for touring in the country, for business purposes, or the theatre, the Lincoln is fast establishing itself as the foremost exponent of its type and kind.

RAILROAD CONSOLIDATION

By Wichita Journal Member Times, Denver

ARTICLE III. Argument for and Against Consolidation of Railways

NAME is that of the Pennsylvania and the Baltimore & Ohio.

In the preceding article I have called attention to the problem of the weak and strong road operating as competitors in the same territory. Congress called upon the Interstate Commerce Commission to consolidate these properties so that each strong road would not have to compete with another to earn a living.

We have in the southwest a number of roads which would be consolidated to that road could be described which would bring a fair return to the roads as a system.

For many months, the Interstate Commerce Commission has been working on this problem of putting the weak roads with the strong. It has had its task almost imperceptibly difficult. For example, in the northeast there are two systems of roads that have been in existence through the years—the New York Central, the Pennsylvania and the Baltimore & Ohio. The other roads of the Northeast are relatively much smaller than the three above mentioned.

To place all the railroads of the northeast in three systems would perhaps be necessary if the management of the roads observed that that is what the strong and weak roads should be actually put together. But that would make three systems so large that operating officials would not be able to work effectively.

Moreover, consolidation is voluntary, and it is hard to conceive how it could be otherwise, for it would be very difficult to compel railroad to buy another railroad.

A man may be compelled to sell his property for public use, but we have as yet no law to compel a man to buy what he does not want. Moreover, it would be difficult to get any assurance from the strong systems that they would not be compelled to buy the weak roads paralleling them.

There are such systems in the northwest, in the southeast, in the southwest and particularly in the west.

The strongest systems in the west are the Pacific, the Katy and the Cotton Belt into one system, and of the old Gould lines into the Missouri Pacific system. Numerous examples of road consolidations can easily be met in consolidating these roads since the commission evidently was not able to get any assurance from the strong systems that they would not be compelled to buy the weak roads.

There are such systems in the south, these lines having been consolidated into two relatively local and competing systems composed of financially weak properties.

Weak roads also cannot be made up of weak links, and therefore can hardly be consolidated or financially weak properties.

PAUL THE APOSTLE

By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN

the week of great man, commanding, measuring least by other members of his group or society or class. A scion is the greatest of his state or nation; the greatest of his age in history.

Sometimes a man rises so high as to stand alone in his class. Paul was such a man.

As it was, I had made my journey, and was soon to Damascus about noon, suddenly there shone from heaven a great light around about me.

And I heard a voice saying unto me, "Paul, stand up; for this is the day of thy salvation." And he said unto me, "I am Jesus of Nazareth, Who art thou?" And he said unto me, "I am Jesus of Nazareth, Who art thou?"

And they that were with me saw indeed the light, and were afraid; but they heard not the voice of him that spoke to me.

And I said, "What shall I do, Lord?" And he said unto me, "Arise and go into Damascus; and there it shall be told thee of all things which are appointed for thee."

But what things were said to me, these I counted loss for Christ.

The difficulties, and I count them loss, for the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord; for whom I have suffered the loss of all things, and do count them but dung, that I may win Christ.

And when I had come into the city, I found that which was in the law, but that which is through the faith of Christ, the righteousness which is of God by faith.

That I may know him, and the power of his resurrection, and the fellowship of his suffering, being made conformable unto his death.

Now when I had come into the city, I found that which was in the law, but that which is through the faith of Christ, the righteousness which is of God by faith.

He who has been born again, who has been born of water and the Spirit, has been born of the Spirit, and is no longer under the law.

As an introduction it has no equal in literature. I heard Wendell Phillips when I was in college; he gave a fine lecture on "The Lost Sheep." It was a very simple, direct, and forcible sermon. Mr. Phillips was a sufficient introduction for an introduction to his great master, "Jesus of Diamonds."

A People's Master.

He opened up over our hearts the New Testament. When he has written has been even more effective than the extracts from his speeches that have been preserved.

He was a man of infinite interest, dealing with all the questions of faith and practice of belief and conduct.

He had clearness of statement, appliances of illustration, and a wealth of illustrations, and a wealth of wit, art in the unfolding of the subject, and genius in the building of climaxes.

His pen was as eloquent as his tongue, and the secret of his power was in his pen. Every great writer is his orator, and his writer, but comparatively few have read what they have said or been stirred by their arguments.

Paul's power when we consider his conversion. It was a remarkable experience, one of the most dramatic known.

Paul was a Jew, brought up in the synagogues and well educated in the schools of the rabbis. He was one of that for he had a mind which placed itself readily to instructions and absorbed information.

His religious nature was as well developed as his mind. The course that he followed to be right he pursued with zeal. He had avowed the motto that thine is to keep a body in rest and mine is to lead souls to salvation. This was the high aim of Christ's mission to Israel.

A Dramatic Conversion.

He was not like Demosthenes, the orator; his religion is self-sacrifice; his religion was sacrifice. In the presence of Christians. He did not wait for the followers of Christ to distract his own community; he wrote letters and started on a considerable tour, in search of those whom he was desirous to be converted of his religion.

He was on the way to Damascus, "breathing out threatenings and slaughter," when he was blinded by a bright light from heaven. He heard a voice and heard a voice saying, "Paul, Paul, why persecute me?" He answered, "Who art thou, Lord?" And the Lord said, "I am Jesus of Nazareth whom thou persecute." And he fell on his face, blind before the light, but heard not the voice that was heard by Paul.

Paul's question indicates that his conversation was instantaneous. He was an honest man, therefore, when he said, "I am Jesus of Nazareth whom thou persecute." He had received no opportunity to relate his experience. He had received his commission, and was about to proclaim the power of the incidents connected with his conversion.

Two Kinds of Change.

The contrast between Paul and Aaron gives us a picture of a worshiper of God and afterwards yielding to the enticement of the children of Israel; he was a backslider, an apostate, and his change was not only not effectively as an argument.

Paul, on the contrary, was an enemy of the Christians even to the extent of rejecting them in their efforts to convert the Gentiles. He had the day and the hour, and started in proclaiming the change that had taken place. He wove the facts into his mission and overcame

PAUL THE APOSTLE—THE FAMOUS BIBLE TALK BY WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN

(Acts 22: 1-16; Phil. 3: 1-14)

I am verily a man which is Jesus, born in Tarsus, a city in Cilicia, brought into this city at the feet of Gamaliel, and taught according to the manner of the law of the fathers, and was zealous toward his countrymen all the day.

And it came to pass, when I made my journey, and was come near to Damascus about noon, suddenly there shone from heaven a great light around about me.

And I heard a voice saying unto me, "Paul, stand up; for this is the day of thy salvation." And he said unto me, "I am Jesus of Nazareth, Who art thou?" And he said unto me, "I am Jesus of Nazareth, Who art thou?"

And they that were with me saw indeed the light, and were afraid; but they heard not the voice of him that spoke to me.

And I said, "What shall I do, Lord?" And he said unto me, "Arise and go into Damascus; and there it shall be told thee of all things which are appointed for thee."

But what things were said to me, these I counted loss for Christ.

The difficulties, and I count them loss, for the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord; for whom I have suffered the loss of all things, and do count them but dung, that I may win Christ.
