Declares Haynes Does Not Know the Volstead Law

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 4. (AP)—Congressman John P. Hill, whose case concerning United States District Attorney Amos W. Woodcock, will be put before the United States grand jury next Thursday, has announced he will return to Baltimore before the case comes up. Mr. Woodcock announced last night that he will ask the grand jury to indict Mr. Hill for violation of the Volstead act. The congressman is at his summer home at Southampton, L. I. He said that he had planned to return to Baltimore next Wednesday, but would come home sooner if necessary. Mr. Hill, who declared in a statement that Commissioner Haynes does not know the Volstead law, requested governmental agents be sent from Washington to test wine he has been making in his cellar. The tests were made last week and reports made to Washington officials. Commissioner Haynes put the case in the hands of Mr. Woodcock, who declared that he would ask the grand jury for indictment. He also declared that he would "do his best, fairly and squarely, to convict him."

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4. (AP)—Governor Pinchot early today personally observed the open defiance by Philadelphia saloons of his order to cease business under threat of being closed with according to the "padlock section" of the prohibition law. On Tuesday the governor and federal department of justice agents issued joint order notifying the 1,300 or more local saloons and cafes to close and dismantle their places within 48 hours. A large force of government agents and state police who served the notice on the proprietors completed their work late night. Shortly thereafter Governor Pinchot made the rounds to see for himself whether the order was being obeyed. He visited half a dozen or more places and found them all doing a flourishing business. He made no comment. He said he probably would give out a statement later in the day.

Ford Refuses to Stop and Store Is Damaged $50

BURBURNETT, Texas, Oct. 4.—The Liberty Drug Store was damaged about 100 Wednesday morning when a Ford car became unmanageable and instead of coming to a halt at the curb, it passed over the sidewalk and crashed into one of the show windows of the store. Burburnett and vicinity received another heavy rain beginning early Wednesday morning and continuing at intervals during the day. Cotton picking was abruptly brought to a halt, otherwise the rain was beneficial to newly planted wheat and pastures. Several hundred bales of cotton had been ginned to date by the local gin and compares favorably with last year's output. The bottom lands along Red River are showing a good production. About 50 bales have been picked from the Vanhook lands east of Burburnett and ginned at Wichita Falls.

On the 25th day, his attorney said Mr. Letter discovered he had the hose. He had worn hose valued at $23 up to that time.

Unique Exhibit of Oil Company Draws Interest

There is one exhibit at the Texas-Oklahoma Fair which may be said to have attracted universal attention. Visitors from the smallest school boy to the oldest oil field rough-neck having found it of special interest.

This unique display is a complete and detailed representation in miniature of the Humble Oil and Refining Company's Baytown refinery, located at Houston, claimed to be the second largest refinery in the United States.

The exhibit covers a table about 12 by 18 feet in size and was made by L. P. Stevenson of Houston, engineer; K. E. Stewart, Houston, electrical engineer; and R. C. Holding, Houston, carpenter, with J. D. Turner, manager in charge of the exhibit.

Every step of the oil industry, from the producer to the consumer, is covered, starting with an oil well in the process of drilling on to the flowing and the pumping wells, through the pipe lines, refinery and filling stations.

The trucks of the company are shown on tank cars on a tiny railroad, the Houston ship channel with docks, railroad crossings, concrete highways, signal switching towers, surveys and civil engineering, power or house, loading frame, flames on poles, all are carried out in complete detail.

An amusing feature is the home of the farmer who owned the land standing idly in his tiny front yard with nothing to do but draw his royalty.

A Red Cross nurse is shown on a call to the wreck of an automobile, with the victim of the accident stretched on the miniature grassy bank under a miniature tree.

The office building of the refinery is complete, with the radio which is used for communication with the tank and other departments, power or house, loading frame, flames on poles, all are carried out in complete detail.

It will be moved from here to the state fair at Dallas, it was stated, and then back to Houston for the fair there this fall.

Quaker Puffed Wheat and Quaker Puffed Rice are whole grains steam exploded. The food cells are blasted for easy digestion. The grains are puffed to airy globules, 8 times normal size. They are airy, crisp and flaky, and they have a nut-like taste.

They are made to make whole grains tempting and easy to digest. Millions of people are better fed because Quaker Puffed Grains made whole grains enticing.

There are no other grain foods to compare. Let no day go by without them.

ELEVENTH BODY IS RECOVERED FROM SCENE OF WRECK

CASPER, Wyo., Oct. 4.—The body of W. E. Hendricks, railway mail clerk, was recovered from the Cole creek wreck today. It was dug from the small compartment of the combination car.

Hendricks was the eleventh victim recovered.

CASPER, Wyo., Oct. 4.—The shifting sands of Cole creek, scene of a Burlington passenger train wreck last Thursday night, yesterday gave up the bodies of five persons who lost their lives when the train crashed through a bridge.

Five of them were men and the other a woman.

The bodies were identified by Burlington officials as follows: W. E. PARKER, Casper; FRED FARGO, Casper; CHARLES BROWN, Denver, Colo.; W. S. WILSON, Denver, Colo., international organizer for the printer's union.

MISS MINKIE OWENS, Casper, Wyo. The body of the woman was found in the Platte river, into which Cole creek empties, 30 miles from the scene of the wreck. Its discovery, railroad officials said, bears out the theory that several bodies of the score or more of persons who died in the wreck may be found far from the spot where the train plunged into the creek. Ten dead have now been recovered.

COUNTY JUDGES AND MEMBERS OF COURT MEET HERE

The county judges and county commissioners of the state will meet in this city Friday morning in annual convention. The sessions will be held at the court house in one of the district court rooms. It is predicted that more than 100 members of the association will be in attendance.

Upon arrival in the city the delegates will assemble at the court house, where they will register in the county judge's office.

W. D. Cline, president of the chamber of commerce, will welcome the judges and commissioners on behalf of the city, while Judge B. D. Sartin will welcome them on behalf of the county. The president of the association will respond.

The entertainment committee has arranged for a number of events, including a banquet Friday night at the Kemp Hotel and an auto trip to Burburnett Saturday, where a dinner will be served under the direction of Miss Georgia Lanford and the children of the Cashlon school.

GRAND JURY BACK THURSDAY; FORTY WITNESSES READY

The grand jury of the October term of the 39th district court resumed Thursday morning, after recessing last Monday noon and found not less than forty witnesses waiting to be admitted.

With 31 cases in which defendants are in jail and equally as many out on bond and probably thirty cases in which no arrests have been made, it seems probable that the grand jury's session will be a prolonged one.

Congressman Notified That It's Violation

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 3.—Representative John Phillip Hill of Maryland has been notified by Prohibition Commissioner Haynes that his experiment in making gruit juices are in violation of the provisions of the national prohibition act which prohibits the manufacture and possession of alcoholic liquor for beverage purposes.

The commissioner therefore feels, wrote Mr. Hill, that it is his duty to bring the matter to the attention of the United States district attorney of Maryland "for such action as he may deem proper in the premises."

Mr. Hill has stated heretofore that he started the manufacture of fruit juices in his cellar for home use exclusively, first advising Commissioner Haynes and requesting that prohibition inspectors visit his home to ascertain at what time the beverages passed the legal limit.

In his letter to Representative Hill, made public today, Commissioner Haynes declares that under the official chemical test made by his office there was an alcoholic development ranging from 6.32 per cent by volume to 21.4 per cent by volume.

Higher Gasoline For This Winter Producers Claim

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Gasoline will cost more this winter and will be still higher in the spring, according to opinions expressed at the convention here of the American Oil Men's Association.

Supporting that belief, reasons advanced were that by February production of oil will be 500,000 barrels a day lower than it is now. Present surplus stocks will be wiped out by the close of 1924 unless there is a quick change in the situation and small independent producers whose surplus production tends to keep prices down, will be out of business by winter if the depression in the oil industry continues.

Independent companies spent more drilling wells last year than they received from the oil they produced from the old 1300 foot sand, which was once deepened to the new horizon.

The new find is located about 6 miles west of the Hewitt field, which has several producing levels.

MARKS ON BODY FOUND CORRESPOND WITH THOSE ON SOLDIER ON FURLOUGH

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 4.—Marks on the body of a man found in the bayou at Houston correspond to the marks of Sergeant Thomas Turner, company M, 13rd infantry, Fort Sam Houston, many officers said today. These included a tattoo mark of a woman's head, a snake and a dancer on the arm.

FLORIDA COTTON CROP PRACTICALLY A FAILURE

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Oct. 4.—The Florida cotton crop is practically a failure, according to the official chemical test made by today by Sam T. Fleming, agricultural statistician in the local bureau of economics, United States department of agriculture. Production will not cost 13,000 bales on 171,000 acres planted. It is estimated. Last year's production was 25,000 bales on 125,000 acres planted.

NEW PAY SAND IS UNCOVERED IN OLD HEALDTON FIELD

Temple Houston Morrow of Dallas was the principal speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club at the Kemp Hotel Thursday. Mr. Morrow entertained the crowd with several humorous after dinner stories and changed to the more serious vein in urging the cultivation of the spirit of brotherly feeling and human kindness. Walter Cline, president of the club, introduced the speaker.

C. U. Daniels, in charge of the musical program, introduced the saxophone sextette which is one of the feature attractions at the fair grounds. The musicians entertained with a program of popular numbers and answered repeatedly to the continued applause of the club.

Dr. J. W. Cantwell, superintendent of city schools, was introduced as a new member of the club under the classification of city schools.

EL PASO MAKING EFFORT TO GET NEXT CONVENTION

Frank D. Scottin, tax assessor of El Paso county, assisted by a number of his friends, is making a determined effort to secure next year's convention of the tax assessors and collectors for his home town.

Many inducements are being held forth by the boosters for El Paso, declaring that it is absolutely the only logical place in the entire state for the holding of next year's meeting. So far as could be ascertained late Thursday afternoon this is the only city in the state which is making a strong bid for the meeting.

Mr. Scottin came to the convention here prepared with an invitation from everybody in El Paso from the mayor and chamber of commerce down to the bell boys in the hotels, who voted 100 per cent strong, according to Mr. Scottin.

Man Wanted By New York Police Killed In Paris

PARIS, Oct. 4.—After one of the most extensive and stubborn searches in the annals of the French police, Gabriel Alphonse Mourey, alias Henri Bolla, master mind in the sensational Shattuck jewel robbery in New York in April, 1922, was finally located at Chelles, 12 miles from Paris, today and shot down while resisting arrest.

Establishing the fact that Mourey was staying in the little Seine-et-Marne town the police last night drew a cordon around his villa and at daybreak made a concerted rush upon the house. Mourey met their charge with a fusillade of shots from two automatic pistols, forcing the officers to retreat and take to cover behind nearby trees. A bullet sent through the window as he was resuming fire after reloading his weapons brought the fugitive down.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The Shattuck jewel robbery was one of the most sensational crimes in the history of the city.

On April 2, 1922, five robbers, led by Henri Bolla, a butler in the Washington Square home of Albert R. Shattuck, a retired financier, locked Mr. Shattuck, his wife and seven servants in the wine cellar of the house where they were held prisoners until Mrs. Shattuck nearly died from suffocation. They finally made their escape through the ingenuity of Mr. Shattuck, who pried open the lock. Meanwhile the robbers had tied with $250,000 worth of jewelry.

Three of the five robbers have been accounted for to date. With Mourey killed and Eugene Diaz and Maurice Bagnoll arrested in Plainfield, N. J., and sent to Sing Sing for 10 to 15 years, only two others are at large.

Shattuck has offered a $50,000 reward for the arrest of Bolla.

To Call Juries Only First Two Weeks of Month

As a measure to keep down the expense of courts in this county, it has been decided by the judges of the district and county courts to summon jury panels only for the first two weeks of each month. In this manner all jury cases will be set for trial during the first two weeks of a month and the remainder of the month will be utilized in the trial of non-jury cases.

The judges have made this announcement to attorneys asking their cooperation in the cause of keeping down expenses.

This rule will obtain throughout in the conduct of the courts, except in instances where criminal cases are set for some time other than during the first two weeks of a month. The courts, however, will not set down civil jury cases for any other time, unless it is highly imperative that the rule be disregarded.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

How long halt ye between two opinions? If the Lord be God, follow him; but if Baal, then follow him: 1 Kings 18:21.

There is nothing more pitiable in the world than an irresolute man, oscillating between two feelings, who could willingly unite the two, and who does not perceive that nothing can unite

THY NEIGHBOR

The "Neighbor" column in the Times has attracted attention and some comment, outside of the people who are in touch with it from the standpoint of helper or helped.

"I guess you're investigating these folks who ask for clothes," one reader remarked when the column first appeared.

"Well, you've started something you'll get sick of before you are through with it," remarked another.

"Do you know they can take a good suit of man's clothes, or a good dress, and sell it to the old clothes man?" inquired a third.

"Well, a fly in his own tongue—and to his own faith. To keep the record straight, however, it might be remarked on the side, from information furnished by the Neighbor Column editor, that not a single piece of clothing for a grown person, of any kind whatever, has yet been furnished through that column.

There is nothing more pitiable in the world than an irresolute man, oscillating between two feelings, who could willingly unite the two, and who does not perceive that nothing can unite

That is what the "Neighbor" column is for. To help the mothers who are unwilling to subject their boys and girls to an experience which may color years of their after life. It is a column conducted in good faith, and the dozens of good women who are assisting the woman's page editor with the work of making necessary do not regard their work as "charity" in the popular and misused sense of the term.

There is no pleasure as great, from their own standpoint, as that which they feel when they have been able to be a real neighbor to a mother who needs help, through the medium of the notes received for the Times' column.

And it certainly ought to be generally understood that no woman being as any inflexible insurance against "hard times"; especially—heaven knows!—a mother.

IN DESPAIR. The attempt to obtain cheap energy, by unlocking the vast power contained in the atom, is practically futile, according to a leading English scientist.

The virtually "throws the sponge" because able minds have been trying for about 20 years to release the energy in the atom, and seem no nearer to success than when they started.

Shacks! That's no reason for becoming discouraged. Twenty years is nothing in the long history of humanity. Why, the crude principle of the steam engine was known 160 years or so ago. Yet it was not until about 150 years ago that the steam engine was made a practical or usable device.

All of us can understand the discouraged English scientist. It is human nature to become impatient and discouraged during the battle for success— which nearly always is a slow battle.

For all we know, man may be on the very verge of discovering how to harness the atom's terrific power. Such great discoveries nearly always are the result of accident—blunder. And accident is like lightning, it comes unexpectedly, cannot be forecast. It should be remembered that the seemingly insignificant discoveries are made at unexpected moments. While the world was joking about airplanes and predicting that they were impossible, the Wright brothers suddenly made the first trip. It was so with everything she gives us. A crop isn't matured to harvest overnight. It requires time, patience, effort. And, on the average, the farmer gets no more from his work than he puts into it.

The ability to harness the atom's power would be worth thousands of years of research. We can't expect nature to give us her secret until we have labored enough to deserve it. Trouble is, humanity expects too much—wants its pay before the job is finished.

Magnus Johnson says he believes in books. We believe in bank books, but not in cook books.

That crop is large. Go ahead and get cinders in your eyes. Help use surplus flax seeds.

Many are taking advantage of the fall weather to say they didn't mind summer so much.

All is not cool that glimmers.

JUST FOLKS

BUCKWHEAT CAKES. Days are getting colder, wind is getting colder, Sumac's turning scarlet just a little down the way; A little clearer, winter's getting nearer.

Buckwheat cakes for breakfast would go mighty good today!

Misty like this morning in the valley, that's a warning Frost is due to tell us that the summer's on the wane;

Cattle stand together as a sign of chilly weather, Buckwheat cakes for breakfast would go mighty good again.

Flowers are looking faded, just a trifle tired and jaded; Just a few to blossom, then the frost will cut them down.

Wonder what's the matter? Mother ought to set her better, Guess I'll have to tell her that the summer's leaving town.

Morning's cold and nippy and the grass is wet and slippy, And it's good to see the blaze of a wood fire in the grate.

Signs of fall appearing, for the long cold days are nearing, And at breakfast time I'd like to see some buckwheats on my plate.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

Thank God, there is nothing final in this world. Even the last word of the completed story of the artist in words, leaves no finality—every mind that it touches carries it on.

Experience is made up of chapters. Even this moving life of yours becomes but a chapter in the great book of eternity, which is without end.

Recently received a letter from one of the readers of these Talks expressing her sadness and loneliness over the loss of one very dear, whose companionship she had shared happily for more than thirty years.

As I read, I said to myself what a beautiful chapter in her life and what a happy adventure. The first book I ever read was "The Old Fashioned Girl," by that lovely writer Louisa Alcott. When I had finished it, I felt a little portion of life had dropped away, for I felt sure that no other book would ever give me such a thrill of happiness. But other books did and have for years and years.

I miss the mother of my youth more and more. It has been twenty years since she went away. But the chapter of her rare devotion and love grows sweeter every time I read it anew, and as the ripened years appear, one after the other, I grow more appreciative of the privilege of having had her for the time I did.

Our lives are made up of chapters. And after we have written one, it is finished. There can be no revision. But we can write a new chapter with each fresh moment!

And although we write each chapter that makes up the book of our life, we never know until that chapter is finished just what it has contained of import to us.

Then it is, however, that we may review and compare every chapter before and go on to better chapters ahead.

Learn to never mind about the past and to mind about what is before you.

Make today's chapter the best that you have written and enacted. Get up, if you are down. Walk forward if you are standing still.

Rippling Rhymes

PUTTING IT OFF. The spendthrift always plans on saving, some future time, when signs are right; like other men he has a craving for stacks of rubles, gleaming bright.

"Next month," he sighs, "I'll draw my wages, and put a portion down in bins; one must approach by easy stages a reformation high and fine. Next month I'll quit this thing of blowing the mark, the kopeck and the franc, and citizens will see me going with wads of plunder to the bank." Mouth after month he keeps on planning to save a sample of his pay, and while he plans hard luck is coming ten thousand spendthrifts every day. They lose their jobs, succumb to sickness, and then their folly they confess; their pocketbooks have not the thickness required in times of deadly stress. The papers who are vainly raving in yonder porchway by the mere, once bravely planned to do some saving next week, next month, perchance next year. Today's the time to cut out spending the hard earned steady in foolish ways; today's the proper time for ending the wasteful course that never pays. Today's the time for every fellow to quit the habits formed of yore, and hand to the receiving teller some fifty cents, or even more.

TODAY

Diverse and concise. A Ku Klux vote. The other burglar. Photographing the wind. By ARTHUR BURLEIGH. (Copyright, 1933, The Star Co.)

For seven marriages in the United States there is one divorce. For seven people of middle age there is one to die of cancer.

Some call the divorce cancer worse than any other malignant tumor. If we understood cancer and divorce we might find them not so far apart.

Both come from ignorance, both could be prevented.

The voters of Oklahoma seem to have decided against Governor Walton in favor of the Ku Klux by an overwhelming majority. Governor Walton announced his resignation to prevent an election that would impeach and put him out.

If it is true that the Ku Klux is a "harmless" movement, that interests all other states. It may be that Oklahoma voted not so much in favor of the Ku Klux as against Governor Walton's use of militia to prevent voting.

Wurttemberg and Bavaria negotiate for joining with great state, planning through secession to divide the German empire, cutting off the Catholic south from the Protestant north.

North Germany will fight secession as our northern states did. But German secession. The plan of Marshal Foch will have the French army back of it. Not easy to resist that.

With Wurttemberg and Bavaria transferring their resources and above all, their racial fertility on the side of France, any change in the balance of power might be postponed.

But there is Russia with her 139,000,000 of population. Nothing more can be said about Europe except it's lucky we stayed "out."

A burglar who tried to steal four dead deer from the zoological garden, failed by accident. He had no better reason to congratulate himself on his failure than has Uncle Sam in congratulating himself on failure to break into the Treasury of Nations, and pull out the American mandate. It would sting worse than any snake.

"The wind blows where it listeth," but the French scientists mean to keep track of it. They are working on a method to detect the winds, including "wild west wind." It sounds impossible, and is quite simple.

A flying man going 300 kilometers an hour puts out a smoke trail. Then the smoke, whirled by a wind blowing at six meters a second, is easily photographed.

Harvard will teach freshmen to think. Perhaps it can be done. But it recalls the old saying about leading a horse to water.

"I write, not that you may read, but that you may think." Montaigne said. So, the French scientist means to keep track of the wind, including "wild west wind." It sounds impossible, and is quite simple.

Thinking cannot be taught, exactly. But it can be stimulated. When the apple fell, that started important thought in Newton. When Columbus sailed, that started important thought in the spectators.

But how can you teach or provoke or stimulate? The answer is in the subject. Select your subject, "matter unlimited in infinite space," or "the logical probability of immortality." The average mind will find it hard to stick to one thought for three minutes.

An observant day in the stock market yesterday, even a little cheerier, for the farmers. Wheat started up three cents a bushel. Cotton had a moment of discouragement, but the lowest point was higher than any conservative would have hoped to see in the year.

Cotton should settle down firmly, well above 50 cents, which would be a blessing for the south.

Steel is suffering. Any European country will have a surplus of products. The war made all Europe specialize in steel production. This country will have to produce the United States produce equally against foreign competition or risk dangerous injury.

The English branch of the Andrew Carnegie trust will distribute books instead of merely giving away libraries with empty shelves. The Carnegie fund in America should imitate that if it can do it legally.

Carnegie set a good example. But giving empty libraries to a nation in need of good reading is like giving empty plans to a starving. This was the motto of Mr. Carnegie in Philadelphia.

WIVES. Eighty-seven out of every 100 wives omit their husbands in their insurance policies and leave their money to some other relative. According to an insurance expert in Philadelphia.

His explanation is that the wives feel if they die their husbands can take care of themselves and don't need money help.

Nevertheless, it's a queer bit of psychology that makes a wife decide against leaving her money to her husband because she doesn't need it. The answer probably is that the money usually is left to a child or dependent parents. Things seem "queer" only because we usually have a simple explanation. Life in its various ramifications is simple, after all, not complicated.

FISH. Fish, buried in vast quantities millions of years ago by volcanic upheavals, gradually form the surface petroleum which the oil men now take out of the earth's depths. This is the theory of Dr. John M. MacFarlane, distinguished geologist, after 50 years of study.

It required millions of years for nature to form the oil, coal and minerals which man is affecting in consuming in a few centuries. An interesting time is ahead for our descendants when natural resources will be exhausted. For it's not easy. Then raise his salary. Tell him you want to show your appreciation of his faithful services."

He rose, and walked up and down the room, motioning Ranger to silence.

"I've got an idea, Lorry," he said at last. "But I don't want to talk about it, even to you. You just follow instructions—you've got to do that. But you will need help of some sort." Ranger puckered his brows.

"You're not going to tackle this crowd alone, single-handed?"

"Well, not exactly," drawled Charlie. "You used to go to the races, considerably. I remember. Then, if you don't mind, I'd like to borrow a stopwatch and a pair of field-glasses."

SWALLOWED UP

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow. Illustrated by R. W. Satterfield.

CHARLIE BY BRENTANOS - CHIEF BY THE RAILROAD COMPANY.

BEGIN HERE TODAY. Hop Lorry, a boy of wealthy parents, disappears after a luncheon at the Plaza. A reward of a thousand dollars is offered for her safe return. Justice Highby, attorney, and Justice Charlie, assistant father in his search for her.

Frank Bryan is Ranger's private secretary. A message comes to Lorry's father, and he goes to the office. A picture of his daughter taken in the past is purchased by Justice Highby and Justice Charlie. Justice Charlie is registered as sister to a nurse named Copley.

With a sign of relief, Charlie sank into a chair and buried himself in a succession of cigarettes.

Perhaps a fingerprint man could help. "That letter and the photograph must have been handed to someone. They were in the envelope, and it might be?"

At last Charlie could unleash himself.

"Good Lord, Lorry!" There was actual ecstasy in his voice. "Won't you understand? Won't you realize what we are up against? You talk about a man who can't find his way out of either side, as through a steep, walled cut."

And you expect 'em to walk unaccompanied, these upstart nabobs? Lorry, Lorry! A Wop kidnaper from the East Side would know better than to fall for a game like that. Do you know this place where you're supposed to plant the bomb?"

Charlie looked behind a loose stone in the archway where the Lone Hill road runs under the railroad tracks.

"I know it well: travel that way every time I motor out to our place in Westchester."

"So do I know it," Charlie's mouth widened comically. "I've chased through there, once by the farmer's watch-dog. And, if you'll remember, you've got to be pretty nearly inside the archway before you can tell what's going on there. So, with dozens of automobiles of all kinds passing along that road all the time, your watchers would have to be planted practically in plain view to see the one that stops and gets the sack."

Ranger, who he gave it thought could not well deny the strength of the objection. His head dropped, the worried lines began to reappear in his face.

"And now, this," Charlie caught up the letter from the Combine. "You see, he had thrown off any one when you came back from luncheon. Any idea how it got there?"

"I meant to speak about that," Ranger's most tightened emphasis lay in his face.

"I've had everybody in the building questioned, but no one admitted being near the office."

"I haven't had a chance to talk to him yet. He left before I did to go to Newark, and hasn't got back since. I don't see..."

He shook his head perplexedly. "But anyhow," he growl grim again, "I'm going to give him his walking papers—on suspicion."

"I wouldn't," Charlie demurred. "You want a fellow of that kind where you can keep an eye on him. Show him this letter and consult him about it. You won't learn anything, but it will make him feel easy. Then raise his salary. Tell him you want to show your appreciation of his faithful services."

He rose, and walked up and down the room, motioning Ranger to silence.

"I've got an idea, Lorry," he said at last. "But I don't want to talk about it, even to you. You just follow instructions—you've got to do that. But you will need help of some sort."

possible for machines in case of emergency.

The wise campaigner, though leaves nothing to chance. In order to make sure that it was open and without obstructions, Charlie rode out to the intersection with the Lone Hill road and circled back by way of this to his starting point.

In the archway at the railroad crossing he dismounted to take a look at the place designated as a depository for the Liberty bonds, and from the instructions in the letter found no difficulty in locating it. Just about midway of the tunnel at the height of a man's shoulder, there was a discolored streak on the masonry caused by dampness, and the mortar had crumbled from around one of the stones, leaving it loose.

Testing it with his fingers, Charlie found the block easy to lift out. Behind it was a crevice, shallow but still large enough to hold a package of securities.

Charlie climbed back on his motorcycle, and returned to the "jungle." He appeared, as he had expected, to have the whole to himself. This was a season when its nomadic habits were more apt to be in the west, following in the tracks of circus and street parties, or answering the need for harvest hands. The ashes of the last campfire were at least three weeks old.

Nevertheless, as a proper measure of precaution, he scouted through the entire patch of woods, and as the light grew stronger, had a life to reconnoiter the surrounding country.

He slid down from the tree, and after riding his motorcycle carefully under a pile of brush, laid down in a sandy hollow and pulling his hat over his eyes, prepared to sleep.

When he awoke several hours later, the sun was warm on him, and he lay luxuriously for a while, listening to the varied and various wood sounds, all long familiar to him. Finally he rolled over and pulled out his watch. It was almost 11 o'clock.

He ate from his package of sandwiches, uncorked the thermos bottle, then rinsing himself up with a good deal of agility into the tree under which he had been sitting.

The hours passed on. The sun had crossed the zenith and declined toward the west. Charlie in his leathery chaps, clutching his round sandwiches and what was left of coffee in his thermos bottle.

The rest of the time he put in at timing automobiles. At half-past three, Ranger's big touring car came along from the direction of the town. Through the glasses Charlie could recognize the figure of the manufacturer himself in the driver's seat. He was quite alone; and as he neared the crossing, seemed to be glancing to right and left.

"Wondering what I'm up to, I guess," chuckled Charlie.

Yet his complacency did not keep him from very carefully timing along over the marked course. As it happened there was nothing to suggest it.

At two o'clock he came down stairs and passed out, casually remarking to the night clerk that he was wakeful and thought he would take a walk before he turned in.

At a garage eight or ten blocks away where he had left his motorcycle, he got it, and charged briskly over the Williamsburg bridge as if heading for his lodgings. On the other side, though, he deviated from the direct route, and twisted aimlessly through a succession of ill-lighted tenement streets until he was sure he had thrown off any one who might be trying to trail him.

When he turned north and crossed back to Manhattan by way of the Queensboro bridge at Fifty-sixth street.

Dawn found him at a little patch of woods along the railroad track about half a mile distant from the archway at the Lone Hill road crossing, where the ashes of a burned-out cigarette and a scattered litter of newspaper and old tin cans and worn-out shoes betokened a "hobo" "jungle."

Beside it ran a back road, little more than a wagon track, crossing the railroad here on the level, and forking into the Lone Hill road a quarter of a mile beyond. From his study of the map, he knew that this by-way again intersected the main road about a mile and a half above it, and he remembered that it was marked as rough and bumpy, but ing also in sight when Ranger reached the cut, and he drove straight ahead.

"At the rate he's traveling he ought to be out in one minute, and he isn't," Charlie calculated.

"Well, get a line now on just how long it takes to pull out that stone and put it back again. It won't be long before Ranger reappeared on the further side of the crossing."

"It's a good deal more than a minute," Charlie reflected; "no, no, no fair criterion. I'd say, though, that anything that stayed down there longer than two minutes was a pretty safe bet to follow up."

Pop was smoking and thinking before supper, and I sed, Ray? Now, sweetest, the angels, call pop sed. Meaning wat did I want, and I sed, if somebody saved your life wat would you give them? Well, I dont want to seem egotistical, but I dont think a hundred dollers would be too much, pop sed.

Well I saved your life, pop I sed, and pop sed, The dollers you did, well, well, and I sed, Yes sir, do you want to hear how?

There's nothing I'd rather hear, unless perhaps it's the supper bell, pop sed, and I sed, Well, the door rang and I answered it, and a fearsome looking man was standing out there with clubs and a thug, and one looked as if he didnt have a shave for a week and the other I looked as if they never had one. G, pop, they looked fearsome.

Go on, go on, your tale intrigues me strangely, pop sed, and I sed, And I asked them wat they want, and one sed, Call your father back, hear, and I sed, Wat do you want him for, he's busy winding his watch, and another one sed, We want to murder him, what do you think we want him for? and I sed, Then I went call him. And I quick banged the door shut and bolted the bolt and ran up stairs and threw a bucket of water out the window, only by that time they was gone.

See gods, wate all that, a bad dream? pop sed. Yes sir, I dreamed it last nite, I sed.

Well thanks for taking my part in the matter, now dont talk to me and do your lesson, Im thinking about something, pop sed.

Not even giving me a sent for saving his life. Proving a lot depends on the circumstances.

A PUZZLE A DAY

My seven letters mark me as a woman; Remove the latter four, I still am she.

Remove but three, and find a brave, bold man; And though you take two more, I'll still be he.

What word is represented by the above verse? Yesterday's Answer.

If the ball thrown to second and returns (see diagram) as many times as fast as the runner coming from third to the home plate, the runner would be out about six feet. It will be noted that the runner is traveling along one short side of a right-angled triangle, while the ball is traveling on the hypotenuse, or the long one is about 150. While the runner is going 90 feet, the ball travels 150, which is three times as fast as the runner) gives 45.

WHAT TO EAT TO PUT IRON IN YOUR BLOOD AND MAKE YOU STRONG

PHYSICIAN TELLS HOW IRON-CONTAINING VEGETABLES SUCH AS LENTILS, SPINACH, APPLES, ETC., WHEN REGULARLY TAKEN WITH ORGANIC IRON BUILD GREAT STRENGTH AND ENDURANCE.

"At their own doors—in the very gardens of those who are weak, nervous and ailing all the while is one of the most valuable tonic and strength-builders known to medical science," said Dr. Emil Bauer, well known New York physician, when he consulted recently.

Dr. Bauer further said: "If your body is weak, if you are ailing, if you are suffering from iron deficiency, if you are giving your body the red blood food it craves, but your blood lacks iron and is thin, pale and watery, you cannot expect to be strong and well. On the contrary, your nerves become weakened and you become irritable, fussy and impatient in such cases, what you need is iron—organic iron to remove the cause of your trouble, and the most potent organic iron is supplied it in often wonderous how quickly your condition of symptoms will disappear and how strong and vigorous you will become." But be careful not to distinguish between ordinary metallic iron which people usually take and true organic iron. Metallic iron is ABLENE, Texas, Oct. 4.—Coming out of the grueling game with the Baylor University Bears in excellent condition and gaining much confidence in both offensive and defensive play, the Simmons College Cowboys will meet the Austin College Kangaroos at Wichita Falls Wednesday afternoon.

QUINTET OF GOOD MUD RACES RESULT FAIR SPEED CARD

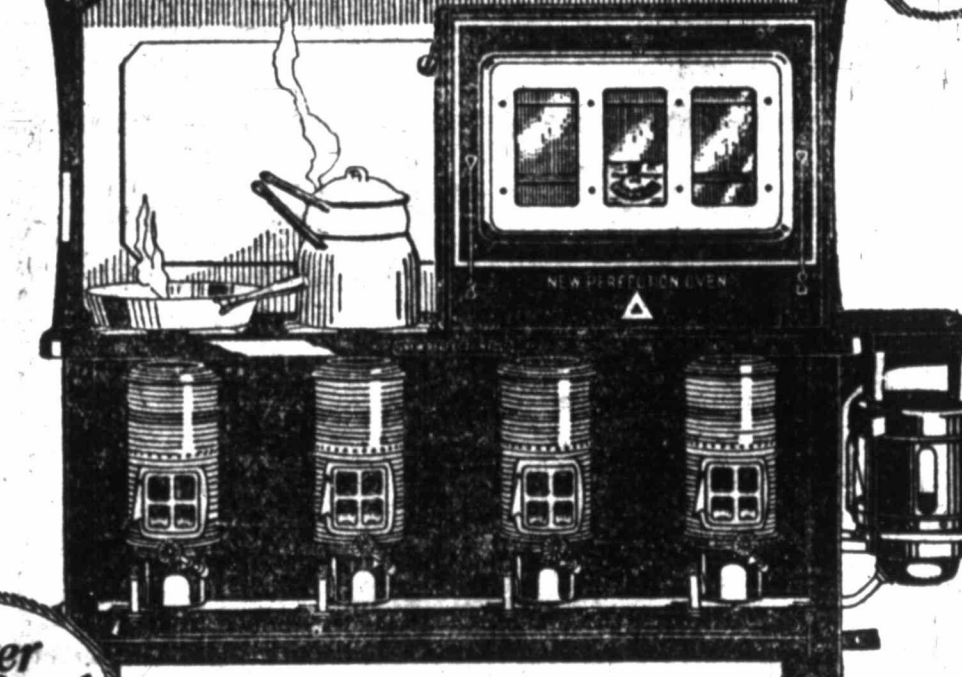

Aside from the scratching of the first race, Wednesday's heavy track had little effect on the third day's racing program of the Texas-Oklahoma fair. There proved to be a sufficient number of "mudders" among the entries to put on five good races with many close finishes.

Close Mite Races.
For the second race, a miler for a purse of $25, started out as though it would be a walkway for Mrs. E. Rice's St. Jude, with Barham up, but Sapp's Tough and Tight, ridden by B. Maskrid, made a race of it, and the finish found the winner only a half length ahead of Tough and Tight. Joe Lee also ran and finished third.

MAVE RIGHT TO CHOOSE PARTNER FOR DANCE

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—The male public still has a right to choose its dance partners, was the ruling yesterday of Judge Hosen Wells, who ruled in favor of the plaintiff, a dance hall mistress, against a charge of having ordered a youthful patron at the point of a revolver to dance with a red haired "wall flower."

Greater Cooking Speed New Beauty of Design and Finish

A Faster and Finer Blue Chimney New Perfection

WOMEN who have known the Blue Chimney New Perfection—famous for a generation as setting the world's standard of oil cook stove service—will welcome with genuine delight this new 1924 model.

Its greater heat assures faster cooking and fewer hours in the kitchen—not to mention the big economy in fuel. The straight-leg design—sturdier, better looking—makes a more attractive kitchen. And as for new conveniences—that higher top, so much easier to work on—the extra end-shelf—the new square grates with ample space for large utensils—the substantial base shelf for heavy pots and kettles—the everlasting brass lower reservoir—all offer a completeness of cooking service unduplicated at this stove's moderate price.

Baby Monkey Is Favored By Wind at Fair Grounds

It is an ill wind that blows no one any good. It is likely Cliff Wilson, manager of the monkey circus with Wortham's shows, never gave the old adage a thought until Wednesday. In fact, early in the morning Cliff was out of sorts. Recently he put fifteen good American dollars into a huge umbrella. The canopy spread was intended to protect the baby monkey its mother on display before the show from the Texas sun. Wednesday morning the wind took over the fair grounds and look nothing of man's invention it blew the umbrella over and tore a hole, twice as large as a baseball. In it, Cliff said things about weather or men. He had no time to fix the sun shield, so in its injured form he put it up again. Two minutes later the baby monkey knew all about it. It was just what he wanted. The umbrella was blown over the stand where he plays to permit him to play hide and seek through the hole. He spent the day jumping through the agency, and then crawling under the edge back to his mother. "Just what I wanted," said Wilson. "Something to give that monkey exercise. He can never get off the platform, and now he has a hole and seek, play in his fancy. So a hole is his hole when it is a whole baby monkey gymnasium."

Chicago Man Who Posed As a Woman Acquitted By Jury

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Fred Thompson, who for 14 years the posed alternately as a man and a woman, was acquitted yesterday of the murder of Richard C. Teemer, insurance broker, slain in a holdup last June by a smiling woman bandit. The jury deliberated nearly three hours and took four ballots. Immediately after his discharge from jail Thompson resumed the feminine attire which was forbidden him while he wore clothing. Thompson testified in his own behalf before the defense closed its case. Claiming to be a woman, he wore masculine trousers with his long hair combed in knots over his ears. He told the jury of a dual life as a boy in Chillicothe, Ohio, and as a woman in Chicago. He dressed as a boy in childhood, but "felt easier" as a woman, and he told the jury. After he came to Chicago, he married woman's attire. He married Frank Carrick at Crown Point, Ind., in 1910, and later married Marie Clark because "he sympathized with her," he said. "My goodness, I'll be glad to get some hair pins," Thompson exclaimed while being led back to jail to be discharged. "Every time Frank O'Donnell, Thompson's attorney, during the trial stressed what he contended was the feminine personality in the prisoner and Judge Cavalry several times addressed the accused as a woman. The prosecution contended Thompson was a man masquerading as a woman.
