SITUATION IN GERMANY AGAIN THREATENS SERIOUS CRISIS MORE THAN 3000 IMMIGRANTS ARE FACING DEPORTATION MARSHALL OFFICERS KILL BANDIT WHO RESISTS ARREST

BERLIN IS THROWN INTO UPHEAVER OVER BARBARIAN RUMORS

REPORT THREAT OF MILITARY ADVANCE ON CITY FROM THE SOUTH.

By KARL VON WIEGAND, Universal Service Correspondent. BERLIN, Nov. 3.—The torch of reaction in Germany, long expected, was all but lighted today.

For the moment it turned out to be a flame, but what the next few days may bring no thoughtful person with anything like a glimpse behind the curtains could venture to predict.

The week's end was even more ominous than its beginning. A shell from Bavaria dropped into the German capital this afternoon, which shook things up a bit even if it proved to be a dud.

All Berlin was thrown into a state of confusion when the socialist newspaper Vorwaerts this afternoon printed a sensational story that the Bavarian dictator, Von Kahr, had overthrown the regular Kahr government at Munich, had made himself master and immediately sent an ultimatum to Dictator Brüning, that unless he established at once a national military dictatorship a national advance on Berlin from the south would begin.

For a little while the whole city was almost paralyzed with excitement. Telephone service to all government offices was swamped. When I called up Von Kahr here and Kahr on the radio, he both said the report was ridiculous so far as they were concerned, but a bulletin from the government said that the report had been sent to it.

Germany, the official organ of the Catholic Center party, printed a somewhat different version in that it said the ultimatum was sent by the so-called "patriotic leagues." A group of unorganized fascist organizations with headquarters at Chemnitz, Saxony, headed by Adolf Hitler and Captain Ehrhardt.

The latter commanded the famous "Black Legion" which marched into Berlin during the Kapp-Putsch of 1920.

A high official of the government said to me tonight "on his word of honor" that no such ultimatum had been received by the government.

MARSHALL LAW COST OKLAHOMA $60,000

AUG. 14 TO OCT. 10

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 3.—Marshall law throughout Oklahoma during the period of August 14 to October 10 cost the state approximately $60,000, it was learned from an authoritative source.

While final payment of many bills, including several thousand dollars, is being made, the clearing of administrative formalities and the determination of the status of some of the assessor-deficiency certificates issued during the period of military operations, the bulk of the expense items already have been paid.

Transportation consumed $10,000 and the troop payrolls $15,000 of the amount. The balance went to various equipment and supplies.

The average number of guardsmen on duty during the 57 days was about 350.

INFLOW IS CHARACTERIZED AS ONE OF WORST JAMS IN DEPARTMENT HISTORY.

MORE THAN 3000 ARE FACING DEPORTATION

Of This Number 1267 Are Reported to Be British Subjects.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—More than 10,000 would-be immigrants, including 1267 who came on the Levania, which arrived today from England, face deportation, it was announced tonight by Commissioner of Immigration Curran, who said yearly quotas of several countries had been exhausted.

Quotas of 11 countries, including Great Britain, have been exhausted, Commissioner Curran said he had been informed by telephone by Commissioner-General of Immigration Husband of Washington. Mr. Curran said he expected about 2,000 British subjects would be sent back along with subjects of other countries.

Russia also has exhausted her quota, Mr. Curran said, while the other immigrants likely to be deported come from Greece, Egypt, Africa, Albania, Turkey, Palestine, Portugal, other European and other Asia "under which several smaller nations are listed."

More than 10,000 immigrants are on ships in the harbor awaiting examination at Ellis Island, the commissioner said. He characterized the influx as one of "the worst jams" the department ever has faced.

BRITISH SUBJECTS ARE SUBJECT TO DEPORTATION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—British subjects arriving in the United States today on the Levania, numbering 1,267, probably cannot be admitted to the United States and may have to be deported as immigrants inadmissible under the law, the shipping board was notified of the fact today by Commissioner of Immigration Curran.

BANDIT IS KILLED, TWO ARE ARRESTED; HAD ROBBED STORE

APPREHENDED AFTER AN ALL NIGHT SEARCH NEAR MARSHALL

TWO MEN SURRENDER WITHOUT RESISTANCE

Third Opens Fire On Officers and is Shot and Instantly Killed.

MARSHALL, TEXAS, Nov. 3.—One of the three bandits who robbed a filling station and store near Greenwood, La., last night was killed this afternoon near Jonesville, 18 miles east of here, by officers after he fired one shot which struck the two other bandits who were arrested and lodged in the county jail here. The officers had searched the woods all night in the vicinity of Jonesville, but not until this afternoon were they found walking along the Jefferson highway.

The two men surrendered without resistance. The third opened fire when officers tried to search him, firing one shot which struck the two other bandits who were arrested and lodged in the county jail here.

The two men held in jail tonight gave their names as Lloyd Hall and Victor Huxman and said the dead man was named Herman. They gave their homes as Jonesboro, Ark., all being from the same place.

Two of the bandits entered a store owned by H. O. Lawton and covered him and two negroes with pistols and a shotgun. The three men covered while the other swept the cash register of $75.40.

The bandit who then headed east as though bound for the hills, was shot and killed by the officers. The other two men were arrested and lodged in the county jail here.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The state department today flatly rejected the suggestion from Paris that France would approve a full inquiry into Germany's capacity to pay if the United States would accept simultaneously consideration of international debts.

Interesting Facts About Thomas Jefferson Gathered off the Beaten Paths of History

Editors Note: Now that the nation-wide movement is in full force for the purchase and upkeep of Monticello, Thomas Jefferson's home in Virginia, as a National Memorial for the enduring inspiration of the American people, close students of the statesman's life, are coming to the front with interesting facts gathered off the beaten paths of history.

Men, women and children from every corner of the United States will before long have an opportunity of doing something, in a way that is in repayment to Thomas Jefferson, and an act that although unrequited during the time of his life was cut short by his death. This is to save the old estate known as Monticello. Almost two score men of prominence in both the Republican and Democratic parties will take part in the Jefferson Memorial Transcontinental tour which started from New York some days ago in the initial move of a campaign to raise $1,000,000 for the Jefferson Memorial.

Thomas Jefferson loved Monticello and it is the purpose of this article to show that love and to tell of the great struggle that he as an ex-president had to carry on in a feeble and at last a futile effort to have his love.

When Jefferson retired from the position of president of the United States he went to Monticello, where he had visions of spending the declining years of his life. The estate as it was in those days was elevated some three hundred feet above the surrounding country and the level of the level of the sea. In all the estate composed in the neighborhood of some seven hundred acres of park and gardens and the house itself was built after the style of the Petit Trianon at Versailles. The public rooms include the library, Jefferson Hall, the Monroe rooms, ballroom and grand hall.

Jefferson considered the place as the one place above all others that he desired as a home. He once wrote to a friend: "After much roaming in many lands, I have found and pitched my tent in what I believe to be one of the fairest spots on earth. This tent which is strong enough to keep out wind and water is set in the midst of a lofty mountain plain. Looking around I found myself, to all seeming, in a world of my own. All around, in the far shining, silvery distance, are cloud-capped mountains, ranges of surprising grandeur, rising one above another until, apparently, the limits of the world are reached."

It was here in the solitude of this place where he had pitched his tent that he compiled those favorite rules of his, which have not received the publicity that they deserve. They were: "Never put off till tomorrow, what you can do today. Never trouble another for what you can do yourself. Never spend your money before you have it. Never say what you do not want because it is cheap; it will be dear to you. Pride costs us more than hunger, thirst and cold. We never regret of having eaten too little. Nothing is troublesome that we do willingly. How much pain have cost us the evils which have never happened. Take things always by the smooth side. When angry, count ten before you speak, if very angry, a hundred. Jefferson when at the height of his life at Monticello, took the greatest personal interest in the surrounding and everything connected with it. To show the intimate manner in which he kept himself posted as to the way things were going, we have had handed down to us a memorandum that he submitted to his superintendent, John Holmes Freeman. The memorandum reads: "The canal and dam are to be completed in preference to all other work, while the season of winter. Next, a fence is to be built and next, the garden to be leveled. The garage is to be 100 feet long and 8 feet wide. From the rear of the small part done, I judge it to be about three months work for ten hands. It is to be done in brackets, four feet wide at a time, three hands and one wheelbarrow can work to advantage on a breadth."

When first retiring to Monticello, Jefferson expected to be the "hermit of Monticello," but this was not to be. A continuous stream of visitors came in the place to see him, to hear him speak, just to get a glimpse of the grand old man. Relatives came and brought their entire families; fathers and mothers with broods of children visited him for months. It was said at the time that "everyone in the United States of any enterprise sooner or later found his way to this extraordinary hermitage."

The crowds that came to Monticello and even passed into the rooms of the house to watch Jefferson merely pass from one room to another. Sometimes he fled to a nearby farm

A French Clay

Gave me beauty and perennial youth

By Edna Wallace Hopper

I have been a famous beauty for nearly 40 years. I am still a stage beauty, playing young girls' parts. And I look like a girl of 15. I was born with some beauty, but I learned in France how to multiply that beauty. And I learned how to keep it to my grand old age. I have supplied those helps to countless friends, and they obtained like results. So I know that millions can gain new beauty and keep youth in my ways. And I write this to help them.

Above all, A Clay. My chief help is a facial clay. Not the crude and muddy clays so many use today. I quit those years ago. French experts have perfected clays by twenty years of scientific study. I use their latest type. It is, they tell me, the very utmost in a facial clay.

I now have it made by American experts. Just as French experts make it. It is a rare clay, mineral laden, which proved itself supreme. It is a refined clay—white, clean, shiny—with the useless sand removed. It has added factors which give the clay new and increased beauty.

I used the crude clays in the old times and thought them wonderful. But this perfected clay is fully ten times better. No woman who once tries it will return to other clays.

New Beauty at Once. I now have this clay made for all who desire it. I call it my White Youth Clay. It is at your store today. I feel that I owe this service to my sex.

Youth Clay brings results which are quick and amazing. It purges the skin to remove the cause of sallowness, black-heads, and blemishes. It brings the blood to the skin to nourish and revive it. That brings a rosy afterglow. Many women, in 30 minutes, seem to drop ten years.

It firms the skin, combats all lines and wrinkles, reduces wrinkles, pores. Thus it acts to give and maintain a youthful bloom and contour.

I owe my beauty largely to Youth Clay. To it I owe my baby-like complexion at my age. It should do the same for millions, and I want it to.

Clay is a beauty essential. No woman can look her best without it. No woman can keep her youth. Face-cream, hair-oil, and other cosmetics are of no use unless you use clay. You can pick out clay users in any crowd by their beauty and their bloom. So every woman owes this to herself.

Edna Wallace Hopper's Youth Clay is now supplied by all druggists and toilet counters. Price, 50c and $1 per tube. Also my Youth Cream, which should follow the clay. Also my Facial Youth—my famous liquid cleanser. Also my Hair Youth which brought my luxuriant hair. My Beauty Book comes with each. Go try my methods. Learn how much they mean to you. I can do you no greater kindness than to urge this course.

FRANK G. CARPENTER WRITES OF EUROPE'S OLDEST REPUBLIC

Describes Some of Queer Ways In Which Swiss Govern Themselves Has Talk With Chief Executive

(Copyright, 1922, Carpenter's World Travels)

BERNE, SWITZERLAND.—In the capital of Switzerland, half way between the borders of Germany and Italy, and only two hours by rail from where the League of Nations is sitting at Geneva on the borders of France, I write of how the Swiss govern themselves. During my stay here I have visited parliament and talked with the members. I have seen something of the hunderat, the council or cabinet which administers the country, and around a plain table, have sat elbow to elbow, with the president of the republic and discussed the differences between his government and ours.

But first let us look at the capital of Switzerland. It is Berne, one of the oldest, quietest and most charming little cities of Europe. Founded when Richard the Lion-Hearted of England was fighting the Turks for the possession of Jerusalem, it was an independent free city before the Magyar Chieftain signed. It was chosen as the seat of the federal government at about the close of our Mexican war, and since then has been the home of all our activities, except those of the supreme court which, as a sop to Berne, Switzerland, sits at Lausanne.

(Copyright 1922, Carpenter World Travels)

There is only about one fifth the size of Washington City, but it is far more picturesque. The town is a peninsula embraced by the deep swift rushing river, the Aare, which waters flow they tear their way down toward the Rhine. The city is on both sides of the river, and magnificent bridges cross from one bank to the other. The capital building and the president's palace are right over the stream, but one hundred feet higher up. They look out on the Alps, and face a half dozen mountains more than two miles in height.

The president was walking out on the balcony in front of his office and his secretary pointed out the gigantic crest of the Jungfrau, another snow-capped mountain which are known all over the world.

The newspaper men as they speak, the executive feature is the public translator. Speeches may be made in three languages, German, French, and Italian. The orders of the president are translated by the official interpreter and all of his messages are furnished the press in German and French. The government has its own press in German, French and Italian so that every citizen can read them. The eastern part of the republic is almost altogether German. The western is largely French and the southern, Italian. There are all traces of the Swiss. About seventy per cent of the people speak German, twenty per cent French and about six per cent Italian with some percentage speaking other languages. In western Switzerland nearly all the signs are in French, the east, German, and in Ticino, Italian.

How Switzerland is Governed

When I interviewed the president of twenty years ago we talked together in German. My conversation with the president today was in French; and from then until now they have had just twenty presidents chosen from different parts of the republic without regard, however, to linguistic ability.

The president of Switzerland has a different position from that of the president of the United States. Our president is elected for four years and he receives a salary of $15,000 a year with $35,000 extra for traveling expenses. The president of Switzerland is chosen by the hunderat of the seven members of the federal council. His salary is $4,000. Whether he gets railroad passes, I do not know. The president is really only the chairman of the council, although he has the title of the president of the republic and represents it on all ceremonial occasions.

This republic is as free and democratic as ours, but the machinery of administration is different. The country is divided into twenty-six cantons or states and they join together in electing a national council of four members from each state. It is composed of forty-four members or two from each state. The cantons elect every three years representatives. It has one hundred and ninety-eight members, and direct vote at the rate of one for every twenty thousand souls in the republic.

Elections take place every three years and the last of the cantons are often held in the churches. Only men of twenty-one have the right to vote, Switzerland being one of the countries which has not adopted suffrage for women. Each state elects its own two members of the state council in any way it may choose, and their pay comes from the state. The Geneva councilors get five dollars a day, but the average salary of the others is four dollars and for those of some cantons, only three dollars. The representatives of the lower houses are elected every three years. They get five dollars a day for the days they are present and nothing when absent.

The sessions are held four times a year. They usually last two or three weeks, and a whole year's session seldom takes up as much as three months. The members attend regularly, and their constituents object when they stay away. If a congressman cannot give a good reason for his absence he does not get his five dollars. This is in striking contrast to our congress where a member may stay away half the session and receive his $7500 just the same. Any one except a clergyman may be a member of the Swiss congress. The meetings begin at eight in the morning in summer and nine in the winter. Our congress meets at noon the year around.

A Hydra-Headed Executive

The executive body of Switzerland is hydra-headed, or at least almost so. The Hydra or water-serpent killed by Hercules had nine heads. The Swiss government has only seven. It consists of the hunderat or seven members of the federal council which is elected by the federal assembly every three years. These seven men have the fattest jobs in the republic, if $500 a year and boarding one-self can be called a job. They are the cabinet, and outside of the president, they have the power of the veto. Each of them has a department of his own. The secretary of the interior, another secretary of justice and police, another of finance and customs, another of agriculture and still another, secretary of posts and railways.

The federal council meets here in Berne. He is here today and gone tomorrow. The vice-president is elected in the same way, and it is a matter of courtesy, that the vice-president should be the next president. Indeed it is usual to give each of the seven members a year of the presidency before he relieves from public office.

Two Many Immigrants

"What is the condition of Switzerland as far as business is concerned?" "Just now it is not good," replied the president. "Some of our factories are idle and we have many men out of work. Our industries depend largely upon stable conditions in the countries about us and the low exchange all around us is hurting our trade. I think we may have become over industrialized. I used to be that the chief business of the Swiss was agriculture. Today, most of our people are manufacturing in one way or another, and the factories have imported cheap labor to such an extent that we have more people than we can support. We must have foreign trade to be prosperous. The class of goods we make is what is known as luxury products, the sale of which is limited in times of financial depression among the nations about us. That is the situation today. Nevertheless our money is good and our people are thrifty. We are cutting down our expenses, reducing the number of our government employees, and in time we shall again be on the high road to prosperity."

The initiative and referendum are the situation today. Nevertheless covered a wide range. We talked of the political parties of which the country has a half dozen or more, including Social Democrats, Liberal Democrats, Catholics, Agrarians and others. We discussed the tariff, the president saying somewhat to our surprise, townships and wards are more than three thousand in number and they settle almost everything relating to their own localities. The people elect their own school teachers and policemen, and they have town meetings in which they decide upon all local matters. Sometimes the meetings are held in the open air, and the decisions are by word of mouth.

Some of the communes own property in common, such as forest lands and houses, and every family may be entitled to free pasture or free wood for the winter. In the early morning, one sometimes hears the concert of the cowbells as the townsfolk herd their cows to the communal pastures in the mountainous nearby, and the same bell-ringing is repeated at night. Once back in the village every cow knows its own home, and seeks it straightway.

The citizenship in some of the communes is valuable, and it is sometimes sold for several hundred dollars or more. It may be inherited. On the other hand it may prove less than a blessing, for such communes must pay its local expenses and support its own poor, and a poor man with a large family may demand some support. The contract for feeding the poor are put up at auction, and the lowest bidder gets the price.

The referendum is the submission to popular vote of any measure which congress has already enacted. This relates also to both the constitution and laws, and with certain restrictions, the majority rules. During my stay here the nation has taken a referendum vote upon a law passed prohibiting the farmer or citizen to make his own "hooch" and giving the government the control of the home production and sale of strong alcoholic liquors, and has decided that it is null and void.

As I understand it the government wished to control the sale both on moral and economic grounds. The lower classes are drinking a great deal of almost pure alcohol, which they manufacture of potatoes and refuse material, and this is having the same degrading results as in some parts of our country. Moreover the profits on making such drinks would increase the federal revenues, which are now falling short of the government expenses. I am told that one reason why the people voted against the law was the great increase in the number of public officials which would be required to enforce it.

The government of Switzerland owns the railways, and the telegraph and telephones are under the post-office department. All usual such ownerships are extravagantly managed, and last year the posts and telegraphs ran almost two million dollars behind. The people want the civil service reduced to the minimum.

Every Village a Little Republic.

Republicanism goes further here than with us. Every village and district is a little republic. The communes into which the cantons or states are divided, corresponding somewhat to our counties, townships and wards, are more than down the work of the Swiss. We spoke of the initiative and referendum, both of which he approves with some grains of salt. "Our government is a cross between a monarchy and a republic. At present we ought not expect too much from it. We can only look for a gradual growth."

MARY, MARY, QUITE CONTRARY. America's little sweetheart donned this fetching get-up during rehearsal for her latest picture entitled "Rosita" in which she appears as half-crazed because of her lover's execution. But sure costume couldn't fool us. We knew it was Mary Pickford all the time. Didn't we?

SPEED, AND NOTHING ELSE BUT. These two naval hydroplanes are slipping down the home course and leaving the War College far in the background. Photo provides an excellent study of the aerial fighters while aloft and in close pursuit of each other.

RUNNING BEFORE THE WIND WITH A BONE IN HER TEETH. Choppy was mean nothing to the Canadian defender Blunson, shown here half awash with her sails belled in a strong head gale. Twice winner of the international fishermen's race for the Halifax Herald trophy, the trim little craft is the pride and heart's delight of the entire Nova Scotia fleet. Note members of the crew clinging to supports as the clipper plunges along near the finish line, leaving a frothy trough in her wake.

CUTTING HIGH CAPERS. This personable young person dashes gravely in a fantastic high jump along the coping of one of New York's skyscrapers. A slip means death. But when comes she, so long as the dance is unbroken.

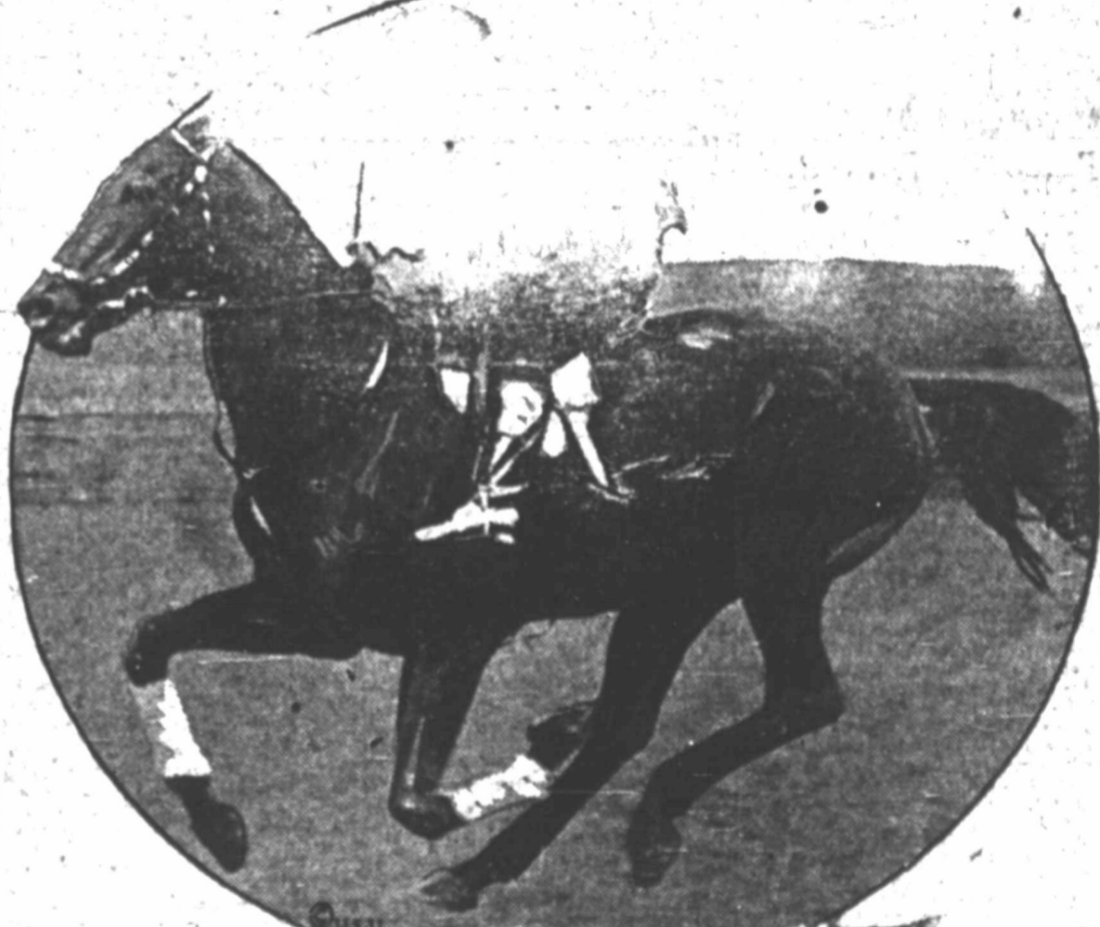

NO, IT'S NOT SATURDAY IN DOGDOM. Greet Mutt, the canny canine caddy, retrieving a lost golf ball which has just sunk to the bottom of this water hazard at the Noctem Country Club, near Nashville, Tenn. Clever stuff, we call it. Eh?

LOOK OUT BELOW! Miss Alice Blagie, youthful strength diving champion, preserved by the motion in a start-to-finish Dutchman's dive. The camera faithfully recorded all the simple grace which comes into play before the water cloud, over the aquatic marvel's head, as you can see for yourself.

HOLD YOUR HORSES! Miss Betty Tanner, mounted on "Pendant" is shown coming down the home stretch in the four-mile Town Plate steeplechase held at Newmarket, Eng. The event is a yearly classic, established in 1663 by King Charles II. Betty is the first woman ever to ride in it, and finished third amid great cheers.

CHICAGO CUBS AND SPUDDERS PLAY HERE APRIL 5 AND 6

Pittsburgh Pirates May Also Be Booked; Omaha Dates Undecided; Spudder Reserve List Totals 19

Football Facts

BY BILLY EVANS

QUESTION: With the ball in possession of Team A, the situation is such that the player calling signals decided on a punt as the best possible play. The ball was kicked over the line of scrimmage, but a stiff wind that was blowing across the field, caused the ball to perform some freakish stunts in the air, resulting in its drifting as to the proper decision on the play. The wind blew the ball back and the kicker recovered it behind his own line of scrimmage. It did not touch the ground or an opponent who beyond the line of scrimmage prior to being blown back.

ANSWER: The continuity of the downs is considered as broken when the ball has been kicked and the opponent gives a fair and equal chance of gaining possession of it. A kick shall be so regarded if the ball shall have crossed the line of scrimmage or if it shall have been touched by an opponent. In the case cited while the ball at one time did cross the line of scrimmage, the high wind which blew it back failed to give the opposition a fair chance at the ball. Since the ball finally came to the yard back of the line of scrimmage it would have ruled that the ball did not cross the line of scrimmage and instead of breaking the continuity of the downs should merely count as a down.

The Chicago Cubs first string team will play the Spudders at Athletic Park on Saturday and Sunday, April 5 and 6, according to arrangements completed Saturday between J. Will Gray, secretary of the Wichita Falls Baseball Association and John O. Seva, secretary of the Cubs.

This is the first booking of exhibition games to be made by the Spudders for the 1930 season.

It is probable that the booking will also be secured with the Pittsburgh Pirates, but this is only a proposed plan at this time.

The Omaha club of the Western League has already asked for bookings for "pre-season" games. Secretary Gray has tendered them the following dates, all of which are tentative: March 25, 26, 27 or April 12, 13. It was indicated that the Omaha club might play the Spudders six exhibition games and if this should prove out, it is probable that both sets of dates will be taken.

Cubs Arranging Tour.

John O. Seva, secretary of the Cubs, and Sam Dreyfus, treasurer of the Pittsburgh club, have been traveling over the western country during the past week arranging a tour schedule for the exhibition games here. Mr. Gray tendered the dates of April 5 and 6 and the Spudders program was received accepting them.

The Pittsburgh club will play Kansas City on these two dates, which would be the last game of the exhibition here. The Pirates have arranged for an exhibition game at Albuquerque and a deal is on to put on a game at Amarillo.

Spudders Reserve Totals 19.

The regular list of the Spudders at this time contains a total of 19 players. They are: Becher, Hachoff, Mack, Smith, White, Williams, "Buck" Freeman, Dick Morgan, Tommie Smith, Mike Pulver, Ernie Wobold, Glenn Kopp and Hennie. This list will be supplemented within a very few days as the Chicago Cubs management will announce within the next week the four ball players who come to the Spudders in the deal in which Rip Wheeler and the Cubs went to the Windy City club.

Many conjectures have been made as to who the four players will be. It is generally conceded that the two of the four will be pitchers while the other two will be outfielders. Nothing definite on this subject, however, has ever been given out, it being held up until the agreement has been ratified by the national commission and Judge Landis.

Freeman to be Outfielder.

Buck Freeman, one of the players listed in the Spudder reserve, is the oldest. Freeman, who is included in the Earl Adams deal of the 1928 season, Freeman failed to report and consequently was banished from organized baseball for the remainder of the season and for the 1929 season.

If it is assumed that Freeman will be reinstated this winter and he has already stated that if he has been reinstated he will be on the opening day of the Spudder training season.

W. J. Wobold, Frank Olson and Ernie Wobold, three youngsters who are expected to be included in the deal following the Denver 1929 tournament.

Wobold is an infielder, Olson is a keeper of the outer gardens and Kopp a hugger.

Schaefer is a pitcher who was acquired at the close of the season from Pittsburgh, comes well recommended and his records of the past year make it probable that he is a keeper of the initial career.

He is 21 years of age and tips the scales at 175 pounds. He stands six feet and half inch tall and throws right handed. Last season playing with the Williamsport team of the Federal League, he piled up a batting average of .318. Included in his awards were 24 doubles, 10 triples and 14 home runs. In addition to his work with the stock he stole 23 bases.

Michigan, a shortstop, also secured from the right side. He has reached his twenty-first milestone in life, measures five feet ten and a half inches and weighs 175 pounds. With Nashville in 1928 he hit for an average of .368. He finished the season with a batting average of .368. He is a right handed batter and measures one inch over the six feet mark. He weighs 155 pounds and is 22 years old. Last season he piled up a record of 17 wins and 12 losses.

Prexy R. O. Harvey has been in New Orleans during the past week on private business. He will return home within a few days.

He is making preparations to attend the national meeting of major and minor league clubs in December. The dates have not as yet been fixed.

At this gathering, it is usual, a large number of trades and exchanges will be made by owners of clubs and the Spudder boss will have to "line-out" top players.

IN MEMORIAM UPSETS DOVE AND WINS R.C. CHAMPIONSHIP STAKE

IN MEMORIAM
Carl Wiedemann in Memoriam

In Memoriam, Kentucky Bred and Owned With Native Son in Saddle Conquers Zev, Idol of Race Track

LATONIA, Ky., Nov. 3.—A Kentucky bred and owned horse who rode in Memoriam to victory today, holds the distinction of riding Rockinister when that three-year-old established the record.

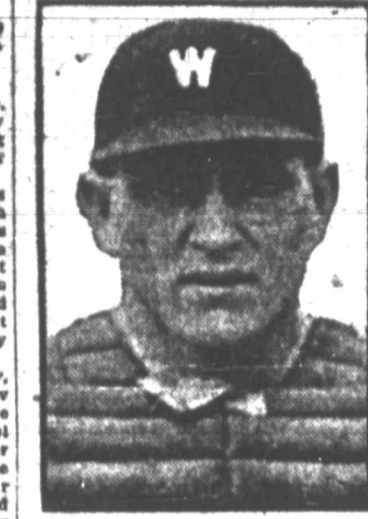

The triumph of In Memoriam was a stunning surprise. Kentucky, victor in thoroughbred tradition, knows race horses, but if any horse-wise person had been asked last night what though In Memoriam's chances the reply probably would have been: "In Memoriam has not much of a chance, but he may spring an upset."

Harry F. Sinclair, owner of Zev, evidently was convinced that Zev could not be beaten because he plunged $50,000 in the pari mutuel machines before the race. Sinclair first wagered $25,000. Then he dumped $25,000 more. As the hour for the start drew near he wagered an additional $5000 and finally threw $4000 more on Zev's chance to win. These sums were wagered at the track this afternoon in addition to the amounts he wagered before leaving the east.

Because Zev and My Own were such overwhelming favorites a $2 ticket in the pari mutuel on In Memoriam paid the liberal price of $22.00. The price on Zev was 40 cents to a dollar, while the figure on My Own was $1.75 to $1. The odds on Hialto were $14.00 to $1.

The race, a grueling test of one and three-quarter miles was run in 3 minutes and 4-5 seconds, 1-5 seconds slower than the American record for the distance. It was won by Rockinister in the same race a year ago. By strange coincidence Jockey Mack Garner, the pride of $1.

EDDIE GHARRITY, OF SENATORS, DECIDES TO JUMP THE BIG SHOW

EDDIE GHARRITY

By NEA Service.

BELOIT, Wis., Nov. 3.—Eddie Gharrity, star pitcher of the Washington team of the American League, is the latest big league to desert the big top for the fast Midwest Western League, which comprises teams from Ohio and Wisconsin.

Eddie, when the season closed, came direct to Beloit and signed a contract with the Fairbanks-Rose Company.

During the winter months, Gharrity, who is a crack baseball player, will perform in that capacity for the Fairies. Next spring he will play either first base or catch for the ball club.

Last spring Gharrity was troubled with a sore arm. As a result he did not start as first string catcher. Ruel had a big year. No loss of authority than Connie Mack pronounced him the best catcher in the league during the 1927 campaign.

Gharrity's contract with Washington terminated at the close of the season. He was offered an all-year job that was all attractive he decided to pass up the big league berth.

Babe Ruth Knocks Spoke Out of Sport Adage 'They Never Come Back' By His Performances This Season

They never come back, has long been a sport adage. It might be more truthful to say they seldom come back. It seems there are exceptions to every rule.

Babe Ruth is a striking example of a star ball player who staged a comeback in every sense of the word. It might be argued that Babe never went away.

Very few are at this time the popularity of the great slugger was at a low ebb. Hornsby of the St. Louis Cardinals and Williams of the St. Louis Browns both had more home runs than Ruth. Hornsby with 42, and Williams with 39, had outdistanced Babe, who finished with only 31. True, Ruth had been kept out of the game for eight weeks because of the decree of Judge Landis, Ruth having violated the barnstorming rules. That was a big handicap.

Then, for the second time in a world series, Ruth had failed to do the things predicted. The pitchers had simply toyed with the great slugger in both events. The great Ruth, the idol of thousands of fans, had been a "bust." Pickle fandom was prepared to confer on him many wreaths of barberries.

Was on Dividing Line.

Ruth realized that he was on the dividing line, either he must come back or, like many other stars, slip back into obscurity. Ruth told the world that he was going to come back, and do it with a vengeance.

The big fellow spent most of the winter on a newly purchased farm in Massachusetts. He was the first to report for spring training, when the American League season opened. Ruth was in perfect physical condition. Careful training had taken off 35 pounds of superfluous weight that had slowed up his fielding and handicapped his batting.

Ruth started on the road to prosperity in the very first game of the season, hitting a mighty drive into the rightfield bleachers at the Yankee Stadium before close to 70,000 fans.

Ruth kept up the good work throughout the season, tending strictly to business. He was unanimously selected as the most valuable player in the American League.

Wise Crack That Turned the Gym Into a Madhouse

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Jim Coffey, Rosochonon giant of "white hope" days, wasn't the greatest fighter that ever lived, but few beginners ever commanded a bigger or more admiring following. Coffey flourished in the days of Jess Willard's prime and was looked on as a possible successor to the cowboy.

Billy Gibson, present manager of Benny Leonard, handled his affairs. He was generally considered the best of his associates. Tom Gilligan by name, over to Orup's gymnasium to see Coffey work. Mr. Gilligan conducted a rendezvous where stimulating fluids were obtainable and was popular with flowers of the cauliflower set.

Gibson and Gilligan found the gymnasium packed to the gills. Coffey was doing his stuff with Joe Jeannette, the negro heavyweight, and was pasting the latter with solid rights and lefts.

"Ah, what a wonderful lad Jimmy is," exclaimed a particularly enthusiastic "fad" at the ring side. "It's a treat to the eye to watch him."

Gilligan, standing at the speaker's side, turned and asked: "I beg pardon, but which of the two is Coffey?"

Gilligan's immediate and precipitous flight is the only thing that saved his life.

Triple Play Jinx to Cleveland Club; Figure In Four In 1923

When it comes to figuring in triple plays, the Cleveland club is entitled to the original brown derby. Triple plays and the Cleveland club are synonymous.

Last season five triple plays were made in the American League, four of them were pulled at the expense of the Cleveland club. Three were made by the Cleveland club and one was pulled by a mere half game, some blame can be attached to the "Hans" habit of slipping into triple plays.

Two unassisted triple plays were made in the majors last season. Both of them were pulled at the expense of the Cleveland club. One was pulled by the Cleveland club and one was pulled by a mere half game, some blame can be attached to the "Hans" habit of slipping into triple plays.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 3.—Thousands of gallons of four per cent beer in half and quart kegs was seized by federal prohibition agents under H. A. COCHRAN DEFEATS JACOB SCHAEFER IN BILLIARD MATCH

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Walker Cochran of Los Angeles defeated Jacob Schaefer, 800 points to 54, tonight, and brought about a truce in the billiard war between William F. Hoppe for the lead in the world's 125 ball billiard tournament.

Cochran is running out in eight innings set the single high average in the tournament, 63-4-1. He had high runs of 141, 116 and 87 and an unfinished run of 82. Cochran defeated Hoppe Wednesday night.

The match was played in the shortest time on record for 100 points, one hour and fifty minutes. Cochran's victory gave him a decided edge for the championship as his opponent, for Monday, is Edward Horamans, while Schaefer must meet Hoppe.

SAYS 'BELGIAN ACTION ROUTING SEPARATISTS MOVE TO KEEP ORDER'

BRUSSELS, Nov. 3.—Baron Rein Jacquesmys, the Belgian high commissioner, issued a statement today saying the Belgian action in driving the separatists out of Aix la Chapelle yesterday was the first step in the determination to keep order. He said that outsiders could not be permitted to interfere with local government, and confirmed the statement that the British and Dutch consuls and also the Swiss consul had made representations regarding the separation of the separatist districts, but he asserted he had already given orders for the separatist evacuation when the consuls appeared.

Leo Deckers, leader of one of the separatist factions, disappeared during the disturbance, Baron Jacquesmys announced.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The play of Second Base 1928 Paul Hines and the Yankees in the recent world series stamps him as the best player at that position in the American League with the possible exception of Eddie Collins. University Club Campaigning for Better Education

The following statement was issued Saturday by the University Club of Wichita Falls: "Never before has there been such a keen feeling of responsibility to the younger generation on the part of the business public. Business men are waking up to the fact that a higher code of business honor must prevail and is one of the fundamentals of increased efficiency in all lines of business. This business as well as in the professions we are rapidly becoming a highly specialized people. At the same time the basis of efficiency in the younger generation on the part of the employer as well as the employee rests upon ethical principles which cannot be established and maintained except through proper educational methods, and it is through these methods that business standards in the United States are leading steadily upward. Emerson says: 'Every man takes care that his neighbor does not cheat him, but a day comes when he begins to care that he does not cheat his neighbor. Then all goes well.'"

One of the prettiest features of the party was furnished when two gaily dressed young girls, Elizabeth Hill and Roberta Gould, dressed to represent yellow pumpkins, distributed score cards and little pumpkin flower pencils from pumpkin baskets. The best favors for each table were baskets of assorted nuts with the baskets handles tied with yellow and black tulle.

Informal Tea at L. M. Boyd Home Is Lovely Affair Honoring Miss Wood

One of the prettiest social affairs of the week, getting its inspiration from the Halloween season, was the informal tea with which Mrs. L. M. Boyd entertained in honor of Miss Lela Wood at her home on Ninth street last Sunday afternoon.

Some hundred and fifty or two hundred of the young people called during the afternoon, enjoying the beautiful decorations and exchanging greetings—and gossip perhaps—with each other and the members of the house party. Music and readings, given in an informal vein, furnished an attractive diversion during the hours of the tea. Mrs. Boyd was assisted by Mrs. William Bonner and Mrs. Jack Barnard, with quite a bevy of younger assistants scattered about the lower suite. These included, besides the honoree, Misses Marguerite McDonald, Leah Ford, Margaret Smith, Stella Winters, Sadie Fisher, Helen Griffith, Donna Mitchell, Mary Frances Collier, Faye Fisher and Ina Merle Robinson. Messrs. Evan Harris, Otto Dixon, Howard Gordon, Cannon Cantwell, Roy Childers, Roy Taylor, James Fox, Fred Smith and Jack Martin.

Dainty buffet refreshments were served in the dining room, where Mrs. Bonner presided, assisted by Misses Mary Elizabeth, Maxine Ward, John Kerr, Gregory Rowe, Leslie Nolan, Lionel Peters, Gies Mar' Regina, Lindell Stone, Don Cameron, Herman Dunn, Lester Martin, Alvin Williams, Douglas Gibbs, John Tyson, Gerald Coffee, Bonnie Garvey, Edward Anderson, Donora Weldon, Buster Robertson, Frank Shaw, Malcolm Terrell, Drummond Harris, Gilmore Newton, Winthrop Rogers, Maurice Martin, Riny Ramming, John Akin, Preston Woods, Herbert Mayfield, Jack Kadane, Ben Langford, Claude Miller, Steve Ford, Duncan Clark, Leland Miller, Edgar Smith, Claude Harris, Ferris Hall, Raymond Taylor, Charles West, Steve West, Glen Shoemaker, Hugh McDonald and Louis Burns.

World Peace Will Come, If At All, By Regeneration of Individuals, Not By Laws or Treaties, Says Judge Kay

"World Peace" was the subject of Judge John C. Kay's talk to his Bible class of the First Methodist church, south, at the Strand Church Sunday morning, October 13. The lecture is full of interest.

The speaker, Judge Kay, who is a member of the church, opened a box and let out all the troubles on the world, and kept just one thing back in the box, and that was hope.

Now, it is a peculiar thing, when you think about it, that it is your hope that furnishes all the driving power of your life. Every good man, every ambitious man, every man who is willing to work, is filled, or ought to be filled, with hope. Look forward to a better, brighter day. That is the source for power that drives us forward.

That is what the prophets were talking about here—a better time in the future. I think there is no man that doesn't build his castles in Spain, that doesn't create right out of the blue in his own mind and conscience a finer situation than that which he is living in. Do you do that? That man who does not build his castles of the mind must have very little, indeed, in him; very little looking forward, and his heart must be very weak if he doesn't build something in his mind for the future, something better, something stronger, than he has known before.

Secondly, late Pleistocene.

I now, this prophet was telling the people that the time was coming when they were going to take their military workers and make them into agricultural workers. That's a great time. Men have thought about that for ages. It is the great question in the world today. It was strong in the conscience and in the life of this prophet, who said that they would take the sword and make it into a plowshare. And that question—and that question alone—fills the newspapers today with more columns than any question that has ever faced the world.

Now you men, when you read the papers, think that nothing is being done about world peace. I hear many say that the government has hid its head in the sand like an ostrich, and is not trying to do anything with world peace; that it is trying to disregard and hide itself from Europe. That's only shallow thinking. Let me say to you, this morning, that I believe that men like Mr. Hughes are doing and trying to do whatever can be done to bring about a better and a brighter world, all over the world. These things cannot be done in a day, or in an hour, but it takes time and thought and effort and patience to bring it about. So, let's don't go out here and cry out against our government, and against the magistrates, and against the authorities, because they fail to do in a day that which never was done before in all the tide of time.

To use an illustration: You remember about Jonah and the gourd vine. Ah, how little and how selfish we can get sometimes. Here was Jonah, one of the greatest men and one of the greatest preachers that the world ever saw, over there in that hot country, and he had a gourd vine grow up for shade, and the gourd vine died; a worm cut it down, and he didn't have any shade. His gourd vine was gone.

Wanted City Destroyed

Now, because he had that little piece of shade, he wanted the whole city of Nineveh destroyed. He has lost my shade, Texas is not not all of them, but most of them. These things are words stopping. Well, how are you going to do it? You are going to do this by fighting with yourself. We can have a good government, and a good country, and a good world, if it has got enough of good men in it, and that is the only way to do it. You cannot go out here and just simply save the world by writing a platform. It has been tried. You cannot go out here and save the world, or even help the world, by the passing of a law. We have seen thousands of different laws right here in Texas. You cannot save the world that way. It cannot be done! Look at the things I have never seen. I have never seen a man who has ever saved a town or a city or a woman and children, and even the cows, and wanted them slain miserably because his gourd vine died.

Now, what has that got to do with this world peace that I was talking about? Here comes that to be mixed up with this? Just everything. It is because each nation, and each individual, would keep all its hands to its own gourd vine and let the world go hang. That's the reason that we do not have world peace. And the Lord said to Jonah: "Here's 120,000 people. Now, you want me to go out there and kill all these people, all these little babies, all the livestock in town, because your gourd vine died?" A fellow has felt that way sometimes. I expect he has from an office. He didn't feel like doing anything for the world right after that.

When does this prophet say that these things would come about? This wonderful time in the future? It is to come about after the coming of the Savior and when men seek to follow his teachings. The Book says, and what the Savior says all through the Book. He never said much about doctrine, but says everywhere: "Follow me! Follow me! Follow my life." That's the great doctrine of religion, is to follow Him and these prophets were talking about that, and the reason that they did not have world peace, and the reason that we do not have it, is because we are seeking everything except to be religious.

War Is Often Crime

Now, did you ever stop to think that large scale, not necessarily by both people, but what was war that was begun in Germany but crime itself? Lots of us do not know what we are talking about, when we get out here and get to talking for war. These boys who went over to France, they know! Now, what can the church do about that, and what can religious men do about it? I see in the newspaper this morning that they have called on 150,000 preachers in the United States to use their influence to stop war. Whether they will do that, of course, I do not know. I am inclined to think that most of them will do it, but I don't know. War is the great burden that is on the back of labor, England, today, it is still paying the interest on the bonds that were issued to pay for Queen Anne's war before your great grandfather was ever born. It is the great burden, I say, on the back of labor. It is the burden on the back of the church, it is the burden on the back of the educational system of the country, and upon good roads, and a burden upon everything that we would seek to do, to advance civilization, and it is a march backward and downward if we go into war, when it can be avoided.

Oppression Lowers Standard

Let me give you a little example. Why is it that the foreigners who come to these shores are about six inches lower than the tall American? It is because of oppression and depression, and the hard struggle for existence that the people of central Europe, when they come here, are not more than that high.

at least to see Jerusalem a heap of ruins, where the god, Jesus and the higher lived. All their talk, and all their effort was lost on their own people. Now, is their talk, and their effort, and their energy, and their wisdom, to be lost on you, even if it was on those people? It is too great a price to pay. It is too much for our people, in order to escape war, to be righteous, and to be clean? That is what he said it would take to stop it, and that is the only way. He says, that will stop it, is the righteousness of the people. Righteousness? That's a fine word. A righteous man!

Far Wandering Youth Resolves to Be Boy Mother Thinks He Is

"If I only were the boy my mother thinks I am."

Thus lamented a 12-year old boy who was spending time in the county jail awaiting the action of a grand jury on the case, in which he was charged with forgery.

The grand jury met and then came the bill of indictment. He studied the situation and decided that his father's mother and his mother's father should know nothing of the affair. So he determined to tell them nothing.

He indicated that he wanted to enter a plea of guilty and take a sentence of two years in the state penitentiary. Appearing before the judge he was asked how old he was. He had told officers prior to that time that he was 14. He told the judge he was 14.

Upon instructions from the judge the boy wrote home asking his parents to send him his birth certificate. But he told them nothing of his trouble.

The birth certificate came and still the boy refused to tell his parents about the trouble he was in. Up to this time he was known to the officers under an assumed name.

In some manner it was discovered that the boy's parents lived in Illinois and the father was notified that his boy was in trouble.

This past week the case was transferred to the county juvenile court. The father had made the trip to this city from his home in Illinois and secured his boy on parole.

Before his father and the county judge the boy told the story of his wayward way.

He had run away from home, arriving in this city with $9 in his possession. He obtained work now and then but finally he found himself broke, with no work. Accordingly, he forged a check.

He told the county judge in the presence of his father that he had intended to go through the ordeal of a trial and serve his time without permitting the news to get to his parents, for he said he knew he had done wrong and did not want to worry them.

He promised the judge to return home, go to school and become the boy that his mother thought he was.

Her Dream Realized -

EVERY young woman like Mrs. Houk before her marriage dreams dreams and has visions of her ideal home with her husband, and healthy, happy children to make her joy complete.

But as time goes on her dreams are not realized, she has no children, her life is embittered and it is hard for her to be reconciled to the conditions as they exist.

To every young woman who is in this condition the following letter should bring hope and encouragement, as we know of numberless homes that have been blessed with children, just as this home was, after all hope had been abandoned.

Here Follows Mrs. Houk's Personal Letter:

"I was of a nervous disposition and always had a tired, worn-out feeling. I would get sharp pains in my side when working too hard or when walking too much and sometimes I would have those awful, dragging down feelings. I had had such troubles since I was a very young girl and had got very little relief from all the medicine I had taken, and one doctor told me that I would never have children unless I had an operation. I had heard a great deal about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound so I thought I would try it. By the time I had finished the fourth bottle I noticed a change in my health. I took a trip to California, at this time I kept on with the medicine. My health continued to improve, and I now have a big, healthy baby boy six months old. I am not doing my own housework yet as I want to get good and strong first as it means a lot to my baby for me to be well while he is nursing. I have spoken highly of the Vegetable Compound to my friends, and can assure them that willing for you to see these facts on a testimonial.—Mrs. JACK HOUK, 1215 Tennessee St., Lawrence, Kansas.

AMUSEMENT CALENDAR FOR WEEK AT LOCAL THEATERS

'Madame Butterfly' Is Attraction At Palace Theater for This Week Comes Thursday Evening, Nov. 8

Laurette Taylor Gem on Monday in 'Peg o' My Heart'

While "Peg o' My Heart" was playing in New York, with Laurette Taylor in the stellar role, the divine Sarah Bernhardt arrived in the metropolis. After watching Miss Taylor act, Bernhardt wrote:

"Our young artist in New York has not allowed herself to be intimidated. She has worked hard and is still working, although she is already a very agreeable comedienne, possessing humor, emotion, and a rare thing for her age—power. I speak of Laurette Taylor, who will become within five years the foremost actress of this country."

It is this same play, "Peg o' My Heart," which Miss Taylor has just completed, immortalizing on the screen for Metro, under the direction of King Vidor. This brilliant actress has had a career of eminence in the theatre second to none. Off the stage she has always been an interesting personality, whose deviations from the ordinary were marked from early childhood.

She possessed so much vitality and imagination that, if nothing was stirring, if it was a dull, unnotorious day, she soon managed to enliven it in one way or another. She would do such things as—well, let Miss Taylor tell it herself. Speaking of her childhood days in New York, recently she said:

"One Sunday I was walking through a deserted street in Harlem. Nothing stirred. The dead silence was too much for me. The only living thing besides myself was a horse tied to a post. I untied him, gave him a switch and walked. Thinkway horse, I said. Instantly the whole street swarmed with people. The horse was caught, no harm was done, and I went home satisfied."

"In those days I used to imitate somebody all the time, or play a part that pleased better than my own. When I went to a different school where the children did not know much, I pretended to be a foreigner and talked with a strange accent. Some of the boys were very much impressed till one day the accent fell off and broke."

"Then I transferred my imitations to the stage at local entertainments. I spoke Spanish and sang songs. Some times the pay was as high as five dollars."

The photoplay "Peg o' My Heart" is a screen version of J. Harrier Manners' play, directed by King Vidor. It is now presented at the Gem Theatre Monday.

Buddy, a pet goat, had been thought to nibble at Charles Coulter's pockets, where cabbage leaves were the lure for certain comedy efforts in the Ince-First National production of "The Circus." Saturday, no comedy. The goat had discovered that a pay check tasted as good as cabbage and all Coulter was able to retrieve was a corner which read: "and 60-100."

'Thundergate' at Olympic Sunday Beautiful Story

The scenario of real life is always rivalling in dramatic thrills the pictured versions of fiction.

"The movie plot" is invariably prefaced with a happy ending. The note of tragedy or pathos more often marks the close of the true story. That's about the only difference.

One of the strangest parallels of life, both real and unreal, came to light during the filming of the First National picture, "Thundergate," which will be shown at the Olympic theatre today, Monday and Tuesday, when the Chinese extras working in that film, rechristened Virginia Brown Faire, calling her Suey Sin, in Chinese this means Water Lily.

In "Thundergate" Miss Faire portrays the role of Joo Joo, a girl reared in China, who is abducted to be the slave-bride of the son of a Chinese lord. The affair has a happy ending. That is the movie plot.

Virginia expressed the enthusiasm of the Oriental working before the camera and her rechristening came about when Director Joseph De Grasse noticed tears streaming from the eyes of Chan Ing, aged Chinese actor, employed on the "Thundergate" set. The script had not called for pathos and De Grasse demanded to know why the Oriental did not get into the spirit of the scene.

Through Thomas Gubbins, technical director of the picture, Chan Ing told his story. Married when a young man, he came to America to seek his fortune. Behind him he left this young wife and small daughter who gave great promise of physical perfection.

For years he labored in San Francisco's Chinatown and there amassed a small competency with which to bring his wife and now almost grown daughter to this country.

Returning to the province of Shantung for his little family, Chan Ing arrived the day following a bandit raid on his native village. His wife had died during the fighting and his fair daughter, Suey Sin, had been carried away to be sold as a slave on the "lover's boat."

Try as he might, Chan Ing could not find the girl. Then it was said that she had been taken to America. Returning to this country, he arrived shortly after the earthquake and fire of 1906 and found San Francisco's Chinatown, where Suey Sin was said to be held, in smoking ruins.

Today Chan Ing is a broken old man. His little fortune is swept away by his search for Suey Sin. His sole means of support today is the work obtained as a Chinese "extra" on Hollywood picture sets. And in Virginia Brown Faire in her Chinese makeup the aged man believes he has beheld the counterpart of his lost child.

That's a real life scenario. The ending is a little tragic, perhaps. A bugle sounded. One thousand boys were assembled. They rescued a girl, bound a villain and toted him to the police station. That was a scene in "The Good Bad Boy." Benjie Seligman is making for Principal Pictures Corporation.

OLYMPIC SUNDAY THREE DAYS

Tully Marshall, Virginia Brown Faire and Owen Moore in "Thundergate"

Holbrook Blinn Is "Bad Man" of Stage and Screen

Holbrook Blinn, star of Edwin Carewe's "The Bad Man," a First National picture which comes to the Olympic theatre beginning Wednesday is the original "bad man" of both stage and screen.

Blinn, up to the time of the release of "The Bad Man," was the only actor who had ever played the role. This is a unique achievement in itself, because seldom is a stage actor as good in the film as he is on the stage and vice versa.

Blinn began playing the role back in 1920 when the play was first presented in New York City. For three years without cessation he played the role of "Panche Lopez" before Broadway audiences. Then he followed this with a short tour of the country, playing in all the principal cities, returning to Chicago for a solid year. This was followed by another tour which ended in Los Angeles.

During the making of the film in Hollywood, Blinn was also appearing in the stage version of the play at a local theatre. For nearly a month the only clothes he wore were his "stage" clothes. He would don them in the morning for his film scenes and keep them on all day, appearing at the theatre in the evening in the same make-up.

"The Bad Man" was adapted by John Lynch. Sol Ito was the photographer and Wallace Fox assisted Carewe in the directing.

Others in the cast besides Holbrook Blinn are Ed Bennett, Jack Mulhall and Walter McGrall.

"Flowing Gold," Rex Beach's most recent novel, is to be screened by Richard Walton Tully for First National releases soon.

'Broadway Gold' at Empress Theater Starting Sunday

"Broadway Gold," with Elaine Hammerstein in the role of a young show girl, and with Elliot Dexter and Kathlyn Williams in other important roles will have its premiere at the Empress theatre starting Sunday.

This picture which was produced under the supervision of Edward Dillon is a screen adaptation of W. Wonderley Carey's story which was a feature in the recent issues of Young's Magazine. It deals with the typical Broadway crowd, of head working chorus girls, and of the types known as social diggers.

Mr. Dillon has skillfully used the glittering and frothy background of New York's night life as the setting for the unfolding of his tale, and it may be believed the critics he has successfully carried out his intention of making a picture, unusual in its dramatic elements, and at the same time kept it from overstepping the bounds of probability or possibility.

Miss Hammerstein never has looked lovelier than she does as the bright and particular star of "Broadway Gold." Kathlyn Williams is the embodiment of a wise veteran in ways of the stage and the tricks of stage door Johnnie. Elliot Dexter plays the part of one of those fabulously rich "socialites" who finds that the simple love of a plain little chorus girl is far better than the blandishments of the butterfly type.

The picture was produced with a lavish hand and certainly cost a pretty amount, but the results are evident. Rich scenes depicting many of the palatial dances and eating places are eye-ravishing in their detail and beauty. Swans proudly sail about under the gilded domes in ivory lined pools, as the gay and garish through slip forbidden waters or sway to the strains of the latest jazz on the dance floor. Certainly Mr. Dillon and his company have caught the note of glamour and fantastic atmosphere which is associated with Broadway in the popular mind.

In order to keep the movie spectator from being bored, there are two thrilling auto wrecks, a murder mystery and heels of divinely formed stage beauties, who disport themselves for the edification of the Broadway habitué.

"Flowing Gold," Rex Beach's most recent novel, is to be screened by Richard Walton Tully for First National releases soon.

LA FOLLETTE, IF NO OTHER, WILL CONTEST WITH COOLIDGE

Not Bound by Party Agreement Goes His Own Gait and Shakes a Defiant Fist at Whole Universe

By MARK SULLIVAN.

Special Correspondent of New York Tribune and Wichita Daily Times. Copyright, 1923, by the New York Tribune.

Whoever else may or may not run for the Republican presidential nomination, whether there are to be several opponents to Coolidge in the field, or whether there will not; regardless of what Finchot does, or Johnson does, or anybody else—under any and all conditions, there is one forceful figure who will challenge Coolidge and make whatever progress he can against him. That is La Follette.

That the progress he can make must be practical certainly he will not affect La Follette's determination to run. La Follette is not bound by party agreements, formal or informal, tentative or permanent. He goes his own gait and shakes a defiant fist at the whole universe of understandings, agreements or rules. La Follette has self-willed, most of all, with an immensely dynamic capacity for the pursuit of self-generated purposes. It can be taken for granted that La Follette will be one man who will contest Coolidge's nomination, even if there should be no other. If it should be clear on the opening day that Coolidge will be nominated and if his nomination would be unanimous except for La Follette, La Follette would grudgingly order his Wisconsin delegates to cast their votes for himself. Unanimity doesn't interest La Follette. Republican party—the sentiment that would go with nominating Coolidge unopposed on the first ballot—all such considerations would have no effect for La Follette whatever. So far as he pays any attention to the situation of the party, it is in so far as it affects his own position. It is in so far as it affects his own position that La Follette will run in the contest of 1924 that he will get. He will probably have twenty-six delegates from his state of Wisconsin, as he has them, or the bulk of them, in the Republican national convention for several years past. He is not on who else is in the field, but he also has some delegates from nearby states like Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota and a few more distant.

One thing some months ago the plan of the more extreme progressives and radicals, of whom La Follette is the avowed leader, was to pool the candidates of such as they may be able to persuade to join them in a common effort. Their plan was to have La Follette try to get the maximum number of delegates to the convention from Iowa, and in the meantime to get the maximum number of delegates to the convention from Wisconsin, and in the meantime to get the maximum number of delegates to the convention from Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota and a few more distant.

La Follette today does not begin to have the following kind of head when he is a pioneer of the old progressive movement of ten to twenty years ago. The public has come to think of him as having a bitter strain. It is probably not true, although the word to say that among the overwhelming majority of the people La Follette is unpopular. This unpopularity is by no means solely due to what is often called with dubious accuracy his "war record." It is a matter of common knowledge that at one time during the war there was a tendency to make La Follette a pariah among his fellow senators, that there was actually a movement to expel him from the senate. It is also a fact that in addition to this formal gesture toward outlawing him, there was a disposition, equally painful, possibly more painful to the victim, to ostracize him from the senate. It is a fact that La Follette's social ostracism was the big and outrageous feature of his life during the war. It is interesting to recall that during this period, the one man who was not a part of the social ostracism was the big and outrageous feature of his life during the war. It is interesting to recall that during this period, the one man who was not a part of the social ostracism was the big and outrageous feature of his life during the war.

If this so-called "war record" were the only cause of La Follette's unpopularity he might safely count upon recovering from it. The question he would need to consider would be the number of years it might take him to live it down and whether he would be able to live enough to hope to be the beneficiary of the ultimate withdrawal of this intolerance. La Follette is getting up in years. He no longer gives his age in the autobiography in the congressional directory. He is sixty-eight.

To dissent from your nation's participation in a foreign war is always a certain title to acute disapproval in the eyes of the majority. It is equally certain that disapproval based on this cause only can evaporate so soon as war-time passion lies down. Of this law of public life there are many extraordinary picturesque, almost romantic, examples in England.

In Great Britain's management of the recent war she had two statesmen who were clearly outstanding by her most conspicuous and most useful. One was Lloyd George. Lloyd George was Britain's outstanding statesman leader. And yet, if you go back to the time when Britain was engaged in another war, with the Boers, Lloyd George's role was then that of a dissenting one. It is that earlier war Lloyd George was the kind of outcast that some of us know of in the case of La Follette. In the Boer War it was before Lloyd George, then a member of the house of commons, took the position that it was an unjust war on the part of his country and that her attack on the Boers was an act of shame. So violent was his opposition that he attempted to make a speech at Manchester he was attacked by a mob with such fury that the police seized him and hastily put him in a policeman's coat and hat to hurry him away from the angry crowd.

The other of Great Britain's two most useful statesmen in the recent war—one to whom some of the most difficult tasks of diplomacy were entrusted—was General Jan Smuts. And in the Boer War, Smuts had been an enemy in arms of the British empire, one of the three principal military leaders of the Boers. It was as an enemy of the British empire that Smuts got his title of general.

During the recent war, on an occasion when the writer was in London, he had an experience which will always remain with him as one of the most dramatic of his memories. It was a dinner party at the house of a friend of the writer's. The guests were in military uniform, an active general in the British army. During the course of the dinner the active British general told a story which, summarized and condensed, was in effect as follows: "Sixteen years ago," he said, "I was a young captain in the British army and was serving in the Boer War in South Africa. One day my men captured some Boer prisoners and brought them in to me. In my talk with the Boer prisoners they spoke of being especially proud of the leader in whose command they had been when they were captured. They said their commander was not only a man of great military skill, but was a highly educated man. After some talk about this I asked these Boer captives what their commander was. They said he was not far away, across a stream. After some talk about this I asked these Boer captives what their commander was. They said he was not far away, across a stream. After some talk about this I asked these Boer captives what their commander was. They said he was not far away, across a stream.

hardly conceivable that La Follette should be able to muster in all more than a hundred. Such hope as the insurgent Republicans at one time had of capturing the presidential nomination next year rested largely on a belief they held two or three years ago that during the intervening period they could greatly extend or even make universal the "presidential primary" system of selecting delegates to the national convention. But the recent legislative year in the various states came and went without any extension of the direct primary system. On the contrary, in some states it was repealed or modified in a direction looking toward repeal.

The direct primary system is sufficiently general to make nearly everybody familiar with the distinction between it and the old method of choosing delegates. Both the presidential primary and the old method have a variety of forms in different states. But broadly speaking, the distinction is that under the presidential primary the delegates are chosen either by informal caucuses or by some other loose method which gives great power to the local party leaders. Indeed, it is not too much to say that under the old system the delegates to the national convention are chosen largely by ways which, whatever the variations in different states, amount in effect to being what the politicians call "hand-picked" by the party leaders. It was precisely to take this power away from the local leaders that the presidential primary was devised. (The system was quite late in effect largely as an incident of and for the purpose of getting the 1912 nomination for Roosevelt as against Taft, who, in obedience to the tradition that every president is entitled to re-nomination for a second term, was the choice of the leaders.) The presidential primary, while it varies greatly in form, has as its essential characteristic the choice of delegates to the national convention by direct vote of the people in an election which is surrounded with the same formal statutory safe-guard as this general election.

The presidential primary system, from the moment it got in the Roosevelt fight of 1912 spread to such an extent that it covered almost half the states and almost half the delegates. (The exact number of delegates now subject to the presidential primary method of selection is 465 out of a total of 1,064.) With the passing of Roosevelt and the Progressive party, the presidential primary not only lost its forward momentum, but began to slip backward. In various states, notably Minnesota and Maine, formal action has been taken, sometimes successful and sometimes only partially so, looking toward a return in one degree or another to the old convention system of selecting delegates. Instead of spreading further, the direct primary is actually receding. This is perhaps a sign of the abating of the sort of thing for which La Follette stands.

Not so many years ago a church was a place for men on Sunday only, with its doors closed and locked during the week. Quite different is the church of today, with activities every one of the seven days, making of it a center of both social and religious endeavor for young and old. One of the busiest of the busy is the First Presbyterian church of this city, located at the corner of Tenth and Bluff, carrying on various and interesting phases of church work.

Monday of last week the women of the auxiliary had an all day meeting at the church in the form of a real "sawing bee," with machines, ironing boards and nimbler fingers all brought into requisition in a successful effort to do the entire quota of necessary sewing for the church's own overseas hospital. A delightful luncheon plate contributed to the pleasure of the day.

The Halloween supper and party Tuesday night was enjoyed by nearly 500 of the church membership, including men, women and children, many of whom were costumed in accordance with the holiday. Supper was served in cafeteria style, and a "roving Gypsy band" arrived, struck camp and entertained the party with songs and other music, as they sat around the camp fire. Other appropriate program features were enjoyed, with a fortune teller who predicted many weird futures.

The regular prayer service on Wednesday evening was devoted to a round table study of Sunday's lesson, led by D. E. King. The subject, which is the world's temperance lesson, evoked much interesting discussion, including the local Sunday closing question. The regular choir rehearsal on Thursday night is under the direction of Mrs. Lois Parker. A new and attractive musical feature is the "echo choir," composed of the girls and younger women of the church, under the direction of Mrs. J. R. Pittman, who will make their first appearance Sunday, Nov. 4, at the 11 o'clock service.

The teachers and workers of the Sunday school have a council which meets in conference the first Friday night of each month for the purpose of discussing and making plans for the improvement and betterment of the Sunday school. Many important matters and policies are worked out at these meetings. Thus the churches of Wichita Falls offer to their congregations religious, social and intellectual opportunities which deserve the cooperation and approbation of all citizens.

Membership cards were distributed Friday night at the first official meeting of the Yellow Dog Club at the Masonic temple. The newly organized club is open to 15-Moly members only. It was announced that only about 50 members of the club had passed an examination on some of the 15-Moly obligations, one of the requirements of Yellow Dog membership. Although the time limit was set for November 15, it was decided by a vote of the assembly to extend the time two weeks to those who had made an honest effort to learn the work.

A form of an initiative for those members of the club who were taken into the order of Deacons after the date when the third degree was removed from the required degree work, was voted upon at the meeting Friday evening and plans for ceremonies in the near future were discussed. Several new members were taken into the club, bringing the total membership to over fifty.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

HUPP MOTOR CO. IS FIFTEEN YEARS OLD IN NOVEMBER

November, 1923, is the fifteenth anniversary of the founding of the Hupp Motor Car Corporation. It also marks the close of the fifteenth year of concentration by Hupp on quality motor car construction.

As a result of this exclusive building the corporation stands today as by far the largest producer of high grade four-cylinder motor cars in the world. More than 200,000 Hupmobiles have been built and sold, and the name Hupmobile is known and respected in every neck and corner of the civilized world. More than three-fourths of these cars are known to be still in service.

The exclusive concentration by our executive, engineering, manufacturing and sales departments on one type of car has resulted in quality and a genuine economy in manufacturing impossible otherwise.

Highly organized in November, 1908, it began at once to build automobiles of high quality and durability, and that policy has always been rigidly followed.

No let down is ever tolerated in the rigid manufacturing and inspection standards it has set up.

Within three years after operations were begun its cars had attained world-wide distinction. In 1910 the development of the Hupmobile had reached such a stage that officials decided to do something never before attempted, a thing then generally considered by the infant industry as an extremely hazardous undertaking.

This was to have a car driven around the world. The trip took something more than a year, during which time 23 foreign countries were visited. Hupmobile had never been seen up to that time were visited. Natives of these places were struck by the sight of the "strange contrivance."

During the tour the car traveled 42,000 miles and established a world's record for a motor car. It was the first time that any other car built. Late last year another Hupmobile ran 21 hours a day for 51 consecutive days in the Rocky Mountain country without stopping its engine, a world's record. A total of 15,125 miles was covered.

Hupmobiles are owned and driven today in every civilized country. The corporation's sane and high standard manufacturing policy, plus the records the cars themselves have made with owners, has resulted in a steadily increased demand with each passing year.

Periods of "business depression" affect the Hupp market only slightly and compared with most business concerns.

Though organized 15 years ago this November, it was not until 1909 that any completed cars were built. Factory records show that the first shipment was made in February of that year, when two cars were sent out. At the end of that year 1,613 had been built and sold. In 1910, 4,320 more were manufactured.

Hundreds of these models—the original little Hupmobile "10" run about—are still in daily use, with records of more than 100,000 miles of service behind them. A Forest, Wash., owner of a 1924 model Hupmobile car had traveled 113,417 miles up to that time. It is doubtful whether any other car has exceeded that distance.

During the 15 years Hupp has produced six different series of cars, including a model for which has exceeded capacity of the corporation's four manufacturing plants ever since its announcement in August. Each car has represented a forward step in manufacture and design which has been the subject of wide comment.

It is believed that Hupp, through its extensive manufacturing facilities, enjoys as great a control over the units and materials that enter into its completed cars as any other automobile concern in the moderate priced field.

POPULAR TREND TO LIGHTER CARS DECLARES FORD CO.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 1.—How rapidly the trend of sentiment is swinging toward the use of lighter, simpler cars in order to meet the satisfactorily most present day traffic conditions, is emphasized in the tremendous increase in sales of the Ford Motor Company for the first three-quarters of the present year.

An analysis of these sales shows that the sentiment is not alone among passenger car buyers, but extends to commercial car purchasers who are finding that the smaller motor haulage unit effects more efficient, speedier and economical delivery service.

Sales of Ford cars and trucks in the United States for the first nine months of the year totaled 1,524,020. It is just announced that in an increase of 466,422 over the same months of 1922.

In September alone, 141,487 Ford cars and trucks were delivered at retail, a gain of 23,022 over September last year, while truck sales for the month were 15,947, or 4,157 more than in the same month a year ago.

Traffic Cops and Taxi Men Don't See Eye to Eye

By NEA Service.
CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Two hapless hangers of motorists, themselves antagonistic in former times, have met here and decided to work together.

They are the traffic cop and the taxi driver.

And, oh, the conspiracy they have entered into! To be good friends hereafter, to help each other and motorists, square yourself for this one—to favor the elimination of all parking in business streets!

You get the point of this, don't you?

Well, the National Association of Taxicab Owners started this conspiracy against the poor motorist with a convention in this city. The taxicab owners, coming from 125 cities, each brought as his guest the police officer in charge of traffic in his locality.

After a free trip to Chicago, much bantering and entertainment, what could the traffic chiefs do but fall in with their former enemies and let the individual motorist hike for himself?

Unappreciative Guests.

But even this conspiracy was hard to form. There were those among the cops who had the temerity at first to criticize the taxi men, and some of the taxi owners weren't at all backward in airing their own feelings about the cops.

"Police make it their favorite outdoor sport to haul out taxi drivers," said one of the cops.

"And policemen waste our gasoline by unnecessary delays in giving the 'Go' signal at corners," the taxi man continued. "They'll be just as efficient if they are less hardboiled."

But he couldn't get very far with that. Inspector Albert J. Headley of Washington, representing the police delegation, hurried back even more serious insinuations.

"Peer Taxi Drivers."

"The cab drivers always have an alibi," he remarked.

"Friction comes usually because of the nature of the cab business," he added. "The drivers work on percentages and are on their toes for business all the time. They handle their cars far better than most private drivers and can squeeze in at every advantage."

"Then they fall into the faults of other drivers. They try to beat the whistle, speed, run around standing street cars, cut corners, fail to signal properly for turns, get on the wrong side of the street and let their brakes get loose. Shouldn't we call them for that?"

Friends, at Last.

All of which discussion led to agreement upon a platform of friendly taxi work. Here it is:

"Taxicab drivers, as professionals, set the example; therefore they should get the advice of experienced

HOW TO PROTECT YOUR MOTOR CAR IN COLD WEATHER

The average car owner is seldom in a position to know just what must be done to his car in the winter to protect it as nearly as possible under conditions that exist in warm weather. For this reason," says Frank Keim, local Studebaker dealer, "the following suggestions should be carefully observed by all automobile owners."

Before any anti-freeze solution is used, the water circulating system should be inspected for leaks, and repairs made, if necessary. It is usually a good plan to replace hose connections at this time of the year. Do not use anti-freeze compounds which contain alcohol or other similar compounds, as they corrode the inside of the radiator.

The only satisfactory solution of which we have is alcohol and water. Denatured alcohol is preferred. Wood alcohol can be used. Wood alcohol, if used in excess, will damage the radiator.

The following table shows different proportions of mixtures with temperatures at which the solution will begin to freeze:

Denatured Alcohol	Water	Freeze Temp. Fahr.
10%	90%	27
20%	80%	19
30%	70%	10
40%	60%	0

* Below zero.

Glycerine is sometimes used with alcohol to keep the alcohol evaporated to a minimum. However, it is rather expensive and also has a tendency to damage the rubber hose connections. If glycerine is used, mix the alcohol and glycerine in equal proportions and use this mixture in the same percentage as alcohol in the above table.

It must be remembered that it is necessary to add alcohol from time to time to replace what is lost due to evaporation. Whenever necessary to fill the radiator, to replace loss by evaporation, use a mixture of 40 water and 60 alcohol. During the winter months the fan belt can be loosened, which will reduce the flow of air through the radiator and thereby allow motor to run warmer than it otherwise would.

Radiator and Head Covers.

It will assist greatly in approximating the summer temperature of the motor if radiator and head covers are used. With a radiator cover that is adjustable, a large part of the radiator can be covered, allowing the motor to readily warm up, and then adjusted to a suiting opening to keep the motor running warm but still not allowing it to overheat. A hood cover will keep heat under the hood, assisting in keeping motor warm while running and also keeping the motor from cooling off rapidly when stopped, thereby making starting easier the next time the motor is started.

Due to the low gravity gasoline now being used, it is very essential, more especially in cold weather, to get as much heat as possible to the mixture to properly vaporize the gasoline to prevent condensation. It will assist greatly in approximating the summer temperature of the motor if radiator and head covers are used as instructed above.

In starting the motor, make sure that the choke is pulled all the way out until the motor starts, then push it in slightly until the motor warms up but do not have it even partly out longer than it necessary. Racing a cold motor will not warm it up; restart the spark and let the engine idle slowly.

Lubricating System.

Oil should be drained more frequently from the motor, in winter than in summer. Cold weather aggravates the dilution of the oil by raw fuel, especially when the motor is run for long periods of time. It is not advisable to drive a car until after the motor has been turned over at a slow rate of speed long enough to give the oil a chance to get well into all of the working parts.

Condensation in the cylinders due to cold weather often results in the mixing of the gasoline with the oil. We recommend under average conditions, the oil be drained approximately every 1,000 miles in order to guard against excessive wear of the bearings or cylinder walls. However it is advisable to change the oil every month during winter driving regardless of when fresh oil was last added. The oil pan should be removed and washed out with kerosene occasionally in order to prevent any accumulation of sediment which might have a detrimental effect upon the bearings.

In cold weather the capacity and the voltage of a battery are less than they are at normal temperature. Likewise, it is much more difficult to crank an engine because of the effects of cold temperatures on the lubrication and also requires more cranking because of the incomplete carbonization of the fuel when the motor is cold.

Because of the heavier drain on the battery and its decreased efficiency in the winter, the energy taken from the battery should be conserved as much as possible. When starting the motor, throw out the clutch, which will prevent unnecessary turning of gears in the transmission (through congealed oil) and consequently reduce the load placed on the starting motor and battery. Also see that all connections are tight throughout the electric system and that none of the wires are grounded or shorted.

Test the battery with a hydrometer every two weeks and if on any two consecutive tests the specific gravity is 1.04 or lower, remove the battery from the car and have it charged and also see that it generates if charging properly.

When adding distilled water to the battery in freezing temperature, make sure that the motor is immediately run for a short time so as to charge the battery, thereby mixing the added water with the acid and preventing freezing.

A battery not properly charged will freeze and the specific gravity should be frequently checked. The following table will be found a convenient reference:

Specific Gravity	Amount of Charge	Temperature Fahr.
1.250	Full	90°
1.200	Three-quarter	80°
1.150	One-half	70°
1.100	One-quarter	60°
1.050	Empty	50°

* Degrees below zero.

Ignition.

A good hot spark is needed for starting in cold weather. Make sure that all electrical connections are tight and clean, that the distributor breaker points are clean and the opening set to .02" and that the spark plug gaps are set to .02".

Tires should be properly inflated. If chains are used they should not be too tight. Watch small cuts in tires. Water will soon work into these and loosen the tire structure.

Adjust the brakes and fit new linings, if necessary. See that the brake shafts and such parts are oiled. It is highly essential that the steering gear be correctly adjusted and that the wheel alignment be correct. Slippery pavements make it essential that the brakes and the steering mechanism be in proper condition.

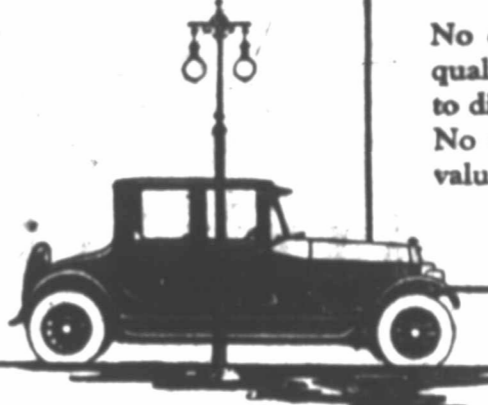

Never take a car out on hill work without knowing the condition of the brakes. To test them properly the rear wheels should be jacked up.

With the recent appointment of Frank Mayo as vice president in charge of sales, the Lincoln Products Company has added an able and experienced sales executive to its staff.

NON-STOP RECORD MADE BY SPECIAL WAGON OF REO CO.

A record that will doubtless stand unassailed for some time to come is that established by the Speed Wagon which, as a part of the official motor convoy for the Pony Express Revival furnished by the Reo Motor Car company, raced 2700 miles across the country without having its engine stopped.

During 236 consecutive hours the engine of the Speed Wagon continued its steady hum and during that period it was necessary to feed it only five quarts of oil. This is a remarkable record in itself, but when the running conditions are known, it seems all the more remarkable for the almost insurmountable obstacles which were overcome.

N. M. A. Plans to Oppose Actively Federal Sales Tax On Gas, Which Is Encouraged By State Measures

With thirty-six states in the union taxing motorists for one to three cents per gallon for gasoline it is feared the sixty-eighth session of congress will reveal numerous proposals for a federal sales tax on gas.

Never before have so many proposals for multiple car owners been offered, and it is apparent that the adoption of the gasoline tax by seventeen additional states in 1923 will encourage an epidemic of federal tax proposals.

BUICK IN ACCIDENT NOT EQUIPPED WITH FOUR-WHEEL BRAKES

It has come to our attention that a report is being circulated throughout the country that the automobile which turned turtle on the Burk Burnett road last Sunday, is which Mrs. E. B. Butt of Burk Burnett sustained a broken arm, was a new 1924 Buick model of four-wheel brake construction.

California and Maryland are already taking steps to reduce or wipe out entirely the conventional registration fees in the belief that the gas tax is not only ample for all purposes, road building and otherwise, but also more equitable than the motor tax.

POULTRY EXPERTS ARE MAKING SURVEY HERE

Mrs. Ella Beers, Mrs. Katherine Downs and Mrs. R. B. Wallace of the Purina Mills of St. Louis are in Wichita Falls making a survey of the poultry raised in this vicinity. These ladies have made a special study of poultry culture and are prepared to help poultry raisers in and around Wichita Falls on such problems as culling, feeding of moulting hens and other poultry problems. While in Wichita Falls they will call on all poultry raisers to take up these important problems. It is through the enterprise of the Maricle Coal and Feed Company, at whose place of business they will be while in this city, that it is possible for the poultry keepers to get the benefit of the experience of these experts. Mr. Maricle stated that the ladies will cull poultry free of charge, as well as give any other information that will be beneficial to poultry raisers.
