Sen. Yarborough Puts Okay on Don

By JAMES McCORRY

U.S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough, making public a declaration of his preference for Don Yarborough for governor by paying a personal visit to Yarborough's campaign headquarters Sunday morning, predicted D. Yarborough will win the runoff "going away."

The senior senator came down the stairs of D. Yarborough's Austin headquarters carrying a Yarborough campaign sign, with a V for Victory signal, to declare:

"We're on the verge of selecting the first loyal Democratic governor since Jimmy Alford was governor 30 years ago. The people of Texas are entitled to elect a governor at least once every 30 years."

As the D. Yarborough staffers and supporters cheered, the senior senator continued:

"Folks, you don't know how wonderful it's going to be. You're going to thank flowers are blooming in January this year. I wouldn't be surprised to see strawberries ripening in January."

The senator said he had never led into a runoff in a gubernatorial race, and said in 1956 when he ran for governor he was 150,000 votes behind going in the runoff.

"In the runoff I was so close it took 'em two weeks to count me out of it," he recalled.

People Saturday night, Sen. Yarborough said, have been telling Don Yarborough that although they worked as county managers for Hill and Briscoe "we're putting our shoulders to the wheel Monday morning for Don Yarborough for governor."

The senator reasoned "all the shrewd campaigners are out of it now."

It appeared obvious the senator feels Yarborough will attract, among others, supporters of Hill and Briscoe.

MEMORIAL DAY HISTORY — Memorial Day was first celebrated on May 30, 1868, to honor the men who died in the Civil War. This year marks the 100th celebration of the patriotic holiday. The first Memorial Day was proclaimed by General try during the late rebellion. Many wars later, Memorial Day remains a day to honor those who have given their lives for their country.

Rural People Offered Increased Buying Power By Farmers Home Ad.

Hamilton County low income rural people have increased buying power, as a result of Federal opportunity loans, according to Geo. Krupala, the Farmers Home Administration local representative.

Three farm and other rural families have received over $7800 in economic opportunity loans since July 1, 1967.

They used the loans to develop small businesses and improve their small farming operations.

Over 2,700 opportunity loans have been made in Texas, of which 15 are in Hamilton County, since beginning of the program in January, 1965, with more than 430 being made this fiscal year. Of the 15 loans in the county, 14 have paid their accounts current.

The opportunity loans are part of the Federal anti-poverty program, which Congress enacted three years ago. The loan program is administered by the FHA for the office of Economic Opportunity.

Low income rural people, through the FHA office, may receive up to $3,500 to develop producing businesses or to expand farming operations. Borrowers take up to 11 years to repay loan.

From the first time people could never before qualify for now can get the money they need to develop and expand a small business enterprise or a farming operation. The enterprise, which is farming or business, must be a reasonable chance of success.

Applications for loans are through the FHA office in Hamilton

Congressman Burleson Names Coordinating Committee

Abilene (Spl.)—Congressman Omar Burleson, who recently spent the Easter recess in the 17th Congressional District, speaking to Chamber of Commerce banquets, and touring Soil Conservation Watershed projects in the south part of the district, has announced his campaign coordinating committee for the year. The committee is Larry Adamson, Taylor and Jones County farmer, Maurice Brooks, Abilene Attorney, Walter Johnson, President of First National Bank of Abilene, Morgan Jones Jr., Abilene investments firm, and Si Addington, owner and operator of Convoy Armored Car Service. City and county chairmen from over the district again include those leaders who have in the past been active in Burleson's campaign activities.

Congressman Burleson, who was unopposed in the Democratic Primary, has announced that he again plans to campaign in as many cities and towns in the district as possible, and pointed out the difficulty in getting around to each county as often as he would like to. Referring to the last redistricting, which added seven counties to the 17th District, the Congressman pointed out that district now includes 31 counties, spreading from Big Spring on the west to Mineral Wells on the east, and from Haskell on the north to within 30 miles of Austin on the south. The district also stretches from Hamilton County on the southeast to Garden City in Glasscock County on the southwest. The new district, including the 7 new counties of Mason, Menard, McCulloch, San Saba, Lampasas, Llano and Burnet, will be effected in January 1969 and consists of approximately 440,000 people covering a larger area than six of the states in the New England area, in which approximately 16 million people reside. The Congressman said, "With the Congress remaining in session so long each year, it is very difficult to get around over the district just using holidays and during the short period of time the Congress is adjourned between sessions." He continued, "I feel it incumbent upon me to visit in as many counties as possible as often as possible in order to keep in touch with the people and have some idea of the feelings back home, if I am to adequately represent this vast, wonderful big West and Central Texas area in the U. S. Congress.

Burleson will spend the last weekend this month in the district, at which time he will be honored at Coleman, give the commencement address at Anson High School, and speak at the annual Jaycee installation banquet at Haskell. This will probably be his last visit to the district until the Congress recesses for the two National Conventions in August, according to a spokesman in his Abilene office.

PRESTON SMITH FOR GOVERNOR

VOTE SATURDAY JUNE 1

TO: The Citizens and Voters of Texas
FROM: Preston Smith, Candidate for Governor

The purpose of this message is to ask for your support and vote in the Second Democratic Primary Saturday, June 1.

As your Lieutenant Governor for the last six years, I believe I have qualified myself to seek the high office of Governor. You know I finished second among 10 candidates in the First Primary, about 29,000 votes behind the leader with 1,750,000 votes cast.

With your help we can win this runoff against an opponent who has no public record of any kind... one who is aligned with groups that want to reject the progressive, constructive programs built by John Connally and his predecessors and replace them with so-called "liberal" ideas of their own.

I want to continue and improve on the start we have made in education, pollution control, law enforcement, highways, water conservation, promotion of industry and tourism, and many other vital areas.

I am proud to have been a part of Texas government for 18 years. Opponents may harp about what is wrong in Texas; I happen to think there are a lot of things RIGHT in Texas. I am proud of my state and its people.

Things can be even better, and I want to work with you in that direction.

It's more or less in the political tradition to lambast your opponent and say a lot of ugly and cutting things about him. I don't want to engage in personalities; my opponent has no public record to criticize. Therefore I am running for Governor on my own merits.

It may be pretty ambitious for a farm-born, farm-raised Texas boy, who worked his way through Texas Tech and spent his adult years in business activities in Lubbock, to aspire to be Governor. You will be the judges as to whether my experience and proven qualifications entitle me to be elected. I will accept your judgment with real gratitude for your past support and friendship.

Please remember that if I am elected, my door will always be open to any Texan who has any problem whatever that the Governor can help with. I will always be interested in good government. I will always be interested in you.

Fractured 'Filosophy...

By J. Rayford Wooton

"Lizard's Lair"

Most of us have experienced many and varied adventures during our life. I suppose those of us who are privileged to be born Texans have the edge on most people, as Texas adventures are of a special kind, and generally are much more unbelievable than those that happen elsewhere. This is an experience that happened to me several years back, while on a hunting expedition in the Big Bend section.

Our hunting party consisted of three very close friends and myself. We planned at least three weeks in the desert near the Mexican border, and our game was the big mule deer, peccary, and the hope of getting a black bear. The rugged, mountainous terrain was rather difficult to get over, so we decided to use Mexican burros as our means of transportation while hunting. The sure-footed donkeys were a wise choice, as they were very adept at getting into almost inaccessible areas.

We had been on location six days, and our hunt was proving very rewarding, as each one in the group had bagged some excellent trophies. I had also discovered an unusually deep canyon, hemmed in by very steep cliffs. The canyon walls seemed to rise in a sheer rock face that reached up into the clouds hundreds of feet above the canyon floor. My interest was magnified, as I wondered just how far back into the mountains this canyon penetrated. I wanted to explore this area, so the next morning, I started my day's hunt up the canyon; not knowing what could possibly lay in wait for me as an unsuspecting prey.

The little burro moved cautiously along the animal trail, as we wound our way deeper into the depths of the lonely, boxed off canyon. The dizzy height of the towering walls on either side cast a shadow that made the canyon quite dark. The sun would have to be almost overhead before its rays would shine down into the narrow arroyo. For more than an hour the burro and I traveled slowly and warily between the unscalable walls. I am sure we had covered as much as two miles, when we came to an overhanging ledge of rock, outcropping from the straight walls we had become accustomed to. I searched every foot of the ledge with my eyes, as I thought this outcropping would be an excellent place for a bear, a panther, or other mountain creatures to be lying, either to watch for prey or to rest, with a view of the canyon floor below. Not one animal did I spot, nor any movement of any kind did I see. The surefooted donkey was slowly picking his way over some jagged rocks scattered about the seldom traveled trail, when out of the corner of my eye I caught the glimpse of some long, slender object lash off the ledge above my head, crashing toward me. I instinctively ducked, but I must have been too late. I remembered no more.

Consciousness returned slowly and hazily to my aching brain. The first sound I vaguely remember was some kind of a screeching, or squealing close by my ear. I tried to turn my battered body so that I might see what was making such a noise. I had not much more than moved, when I was viciously grabbed by some monster, and slammed hard against the rock I lay on. My right shoulder ripped in terrible pain, and I screamed out. Again the monster clamped down on my leg with a large, ugly mouth. I knew I must lie still regardless of pain or fear. I had no idea what kind of a giant creature was my captor, and for fear I should provoke another attack I lay motionless. It is almost humanly impossible to lay completely still, and not know what kind of a giant has you in its clutches, and yet I knew if I should move, I would again be mauled. After what seemed like an eternity, several slithering, crawling creatures began to swarm over my body, across my face, and down my legs. I dared not move. These critters were about five feet long, and they looked just like overgrown baby lizards. These creepy creatures began to try to swallow my hands and arms. One would grab up an arm, and swallow until it reached my body, then in disgust, the lizard critter would back away, looking very disappointed. Another one of the young would try his luck, with the same results. I just endured this agony, knowing better than to move or resist.

This swallowing game continued for some time, but at last I heard voices below the rock ledge, so I called out for help. The mother lizard grabbed me harshly, but at the sound of the men climbing up the rock ledge, she released me, and rushed out for an attack on the intruders. A volley of shots rang out, and the giant lizard lay dead. There were eight of the young, and high-powered rifles made quick work of ending the entire lizard family. My failure to return to camp had prompted a search, and was I happy to see my friends.

The mother lizard measured 12 feet and three inches in length. The young averaged around five feet. I was battered up quite severely. My right shoulder was broken and mangled, but time has healed my injuries. I wish now we had captured at least some of the young lizards to bring back in order that we might prove Texas lizards do grow big in the desert Southwest.
