Turning Back the Calander

Mrs. P. H. Miller prepared a love feast complimenting the ladies of the First Baptist Church last Friday. The affair was held in the basement of the church and the receiving line was composed of the past presidents of the Ladies Aid Society and the W. M. U. When guests arrived they were directed to a table where Mrs. E. J. Cowan presided and where they registered and received a number. Mrs. A. G. Dunwoody played the grand march and the guests were asked to repair to the banquet room where they found their plates by a Valentine place card with a corresponding number.

The tables were decorated with flowers and hearts. The repast consisted of turkey, dressing, creamed potatoes, asparagus, creamed peas, celery, pickles, gravy hot buns, coffee, and cherry hearts topped with whipped cream. Any one who has ever enjoyed any food prepared by Mrs. Miller, knows how delicious it is and how attractive she can arrange the tables. A surprise had been prepared for Mrs. Miller in honor of Spur's most useful citizen.

Mrs. P. C. Nichols served as toastmistress. She said, "I want to introduce to you and give a tribute to our old fashioned Ladies Aid Society. The following poem was the tribute:

To Our Oldest Charter Member. How well do we remember Long years ago, when there were just a few, They loved the Lord and every one knew. Their task each week, as they did meet Was difficult to partake, but it was sweet, They read together, and they prayed They sang a song, and then a quilt they made. The Orphans they were ne'er forgot The gift was small but not a what-not They packed the box, with cookies, eggs and coats and such Not a woman far and near missed a stitch. They were a band of women strong, We loved them all, they did no wrong

And now today we hold their way Because not one has gone astary. Now we will have something more about the Ladies Aiders and then she introduced Mrs. Minnie Lewis, who was a Ladies Aider. Mrs. Lewis paid tribute to the past presidents and what they had meant to her. Mrs. Miller was the first called. "She is a charter member of the church and the ladies work. Thirty one years ago Mrs. Miller welcomed me in the Lord's work, and I love her. To me she is a Treen of Life. She bears fruit—the kind of fruit determines the kind of tree that bears it." Mrs. Lewis continued. A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit. It is the same with women. By their fruits ye shall know them. It is easy to pay tribute to Mrs. Miller because her life has nothing to conceal," Mrs. Lewis said. Then she related the sacrifices Mrs. Miller had made for her and for the church, and presented her with a rose—the symbol of love. Her last thought was that Mrs. Miller possessed the wisdom that is from above—is first pure, then peaceable, gentle and easy to be entreated full of mercy, and good fruits without partiality and without hypocrisy.

Mrs. George M. Williams was the next president. Her work was teaching the Bible and bringing the women closer to Christ. Mrs. Williams told of the blessings Mrs. Williams had brought to her and to others. Then she pinned a rose over her heart which beats true to Christ. Mrs. E. C. Edmonds was the next president, and she was a builder. During her administration the present church building was started and built. Probably Mrs. Edmonds contributed more to the church than any other president. She was positive, yet not inconsiderate; aggressive, yet not discourteous; held firm convictions, yet never intolerant; Had high deals, yet never uncharitable; courageous, yet unassuming; companionable, yet never a conformist; a member who never shirked responsibility. Mrs. Lewis continued, her faith was unbounded and her triumphs over obstacles were supreme. Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Edmonds placed more flowers in my pathway than any other persons during their unselfish Christian lives in Spur. I bedeck her in roses. We who knew her, loved her.

The next introduced by Mrs. Lewis was Mrs. Ebb Johnson who added the Sunbeam Band to the ladies work. Her contributions to the church were great and shall live on. Mrs. Lewis then introduced Mrs. P. C. Nichols who added the R. A. S. to the organization. Also, she went after the unlisted. Each member drew a capsule in which was a name, and it was the responsibility of that member to contact her capsule and enlist that person in the service. Mrs. W. F. Godfrey was the next president. She was an organizer and builder and added many members to the church. The next president was Mrs. Luther Powell, a soul-seeker, who is gone but not forgotten. Mrs. Lucy Cowan was next introduced. Mrs. Cowan was a benevolent worker. Mrs. T. J. Seale served as president twice. She stressed enlargement and was a great organizer. Mrs. J. E. Berry is president now and is continuing the enlargement program. Just recently she organized a Business Ladies Bible Club and the work is progressing more each year. Mrs. Lewis gave her roses to the living. Mrs. J. H. Dobbins, one of the early members, paid a nice tribute to the hostess in poetical style. Mrs. Cliff Bird gave some early day experiences of the ranch ladies' life. She included her garden experiences, the grasshoppers came, the blister bugs and other insects, the chickens were a grand catch for the coyotes. Round-up times were times for everybody and lots of work for the ladies. Music was past time and a big time for all who came. She stated she taught school for a number of years. "When I stopped teaching," she said, "I helped on the ranch." Mrs. Bird continued, "The harrowing experience of my life came after my husband and I had operated on some cancer eyed cows, he doing the knife work and using the red hot searing irons that I heated in a fire outside the corral. I had been using a lot of feed stalks that lay almost knee deep all over the pen to heat the irons, and noticing how well they burned, suggested that all the huge mass of wasted stalks be raked out of the corral and burned to prevent flies from breeding in the rubbish when warm weather came. There were tons of the stalks and Cliff decided it was too big a job to rake them outside the corral, but with what help I could give, we raked up a big heap shoulder high, several feet wide, and 25 or 30 feet long, and set fire to the mass inside the pen. It was early March, and for a wonder, no wind was blowing. But by night, although the stalks burned rapidly at first, the sugary inside parts of the cane became a huge pile of glowing, slow burning embers. We moved a bed out there and slept near the fire to see that it did not spread to the barn and feed, getting up several times during the night to put out small creeping tongues of fire in the trash which was not raked up. Several times the next morning we raked, stirred and punched the glowing coals but still they simmered and burned slowly under a feathery coating of ashes. At noon the calm weather still prevailing, my husband decided to go to Spur on some urgent business, leaving me to see that the fire did not spread. Thirty minutes after he had gone I heard the wind blowing and rushed out to find the fresh gale eddying those live coals right up to the barn. Already stalks sticking out from under the barn were burning, some blazing under the shed. The wind was increasing and as fast as I raked one bunch of burning trash away another batch caught fire. Seeing that the corral fence was beginning to burn I beat that fire out and ran to the well down in the canyon 300 yards from the barn and struggled back up that steep hill with a 5-gallon bucket of water in one hand and a 3-gallon bucket in the other. I soaked gunny sacks and put them around the fence posts, beat out the fire which had already spread in my absence and rushed back for another load of water. On my second return I found the sacks that had been wet, blazing—the fence, the barn, everything was going to burn, it seemed in spite of anything I could do. I grabbed a crow-bar from under the shed and knocked down the burning fence boards, dashed the last of the water on the planks and dragged them off out of the way. Seizing a maize fork I tried to rake the blazing mass away from the barn to the bare ground outside the corral to have the wind hurl it straight toward the barn. Breathless with excitement and exertion, I was gasping out one of the most fervent prayers of my life. I begged God to send some of the neighbors to help me, to let it start raining from the over-hanging clouds, or PLEASE to give me the sense to figure out what to do and the strength to do it. I grabbed a fork full of the coals and tossed them up in the air even with the west end of the barn. The draft formed around the building caught them up and carried them whirling off into the pasture. I saw I had found a solution if by some miracle I could find the strength to carry it out. With a constant prayer on my lips I set about raking stalks away from the barn, then began those grueling hours of labor, raking and tossing those glowing coals up where the wind could catch them and carry them away. Nobody came to help, it did not rain. My arms and back felt as though they would break the first two or three hours, but I worked on like a machine, at last, hardly conscious of blistered hands and almost numbed muscles. At the end of five hours the last burning coals whirled away. God and I had put out the fire. Of course, I was terribly ill afterward, but soon I was able to carry on again. But seven years ago illness forced me to hang up my boots and saddle, and most of all, my cook apron. To my surprise I am using my apron once more after long months. Some day I may take down my old boots and saddle—Imogene Bird may ride again.

After the program Mrs. Miller requested the guests to go to the front of the church where she had arranged with the Art Studio to take pictures of her guests. After his more than 100 extended appreciation to the hostess.

EAST WARD SCHOOL NEWS

All rooms at the East Ward enjoyed Valentine parties last Friday. Programs were given in the auditorium and afterward each room conducted a Valentine box where all pupils were recipients of beautiful Valentines.

The Choral Club of the East Ward is trying to make some money to secure uniforms. They conducted a candy sale last Thursday and cleared $5.00.

The PTA meeting Tuesday night was declared a grand success. Herbert Lewis was in charge of the meeting. This was the father's meeting. Mr. Lewis conducted a miscellaneous in question contest. Music was rendered by the Choral Club and the Rhythm Band, and a quartette was given by Mrs. King, Mrs. Newberry, Mrs. Cravy, and Miss Graham, teachers in East Ward. Mrs. Patton's pupils presented a skit entitled, "Mr. Brown's Unlucky Night." Refreshments were served to about 250 people at the close of the program.

A survey of the school was made last week and is being continued this week relative to articles of clothing that children need. A number of garments have been collected and distributed. In homes where there are articles of clothing which cannot be used and are still in good condition, if parents will turn these garments over to the teachers at East Ward they will be turned over to children

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

John C. Ramsay, minister. In every Presbyterian church, U. S., next Sunday will be the day of prayer for schools, colleges and youth. This has been the custom, as this communion has been a pioneer in the leadership of education, for 119 years. The greatest asset of the nation and church is not in material things but in enlightened, purposeful, Christian personalities. Therefore the church dare not neglect the student world, expressed in the statement of a great publicist "The education system is the very mind and soul of the nation."

W. T. Lovell, of Wichita Community, was in Dickens Tuesday attending to business affairs and meeting with the County Board of Education.

Cowtown Boosters Speak Well of Spur

The Fort Worth boosters visited our city Thursday afternoon and gave one of the snappiest programs our people have ever enjoyed. What were they here for? Why, the Fort Worth Fat Stock Show and Southwestern Exposition which opens March 7 and runs full nine days. Howard Collins was chief boss of the motorcade which consisted of two large busses and three automobiles.

Music was furnished by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, accompanied by Tommy Thompson's Cowboys.

O. B. Ratliff gave the welcome to the visitors, and thanked them for their kindness and courtesy to Spur last year during our Round Up. The Judge always has to serve as trouble shooter when visitors come to our city, and he just has a way of saying nice things about people.

Marvin Brown, District Attorney at Fort Worth, gave the response, thanking the people for the nice interest and the courtesy extended to his friends while here. Judge Brown invited the people of Dickens County to be at the Fat Stock Show, and he said that if any of them got in jail that he would go in with them. That's a big promise from a D. A.

Charlie Cotton, also, told people that if they would be at the Fat Stock Show that he would do his best to see that they had a good time. Charlie has charge of the extension department of the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce, and his friends said some very fine things about him here. We don't know what they say when he is at home. Bill Pharr, deputy sheriff of Tarrant County, pledged the Sheriff's Department to assist all of us country folk to find our way around should we lose our direction. He seemed to be sincere about his talk. We are just telling folk about these many promises, and it is up to you to go to the Fat Stock Show and learn if they are the real thing or just political.

The choral club gave a selection in honor of Bobbie Lou Watters who is to be a guest at the Show this year, and is one of the eight girls selected as an honor guest to this big show.

At the close of the program Ralda Morris was introduced to express the appreciation of the visitors for the courtesy the town extended them. Many of them expressed themselves that Spur gave them the largest reception they had received since leaving home.

There was one fellow along who received quite a lot of attention. This was the little boy known as Foy Vickery. He weighed only 297 1-2 pounds and some of us felt that possibly he was being neglected on the diet list. Anyway, he is a good sport as are most men of his build.

Our old Cowtown friends want us to see the Fat Stock Show beginning March 7, and it seems they are willing to do anything on the square to see that we have a good time if we attend.

H. E. Bennett, of Afton country, was attending to business matters in our city Tuesday.

TWENTIETH CENTURY STUDY CLUB

The Twentieth Century Study Club met with Mrs. L. D. Ratliff as hostess Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Mrs. O. C. Thomas presided at a short business session. Mrs. O. L. Kelley was leader of a very interesting and instructive program, assisted by Mrs. W. S. Campbell on the subject, "What About Sex Education."

The Club will meet with Mrs. O. C. Thomas at one o'clock, March 4, for a luncheon.

Lovely refreshments were served to the following:

Mesdames F. B. Crockett, W. B. Lee, O. L. Kelley, P. C. Nichols, E. L. Caraway, E. J. Cowan, W. S. Campbell, George S. Link, O. C. Thomas, E. S. Lee, O. M. McGinty, and A. M. Walker.

L. M. Handley, of McAdoo, was in our city Tuesday transacting business. He is engaged in the garage business and reports a good business at this time. This probably because he backs up his work as several of his customers give him a very fine recommendation as an automobile and tractor mechanic. He has a complete shop outfitted for most any type of work in his line, and has been engaged in the business several years. He has been in business at Floydada, and McAdoo people feel lucky to get him in their town.

Russell Dan Williams Buried Saturday

Russell Dan Williams, eight year old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Williams, passed away Friday. The cause of his demise was general peritonitis as the result of an abscessed appendix. Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at two o'clock at the First Baptist Church in Spur. Rev. C. R. Joyner, the pastor, was in charge of the services. Interment followed in Spur cemetery with Curry Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were: Rex Carlisle, Lee Randall, J. B. Kimmel, and M. H. Costolow. Flower bearers were: Wanda Grace Boothe, May Foy Carlisle, Robbie Bell, Ila Ruth Draper, Elaine Neaves and Geraldine Stanley.

Survivors are the parents, a sister, Leta Nell Williams, and a half sister, Shelley Anne Williams; the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Williams.

Russell Dan was born in Dickens County June 27, 1933, and would have been eight years of age next June 27.

B. Harris, hustling Kent County farmer, was looking after business matters and greeting friends here Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Crockett, of Dry Lake, were in town Saturday doing some trading and meeting with friends.

SPUR GIRL ON TECH COMMITTEE

Winnifred Lee, president of Freshman Home Economics at Texas Technological college, has been placed on the sales committee for the ninth annual Economics open house to be April 4 and 5.

The theme for the occasion is "National Defence in the Home." Another attraction on the campus the same date is the annual Engineering show and also the Intercollegiate League meet.

Winnifred is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Lee of Spur.
