

School enrollment stabilizes in Texas

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Spanish-surnamed students have increased their share of Texas school enrollment in the past decade, while "Anglos" have dropped, a blue ribbon legislative committee has heard.

Raymond Bynum, director of the Legislative Commission on School Finance, reported Monday that the proportion of Spanish-surnamed children in school has grown from 20 percent to 25.3 percent.

Meanwhile, he said, the Anglo share has dropped from 64.6 percent in 1968-69 to 58.8 percent in 1977-78.

Blacks have maintained a proportion that has hovered consistently for a decade around the 15 percent mark and currently is 15.3 percent.

Overall, he said, enrollment in grades 1-12, has dropped since 1970, he said.

Bynum told the commission, which has a $200,000 budget to seek new ways of paying for public schools, "If it weren't for immigration, we'd be declining in school enrollment."

He said he expected the number of school children to remain stable through 1983-84, with rising percentages of both blacks and Spanish-surnamed youngsters.

Despite the lack of growth in enrollment, expenditures on the state-subsidized Foundation School Program almost have doubled, Bynum reported.

He said he was concerned about the continuing dropout problem — today's 155,534 high school seniors represent a decline of almost 54,000 since the same group of students entered ninth grade.

"We don't hear much about drop-outs any more. They call them 'school leavers,'" Bynum said.

Walt Parker, director of the Texas School Tax Assessment Practices Board, said his agency has found at least one source for determining the value of intangible property such as stocks and bonds within a school district.

The board has a legislative mandate to report the data on Sept. 1.

He said Internal Revenue Service summaries of interest and dividends declared as income by residents of cities and counties can be obtained.

"It's the only way we feel we could do it in the short period of time we have to do it in," Parker said.

The Legislature would not be bound — short of a court order or passage of a new law — to use the data on intangibles in determining a school district's wealth and, therefore, its entitlement to state aid.

Parker said he was invoking Monday the legal penalty against districts that fail to submit data on taxable property — calling on the Texas Education Agency to cut off their state money until they comply.

He named the Charlotte Independent School District, Pettus ISD, Holland ISD, Santa Maria ISD, Jonesboro Rural High School District, Oglesby ISD, Hitcock ISD, Cumby ISD, Allamore Common School District, Meyersville CSD, Westhoff RHSD, Italy ISD, Sierra Blanca ISD, Kenedy Countywide CSD, Riesel ISD.

Motley County ISD, Etoile CSD, Douglass CSD and Santa Cruz ISD.

Virtually all, he said, assess and collect taxes through their counties, which Parker said had refused to fill out the forms for the school districts.

It's down in Pampa

Enrollment in Pampa public schools has dropped.

Superintendent Bob Phillips Monday reported to the Pampa school board that the largest number class is first grade with 402 students.

The smallest class is the seniors with 287. Overall, enrollment is below the 1976-77

Currently, 4,387 students attend Pampa Independent School District. The 1976-77 number at this time was 4,399. "This is as close to last year's enrollment as we've been all year long," he said.

The number of students has grown since Easter.

Lyle to head school board

By JANE P. MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

Robert Lyle, local dentist, was elected president of the Pampa Independent School District (PISD) in a two-hour meeting Monday afternoon which concentrated mostly on tennis court repairs and school renovation.

The trustees met at 4 p.m. in Carver Center, 321 W. Albert, where they canvassed returns from Saturday's election. The following canvass was accepted:

Place No. 1: Paul Simmons - 1,195 votes, Burley Owen - 471 votes.

Place No. 2: Mrs. Billy Winningham - 600, Darville Orr - 996.

Place No. 3: Don Butler - 521, Dr. Robert Lyle - 1,145.

The two incumbents and Orr were sworn into office by Don Cain, judge of the 23rd judicial district.

The board commended David Crossman, outgoing board member, and Bill Arrington, outgoing president.

Simmons, who has served twice as president, was elected vice president and Arrington was selected as secretary.

Arrington read an election complaint from Mrs. Willingham who said her name did not appear on the ballot exactly as she had registered it.

Dwain Walker, business manager, explained that her name was too long to fit on the ballot and the printer omitted an "r" so her title was Ms. instead of Mrs.

Arrington called the complaint justifiable and indicated the board would apologize to the candidate.

Trustees voted to spend $42,820 on tennis court repairs with Wiley Hicks Jr. Contractors, low bidder.

But the vote was not unanimous.

Opposing was Lyle who said, "I have some reservations about the school spending this amount of money under the circumstances of our remodeling and renovation program." He said he believes that the courts are used 90 percent of the time by the general public and thus it was the city's obligation to pay for the repairs.

The four north courts will be replaced with post-tension concrete and one south court will be repaired.

Lyle suggested the city try to get a grant to pay for court repairs but Dick Stowers, representing the Pampa Tennis Club, said funding organizations had too many requests and too little money.

"The courts are not going to get any better and I don't know how we can divorce ourselves from the problem," Simmons said.

Pampa school board meets

Herbert Brasher, Lubbock architect hired by PISD, discussed priorities on school remodeling. The board will spend the allocated $700,000 to $800,000 as follows:

1. $350,000 for middle school (present junior high school) additions and high school girls dressing room facilities.
2. $40,000 on tennis courts.
3. $50,000 on mechanical supplies for repairs done by school district personnel.
4. $50,000 for roofing repairs.
5. $4,000 to change partitions in industrial arts buildings.
6. More than $40,000 for new science facilities at high school and new middle school.
7. $78,000 for better lighting at the high school.
8. Improvements to high school homemaking facilities.
9. Paint and other structural repairs.

In other action the board voted to meet at 5 p.m. on the first and third Mondays of each month. Meetings are open to the public in Carver Center.

KPDN was designated as the official radio station for PISD for 1978-79.

Board members present were Curt Beck, Al Smith, Buddy Epperson, Crossman, Arrington, Lyle, Simmons and Orr.

Heroin to be studied as pain killer

HOUSTON (AP) — A New York cancer center plans next month to begin experimental use of heroin as a pain killer for cancer patients.

Dr. Kathleen M. Foley, coordinator of the pain clinic at the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center, said the center has a large grant from the National Institute for Drug Abuse to find out if heroin is a better pain killer than morphine.

Pain experts told the American Cancer Society's annual science writers' seminar Monday that misconceptions and fear of addiction by patients and doctors prevent many cancer victims from getting adequate pain treatment with available narcotics.

Ms. Foley said the problem is illustrated by the inadequate use of narcotic analgesics, or pain killers, based on morphine. She said pain can be adequately controlled in 90 to 95 percent of cancer patients with proper administration of morphine and other drugs.

She said doctors and patients confuse addiction with tolerance, the need for increasing amounts to get relief and physical dependence. Addiction is a behavior pattern by which a person becomes overwhelmingly involved with using a drug and getting more of it, she said.

"Cancer patients do not become addicted," she said, adding that proper monitoring and management can control both tolerance and physical dependence.

The Sloan-Kettering study, part of a five-year, $1.9 million program to study pain killers, will start with 40 cancer patients and could have up to 100 in the first year. It will use heroin confiscated by legal authorities and purified by the Food and Drug Administration.

Patients, some with terminal cancer, will take the heroin orally, intravenously and through other means to see how it performs against a variety of other pain killers.

A spokesman for the National Cancer Institute said the agency hopes to award contracts later this year to two or more institutions for comparing heroin and morphine as pain relievers in advanced cancer patients.

Dr. John Bonica of the University of Washington Medical School in Seattle said more than one third of all cancer patients complain of pain associated with the disease, but up to 80 percent of them don't get adequate relief.

"We have absolutely no idea how a particular cancer causes pain and until recently, not many people were trying to find out," he said.

Bonica said the cancer institute spent only $560,000 on pain research from 1971 through 1975, indicating a low priority when considering the $2.5 billion it spent on other programs during the same period. NCI said it would spend $600,000 on pain this year.

Bonica said doctors learn how to handle short-term acute pain from injuries, surgery and some diseases, but few know how to deal with chronic pain that lasts for months or even years.

This insufficient knowledge or lack of appreciation for the ways available to treat protracted pain are partially responsible for mismanagement of pain and needless suffering, he said.

CC to attack highway eyesores

People coming into Pampa from either direction on U.S. 60 pass by some real eyesores, according to members of the Civic Improvements Committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

And they hope something can be done about it. Highway 60 will be the special emphasis project this year during the annual month-long paint-up, clean-up, fix-up campaign.

Committee member Dudley Steele is in charge of checking with owners of the properties involved, many who live out of town, to determine how the situation may best be corrected.

The beautification drive this year will be called "Pampa, Fresh as a Daisy," said committee chairman Thelma Bray.

May is the month. Extra effort will come from city employees who will expand trash collection to include items normally considered to large and bit accumulations of trash resulting from a garage cleaning or extensive yard work.

Plans also are being made to present awards to home owners who exhibit cooperation and community pride in having their own property cleaned up, painted up and fixed up "to help make Pampa truly fresh as a daisy," Mrs. Bray said.

Park denies charge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tong-sun Park denies, for the 1,001st time he says, that the $850,000 he gave 30 congressmen was to buy influence for South Korea. But House investigators say they're not satisfied with that explanation.

Chief Counsel John Nields said he planned to grill Park on whether "he was paying money to congressmen under a plan approved by a foreign government."

Nields said he would question Park, who returned to the witness stand today, on periodic reports sent the South Korean Central Intelligence Agency on his involvement with congressmen.

Park, in his first public testimony Monday, denied he had worked for the Seoul government.

"Are you still at the old game of trying to prove I was an agent of Korea?" Park challenged a House ethics committee investigator. "I denied that a thousand times."

Park told the committee that $730,000 of the money went to former Reps. Otto E. Passman, D-La.; Richard T. Hanna, D-Calif.; and Cornelius E. Gallagher, D-N.J.

Those three went to South Korean officials to help him regain the position he had lost to another Korean as Seoul's exclusive U.S. rice buyer, Park testified.

He acknowledged that he had hoped the $120,000 to the other 26 congressmen would influence them to support Seoul but said he was trying only as a South Korean citizen, not as a foreign agent, to promote U.S.-Korean friendship.

Palestinians guilty

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — A Nicosia court found two Palestinians guilty today of premeditated murder in the assassination of a prominent Egyptian newspaper editor and sentenced them to death by hanging.

The execution of Samir Mohammed Khadar, 28, and Zayed Hussein al-Ali, 26, was set for June 1.

Defense lawyer Lefcos Clerides said he would appeal both the verdict and the fixing of the execution date.

Just before the sentence was read the defendants reiterated they were innocent. They stood tensely in the dock as the sentence was pronounced. Khadar grasped the railing while Al-Ali clasped his hands tightly in front of him.

The Palestinians were convicted of assassinating Yousef el-Sebaei, editor of Cairo's leading newspaper Al-Ahram, in the lobby of Nicosia's Hilton Hotel on Feb. 18.

The two then held 11 Arab officials hostage aboard a Cypriot airliner for 24 hours.

Conservatives and unions

Howard Jarvis once said there are just two political parties in the United States — one is the AFL-CIO Committee On Political Education (COPA) and the other is the Federation of Republican Women's Clubs. Whatever you undertake on the political front, therefore, one has to consider one or the other, or both, of these two activist groups.

The American Conservative Union, headed by Illinois Rep. Phil Crane, has just discovered the underlying self-interest of elements within organized labor to go to bat for more personal liberty. Crane and Rep. Mickey Edwards of Oklahoma have come up with a series of bills, the principles of which were hammered out in meetings with local union officials in Youngstown, Ohio. The commonality of interests was jobs. The bills are aimed at helping industry retain jobs.

Crane summarized the results of the conference in these words: "No-growth policies, overregulation, and inflation are combining to defeat those who seek to attain the American dream."

The legislative package would require congressional approval for any federal regulations that would cause unemployment. It would require the so-called federal Environmental Protection Agency to prepare economic impact statements and cost-benefit analyses before issuing any regulations. In other words, the EPA would have to pin down not only what its regulations reasonably can achieve, but also what they will cost in terms of lost productivity and jobs. Then, and only then, could the regulations be placed in effect.

Among other ingredients in the Conservative-organized labor package are the following: —cutting the corporate tax rate by 3 percent over a three-year period. —ending double taxation of dividends from domestic corporations. —speeding up amortization for tax purposes of specified plant and equipment in high unemployment areas.

Of course, it will be claimed that the American Conservative Union's current relationship with organized labor is a passing flirtation, that the whole bent of the union movement is to manipulate the individual by controlling his bread and butter. In the long run, probably so. In the interim, however, a little pragmatic kissing and hugging doesn't seem so awful.

Drugs: a reminder

The next time your local police department ballyhooes one of its "crime prevention" programs, be careful when you listen.

In reality, police cause crime. Police accomplish this when they arbitrarily choose to enforce a widespread network of federal, state or local laws prohibiting the distribution and use of so-called "illicit" drugs.

The unbending law of supply and demand does not cease to function simply because a body of legislators deem a certain act to be "wrong" and therefore illegal.

When the supply of a desired commodity decreases, the price it will command in the marketplace jumps. This goes for heroin, cocaine, LSD and marijuana — exactly as for automobiles or hamburger.

As police agencies routinely blame upsurges in community burglary rates on drug users seeking to satisfy their desires, so they should realize that massive seizures of drugs — and the arrests of drug businessmen — obviously tend to force up prices of the illegal commodities. And high prices and scarcity apparently result in certain individuals resorting to criminal acts to obtain the drug experiences they seek.

We are frequently misinterpreted when we say that no laws should exist in the area of drugs. Our advocacy of free, individual choice is viewed as meaning we endorse the use of drugs.

Not so. We say simply this: Only the individual is best capable of determining what is right for himself. Coercive force implemented through law is valid only when used to constrain those who set out deliberately to hurt someone else.

Governments historically have been most unable to keep their subjects from pursuing personal paths of joy (drugs, prostitution, gambling and so on).

That's because the governors fail to realize this: Our minds belong to ourselves. We possess the God-given right to keep our joys (or sadnesses) inside, or exchange them in voluntary social relationships with others.

Such acts demand — or deserve — no constraints.

Unconvincing sunshine

If the federal government cannot solve its own problems, or even ensure that its own bureaucratic agencies abide by the law, what chance has it of solving the more complex problems of society?

The question was prompted by an item in an issue of Editor and Publisher magazine citing failure of the "sunshine law" to solve the problem of secrecy in government.

According to E&P, a report by the Library of Congress to a Senate Government Affairs subcommittee charged that during the first six months of the new "government in the sunshine law" more than half of federal agency meetings remained closed to the press and public, the majority of them in defiance of the law's stipulations.

Apparently our overseers in Washington obey or ignore the law as the fancy strikes them.

The law does provide for exceptions when governmental meetings may be held in secrecy and the proceedings withheld from the public — in matters of national security, financial confidentiality, personal privacy etc. — 10 categories of exceptions, in all. However, as pointed out by E&P, that fails to account for the frequency of secret meetings during the six-month period reported on by the Library of Congress. Specifically: —Ok 1,003 meetings conducted during the first six months of the law, 527 were closed to some extent — 339 completely and 188 partially.

—Of the 527 closed meetings, only 193 were exempt, leaving 334 held in violation of the law.

With government at all levels grinding out laws, regulations and decrees for our "benefit" faster than we can read them, much less comply with their provisions, perhaps the time has come for a moratorium on lawmaking, at least until the lawmakers and enforcers themselves learn to obey their own commandments.

The sinning preacher who instructed his flock, "Do as I say, not as I do," may have been clever, but he was not convincing.

Comforting the afflicted?

The Carter administration has vowed to speed the time in which efficacious new drugs can be marketed. Surely one of the most damning consequences of government regulation has been the appalling slowness of the Food and Drug Administration to approve pharmaceutical remedies for public consumption.

The news seems inevitably to report some horror story of how an epilepsy or arthritis victim can't get treated with a drug every laboratory on the planet knows will make his life easier, but which the government has held up in its bureaucracy for years. Not a few students of government regulations have quipped that, given current FDA practices, common aspirin wouldn't get into our hands, were it to be developed right now, for another decade at least.

The White House has responded to the outcry in its typical fashion. It proposes a multi-point program to get the bureaucracy moving again, when it should be setting out resolutely to eliminate bureaucracy. If anybody still believes Jimmy Carter means to live up to his campaign pledge to pare back government, here is more embarrassing information.

One of the features of the Carter plan is to force pharmaceutical companies to share their formulae for new drugs. Probably the most controversial part of the plan, the idea is to enhance "fair competition." Which is precisely the reverse of what it will do.

What this fuzzy — mi led "no-secrets" notion would do in reality is destroy a company's incentive to develop new drugs. With this essential incentive gone, research and development would be idled even more than it is with the current bureaucratic set-up. The administration betrays ineptitude even in pitying the afflicted.

"No charge, Mr. Arafat, this one is on the house."

Riyadh: Israel, Syria and Arabia

By JAMES RESTON (c) 1978 N.Y. Times News Service

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia — Saudi Arabia is using its influence for the moment to keep Syria out of the fighting in Lebanon. Its quiet diplomacy should not be underestimated. It is a principal financial supporter of President Hafez al-Assad's government in Damascus, and officials here seem reasonably confident that their urgent appeals to avoid any accidental clash between the Syrian and Israeli air forces will be heard.

On the wider aspects of the recurring crises in this part of the world, however, officials here seem less confident. To the south of the Arabian oil and sand mass the Soviet Union is increasing its authority in South Yemen at the gateway to the Red Sea on the Gulf of Aden.

Across the Red Sea, Communist power has prevailed in the war between Ethiopia and Somalia, and that power remains there as a potential threat not only to the Sudan, but to Saudi Arabia itself and to Egypt. The addition of Communists to the Italian government and the kidnapping of Aldo Moro have added to the sense of anxiety here about the balance of power in the Mediterranean sea.

So officials in this fabulously rich but militarily vulnerable kingdom, while elaborately calm in discussing these recent events, are looking around for help.

They feel that the military situation on the Israeli-Lebanon front can be stabilized, but that terrorist attacks on Israel, followed by Israeli counterattacks, and the occupation of more Arab land only complicate and envenom the conflict.

The imperative need now, more than ever, officials in this capital insist, is for the "comprehensive Middle East settlement" everybody has been talking about, and the latest outbreak of open warfare, while interrupting the peace negotiations, has made clear in their judgment that all parties must now try to find some new way to make Israel and the Arab states see the larger menace of Communist influence in the Middle East and Africa.

The controlled press here in the Saudi Arabian capital is critical of the Israeli "invasion" of Lebanon, but in private, officials are clearly less interested in who's to blame than how to get out of the tangle. And on this point there was an interesting, if vague, theme in their conversations.

Namely, that maybe the only hope for compromise might rest with Saudi Arabia, which has influence with the other Arab states, and with the United States, which has influence with Israel, if officials here and in Washington could begin to talk seriously about a compromise.

It was clear from these conversations, however, that officials did not understand President Carter or the Congress. The United States and Saudi Arabia, they said, have many things in common; they agreed on the strategic problem of Communist penetration of the Middle East, the Mediterranean, and Africa. They agreed on the importance of keeping oil production up and oil prices in moderation.

Saudi officials here did not mention this with any sense of threat, but they control 30 percent of the world's crude oil resources, most of it managed by Aramco and other U.S. companies. They hold over $30 billion in U.S. Treasury bonds alone, and by moving their investments and other financial aid around, could influence the politics and dominate the money markets of the world.

The minister of petroleum and mineral resources, Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, who is the spokesman for Saudi Arabia in the OPEC discussions of oil prices and production, told me that Saudi Arabia was not threatening to tie the price of oil to the value of the dollar, or to a settlement of the Arab-Israeli conflict.

It was true, he said, that some members of the Saudi cabinet and most intellectual analysts in the universities here, thought that Saudi Arabia should keep its production of oil to about 5 billion barrels a day — enough to modernize this country — but this would only create, he said, great problems in the world and might even lead to a world economic depression.

Saudi Arabia was involved now, he observed, in the transformation of its own society and in the transformation of world economics and politics, and, also, in the transformation of its own military defense.

All officials here said the same thing, particularly after the outbreak of open warfare on the Israel-Lebanon border. Saudi Arabia's riches are a temptation and its defenses are obsolete and almost contemptible, but when it asked to buy F-15 fighter planes to replace its obsolete British fighter aircraft, Yamani observed that this tends to become a big issue between Saudi Arabia on the one hand and President Carter and Congress on the other.

Saudi officials, right or wrong, simply don't understand this. They have the odd idea that Carter can simply "order" the Israelis what to do, but even if he can't, they still don't understand why he has so much trouble selling them planes they wouldn't get in any event until the third quarter of 1981.

This is the Saudi Arabian government's argument. They feel rich but surrounded. They are surprisingly mild in their criticism of President Sadat of Egypt for trying to make peace. They are waiting clearly for a new beginning. And they say one interesting thing: That there has been a great change in the Arab world, and not merely in the mind of Sadat of Egypt, but all over the Arab world. They insist that most Arab governments have made the psychological leap to accept Israel as a part of the Middle East but that Israel itself is still relying upon force and has not yet understood that most of the Arab nations are now ready for a compromise.

Fair share of housing

By BERNARD SIEGAN

The Pennsylvania Supreme Court was the first state high court to rule that a municipal zoning ordinance must explicitly allow for the erection of apartments. In the late 1960s, a landowner brought suit to develop a high rise building on a 17-acre parcel he owned in a suburb whose zoning ordinance did not permit apartments. The court said in 1970 that the suburb was required to have a zone for apartments, and the town complied by zoning four not very suitable sites for this use, but not the one owned by the developer who filed suit. Apparently some years later, after more litigation, the court required the suburb to zone the 17 acres for apartments.

The case was widely discussed in professional journals and at conferences, and I heard speakers speculate as to whether the Pennsylvania court would continue the principle it had established. Last December, the court not only affirmed the 1970 decision but also significantly enlarged on it. By now the principle is no longer novel and the Pennsylvania judges found support in cases from New Jersey, New York and Michigan.

The Pennsylvania court struck down in December that portion of the zoning ordinance of Upper Providence Township, a Philadelphia suburb, that barred the use of a 16-acre tract for the erection of multi-family housing. The 1970 census set the township's population at slightly over 9200, and its total size is approximately 3800 acres or close to six square miles. About one-quarter of the land is undeveloped.

A developer sought to build apartments and townhouses on the tract which the township had restricted to the erection of single family dwellings on one-acre lots. The developer applied to the township's board of supervisors to rezone the land to a business district which was the only classification permitting multi-family dwellings. The board rejected the request and the developer sued on the basis that the restriction violated his constitutional rights of property and due process.

The suburb had zoned 43 acres or 1.14 percent of its total acreage for business. This classification permitted at least a dozen other commercial uses in addition to multi-family and was already substantially developed. The court ruled unanimously that under these circumstances the single family zoning of the property was unconstitutional. It ordered that a building permit be issued for multi-family development, conditional upon building and health regulations of the municipality.

Each of the state courts which in recent years have been overturning suburban zoning ordinances as exclusionary, has its own unique theory for deciding when zoning is illegal. In this case, the Pennsylvania Court adopted what it referred to as a "fair share" principal under which it proposes to determine the legality of zoning on the following basis:

First, the court will look at "whether the community in question is a logical area for development and population growth." Second, if it is, the court will examine the present level of the community's development, including analyzing population, the amount of undeveloped land and the proportion of that land available for multi-family development. And third, the court will then analyze the "actual effect" of a zoning ordinance upon the availability of multi-family dwellings. If, as in this case some multi-family units exist, but the amount of vacant land zoned for such housing is disproportionately small in relation to the population growth and amount of undeveloped land, then the ordinance is exclusionary and the court dismissed the township's environmental concerns in this manner:

"Where, as in the instant case, the facts show an obvious dearth of land zoned as available for multi-family dwellings, the proponents of the zoning ordinance must put forth adequate justification for this zoning — created scarcity. Appellee's concerns about population burdens, water supply, and the environment, while understandable, do not justify the fraction of land now open for development of multi-family housing."

A concurring opinion by one justice found that Upper Providence's allocation of land "clearly is not reasonable," but

and the justice refused to go along with the "fair share" concept. He asserted that the attempt to enforce such a concept "must convert courts into regional planning commissions."

The concurring opinion raises some interesting questions. In the past, the Pennsylvania court struck down zoning ordinances which "achieved little else than the exclusion of housing. By using 'fair share' notions, it may be entering the field of deciding how much of and where certain housing should be permitted. This is planning, or more appropriately abstract philosophy not related to objective criteria.

Only the marketplace knows what is a "fair share" and any barrier to its operation prevents some people from enjoying some things to which they would otherwise be entitled. So long as laws prevent builders from responding to the demand for housing, someone is not receiving a fair share.

LEGAL PLUNDER

"But how is this legal plunder to be identified? Quite simply. See if the law takes from some persons what belongs to them, and gives it to other persons to whom it does not belong. See if the law benefits one citizen at the expense of another by doing what the citizen himself cannot do without committing a crime." - Frederic Bastiat, "The Law," 1850

'Annie Hall' captures four top Oscars

By PETER J. BOYER
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — At 50, Oscar has come alive again. The 50th Academy Awards show was a lively birthday party for the little guy, complete with a genuine political brouhaha and some of the "best" Oscars going to a man who was too nervous to show up at the affair.

Woody Allen's bittersweet remembrance of his life's love, "Annie Hall," won four of the most prestigious Oscars, including Best Picture, and 1977's runaway boxoffice favorite, "Star Wars," won six, most of them in technical categories, and a special award for sound effects.

Diane Keaton, a first-time nominee and Allen's former real life sweetheart, was named Best Actress for her close-to-life portrayal of the flighty "Annie Hall." Richard Dreyfuss, also a first-time nominee, won a Best Actor Oscar for his portrayal of a frustrated actor sharing a New York apartment with an unwilling Marsha Mason in "The Goodbye Girl."

"Julia," a tale of underground efforts in Nazi Germany, based on a section of Lillian Hellman's "Pentimento," won three Oscars, but another favorite, "The Turning Point," was shut out.

Unlike last year's rather dull show, when Oscar producer William Friedkin (of Hollywood's New Breed) spurned the ostentatious trappings of show biz, Monday night's producer Howard Koch, the Academy's president, gloried in the movies' glamour and tradition.

Appreciating the affair's traditional standing as the world's foremost star-gazing opportunity, Koch brought back the noisy arrival of the stars and did an interesting montage mixing clips of old arrival scenes with real arrivals.

"Friedkin thought glamour had nothing to do with the Oscars," said one Academy official. "Koch thinks glamour has everything to do with the Oscars."

Besides the glamour, there was a little old-fashioned controversy, courtesy of the Best Supporting Actress winner, Vanessa Redgrave, for "Julia."

Miss Redgrave, whose nomination prompted protests from some quarters because of a pro-Palestinian documentary she financed, accepted her Oscar with the usual thanks and then told the Academy:

"I think you should be very proud that in the last few weeks you've stood firm and you've refused to be intimidated by the threats of a small bunch of Zionist hoodlums whose behavior (here she was interrupted by a collective audience gasp) whose behavior is an insult to the stature of Jews all over the world...."

Her comments later were attacked by playwright Paddy Chayefsky, who told the audience he was "sick and tired of people exploiting the occasion of the Academy Awards for the propagation of their own political propaganda."

He suggested to Miss Redgrave that "a simple thank you would have sufficed."

Allen's impressive score for "Annie Hall" also caused some buzzing: Best Director, Best Original Screenplay, Best Actress and Best Picture.

When "Annie Hall" producer Charles Joffe telephoned Allen in New York to tell him how his nervous romance fared, Allen replied, "Don't bother me, I'll talk to you in the morning."

"He was asleep," Joffe said. Joffe explained that Allen was not protesting anything by his absence, it is just that "Woody finds it difficult to accept any award of any kind. That's just his personality. He'd find it very difficult to stand up here before you."

Jason Robards picked up his second straight Best Supporting Actor award, the first time that Oscar has been dealt to the same man in consecutive years. He won for his portrayal of writer Dashiell Hammett in "Julia." Last year, he won in the same category for his portrayal of Washington Post editor Ben Bradlee in the Watergate yarn "All the President's Men."

Robards, the consummate Eugene O'Neill player, was in New York Monday with the O'Neill play, "A Touch of the Poet."

In the spirit of homage to Old Hollywood, Bob Hope was back as the Oscar host, his 14th such solo gig. Altogether, it was Hope's 23rd appearance on the show although, as he is ever-ready to remind, he has never taken an Oscar home.

Hope paid respects to John Wayne, who is in Boston recovering from open-heart surgery. "We want you to know, Duke, we miss you tonight," Hope said. "We expect to see you amble out here in person next year because no one else can walk in John Wayne's boots."

The French "Madame Rosa," starring Simone Signoret, was chosen Best Foreign Film.

"You Light Up My Life" won a Best Original Song Oscar for writer Joe Brooks. The waltzy tune, as rendered by Debby Boone, was the year's biggest pop hit, and its selection was expected. It was the recipient of numerous awards in the past year, including a Grammy, Golden Globe and Billboard.

"A Little Night Music" was named best adaptation score, earning Jonathon Tunick an Oscar.

Anita fears assassination

CHICAGO (AP) — Anita Bryant expects to be assassinated by homosexuals, according to a writer who interviewed her for Playboy magazine.

Author Ken Kelley said in observations accompanying the interview in the May issue that he believes Miss Bryant's fear is realistic.

Miss Bryant made no statement in the interview concerning a possible assassination attempt, but Kelley, 26, said Monday, "We talked about it a lot, especially after she got a pie in the face in Des Moines. She said, 'At least it was better than a grenade.'"

"I asked her if she expected a grenade. She said she must expect anything at any time," he said.

In the magazine, Kelley writes, "During the past 12 months, she has weathered bomb threats, snuff letters and numerous close calls with mayhem. But she has learned to take it in stride."

Miss Redgrave, whose nomination prompted protests from some quarters because of a pro-Palestinian documentary she financed, accepted her Oscar with the usual thanks and then told the Academy:

"I think you should be very proud that in the last few weeks you've stood firm and you've refused to be intimidated by the threats of a small bunch of Zionist hoodlums whose behavior (here she was interrupted by a collective audience gasp) whose behavior is an insult to the stature of Jews all over the world...."

LoVaca proposal called trash

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Peggy Buchorn told a railroad commission hearing examiner it's all right for companies to make a profit "but not at the risk of shafting the people who are paying the bills."

She and others criticized a proposed settlement Monday that would allow LoVaca Gathering Co. to escape a commission order to force the company to refund $1.6 billion to customers.

LoVaca's major customers presented the proposed 1,200-page settlement as the only chance for solving LoVaca's natural gas supply problems in this century.

They admitted, however, that rising utility rates would continue to rise under the settlement — by a little more than 1 percent in 1979 and by 2 percent in 1980.

Mrs. Buchorn, executive director of Citizens for Equitable Utilities, Inc., told examiner Tom Hill the proposal "is a piece of trash."

"Pocketbooks have been emptied, bank accounts have been emptied and people have gotten second jobs" in order to eat and pay their bills, she said.

Jose Olivares, attorney for the League of United Latin American Citizens, said the commission should provide $1 million for LULAC to study the complex settlement, which was worked out by teams of lawyers over four years.

Customers who have agreed to the settlement represent 79.5 percent of the 1975 sales volume of LoVaca and its parent, Coastal States Gas Corp.

They include Austin; San Antonio; Corpus Christi; Brownsville; Robstown; the Lower Colorado River Authority; Lone Star Gas Co., which serves 1.1 million Texans; Central Power & Light Co.; and United Texas Transmission Co., the major supplier for the Houston and northeast Texas Gulf Coast areas.

Other opponents include Irving, Fort Worth, Dallas, Waco, Abilene, Sherman, Denison, Richardson, Duncanville, Rockwall, Crystal City and San Antonio city councilman Rudy Ortiz.

Stan McLelland, a lawyer for United Texas, said if the commission's Dec. 12 refund order was left standing, "there would be no refunds now or even in the distant future." Instead, he predicted, there would be years of appeals, possibly followed by bankruptcy proceedings which could take a quarter of a century.

During this time, he said, LoVaca's gas supply would fall off and customer service would be curtailed.

Ortiz said 2,000 persons a month have their gas cut off in San Antonio because they cannot pay their bills, which have quadrupled. The settlement, he said, "will undo everything the commission did for the public good in its Dec. 12 order and will insure that gas prices will remain arbitrarily high."

Earl Bracken Jr., city attorney of Waco, said the settlement is "totally unfair and improper" in that it is designed to benefit the shareholder rather than the ratepayer.

The complaining cities said the settlement does not provide for customer refunds and also allows Lone Star Gas Co. to pass through 100 percent of its gas costs to customers.

Lone Star president Louis Hulcy said the company was concerned over the cities' opposition. He said the settlement is in their interest because it pre-

Jury picked for Farrah

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A jury of four men and eight women has been selected for a trial on allegations that Farrah Fawcett-Majors violated her contract when she failed to return for a second season of television's "Charlie's Angels."

The jury was selected Monday for the trial that is scheduled to start today.

Spelling-Goldberg Productions contend in their Superior Court lawsuit that the actress, wife of actor Lee Majors, failed to fulfill her obligations with their company.

Jay Bernstein, her personal manager, said Miss Fawcett-Majors had been paid substantially less than co-star Kate Jackson, adding that no contract had been signed.

Amarillo attorney files libel suit against TV

Officials of an Amarillo television station had no comment Monday about a $6 million libel suit filed against Cannon Communications Inc. by Jim Durham, Amarillo attorney.

Durham, who served last year as special counsel for a court of inquiry into Potter County auditing and inventory KAMR-TV, Channel 4.

Durham accuses the station of broadcasting material on March 31 that is "liberous per se" or libelous in itself.

The petition alleges that "the broadcast was not an effort at reporting some type of current and ongoing event; it was a malicious editorial based upon false and manufactures events."

Names in the news

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Lena Horne says it's "a matter of genealogy" that at age 60 she has been named to a list of America's 10 most beautiful women.

"My mother was a great beauty," the actress-singer said in an interview Monday. "My father was, to me, one of the most beautiful men I've ever seen."

Although she is uncertain where her father's ancestors were from, his grandfather was a full-blooded Blackfoot Indian and "I come from good stock — I inherited good bones," Miss Horne said.

"My advice is to find some time to be alone or with the people you feel closest to," she said. "Find some time to just be quiet, and have two good friends you can trust. Then you can be beautiful and stay beautiful."

Miss Horne was in San Diego starring in the musical "Pal Joey."

She was named one of the nation's 10 most beautiful women by Harper's Bazaar.

CINCINNATI (AP) — A second obscenity trial of Hustler magazine owner Larry Flynt has been continued indefinitely in Hamilton County Common Pleas Court.

Judge Robert Kraft took the action Monday after Flynt's attorney, Andrew Dennison, explained that an appeal is still pending and Flynt is paralyzed from last month's shooting in Atlanta.

Flynt was convicted by a

BEEVILLE, Texas (AP) — Criminal trespass charges against 100 Iranians stemming from an incident last month at Bee County College will be heard in municipal court here April 17.

Officials of the college have expelled a group of Iranian students who were among 103 who refused to leave the school gymnasium after a March 9 meeting with the college president.

The students have been notified of their expulsion by certified mail, according to Douglas Bryant, head of the school's disciplinary committee. However, neither he nor Dean George Elam would say how many students had been expelled.

The March meeting was called by Dr. Grady Hogue, president of the 2,000-student college, to discuss with the 250 Iranian complaints of unauthorized telephone calls to Iran.

ALPINE, Texas (AP) — A West Texas range fire that began late Friday night continued to rage uncontrolled through the Davis Mountains late Monday night.

Israel may withdraw

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel says it has started withdrawing from southern Lebanon, and a U.N. source says the invaders are pulling back to within three miles of the border.

An Israeli military communique said a "significant thinning out of forces" had been going on for a week as the Israelis were replaced by troops of the U.N. peacekeeping force.

The communique said nonessential units were being removed. The full withdrawal plan "will be made public only after the subject has been finalized with the U.N. authorities," it added.

Israel invaded southern Lebanon March 15 to drive Palestinian guerrillas from a security belt north of the border following a guerrilla raid four days before in which 35 Israelis were killed.

The Israelis occupied a 500-square-mile strip of territory across the country and up to the Litani River. Pressed by the U.N. Security Council and the United States, the Israeli government declared a ceasefire March 21 and said its forces would withdraw when the 4,000-man U.N. force was

Duke well after surgery

BOSTON (AP) — John Wayne, who had a 25-cent-sized circle snipped from his heart and replaced with a valve from a pig, has a 90 percent chance to recover from open-heart surgery and return to the two-fisted adventure films he's made for 50 years, his doctors say.

Surgeons at Massachusetts General Hospital said Monday's "uneventful," three-hour operation was necessary because Wayne's mitral valve had ruptured, allowing blood to seep from his heart into his lung. Doctors said this had made him tired and short of breath.

One physician, Dr. Roman DeSanctis, said he was impressed by Wayne's rugged good health.

"We've seen him in plenty of movies, but I don't think many of us appreciated just how big and strong he is," DeSanctis said.

"He had been losing his zip," he added. "In the past few months, he has had symptoms of fatigue and shortness of breath and wasn't able to do the things he wanted to."

Though his chances were good, doctors said they were still concerned about the 70-year-old actor's recovery.

"He looks very excellent, but we have a couple of days of worry before us," Dr. Mortimer Buckley, chief surgeon for the operation, said at a news conference after surgery.

Who killed Martin Luther King?

By DENNIS MONTGOMERY
 Associated Press Writer

PETROS, Tenn. (AP) — The dreamer is dead a decade today. But the doubts endure: Did James Earl Ray fire the bullet that killed Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.?

"No," Ray told The Associated Press in an interview. But who did?

"That's difficult to say. But I think that all could be resolved fairly simply at some type of hearing or trial," Ray said. "Possibly the committee will be able to resolve it."

He referred to a House committee conducting a new investigation. The first began April 4, 1968, in Memphis when a 30-06 caliber bullet blasted 205 feet, 3 inches from a boarding house bathroom window to the Lorraine Motel's balcony. King, 39, fell with a severed spinal cord and died 59 minutes later.

The first investigation involved 3,000 FBI agents and 30,000 interviews. On the 700th of 53,000 fingerprint cards, a clerk linked Ray to the rifle found after the sniping.

On June 8, 1968, the day Robert Kennedy

Registration set Thursday

Deadline for first-time registration to vote in the May 6 primaries is Thursday, a spokesman in the county tax assessor-collector's office said today.

Registration is at that office, on the first floor of the Gray County courthouse.

Persons who have not received a voter registration and are still eligible to vote will be able to vote in the primaries by signing an affidavit of residency in Gray County.

Those in precincts four and six with the wrong precinct number on registration certificates should have those numbers changed in the tax assessor-collector's office to avoid confusion, Mrs. Wanda Carter, county clerk, said today. Those voters, however, will, be able to vote.

NYT says Carter axed bomb

NEW YORK (AP) — President Carter has decided against production of the neutron bomb, The New York Times reported today, but two administration members say the president has not made a decision on production of the weapon.

Quoting unidentified administration officials, the Times said Carter had acted against the advice of most of his top foreign policy advisers in deciding that production of the bomb would run counter to his goal of nuclear disarmament.

The newspaper said Carter's decision, which it said may be announced later this week, was made in part because he hoped the Soviet Union would in turn show restraint in deployment of new nuclear weapons.

The Times said some administration officials were upset at Carter's decision and would try to persuade him to change his mind and to set aside production of the bomb indefinitely, rather than cancel it outright.

But, the newspaper said, the same officials said they did not have much hope of changing the president's mind.

However, an administration official, who declined to be identified, said late Monday that Carter had not decided whether to order production and that the report was incorrect.

A White House spokeswoman, Claudia Townsend, said that "as best as we can determine, the president has not made a decision on the neutron bomb."

The bomb produces twice the radiation of a conventional nuclear bomb but less than a 10th as much explosive power, heat and fallout, meaning it can kill people with radiation while causing little damage to property.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
 The thunderstorms that kept weather residents of North Central Texas watching the swirling cloud-filled sky during the evening hours moved eastward out of the state early today.

But, the National Weather Service warned that more thunderstorm activity was possible in eastern counties of the Panhandle and in eastern sections of the South Plains.

Elsewhere, forecasts called for partly cloudy skies and continued warm temperatures with highs ranging from the 70s along the coast to the middle 90s in the valleys of the Big Bend country of Southwest Texas.

The thunderstorm activity Monday prompted the National Weather Service to put large portions of North Central Texas under a tornado watch for several hours. Some twisters were sighted on radar, but no damage was reported as they remained aloft.

Early today, skies were mostly cloudy in the eastern section of the state from the upper Texas coast to the Red River. By contrast, skies were mostly clear in the western half of the state.

Early morning temperatures ranged from the chilly 40s in the Panhandle and mountains of Southwest Texas to the lower 70s in southern and eastern sections of the state. Extremes ranged from 43 at El Paso to 72 at Brownsville.

Some early morning readings included 48 at Amarillo, 62 at Wichita Falls, 66 at Texarkana, 67 at Dallas-Fort Worth, 68 at Austin, 66 at Lufkin, 69 at Houston, 70 at Corpus Christi, 67 at Del Rio, 61 at San Angelo and 44 at Lubbock.

National weather

By The Associated Press
 Thunderstorms and rain showers were reported early today from the southern Mississippi Valley to the Great Lakes and from North Carolina to central New England.

In the West, rain and rain showers were occurring from central California into northern Oregon.

The coolest portion of the nation was in upper New England and New York where early morning temperatures were in the lower 30s.

Readings in the 60s and 70s were reported from west Texas to the East Coast and northward into the middle Mississippi Valley.

The forecast was for rain and showers to extend from the Pacific Coast to the northern Rockies and southern and central Plateau with snow possible in higher elevations of the northern mountains.

Rain and showers were also likely from the lower Ohio Valley and central Great Lakes to the middle and north Atlantic Coast states.

There was a chance of snow in parts of northern New England and rain showers were possible from Texas through the lower Mississippi Valley to the Carolinas.

Temperatures at 2 a.m., EST, ranged from 74 at Memphis, Tenn., to 8 at Houlton, Maine.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: An elderly woman signed HAD MY SAY resented being addressed by her first name by doctors and their nurses. (She said it was rude and demeaning.) You defended the practice saying it is not intended as an insult or a put-down, but is considered "friendlier" than the more formal "Miss, Mrs. or Mr."

I disagree. I was brought up differently, and I cannot get used to hearing a secretary, receptionist or salesperson call me anything but "Madam" or Mrs. ———, "if they know my surname. Being called "Honey" or "Dearie" by salespeople is also irritating. Familiarity breeds contempt, and I shan't go back to a place where first-name basis is the policy.

Thank you for lending me your ear. This problem has bothered me ever since I came to America. And my children have never been allowed to call my friends by their first names either!

FROM ENGLAND

DEAR FROM: Although Long Beach is a long reach from England, read on for a reader who shares your view:

DEAR ABBY: I take strong issue with your comments on the letter from HAD MY SAY, who was rankled by the medical profession's practice of using the first names of their patients.

"Friendlier," as you call it, seems to be a two-way street. Never have I had a doctor or nurse suggest that I reciprocate; indeed, I believe they would not invite such friendliness except from those whom they know socially.

MRS. M. IN LONG BEACH

DEAR MRS. M. AND FROM ENGLAND: My mail has been running 5 to 1 in favor of first names. Residents in nursing homes say it makes them feel more at home.

So I suggest that those of you out there who resent being addressed by your first names, speak up. The squeaking wheel gets the grease.

DEAR ABBY: To HAD MY SAY, who resents being called by her first name, I say, "Right on!" And it's not a question of age. It's undue familiarity, demeaning and disrespectful.

I know a woman who handled it this way: During her first visit to a doctor she had never seen before, he asked, "Mary, does this hurt?"

She replied, "Yes, Jack."

After that he called her "Mrs. Smith."

OLYMPIA, WASH.

DEAR ABBY: Now that HAD MY SAY has had her say about people who call her by her first name, we'd like to have OUR say on the subject.

We are all residents of the Fountain Convalescent Hospital in Orange, Calif., and we think surnames are too formal. We prefer to be called by our first names. Thank you.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am on a low cholesterol diet and am constantly looking for foods I can use. I bought a coffee creamer which said it contained no cholesterol, but the label says it contains coconut oil. I was under the impression that this oil was high in cholesterol. I am enclosing the label with the ingredients.

Also I was under the impression that shell fish — shrimps, clams, lobster and oysters — were high in cholesterol and should be avoided. However I heard recently that these foods were no longer in this class and could be eaten without fear of raising the cholesterol count. Is that the case?

DEAR READER — I think labels that advertise no cholesterol in big letters and contain lots of coconut oil or palm oil are misleading. These vegetable products do not contain cholesterol — that is why the manufacturer gets away with it. But the high saturated fat content may stimulate your own body to produce excess amounts of cholesterol and the type of fatty-cholesterol particles we associate with vascular disease that cause heart attacks and strokes. Most of the powders sold as coffee cream substitutes are in this category and in my opinion are not as good as ordinary coffee cream from a health standpoint.

Shrimp is moderately high in cholesterol and should be eaten in only moderate amounts. Its price controls that problem for most people. The same is true of lobster, although both are very low-fat foods. Clams and oysters are low-fat and also low-cholesterol foods. The thinking about these has changed because of more recent research on food analysis.

You have to limit your calories from all sources if you want to be successful with a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet. Too many calories from non-fat, no-cholesterol foods will still cause many people to have high blood levels. I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-3, Diet, Preventing Atherosclerosis, to give you an overall concept of a proper diet to prevent or help correct this problem. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Could you tell me the symptoms of emphysema and what it is caused by? What can be done for it? How does it start and as you get older does it progress?

DEAR READER — Emphysema is mostly a progressive constriction of the outlet of the tiny air sacs that make up your lungs. As a result it is hard to breathe out as much old air from your lungs as a normal person can.

This results in mixing more used air with new air during each breath. The bottom line is that your lungs are not able to provide as much oxygen as normal lungs do.

Since the lungs have a range of function, in the early stages this may not cause any problem at rest. Often the first noticeable symptom is a decrease in exercise capacity — becoming short of breath or tired sooner than a healthy person should. The ability to increase your exercise gets more and more limited; finally, when the lungs have trouble providing enough oxygen at rest, you begin to have symptoms of breathlessness at rest.

It is often caused by cigarette smoking but not all cigarette smokers develop it. Because the smokers who tend to develop it often don't want to quit smoking the disease progresses. If no one smoked the incidence of emphysema would be quite small.

At Wit's End

By ERMA BOMBECK

It sounds incredible, but there are 30 million Americans who can't get to sleep at night.

They toss, turn, grind their teeth and roam around the house mixing drinks, reading books, staring at test patterns on TV and popping pills.

Since the pursuit of sleep has become a real science (there are sleep clinics and even sleep foods) I can no longer remain silent and must speak out. If it helps one man or one woman, I'll feel rewarded.

1. Stay dressed and upright. One cannot fall asleep in a pair of loose pajamas stretched out on a clean bed with the lights off. My husband's best sleep comes following a large meal when he is propped up in a recliner chair in a vest with the television blaring.

2. Napping aids sleep. No one likes to go to bed tired. I have observed that he naps best through sports events. For some unexplained reason, he wakes up (a) when the score is given and (b) when you think he is asleep and switch the channel to a Doris Day movie.

3. Children aid sleep in the male species. Some men have been known to sleep all through their children's formative years. I have discovered there is nothing to cure a case of insomnia like the voice of a child in the night whining, "I'm thirsty." "I have to potty." "I feel sick."

4. If your husband has trouble nodding off, take him to a social event — a concert, an opera, a school play, or a cocktail party. I have had my husband sack out in a roomful of 200 people in party hats singing, "Hello Dolly." When I pointed out that he snored offkey, he said, "I was not sleep. I was just resting my eyes." (Some men have only to look at a tuxedo and it's like a sedative.)

5. Naturally, everyone doesn't have access to all the sleep-inducing materials at my house.

but the other night my mother observed my husband in a chair fast asleep over a book. "Look at him," she smiled. "It's nice to see a man who can relax with a book over his chest."

That's easy for Mother to say. She didn't write the book.

Golf team wins

The Pampa boys golf team, led by Dusty Hudson's par 72, grabbed second place Monday in the Dumas Invitational.

Borger finished first in a field of eight with a combined team total of 297. Pampa gained the second spot with a score of 302.

Hudson's 18 hole score of 73, his best this season in competition, earned him the medalist award for best of tournament.

Pampa's Barry Terrell fired a 73 which tied him with two others for the runner-up medalist award. Gary Ray, Borger, won the runner-up honor in a sudden death playoff.

Scott Barrett (78), Scott Nichols (80) and Paul Beck (81) rounded out the scoring for the Harvesters. Beck's 81, the highest round for Pampa's squad, was dropped for the combined team averaging.

Coach Wolft was pleased with the effort of the golf team and didn't rule out a first or second place finish in district.

The stiffest competition, Coach Wolft believes, will come from Amarillo High School and Palo Duro.

The first District Round will begin at 10 p.m. Friday.

PAMPA NEWS Tuesday, April 4, 1978 9

Aeros want Association

HOUSTON (AP) — A news conference was to be held today by the Houston Aeros with Kenneth Schnitzer, chairman of the board of the World Hockey Association team, expected to discuss efforts to get the club in the National Hockey Association.

Schnitzer has spent much time exploring the possibilities of gaining entrance into the older hockey league, relocation of a current NHL franchise and expansion.

He has held talks with both the Cleveland Barons and Colorado Rockies of the NHL concerning a purchase but apparently he would prefer to keep the Aeros intact and enter the NHL as an established team.

He also is expected to ask Houston residents to purchase a record number of season tickets for next year. The Aeros sold 4,800 season tickets last year compared to 3,250 this year. Home attendance is down as the Aeros have drawn 283,940 in 39 home games this season, compared with 350,380 for the same number of games last year.

Tournament Medalist Hudson

Dusty Hudson has had back to back tournament scores of 73 and 72. His 72 Monday was the lowest score of the Borger contest, earning him the medalist award.

Southwest Conference no laugh

DALLAS (AP) — The United States of America quit laughing at Southwest Conference basketball in the harsh winter of 1977.

From the National Invitational Tournament in New York City to the Final Four of the NCAA Playoffs in St. Louis, Mo., respect replaced sneers except when Albe Lemons delivered his one-liners. Lemons-led Texas whipped North Carolina State of the roundball upperclass Atlantic Coast Conference to capture the NIT and Arkansas ambushed multi-titled UCLA and glimmer independent Notre Dame for third place in the NCAA.

"We had been doing a lot of talking about how much our basketball had improved but it finally reached the point where we had to do something to convince people," said Eddie Sutton of Arkansas.

Sutton, the first SWC coach to capture The Associated Press Coach of the Year laurels, said, "You can't find a person now who hasn't heard of us. Actually, I thought it should have been that way last year. But we blew a 15-point lead to Wake Forest in the NCAA's Houston got to the finals of the NIT last year."

Sutton, who came to Arkansas from Creighton four years ago, said he felt Arkansas was the primary trailblazer in upgrading SWC basketball.

"We made a commitment to basketball and people at other institutions saw that football and basketball could be compatible," said Sutton. "Before we arrived, basketball was treated like a stepchild down here.

"The addition of Houston to the conference was great. They had had success over the past decade and that probably helped."

"We went out and beat out some of the big boys for talent," said Sutton. "The coaching has been good."

Sutton cited Lemons, who earned Coach of the Year honors along with Duke's Bill Foster, from the American Basketball Coaches Association.

"Albe gets a lot of ink, but more than anything else he has a good ballclub and he can coach," said Sutton. "Texas should be a heavy favorite next year. They get all their top players back."

Lemons was asked about the improvement in SWC basketball in New York and he said, "If you think the conference is easy, just come down and play us sometime. Try taking a team over to College Station and play the Texas Aggies. They're mean."

Texas was 15-0 in its new 16,000 seat facility, The Super Drum Temple and Nebraska fell to the Longhorns there in first round NIT games.

Sutton figures Houston, Texas Tech, Texas A&M, and Southern Methodist will field competitive clubs next year.

And what about Arkansas which lost three of its top players?

"We need some guys who are hard to guard," said Sutton.

The SWC for the first time in its history, had three basketball teams in the postseason tournaments in 1977. Houston was eliminated in a first round game against Notre Dame.

Race officials attack VD

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky officials said they would announce a contingency plan today to control venereal disease among thoroughbred horses, in the face of a Jockey Club ruling that foals bred by artificial insemination cannot be registered as thoroughbreds.

The state Department of Agriculture had ordered artificial insemination on farms that have stallions infected with contagious equine metritis, an imported-disease that has shaken the $200-million-a-year Bluegrass breeding industry.

But the Jockey Club in New York, which registers all thoroughbreds for racing in the United States, said Monday it would not bend its rule against the artificial breeding method, which means such a foal could not race.

Jockey Club Chairman Nicholas F. Brady read a statement saying the rule "is intended to insure the authenticity of thoroughbred bloodlines and the integrity of the American Stud Book."

A University of Kentucky veterinarian predicted after the Jockey Club announcement that CEM "is going to spread throughout the state and country unless we go to artificial insemination."

Dr. Tom Swerczek, head of UK's CEM testing laboratory, said CEM is relatively easy to detect and treat in infected mares, but "these mares infected now may become carrier mares and next year they may infect new stallions. . . It's going to be very difficult to detect the organism in carrier mares."

Jim Morgan leaves Pampa

Jim Morgan, assistant football and track coach at Pampa High School is resigning this month to assume the post of athletic director and head football coach at Memphis (Texas) High School.

Morgan said he "probably" will begin his new job April 17. Morgan told The News today that he is very excited about the change and is anticipating new challenges at Memphis because "of its traditional approach."

Texas rep tours Africa

By MILLER BONNER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Following a 16-day tour of Africa, Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Texas, says he feels black rule in Rhodesia is "inevitable" and that President Carter is getting bad — but "sincere" — advice on the situation there from United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young.

Wilson, noting that "the State Department tried very hard to discourage me from going," said that black leaders in Rhodesia told him "intellectually he (Young) knows we're right but he won't accept it emotionally."

Wilson said he felt Carter was getting bad advice from Young but quickly added, "I don't think he's giving him insincere advice."

After meeting with black leaders, Wilson said he was confident that Bishop Abel Muzorewa would become the new leader of "Zimbabwe," the name that will be given to Rhodesia after white-minority rule gives way to black-majority rule next year.

"There's no doubt in my mind that he'll be elected," said Wilson. "He'll probably get 65 percent of the vote which is a hell of a lot more than Jimmy Carter got."

Wilson said Joshua Nkomo, the leader of the Communist-backed guerrilla forces which have been battling the government of Prime Minister Ian Smith for the last four years, will be asked to run in the free elections but the black leaders "feel he can't get enough votes to be elected."

Wilson added that the black leaders, during meetings in Salisbury, said the guerrillas will be granted complete amnesty and "once a black is named commander-in-chief of the army, they'll have no problem."

"From the black shoe-shine boy to the white working-class girl behind the hotel counter, everyone is totally for the one-man, one-vote rule," he continued during a late Monday afternoon press conference. "Like one black leader told me, 'I despise Ian Smith... but he's the only politician I ever knew who presided over his own demise.'"

Wilson also said his trip was noteworthy insofar as getting a first-hand look at countries which are an integral part of U.S. foreign policy in Africa.

Priations Subcommittee on Foreign Affairs, said the Eastern-recess trip cost taxpayers "about $4,500" including a first-class, round-trip ticket for "about $2,600."

"I feel it's important for congressmen who sit on appropriation committees to go and see how and where we'll be spending the taxpayers' money," he said, adding that the foreign operations subcommittee is "accountable for about $10 billion a year... this kind of trip to Africa isn't what you'd call fun and games... but without such trips, you can't responsibly carry out your responsibilities. Congressmen should be required to travel not to Paris, London, Lisbon or Switzerland but to the poor countries where the dollars are being spent."
