Which Watergate book tells the truth?

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Who's telling it straight? Richard Nixon? Charles W. Colson? H.R. Haldeman?

Reading their Watergate books, it is often hard to tell. Nixon says he was flying back from Florida when he learned that one of the Watergate burglars was on the payroll of his re-election committee.

But Colson recalled that Nixon phoned him from Key Biscayne, Fla., "furious that anyone connected with the camaign would be involved in anything so idiotic.

The news, said Colson, "plunged Nixon into such a fit of temper that he hurled an ashtray across his Key Biscayne living room."

And Haldeman: "My suspicion of an involvement of Chuck Colson and, therefore, Nixon in Watergate was dissolved completely when I spoke to Nixon. The president wasn't concerned at all by the break-in."

Such inconsistencies run through "R.N.: The Memoirs of Richard Nixon," Haldeman's

"The Ends of Power" and Colson's "Born Again."

Nixon: On June 20, (three days after the break-in) Colson suggested that the four Cuban-Americans arrested inside Watergate might have planned it "on their own."

Haldeman: Nixon suggested "raising money for the defendants and using a Cuban cover for the money."

Nixon writes that for nine months he assumed his major Watergate problem was determining who authorized the break-in, but that on March 21, 1973 he learned from John Dean that the cover-up was the real problem.

Haldeman: "The president was involved in the cover-up from Day One, although neither he nor we considered it a cover-up at that time. By June 20, 1972, he knew about (E. Howard) Hunt and (G. Gordon) Liddy — but never ordered me or anyone to inform the FBI."

Colson: "I never suspected for a moment that anyone in the White House, least of all the man I was talking to (Nixon) would for a moment tolerate or cover-up such bungling incompetence."

Haldeman: "Richard Nixon, himself, caused those burglars to break into (Larry) O'Brien's office." Haldeman reasoned that O'Brien, the chairman of the Democratic national Committee, "became a symbol of hate" for both Colson and Nixon.

Nixon mentions two meetings on June 20 with Haldeman — but there is no word in the published excerpts about a telephone conversation during which Haldeman asserts, the cover-up started.

Haldeman: "In this telephone conversation, on our very first evening back in Washington, Nixon, himself, initiated the idea of raising funds for the Watergate burglars in an indirect manner."

Nixon writes that on June 20 he felt confident about Watergate because both Haldeman and Colson assured him no one at the White House had been involved.

Haldeman: "Even more surprising, he indirectly suggested the idea involving the CIA in the Watergate problem three days before the famous 'smoking gun' conversation in which the same idea was consummated."

Haldeman: "I believe Nixon had started trying to erase the tapes himself."

Health officials report problem at nursing home

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

Cold meals, staff problems and incomplete patient care records at Leisure Lodge Nursing Center were reported by officials of the Texas Department Bureau of Long Term Care after a recent visit and inspectors are planning another trip to Pampa soon to determine if the problems have been corrected.

Fred Raby of Austin, head of the Facility Standards Division of the bureau, told The News that state inspectors "investigated a complaint around Feb. 28, at which time they reported four or five items."

Asked for the specific problems found by inspectors at Leisure Lodge, Raby listed:

— Nurses working double shifts.

— Six food trays found at the nurses stations at 6:10 p.m., an hour and 10 minutes after the scheduled time for the evening meal. The food was described by state inspectors as cold and unappetizing in appearance and the blended food could not be identified by appearance or color.

— Documentation of patient care was incomplete. Nurses notes did not report if decubiti (bed sores) on a patient developed before or after the patient was admitted. Nurses notes did indicate that decubiti were being treated but no notes indicated a doctor had been notified or had authorized treatment.

Mrs. Phyllis O'Dell, administrator of Leisure Lodge since July 1977, said this morning that the deficiencies noted during the last inspection have been corrected.

She said the meal trays at the nurses station "was a one-time situation. We were short-staffed that night."

Mrs. O'Dell said that her biggest problem, the one which results in the other problems, is that of staffing.

"We have a very hard time finding people to work as nurses aides. They are inexperienced, they don't like to work, most of them are 18 or 19 years old and they're not very responsible. You train them for two or three days and when the weekend comes along, they just don't show up, so the girls who are dedicated end up working double shifts."

About the food at Leisure Lodge, Mrs. O'Dell said, "Of course it's not home cooking. It's institution food. It isn't seasoned like you'd season it at home. But it's good. Come out and have lunch with me sometime and see for yourself."

The family members of one patient at the facility contacted The News on Friday and reported that they had had the 89-year-old woman transferred from Leisure Lodge to the hospital at Groom.

The granddaughter of the patient said that on a visit to the facility, she found her grandmother had been lying in urine and BM for a long time.

She described the condition of the skin as "raw and blistered."

The granddaughter reported that after two days of treatment in the hospital, the condition appeared to be clearing up.

According to Raby's records, the problems noted at Leisure Lodge at the last inspection are not the first ones at the Pampa facility to be brought to his attention.

"On Jan. 14, 1977, they went to a vendor hold," he reported. "When a facility is placed on a vendor hold, the state withholds payment until problems are corrected and the hold is lifted."

Many patients at Leisure Lodge receive government Medicaid assistance in making payments.

Gary Allen in the Austin office reported that payments to Leisure Lodge totaled $24,656 in February, $22,172 in March, and $23,050 in April.

Raby said his records show an earlier vendor hold had been placed on Leisure Lodge on Sept. 7, 1976.

And on May 21, 1976, Raby said his records show that Leisure Lodge was terminated "for non-correction of deficiencies." He said the facility was recertified "about three weeks later" but for the period of termination, no Medicaid funds were paid.

Ralph Harmon of the Canyon office of the Facility Standards Division of the Health Department Bureau of Long Term Care said of the Leisure Lodge: "They do have some problems they are going to have to straighten out. We're going to take whatever action is necessary."

There currently are 65 patients in Leisure Lodge.

"Nine out of 10 of my patients' families will tell you their parents are being taken very good care of. I run a good nursing home," Mrs. O'Dell said.

Just before deadline time this morning, another caller to The News said she had a mother and a mother-in-law at Leisure Lodge.

"We are satisfied and we think they are getting good care out there," she said.

Mrs. O'Dell called The News shortly after noon today to report that the people who had taken the 89-year-old patient out of the facility have requested that she be readmitted to Leisure Lodge — when released from the Groom Hospital.

Kansas City fun

Members of the Pride of Pampa High School Band saw some sights from an unusual angle during their recent trip to Kansas City where they competed in the Worlds of Fun Band Contest at the Worlds of Fun Amusement

Park. Bandsters had the opportunity to participate in some other action at the park, too, such as the roller coaster ride. (Related story and photo on page 4.)

Land zoned for shopping center

City approval of a re-zoning request has cleared the way for construction of a proposed $5 million shopping mall for north Pampa.

In a special meeting Friday, city commissioners granted the request made by Dauley Enterprises of Grand Prairie and Ambinder Associates of Houston, developers of the shopping center, to change a 40-acre tract north of 25th Street from "agricultural" to "commercial."

In exchange for the re-zoning, the developers will give the city 10 feet of right-of-way for the planned widening of North Hobart.

Spokesmen for the joint development venture have indicated that preliminary groundwork would begin "as soon as the re-zoning request was finalized."

The shopping center is to feature two major department stores, K-Mart and J.C. Penny, and "20 to 30 smaller stores representing national chains."

It is expected to generate some 400 additional jobs and an estimated $20 million in annual retail sales.

Competition of the shopping mall is anticipated June 1, 1979, if all goes as planned, said developers.

Also during Friday's special meeting, commissioners voted to apply for a $1.5 million federal grant for the city's 2-inch water line repair.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) grant will help offset the city's costs to repair some 16.3

miles of "antiquated water lines."

According to City Manager Mack, the chance of getting the federal grant "doesn't look all that bright." However, Wofford said the city doesn't know for sure its chances if it does not apply.

City officials have on board a three-year plan to repair the water lines predominately located in south and southwest Pampa.

The repairs are being funded through the city's revenue sharing monies.

Absentee voting to close Tuesday

Today and Tuesday are the last days for absentee balloting for the Saturday primaries.

Balloting may be done from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., including the noon hour, in the county clerk's office on the second floor of the Gray County courthouse.

Wanda Carter, county clerk, said today that 192 Democrats and 32 Republicans already have voted absentee.

For Saturday elections, Republican balloting for all precincts will be in the cafeteria of Stephen F. Austin school at 1900 Duncan from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. The Republican precinct convention will be at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, also at the Stephen F. Austin school. The county convention will be at 10 a.m. May 13, again at Stephen F. Austin.

Voting for the Democratic primary will be as follows: precinct 1, Community Center at Lefors, precinct 2, Baker School, precinct 3, Grandview School, precinct 4, Community Center at McLean, precinct 5, Alanreed School, precinct 6, the processing plant at Laketon, precinct 8, the gym of Stephen F. Austin School, precinct 9,

Woodrow Wilson school, precinct 10, first floor of the Gray County courthouse, precincts 11 and 13, the courthouse annex east of Pampa on Highway 60, and precinct 14, the gym of Travis Elementary School.

The Democratic precinct convention will be at 7:15 p.m. Saturday in the Gray county district courtroom on the third floor of the Gray County courthouse. The Democratic county convention will be at 2:30 p.m. May 13, also in the district courtroom. Democratic voting will also be from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

PJH choir named most outstanding

The Pampa Junior High Choral was named the Most Outstanding CCC Choir in both the girls and boys divisions at the Greater Southwest Music Festival (GSWF) Friday and Saturday in Amarillo.

The PJH freshman mixed choir, the freshman girls and boys choir all earned a First Division rating. Director is Elen Donald.

Also, the girls choir received special recognition by winning the Linkhart Trophy which is presented to the Most Outstanding Junior High School Choir. This is a traveling trophy which is kept by the winning school for one year.

During the 1977-78 school year, the PJH choirs have won three GSWF Most Outstanding trophies, four University Interscholastic League Sweepstakes awards and three GSWF First Division titles.

County welfare office closed

Gray County commissioners approved a one-year contract with the Department of Human Resources today that will in effect, with the appointment of a seven-member child welfare board, replace work previously done by Geraldine Shultz, county welfare agent.

The contract will provide for increased insurance for county welfare children, commissioners said at a previous meeting. The chairman of the new child welfare board, which will meet May 9, will have access to funds in the event of an emergency.

Mrs. Shultz will retire June 1 and the county welfare office will be closed at that time. The contract went into effect today.

In other business, commissioners heard a request from W.A. Morgan of Celanese Co. for the upgrading of a county road one-half mile west of Highway 2300 on the south side of Celanese.

That caliche road, which commissioners discussed re-paving with double asphalt, is used for trucks on the way to the Brown and Root construction project.

Twenty trucks use the road per day, Morgan reported, and when concrete is being poured that increases to one truck every six minutes.

Commissioners discussed widening the road and drainage problems and said they would consider the matter more at the 9 a.m. May 11 meeting, after contractors had looked at the road.

Bids for two dumptrucks for precinct 1 were authorized, to be taken this month and opened June 1.

Commissioners also approved one time deposit of $50,000 for 90 days from the revenue sharing fund with interest to the revenue sharing fund.

The payment of salaries and bills as recommended by the county auditor were also approved.

Supreme Court blows whistle

Not often do federal judges get so obvious a rap on their knuckles. The U.S. Supreme Court has told them to stop interfering with the legislative process.

That was the message coming through in its unanimous opinion addressed to the U.S. Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia in two cases involving proposed nuclear power plants in Vermont and Michigan.

When the federal Nuclear Regulatory Agency granted approval to the plants, opponents took the agency to court. Federal judges ruled in the Vermont case that the agency had not given adequate consideration to the environmental impact of fuel reprocessing and waste disposal. In the Michigan case, they held that the agency failed to give sufficient weight to energy conservation as an alternative to building the nuclear plant.

In both cases, the Supreme Court has declared, the federal judges took unto themselves a policy-making role that exceeded their authority.

It was only incidental that these cases involved nuclear power plants, although controversy over nuclear plants has generated an uncommon number of appeals to the courts from regulatory decisions of state or federal agencies. The lecture given to the lower court by Justice William Rehnquist could well be framed and hung in courtrooms across the land.

"The fundamental policy questions appropriately resolved in Congress and in the state legislatures," he said, "are not subject to re-examination in the federal courts under the guise of judicial review of agency action."

In other words, legislative bodies adopt government policies and create agencies to implement those policies. It is not for judges, as Justice Rehnquist put it, to indulge in "Monday morning quarterbacking" after an agency has followed the prescribed procedures in fulfillment of its responsibility to administer the law.

The Supreme Court seems to be blowing the whistle on lower courts that take too broad a view of their power to invade the regulatory arena on grounds that an agency has not complied with rules of procedure. The high court has perceived that judges often wind up ruling on substantive issues in a controversy, rather than limiting their review strictly to the procedure which an agency has followed in making its decision in the controversy.

The Supreme Court decision is a welcome one for no other reason than it promises to eliminate some of the delay in resolving regulatory disputes, especially in the fields of energy and the environment.

It has become a foregone conclusion that any regulatory issue arousing public emotions on either side will be tied up eventually in the courts. Whether it will be in the future, we hope, will depend on a narrower interpretation of what aspects of the case may be subject to judicial review.

Beyond that, the present Supreme Court is indicating more sensitivity to the line that divides legislative and judicial functions of government. Under the late Chief Justice Earl Warren, the Supreme Court itself developed a penchant for legislating from the bench and established some disturbing precedents for judicial power.

The court now has made a refreshing affirmation of the role of Congress and the state legislatures as the makers of law and policy.

Forgotten prisoners

President Carter continually bleats about human rights as he points a finger at conditions in certain countries.

Which countries? Those having a record of being relatively friendly to the United States.

How often has President Carter pointed a finger at human rights conditions in Communist Vietnam, Cambodia, Russia, China, Cuba and other Communist countries?

What about the human rights of Greece's former president, George Papadopolous and Vice Premier Nicholas Makarezos, both of whom are in prison under deplorable conditions?

Columist Henry Raylor says of Papadopolous:

"His cell is small. It is over a sewer and very cold. Papadopolous may yet die of pneumonia. The Greek government even prohibited his wife, Despina, from bringing him a sweater. The cell has a thick wooden door (with a peep hole) and only an iron cot, a toilet without a cover seat, a straight chair and a brilliant ceiling light that is dimmed at night.

"Rats from the sewer below gnaw the former president at night; he cannot sleep. Scorpions (abundant in Greece), lice, filth and horror are Papadopolous' ghastly companions.

"He was pro-American, Pro - NATO, pro-free world and anti - Communist."

Why is President Carter so concerned about human rights in anti - communist countries and so unconcerned about human rights in Communist or Communist leaning countries?

and least by General Motors. The rich can better survive a squeeze because they are rich.

In the population at large, this is true too of course. Blacks are the last hired and the first fired. Outright racial motives have a lot less to do with this now than a decade ago, but the fact remains that blacks as an economic class are at the bottom of the ladder. This means that in a contraction they have fewer reserves to see things through. Even if the government can provide a minimum level of sustenance, it cannot restore crushed hopes. Naturally, the blacks are the first to squeak.

It is not the rich who have the toughest time paying the costs the government is constantly imposing on the economy through higher taxes and stifling regulation. The rich have not only the financial resources to get by, but have the wit to push some of their share of the burden on the weak. As the economic squeeze gets worse, the squeaking at the bottom of the ladder intensifies. This goes for companies as well as for people.

We observed this behavior a few years back when Sen. Muskie stuck Detroit with the current ridiculously high pollution standards. Chrysler squeaked. Ford muttered. And General Motors joined forces with the feds and took out full - page ads to sing the praises of catalyts. Why not? GM had the resources not only to install the catalytic converters but also to manufacture them for everyone else. The more expensive and more pointless the government regulations become, the greater advantage GM will have in its relative ability to meet them.

So the wealthy companies, the GMs and the Excons, tend to be the most cooperative with the government, just as wealthy individuals tend to be the most sensitive about such issues as the environment. But everyone gets saddled with the costs, and the more unreasonable they become the more reason there is for those at the bottom of the ladder to complain. Keep crying John Riccardo. A squeaky wheel is often trying to tell us something we ought to know.

Inflation, child of government

By OSCAR W. COOLEY
People are angry when the power or gas company raises its rates, or when their supermarket marks its meat up a little higher. They assume the merchants and manufacturers are responsible for the inflation, and the government and media are not slow to confirm that assumption.

In fact, neither the sellers nor the buyers are responsible for the climbing prices. The responsibility rests on none other than the U.S. Government itself, and this truth cannot be stated too often. The constitution clearly assigns to the government the duty to establish and maintain a sound and stable currency. For years Washington has deliberately followed a policy that has destabilized the currency.

At any one moment, the economy has a certain bundle of goods to be sold and a certain bundle of money to pay for them. When the bundle of money grows faster than the bundle of goods, it is plain that more dollars will be matched against the same quantity of goods. The observable effect is higher prices.

If every consumer got his share of the increase in the money, none would have cause to complain. Each would spend more money, but he would also receive more income. He would merely handle more dollars but get the same goods as before.

But all do not share alike. The government, which is a monumental consumer, gets far more than its share. It does so by "deficit financing," that is, by borrowing billions of dollars from the banking system. Those billions did not previously exist. Thus, the government is responsible for the creation of large amounts of new bank credit money.

Unlike private enterprise, which uses bank credit to increase the production of goods, today's government spends hugely to increase consumption, not production. Food stamps, for example. It even pays cash to farmers to reduce production. Much of its spending, indeed, merely increases the demand for an existing bundle of goods. Obviously, prices rise.

To look at it another way, the government by creating and spending new money without reducing the existing dollars in circulation increases the claims on the fixed quantity of goods.

The situation is like a cattle auction at which the cattle are selling in an orderly way when suddenly a new buyer arrives, produces a big bankroll and starts bidding aggressively. The prices, naturally, are bid up sharply, the former bidders are dismayed. This "inflation" is now forcing them to pay more for the cattle. The trouble lies in the profligate and ever - increasing spending by the government. If the first homo sapiens had lived until today and had spent $10,000 a year, or about what would support an individual fairly comfortably today, he would have spent, in the aggregate, maybe three - fourths as much as our government will spend this year.

We call it "spending," but it really is an asserting of additional claims to the nation's goods. The more claims the government asserts, the less goods there are left for the people to lay claim to.

It is a kind of seizure, or confiscation, by the government, the more it lifts from our larder, the less there is left for us to eat. Inflation, then, is much more subtle and insidious than a mere marking up of prices by manufacturers and merchants. They, in fact, are totally innocent of the crime of inflation.

Since accelerated spending of new money is a policy of the U.S. government (and of all governments) today, it is incorrect to assume that President Carter and his fellows in government are doing their utmost to quell inflation. In fact, they are consciously and deliberately doing the one thing that causes inflation. They may want less inflation, but they clearly want big government more.

Looking back at U.S. history, we see that for the last 60 years there has been inflation. Sometimes it has been severe, sometimes mild. But always over that period the dollar has lost value in terms of goods. And always the government has grown. Increasing inflation and increasing socialization have kept company.

And always, when the people complained of the rising cost of living, Washington has blamed the private sector. Once it is the steel companies that have raised the prices inordinately. Then it is the labor unions that are accused of pushing wages up too fast. Then the farmers are pilloried for the zooming cost of food.

Never does the government admit the blame. Yet, over this period the national debt has gone up and up, until it is flirting with a trillion. Regardless which party was in power, the government has consistently used deficit financing. Every four years the party candidates vie for office, promising a sound dollar. The parties in power change, but the deficit financing continues and the dollar continues to rot.

The conclusion is inescapable that inflation is deep rooted in the soil of government itself, and that the people of the United States will never get relief from it until they take away from the government the power to create and control money.

Business limelight

Social Security dilemma

By GENE WEKALL
PITTSBURGH — A $2 trillion deficit and the possibility that some wage earners may receive Social Security payments that will exceed their most recent after - tax wages were pointed out this week by Robert S. Kaplan.

Kaplan is dean of Carnegie - Mellon's graduate school of administration. He told a group of executives that the present Social Security deficit is approximately $2 trillion. He said the deficit will make itself felt 30 years from now when the demographic composition of the U.S. begins to shift dramatically. This shift will be caused by the large number of persons who will reach retirement age. Then Social Security will feel the full effect of the increases in the program because of inflation.

Kaplan said that presently $90 billion is collected in Social Security taxes yearly. Social Security expenditures are approximately $96 billion. Persons paying Social Security taxes in the past created a $30 billion surplus. This reserve is being depleted and will be further depleted if the recent Social Security tax hike is rescinded. This tax hike has been under fire since the start of the year.

One suggestion has been to use general funds to solve some of the deficit problems of the Social Security system.

Kaplan suggested that some pressure on the system could be relieved by delaying the retirement age. Kaplan said that adding one month per year to the present retirement - at 65 plan would, in 30 years, move the retirement age to 68. He told the executives that under the present plan it is possible for a worker to retire at 65 with an income that comes close to equalling a present salary after income taxes.

The present Social Security retirement program encourages workers to retire. However, Kaplan pointed out, in another 10 years a labor shortage will appear in the United States. The labor shortage will be caused by the present low birthrate.

Another inequity in the system is under fire, Kaplan said. Women who have paid Social Security taxes during their working experience will not receive as much income as a non - working wife, sharing her husband's Social Security payments.

"In effect, these women get no benefits from all the Social Security taxes they have paid in during their working experience," Kaplan said.

This is seen as yet another form of subtle discrimination against the working women, he said.

Some economists claim that increasing Social Security payments are having negative effects on capital formation. They believe that increasing amounts to be paid to those retiring under the system is discouraging savings. They also believe that some pension plans are being cut back because of the increase in Social Security payments.

"The time to plan for the future is now. We have sufficient data to consider and adopt changes to the system. These changes need not be implemented for many years, but they should be implemented now," Kaplan said.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Monday, May 1, the 121st day of 1978. There are 244 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1945, the German radio announced the death of Adolf Hitler in Berlin.

On this date: In 1898, an American naval force under Adm. George Dewey destroyed a Spanish fleet in Manila Bay in the Philippines.

In 1931, what was then the tallest building in the world, the Empire State Building in New York, was dedicated.

In 1961, the first political hijacking of an American airliner to Cuba took place.

In 1964, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev warned in a May Day speech that U.S. policies toward Cuba could drag the world into World War III.

In 1967, U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk reported that North Vietnam had spurned 28 bids for a Vietnamese peace settlement.

Your money's worth

Before you buy 'deposit term'

Sylvia Porter

You receive a phone call for your life insurance agent, make an appointment to discuss your current coverage, are advised to surrender your existing life insurance and replace it with a new form of term insurance — called "deposit term."

You are told that under this policy, you must pay an extra "deposit" of, say, $10 per $1,000 coverage for the first year of a 10-year plan — but that if you maintain your policy for the required 10 years, your deposit will be returned doubled. Only if you let your policy lapse before the end of the 10th policy year will you be penalized by forfeiture of some or all of the additional "deposit."

The agent explains that the doubled amount, guaranteed in the form of the 10th year cash value of the policy, represents an interest return of 7.2 per cent compounded on the additional premium. And to start with term insurance is the cheapest form of insurance available to you.

The clincher, says the agent, is that under current tax rules the interest on the return-is tax-free to you.

Sounds appealing, does it not? And so many of you are following this advice and replacing your existing insurance that the whole concept of deposit term is coming under the scrutiny of the Million Dollar Round Table, an organization of life insurance agents.

In addition, some highly respected consumer-oriented critics are openly attacking deposit term sales tactics as "deceptive."

Some replacements are justified, some clearly unjustified, and some are toss-ups, in the balanced view of Joseph H. Belth, Indiana University professor of insurance, editor of the monthly "Insurance Forum," and author of "Life Insurance: A Consumer's Handbook."

Belth is concerned that you are not being told the whole truth about replacements of your existing policies with deposit term or about original purchases of the new form of policy. He adds, "There are at least some one-year renewable term policies on the market that are less costly than at least some deposit term policies."

Against this background, at a minimum, you should take these five steps before accepting any advice to replace your existing life insurance coverage:

(1) Obtain a written proposal of the suggested new program and send it to the companies which sold you the insurance you are being told to drop. Request the written opinions of the companies involved. Their answers will help you understand (which would be self-understanding) but their replies may help you focus on items that had not been clearly presented to you.

(2) Be sure you understand all the implications of a new contestable period in the event of your disability or death. This could be of crucial importance.

(3) Consider your investment - insurance goals. Do you wish to commit all your funds to equity programs for maximum yield or do you want to balance your investment program with reserve funds in a life insurance policy, even though the yield on this is low?

(4) If your answer is maximum yield, then doublecheck to be certain that the deposit term policy you buy does indeed give you a lower premium rate than regular term insurance.

(5) Obey the most basic rule of wise buying: compare costs before you buy! Just because you indicate confidence that you will hold your policy for a 10-year span, most companies issuing consumer-directed deposit term policies offer them at rates substantially lower than regular term insurance premiums. But some companies, as Belth properly points out, issue these policies at regular rates and pay very high commissions to their sales organizations on them.

Belth puts his point in "further perspective" by comparing deposit term with U.S. Savings E bonds. He argues that the claim that the E bond provides a 6 per cent annual return if held to maturity also is a "deceptive sales practice" because, if you cash in your E bond at the end of one year, your return is only 4.6 per cent and that you must hold the bond for its full five years to earn the average of 6 per cent per year.

But presumably, you do not buy an E bond for one year; you buy it for long-term savings and then you do earn 6 per cent — tax-free until you redeem your securities.

Follow the identical procedure on deposit term. DO NOT BUY deposit term unless you are sure you can meet the 10-year holding requirement. DO investigate it with care if you believe you will maintain the coverage and gain all its benefits.

Nation's press

Chrysler squeaks

(The Wall Street Journal)

Here we go again. Chrysler Corporation, that bad actor, blows $43.9 million in the 4th quarter of 1977 and admits there will be more red ink this quarter. And it blames the federal government.

How typical of Chrysler. Chrysler Chairman John Riccardo cries that government regulation is killing Chrysler, that federal standards impact more heavily on his company than on General Motors or Ford, that car prices will be $1,000 higher than necessary in 1985 because of "nonsense" standards that go beyond need. "The time has come to call regulators to account," he bellowed.

Our readers, of course, are aware that we are 1,000 percent on Chrysler's side and have frequently given the company lessons in bellyaching in these columns. But why is it that Chrysler squeaks? Just ask anybody in Washington, in the bureaucracy or in Capitol Hill, and they'll tell you that sure, General Motors and Ford put up a fuss, but after the law is laid down — say on pollution or air bags or fuel standards or brake standards — they settle down like good citizens and try to comply. Only Chrysler keeps squawking, taking out advertisements that try to make the politicians and bureaucrats look bad.

How does one explain, now, that Chrysler has the black folks on its side? What has gotten into the NAACP? Now it is complaining about federal regulations being unnecessarily severe, putting the special pleas for Chrysler. Indeed, the word among liberals is that the NAACP "has gone over to Chrysler." Tsk, tsk.

This is really not a case of strange bedfellows at all, and if you think about it there is reason for this mutuality of interests. In an economic contraction, after all, the weakest and poorest are crushed the worst. Of the auto industry Big Three, Chrysler is at the bottom of the pile. Anything the federal government does to the industry in general is felt most by Chrysler, next by Ford,

For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

April has been a beautiful spring month without moisture, but they are promising us a turbulent month for May. So be prepared to protect your plants from hail. We are expecting a great display from the iris. The cool nights have held the buds back so they have been able to form more slowly and therefore they will make much nicer blooms. We are hoping for the wind to be calm so we will be able to enjoy their beauty.

Thin and reset cheysanthemums, hardy phlox, dwarf asters and shasta daisies. Sow in the bare spots in beds annuals, poppies, marigolds, zinnias, moss, cosmos and others.

Check over the roses and see they are well pruned. It is a mistake to leave weak growth on a bush. So don't be afraid to prune.

Dahlia roots should be planted about 8 to 12 inches deep, feel the hole in partially as the plant grows continue to fill in around it until it is ground level. Keep the soil moist.

Bring out pot plants that will spend the summer out side. Geranium, fuchsias and begonias may be planted outside in the beds in the shade or morning sun. Keep them watered and they will reward you with blooms all summer.

Plant out all bedding plants, and all vegetables.

Be sure to remove the dead heads from tulips, daffodils and hyacinths.

Remove seed pods from spring-flowering shrubs, do not allow them to waste energy on seed production.

We have found a way to grow a spring-blooming shrub in a small area. At least the forsythia works well this way. Forsythia is one of the prettiest and most colorful of all spring-blooming shrubs.

From a well established plant we cut back all branches to the ground with the exception of three strong branches, we tied these to a one-half iron pipe seven feet long with two feet driven into the ground for support.

Throughout the season we clipped the growth keeping it in a circle about eight inches around the pipe. Keeping all sprouts from the ground cut back. Thinking for sure we would cut off bloom. But come spring, to our surprise, it was a mass of bloom, and has been for the past three springs.

Plants received from mail-order suppliers are usually dry on arrival. Plunge in a pail of warm water to soak for several hours before planting. If the buds are already broken and top growth has already started, it would be well to cover it with clear plastic. This will help to prevent it from drying out and dying back.

In thinning out your plants use caution remembering that at this time of year Nature may do some thinning out for you.

Pick pansy and violas otherwise the plants will stop flowering and concentrate on reproducing themselves by seeding.

In planting sweet corn remember to plant two short rows rather than one long row. This helps in having good fully developed ears of corn. We make several plantings at two weeks intervals. We have in the past had corn to eat from the last of June until the first of September.

It is time to start your mulching program. Remember if you want it to be effective and helpful it must be at least four inches deep six inches is better. There are many things available. Woodchips are fine but always use cottonseed meal to counteract the nitrogen deficiency they cause as they break down.

Newspapers are available to every one and they are good using three or four thickness, weighting them down with soil and rock. They will hold the moisture in and keep the weeds down.

Plant some of the summer flowering bulbs, the Mexican tigrillas, montbretia, anemones and tuberoses, the acianthera, with its intoxicating scent is also very lovely.

The daily cleanup of fruit from under the apple, peach and plum trees is the best form of protection against insects you can practice. So through this month and June pick up and bury the fallen fruit, those can be added to the compost pile, if the compost pile is really active.

Parsley makes a pretty edging for a bed of annuals, petunias are very attractive with it. Clipping the parsley for your salad is an added bonus.

There is still time to plant evergreens. Thorough watering after planting is important mulch with peat moss or other material, and give regular soakings throughout the summer.

Keep your notebook up to date, be sure and evaluate the results you have attained this spring, note changes and improvements you wish to make. When you visit other gardens and nurseries make careful and clear notes of plants and combinations that interest you.

Check out safety in campers

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

A growing number of economy-minded American families are spending summer vacations camping, out and many of them unknowingly put themselves in danger by failing to take proper safety precautions before they hit up their trailers.

It is particularly important to make sure that the towing and towed vehicles are compatible, that you have the proper pulling device and that you don't overload your trailer or camper.

No one should be allowed to ride in the trailer while it is moving. It is not only dangerous, it is also illegal in many states.

Before you buy or rent any trailer, check the braking and suspension systems and the wheel and tire combinations of the car or truck you will be using as a towing vehicle. Read your owner's manual to make sure your car or truck can handle the load you will be pulling.

There are two general types of hitches. The weight-carrying hitch is mounted on the bumper or frame — or both — of the towing vehicle and is used for pulling lightweight trailers. It concentrates weight on the rear end of the towing vehicle. The weight-distribution hitch is mounted on the frame of the towing vehicle. It is designed to distribute weight among the towing vehicle's front and rear wheels and the trailer wheels.

One problem with many trailers — particularly older ones — is overloading. Trailer suspension systems are designed to carry a certain maximum load, consisting of the weight of the trailer itself, plus items like food, clothing, etc. that might be added. The maximum load plus the weight of the trailer tongue — the part attached to the hitch — equals the Gross Vehicle Weight Rating (GVWR).

Another critical figure, according to the Department of Transportation, is the Gross Axle Weight Rating (GAWR), which is the maximum weight a specific axle is designed to carry.

Since 1972, manufacturers have been required by law to attach a plate to all trailers indicating the GVWR of the unit and the GAWR of each axle. Owners or renters of trailers made before 1972 should try to obtain these ratings, from the manufacturer or dealer or from one of the trade associations specializing in recreational vehicles.

Before you set out on a trip, take your trailer to a weighing station and make sure that the gross weight of the trailer does not exceed the GVWR and measure the load on each axle. Details of how to weigh the vehicle are included in a Transportation Department guide, "Travel & Camper Trailer Safety," available at no charge, from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 650F, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

The booklet includes a pre-departure checklist to follow. Among highlights: —Check the trailer and towing vehicle. Inspect tires for condition, treadwear and proper inflation. Check brakes on both vehicles. —Equip the towing vehicle with large mirrors for the fenders so you can see behind the trailer on both sides. —Make sure shocks and

Conservationists list Texans Eckhardt, Mattox

By MILLER BONNER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — There appear to be only two Texas congressmen who are very conservation-minded — at least in the eyes of the League of Conservation Voters.

In a point system devised by the organization, Bob Eckhardt of Houston earned an 87, making him the Texas House conservation champ for the third consecutive year, and Jim Mattox of Dallas received an 80. Both are Democrats.

But their ratings contrasted sharply with those of retiring Democrats W.R. "Bob" Poage and Olin "Tiger" Teague, who received zeros.

In a report issued today by the league, the average score for all 435 House members was listed as 47, based on votes cast on 20 environmental issues in 1977. The votes covered such topics as strip mining, air pollution, water projects, nuclear power, solar energy and energy conservation.

According to the report, the 24-member Texas delegation voted "correctly" on conservation legislation only 25 percent of the time.

In third place with 47 points was Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin, followed by Reps. Jim Wright, D-Fort Worth, 45; and J.J. Pickle, D-Austin, with 40.

Three other Texas Democrats with the lowest scores were George Mahon of Lubbock with a 3, and Dale Milford of Grand Prairie and Sam B. Hall, Jr. of Marshall with 5's.

Both Texas Republicans, Bill Archer of Houston and Jim Collins of Dallas, scored 30. House-wide, Republicans averaged 28.5 percent, compared with 56 percent posted by the Democrats.

Ratings received by the rest of the Texas delegation were: Ray Roberts of McKinney, 9; Jack Brooks of Galveston, 21; Jack Hightower of Vernon, 11; John Young of Corpus Christi and Omar Bureson of Anson.

14; E. "Kika" de la Garza of Mission, 15; Barbara Jordan of Houston, 35; Henry B. Gonzalez of San Antonio, 30; Senate candidate Bob Krueger of New Braunfels, 18; and Robert White of El Paso, Bob Garmage of Houston and "Chick" Kazen of Laredo, 20.

Pride makes plans for Rose parade

Members of the Pride of Pampa High School Band and Director Jeff Doughten returned only last week from a trip to Kansas City and already they are deep into plans for the next trip.

Arthur D. Welsh, president of the Tournament of Roses Association, will be in Pampa Tuesday to issue a formal, personal invitation to the band and discuss the parade activities.

On Jan. 1, the Pride of Pampa will represent the State of Texas in the Tournament of Roses Parade in Pasadena, Calif.

Doughten said that interested persons may attend the session with Welsh at 7 p.m. in the Pampa Junior High School Auditorium. A news conference is set for the afternoon in the Chamber of Commerce conference room and a private dinner party for the visitor is planned for Pampa Country Club following the evening meeting.

Doper turned to snakes

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A traveling carnival brought a snake-eating "drug user" to town last week, and the side-show owner says it's merely his way of trying to turn kids away from drugs.

Reed, 18, of Austin, Texas, bit into non-poisonous snakes for his audience. Reed, who says he doesn't mind the work, told a reporter he just bites into the snakes and then spits them out when people leave.

Dozens of persons paid $1.20 each through Sunday to see a youth billed as a drug user nibble on dead snakes. Lying on the floor of a dirty cage of wood and clear plastic, Joey

Jim Dixon, the sideshow owner and a native of New Orleans, said he decided to create the show after his son was institutionalized because of drug abuse.

Grocery prices up again, but slower

By The Associated Press — Grocery bills went up again last month, but the rate of increase was lower than it has been so far this year, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows. The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood items, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973 and has rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month. One item, chocolate chip cookies, was dropped from the list at the end of November 1977 because the manufacturer discontinued the package size used in the survey.

higher than it was a month earlier. In contrast, in each of the first three months of the year, the marketbasket total increased by more than 1 percent per month, with a boost of near 2 percent in February alone.

Rising meat prices have been responsible for much of the increase and the pattern continued in April. The AP survey showed that the price of a pound of chopped chuck went up at the checklist store in six cities and frankfurters increased in price in seven cities.

Baptist day care center set to open Monday

A day care center sponsored by the Pampa Baptist Temple for children between the ages of 18 months and 13 years will open "bright and early" next Monday. Pastor John Hulse said today.

The congregation of the Pampa Baptist Temple, 500 E. Kingsmill, approved the opening of the non-denominational center to be licensed for 102 children in a vote Sunday night at the church.

Comparing today's prices with those at the start of the year, the AP found the marketbasket total at the checklist store increased an average of just under 5 percent during the first third of 1978.

Government economists have been predicting that food prices alone will rise 6 to 8 percent during the year, although the rate of increase has been much faster than that so far. The latest Consumer Price Index, released last Friday, showed that food prices went up 1.3 percent in March.

No attempt was made to weight the AP survey results according to population density or in terms of what percent of a family's actual grocery outlay each item represents. The AP did not try to compare actual prices from city to city, — to say, for example, that eggs

Hulse said the Pampa Christian Academy will be open from 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Representatives from Health, Education and Welfare have talked to Hulse and the licensing required for such a center is being processed.

Afghans link with Soviet

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Afghanistan's new military government signaled continued close ties with the neighboring Soviet Union by naming a reported leftist prime minister and announcing the Kremlin's recognition of the fledgling regime.

Radio Kabul, in the Afghan capital, said Nur Mohammed Taraki, a civilian, was named prime minister of the "Democratic Republic State of Afghanistan" and chief of its new Revolutionary Council.

The broadcast said Taraki was a "nationalist and revolutionary personality." The United News of India said he was a leader of the Socialist Party, which was outlawed before the coup last Thursday and Friday. But the British Broadcasting Corp. said he was a leader of the pro-Communist People's Faction Party, an underground opponent of the previous government. It said he was one of several persons arrested in leftist protests that preceded the uprising.

Names in the news

AMHERST, Ohio (AP) — If Hustler magazine owner Larry Flynt is a born-again Christian, "he's reborn a lot worse than he started out with," says Billy Carter, the president's brother. "I don't believe anything about Larry Flynt," Carter told a gathering at an auto dealership Saturday. "I've met him and I don't like him. I can't stand him. In fact, I was even accused of having him shot. My statement made to columnist Jack Anderson was 'if I had him shot from 30 feet with a rifle, he wouldn't be paralyzed.'" tongue-in-cheek speech, said Carter couldn't be there Saturday night because he was "too exhausted." The president spent the weekend at Camp David, Md. Powell, filling in for his boss, said the president wanted him to express his regrets, but "time does not permit me to say all the things we find regrettable about White House correspondents."

Moro family urges Democrats to swap

By HILMI TOROS Associated Press Writer ROME (AP) — Leaders of the Christian Democratic Party scheduled another meeting today to discuss a bitter blast from Aldo Moro's family because of their refusal to negotiate with the terrorist kidnapers of the party's 61-year-old president.

The missing man's family broke with the other leaders of his party in a statement Sunday night that said the party leadership's "immobility and refusal of all initiatives ratify the death sentence" the Red Brigades said a "people's court" ordered for the five-time premier.

Flynt remains partially paralyzed in a Columbus hospital from gunshot wounds suffered in a March 6 ambush at Lawrenceville, Ga. Flynt has credited Ruth Carter Stapleton, the president's evangelist sister, with leading him back to Christianity.

Many of the approximately 1,800 guests, including reporters and publishing executives, failed to see the humor in Powell's lines. It was the first time in the 64-year history of the dinner that a president, first lady or vice president had failed to show up. The dinner recognizes reporters for outstanding journalistic accomplishments.

The statement said if the party leadership "doesn't want to assume the responsibility of declaring itself available to negotiations, it should at least call a meeting of the national council" of the party.

Observers said the family's stand could divide the party and might undermine the alliance of Christian Democrats and Communists which Moro himself worked out to give Andreotti a majority in Parliament. The Communists are strongly opposed to any dealings with the Red Brigades, who are to the left of the Communist Party and attack it for its support of the Christian Democratic government.

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Judi Lois Andersen, the new Miss USA, says she has no steady boyfriend and thinks marriage is at least five years away.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda arrives here tonight on an official visit, hoping to reinforce a sudden turn for the better in Japan's often contentious trade relationship with the United States.

There was no indication Premier Giulio Andreotti and other leaders of the ruling party would be swayed by the statement from the Moro family. The nation's largest newspaper, Corriere della Sera of Milan, commented:

There was no confirmation from Moscow of the Kabul radio report that the Soviet Union, Afghanistan's northern neighbor, had become the first nation to recognize the new government.

The 20-year-old, blue-eyed blonde represented Hawaii in the pageant Saturday night. "It's such a neat feeling," she said Sunday morning. The title brings her $23,500 in cash, a personal appearance contract, a new car and a mink coat.

But officials from both countries say that several problems remain despite a milestone trade agreement last January. Fukuda will spend 48 hours here, meeting with President Carter, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and members of Congress.

On the one hand, there is a man who is desperately trying to save himself. On the other, there are men who must seek the safety of the entire national community."

Immediately after the coup, the new government described itself as "democratic, Islamic, reformist and non-aligned" and said it would "remain faithful" to its "international commitments."

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House press secretary Jody Powell says President Carter wanted to attend the annual White House Correspondents Association dinner because Carter "seldom has an opportunity to dine with an institution held in lower public esteem." However, Powell, during his instability in the value of the dollar is one of Fukuda's concerns, and he also believes the U.S. appetite for imported oil has had a destabilizing impact on the world payments system. Fukuda said last week that he will make a strong appeal for enactment of the Carter administration's energy program. On the U.S. side, there has been disappointment in the size of the tariff reductions Japan has proposed in on-going multilateral trade negotiations.

Drink tax is $8,200 for county

Gray County received about $8,200 in mixed drink tax rebates for the first three months of this year, according to a report from the state comptroller's office.

That figure equals a 15 percent cut of the total first quarter tax receipts of nearly $55,000. Pampa was returned about $583 out of the approximate $3,890 it contributed from mixed-drink collections.

Statewide, the comptroller's report said that first quarter collections totaled a record $15.3 million — a 23 percent increase over the same quarter last year. Texas counties and cities get 15 percent of the mixed drink tax collected within their boundaries and the balance goes into the state General Revenue Fund.

Police are investigating a series of CB antenna thefts which took place during the weekend. Thefts were reported at 2613 Cherokee, 1101 Kiowa, 2424 Navajo, 2609 Cherokee, 2429 Navajo and 2430 Navajo. Recreational equipment valued at approximately $250 was reported stolen Saturday by Ray Duncan, 2110 Charles. The report indicated that Duncan's garage had been burglarized sometime recently. Gene Calder, 112 S. Wynne, reported the theft of a CB radio and also the apparent vandalizing of his vehicles by BB guns sometime during the weekend. An estimated $200 worth of carpentry tools was reported stolen Saturday. Wayne Anderson, 2001 Duncan, said his garage had been burglarized. W.L. Stubblefield, 2101 N. Faulkner, reported that vandals apparently broke out the rear window of his car Saturday night when it was in the parking lot of a local discount shopping store. Several items were reported stolen from a residence in the 700 block of Roberta Saturday night. Non-injury accidents were reported in the 1000 block of Varnon and the 1400 block of Duncan Sunday afternoon. Police answered 52 calls during a 32-hour period which ended at 7 a.m. today.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press — Widely scattered thunderstorms, including some possibly reaching severe proportions, were expected across much of the state today after an evening of tornadoes, high winds and heavy thunderstorms. No one was injured Sunday evening as tornadoes roared across sections of the Texas Panhandle and North Central Texas. Twisters, including some that caused property damage, were reported Sunday evening at Arlington, southwest Dallas, the south portion of Fort Worth, Booker, Perryton and Cleburne. Some of the heaviest damage was at Booker where eight members of a family escaped injury by moving into a cellar only moments before the twister destroyed their home. Dan Atwood said he walked outside his home and saw the twister just in time to return to get his family and his dog into the cellar. The twister lifted the house off its foundation and moved it about 15 to 20 yards, Atwood said. The tornado touched down and roared about 12-15 miles on the ground, tearing up farm equipment, farm building and power lines, according to Lipscomb County Sheriff Basil Duke Jr. The heaviest damage in the Dallas-Fort Worth area was at the Oak Grove Airport in the southern end of Tarrant County where a twister tore the roof from an airplane hangar. Aledo reported golf ball-sized hail at about the same time as the storms were reported in the Dallas-Fort Worth area. Early today, a very heavy thunderstorm was reported over Texarkana and other shower activity was reported in a 100-mile wide area reaching from Bonham, Texas to southeast of Pine Bluff, Ark., according to the National Weather Service. Most of the stormy weather dissipated during the early morning hours. Some fog was reported along the coastal plains of South Texas and low cloudiness was reported over the eastern one-third of the state. Skies were mostly clear over the western two-thirds of the state. Highs were expected to range from the middle 50s in the Panhandle to the middle 90s in South Texas.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 9 and my sister is 15 and we live on a farm with our parents. My sister is going to have a baby and she isn't married.

I never knew you could get this kind of service without a husband.

SURPRISED IN IOWA

DEAR SURPRISED: Well, you can. And that's why it's just as important for girls your age to learn how NOT to multiply as it is to learn how to add.

DEAR ABBY: I once felt that being a good samaritan was a nice way to be. However, after reading that you discourage kindnesses such as helping to carry a stranger's luggage at airports, it opened my eyes. So I have written a few letters to follow:

1. Don't assist anyone having problems with their car. You are competing with tow truck drivers, AAA and mechanics. They could be put out of work.
2. Don't drive the elderly, sick or handicapped to hospitals or senior citizen clubs. You are competing with public transportation and cab companies.
3. Don't do hospital volunteer work. You are competing with paid hospital personnel.
4. Don't offer to care for children of friends, family or neighbors. You are competing with public and private nursery schools.
5. Don't offer advice to anyone, regardless of how desperate they may be. You are competing with Dear Abby!

Sign me...

NO MORE NICE GUY IN L.A.

DEAR NO MORE: Aw, c'mon, you know I don't discourage good samaritans or volunteers from doing their thing. I merely pointed out that people who make a practice of hanging around airports looking for folks to help may run into trouble with the professionals.

DEAR ABBY: You sure missed the boat with your response to the problem of the nery couple who always dropped in at mealtime.

I would have suggested that they meet them at the door with their coats on and say, "Oh, Jim is just taking me out to dinner. If Tom wants to treat you, we'd be glad to have you join us!"

Their decision will tell you a lot about your "friends"! Be tactful but firm, and beat them at their own game.

ANOTHER COUPLE

DEAR COUPLE: A couple who would consistently drop in around dinnertime in hopes of getting a free meal would not be the kind of people I would want to join me—even if they paid their own way.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (24 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M. D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Do Surfak Stool Softeners and all natural raw bran do any damage? Would they give you canker sores? Is it safer to take a laxative once or twice a week? It seems everyone you talk to has trouble. There are times when fruits and vegetables don't do any good and too much roughage is hard on the stomach. If you will answer, we will all thank you.

DEAR READER — Before I started writing this column I knew many people had trouble with their bowels but I had no idea that it was such a common concern.

No stool softeners and bran do not cause canker sores. Nervous tension can contribute to bowel disorders and canker sores though. That may be why you got the idea. I don't think chemical laxatives that induce colonic contractions to empty the colon are ever useful. They can be, and often are, harmful. The first problem most people have is getting over the idea that you have to have a bowel movement every day. The frequency of bowel movements depends a lot on what you eat. If you don't eat foods that contain much bulk you cannot expect to have much indigestible residue and the net result is not enough bulk to stimulate daily satisfactory bowel movements.

The Surfak Stool Softeners do not contain any chemicals to induce colon contractions and are useful only to soften the stool for people who are ill or who need to avoid harder stools for various reasons. I can assure you a recent hemorrhoidectomy patient would be grateful for soft stools.

The secret to good bowel function for most people is a proper diet. I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-1, Irritable or Spastic Colon and Constipation to give you a program you can follow to help maintain good healthy bowel function. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. It will give you needed information on laxatives, enemas and diet.

It helps to develop a regular pattern. You do that by eating a good breakfast that includes bulk and at least two large glasses of fluid. The training process may take some time but you can do it. Bran is sometimes difficult for people to handle. I am not convinced that the bran in breakfast foods is very irritating to the stomach after it is thoroughly soaked in milk before eating. It simply is not right to call that soft material roughage. It is really softage. The cereal fiber soaks up moisture and keeps your food residue moist and soft. It may look and feel rough when it is dry but it is not going into your stomach dry nor will it be dry in passage. It usually takes several weeks for a person to adjust to adding bran to the diet. More gas than usual is noted. Some people have to start with very small amounts and gradually increase it until their system can handle it. A good way to do that is to switch to whole wheat bread first. Then add more bulky salads to your meal. Eliminate the sweets and fats. Then start adding more bran gradually to your diet. Doing it slowly and sticking with the program long enough for satisfactory results are the essential components for success.

Walking and other forms of exercise also help to improve bowel function. A good walk in the evening after your last meal helps the bowels, and tranquilizes the soul to prepare you for a good night's sleep.

France still in love with weddings

By Rosette Hargrove

TIMES AND MORES may have changed, but the white wedding is still the French preference. A gown by the House of Dior is styled with demure simplicity.

PARIS — (NEA) — In France, marriage is a going concern.

The affluent society and modern mores have not made that much of a dent in age-old custom. Some 350,000 marriages were registered in 1977.

Civil ceremonies are obligatory by law and the only ones recognized as legal. The optional but once important religious rite has shown a noticeable decline.

Even liberated girls, however, still want a white wedding — notwithstanding that 34 percent of the couples have already lived together as man and wife.

An expected child prompts many couples to regularize their status.

As a consequence, the most important producer of wedding dresses (Pronuptia, 100,000 sold yearly), includes among its traditional models a range of high-waisted Empire gowns guaranteed to disguise any hint of pregnancy. These also come white as snow.

Despite liberated moral values and efforts to popularize pastel colors, never as in the past two years have prospective brides desired to appear so virginal.

So the 1978 bride is a vision in pristine white from tip to toe, though some may display a touch of Scarlet O'Hara with off-shoulder tops or choose variations on 18th-century décolletés.

Trains are completely out of date. In the absence of heirloom lace veils, the choice is wide and recreations of waist-length medieval headresses replace the oceans of tulle once considered so glamorous.

Romantic wreaths, crowns or flower arrangements are chic but the droopy, wide-brimmed flower-trimmed hat is considered rather provincial.

The recent Marriage Exhibition, the third to be staged, enjoyed a considerable success. The exhibition offered every possible accessory that any about-to-be-married could desire and need.

The engagement ring — 56 percent of fiances believe a diamond is forever — alone represents a market of several million dollars since even a relatively modest one can cost more than $5,000.

A minority, 34 percent of those recorded, are first marriages for both partners. But even if more than half the newlyweds already own a double bed, an automobile, pots and pans, some linen and a range of cook books, there is usually still something they will want to invest in to set up housekeeping together.

The French are essentially practical. Every specialty shop throughout the country keeps a marriage list from which friends, relatives and business associates can select items listed by the prospective bride, thus eliminating the ubiquitous half-dozen butter and bombon dishes, ashtray sets, traveling clocks, trays, bookends and what-all.

A well-known Paris firm with branches all over the country specializing in this type of merchandising estimates their lists account for 75 percent of their annual turnover. Department stores and others also count on the marriage market to

At wit's end

By ERMA BOMBECK

How I envy my best friend. She's married to an impulsive Instamatic-in-the-shirt-pocket photographer who optimistically shoots the Grand Canyon through the car window going 35 mph.

I married a self-destructive Nikkormat with zoom lens who insisted I delay the birth of our first child until he could get a decent light reading.

There is no ledge too precarious, no mountain too inaccessible, no area too obscure. When there is a dog with one ear up, time stands still.

The dog-with-one-ear-up shot is only one of several favorites of my husband. We have two traysful of slides of dogs with one ear up that has been known to sedate hyperactive children in which doctors had given up hope.

Another "trick" shot that is a perennial is the state line shot, in which the subject is shown pointing to the sign that says, "WELCOME TO INDIANA" (ILLINOIS, COLORADO, NEW YORK, FLORIDA, TEXAS, and 44 more).

San Marino, which is one-third the size of the District of Columbia, is one of the world's smallest nations. It lies on the slopes of Mt. Titano in the Apennines near the Adriatic, in north central Italy.

For humor, there is nothing that rivals my husband's restroom shots. These are little "candid" of the family coming out of the restroom, frowning, pulling down apparel, checking zippers — and there is one wonderful one of me with toilet tissue dragging on my shoe that I would kill for the negative.

The shots at the zoo are always fun. Especially if you're a rump man. My husband feels that it's an artistic side of the animal that points out his muscular mobility.

I contend it's an opinion. The zoom lens has done for our marriage what Farrah Fawcett has done of hairnets. I feel that zoom lenses should be roomed only to professionals and never left in the hands of Sunday afternoon photographers. I don't want to labor the point, but I will only state publicly that I have burned the green plaid stacks that from the rear look like a slipcover for a Buick.

Yesterday, I saw a man take an indoor picture with no flash of six people in front of an aquarium... just after he had dropped his camera.

Now there's a man I could spend the rest of my life with.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — My Pointer is for those who have little ones just learning to feed themselves. We have shag carpeting in our dining room. Rather than isolate the little one in the kitchen so as to save the carpet I put an old plastic tablecloth under the high chair. Of course, the high chair gets messy from top to bottom but I just stick it in the shower and let the water run on it for a few minutes. This softens all the goop so it wipes off easily. I dry the chair while it is still in the shower. — R.S.

Astro-Graph

By Bernice Bede Osol

May 2, 1978

You could meet a very unique individual this coming year who doesn't hit it off with everyone, but who may select you as his special friend. Exposure to an exciting new way of life could result.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You would be wise to suspect an ulterior motive if one you know only casually heaps more on a reasonable amount of praise on you today. Find out who you're romantically suited to by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio-City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be as realistic as possible about your goals today. If they are not well defined you'll miss your mark by a mile.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If a coworker asks you for instructions on how to perform a task today, don't pretend you can do it if you really don't know the answer.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Make it a point today to steer clear of the complex financial or business problems of a friend. He could draw you into a never-never land.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today you must guard against a tendency to go to the wrong people for advice. An ineffective counselor could get you so confused you won't know which end is up.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Much valuable time could be wasted today on daydreaming or rationalizing. If you have a job to do, get right to it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) There's a strong possibility your expensive whims could gain the upper hand today. When it comes to pay, you may wish you had exercised greater self-control.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Disappointment is likely today if you expect those who love you to drop everything and cater to your whims. Be realistic regarding your demands.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Flattery is not a good tool to use today in order to achieve your purposes. Insincerity will be readily discerned by others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A friend who never seems to have the cash when the tab comes might use that play to stick you with the bill again today. Let her write a check.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Lack of accomplishment today won't be due to an absence of initiative. You have the drive, but you may not define your objective clearly enough.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're apt to take situations for granted today. Things will not happen as easily as you've led yourself to believe.

Big bucks paid Carter's couples

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The husband and wife teams working for President Carter have a lot in common. They work long hours and schedule their lives tightly. And they make big bucks.

In most cases the couples earn at least $100,000, but they dismiss any suggestion that they're being overpaid.

Take Evan and Kit Dobbelle, for instance — one of at least seven couples appointed to Carter administration jobs.

Last week the president asked Dobbelle to leave his post as chief protocol to become treasurer of the Democratic National Committee — a job that pays $50,000 a year.

At the same time Carter recommended that Dobbelle's wife, Kit, take over her husband's job at the State Department. The protocol job also pays $50,000 a year, and Mrs. Dobbelle got valuable experience as an unpaid assistant to her husband during the past year.

"It may be that $50,000 for a government job seems high, but there are a lot of women my age in the media, especially in television, who are making a lot more," said Mrs. Dobbelle.

33, a Hamden, Conn., native. Mrs. Dobbelle said she last earned a salary in 1972 when she earned about $12,000 as deputy director of a Ford Foundation grant program. Her husband, who was mayor of Pittsfield, Mass., before joining the Carter administration, had a $20,000-a-year salary.

Another White House couple faring well economically is Dr. Peter Bourne and his wife, Mary King.

Bourne draws a $51,000 annual salary as Carter's special assistant for health affairs. His wife earns $50,000 a year as deputy director of ACTION, a cluster of government-sponsored volunteer agencies including the Peace Corps.

Bourne said, however, he and his wife probably would be making more than their combined $101,000 salaries if they had not taken government jobs.

"We were making more prior to coming here," said Bourne, 38, who was president of a scientific consulting firm before joining Carter's presidential campaign. Ms. King, 37, had operated a management consulting firm specializing in health issues and criminal justice.

Anne Wexler, Carter's deputy under secretary of Commerce, moves to a $56,000 White House job Monday to work on Carter's domestic policy staff. Her husband, Joseph D. Duffey, is chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities, for which he receives $52,500.

"The fact that we're married shouldn't take away from the salaries we're making," said Ms. Wexler, 48, of Norwalk, Conn. "It all sounds so glamorous. But after taxes, it's not as much as you think."

At a time when many political marriages are breaking up, the White House couples said their demanding careers stimulate their marriages.

"On one hand, it makes for interesting conversation," said Ms. Wexler, who married Duffey four years ago in Haiti after both went through divorces. "And when both people are busy, it creates a high degree of tolerance for what the other is doing."

Wilhilmine sees 'the real beauty'

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The apartment is small, just a room, but it is meticulously tidy and as cheering as a sunburst.

A garden of foliage brightens the window ledge and the distant view of Tampa Bay. A piano occupies the wall opposite the bed. A stuffed animal decorates the bedspread. On a folding table, a goose-neck lamp hovers intently over a Braille typewriter.

"My music is my love, my Braille is my love," Wilhilmine Andreason said. "And I love my flowers. Aren't the violets lovely?"

Several pictures adorn the piano. Tucked into the lacework gold frame of one of them, the one closest to the front, is a purple flower: a violet.

The picture shows a slim young man wearing a Sam Browne belt and lieutenant's insignia. Next to him, seated, a young woman smiles adoringly. She has dark, wavy hair and dark, liquid eyes. She is wearing a plain black dress and a single strand of pearls.

Spike bucks to be fair game for hunters

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Spike buck deer no longer will be protected in 19 Texas counties, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission said Saturday.

The spike buck regulation, which will be in effect for the 1978-79 hunting season, was ordered by the commission after a public hearing April 25.

Biologists testified that spikes — deer which have antlers protruding through the skin but not having a forked antler — are inferior because of poor nutrition and usually will not develop into trophy deer even with good nutrition. The spike buck, they added, should therefore not receive deferential protection but be treated as any other buck.

The regulation removed protection from spikes from counties that formerly protected them, including Bandera, Brazos, Burleson, Comal, Houston, Jasper, Kendall, Kerr, Madison, Montgomery, Nacogdoches, Newton, Polk, Real, Robertson, San Augustine, Tyler, Washington and Winkler.

Walker County was deleted from the change after a local delegation protested the harvest of spikes.

The commission also: —Increased the length of the antelope season from four to nine days in 33 Panhandle counties to provide additional recreational opportunity but without an increase in kills, since harvest is controlled by issuance of permits.

—Closed the white-tailed deer season in 25 counties which have less than 25 animals.

—Established a mule deer season in the Panhandle and North Permian basin from Saturday before Thanksgiving for 16 days with a bag limit of two mule deer, not more than one buck.

—Established a mule deer season in the Trans-Pecos and Southern Permian Basin counties beginning the last Saturday in November for nine days, with a bag limit of two mule deer, not more than one buck.

"When he came into our lace shop, in Brussels, we had nothing. I was hungry and frightened. The Germans had taken our home and everything in it. That brass coffee pot and the teapot, on the table, they did not find. Those were buried in the yard."

"He took me to dinner. We went to the best place in Brussels, and every time my mother went with us. I was only 18, you see."

"Later, when he asked me to marry him, he brought a bouquet of violets. That night we went alone."

The eyes, 59 years later, are as youthful as the day the picture was made. They vary from rich brown to hazel depending upon the light streaming through the window over the greenery. The hair, silver now, is wavy still.

"He was an engineer. He brought me to his home, in New York, and then we lived in 32 states before we settled down in Philadelphia. Oh, yes, I saw this beautiful country."

"I rode the bus every day in Philadelphia and passed a center for blind people, sort of a clubhouse. I often thought how sad it must be not to be able to see the beauty I saw."

"The beauty of this country is not just its geography. The real beauty is being able to do what you want to do. Here, in America, the horizon of hope is so vast.

"My husband made me realize that. He gave me so much and asked for so little. He was everything to me. I love the memory of him."

"When he became ill and had to go to an institution I took a cottage across the street. For three years I took care of him every day. When he died, six years ago, I thought my life was over."

"It is not. I am not lonely. I am not bored."

"Two years ago I went to the Community Center for the Blind and asked if I could learn Braille. It is difficult to learn. I did my homework every night, and I learned it."

"Now, every day, I get up at 7 and do my household chores. From 10 to 11:30 I play the piano. Music is magic. If I am morose or grumpy, by 11:30 I am singing, playing and singing.

"Then I have my lunch and at 4:30 my shower. After that I get dressed. I dress myself up just as if I were going someplace, and go out and do my errands."

"The rest of the day and into the night I transcribe Braille. I do a lot of reading to decide what to transcribe. The people I transcribe for are mostly elderly. I try to select readings that I think would be inspirational for them."

"Don't you think people like to read something inspirational?"

Hildebrandt, who has hitchhiked across the United States, and in Canada, Europe and South America, said that he used his own travel log as a resource for the course.

FRAGRANCE CONSCIOUS
MARIETTA, Ga. (AP) — Americans are more fragrance-conscious than ever before. Retail sales of women's fragrances rose 54 percent to $1.1 billion in 1976 from $715 million in 1972, Aromatics International reports.

Fragrances for men showed similar increases as retail sales rose 49 percent to $591 million from $397 million for the same four-year period, the company said.

Carter to begin talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says that Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin never expressed any concern about the proposed sale of warplanes to Saudi Arabia and Egypt when he visited here last month.

Carter said he was with Begin for several hours during the two-day visit, and that the prime minister "never mentioned to me one time any concern he might have about the sale of weapons" to the two countries.

A White House spokesman had said previously that the matter did not come up in discussions between the two leaders. Begin is scheduled to arrive here Monday for a new round of talks with Carter.

Carter's comments came in an interview Friday with a group of out of town newspaper editors and broadcasters. The White House made a transcript of the interview available Saturday.

The president maintained that the administration's proposed $4.8 billion sale of jet fighters to Saudi Arabia and Egypt, as well as to Israel, was a well-balanced deal.

Carter was spending the weekend at Camp David, the secluded presidential retreat in the Catoctin Mountains of Western Maryland. Associate White House press secretary Claudia Townsend said the president was enjoying a "restful and relaxing weekend" with no formal business on the agenda.

Meanwhile, Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd said Saturday that prospects for congressional approval of Carter's arms deal have improved because of the administration's change in strategy.

The sale can be stopped only if both the Senate and House vote to reject it by May 28.

Player fails at fourth

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Just as he'd predicted, the string ran out for Gary Player.

"With everybody and his grandmother asking Gary if he thought he could win four in a row, I put tremendous pressure on him. I don't know how he played as well as he did," said Lon Hinkle, who parlayed power and precision into a final round 66 to win the New Orleans Open Golf Tournament Sunday and snap Player's victory string at three.

"You can't go on winning every single week," Player said. "Winning three in a row, in this day and age and against this competition, it's something I'll remember all my life."

"I've won six of my last 10 tournaments (three in South Africa). You can't be too greedy."

The little man whose spectacular comebacks had netted him the titles in the Masters, Tournament of Champions and Houston Opens, could muster only a scrambling round of par 72 Sunday. He failed in his drive to become only the third man in history and the first in 26 years to win four PGA Tour titles in a row. Player finished 67 for a 272 total. Grier Jones was next at 67-274. Then came Player, Bob Murphy, Calvin Peete and rookie D.A. Weibring, tied at 277. Murphy shot a 67 in the hot, humid, hazy weather. Peete had a 68 and Weibring secured his playing rights for another year with a 71.

Homero Blancas, who entered the final round in a tie for the lead with Player, Zoeller, Gilbert and Hinkle, blew to a 78 and a 283 total.

Hinkle collected $40,000 from the total purse of $200,000. It boosted his earnings for the season to $101,208.

Texas wins with Jenkins

By GREG THOMPSON
AP Sports Writer

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — They should have known they couldn't keep Ferguson Jenkins in the bullpen. After 13 years and 215 victories in the major leagues, the Texas Rangers right-hander is right back in the starting rotation — the place he's always wanted to be.

The wily, 34-year-old veteran — pressed into the starting rotation when Texas pitchers were shelled in the first 11 games — shackled the Boston Red Sox on four hits Sunday as the Rangers scored two runs in the ninth inning to edge Boston 2-1.

It was Texas' sixth consecutive victory, a string Jenkins, 2-1, started last Tuesday when he four-hit the Kansas City Royals in his first 1978 start.

"That's two outstanding performances in a row for him and will cement his starting position for a little while," said Texas Manager Bill Hunter.

Jenkins, who posted a 25-12 record for the Rangers in 1974, was acquired by Texas from Boston during the off-season for a reported $125,000 and a minor league pitcher. Hunter said he wanted Jenkins as a long reliever and a spot starter.

But Hunter's original four-man starting rotation fell apart when the Rangers got off to a woeful 2-9 start. Doc Medich was moved to the bullpen and Jim Umberger and Jenkins became starters as Hunter switched to a five-man rotation.

"After 13 years in the big leagues as a starter, you kinda get used to it," said Jenkins. "I'm back where I want to be." Asked if he had expected Jenkins to become a regular starter this early in the season, Hunter said, "No, but then I didn't expect our pitching to be so lousy in the first few games."

Jenkins retired the first 10 Boston batters before walking Rick Burleson in the fourth inning. Burleson then went to third when Jenkins threw the ball away on a pickoff try and scored the unearned run on Jim Rice's sacrifice fly.

"I was sharp the first part of the game. I was hoping for maybe seven or eight good innings," said Jenkins.

Jenkins had six 20-victory seasons for the Chicago Cubs before coming to Texas in 1974. After a 17-18 season in 1975, he was swapped to Boston. The next two seasons were rocky, as Jenkins tore an Achilles tendon, reportedly feuded with Boston Manager Don Zimmer and posted 12-11 and 10-10 records. Pinch-hitter John Lowenstein drilled an RBI single in the ninth inning off Boston reliever Bill Campbell, 1-3, to cap the Rangers' two-run rally.

Boston starter Bill Lee had cut down the Rangers' hit power by six hits through eight innings. After Bert Campaneris singled and Al Oliver sacrificed in the ninth, Zimmer removed Lee.

Zisk then looped a double to tie the score. "I had Bill Campbell ready and Lee had a blister (on his pitching hand)," Zimmer said. "Lee pitched his rear end off."

"It was the fifth loss in six games for Boston."

Houston loses at home

HOUSTON (AP) — Montreal manager Dick Williams has already begun construction on his second "impossible dream."

Williams, who managed the Boston Red Sox when they won the American League pennant in 1967, says the Expos pitching staff may hold the key.

"We've got better pitching on this staff than I had at Boston the year we went to the World Series," said Williams following the Expos' 2-1 victory over the Houston Astros Sunday.

"We've got four good starters in this club. Rudy May, Ross Grimsley, Wayne Twitchell and Steve Rogers are all starters of major league quality." May and Stan Bahnsen combined on a five-hitter to keep Montreal tied for first with Philadelphia in the National League East.

"In Boston, we had two good starters, Jim Lonborg and Jose Santiago," Williams said. "But we have a much better situation here."

The Expos, who finished in fifth place last year, finished the most successful month of April in the club's 10-year history with an 11-8 record.

Andre Dawson put the Expos in front 1-0, with his third home run of the year, a fourth inning blast off losing pitcher Mark Lemongello, 2-3.

Montreal added its other run in the seventh on a one-out single by Ellis Valentine, a wild pitch by Lemongello and a two-out single by Chris Speier.

Cesar Cedeno accounted for the Astro's only run with a lead-off home run in the bottom of the ninth off May 2-1.

Bob Watson followed with a walk and pinch runner Dave Bergman was sacrificed into scoring position by Jesus Alou, but Bahnsen came in to secure the game's final two outs and post his fourth save of the season.

"I want to see this ball club win," said May, obtained in an off-season trade with the Baltimore Orioles.

"The mound here is very high so I had to work very hard on keeping the ball low. I had to pitch physically and mentally today and tried to keep away from any mental errors."

Watson, who grounded into two double plays in three at-bats, said May challenged the Astros.

"He threw the ball right up there and dared us to hit it." Watson said. We did, but we kept hitting it right at people."

Runners are mixed-bag

By NEIL AMDUR
(c) 1978 N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — The woman said she was trying to match the new blue running suit to the color of her eyes. She wanted her friends to see her in the outfit. It would be just perfect for the big race.

"How long have you been running?" asked Fred Lebow, president of the New York Road Runners Club.

"Oh, I haven't been running," the woman said. "I'm starting tomorrow."

The loneliness of the long-distance runner is no more. "The Complete Book of Running," by James F. Fixx, currently tops the nonfiction best-seller list. Running shoes have replaced tennis sneakers as the hot sports-fashion item this spring. Corporations are falling over themselves, and in some cases spiking one another to grab a share of the running market.

As sidewalks, streets and parks overflow with the traffic of three-minute joggers and three-hour marathons, the running fraternity has grown concerned that too much is happening too soon.

At a recent 10-kilometer race in New York's Central Park, some competitors wore so unfamiliar with the ways of racing that they pinned numbers on the backs of their jerseys instead of on the front. Others thought 10,000 meters was closer to three miles than 6.2 miles.

"In some respects, it was almost like a runners' fashion show," Lebow recalled. "Some of the women entered for social reasons, not athletic, because they thought it was a great place to meet clean, handsome single men."

Of the 4,912 starters in the race that day, about 700 did not finish, an unusually high dropout rate for the distance.

Kersti Colombant of Washington, who has been running for two and a half years, has no problems finishing her workouts as long as oncoming cars and aggressive men let her alone. Two months ago she was hit by a car while running on a snow-covered road. The driver immediately blamed her, she said, for colliding with his vehicle. "He never even bothered to contact me afterward to find out how I was," said Mrs. Colombant, who has suffered headaches and leg and muscle problems since the mishap and has hired a lawyer.

"The accident was, 'You ran into my car, you ran into my car.'" The urbanization of running, with its potential hazards and resulting problems with liability insurance, has become a controversial issue between municipalities and running clubs in the San Francisco Bay area, and a source of concern among officials of the Road Runners Club of America.

"We've reached the point now where we have to try to de-emphasize running," Lebow said the other day during an interview. "We're not equipped to handle 5,000 people in a race every week."

Last week's 10,000-meter race in Central Park was the first Road Runners event since the first Road Runners club was founded in 1958 that was not preceded by publicity releases or entry fliers. There will be no prerelease advertisements for the New York City Marathon this year, in an attempt to limit the size of the field.

Yet the fresh supply of new runners has led to a demand for more races at all distances. In 1972 the New York Road Runners staged about 20 major races a year, ranging from several miles to the marathon. This year the club will hold 60 events, which may include a 100-mile race sometime in June.

Another group of runners in the metropolitan area has drawn up a prospectus to raise funds for an "Around the World in 80 Days" run this year.

In some cases, the run-for-fun concept gives way to a dash for cash. Last year several unsanctioned races were held on Long Island and in New Jersey for profit. With some corporations now willing to bankroll almost anything associated with running as long as their names are identified prominently with the race, promoters can cover their expenses with a modest entry fee and pocket the rest.

"We held serious discussions about the role of promoters in running at our annual meeting earlier this year," said Jeff Darman, president of the Road Runners Club of America. "It's a very delicate area. I have some real concerns about it, and we want to make sure everybody is aware of what's happening. It's an area we're definitely going to explore more carefully in the future."

And Will Cloney, the race director of the Boston Marathon for the last 30 years, said: "Corporations are not trying to identify with running because they like running. They're trying to identify with running because running will give them publicity. That's the name of the business game. I'm not criticizing them. I'm just saying that's the way it is."

Cloney said the Boston Athletic Association received "eight solid offers to commercialize the Boston Marathon this year."

"If we had accepted the offers, we could have got enough money to pay the expenses of the top 20 runners to the race," he added. "I don't blame the runners who train hard and expect someone to pay expenses. But the B.A.A. has never paid the expenses of the runners, and I don't think we ever will."

The Boston Athletic Association charges a $3 entry fee for its marathon and should break even on this year's race, according to Cloney. But in addition the Prudential Insurance Company is spending about $40,000, including the cost of overhauling a section of its garage under the Prudential Center to make it a post-race rehabilitation center for runners. Honeywell computers will provide race information and results. The Boston Globe prints and the race programs.

Recent corporate moves include outright sponsorship of races or, as in the case of Pepsi-Cola and the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company, national running programs.

At the Cherry Blossom Classic earlier this month in Washington, race officials accepted 2,600 entries for a 10-mile event and 1,400 more for a two-mile the same day, and they turned away 2,000 other runners.

"We're going to have to learn how to cope with numbers," said Darman, the national Road Runners president. "I'm not sure that ability will come fast enough to cope with the current need."

"Running an event," said Lebow, is not just firing a gun and having a finish banner. You've got to have proper arrangements, sufficient medical personnel and safety patrols. It's also important to time every runner in the race. All this costs money. When you run an event for profit, you eliminate these concerns."

Aggies in NCAA

By The Associated Press
Texas A&M, Arkansas, Baylor and Houston will be vying for top honors when the Southwest Conference postseason tournament opens May 12. For the Aggies, however, a tournament crown would be icing on the cake because they are assured of a berth in the NCAA baseball playoffs.

Texas, a participant in the SWC tournament for the past 12 years, lost a bid for another try, finishing fifth in the loop for the season.

Texas A&M captured the regular season crown Saturday. The Razorbacks took the last game of a three-game Friday-Saturday series, 6-5, but the damage was already done. The Aggies won the first two outings, 6-1 Friday and 5-0 Saturday.

Striding out

Pampa ninth grader Jo Lynn Ellis ran to a fourth place finish in the mile with a time of 6:46.4. In the meet held in Pampa, Saturday, the eighth and ninth grade girls finished in eighth place. Ninth grade boys placed second overall, while the eighth grade boys won first place.

Derby trainers differ

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — "I know my horse and I have to train him that way," says Laz Barerra, who conditions Harbor View Farm's Affirmed.

It's obvious that John Veitch, who trains Calumet Farm's Alydar, knows his horse, too.

So, although they share the favorite's role for the Kentucky Derby and are proven winners in high-level stakes competition, the two 3-year-olds must have vastly different temperaments because the two trainers are following distinctly different courses in preparing their colts for Saturday's Kentucky Derby.

Affirmed worked out during the weekend for the first time since winning the Hollywood Derby April 16, going 1 1/4 miles at Churchill Downs in 1:56.5 and galloping out 1 1/4 miles in 2:09.

Memorial, appearing to be the most serious challengers to Affirmed and Alydar.

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — The World Wildlife Fund says it will present anti-whaling petitions signed by more than 700,000 Swiss to the ambassadors of the Soviet Union and Japan this week in Bern.

The petition urges the two countries, which have the biggest whaling fleets, to stop whaling for 10 years. The wildlife fund says the moratorium would raise the whale population to "safe" levels.

TORONTO (AP) — Four Toronto Zoo fruit bats are recovering from an undetermined illness that killed seven of the zoo's colony of 19.

The bat, the world's largest, has a wing span of three feet. A zoo veterinarian said the four became ill in December and were put on a special diet. After a slow recovery, one of the animals is flying again and the others are gaining strength, he said.

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Director Richard Sarafian and an all-star cast are in Kenya filming "Ashanti," a $7.5 million movie on the present-day slave trade in Africa and the Middle East.

The cast includes Michael Caine, Peter Ustinov, Rex Harrison, Telly Savalas, Omar Sharif and Beverly Told. The company is scheduled to go to Israel in June for two months of filming there.

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Thailand and Malaysia will step up naval patrols along the west coast of the Malay Peninsula to combat piracy threatening the livelihood of thousands of fishermen, Thai Defense Minister Lek Naomali announced during a visit.

He said a Thai naval base is nearing completion just north of the border between the two countries, and this would also help reduce smuggling. Malaysian Home Minister Ghazali Shafie said his government is spending $28 million on five patrol boats for the marine police, and five more are to be ordered.

TOKYO (AP) — China wants more visits from foreign scientists, Vice Premier Fang Yi told Chinese-American physicist Lee C. Teng of the U.S. National Accelerator Laboratory.

"We welcome foreign scholars to visit China, to give lectures and to give lectures on an exchange experience," Fang said at a banquet he gave Sunday in Peking for the visitor.

Hsinhua, the official news agency, reported that Teng told Fang he found great changes since he visited China last year, and "I am particularly happy to see China's progress in high-energy physics."

Ornithologist does mating dance with bird

BARABOO, Wis. (AP) — Tex has laid an egg. And that, in a way, is a tribute to the fancy dancing of Dr. George Archibald, an ornithologist.

Tex is an 11-year-old whooping crane who was raised in the living room of Fred Stark of the San Antonio, Texas, Zoo. She did not meet another crane until after her second birthday. By then she was fonder of humans than birds.

Enter Archibald. The dancing he, does is a mating dance, weird and awkward steps which he says help bring out the maternal urges of the whooping crane, an endangered species.

The International Crane Foundation here, which cares for and studies dozens of rare birds in an effort to prevent their extinction, received recent notoriety for Archibald's mating dance with Tex.

Tex was impregnated by artificial insemination. Sperm was obtained from Tony and Angus, two male whooping cranes on loan from the Audubon Zoo in New Orleans.

"Archibald was with the crane during her egg laying ordeal," foundation spokesman Norris Klesman said.

Tex has laid eggs before, but all were infertile. Archibald said he believes the latest egg is fertile, but he won't be sure until he performs tests in a couple of weeks.

If the results are positive, the chick will hatch around Memorial Day weekend, he said. Archibald said there are only an estimated 105 whooping cranes in the world.

ATLANTA (AP) — Gov. George Busbee has written a letter to Attorney General Griffin Bell requesting a federal investigation of crime in the nation's coalfields, spokesman Duane Riner says.

Riner said Busbee has been briefed on state investigations in Alabama, Kentucky, Pennsylvania and California. Sunday's Atlanta Journal-Constitution said Busbee's letter contained a list of "securities fraud, murder, extortion, tax evasion, mail fraud, domestic and foreign bribery, kickbacks and political corruption, bankruptcy fraud, organized labor problems, looting and insurance fraud."

CRANSTON, R.I. (AP) — Rhode Island has hired a private firm to clean up knee-deep garbage and human waste at the Adult Correctional Institutions today. The filth accumulated when inmates demonstrated for longer visiting and exercise periods by throwing food and stopping up their toilets.

Guards at the state prison protested the conditions by staying away from work Saturday. They returned Sunday when told the New England Maintenance Co. had been contracted for the cleanup, maximum security captain Stafford Quick said.

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — The Dr. X murder trial begins its 10th week today with about two-thirds of the prosecution witnesses still to be called and the defense case still not begun. Dr. Mario Jascalevich is accused of killing five hospital patients in 1965 and 1966. When the trial began in February, acting Superior Court Judge William Arnold told the jury to expect to listen to testimony for eight to 10 weeks.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Seven firemen suffered broken bones and bruises when part of a burning roof collapsed on them at a shopping center in north-central San Diego, fire officials said.

"It happened all of a sudden and you could hear the firemen screaming," said witness Pam Fowler, 18. "All the other firemen rushed up and lifted it off within two or three minutes." The fire broke out Sunday night in a shoe store and was put out in an hour. The shopping center was closed at the time.

Voters hear final pleas

By The Associated Press
Airport rallies, helicopter tours, a lakeside picnic, a tennis match between a candidate and former President Gerald Ford and a virtual deluge of television commercials are on tap in Texas this week as the campaign for the primary elections draws to a close.

The politicians must put it all together this week prior to Saturday's elections. The fury of last-week campaigning was put into perspective by one campaign strategist.

"They'll all be campaigning clear down to the last dollar," he said.

Much of the attention is expected to center where it has throughout the campaign on the race between Gov. Dolph Briscoe and Attorney General John Hill for the Democratic Party's gubernatorial nomination.

GOP attorney general candidate Jim Baker plans a tennis match with former President Ford to attract attention to his campaign.

Gov. Briscoe, who normally dines on white linen with candlelight, is inviting supporters to a lakeside noon picnic in Austin.

Hill will be carrying around a special rubber stamp with the word "VETO" in 4-inch letters to emphasize that he would not approve an income tax.

In the battle for the Democratic Party's U.S. Senate nomination, U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger expects to be called back to Washington for two of the final crucial days to vote on a budget bill and an emergency farm bill.

But most of the candidates plan to cross as much of the state as they can during the final few days.

Here generally, subject to frequent change, are the plans of top statewide candidates for the final week:

Hill planned to be in Dallas and East Texas today and plans to be in Houston, San Antonio and the Valley Tuesday; in West Texas, Waco and back to Dallas Wednesday; hit the Panhandle, South Plains, El Paso and Midland-Odessa Thursday, and on Friday give a final fling at Dallas, Houston and San Antonio. The Hills will vote in Austin and there will be an election watch party at the Driskill Hotel.

Briscoe had a 14-hour schedule set today in Dallas. Tuesday it will be Austin, Houston and Baytown. Wednesday he will be in Houston and the Valley. Thursday, he is back to Dallas, and back to Houston. Thursday it's Houston, Galveston, Texas City and the area before returning to Austin.

There will be an auto tour of South Central Texas Friday, ending with a rally in San Antonio and a final hometown rally in Uvalde. The Briscoe vote Saturday in Uvalde and will watch returns at the Uvalde headquarters.

Bill Clements, GOP candidate for governor, was to be in Austin, San Antonio, Fort Worth and Amarillo today; in Houston and Dallas on Tuesday; in Houston, San Antonio and Austin on Wednesday; back to Austin, Dallas and Houston on Thursday; in Midland, Amarillo, Lubbock, Fort Worth and Dallas on Friday. The Clements will vote in Dallas and watch returns at the Baker Hotel.

Ray Hutchison, Sunday began his final trek across the state from Austin. The Hutchisons will vote in Dallas and will meet supporters election night at the Hilton Inn.

Krueger planned an East Texas swing today, ending up in Waco and Dallas. Tuesday he will be in Houston, Austin and Dallas. Wednesday and Thursday he expects to be in Washington for his congressional duties. Saturday he will work the polling places in San Antonio, an election day tradition in that city. He will spend part of the night in his hometown of New Braunfels, later going on to the Driskill Hotel in Austin.

Krueger's opponent, Joe Christie, was to be in Austin,

Waco, Fort Worth, Houston and the Golden Triangle today. Tuesday he goes on to Houston, Corpus Christi, San Antonio and the Valley. Wednesday he will be in Corpus Christi, Austin, Waco and Dallas. Thursday he's back to the Golden Triangle, Houston, San Antonio and Austin. Friday he finishes his campaign with a trip to San Antonio, Houston, Dallas and Fort Worth. The Christies vote Saturday in El Paso. Then they will spend most of the day in Austin, before going on to Houston to watch election returns.

Baker, who has no opposition in the Republican primary, is to meet the former president in "A Star-Spangled Night of Tennis" on Tuesday in Houston. Ford and Baker will be joined in a doubles match with tennis professionals John Newcombe and Dick Stockton.

Mark White, a Democratic candidate for attorney general, will vote in Houston Saturday after his final campaigning and return to Austin to wait for returns.

Bosworth plans inflation battle

ATLANTA (AP) — President Carter's top inflation fighter said today the administration will talk soon with professional groups about holding down fees in line with President Carter's anti-inflation offensive.

"We do not intend to limit our efforts to the industrial wage and price arena," Barry P. Bosworth, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, said in a speech prepared for the annual meeting here of The Associated Press.

"In the very near future we will begin meetings with leading representatives of professional groups — such as physicians, dentists and lawyers — to determine what specific steps they can take to ensure that fee deceleration meets our target."

"And we will be asking that increases in executive compensation be held to 5 percent," he said.

Bosworth said meetings already have been held with industrial and union leaders.

Earlier this month Carter asked business and labor to cooperate in a new effort to slow down inflation. He said he expects industry and labor to keep price, wage and salary increases significantly below the average rate for the last two years.

Bosworth said the underlying inflation rate has been "stuck on a plateau of between 6 and 7 percent."

Bosworth said the 0.8 percent rise in consumer prices for March, which translates into an annual inflation rate of more than 9 percent, reflected higher energy costs resulting from the United Mine Workers settlement, higher meat prices and increases in the minimum wage.

"It seems pretty clear now that unless we can get some improvement we will begin to see an acceleration in the underlying rate of inflation," he said.

Bosworth repeated the administration's opposition to wage and price controls, saying they would not be a permanent solution.

He said an effort must be made to hold down non-union wage increases. But he said the administration also needs "time to work on the large union settlements."

May Day honors workers

By F.N. D'ALESSIO
Associated Press Writer

FOREST PARK, Ill. (AP) — Thousands of people massed in Moscow's Red Square and public celebrations were proclaimed around the world today to mark May Day — the workers' holiday. But the roots of the first International Labor Day lie in a cemetery in an old German neighborhood outside Chicago.

Waldheim Cemetery, nestled near the Des Plaines River in this unassuming, middle-class suburb, is the burial place of five men condemned to death after the Haymarket Square riot and bombing, which occurred 92 years ago this Thursday.

In memory of the labor uprising, about 150 people gathered Saturday about nine miles to the east at Haymarket Square, now divided by a giant, expressway.

At the rally, sponsored by a coalition of labor organizations, speakers called for full employment, an end to unjust taxation and a six-hour work day.

The Haymarket Square bombing, which killed seven policemen and injured scores of officers and protesters, occurred during a demonstration against the killing of strikers by police outside the McCormick Harvester plant.

Those strikers had been supporting the then-radical idea of an eight-hour work day.

Although responsibility for the bombing never was determined, five of those arrested were sentenced to be hanged. Their plight stirred worldwide protests by labor unions, political radicals and civil libertarians.

When, on May 1, 1887, various radicals, liberals and trade unionists gathered in the major cities of the world, demanding that the Haymarket five be freed, it marked the first May Day.

Despite the outcries, four of the men — Albert Parsons, August Spies, Adolf Fischer and George Engel — were hanged in Chicago on Nov. 11 of that same year. The fifth, Louis Ling, had earlier committed suicide by detonating a stick of dynamite in his mouth.

Their monument at Waldheim carries Spies' prediction from the gallows: "The day will come when our silence will be more powerful than the voices you are throttling today."

May Day demonstrations continued to grow, but in time they lost all but the most tenuous connection with events in the United States, where the bulk of the labor movement turned from socialism.
