

Rebels 'hunt for white man' in Zaire

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Rebels went on a rampage of murder and rape during their "hunt for the white man" in the Kolwezi fighting, survivors said on arrival from Zaire's copper-mining capital where 170 whites were reported killed. Some accused Zairean troops of looting.

About 1,700 of the 2,500 Europeans and Americans trapped during the May 13-20 siege had been flown to Europe by this morning as French and Belgian paratroopers mopped up rebel resistance in Shaba Province.

The French Defense Ministry in Paris said rebel forces armed with Soviet-made weapons remained concentrated in a six-mile radius around Kolwezi and were still within small-arms range of its airport.

Olivier Stirn, France's Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, told a radio interviewer in Paris that at least 170 whites had been killed in the Kolwezi area. Scores of others, including 50 French citizens, are missing and may be held hostage by the rebels, Stirn said.

Following reports of Belgian-French differences over the combined paratroop operation, the office of French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing said Belgian Prime Minister Leo Tindemans telephoned the president today to express thanks "for French efforts to ensure the security of Belgian citizens in Kolwezi."

A Belgian refugee arriving in Brussels who identified himself only as Dupont, an engineer for Zaire's state-owned Gecamines company, said 120 white deaths were confirmed. He said the last whites, mostly doctors and Gecamines managers, were evacuated from Kolwezi Sunday night.

Claude Mercury, a French survivor arriving here, said he feared 170-180 whites had died. Sotiris Casar, a Briton married to an Italian, said on reaching Rome that he believed 200 whites were killed.

Previous reports from the paratroops who chased the rebels from Kolwezi over the weekend said the rebels killed at least 100 whites, 150 Zaireans and suffered 200 dead of their own.

"It was if the hunting season had been opened in Kolwezi. The hunt was a hunt for the white man," a mining engineer among the survivors who arrived in Brussels said Sunday.

He said four of his neighbors went to their garden gates to find out what was going on in the pre-dawn hours of May 13 and were killed by bursts of rebel machine-gun fire.

Absentees start Wed. for judge

Absentee balloting for the June 3 Democratic run-off for county judge between Don Hinton, incumbent, and Robert McPherson, Pampa attorney, will start Wednesday in the county clerk's office on the third floor of the Gray County courthouse.

The office will be open from 8:30 a.m. to noon and 1 to 5 p.m. through May 30, with the exception of May 29 when the Gray County courthouse will be closed for Memorial Day.

Those who will be out of town during the election may obtain a ballot from the county clerk's office. Places on the ballot were to be drawn tonight.

Another survivor said the rebels "kept on firing useless volleys in all direction with no reason," and that ragged armed boys were "looting and shooting those refusing to hand over their watches or money while rebels looked on or took part."

One woman said she fled to a private club in Kolwezi "where I knew there were some food preserves. The Zaire army city headquarters was nearby."

Some Zaire army soldiers came and said they would protect us. They emptied all the ladies' handbags and pocketed their contents. One lady had a box with money. They took the box away from her."

Jean-Marie Lallemand, a 31-year-old French survivor, said the rebels scarred Frenchmen "on the forehead and cheeks with knives to discourage Zaireans from harboring them."

"I saw three Katangans rape a 10-year-old girl in the presence of her parents and three brothers. People were beaten before they were killed. It was horrible."

Katanga was the name of Shaba Province when Zaire was the Belgian Congo. The rebels, Lunda tribesmen, were driven into Angola in the 1960s after Zaire won independence, and are bent on making Shaba independent of the Zaire government.

Richard Schambourg, a French foreman, said the Zairean soldiers were panic-stricken when the fighting began.

"They were shooting in every direction," he said.

"My supervisor's house was razed by artillery fire because there were two Katangans in the yard. We discovered a slaughter-house in the Zaire army headquarters. Thirty people who had been taken in for safety had been massacred. We are not about to forget these visions of horror."

A nun identified as Sister Helena said, "We were subjected to the worst kind of violence." A 20-year-old Belgian woman said she was raped eight times by rebel soldiers.

Morrison-Knudsen, a Boise, Idaho construction firm building a power line in Zaire, evacuated more than 70 Americans Wednesday. Fourteen others were reported missing at the time, but only one of them — Lonnie Glen, 32, of Yerington, Nev. — was officially unaccounted for.

However, Harold Amstutz, 49, of Portsmouth, Va., a pilot for a Methodist mission in Zaire who was evacuated to Brussels, said Glen, a Morrison-Knudsen security officer, was killed by the rebels.

Tax ratio increase on city agenda Tuesday

Proposed hikes in both the city's property tax ratio and utility rates are two items on a lengthy agenda facing city commissioners at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday in City Hall.

Tax wise, the commission is looking at a 20 percent increase in the city tax ratio. Currently the ratio is 40 percent of assessed value. The commission will consider raising that amount to 60 percent.

City Manager Mack Wofford said he personally is recommending the 60 percent rate "in order to meet future budget needs for Pampa."

Wofford said that in all likelihood, the base assessment rate, which is now $1.18 for current operations (costs for running the city), would be reduced. "This means we would lower the base rate to offset any immediate higher taxes caused by an increased tax ratio," he explained.

Wofford added that "a higher tax ratio does not necessarily mean higher taxes. However, the possibility certainly exists for the city to raise property taxes in the future by increasing the base assessment rate."

The City Charter limits the current operations base rate to $1.50 per $100 of assessed value. Wofford said the 32-cent difference between the city's current rate and the $1.50 charter limit "is not enough to offset future fiscal demands made by inflation and expanding operating costs."

And the commission will consider extending the time period for public hearings regarding Southwestern Public Service Company's (SPSC) proposed rate hike. SPSC is requesting an approximate 10 percent increase.

The city would like the additional time to study further the proposed new rates. The city has joined a Texas Municipal League (TML) motion to have input into rate hearings conducted by the newly-created Texas Utilities Commission.

An ad hoc citizens group is sponsoring a rate study in Canyon today to help determine the necessity of the proposed new rates. Wofford is attending that meeting and will have a report at Tuesday's commission meeting.

Also, the commission will hear a request from the Metropolitan General Inc. Ambulance Company for higher per run fees. Metro is seeking a 50 percent increase from $40 to $60 per base run. If approved, this would be the second increase granted to Metro in as many years.

The commission will appoint three new members to the city Tax Equalization Board for fiscal year 1978-79, Tuesday, and will consider joining the Texas Panhandle Employment and Training Alliance (CETA).

CETA is a federally-funded program to aid communities in providing jobs for youth and providing additional training for the unskilled.

Rounding out Tuesday's agenda is consideration of an independent application to provide airport limousine service between Pampa and Amarillo, a new air compressor for the city fire department, proposed annexations and an agreement with the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission concerning the acquisition of surplus property such as heavy equipment.

Dwyer leaves for McLean

Carl A. Dwyer, Pampa Junior High principal, has accepted a position as superintendent of the McLean Independent School District, and will "return home" July 1.

The 51-year-old McLean native, who graduated from McLean High School in 1944, said today that supervising the school of about 300 children will give him "more opportunity." The resident of 401 Doucette in Pampa said he will move back to McLean during June. Dwyer was one of five applicants who interviewed for the job Monday with the McLean board of trustees. Applicants came from as far away as Priddy.

Dwyer, the son of Mrs. John Dwyer, received his bachelor of science degree from Texas Tech University in 1962. He received his master of science degree from Oklahoma State University, and later earned his administrator's certificate from West Texas State University.

He taught science at McLean

High School for seven years and then served as both elementary and high school principal until 1971. After teaching science at Pampa High School for a year, Dwyer was promoted to assistant principal, where he served from 1972 to 1976. He then became the principal at Pampa Junior High.

Dwyer will replace Homer Jefferson, who will finish duties at McLean June 6. Jefferson resigned to accept a job at Hutto.

Coal conversion on schedule

The conversion project at Celanese Chemical Corp. west of Pampa, which will make possible a switch from natural gas to coal as boiler fuel, is on schedule. Bad winter weather had delayed progress but the Brown and Root Construction Co. crew — now numbering 361 — has made up for the lost time. The outside shell of the 290-foot smoke stack has been completed and work on the two brick chimneys inside the shell will begin next week. The multi-million dollar project is scheduled for completion in mid-1979.

After the world's worst spill

'We've cleaned beaches 6 times'

BREST, France (AP) — Two months after the world's worst oil spill, 6,000 French soldiers are still cleaning thick black tar foot by foot from the beaches, rocks and bays of northern Brittany.

"A month ago, two weeks ago, I was optimistic. Now I'm frankly pessimistic," said Lt. Col. Jean Croguennec, senior Civil Defense officer at pollution clean-up headquarters.

"We clean a beach and 24 hours later, it's covered again with tar balls the sea has washed up. We've cleaned some beaches six times now," he said.

More than 219,000 tons of crude oil — the equivalent of about 65 million gallons — were spilled into the sea when the American-owned but Liberian-registered supertanker Amoco Cadiz was wrecked March 17 on the Porsall rocks north of Brest and less than two miles offshore.

Today fish from the oil-soaked inshore waters remain tainted. France's richest oyster beds will not be productive for months to come and the fast-approaching season in France's second largest tourist region has been severely threatened.

"All the big mechanical work is over, pumping oil from the waterline and scraping beaches with bulldozers," Croguennec said. "Now it's a job of picking up tar balls one by one, shoveling oil-soaked sand from between the rocks, washing down the rocks. It's a Herculean task and it seems endless."

Thousands of volunteers came to Brittany shortly after the spill to help clean up the area but created such difficulties of organization and lodging they were gently encouraged to leave.

In the past two months, the clean-up has produced 32,000 tons of waste liquids, most being treated at recovery stations, some 60,000 tons of bulk solid waste, and a further 242,000 small plastic sacks of solids that will be treated and used as road-fill.

The soldiers work two-week spells on the clean-up, rotating from bases all over France. "We always send them to a different beach when they come back, it's better for morale," Croguennec said.

A squad of 26 men from a mechanized infantry division was at work on the 100-yard beach at Pors-Mer near Plouescat, filling plastic sacks with tar, sand and seaweed.

"We shifted 30 tons one day," said the squad's lieutenant, "but twice a day, with each tide, the stuff comes in again."

The latest technique is to hose down the rocks with near-boiling fresh water from high pressure pumps. After much scientific debate, dispersants are finally being used to clean tourist spots in carefully selected coastal spots. "It's a trade-off we have to make against possible environmental damage," Croguennec said.

There is general agreement that on the exposed coastline, the storms of next winter will finish the clean-up job. But in the calm "abers," fjord-like inlets that are rich oyster grounds, traces of oil may linger for years.

The cost of the clean-up and damage payments is not yet known, "but it will obviously be far greater than the $30 million of pollution insurance," Croguennec said. The new pumps alone cost 70,000 francs, the equivalent of $14,500 each and 120 have been ordered.

Under international agreements, $30 million is the maximum the French government can claim. But officials have said they expected "talks" over extra compensation, and one private group in Brittany is suing Amoco in the Chicago courts.

The French government is making "advance payments" to unemployed fishermen and oyster harvesters in the region. Oysterman Alain Madec said there was general agreement not to market any oysters "until we are certain not even one is tainted."

Berkowitz dragged kicking from court

NEW YORK (AP) — David Berkowitz, the Son of Sam killer, was dragged from a Brooklyn courtroom today, kicking, biting and yelling obscenities. A judge postponed the sentencing for six murders until June 12 and ordered another psychiatric examination.

After he was brought briefly into the courtroom in handcuffs, Berkowitz began chanting, "Stacy was a whore!" over and over again. Stacy Moscovitz was the last of Berkowitz's murder victims.

Ten guards wrestled him from the court chamber. Robert Violante, the slain girl's date who also was shot by Berkowitz, stood up in the courtroom and shouted obscenities as the .44-caliber killer was led away. Members of the Moscovitz family jumped to their feet and shouted curses at him.

As guards tried to bring him into the courtroom the first time about 10 a.m., Berkowitz lunged toward a barred window and had to be subdued. In the struggle, he bit and kicked several of the guards and one of them was taken to a hospital, according to a police source.

The extent of the guard's injuries was not known. District attorneys from the three boroughs where the killings took place left the courtroom shortly after the proceedings were to have begun at 10 a.m.

All Pampans are invited to participate.

Bi-lingual teaching spreads in Texas

By SUSAN LINNIE
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — Until the early 1970s, it was illegal to teach school in Texas in a language other than English. In Houston alone during this school year some 8,000 students learned their basics in Spanish while another 8,000 could have used the instruction but did not receive it.

Another estimated 5,000 students — illegal alien children — went without any education at all.

Bi-lingual instruction — the process of using another language in addition to English to teach in U.S. schools — is now an established practice but one that has created confusion and controversy after a relatively low-keyed beginning in 1969.

"We have learned a tremendous amount since bi-lingual programs began," said Dr. Victoria Bergin, director of instruction and former head of bi-lingual programs for the Houston Independent School District. "Kids used to be tested, and when they didn't measure up it was assumed they were retarded or had a learning deficiency when the problem was they simply did not understand English."

Dr. Bergin said the district is working now to synthesize testing to identify more accurately students who should be in bi-lingual programs.

Since 1973 the Texas Education Code has required that school districts in which there are more than 20 students who speak the same language and are at the same-grade level provide them with bi-lingual instruction to help them move into regular school programs. Nearly all students in bi-lingual programs in Texas are Spanish-speaking.

The Texas Education Agency pays $25 per year for materials for every student enrolled in bi-lingual classes. A variety of federal programs provide funds for demonstration projects, evaluation programs and teacher training. Texas ranked third in 1977 behind California and New York in federal money received for bi-lingual education.

In September 1977 22.8 percent of total enrollment or 47,128 students in the HISD identified themselves as Hispanic, making them the numerically largest group in the state. The district estimates the number of Hispanic students grows five percent each year.

Through testing the district has identified 17,598 students as those with limited English-speaking ability (LESA), automatically qualifying them for bi-lingual instruction. Less than half were actually enrolled in bi-lingual programs this year.

"The main problems are shortage of certified bi-lingual teachers, dispersal of students throughout the district and lack of standardized guidelines to determine who should be in the programs," said Oralia Rios, assistant director of bi-lingual programs.

There are 35 bi-lingual education programs in Texas colleges and universities, but most have been in operation only a few years.

"You have to remember that traditionally Mexican-American students in Texas have not gone on to university and many dropped out of high school," said Elpidio Lizcano, who is heading the district's search for more teachers.

There are now 237 certified bi-lingual teachers in the district, 139 of whom are Mexican-American. That is at least 14 short of what is needed, Lizcano said.

Texas law requires a complete bi-lingual program from kindergarten through third grade with basics taught in Spanish and English taught as a second language. Students are evaluated each year and moved into regular classrooms as they become competent in English.

The Texas program is transitional. Its purpose is to move students as rapidly as possible into the regular school program. And this is where some of the controversy lies.

A principal bone of contention in upcoming congressional debate on the Carter administration's education bill is whether bi-lingual education should continue to stress moving children as quickly as possible into regular classrooms or whether it should involve more permanent programs emphasizing bi-cultural education.

The bill earmarks $11 million of a requested $150 million appropriation for bi-lingual education for evaluation of the 10-year program which supporters hoped would curb the tide of school dropouts and make education equally available to all children in the United States.

"The more we get into bi-lingual education the more we realize we don't know about concept formation and transition into a second language," said Dr. Bergin. "There is something here that has to do with the acceptance of the student's culture. The United States is the fifth largest Spanish-speaking country in the world. This is not going to go away."

Houston public schools require proof of legal residence from non-U.S. citizens before admitting them to tuition-free classes. The district charges non-residents $90 a month.

In what could be a precedent-setting decision, the Texas Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that illegal alien children have no constitutional right to free public education.

Lawyers for 10 Mexican children in Houston had appealed a 1975 state law excluding them from free schooling. The court said providing illegals with free education would either burden citizens with higher taxes or reduce the quality of education for those already in the schools.

HISD Supt. Billy Reagan said Wednesday no illegal children are presently enrolled in district schools although about 100 who fall under a 1977 federal court decision affecting their parents' legal status are in the system.

Houston Catholic schools don't require proof of legal residence for admittance, according to Sister Colleen Hennessey. The superintendent said, however, that the schools have no bi-lingual program and do not keep records on students' ability in English.

Five days a week 296 illegal alien children gather in the basement of a church in a Mexican-American barrio on Houston's east side, look up to an American flag tacked to a low beam and recite the Pledge of Allegiance in English.

"These so-called illegal children have to go to school somewhere. They only come here because of their parents," said Rev. Robert Martinez, pastor of Maranatha Baptist Church.

Making what Rev. Martinez called "a moral decision," the church decided a year ago April to open a kindergarten through seventh grade program for illegal alien children.

"We've got whole families here," said Eva Marroquin, one of 14 women who earn $3 an hour teaching at the school in the church basement. None is trained in education.

Although teachers speak in Spanish to children who don't understand English, school director Esther Nieto said the emphasis is on having them learn English. All books — mostly donations — are in English. The church charges $5 a week per child with bargain rates for large families.

"At the beginning of the year I would read stories to my kindergartners in Spanish," said Mrs. Marroquin, "but now most of them ask for stories in English."

He was a docile dairyman until...

By JOE MCKNIGHT
Associated Press Writer
ENON, Ohio (AP) — Dairyman Earl E. Chapman says if the government is going to tax property to pay for schools, it ought to tax the knowledge a person gets by going to school.

"I'm a docile dairyman until I get to talking about taxes," said Chapman, 54. "Then I get my dander up."

He bought his farm in 1965 for $45,000 after more than 10 years of running restaurants in nearby Springfield.

"But they say the farm is worth $125,000 now for tax purposes," he said. "That's $85,000 that I have to pay taxes on that I don't have a penny of because it is unearned increment on the land."

Much of what he pays in property tax goes to the local school system.

"I'm being educated to poverty," he said, adding that he's thinking about selling his 100-acre farm and 40 head of milk cows.

He said his 1965 property tax bill was $440, but that by the time a new school tax was approved in 1970, his taxes had gone up to $1,120.

"I only made $4,400 that year before taxes," he said.

That rankled him enough to organize a petition drive repealing the school tax. But his tax bill has gotten worse instead of better. His farm was reappraised, as required by law, and he said his taxes are now $1,450 a year.

Chapman, who grew up five miles from where he now lives, walked among his Holsteins as he outlined the reasons he considers property taxes for education unfair.

"They are continuing taxes and if we vote them down they go back on the ballot until they pass," he said.

"When the school boards tell teachers and janitors they'll get a raise if the tax passes, how do you think they will vote? When the teachers tell students the schools will close if their parents don't vote for the tax, how do you think the parents will vote?"

Chapman said educated people should be taxed on knowledge they use to earn a living, just as his farm is taxed.

"They bought their education just like I buy my land and I pay taxes on the land, but they don't have to pay taxes on their knowledge and that irks me," he said. "I use the land to earn my living and they use their knowledge to earn theirs. If the government can tax my investment, then it should tax their knowledge."

Chapman didn't say how this might be accomplished.

Both his son and daughter have some advanced education.

"But my daughter doesn't have to pay tax on the knowledge she learned to be a nurse," Chapman said.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Now I've heard everything! My niece, who happens to be a very good student, claims that she was suspended from Oral Roberts University in Tulsa, Okla., because she is overweight. Can you believe that? She said that she and three others were kicked out of the university because they failed to lose at least one pound a week, in accordance with a pledge they signed when they entered the university.

I can't for the life of me understand what a person's weight has to do with his scholastic record, and I find it hard to believe that a school with the fine reputation enjoyed by Oral Roberts University would ever make such a rule.

My niece has always been a fairly good student, but it's possible that she flunked out and just made up that story to save face.

Will you please look into this and let me know if this kid is putting me on or if such a rule really exist?
STEAMED IN OKLAHOMA

DEAR-STEAMED: It's true. It seems that your niece ate herself out of the university. But I'm told that every student at O.R.U. pledges that he (or she) will make every effort to keep physically fit, and the university provides a diet and exercise program to help. Furthermore, I have it orally from Oral himself that this rule includes the faculty, too!

DEAR ABBY: Our 28-year-old daughter has been self-supporting since she graduated from college, and we have always been very proud of her. (She's in fashion.)

Yesterday she came over for dinner and her father and I nearly fainted when we saw her. She looked as though she had given herself a cheap home perm and didn't bother to set it!

It looked terrible and we told her so. She said we would get used to it because it is the latest thing.

Abby, her beautiful blond head was just a frizzy mop, with no shape or style. I can't for the life of me understand why any fashion-conscious young woman would want to go around looking that way.

I am 47—not exactly a relic—and I appreciate up-to-date fashions and hairstyles, but I can't understand this new hideous hairstyle, can you?
HORRIFIED IN HOUSTON

DEAR HORRIFIED: No. But cheer up. This too shall pass.

DEAR ABBY: When my son was living at home he was so fussy about his shirts that if there was a little wrinkle in the collar, he'd throw the shirt back in the hamper for me to do over.

Well, he's married now, and you should see what he's putting up with. His wife never washes anything unless everything is dirty and they need something clean. I've seen her wash one shirt out in the kitchen sink, and then press it on the kitchen table, right over eggshells and bread crumbs!

Believe me, my son wasn't raised that way, and it kills me to see it. He never complains, and you never hear a cross word between them.

Can a man forget his early training so soon? How can I teach this sloppy girl to keep house properly?
PERTURBED IN PUEBLO

DEAR PERTURBED: If she asks you to teach her, teach her. But don't volunteer. As long as your son is happy, close your eyes and let your mouth follow suit.

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters For All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a woman of 29 and I would like to know how I can get rid of blackheads, mostly over the chin and sides of the nose. I have tried hot water and then squeezing which only leaves my face sore.

Should I go to a dermatologist or beauty parlor? What can be done? I know when I wear makeup it only makes the problem worse. Can you help with some information?

DEAR READER — Squeezing is usually a mistake. The soaking with hot water is often helpful. It sounds like you are having enough trouble to warrant seeing a dermatologist. Most of the conditions can be controlled today with modern methods.

The blackhead is accumulated sebum, an oily secretion from the glands in your skin. Washing and soaking two to three times a day with warm water and a mild soap may help. The oily secretions can sometimes be controlled by wiping the face clean several times a day with alcohol or a mixture of half alcohol and half water.

You are right that many cosmetics make matters worse. You need to avoid anything that contains oil or grease, as the problem is too much oil in the first place.

In some cases the doctor may want to give you a peeling agent designed to peel off surface skin cells that tend to block the pores and cause the fatty secretions to accumulate. A good example here is vitamin A acid (not the same as vitamin A pills). Peeling agents that do the most for you need to be prescribed and used under a doctor's care.

In addition to drying and peeling the doctor may want to give you some antibiotics. These eliminate the tiny bacteria inside the skin pore that break down the fat into irritating products and cause inflammation. I am sending you The Health Letter number 8-2, Acne Can Be Treated to give you a better idea of the problem and what can be done about it. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — The Diabetes Society had a screening and my husband had his blood checked. It was a finger blood test. His reading was 45. Two nurses checked the stick color with the small charts on a bottle and said it was normal.

A week later he received a letter stating it was abnormal. When he called the Diabetes Society they said their cut off was higher than the nurses. They said he had no diabetes, but had low sugar. What does this mean? What is the cure? He does not appear to have any symptoms. Do symptoms develop from this?

DEAR READER — I'll give you some good advice in just two words, "forget it."

While some people do have real trouble with low blood sugar, a questionable reading in a healthy person who has no symptoms means nothing. A lot of people are incorrectly diagnosed as having low blood sugar (hypoglycemia) because this point is not widely understood.

It is commonly said that values below 50 are abnormal but 23 percent of the normal population has readings below this level so that is not a useful criterion. In a study of continuous monitoring of healthy people 42 percent had levels below 50 and some healthy people had levels as low as 34 and 37. So again, "forget it."

THE TUXEDO SHIRT, once reserved for male fashion mavericks, is big news for women this year in many forms. Tucked yokes, ruffled cuffs, little pearl buttons are featured on everything from camisoles to nightshirts.

Tuxedo back--without snicker

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK (NEA) - You can just imagine what happened when Griswold Lorillard walked in the way he did, at the Tuxedo Park Club's white-tie-and-tails autumn ball in 1886.

People probably stared and snickered, although, being swells with lots of money and class, you'd think they'd have known better.

Maybe they did. Not much is known about the immediate reaction to Griswold's get-up. But later, in the 1890s, they called what he was wearing that autumnal evening "Griswold's Folly." And they said it was something you could wear all right, if you were going to a stag party.

Griswold, known in polite circles as a "fashion maverick," had appeared in a tailless evening jacket.

Tail-less, at a time when men didn't show up at any fancy get-together in anything but a tailcoat with a white bow tie, a starched collar that stood up and craned its neck, and a nice pair of patent leather pumps.

Goes to show you what people know. Griswold's tailless coat got to be called a "tuxedo," which is nice considering it may have been something his tailor came up with after emptying a flask or two in the back room. Who knows?

In any case, you don't often get to know who's responsible for a style and if Griswold were around today, he'd probably be pleased as all get out that women are wearing the tuxedo shirt — and will be on into fall. Especially when they go to sleep at night.

They'll pull on little nightshirts and things with tucked yokes and ruffled collars and cuffs. And teddy's and camisoles with pearl buttons and satin fronts.

Of course, the jacket was what Griswold started, and we sure hope he was playing cards at a neighbor's the night it died.

That was in 1920, the night of the gala season opening of the Metropolitan Opera Company. Evidently, everyone there peeked around at everyone else and no one saw a tuxedo anywhere. At least, that's what the paper said the next day. Which doesn't say much for the quality of the singing that night.

Well, it didn't die at all. It just took a nap, because the tuxedo is still with us only it's called a dinner jacket these days, and those tucked and yoked and pearl-buttoned shirts underneath are hanging on, too.

Even if they are yawning and nodding in women's nightclothes.

'The air was thick with glamour'

By BERNADINE MORRIS
(c) 1978 N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — Suzy Eban, whose husband, Abba, was Israel's foreign minister for years, said she was taken with the black satin pajamas — and the jet — beaded jacket that accompanied them. Phyllis Wagner mentioned the same outfit. She insisted that the beaded jacket, with the red flowers scattered over it, was really an investment — one could wear it forever.

Nancy Kissinger, who is more the tailored type, was taken with the wine-colored Ultrasuede coat. She was already wearing a purple Ultrasuede coat.

All this girl-talk took place at the Mollie Parnis showroom on Seventh Avenue. Miss Parnis was presenting her second fall collection. Last week she showed her boutique collection. The other day, it was the more expensive styles. Both are designed with Morty Sussman.

This time the air was thick with glamour, as clothes for grand evenings overshadowed the more practical daytime things. The latter ran to Ultrasuede coats with matching skirts or jersey dresses in the same shade. For evening, there was much lace, feather borders and printed chiffon tops paired with crepe de chine skirts in the same design.

As the fall fashion openings wound down this week, women designers were in the forefront. They played down the tough aspect of clothes and played up the soft and feminine.

Donna Karan, who designs for Anne Klein and whose forte is sportswear, came the closest to doing heavy styles in the collection she makes with Louis Dell'Olio.

She showed a lot of leather, which tends to be tough. Still, she slashes her leather skirts up the side so they show a lot of leg. She sashes her suede jackets into tiny waists. To most outfits, she adds a mohair sweater of syrtic softness, so the effect is sensuous. She just calls it sexy.

Her evening look is big on satin-slip-top camisoles mated with suede pants, slithery dresses with her favorite side slits — to which it's perfectly feasible to add one of the mohair cardigans. That's what sportswear is all about.

Pauline Trigere is one of the few designers of either sex who can handle a tailored coat as deftly as she can arrange a handful of spangles. Still, her orientation is decidedly feminine. She works with a woman assistant, Lucie Porges, and they come as close as any Seventh Avenue designers to suggesting the work of the French courtier. Both learned their craft in Paris.

Florence van der Kemp, whose husband is the curator of the palace at Versailles, and her daughter, Barbara de Portago, concentrated on the ties with the same intensity they bring to a Paris couture salon. So did Coral Brown, the actress who is married to Vincent Price.

Audrey Zauderer, whose husband is the real estate investor, and Mrs. Kissinger, who was devoting her day to the study of clothes.

Miss Trigere doesn't discard her specialties from season to season. So her reversible coats, her capes that don't flop around but anchor securely at the shoulders and her princess dresses that make a figure that is no longer willowy look graceful, go on and on.

But to keep up with the new trends, she makes coats look broader through the shoulders with tucks at the top of the sleeves. Like other designers, she showed narrower pants, ending hers with a small cuff at the bottom. She has designed a couple of vests or jerkins that look as useful for day as they are at night. Peau de soie and taffeta are her rustling suggestions for evening.

Adele SIMPSON HAS ALWAYS MADE SENSIBLE CLOTHES FOR WOMEN WHO ARE PILLARS OF THEIR COMMUNITY. Her fans care about how they look, but don't want people to notice the dress before the person in it.

So Mrs. Simpson concentrates on coats with slightly squared shoulders, soft dresses to go under them in a matching or blending shade and some Ultrasuede suits. At night, there is a certain amount of glitter as the designer makes exceptions to her own sensible rules — longer skirts tie on over shorter ones, a wine-colored bra is glimpsed under a gold-flecked chiffon shirt.

Piero Dimitri, known for his tailored men's clothes, takes a different tack with his recently added women's designs. He stays away from hard lines, pulling in tailored jackets as well as knitted dresses with two-inch-wide belts. His trousers recall jodhpurs, but the shapes are narrowed down and elongated. He has a feeling for quilted fabrics, which he uses for skirts and vests as well as coats and jackets. Considering his background, the softness of his designs is noteworthy.

Beer conditions hair

By JANE E. BRODY
(c) 1978 N.Y. Times
News Service

NEW YORK — If your hair is thin, there are several things you can do to make it look fuller. The market is glutted with products that can "condition" your hair and give it more body. Like beer and egg shampoos, protein conditioners coat the hair shaft and make the hairs appear thicker. Conditioners and cream rinses also reduce tangling and thus help to prevent breakage. These are only temporary measures that wash out with your next shampoo. Since hair is dead tissue, there is nothing you can put on your hair to "feed" it permanently.

Proper styling can make a big difference to someone with thin hair. A layered cut can make your hair look thicker, and short thin hair looks more substantial than long thin hair. Cutting does not make your hair grow faster, but it can get rid of split and straggly ends that make your hair less attractive.

For the more obvious problems of a receding hairline or actual bald spots, there are a number of alternatives once you can no longer attractively style your hair to cover the empty places. Some of the alternatives are less desirable medically and socially than others, so you should have a clear idea of what's involved before you make your choice.

Hairpiece or wig. Aside from doing nothing, filling in for nature with a man-made substitute of natural or synthetic hair has long been the most popular and least traumatic approach to baldness. There are many kinds of hairpieces, and they range in price from about $15 to several hundred dollars.

Those made of real hair cost more to start with and require reweaving every six to eight weeks. Those mounted on a plastic hard top hold their shape longer but they don't "breathe" well and can be uncomfortable in hot weather. Other hairpieces have a soft mat that is more comfortable and some a mesh in front that helps to create a more natural-looking hairline.

The biggest disadvantage of hairpieces is their impermanence and the possibility that they will flip off at embarrassing moments. However, it is possible to purchase ones that can be worn when swimming or showering. If you wear a hairpiece, you will probably need to have at least two — one to wear while the other is being cleaned and styled.

Before you buy a hairpiece, shop around and compare prices, quality and service. Ask your friends for recommendations and call the Better Business Bureau to check out the establishments.

Hair weaving. This is a process of braiding your remaining hairs to create an anchor for a hairpiece to keep it from falling out. There are several disadvantages to weaving. The tight braids create tension on your hairs and may cause what little hair you have left to start falling out. As your hair grows, the braids move away from your scalp and the hairpiece moves with them, necessitating a retightening every month or two. It is also very difficult to clean properly under the hairpiece, especially around the braids.

The initial weave costs several hundred dollars and the retightening may run around $35 a visit. If you are considering a hair weave, first check out the agency with the Better Business Bureau. You might also ask to talk with other customers.

Hair implants. This involves stitches or wire anchors implanted in the scalp to hold a hairpiece or tufts of hair. The body often tolerates these anchors poorly and they may cause redness, soreness and infection. An unpleasant odor may develop. Some people have continual discomfort from implants; others experience pain only when the hair is gently tugged, such as when turning in bed. Also, the stitches tend to pull out in a year or so.

transplanted plugs. Nine months to a year after transplantation, you can expect to see the final result. The part of the scalp that donated the plugs for transplantation will never again grow hair, but surrounding hairs should cover the area adequately.

Hair transplants are not suitable for everyone with hair loss. The doctor must be able to tell which part of the scalp will not become bald so that a good site for donor plugs can be chosen (the transplanted follicles will follow their original genetic destiny regardless of where they are put). Enough hair should have been lost to make the procedure worthwhile. The hair in the donor area should not be too thin. And the person should not have unrealistic ideas of what a transplant will do for him. Persons in poor health or those who scar abnormally should not have hair transplants.

Transplants are commonly priced by the plug — ranging from about $7.50 to as high as $35 a plug. Thus, a complete transplant could easily cost between $1,000 and $3,000. The main advantages of a hair transplant are that the person has his own hair that lasts a lifetime and the costs are one-time.

But it is very important that the procedure be done by a physician expert in the technique. Beware of bargain clinics and doctors who recommend transplanting flaps or strips of scalp. This technique is subject to complications and has a high failure rate. Ask the local medical society or a reputable dermatologist to recommend a qualified doctor. Be sure to see before — and after pictures of the doctor's patients, if not the patients themselves.

Personal health

Hair transplants. According to Dr. Feinberg, about a million persons have had healthy hair follicles transplanted from one part of the scalp to another. It is usually done in a doctor's office under a local anesthetic. Tiny plugs of scalp, each containing 10 or 15 active hair follicles, are removed with a punch and similar plugs of bald scalp are removed.

The hair-containing plugs are then properly aligned and inserted in the holes, with clotting blood as the natural sealer. There is little or no pain afterward. Between 10 and 40 plugs can be safely transplanted at one time. Since 100 to 200 plugs are usually needed for a good cosmetic result, several sessions a month or more apart are needed to complete the process.

It takes two to six months for new hairs to grow from the

Lottery: houses great, shabby

By DAVE TABOLT
Associated Press Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) — The prizes were 32 shabby, burned-out houses and as much as $67,000 in repair bills as Pittsburgh opened its Great House Sale lottery Saturday in a campaign to rehabilitate a rundown neighborhood.

The city-owned houses on the old North Side were put up for sale for $100 down in a luck-of-the-draw promotion expected to attract up to 5,000 potential buyers. The drawing will be held Thursday.

Shoppers arrived at a converted storefront where volunteers passed out flyers describing contest rules, available houses and estimated repair costs an hour before the two-day sale began.

"When you really don't have the money to buy a house, this is a real bargain," said telephone operator Shirley Van-Deever. She and her husband David, a photographer, planned to bid on two houses.

The VanDeevers are both 50 and have never owned a house. "This is kind of our last chance," said VanDeever. His wife's voice cracked at the thought of losing. "The opportunity is so good and the chance of winning is so bad."

The North Side neighborhood was built 100 years ago in the shadow of some of Pittsburgh's wealthiest mansions. It boasts an unusual mix of rich Victorian architecture and simple homes.

"These houses were built in a period when your living style and home were important," said Joan Kimmel, spokeswoman for the North Side Civic Development Council, one of three citizen group sponsors.

"They're all vacant and vandalized now, but they're exciting the minute you walk in. They're gorgeous."

The area's renewal program began about 15 years ago, and on some streets houses that once sold for a pittance are now considered fashionable and command up to $70,000.

"People are paying $13,000 for houses like these," said Blue-Cross-methods-analyst Mariann VanZile after a tour of a burned-out shell. "Why pay $13,000 when you can get it for $100?"

Repair estimates range from $67,050 for a 4-story, 12-room brick building to $18,000 for a modest six-room house.

Swim classes for July open

Enrollment for Red Cross swimming classes will be from 1-5 p.m. June 1 and 2 at the Red Cross office in the basement of City Hall.

The first session will be July 3-14 at the municipal pool. The second session will be July 17-28. Classes are being offered for beginners, intermediates and advanced.

One adult beginner class will be July 17-28. All classes will be taught by Red Cross trained volunteers.

Agent rescues Army, breaks finger

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Secret Service agent suffered a broken finger Saturday when he pulled 10-year-old Amy Carter out of the way of an unruly elephant at a pet show, a service spokesman said.

"The elephant broke loose and was running in the general direction of Amy," said Secret Service spokesman Ken Lynch. "The agent pulled her out of the way and lifted her over the fence."

Lynch said the president's daughter was unhurt but the agent, whom he declined to identify, broke a finger and suffered other minor injuries. He said the elephant was then brought under control and there were no other injuries.

Mary Hoyt, press secretary for Rosalynn Carter, said after

Amy returned to the White House, she told her parents "that it was kind of scary."

Mrs. Hoyt said that Amy had briefly sat on the elephant about 30 minutes before the incident.

Craft to study Venus

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The first of two spacecraft that will orbit Venus to study why it evolved so differently from its "twin planet" Earth blasted off successfully Saturday in the United States' only interplanetary mission of the year.

A spider that spun a tiny web in a safety jet for the Atlas Centaur rocket failed to jam a perfect launch as the Pioneer Venus Orbiter set out on a 400 million-mile journey to the cloud-shrouded planet.

"We're on our way!" Frederick Kochendorfer, manager of the $250 million program, said after the rocket and its 1,300-pound payload lifted off on time.

The 132-foot-tall space vehicle blasted off into cloudy skies, its golden tail trailing.

Mission control had one technical difficulty — the spider. A cherry picker, a basket lift like the one utility line workers use, had to be brought in to get rid of it.

"We roasted him and just consumed him on the spot," laughed John Gossett, Centaur project manager.

The spider and web were discovered in the middle of the night, clogging a small jet on the tower attached to the Atlas Centaur. The jet works much like a blowtorch, igniting the hydrogen fuel escaping from the rocket as it is filled.

Cheers went up from mission control when the rocket separated with ease from the orbiter about 24 minutes after launch.

The orbiter is the first of two spacecraft being sent to Venus this year. At speeds exceeding 25,000 miles per hour, it will take seven months to reach the hot, dry planet, arriving Dec. 4 and going into orbit around Venus for at least eight months. At its closest point, Venus is about 26 million miles from Earth, but the orbiter's trajectory takes it more than halfway around the sun first.

Its sister craft, a multiprobed satellite that will send space vehicles to the planet's surface, is scheduled for launch in August. It will take a shorter route and arrive at Venus five days after the first craft.

International Management magazine reports this is among the findings of a survey of more than 450 young executives, conducted by Paul A. Lee Evans, a faculty member of an international business school in Fontainebleau, France.

Cullen's law bill: $3 million

By JIM BRIGANCE
Associated Press Writer
FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Texas tycoon T. Cullen Davis spent more money on lawyers in the past 18 months than most Americans could hope to earn in a lifetime — more than $3 million. He'll be spending more.

The millions won Davis acquitted last fall in this state's longest, costliest and perhaps most lurid murder trial. Another murder charge and two of attempted murder are pending, and late this summer Davis faces a complex, high stakes divorce case.

Davis, 44, is a partner in KenDavis Industries, a conglomerate whose business takes him around the globe in a private jet. The largest company in the group is Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Supply.

Seeking a substantial chunk of Davis' financial empire is his estranged wife, Priscilla, 36, who has claimed Davis killed her daughter and her live-in lover and wounded her in August 1976. He was acquitted of the child's murder.

Mrs. Davis, married to the millionaire for eight years, filed for divorce in the summer of 1974 after Davis moved out of their $6 million hilltop mansion.

Mrs. Davis lives in the mansion. Davis, free on $650,000 bond, shares the middle-class suburban home of longtime companion Karen Master, 29. "We talk about the future," said Mrs. Master, a divorcee whose two young children live with her and Davis. "No, Cullen doesn't sit around biting his nails. He brings his work home, spreads it out here on the table, and opens his mail.

"We live our lives just one day at a time," Mrs. Master said. "Cullen goes about his business just like anybody else. What else can you do? We rarely talk about it."

"It" refers to the nightmare of Aug. 2, 1976, when 12-year-old Andrea Wilborn, Mrs. Davis' daughter, was found shot to death in the basement of the mansion.

Mrs. Davis and her lover, Stan Farr, 31, arrived home at midnight to find bloody handprints on walls, the girl's body and "a man dressed all in black" and wearing a woman's wig lurking behind a door.

The man shot at them: Mrs. Davis was seriously wounded; Farr was killed; a family friend, Gus Gavrel, 23, was paralyzed by a bullet.

Mrs. Davis accused her husband of being the man in black.

A few hours later, Davis was arrested at Mrs. Master's house. She later served as a key defense witness, providing the alibi that Davis was asleep in her bed when the killings occurred across town.

In a front-page murder trial held in Amarillo, Houston criminal lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes led a high-powered panel of lawyers who showed there was reasonable doubt Davis was the killer.

A parade of witnesses suggested to the jury the shootings stemmed from a drug traffickers' dispute. Other witnesses described the Davis mansion as a palace of exotic drugs and sex parties.

Davis has not been tried on charges of murdering Farr and wounding Mrs. Davis and Gavrel. Tarrant County Assistant District Attorney Joe Shannon said no decision has been reached on whether to prosecute.

"Certainly, cost is a consideration," he said. "It's a factor but it's peripheral. We wouldn't want to do it if you couldn't win."

Berkowitz faces 175 years

NEW YORK (AP) — David Berkowitz faced prison terms totaling up to 175 years in his sentencing today for the six Son of Sam slayings.

Three judges from three counties — Brooklyn, the Bronx and Queens — planned to deliver sentence in the same courtroom, taking the bench one at a time. The procedure is similar to one they followed two weeks ago when the 24-year-old Yonkers man admitted killing six people and wounding seven others during a 12-month shooting rampage.

Under provisions of state law, Berkowitz will have an opportunity to make a statement prior to each sentencing.

After sentencing, Berkowitz was to be turned over to state Correction Department personnel. But any transfer from Kings County Hospital, where he has been housed since his arrest last August, was not expected for at least several days.

Last year, Berkowitz offered to plead guilty but only if he was allowed to warn the world of the blood-thirsty demons that he said made him kill.

Since then, however, Berkowitz says he has become a born-again Christian and there has been speculation that if he chose to exercise his right to address the court, it might more likely be on religion than demons.

Berkowitz will probably spend only a few weeks in jail, just long enough for department psychiatrists to rule that he is insane and therefore should be committed to a psychiatric hospital.

It is expected Berkowitz will end up at the dormitory-style Central New York Psychiatric Center for the Criminally Insane, outside upstate Utica.

He could be kept there, or at a similar facility, until judged cured, at which time he would be transferred to a maximum security prison to serve out the rest of his prison term.

Under state law, Berkowitz would be eligible for parole after 30 years, although he could nonetheless spend the rest of his life behind bars or hospital walls.

Girl Scouts set meeting on day camps

Plans for both sessions of Pampa's Girl Scout Day Camps will be made at 9 a.m. Wednesday at the Girl Scout Little House, 720 E. Kingsmill.

The camps at Camp Mel Davis near Lefors will serve Girl Scouts and non-Scouts in Pampa, Lefors, McLean, White Deer and Skellytown. Those who wish to work at one or both sessions should attend the Wednesday meeting or call Mrs. Barbara Roe, day camp director at 9-3837.

Sessions are scheduled for June 19 to 23 and June 26 to 30. Buses will transport the girls from the north parking lot of the Coronado Center at 8:30 a.m. each day and return to the same place at 3 p.m.

Escapees blamed for murders

BUTLER, Ala. (AP) — Alabama and Mississippi authorities are on the lookout for two Oklahoma prison escapees who, according to authorities, are suspects in several murders in Southeastern states.

The search for the suspects centered on this Choctaw County community last Friday when a car believed to have been used in shooting attacks on a Butler policeman was found abandoned in a wooded area near here.

A second car believed to have been used in an attack on a state trooper last Wednesday in Sumter County was found Sunday.

Later Sunday the search was scaled down here, but Mississippi authorities were placed on alert for the suspects, who were identified as escapees from the Oklahoma State Penitentiary in McAlester, Oklahoma.

Mississippi Highway Patrol investigator Walter Tucker identified the escapees as Claude Eugene Dennis, 35, serving 50 years for manslaughter, and Michael Lancaster, 25, serving 25 years for armed robbery.

Alabama trooper spokesman Lt. Roy Smith said the suspects "are believed to have been involved in several other murders" in Southeastern states. He said the suspects are "heavily armed and dangerous."

Tucker said the pair were connected with the killing of a Denison, Texas man whose wife was taken hostage but later escaped, the deaths of three other persons and the disappearance of three more.

Smith said the car found near here Friday apparently were used by gunmen who wounded Butler policeman Dean Roberts last Tuesday. He said the car found Sunday was used in the attack on trooper John Christianberry in Sumter County last Wednesday.

Christianberry escaped injury, but Roberts required surgery at a Meridian hospital before his condition stabilized.

Mississippi authorities believe the suspects may be connected with the holdup of a service station in Meridian last Monday, and the theft of an automobile in Wayne County Monday night.

Priest takes religion to Alaska

By WARD SIMS
Associated Press Writer
FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — A program envisioned by an Episcopal priest from New Jersey is taking theological education and training into Alaska's bush villages.

The Episcopal Diocese of Alaska's Network program is the brainchild of the Rev. David Keller, who was introduced to Alaska bush-style religion as a seminary student in 1959.

The program is dedicated to supporting ministry of both clergy and laity, as well as providing on-the-job experience in the ministry.

Correspondence courses provided through the program range from church administration to Christian education and Bible study. There also are workshops and seminars.

"This program is designed especially for people whose jobs and family responsibilities make it impossible for them to go away to seminary or Bible school," Keller said. "We try to reach wherever people desire theological education."

"Because Network's students are learning at home, they are able to use what they are learning right away through practical experience in home, congregation and community."

With a budget of about $50,000 a year — including $5,000 contributed by the congregations and people it serves — the program is reaching into 12 villages along the Arctic coast and the Yukon River, as well as Fairbanks. More than 300 persons are actively involved.

"We would like very much to expand our operations, but there are staff limitations at the present time," said Keller, a 40-year-old native of New York City who was reared in the Morristown-Dover area of New Jersey.

He returned to Alaska — to Shageluk — the following summer and remained at St. Luke's Mission as the priest-in-charge until 1968.

It was while he was at Shageluk that he conceived the idea of Network. He remembers that there were people in the village of 175 who wanted to serve God but had no way to further their education.

Keller first came to Alaska in 1959 to head the Episcopal mission at the Athabaskan Indian village of Minto, 50 miles west of Fairbanks, for the summer. He had just completed his first year at General Theological Seminary in New York City. He had never before been west of the Mississippi River.

He returned to Alaska — to Shageluk — the following summer and remained at St. Luke's Mission as the priest-in-charge until 1968.

It was while he was at Shageluk that he conceived the idea of Network. He remembers that there were people in the village of 175 who wanted to serve God but had no way to further their education.

Kolwezi survivor sensed terror

By SERGE SCHEMANN
Associated Press Writer
KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — Bill Starkey is still not sure why he survived Kolwezi, where he took a bullet through the side after a nightmare ride through town.

The 33-year-old native of Boise, Idaho, doing a stint in Zaire with the Morrison-Knudson construction company, was living in a friend's house when the rebels marched in last week.

The first sign of trouble came Thursday when a group of blacks led by the house servant came and talked Starkey into letting them put his car in a safe spot.

He agreed but then found the group looting the garage and filling up the car. He chased them away but they returned shortly afterward with five men in soldiers' uniforms.

"They came in on the pretext of looking for mercenaries," he said in an interview with The Associated Press. "I realized I'd been set up when they opened doors and started looting. They took all the whiskey, some of the food, the beer, shoes, clothing. They took my glasses for some reason. Another guy took a box of golf balls."

"They took all these things and carried them to the car. The five soldiers and myself got into the car with all the stuff and they drove me around town.

"I sensed I was in extreme danger because they didn't seem to know where they were going."

"They found a deserted, bombed-out section of town and told me to get out and run."

"I tried to stall by talking but they told me to run and they shot me."

The bullet pierced Starkey's side and came out the front, narrowly missing his internal organs. He said he felt a searing pain and dove into a ditch.

"I don't understand to this day why I'm still alive. It's an act of God. I don't understand why they didn't kill me. But then I don't understand why they shot at me. I offered no resistance at all. I gave them everything they wanted."

"I'm sure many killings in town were like mine, except I happened not to die."

Starkey finally made it to a hospital, which somehow was untouched by the rebels.

He flew out of Kolwezi Saturday.

Does your newly liberated secretary now refuse to fetch your morning coffee? The solution to the problem may be Klatu the Robot. According to Anthony Reichelt, director of the New Jersey company that produces the robot, Klatu can "do everything but wash windows."

Once programmed via the device Reichelt is holding, the robot will respond to voice commands.

The crossbill, which is characterized by a crossing at the tips of the bill, can pry up the scales on the cones of evergreens and extract the seeds with its tongue.

Bone bits could hurt farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposal under consideration that would let processors salvage meat scraps now discarded with carcass bones of cattle and hogs probably would benefit consumers at the expense of farmers, according to a new study.

The study involves a plan which has bounced around the Agriculture Department for more than two years to let processors grind up ribs, neckbones and other parts of an animal's carcass and salvage the untrimable meat by forcing the mixture through sieves.

Called MDM — for mechanically deboned meat — by the industry, the salvaged mixture contains finely ground bits of bone about the size of table pepper which pass through the sieves with the meat.

Initial plans for approving the process were thwarted by a U.S. District Court order after several consumer groups filed petitions against the department for not following proper administrative procedures. Last Oct. 5 the USDA again proposed to allow processors to use mechanical deboning.

A final decision on the proposal has been pending for weeks but officials say it may be settled by the end of this month.

Meanwhile, the department's Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service has worked out, using computers, some possible financial results using different sets of rules if the process is allowed.

In one alternative, which calls for using MDM in up to 20 percent of processed meat products, including ground meat, consumers might see the prices of those items decline as much as 28 cents a pound if all the savings were passed along to them by processors.

Under the option, consumers would have an annual savings at meat counters of almost $2.8 billion, the study found. However, it also showed that livestock producers would get about $1.1 billion less for their cattle and hogs, leaving net savings to "society as a whole" of about $1.7 billion a year.

Even when MDM is not used in ground meat, the second alternative shows that consumers might pay $24 million less for other processed meat items and that livestock producers would lose $57 million, a net benefit of $157 million a year.

The third alternative used in the study assumes that all salvaged meat produced could be used in all possible ways in a free market, an even more theoretical model than the first two. But even in it, the figures show that consumers would benefit financially while livestock producers would lose.

As proposed by USDA, the regulations do not allow the salvaged meat in ground beef, hamburger and some other products. It would be permitted in hot dogs, salami, sausages and some other similar items when labeled appropriately.

As proposed by USDA, the regulations do not allow the salvaged meat in ground beef, hamburger and some other products. It would be permitted in hot dogs, salami, sausages and some other similar items when labeled appropriately.

The report said that "in the short run, the demand for beef cattle might be expected to decrease and the demand for hogs to increase, accompanied by a decrease in the price of slaughter cattle and an increase in the price of slaughter hogs."

However, the report cautioned that this might be a temporary situation and that "temptations to extend these results to long-run analysis should be resisted."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agricultural Council of America will conduct a telephone call-in this week to sample public opinion on U.S. agriculture and what people should know about it.

A panel of Agriculture Department officials and members of Congress will be on hand to help answer the calls, the council said. The call-in will be held between noon and 4 p.m. EDT, Wednesday.

Council officials said the toll-free number for the four-hour project is 800-368-8050.

The council describes itself as a "non-political and non-lobbying" group formed in 1973 "to promote better understanding of American agriculture." It periodically conducts telephone call-ins on various topics.

Information gathered over the farm line will be reviewed as part of the overall planning process for a comprehensive agriculture visibility program to communicate the facts on the current U.S. farm economy," the council said. "Each caller will be asked to respond to a special questionnaire so opinion can be tabulated and interpreted."

Persons unable to complete their calls during the four-hour session can mail their comments to: ACA, Box 23421, Washington, D.C. 20024.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A report due this week is expected to show that farmers have signed up to take even more land out of production this year than the government aimed for.

The Agriculture Department last week reported that about 19.3 million acres of cropland were signed up to be idled as of May 11 under its acreage set-aside and diversion programs for wheat, feed grains and cotton.

Another weekly report probably will be issued Tuesday or Wednesday and is expected to show that farmers have exceeded the administration's goal of taking 22 million acres from crop production this year.

Stewart N. Smith, associate administrator of the department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, told a reporter that "we'll take all we can get" when asked if there was any plan to curtail the sign-up for idling crop acres.

The sign-up period will continue through May 31 at local offices of the agency.

Lost divers rescued

PORT O'CONNOR, Texas (AP) — A scuba-diving expedition by three Dallas men turned into a survival-at-sea lesson over the weekend when they were pulled away from their boat by strong currents and forced to spend more than a day in the water waiting for help.

Harold Sauls, Joe Marshall and Norman Gin headed into Matagorda Bay aboard Sauls' boat, the Linda Lou.

They were diving 23 miles offshore around a sunken Liberty ship, sent to the bottom years ago to create an artificial reef.

Strong currents pulled them away from a tag line strung from the sunken vessel to the Linda Lou.

"Gin was the first to realize we couldn't make it back to our boat," Sauls said. He said they surfaced some 150 yards behind their boat.

Fortunately, crewmen of the fishing boat Trophy I were watching the men dive and alerted the Coast Guard when the men failed to appear after three hours.

Crewmen of the tanker Euros spotted Sauls, and a Coast Guard cutter was dispatched to rescue him. After 26 hours in the water, he was in remarkably good shape and was allowed to pilot the Linda Lou back to harbor.

"I'm tired, fatigued and sore," Sauls said Sunday night. "It's all you can do to maintain your cool."

He said the three men separated by choice.

Gin was the second to be spotted. People aboard a passing sailboat saw him and alerted the Coast Guard, which dispatched a helicopter to pluck him from the sea. Gin was taken to a Palacios hospital and was reported in stable condition suffering from dehydration and exposure.

"I saw a shark Saturday about 20 to 25 feet away," Gin said. "I hope somebody learns something from this."

The Coast Guard cutter Point Baker found Marshall Sunday afternoon, about 20 miles from the men's marker buoy. He was airlifted to the same hospital as Gin and was also in stable condition.

Sauls reported the only harrowing experience. He said a 10-foot hammerhead shark brushed against his foot Friday night, but displayed little interest and went on its way.

"Next time, I'm going to take a flare gun," Gin said from his hospital bed. "I yelled and whistled at passing boats, but they couldn't hear me because of their engine noise. I guess I thought it was all over the first night, but the second night was better. I made up my mind I would stay alive as long as humanly possible."

Sauls said, "I don't believe I'd like to do it again."

Gin was a little more philosophical: "The diving was wonderful." He said "Except for extenuating circumstances."

Bell seeks rate increase

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. goes before the Texas Public Utility Commission today, seeking rate increases that would jack up residential phone bills and increase the company's income by $220.3 million a year.

On hand to fight the increase were representatives of the attorney general's office, the Texas Municipal League and consumer groups.

The commission's own staff of accountants, economists and engineers said Bell is entitled to far less than it sought. They said Bell could make an adequate profit with an increase producing $97.75 million in added revenue.

Bell's request called for residential rate increases as high as $1.36 per month.

The staff said its recommendation apparently would cause rates for local one-party service to "either decrease, remain constant or receive a very slight increase."

Bell originally asked for $214.3 million but said Friday it had raised the figure by $6 million "due to correction of interest deductions used in calculating federal income tax."

In pre-filed testimony, Bell's vice president for revenues, John E. Hayes, urged the commission to include $245 million in unfinished construction in the company's rate base. The staff recommended it be excluded.

"To finance a construction program, we must earn adequately... but we must earn on all our investment... including construction work in progress. The commitment to provide telephone service is represented by work in progress — and that is as a part of our plant investment as new cable and switches installed last week or last year," he said.

The National Hollerin' Contest of Spivey's Corner, Dunn, N.C., will be held June 17.

WIVES PLAY ROLE IN EXECUTIVE MOVE

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — More than half of the proposed male executive career changes never take place because the organizations offering jobs fail to consider the wife's interests as well as where and how she wants to live, a national executive research firm based here estimates.

In many cases a wife may determine whether or not an executive will make the move from one company to another, says Ron Kelly, vice president of corporate development for Weatherby Associates.

The selection of a good real estate firm to show people around a new town, Kelly says, is an overlooked but important element in the hiring process. He suggests that corporations give relocation assignments to a competent staff member who will take the time to research thoroughly the religious, cultural, educational and social needs of the prospect and his family, and then pass this information on to the home broker.

College--for family vacation fun

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

A growing number of U.S. colleges and universities are offering summer programs designed to combine learning and leisure for the entire family and to offer a relatively low-cost alternative to traditional vacations.

Most of the programs are sponsored by alumni associations, but are open to non-alumni as well, sometimes at a slightly higher cost. Participants generally spend the one-week sessions at the Ithaca, N.Y., campus this summer, starting July 9. The price is $215 per person for adults, with an extra charge for a private bath. The fee for pre-kindergartners is $100 each and there is a charge of $125 each for older youngsters.

Further information is available from the Cornell Alumni University, 626B Thurston Ave., Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y., 14853.

Another well-established program is at the University of Oregon which began a vacation college for adults 15 years ago and expanded the sessions to include children last year.

This year's vacation college for families will run from July 16 to 21 and will offer lectures and discussions on "An Overview of the Former, Familiar and Future Family." The charge is $145 per person for adults; $55 each for youngsters 5 to 18; and $25 each for those under 5.

Further information is available from Effie Fairchild, 1978 Vacation College, Summer Session, University of Oregon, Eugene, Ore., 97403.

A newer program is "The Berkeley Experience," run by the California Alumni Association. The program, now in its fourth year, is informal with

LULAC head labels Carter's human rights program 'farce'

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — Fresh from re-election as state director of the League of United Latin American Citizens, Ruben Bonilla said Sunday that the Carter administration human rights program is a "farce" as far as Mexican-Americans are concerned.

"It's protecting those abroad, but ignoring Mexican-Americans at home," Bonilla said. "We have not seen him (Carter) since the campaign."

LULAC finished its state convention at Laredo Sunday by re-electing Bonilla and installing Ray Ramirez of San Antonio as deputy director.

Bonilla said 2,500 persons attended the convention, making it the largest in the organization's history.

Delegates heard from several politicians, including a heated exchange between Bob Krueger, Democratic nominee for the U.S. senate, and his November opponent, Sen. John Tower.

While Democratic gubernatorial nominee John Gill was on hand, his Republican opponent, Bill Clements, was not.

"(He (Clements) sent a Mailgram," Bonilla said. "We were very disappointed."

Bonilla said he was also disappointed with remarks by a keynote speaker, U.S. Immigration Commissioner Leonel Castillo.

"He didn't say he agreed with the sum of our argument on the dilemma affecting the undocumented worker," Bonilla said. "He's cautious and not overly assertive on the administration's program in that area."

"I think it fair to say we were slightly disappointed in the talk by Castillo, but we admire him greatly. We recognize the difficulty of his position. We hold the president accountable."

Bonilla said a private talk with Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, indicated it would be tough to pass the kind of illegal alien legislation desired by LULAC this year.

Bonilla said he probably would be on hand Tuesday for a meeting in Dallas among heads of several Mexican-American groups. The aim of that meeting is to press for a solution to what the groups call police abuse of minority citizens.

"There is a new social and political consciousness now," Bonilla said. "It's important that those in office and those seeking office recognize the political sophistication of Mexican-Americans."

Besides LULAC, other organizations expected at the Tuesday meeting were the G.I. Forum, IMAGE and the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Educational Fund (MALDEF).

Other individuals expected to be on hand were Jose Angel Gutierrez of Crystal City, co-founder of La Ra Unita party; Reyes Lopez Tijerina, leader of a group that has fought for land grants in New Mexico; Ruben Sandoval, a San Antonio attorney who has argued several prominent civil rights cases; State Rep. Paul Moreno of El Paso; and Dallas County Court At Law Judge Frank Hernandez.

News watch

TOKYO (AP) — China doubled the use of wasps, birds and other natural enemies of insects last year to fight pests and lessen pollution from chemical sprays, the official Hsinhua news agency reports.

The agency said China used biological pest control on 16.3 million acres in 1977, up from 197.6 million in 1972, when the program started on a large scale.

and one of them fell several feet onto its side, Lincoln police said. Five people suffered minor injuries.

There were about 30 persons in the two open-air cars. Zoo Director Al Bietz said he was not sure of the cause of the mishap but believed a prankster might have placed something on the track which caused the derailment.

JACKSONVILLE, Ill. (AP) — China is eager to increase contacts with the United States, but there can be no normalization of relations until the United States severs diplomatic ties to Taiwan, the deputy chief of China's liaison office says.

Han Hsu, in the first public address by an official of the People's Republic of China to an American audience, said Sunday that "the Chinese people are determined to liberate Taiwan. When and how is entirely China's internal affair, an internal affair which brooks no foreign interference whatsoever."

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — The leader of a self-described "ultra-right" group says he can muster 2,000 veterans and "other average Americans" to counter a planned June 24 demonstration against the Seabrook nuclear power plant.

Ted Michos, national commander of a group called the Continental Line, which he describes as a "militant nationalist group," says he has asked the Public Service Co. of New Hampshire for permission to hold a counter-demonstration at the plant site.

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Deposed Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto is on a hunger strike to protest poor jail conditions and has taken only tea for four days, says his lawyer, Yaha Bakhtiar.

Bakhtiar made the remark in Pakistan's supreme court Sunday, the second day of the appeal of Bhutto's death sentence. Bhutto, deposed last July, was sentenced March 18 to hang for ordering the murder of a political opponent in 1974. The appeal is expected to take months. Bhutto is in jail in Rawalpindi.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — The Argentine League for Human Rights says its chairman, Antonio Sofia, is under arrest. Police would not confirm or deny the report. The league said Sofia, 76, was arrested at his home Friday night.

The league, controlled by Argentina's Communist Party, said police raided their downtown offices Saturday and confiscated the monthly bulletin, edited by Sofia.

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's better-paying, higher-status jobs are slowly but increasingly being filled by women, says the Conference Board, a non-profit business research group.

A study released Sunday by the organization showed that women — more than 40 percent of the labor force — made slow but steady progress toward management, professional and some craft jobs from 1970 to 1975. The study said that due to stringent federal laws and regulations mandating non-discrimination in employment, the gains signal "the start of a major trend."

ARVADA, Colo. (AP) — Author Clive Cussler, whose best-selling novel "Raise the Titanic" told of the fictional retrieval of the ill-fated Cunard White Star liner, now wants to raise the remains of a ship that sank almost 200 years ago.

The vessel is John Paul Jones' Revolutionary War raider-flagship, the Bonhomme Richard, which lies in a channel grave some 3 1/2 miles off the east-central coast of England. Cussler said he has raised $70,000 to identify the ship, which sank Sept. 24, 1779, and do an archaeological study and some salvage work this summer.

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Two open-air cars derailed on the Lincoln Children's Zoo train.

morning in classes. Afternoons are devoted to cultural events, sports and travel. Separate programs for youngsters are geared to age and offer a mix of activities. Families eat and live on campus, usually in dormitories.

The setting of the vacation college can provide a free bonus: families attending American University in Washington, D.C., for example, can sightsee in the nation's capital, participants in the summer Alumni College at Dartmouth College at Hanover, N.H., get a chance to enjoy the New England scenery.

One of the oldest programs in the country is Cornell University's vacation college, now in its 11th year. There will be four

SITTING ON TOP OF THE WORLD

... with a business of his own!

We'd like for you to meet the Executive Officer of a thriving business . . . the boy who delivers your daily newspaper.

As the owner and operator of his newspaper route, this Junior Independent Merchant must solve problems and shoulder responsibilities, just like all other businessmen.

He buys his product, your newspaper, at wholesale and then retails it to his customers. He must make daily deliveries, do his own accounting, billing, and even struggle with a collection problem here and there.

He is discovering, through actual experience, the rewards for promptness, dependability, self-reliance and initiative.

One of the rewards is his profit, the difference between the wholesale and retail prices of the paper. His route means money for a savings account for college, a new bicycle, a week in camp, many things.

But he is earning even greater rewards. As he learns about sales and salesmanship, he is equipping himself for the future. From boys who learned the principles of business as newspaperboys have come presidents, governors, mayors, industrialists and professional men . . . those who determine the quality of our civilization in their generation.

It's his world to conquer . . . and he's off to a good start.

If you have a son that you think might be interested in a newspaper route, why not write or phone us.
