Home insurance rates decision set for Monday

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State Insurance Board members scheduled a decision Monday on insurance rate increases that mean "many, many millions of dollars" to Texas home owners.

The Monday session was set after board chairman Hugh Yantis recommended late Thursday that Texans be given another year without an increase in their homeowners insurance premiums.

Insurance authorities estimate the present insurance bill paid by Texas property owners at $807.8 million.

Yantis also asked his fellow board members to prohibit any insurance company from reducing agents' commissions as a result of any rate increase the company fails to get.

Yantis said he had no objection of a 9.4 increase in separate fire policies recommended by the board staff.

The staff had recommended a 13.1 percent hike in homeowners' premiums. The insurance industry asked for a 14.1 percent hike.

"My study of the reports shows that about 80 percent of the homeowners policies sold are sold at deviated or discounted prices at an average rate of about 15 percent," Yantis said. "What the figures say to me is that almost all insurance sold on homes is being sold at rates lower than the requested rate increase."

"I cannot see that a rate increase is justified," Yantis said.

Neither Ned Price nor Durwood Manford, the other two board members, expressed themselves on Yantis' recommendation before the hearing was recessed.

"Many, many millions of dollars ride on our decision," Yantis said.

Sam Winters, Austin attorney representing 360 insurance companies doing business in Texas, said state law says that the board will fix a maximum rate for premiums, "not an average or fair rate." He said the deviation or discount was not material to the statewide hearing because each company's deviation application is considered individually by the board.

"What we are after is that maximum rate that is suitable for the risk without the deviation, otherwise you screw up the procedure," said David Irons, another spokesman for the industry.

Joe Boggins, representing insurance agents, asked for more time to consider Yantis' recommendation by agency commissions.

"One healthy thing that has come out of this," said Winters at the close of the session, is that the rate is set as a maximum rate and 80 percent of the policy holders are not paying the maximum."

There has been no increase in homeowners insurance rates since July, 1976. There was no action on the rates last year because the industry filed for a rehearing after the board allowed only a two percent increase on homeowners policies.

After Joe Christie left office as chairman to make an unsuccessful race for U.S. Senate, his successor, Yantis, decided not to act since the regular annual hearing was set for February, 1978. Thursday's board action was based on testimony received in February.

Thousands homeless from Minnesota flood

By KAREN MILLS

Associated Press Writer
ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — Thousands of residents remained homeless and thousands more were without electricity today as authorities began a house-to-house survey of damage from heavy flooding that left at least five people dead.

About 80 percent of the city's 58,000 residents were without electricity and officials said widespread power outages might continue through Saturday.

Some of the 5,000 residents forced from their homes Wednesday night returned late Thursday. But most stayed with relatives or at hotels.

The Red Cross said 159 people spent Thursday night at shelters set up in three churches and one state hospital in Rochester.

In addition to the flooding, officials were concerned about a power dam on the Zumbro River about 10 miles north of town. An engineer flying over the area spotted what he said was an old crack in the dam. It was to be surveyed today.

"Whether it's an old crack or not, we're going to take precautions," Deputy Sheriff Marty Burns said.

Most roads into the city had been closed by high water but were re-opened late in the day.

U.S. Sen. Wendell Anderson, D-Minn., and Gov. Rudy Perpich toured the city by helicopter and car and said they would ask President Carter to declare the southeastern Minnesota city a disaster area.

Some local officials estimated damage at nearly $50 million.

The Zumbro crested at about 23 feet, 11 feet above flood stage, after up to 9 inches of rain fell Wednesday night. A flash flood watch was called off early today, though the National Weather Service said there was a chance of light thunderstorms.

The dead included four elderly people who drowned early Thursday when the elevator they were riding at a nursing home descended into the flooded basement. The fifth victim died when her car plunged off an Olmsted County road about 10 miles southwest of Rochester.

They were identified as Lillian Hoesly, 72, a nursing assistant at National Health Enterprises Nursing Home, home residents Mary Ellis, Anna Starcken and Florence Larsen, and Bonnie Carol Keller, 38, rural Stewartville.

Israel and Syria square off after Syrian attack

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israel and Syria squared off against each other today because of the Syrian attack on Lebanese Christians, and Lebanese President Elias Sarkis threatened to resign unless both Syria and the Christians gave him a free hand to govern.

An Israeli army spokesman in Tel Aviv confirmed a report by Radio Israel that the Jewish state had strengthened its forces "along the entire border" to the north. The reinforcements were sent up as another warning to Syria to stop its attack on Israel's Christian allies in Lebanon, the right-wing Phalange and National Liberal parties and their militias.

To counter the Israeli threat, Syrian President Hafez Assad put his armed forces on full alert, the usually reliable Middle East Reporter said. It reported that front-line forces facing Israeli troops across the U.N. buffer zone on the Golan Heights were put on a war footing.

Israel sent more troops to the Lebanese border and the Golan Heights after sending a warning flight of seven Israeli warplanes over Beirut on Thursday and a statement by Defense Minister Ezer Weizman that Israel would have to "do more than just take note" of the pounding Syrian guns were giving Beirut's Christian quarter.

The Israeli spokesman said the reinforcement also was designed to deter Palestinian guerrillas from taking advantage of the Syrian action by stepping up activity against Christians in south Lebanon. Sarkis' demand for full authority was reported by an aide who said the president probably would announce his resignation today if he did not get satisfaction.

The aide, who asked not to be identified, said the United States, Britain and France called on Israel and Syria to avoid a military confrontation and urged the president to remain at his post.

"I have the legality but not the authority," the 53-year-old president reportedly said.

Informed sources said he was demanding a redefinition of the Syrian role in law enforcement and the eventual disarming of all Christian and Moslem militias and the Palestinian guerrillas.

The Lebanese state radio said both Christian and Moslem leaders were trying to dissuade Sarkis, a Christian with no political following or private militia, from quitting.

Syria's gunners were silent today, observing an unproclaimed cease-fire that began at dawn Thursday after the heaviest barrage of the six-day Syrian attack on the Christian half of Beirut. Sporadic sniper fire continued from Christian militiamen, but the 600,000 Christian residents began venturing out of their basement shelters.

The police reported at least 184 Christians killed and 615 wounded since the first Syrian attack last Saturday. Syria did not report its casualties, but Christian gunmen claimed they killed many of their foes.

President Carter called for an end to the fighting, saying it "adds to the hatred and suffering accumulated over several years of tragedy in Lebanon."

In Jerusalem, Eliahu ben-Ellisar, the director of Prime Minister Menachem Begin's office, declared Israel's commitment "not to let the Christian population be annihilated in Lebanon."

Begin said at a dinner Thursday night the "massacre" of Lebanese Christians demonstrated what could happen to Israel if it withdraws from the territories it occupied in the 1973 war.

District attorney limits coverage

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Potter County District Attorney Tom Curtis has imposed what he calls "common sense" restrictions on reporters from the Amarillo Globe-News covering his office.

Curtis announced Thursday that reporters for the newspaper will be required to telephone in advance and make an appointment either with him, his first assistant or the administrative deputy before interviews will be granted or any information released from his office.

Curtis said the Globe-News is the only news medium on which the restrictions are being imposed. He said the restrictions would treat Globe-News reporters "as the agents and employees of a hostile and malicious adversary."

The district attorney made his statements after implying he might file a libel suit against the newspaper in connection with a story published in last Sunday's edition about a telephone conversation he had with Potter County Commissioner Steve Scott.

Scott taped the June 14 conversation, which concerned salaries for workers in the district attorney's office.

Curtis said he construed Curtis, in the conversation, to be threatening legal action against the Commissioner's Court unless the commissioners followed Curtis' recommendation on the budget for the district attorney's office.

Curtis imposed his news restrictions after lashing out at length at the Globe-News, which published a transcript of the taped conversation between Scott and Curtis.

Curtis labeled the news story and published tape "a Pearl Harbor."

"After Pearl Harbor, they excluded the Japanese ambassador, and I think rightfully so," Curtis said during an interview in his office Thursday.

Curtis said newspaper interviews would be granted only if Globe-News reporters called ahead for an appointment. But he said they would be granted only "insofar as they don't interfere with other activities," and he said the reporters would not be welcome in his office.

"This applies only to the newspaper and its representatives," Curtis stressed.

He said some district attorney's offices have a press secretary and many have reception areas where visitors wait and are admitted when appointments have been made and their business stated in advance.

"This is a common sense restriction," he said.

Curtis said the restriction on Globe-News reporters is necessary "because of our physical facilities — we have no reception room and we can't very well give free run of the office to news people likely to betray confidences and lie about what they see or hear."

"This isn't discrimination, it's just common sense. I can assure you that I'm not going to penalize or do anything to make things difficult for other news media. I want to emphasize that these restrictions are only to representatives of the newspaper."

Curtis said that while placing the restrictions of the newspaper, "I'm determined to preserve the public's right to know the truth."

Meanwhile Thursday, County Commissioner Scott mailed letters of grievance against Curtis to the general counsel of the State Bar of Texas in Austin and to a member of the Amarillo Bar Association's grievance committee, complaining of Curtis' telephone disclosure.

Teachers vow to fight reform

DALLAS (AP) — Members of the National Education Association have pocketed the anti-Proposition 13 buttons they sported all week and left their annual convention resolved to battle similar tax-cutting measures in other states.

Before the conference ended Thursday, some 8,000 delegates overwhelmingly approved five action items aimed at insuring the health of public education in the face of taxpayer revolts.

The organization voted to make one-third federal funding of education its top legislative objective for the coming year, a decade-old goal that NEA president John Ryor said has taken on new importance in the aftermath of California's controversial property tax limitation initiative.

Proposition 13 limited California property taxes as of July 1 to 1 percent of market value, reducing tax revenues statewide an average 57 percent.

School districts were hit especially hard by the initiative because most now receive an average 75 percent of their funds from local property taxes.

The politically influential organization, whose 1.8 million members are mostly teachers, also voted to increase its efforts for passage of the ERA and, if necessary, for extension of the March 1979 ratification deadline.

Authorities had searched a three-mile radius on foot, on horseback and in airplanes and helicopters around Taylor's Bayou where the car was found but turned up nothing, not even footprints.

Pounds said the search by his deputies, Jefferson County sheriff's deputies, the Texas Rangers and the FBI would continue Friday.

Pounds said there were blood stains throughout the house and the elder Phillips' work shoes and overalls were tossed by the bed. On the bed authorities found his wallet containing $97 and his wife's purse with $230 in cash.

Ike Revia, 18, said he spotted the burning blue Ford with Oklahoma tags about 4 a.m. Sunday 12 miles southeast of the home of 64-year-old Bishop Phillips, a tenant rice farmer.

Phillips, his wife, Ester, his 31-year-old son, Elmer, and his wife, Martha, and their 4-year-old son were reported missing early Monday.

Revia said he called local fire officials about the car, which belonged to Elmer Phillips. He said he waited for about an hour near the car, but when no one showed up he left and thought nothing more about it. Chambers County Sheriff Doll Pounds said late Thursday au-

Attorney general ruled in contempt

By PAUL SERAFINI

Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Lawyers for Attorney General Griffin B. Bell are trying to overturn a contempt of court ruling issued because Bell refused to give the Socialist Workers Party the files of 18 FBI informants.

A hearing on the appeal was scheduled today, a day after Bell filed an affidavit in U.S. District Court to force the contempt issue and thus allow a higher court to review the government's position against producing the files.

"I am advised by the solicitor general that my entering a status of contempt will allow appellate review of the court's ruling concerning informants," Bell said in the affidavit filed Thursday with Judge Thomas P. Griesa.

Griesa, on vacation in California, responded almost immediately by invoking a contempt citation issued last week but held in abeyance to give the nation's highest law enforcement officer a final chance to give up the files.

Government lawyers answered Griesa's order by filing papers with an Appeals Court judge to stay the contempt citation pending appeal.

A Justice Department spokesman in Washington said it was not unprecedented for an attorney general to defy a court order. But he said he knew of no prior case in which an attorney general actually had been held in contempt for such defiance.

In issuing his ultimatum last week, Griesa denied a motion by the Socialist Workers Party to jail Bell until he complies but gave permission for the motion to be renewed if the attorney general continued to defy the order. Attorneys for the party said they would ask Griesa on Monday to jail Bell until he turns over the files.

Griesa's order, issued a year ago, was to enable lawyers for the party to proceed with trial of a $40 million damage suit against the government on claims that the FBI engaged in break-ins and other illegal activities while keeping track of the party between 1938 and 1976. The party says the files are necessary to show the nature and extent of the alleged wrongful acts.

In his affidavit filed Thursday, Bell urged Griesa to stay his order and certify that it should be reviewed by higher courts or impose sanctions other than contempt.

Bell said Griesa's ruling was "unprecedented and damaging to the government's ability to obtain information through informants for law enforcement and foreign counter-intelligence purposes."

Following submission of the Bell affidavit, a telephone conference was held between the judge, U.S. Attorney Robert B. Fiske Jr., who represented Bell, and party lawyer Leonard Boudin, who opposed a stay.

Intruder was son

CONROE, Texas (AP) — Anne Sebree had planned to celebrate her 68th birthday today, surrounded by her 14 children and their families.

But she was hospitalized Thursday in a state of shock after she accidentally shot and killed one of her sons who had driven in early to surprise her, police said.

Police said Earl Lynn Sebree, 27, and his family arrived from Oklahoma City about 4:30 a.m. and Sebree decided to surprise his mother.

Lt. George Frost, of the Montgomery County Sheriff's Department, said no one knows how Sebree got into the house.

He said Mrs. Sebree, startled by what she thought was a prowler, called out but got no response. The officer theorized perhaps the son wanted to greet his mother with a kiss.

But in the darkness, he was only a silhouette, an faceless intruder.

The woman fired once from about 6 feet away with a .38-caliber pistol, hitting her son in the face. He died 2½ hours later at a Houston hospital.

Police termed the shooting a tragic accident.

The natural free market

OUR EDITORIALS HAVE maintained, again and again, that labor, business management and the consuming public are natural partners in a free, competitive market economy.

Why natural? When a free market is allowed to function, all relationships between the three groupings — labor, management (representing capital owners) and consumers — are voluntary and mutually profitable. Otherwise, they would not occur.

Transactions carried out in a free market are natural because each of the three groupings is naturally dependent upon the others to make the system work.

Labor needs the organizational expertise provided by management and the production-enhancing tools provided by the owners of capital. Management needs labor and its skills to operate those tools of production. Either, without the other, is helpless. They both need each other if production is to take place.

THAT LEAVES THE CONSUMERS. In the same way that labor and management are dependent upon each other, both are dependent upon consumers. For their part, consumers are likewise dependent upon labor and management. Without consumers, there would be no reason for production. Without production, there would be nothing for consumers to consume.

This natural, voluntary competitive free market is self-policing in that it is controlled by the consumers (all of us). That control, objective and relentless as the wind or the tides, is exerted in essentially two ways.

1. WITH THEIR DELIBERATE and uncoerced choices in a free market, consumers tell producers (i.e., labor and management) what they want produced, how much and of what quality. By paying attention to these consumer choices, producers know what it is the consumers are demanding or rejecting. That is one signal and control which consumers transmit to producers by their choices in the free market.

2. The other controlling signal transmitted to producers by the market has to do with prices. When all of a product or service offered to consumers at a given price clears the market — is sold — without leaving any unsatisfied demand, that means the consumers have indicated their approval and therefore that the price is the market or "right" price. If all of the product or service offered is snapped up leaving an unsatisfied demand or part of the offered product or service goes unsold, consumers have indicated by their choices that the price at which offered was either too low or too high.

THESE SIGNALS GENERATED in the free market by choice-making consumers tell producers whether current production of a given product or service is too much, or too little or just right. Producers who pay the closest attention to these consumer-generated signals and interpret them most accurately, are the ones who prosper by serving consumers best.

Since labor itself is a priced commodity competing for employment in a competitive market, choices made by consumers and the prices such choices show they are willing to pay for products and services, tell management, not only what must be produced and how priced, but what it can afford to pay for labor.

The point we make is that the free market, from beginning to end, is a natural process based on voluntary exchange and mutual benefit to all participants. Any coercive interference with this natural process, whether by government or force-using unions or private individuals, is unnatural, counter-productive and harmful to all concerned.

Phony sheepskins

"I'M A YALE man, myself," boasts the man at the end of the bar. And these days he probably can buy some sort of credentials to prove it.

Certainly it's easy enough to purchase phony documents to "prove" graduation from trade schools, colleges and even law schools. The practice is a major problem.

Phony diplomas are especially troublesome among prestige schools because cheaters figure they might as well shoot the works. Yale University, for instance, has on file more than 7,000 persons who improperly claim to be alumni.

Half a loaf

The Senate is set to vote now on a measure that would cap pay increases for the federal government's 450,000 blue-collar workers. The measure is by no means the most far-reaching change that's been proposed lately for the federal wage system under which these workers operate. But now that the Jarvis amendment has sent a rather unmistakable message to Washington, maybe the idea of a cap will attract some new senatorial support.

Up until now, the federal blue-collar workers have had things pretty good. For one thing, they've been getting paid more than their private-sector counterparts. In theory, federal pay is set equal to prevailing wages for similar work in the local area. But each federal pay grade is divided into five wage steps. Under law, a worker in Step 2 gets the prevailing wage.

But in the federal government, promotions come quickly and nearly automatically, so at any given time the average employee has reached almost to Step 4. This means the average federal blue-collar employee is being paid more than the average private sector prevailing wage — which costs the government a nice little pile of money.

Moreover, the blue-collar workers have been immune to the kind of belt-tightening that's hit other federal workers over the past few years. Their wages have been increasing faster than those of their white-collar counterparts, and President

ONE REASON FOR the brisk trade in fake documents is the intense competition among students seeking to enter graduate schools. Others fabricate academic records in order to borrow money, boost egos, get jobs, lure investors or to impress friends.

Despite double checking of records and even resorting to the use of fingerprints in some cases, colleges and universities cannot seem to stem the tide.

Perhaps the best way in the end is to judge a person by his abilities and not his sheepskin.

Carter's current proposal to limit white-collar pay increases to 5.5 percent next year leaves the blue collars free.

The Civil Service Commission has submitted a bill that would reform the system by seeing to it that federal and private blue-collar wages remain truly equal. This proposal has, not surprisingly, gotten nowhere. But at least something has happened on the wage front this year: Sen. Thomas Eagleton has gotten an amendment through the Senate Appropriations Committee that would extend the 5.5 percent cap to the federal blue-collar work force, as well as white-collar types.

The Carter administration hasn't given official support to the measure: They seem to figure that they're in enough trouble with the unions over their civil service reform proposals. But it would be nice to see the Eagleton amendment pass. It may not be a spectacular inflation-fighting weapon, but it would do a little something to keep the federal deficit down and distribute the burden of governmental restraint equitably. The Senate is full of people these days who are swearing new-found allegiance to the idea of fiscal probity in Washington; maybe now they'll start putting their votes where their mouths are.

By Martha Angle and Robert Walters
Washington (NEA) - The hospital serving one Army base in Georgia is so understaffed that doctors must see as many as 100 patients daily. The physicians work in wooden huts, built as temporary structures by German prisoners of war in 1942.

In Louisiana, a new Navy hospital built at a cost of more than $21 million boasts a 250-bed capacity and the most modern medical equipment. Yet patient admissions have averaged less than five per day since the facility opened.

The striking contrast between those hospitals vividly illustrates the scandalously inept planning, coordination and management of the 190 hospitals and 120 clinics operated around the world by the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Known as the Military Health Services System, that network of facilities bears the responsibility of providing health care for 9 million people — members and retirees of the armed forces, their dependents and their survivors.

Operation of the system this year will

Military hospitals: so sick cost the taxpayers an estimated $2.5 billion, a figure that covers only domestic facilities. But there is increasing evidence that neither the patients nor the public is getting their money's worth.

After Rep. Robin L. Beard, R-Tenn., last year visited the base hospital at the Army's Fort Stewart, just west of Savannah, Ga., he reported that "the physical facilities ... were not only substandard, they were hazardous."

The hospital had authority to hire 36 doctors. But its staff numbered only 23 physicians, and they were responsible for serving 60,000 potential patients. One lone internist was available to serve 15,000 active-duty troops.

A new hospital has been authorized, but it won't be completed until 1983 and will have a capacity of only 135 beds. "It probably will be inadequate to meet patient requirements at the time of its completion," predicts Beard.

The Navy has no such problems with the F. Edward Hebert Hospital in New Orleans. Completed early last year, it is named after the Louisiana Democrat who retired in 1976 after serving 36 years in the House of Representatives.

More than a year after the hospital was opened, less than half of its 250 beds are in place — and most of those are vacant. The monthly occupancy rate has averaged less than 15 percent.

Rep. Robert Carr, D-Mich., and two aides to Rep. Thomas J. Downey, D-N.Y., toured the hospital earlier this year, then wrote Navy Secretary W. Graham Clayton Jr. about their experience:

"It is a blatant waste of money and resources; a beautiful, expensive and shamefully underutilized medical facility ... A visitor to the hospital is astounded by ... the unused floors and untouched rooms, the acres of unfilled parking spaces, and the pristine emptiness of the entire facility."

In another case, 23 of the 28 physicians practicing at the hospital serving Offutt Air Force Base in Bellevue, Neb. have publicly cited "questionable practices at our hospital that are unprofessional, unethical, improper, unjust (and) seriously threaten patient care..."

In a letter to Rep. John J. Cavanaugh, D-Neb., the doctors late last year complained about the "adversary, punitive and degrading manner" of the hospital commander and an acute personnel shortage that forced physicians to work 60 to 80 hours per week, with some duty tours lasting 24 hours.

The military services unfortunately are seeking only temporary solutions to enduring problems. The Navy is looking for a civilian purchaser for its Hebert Hospital, and the Air Force dispatched a team of investigators to produce a "whitewash" report on the problems in Nebraska.

But little is being done to properly allocate scarce medical resources or to stem the exodus of physicians who leave the armed services because of broken promises, ill-qualified supervisors and inadequate supplies and facilities.

Without a major overhaul of the entire system, the prognosis for recovery will remain very bleak.

On the equal rights front

You win some and you lose some.

Equal rights has scored a highly visible victory in Washington. The ranks of the presidential honor guard are now open to women servicepeople, a breakthrough which if nothing else should assure Rosalynn Carter of a footnote in history.

What goes at the White House does not for the Fire Department in New York City, however.

For the first time women were admitted to the physical fitness test for applicant firefighters. All 81 women flunked while 7,847 men passed what the department admitted was the most arduous testing of endurance and agility ever administered.

Among other feats, applicants were required to carry a 120-pound dummy up and down a flight of stairs, perform a standing broad jump of at least 6 feet 2 inches, run a mile in less than 7.5 minutes and walk a 2.5 inch wide 30-foot wall while carrying a 26-pound backpack.

One of the women is appealing her failing grade on grounds, among others, that the requirements of the physical test discriminated against women and there was no woman among her judges.

If at first you don't succeed, take it to court.

If the hardhat fits...

As it happens, women seeking to enter traditional male fields have a powerful friend at court — Uncle Sam.

Take the construction industry. Regulations designed to open construction trades to women now apply to a large proportion of both federally assisted and non-federal projects.

As a result, more and more hardhats are on women's heads, according to an industry survey by Construction Contracting magazine. As of last August, there were an estimated 30,000 women in the national total of some three million construction workers, serving as everything from laborers to such skilled craft workers as electricians.

Their numbers are likely to increase under federal rules that require contractors doing business with the government to set specific goals and timetables for hiring women. The magazine forecasts women climbing from 3.1 percent of the construction work force in 1979 to 6.9 percent by 1981.

There is admittedly some male resentment at the development. But it does not appear to be bothering the women who, having found a hat that fits, are deciding to wear it.

Climbing the corporate ladder

Women are also doing better higher up on the employment ladder.

Currently comprising more than 40 percent of the entire work force, women are moving out of their clerical and service ghetto and into better-paying corporate jobs.

Between 1970 and 1975, the proportion of women in management positions rose from 16 to 19 percent, according to a survey by The Conference Board. The gain was not spectacular, the economic research organization noted, but considering the short time span — which included a recession — it is considered significant.

The corporate economy is still male dominated, employing some 68 percent of all working men compared with 50 percent of women.

But the long-term trend is toward greater parity.

She's a hard sell

What's new with women drivers?

There are more of them — at least more women car owners.

The number of women who buy and own cars in their own names has been climbing at the rate of about 5 percent annually and currently accounts for about 13 percent of total car sales — 1.5 million out of 11.2 million in 1977.

The good news for the auto industry is that more women holding better jobs is boosting car sales. The not-so-good news is that they tend to be a tougher sale than men — more set in their ways and less easily persuaded.

Expanded corporate couple

Speaking of working women, a group on the West Coast is pioneering a special type of job training.

They are corporate wives, and under a program being developed by Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp. in its Coast facilities, they are learning more about their husbands' work than is usually the case in a well-ordered marriage.

Named IRIS after the mythological Greek messenger and goddess of the rainbow, the program fills the wives in on not only their husbands' specific responsibilities but the company, its products and its role in society. They receive regular mailings of financial statements, internal publications and employee newsletters and may take in-depth tours of company facilities. If they desire, the wives may take speech training to prepare themselves for more active community roles.

The program, intended eventually to be available at company facilities nationwide, is designed not only to increase a wife's understanding of her husband's career but to expand her own capabilities.

The result could be a corporate couple whose sum is greater than its parts.

Growing moonlighter ranks

Moonlighting becomes increasing numbers of Americans, judging by a recent survey.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics puts the number of individuals holding down more than one job at some four million. Most are in professional fields such as education or accounting, and most also find second jobs in similar areas.

The great majority of moonlighters are men, usually with families. But almost one quarter — more than 900,000 — are women.

Toxic clouds hover over Mexico City

By KERNAN TURNER
Associated Press Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) — You think you have smog?

Now in Mexico City it is so bad that:
A leading business magazine recently suggested wryly that the tourist brochures be rewritten to say: "Visit Mexico City and pass romantic late afternoons beneath the most toxic clouds on earth."

One enterprising real estate company has placed a large billboard along an expressway 20 miles north of the city's center, saying: "Take off your gas mask, you have just entered a fresh air zone."

On weekends, millions of Mexico City residents stream to the countryside to experience something missing for five days: fresh air.

"The Metropolitan area is condemned to death by pollution before the year 2000," claims Ramon Ojeda Mestre, president of the Academy of Ecological Law, a private organization of lawyers affiliated with the International Council of Environmental Law.

"So far," he said, "we have been able to keep one step ahead of catastrophe."

What has prompted the article in the business magazine Expansion, the billboard sign and the weekend exodus is dense smog that rises almost daily over a city of 14 million people which plays host to 2.4 million tourists a year?

It is a cloud of motor-vehicle and industrial pollution that experts estimate now weighs 650 tons and will weigh 5,000 tons by the year 2000 unless something is done about it.

Dr. Abelard Monges Nicolau, a cancer specialist, says lung cancer is increasing in the city. He did not give figures, and said he could not prove with certainty that pollution is to blame.

"However, it has been proven," he added, "that a person breathing the air in Mexico City is breathing the equivalent of 10 to 12 cigarettes a day."

Most inhabitants suffer frequent sore throats, eye irritation and bronchial reactions, and druggists report brisk sales, especially on polluted days, of inhalers and eye drops, although there are no firm statistics linking the pollution with health problems.

The orange-hued smog collects in the high-altitude dish among the mountains in which Mexico City sits, filling the air with pollutants: carbon monoxide, hydrocarbons, sulfur dioxide, nitrogen oxides and dust blown in from nearby dry lake beds.

Dr. Humberto Bravo Alvarez, chief of the air pollution institute at the National University of Mexico, says: "The possibility of a smog disaster such as occurred in London exists but it has not occurred because of meteorological reasons."

The so-called black smog which struck London in 1952 was the greatest air pollution disaster in recorded history. An inversion layer — in which polluted air becomes trapped on the ground by atmospheric conditions above it — shrouded the city for five days. About 4,000 people died from breathing the polluted air and others suffered premature deaths from the effects.

Bravo Alvarez and others say Mexico City has such heavy pollution partly because of its unique location, 7,800 feet above sea level, sitting on a dry lake bed in a bowl surrounded by deserts and high mountains.

"This causes night inversions," Bravo Alvarez said. "The danger is that one of these days the nightly inversion may not lift."

Bravo Alvarez said there are few public studies here of air pollution, but one he undertook in 1974 showed Mexico City's annual average Pindex rating — used to measure pollution — was 2.48.

That compares with 2.12 that year in Los Angeles, which is known for its smog, and 2.18 in Chicago, 2.04 in Philadelphia, 1.45 in Denver, 1.25 in San Francisco and 1.13 in San Diego.

Government studies comparing visibility during January show that it has dropped from an average of 10 miles in 1937 to only 2 1/2 miles now.

There are rare days, mostly Sundays and holidays, when the mountains surrounding the city are visible — days when factories are closed and motor vehicle traffic is not as heavy as on work days. An estimated 1.5 million vehicles circulate in the city on weekdays.

Jose Ruis Mijares, director of the Department of Atmospheric Sanitation, says motor vehicles account for 86 percent of the fumes in the city's air. One reason is that Mexico has a low-grade gasoline which burns poorly, much of it in old, poorly maintained vehicles.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
 Thunderstorms roared across eastern sections of the Texas Panhandle early today, but rainfall amounts were generally light.
 Forecasters said more thunderstorm activity was expected today in western and southern portions of the state.
 Most of the state had clear to partly cloudy skies today with highs expected to be mostly in the upper 90s and around the 100-degree mark.

Leftists hurl dung in protest

By DONALD M. McNICOLL
 Associated Press Writer
 LONDON (AP) — The daughter of Malta's prime minister and another leftist were ordered to court today for hurling bags of horse dung down on the debating House of Commons to protest British control of Northern Ireland.
 Yana Mintoff, 26-year-old daughter of Prime Minister Dom Mintoff, and John McSherry, 24, were charged with causing criminal damage to the floor of the lower house of Parliament.
 The couple were dragged, screaming slogans, from the Commons visitors' gallery Thursday night after throwing down three plastic bags filled with horse manure during debate on home rule for Scotland.
 Amid jokes about "point of ordure," some members questioned how the pair had been able to smuggle their missiles through Parliament's supposedly tight security screen.
 If it had been plastic bombs instead, "there would have been a lot of by-elections," said the Rev. Ian Paisley, the firebrand Protestant deputy from Northern Ireland who earlier Thursday staged a demonstration of his own in the Houses of Parliament.
 The first bag broke on the head of Dennis Skinner, a Laborite who friends said had often observed that politics is a dirty business. His sport coat was the chief casualty.
 Speaker George Thomas suspended the session for 20 minutes while attendants cleaned up the mess.
 Security is supposed to have been strict in the Houses of Parliament since the Irish Republican Army planted a bomb four years ago that damaged paneling and furnishings.
 "MPs cannot be exposed to this kind of peril any longer," said Nicholas Winteron, a Conservative member.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Shell Oil Co. is close to completing exploratory ocean drilling in the Baltimore Canyon Trough, but a Shell spokesman says it will be days before the company announces if oil has been found 73 miles east of this resort city.
 Continental Oil Co. announced last month that its nearby well came up dry. Six other oil companies are drilling in the Baltimore Canyon, an underwater geological formation off New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Virginia and Maryland that geologists consider a prime site for oil and natural gas deposits.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A federal suit demanding an International Men's Year conference similar to the one held for women last year has been ruled "non-justiciable" by a U.S. district judge.
 Judge Howell W. Melton Thursday dismissed a suit by Paul E. Dozier of Jacksonville Beach, filed on behalf of all men, that sought a $5 million appropriation by Congress to finance the event. Melton said the suit failed to state a cause suitable for a court ruling.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new government policy will provide an estimated 40,000 Americans an average $100 in additional Social Security benefits over the next year. The recipients are those whose spouses worked past age 65.
 The policy will allow the widows and widowers to collect the delayed retirement credit their spouses had earned. Previously, only the worker could collect the credit, not the widow or widower. The extra benefit — about $2 a week — began appearing in the widows' and widowers' checks this week along with an annual 6.5 percent cost-of-living increase.

Test drive sends young motorist to hospital

An accident involving two Pampa youth occurred yesterday at 11:55 a.m. on Price road.
 Mike Hickman, 15, was test driving a 1972 2 door Volkswagon from Jerry Don's Auto, when according to Wayne Williams, Texas State Highway Patrol, the car started to wobble and the youth lost control of the car. Williams said that vehicle rolled over once, ejecting the driver. The vehicle was north bound on Price road, and left the west side of the roadway.
 Also in the vehicle was Mike Lamberson, 16, 1700 Grape.
 Both Hickman and Lamberson were taken to the hospital by Metropolitan General Ambulance Co. Hickman received facial lacerations, and a laceration to the forehead. He is currently listed in satisfactory condition. Lamberson received a knee injury and bruises. He has been released.
 Hickman received a citation for no drivers license, and Lamberson received a citation for permitting a minor to drive without a drivers license.

Witnesses called in investigation

PLAINVIEW, Texas (AP) — A Hale County grand jury investigating the shooting death of Timothy Rosales Jr., 25, during a scuffle with a reserve sheriff's deputy, called 16 witnesses to today's closed-door session.
 The grand jury opened its investigation into the June 25 shooting Thursday after considering several other cases. Before recessing until today, grand jurors listened to testimony from two Department of Public Safety chemists and the pathologist who conducted an autopsy on Rosales' body.
 The pathologist, Dr. Jose A. Diaz-Esquivel, said previously tests showed Rosales was "pretty drunk" when he died during a scuffle with the reserve deputy.
 Hale County Sheriff Charles Tue has identified the deputy involved as Charles Cypert, 45, and said Cypert stopped Rosales' car at a rural intersection because it was running on the rims of two wheels.
 When Cypert approached the car, Tue said, Rosales ran but was subdued by the officer in the front yard of a nearby residence.
 The deputy's .45-caliber pistol discharged during the scuffle, and Rosales was killed. Cypert was suspended from the force pending an investigation.

In 1977, Dutch growers produced some two billion tulip bulbs, and 142 million of them were shipped to the United States.

Youthful driver injured

An automobile accident involving Mike Hickman, 15, and Mike Lamberson, 16, sent both youths to the hospital. Volunteers and the ambulance service personnel are seen loading Hickman, the driver, onto the stretcher.

Hawkins found guilty

HEREFORD — Samuel Christopher Hawkins was found guilty in a Houston District Court yesterday of charges of aggravated rape involving a 23-year-old Hereford housewife.
 A jury of six men and six women deliberated about one hour before the guilty verdict was returned at the close of a trial in which Hawkins acted as his own defense attorney.
 The trial had been moved to Houston from Deaf Smith County on a change of venue. Sentencing of Hawkins in the Houston court is set for July 17.
 The charge carries a mandatory life sentence.
 Hawkins was found guilty of capital murder in a Lubbock trial on a charge filed in connection with the March 17, 1977, knife-slashing of Abbe Hamilton of Borger. He was assessed the death penalty in that case.
 The murder case was moved to Lubbock County on a change of venue from Hutchinson County.
 Hawkins is charged with another capital murder in connection with the February 1976 slaying of Rhonda Keys, 12, of Amarillo.
 He allegedly has confessed to a dozen rapes throughout the Panhandle in 1976 and 1977, according to Amarillo police.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband owns his own business. It's small, but fairly successful. He has 10 men working for him and one girl (I'll call her "Jill") who handles the office and does a great job. Jill is only 20 and not super-attractive, but not ugly either.

My husband and four of the men who work for him recently formed a bowling team. They're all married men with families. Well, Jill decided that these men need her support, so she started showing up at the bowling alley with a girlfriend when the men bowl.

One of the wives complained to me about it, so I told my husband and he said it's a free country and Jill can go anywhere she wants. He said he doesn't want to lose her as an employee, so he's not going to say anything to her.

I say she should be told very nicely to clean up her act. She gave my husband a Christmas present after working for him about a month. I think she's coming on too strong, but if you think I'm wrong, I'll let it go.

Sign me...

LOOKING OUT FOR NO. 1

DEAR LOOKING: I fail to see what is "dirty" about the girl's act. I agree with your husband. Jill has a right to go where she wants. And if you and the other wives are wise, you'll pull in your claws.

DEAR ABBY: I wish you would say something about the selfishness of people who buy two-door automobiles when they could just as easily buy a car with four doors. Of course, those two-door car owners don't have to worry. They always ride up in front, and never have the inconvenience of having to crawl in and out of a car and be confined back there with no leg room whatsoever.

Please don't tell me that two-door cars are cheaper. When one spends $6,000 for an automobile, a few hundred dollars more doesn't matter. I have also heard the excuse that two-door models are sportier and better looking! That is also ridiculous.

Personally, I would rather stay home than ride in the back seat of a two-door car. And I hope you will see fit to print this in your column because I know others share my opinion.

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: Two-door cars are preferred by some parents with small children. Others prefer them for other reasons. The option is yours: Ride or stay home.

DEAR ABBY: When I married my husband he was a quiet, modest man, but success has changed him. We have just returned from a "vacation" that I must admit I did not enjoy.

My husband's financial success has given him what he calls "confidence." I call it an overbearing tendency to brag. Everyone we met had to listen to his rags-to-riches story. It was embarrassing. He has made an outstanding success in business, but where is his modesty and taste?

Proud as I am of his success, I long for the humble man who sat quietly by my side and talked of something other than himself and his money.

I love him. How can I help him?

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Tell him, my dear. Tell him.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Could you please help me. I am a married woman 42 years old. I have a part-time job but I don't get much exercise. I play tennis once a week. I have gained 10 pounds and just can't lose it.

Do you have a diet that would be good for me, as far as cholesterol goes and what I should have and what I shouldn't? I sure would appreciate your help. I am in good health otherwise.

DEAR READER — You are at the time of life when the "middle-age spread" occurs and it is wise for you to do something about it now. You've put your finger on a major part of the problem — a decrease in physical activity. Rather than restrict yourself too severely with a diet, I'd like to see you increase your physical activity and correct the basic fault. If you could just plan on walking two miles a day in addition to your present activity, in a year's time that would make a lot of difference.

The other approach you could use is to develop some type of fairly good calisthenic program that you can do at home each morning when you first get out of bed. It will also give you an energy boost that wakes you up and gets you started. Literally it warms up your motor. That's why I like to see people exercise when they first get up.

At your request I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

This is a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet. You'll find all good dietary programs are, because a major source of calories in most people's diet is the fat in their food. A gram of fat contains more calories than any other food you eat, nine calories per gram compared to four calories per gram for both carbohydrate and protein.

Office workers, which I presume you may be since you say you don't get much exercise, really need exercise to keep their energy level up. The reason many an office worker feels tired at the end of the evening is not because he works so hard but because he hasn't had any physical activity. The mistake most people make is to come home and sit down and often have a cocktail. Just sitting down and resting at that point in time is not what you need at all.

Most office workers would be well advised at the end of the day to have some form of physical exercise. The exercise metabolizes accumulated adrenaline products that naturally develop in the course of the day's stress. When you stop and think about it, man's natural life style before civilization changed it included a lot of activity and not the type of confined stress that occurs with most office situations.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What risk would a man age 60 face in having a hair transplant?

DEAR READER — Not much. The usual procedure is to take small plugs of good hair follicles from the side of the head and insert them over the bald area. This is a relatively simple procedure although it is fairly time consuming and therefore costly. I should think that anyone in reasonably good health could expect to have the procedure done without it causing him any major difficulties. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — The children will eat twice as much hot cereal if you put vanilla ice cream in it instead of milk and sugar.

Use a rubber band to hold a cloth around your furniture polish can, etc. and replace with a clean cloth when needed. There will be no more looking for a cleaning cloth.

We buy windshield cleaner by the gallon, fill spray containers with it and keep one in the kitchen and one in each bathroom. The shine and the savings are both great.

When relaxing and doing hand sewing in the living room I put needles, pins, scissors and whatever in one container. When the phone rings I just have to grab one container and the phone so there is nothing for little fingers to get into when they see I have left.

Wisconsin noted for fine cheeses

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer
About once a year, business has taken me to Wisconsin, and I have been struck by the variety of cheeses made in the nation's leading dairy state.

Years ago, Swiss, German and Danish settlers, reproducing the famous cheeses of their native lands, established and fostered Wisconsin's cheese industry. Today, I'm told, the state puts out nearly half of all the cheese produced in this country.

Wisconsin is famous for its Cheddar, but the dairymen are even prouder of their Swiss. They will tell you without batting an eye that their product is better than that of Switzerland.

There are many other foreign cheeses. duplicated in Wisconsin. I consider the Provolone more delicate and tastier than the Italian original. The spiced Gouda is superb and Wisconsin Fondutta bears a close resemblance to Munster. It differs only in being softer and more buttery.

There is also Wisconsin Brick, a creamy yellow cheese which is midway between Cheddar and Limburger. When new, Brick is quite mild, but it gains strength as it ages. It is delicious with beer or ale.

Wisconsin is also noted for its blue cheese, that veined, crumbly delicacy with such a piquant flavor. There are other varieties I have never heard of back East; cheeses like Longhorn and Boccini.

One thing I learned sampling Wisconsin's Parmesan. When fresh it is good eaten in chunks. It is grated on pasta and dressings after it ages.

There is a fascination about this universal food which is one of the oldest known to humanity. Cheese has appeared in one form or another wherever man has grazed animals and used their milk.

Cheese is an adequate substitute for meat and in countries where the cost of meat is prohibitive people get much of their protein from cheese. Americans are rapidly finding this out, with the soaring costs in our butcher shops.

Here's a simple recipe for cheese pie that makes a nice luncheon or supper dish.

Pastry for 1 crust
9-inch pie, unbaked
1 1/2 ounces grated Wisconsin Swiss
8 slices crisp bacon, crumbled
3 eggs

1 cup heavy cream
2 ounces light cream
1 ounce dry white wine
1 dash Tabasco
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon powdered mustard

Roll pastry to 1/8-inch thickness and line 9-inch pie plate, fluting edges. Sprinkle cheese and bacon into pan. Beat remaining ingredients together and pour into lined pan. Bake in preheated 375-degree oven for 45 minutes. Serves 4-6. Good with chilled, dry white wine.

Blueberries for variety of desserts

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor
Blueberries are at their peak. They are good with milk or cottage cheese for breakfast and in fresh fruit salads. But they are also recipe winners as baked desserts.

Enjoy blueberries fresh while you can in a blueberry-banana crisp or a blueberry buckle. Both desserts are best when served warm with whipped cream or scoops of ice cream.

BLUEBERRY-BANANA CRISP
4 cups fresh blueberries, rinsed and drained
2 ripe bananas, sliced
1/4 cup cornstarch
1/2 cup sugar
1 cup water
1/2 teaspoon cardamom
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup cornflake crumbs
1/2 cup flour
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup butter or margarine

In a bowl, mix blueberries, bananas, cornstarch, sugar, water and spices. Pour mixture into a 1 1/2-quart casserole. In a bowl, mix remaining ingredients with fingers until crumbly. Sprinkle crumbs evenly over blueberries.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 40-to-45 minutes or until very brown and crisp. Serve warm topped with whipped cream or small scoops of vanilla ice cream. Makes 1 1/2-quart casserole.

BLUEBERRY BUCKLE
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup sugar
1 egg
1/4 teaspoon grated fresh lemon rind
1 teaspoon fresh lemon juice
1 cup unsifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup milk
2 cups (1 pt.) fresh blueberries, washed

In small bowl, cream butter and sugar. Beat in egg, lemon rind and lemon juice. Mix flour, baking powder and salt. Blend into creamed mixture alternately with milk. Turn into greased 9-by-9-by-2-inch baking pan. Sprinkle blueberries over batter. Then sprinkle topping over blueberries. Bake in 375 degree oven 60-to-65 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Serve warm, plain or with whipped cream or lemon sauce. Makes 8 servings.

Topping
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup unsifted all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon grated fresh lemon rind
1/4 cup butter or margarine

When you want to change the flavor of a favorite white or yellow cake, you can add a tablespoon of grated orange rind to the batter and frost the cake with an orange icing.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Racing pigeons begin their training when they are about four weeks old, according to the National Geographic Society.

At first, the birds, which have been bred for the sport since the early 1800s, stay in their own lofts. Then they are allowed to fly around the area. Their owners, after this initial period, will take them on longer and longer trips before releasing them to fly home.

Pigeon races start with owners bringing their birds, which have been banded, to the starting point in crates. They are released en masse and allowed to fly home.

When each bird returns, its owner removes the band and puts it into a device that records the time. Distance from starting point to roost is measured and correlated with time to determine the winning bird.

Pigeons have been clocked as fast as 90 mph with favorable winds and one U.S. Army bird made a 2,300-mile flight, according to National Geographic.

In 1969, the first case of a rabbit dog in more than 50 years was reported in Britain.

As long as you are realistic about your talents, a favorable turn affecting your career or lifestyle will be forthcoming. The year ahead offers many opportunities to better yourself and fortify your base.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The ways and means to strengthen your material resources should be presenting themselves today, but that's not an invitation to spend foolishly. Like to find out more about yourself? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You have more influence presently than you give yourself credit for. Others will be swayed by the example you set.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Continue to try to restrict yourself to as much privacy as necessary to get your task done, and handle any disruptions promptly, but quietly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'll do very well today where friends or large groups are involved, but try to keep financial propositions or obligations under control.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Achieving your goals could appear very elusive today, but don't let things fool you. When the day ends you should have what you strived for.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your way of handling people and representing yourself is far better than that of someone who would like you to think he or she has all the answers.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Override a person who might be trying to butt into your affairs. Maintain control to achieve your ends. You're on the right track.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Seek out the advice of associates today. One will give you a fresh outlook to help you make a more sensible major decision.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) What you have to offer is needed by another party, so don't sell your talents short today when he or she tries to bargain.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You have a manner and style that others find quite attractive and pleasing today, but be careful that someone doesn't take advantage of your good nature.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Keep your cool if you find yourself interrupted or upstaged today. You are so well organized that you'll still accomplish all you wish to do.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Getting caught up in the joys of communicating to such a point that you tend to chores haphazardly will double your work load.

Churches circulate Solzhenitsyn blast

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — That thundering blast at the spiritual decline of the west by Russian exile Alexander Solzhenitsyn is getting a wide airing in religious circles, including passages not generally reported elsewhere.

Some church publications have carried the full 4,500-word text, projecting his message as a kind of modern prophet's indictment of America's "present sickness."

"We turned our backs on the Spirit and...based western civilization on the dangerous trend to worship man and his material needs," he said in that

Family not good sex instructor

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A report of an eight-year "action research" project by an agency of the American Lutheran Church says the family is not necessarily the best teacher about sex.

"We can no longer assume that the family is necessarily equipped to share information about sexuality and facilitate development of sexually healthy human beings," the report says.

It was drawn up by the church's Service and Mission division on the basis of a study program on sexuality at the University of Minnesota's Medical School, involving 8,000 students and professionals such as doctors, clergy, social workers and counselors.

"The issue of human sexuality is critical to the life and health of the church and the planet on which we live," the report says. "The project brings the important issue of human sexuality to a place of stature and prominence on the agenda of the American Lutheran Church."

The order began in 1971 after Mother John Marie had a life-changing experience while studying at Columbia University in New York. While attending mass she witnessed a healing.

The nuns in the order range in age from 25 to 35. There are

June 9 commencement address to 15,000 at Harvard University. "Man's sense of responsibility to God and society grew dimmer and dimmer," he said. Calling it a "calamity of despiritualized and irreligious humanistic consciousness," plunging democracies toward ruin, he said:

"All the glorified technological achievements of progress, including the conquest of outer space, do not redeem the 20th century's moral poverty...."

Theologians noted that the Nobel laureate writer, banished from Russia in 1974 for his scathing portrayal of Soviet prison camps, identified the West's failing with the Biblically designated prime sin: self-deification of man as supreme.

To that inverted view, he said, "man is the touchstone of evaluating everything on earth."

Its modern social roots, he said, are in "rationalistic humanism," proclaiming the "autonomy of man from any higher force above him. It could also be called anthropocentricity, with man seen as the center of everything that exists."

He said it has "ugly parallels" with Marxism's oaths "about Man with a capital M," its rulers outlawing spiritual reality, while in the West "commercial interests" suffocate it.

"Society appears to have little defense against the abyss of human decadence such as...misuse of liberty for moral violence against young people, motion pictures full of pornography, crime and horror."

"It is considered to be part of freedom... Such a tilt of freedom in the direction of evil has come about gradually... There are meaningful warnings which history gives a... perishing society."

At the birth of American democracy, he said, "all individual human rights were granted because man is God's creature."

An investment in Your Future

ATTEND CHURCH

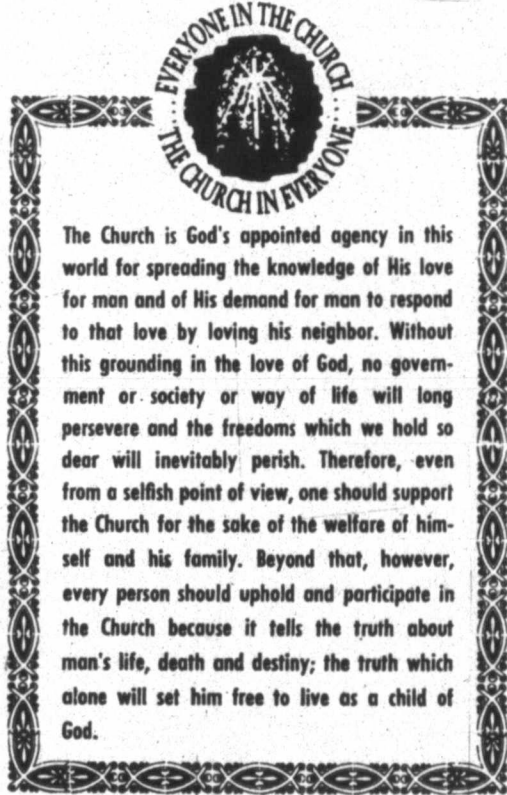

"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also"

Straight as an Arrow

In Archery you score only when you hit the target. To score well, you must have straight arrows.

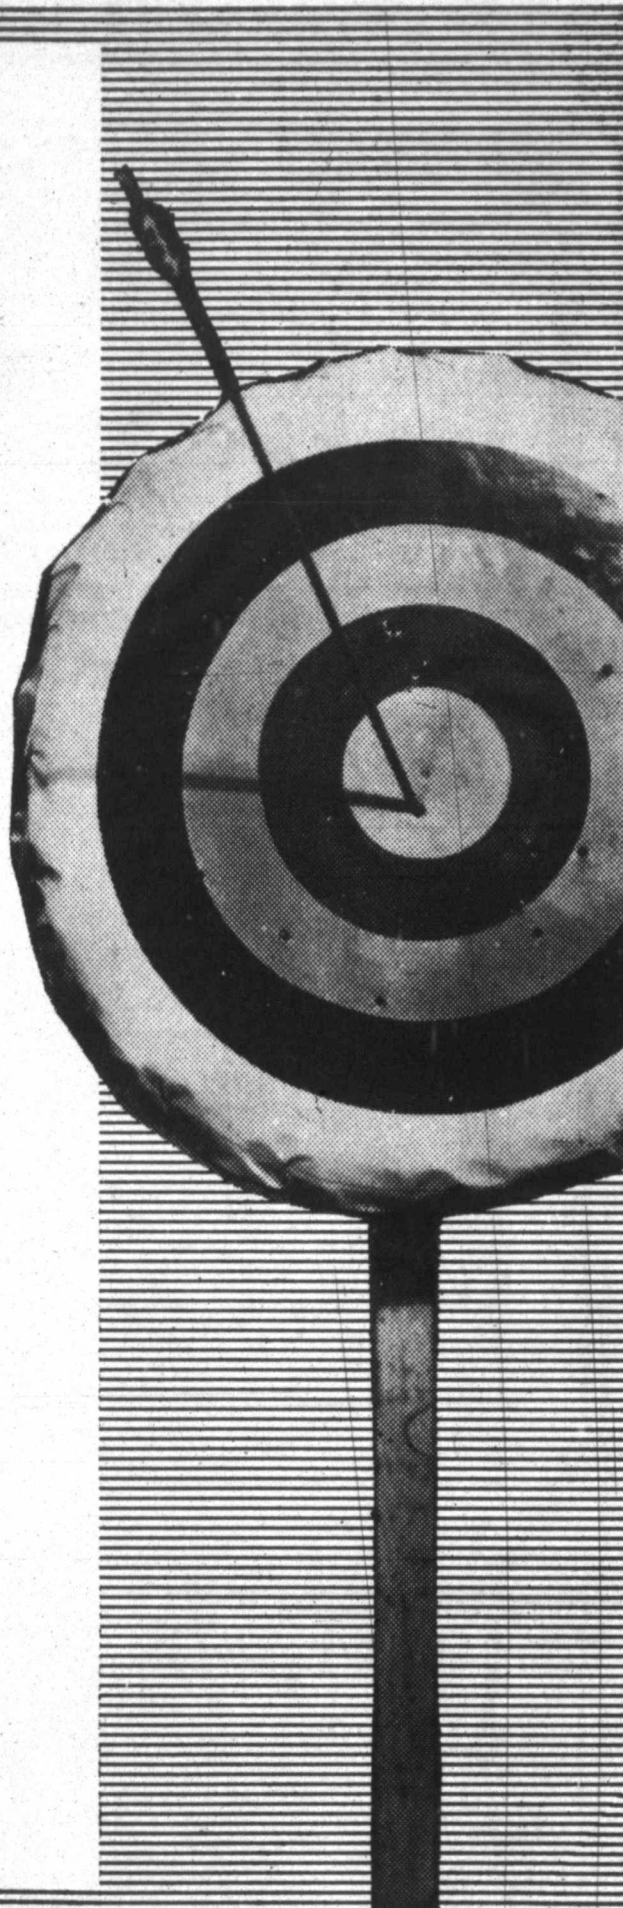

When you attend church, it makes it easier to stay on the straight path. The church wants to help you in all ways of life, but can only do so, if you stay within its circle. Attend church and know the joy of a good life.

"For God is not the author of confusion, but of peace, as in all churches of the saints."

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Rangers to view replays after 7-2 loss to Yanks

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Manager Billy Hunter has arranged for his Texas Rangers to view video-tape replays of their turns at bat at Texas home games.

The Rangers, with a lineup of players known for their hitting, have been struggling at the plate this season.

As he sat dejected in his office Thursday night after an error-filled 7-2 loss to the New York Yankees, Hunter said if the video tape helps the Rangers to hit better, it may straighten out their defensive woes also.

"I think the fact that all the players have been struggling with the bat is having a definite effect on their defensive play," Hunter said.

"I think they're taking the bat with them to their defensive positions and thinking about what they're going to do on their next turn at bat instead of what's going on out there."

The Rangers committed four errors in the first four innings of Thursday night's game, and the Yankees quickly mounted a 7-0 lead Texas couldn't overcome. Two were by rightfielder Bobby Bonds and two were on "easy out" throws from the pitcher to infielders.

"We've got the same infield as last year, when we were second in the league in defense, and this year we've made 83 errors in 80 ball games. That's terrible. Anybody that has spent as much time in the major leagues as our players have, and play as shabby baseball as they're doing, it's just a lack of concentration," Hunter said.

Roy White and Thurmon Munson drove in two runs each, helping Dick Tidrow, 4-6, to post his first victory in six weeks. He scattered eight hits. Of New York's seven runs, only three were earned.

Doc Medich, 3-4, lasted only 1 1/3 innings against his old teammates, leaving after giving up three hits and four runs. The Yankees got four more hits and their other three runs off Jim Umberger, who left after pitching the fifth.

Hunter made four defensive changes after five innings, resting his regulars and giving reserves some game action. He did the same with his pitching staff, inserting three relievers to work the last four innings.

White had an RBI triple the first inning and a sacrifice fly in the second. Munson drove White in twice, on a first-inning sacrifice fly and on a single in the fourth.

Gary Thomasson walked in the second and scored on Bucky Dent's double when Bonds kicked the ball trying to field it. An inning later, Reggie Jackson went all the way to third when Bonds tried to make a shoestring catch of his single. Graig Nettles scored from first, and Thomasson's single scored Jackson.

Tidrow yielded only two hits the first four innings before Bert Campaneris tripled in the fifth and Bobby Thompson laid down a suicide squeeze. Jim Mason doubled in the ninth and Bonds singled for Texas' other run.

Reserves named

NEW YORK (AP) — Atlanta's Jeff Burroughs, the National League's leading hitter, and Los Angeles Dodgers Dave Lopes, Ron Cey and Reggie Smith head a list of 11 reserves named today by Dodgers Manager Tommy Lasorda to complete the NL All-Star team.

Lasorda's choice of Lopes, Smith and Cey, plus Cincinnati shortstop Dave Concepcion, give the Reds and Dodgers six representatives each on the squad.

Lopes and Cey, who finished second in the fan voting at second and third base, respectively, and Smith, an outfielder, join Los Angeles starters Steve Garvey at first base and outfielder Rick Monday, plus left-hander Tommy John, 9-6, one of nine pitchers on the squad.

In addition to Concepcion, who finished second to Philadelphia's Larry Bowa in the balloting, the Reds placed second baseman Joe Morgan, third baseman Pete Rose, outfielder

LPGA to begin

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — Nancy Lopez isn't even playing in the $75,000 Wheeling LPGA Classic, but she's still a topic of conversation among the touring pros.

"She's been giving us lots of time to practice," said Sandra Palmer, who has won more than a half-million dollars since joining the ladies professional golf tour in 1964. "Everybody wants to interview her, so we don't have to worry about making time to talk to the press. They're talking to her."

Even though Lopez isn't in the event, the field for the Wheeling Classic — scheduled to begin today — is the largest in the tournament's five-year history. Ninety-two golfers were scheduled to tee off, almost 30 more than ever have played before in the tournament.

"The money makes the difference," said Debbie Austin, who won last year by a stroke over Hollis Stacy. She noted that the purse was $25,000 more than in 1977.

"If the money is good, you'll get the golfers," she said. Austin admitted her chances of winning weren't as good as last year, when she had won two of the three tournaments prior to Wheeling.

MILWAUKEE — Lee Elder shot a 6-under-par 66 for a 1-stroke lead after the first round of the $150,000 Greater Milwaukee Open golf tournament.

Jeff Howes birdied four of his last eight holes for second place at 67.

The winning team in the Super Bowl each year receives the Vince Lombardi Trophy.

CHICAGO (AP) — Ownership turmoil, as well as championships, is a Boston Celtics hallmark, and management confusion confronted the once-powerful National Basketball Association team again today.

John Y. Brown of Kentucky, owner of the Buffalo Braves, sought control of the Celtics in an unprecedented franchise swap with owner Irv Levin.

The NBA Board of Governors, headed by Levin, was expected to allow the Los Angeles-based movie executive to take over Brown's Braves and move them to San Diego.

The Buffalo franchise has been in the NBA since 1970. San Diego already lost one NBA team, the Rockets, now in Houston.

Eight individuals or companies have owned the Celtics since founder Walter Brown — no relation to John Y. — died in 1964 after 18 years in control.

As for John Brown's takeover, "We have no reason to think it won't happen," said Jeff Cohen, Celtics assistant general manager.

Red Auerbach, Celtics president and general manager, and coach from 1950-66, was in Chicago to discuss his future with Brown, a millionaire who made his fortune in the fast food business.

Martina stateless

By WILL GRIMSLEY
 AP Special Correspondent
 WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — British pundits have dubbed her "Miss Nobody." She is a young girl without a country. She hasn't seen her parents and younger sister in three years.

Martina Navratilova plays tennis in a vacuum, knowing that whatever she achieves in her chosen profession — even winning Wimbledon — gains no acclaim from her friends and onetime neighbors back in her native Bernice, Czechoslovakia, near Prague.

"They never mention my name," said the personable, 21-year-old left-hander. "As far as they're concerned, they don't know I exist. Now that I am in the Wimbledon final, I wonder what they are going to say. They can't say 'Chris Evert is playing somebody.'"

Talented, father-taught, Martina defected while playing in the U.S. Open at Forest Hills in 1975, saying, "I felt strangled by officials in Czechoslovakia — I had to do something to breathe."

She was an immediate success on the women's circuit. She scored victories over the best — Evert, Evonne Goolagong, Virginia Wade and Betty Stove — and won tournaments with fat purses.

She became a completely Americanized capitalist, moved to Dallas, filled her wardrobe full of jeans, became a jazz freak and went mad over the Dallas Cowboys football team while awaiting action on her application for U.S. citizenship, a procedure which normally calls for a five-year wait.

She was keenly disappointed when the State Department recently rejected a plea for a shorter time period. She remains stateless, much in the fashion of another Czech defector of another tennis era, the great Jaroslav Drobný.

But "Miss Nobody?" Forget it: Big and strong, with a left-handed twisting service that drives her opponents up the wall, Martina has all the physical tools for tennis greatness. Now she is working on the steel of her mind.

Once that item is taken care of, beware. Martina Navratilova conceivably could dominate ladies' tennis for the next 10 years.

Fred Perry, Britain's last tennis hero, scoffs at the suggestion that the modern game has outgrown its white britches.

"Nothing changes," says the handsome, white-haired Briton, winner of three Wimbledon titles back in the mid-1930s and now a broadcaster. "Long hair came in with the Vikings. We've had the serve and volley almost since they made racquets."

"Two-fisted shots? John Bromwich of Australia was hitting balls that way 40 years ago."

"There are two different games. Tennis, as some 40 million around the world play it. Participants love it, play their guts out, get nothing for it except pleasure."

"Then there is the pro game, an off-shoot, strictly business. It is populated by lawyers, agents, promoters and players who use whatever equipment they can get the most money for."

"It's strictly vaudeville — hardly a game any more at all."

Houston kicked
 HOUSTON (AP) — After the Houston Hurricane suffered their eighth shutout in the Astrodome this season in a 3-0 loss Thursday to the Minnesota Kicks, Coach Timo Liekoski was baffled.

"It's just unbelievable we can't score. We create the required number of chances. We just don't put it in."

The victory moved the Kicks from third place to first in the National Conference Central Division of the North American Soccer League, over Dallas and Tulsa.

"We kick it around a bit," said Houston forward Peter Welsh, "but we can't hit the back of the net. Once we get a goal, we'll break the jinx, but I think our confidence is down right now."

Ron Futcher, a 21-year-old from England who subs for the injured Charley George, scored all three Minnesota goals.

"I don't play all the time," Futcher said, "but in nine games I have seven goals and six assists. Maybe this will give me a chance to extend my playing time."

Futcher's first goal came at 16:15 on a perfect long pass from Alan West 16 yards in front of the Houston goal. At 30:40 he took a pass from Willie Morgan to hit a right footer and then late in the game at 80:30 he dribbled 30 yards to score on a right foot from the right side of the Hurricane goal.

Evert, Navratilova to face off today

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Chris Evert counted on experience to carry her through, while her opponent, Martina Navratilova, hoped that a psychological advantage would give her the edge today in the Wimbledon women's singles final.

"I have been through this three times before," said the top-seeded Evert. "It's Martina's first Wimbledon final and I think that gives me a little advantage."

Evert, who lost to Billie Jean King in her first final in 1973, captured the singles crown the following year, beating Olga Morozova of the Soviet Union. She also won in 1976, defeating Evonne Goolagong in a three-set thriller.

Navratilova, a powerful left-hander who plays the serve-and-volley game, is the type of player to do well on Wimbledon's fast grass surface.

She proved that point when she beat Evert on grass in a warm-up tournament at Eastbourne two weeks ago. The victory may have given Navratilova the psychological lift she needed to defeat Evert, who holds a 20-5 match advantage.

"That success at Eastbourne should give me a lot of confidence," said Navratilova. "It all depends on whether I serve well."

They said the same about Virginia Wade, the big-serving defending champion, who met Evert in the semifinals Wednesday. But Wade's serve was off-target, and Evert swept her in two sets 8-6, 6-2.

Navratilova, the No. 2 seed, earned a berth in the final with a 2-6, 6-4, 6-4 triumph over Goolagong, who suffered a cramp in her left leg but finished the match.

The winner collects a prize of $30,780.

In the men's final Saturday, Sweden's Bjorn Borg will go after his third consecutive Wimbledon's singles title when he faces the powerful Jimmy Connors.

Connors reached the final when he fought off a set point in a brilliantly entertaining first set Thursday and went on to eliminate Vitas Gerulaitis 9-7, 6-2, 6-1.

In the hour-long first set Gerulaitis raced about the court, matching Connors shot for shot, and danced to the net to put his volleys away. But by the end of the set his spirit was broken and Connors easily took the next two sets.

Borg, after sweeping past the surprising Dutchman Tom Okker, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4 Thursday, admitted that his match with Connors will be the most important match of his life.

"He is the guy to beat," said Borg. "We always have tough games down to almost the last point."

The winner in men's singles will pocket $34,200.

Meanwhile, King, who is trying to beat the record she holds jointly with Elizabeth Ryan of 19 Wimbledon titles, got a step closer as she and Ray Ruffels advanced to the quarter-finals of the mixed doubles.
