'Charge sheets' filed against Indira Gandhi

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The government filed preliminary documents in court Saturday accusing former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and five others of criminally conspiring to procure jeeps in the 1977 national election campaign. It was a major new step by the government of Prime Minister Morarji Desai to bring Mrs. Gandhi to trial in the corruption case, which led to her brief arrest last October. But legal experts said she would not necessarily be arrested soon, although the six probably would be summoned for arraignment in the coming week.

The "charge sheets" were filed in a Delhi sessions court against Mrs. Gandhi, three former aides and two businessmen. The same jeep case was brought against Mrs. Gandhi in the form of a preliminary information report last Oct. 3. At that time, the Central Bureau of Investigation, India's version of the American FBI, arrested Mrs. Gandhi. A magistrate ordered her released the following morning because no evidence was ready.

Desai's government, accused by critics of bungling the October episode, has always maintained that it was pursuing the jeep case. Some political observers said that this time officials are not expected to seek the arrest of Mrs. Gandhi, whose 11 years in power was ended in the March 1977 election. Time in prison can be politically useful in India, as demonstrated by the public sympathy Mrs. Gandhi gained from her brief arrest last year.

Cuba's actions of concern to other non-aligned nations

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — The countries that call themselves part of the non-aligned movement, steering clear of both East and West in world politics, meet here this week, and the international activities of one of their number, Cuba, may be a key issue. Cuba's military operations in Africa and its close ties to Moscow are expected to be raised by some nations who consider them violations of the movement's principles. And Havana's challenge to Yugoslavia's leading role in the movement may produce some backroom politicking. U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, here for the conference, said when asked about issues that might be discussed, "It's a question of who is non-aligned and who isn't."

Local Meals on Wheels program being created

The Gray County Committee on Aging, in response to a survey conducted in June, decided at a recent meeting to establish a Meals on Wheels program in Pampa. Meals on Wheels is a hot meal service for elderly persons who are unable to maintain their adequate nutritional needs. Food is prepared at a central kitchen, packaged in insulated containers and delivered by volunteers. Recipients agree to pay for the service to the best of their ability, but no one is refused service because of inability to pay. More than 40 names of persons in need of this service were turned in to the committee, according to Mrs. Reed Echols, committee chairman. The committee elected a board of directors for the program, consisting of Mrs. Echols, president, Mrs. Carol Mackey, vice president, Mrs. Pauline Beard, secretary, Bob Horton, Treasurer, and Mrs. Pat Turner, Joe Dickey and Jimmy Thompson, members at large. Efforts are underway to find office space for a paid coordinator to organize the program. Kitchen facilities to prepare the meals and volunteers to deliver them will also be needed. It is estimated that $5,000 will be needed to begin the program and operate for one year. Anyone wishing to contribute to the program should make checks payable to Bob Horton, 2422 Christine, Pampa, TX 79065. Efforts are underway to have the program designated nonprofit, to be tax-exempt. Questions about the program should be directed to the County Extension Office at 669-7429 or to Mrs. Reed Echols at 669-9572.

Pampa has problems keeping its employees

By JOHN PRICE
Pampa News Staff

Governmental employees are commonly stereotyped by the public as overpaid and underworked, tenaciously clinging to their cushy jobs until mandatory retirement sends them packing for Florida with generous pensions and retirement benefits second to none — and with taxpayers footing the bill. This sort of thinking has contributed to the success of proposition 13 in California and to the beginning of similar attempts in other states, like Michigan. Certainly one aspect of the so-called taxpayers revolt has been a desire on the part of many disgruntled people to "throw the rascals out," to get rid of high salaried, nonproductive state, county and municipal employees.

Not so in Pampa. The opposite is the case. The truth here is that city government can't hang on to employees because when it comes to paychecks the city apparently can't compete with private industry in Pampa. A study shows that from June of 1977 to June of 1978, the city lost 99 out of 207 authorized employees — a turnover rate of 48 percent.

The city commission and city manager are presently looking into possible solutions to the admittedly troublesome dilemma.

The city's high turnover rate is not only inconvenient but is also somewhat expensive, according to City Manager Mack Wofford.

Training and re-training new employees decreases efficiency," Wofford said. "A good portion of the 99 former city employees who left within the last year departed at only six months or less on the job he said.

A breakdown of city government by departments shows that during the June 30, 1977 to June 30, 1978, period, the sanitation department lost 30 out of 30 employees, a turnover rate of 100 percent. The second highest rate was that of water production, with 75 percent. Public utilities followed with 70 percent, and the police department had a rate of 62.5 percent. Public works and parks also had rates of 50 percent or more.

City officials don't try to conceal the fact that with Pampa's healthy job market and construction boom the salaries offered for municipal jobs can and are being surpassed by salaries in the private sector. For example, city clerks start at $452 a month, or $113 a week. That's little more than minimum wage.

"Pay is a big factor — we're not trying to hide that," said Wofford. "I feel very strongly that low salaries have an effect on the turnover rate. With the relative ease in getting jobs I'm not surprised they (employees) go off."

High turnover rates are not a problem in other parts of the country which have greater unemployment and public employee unions, but unionized municipalities have their own problems, which Pampa officials don't care to take on. "They have strong public employees unions in the North, which thank the Lord we don't have," Wofford said. "Unions have done some good, but then you get problems like they've had in Memphis and Philadelphia.

The city is studying higher salaries and benefits as a deterrent to the high turnover. Wofford says "there's no easy solution — we have to fit people to the money available, but at a budget study session Wednesday night the city commission members all seemed to recognize pay and benefits adjustments as the most practical and efficient method of dealing with the problem."

"We're not losing them to Amarillo or Borger but to private industry right here in Pampa," Wofford told the commission. Calling the turnover rate "disastrous," he said, "I don't know if a salary increase would keep a bunch of people but I don't think it would hurt."

Commissioner Linden Butch Shepherd spoke hypothetically as a water plant operator when he said "Why make $5 an hour to watch $2 million worth of equipment when I can dig ditches for $5 an hour without the extra responsibility?" I can see why they're saying this.

"I think if you want to keep good people around, you have to give them a little better," said Commissioner Coyne Ford. "It's just human nature" for people to want more he said.

The commission will meet again July 26 and try to approve a final budget for 1978-79, including decisions concerning salaries and benefits. From their discussion at the Wednesday session it seems likely they will decide on at least a 10 percent salary raise for employees in some, if not all, departments of city government.

"What we were giving in 1977-78 wasn't enough," said Commissioner O.M. Prigmore. "If we just keep pace with that it won't do a damn thing. I don't think we have a good pay plan. When I look at the pay scales and look at the turnover I see we have a problem."

The consensus of the commission and the city manager, as expressed at Wednesday's study session, is that if the city can hire good people and get them to stay after they have been trained, then city services will improve without increased costs. That is, if turnover subsidies, city services can be maintained or improved without further expenditures for additional employees.

"If you cut your turnover in half, then you'd double your productivity," said Prigmore. "I don't think more bodies would do any good," Wofford said. "I'm hopeful increased productivity could make up for leaving the level of employees the way it is."

The city is considering one plan which would supposedly both increase productivity and save money through cutting back labor. The sanitation department wants to convert garbage collection from trash cans to a container system in residential areas. The city would replace the cans in alleys with several large dumpsters, similar to those used by stores and restaurants for garbage disposal. "We'd probably have three or four in an alley," said Sanitation Superintendent Allan Vickery. "One at each end and one in the middle, depending on the length of the alley."

It could reduce the labor force by something like 80 percent," said Wofford. "It's a sizeable investment — we estimate something like 5,000 boxes would be involved. The capital would be pretty fierce for sure. We're looking at something like half a million dollars, maybe more. We'd need special trucks and equipment to dump the containers."

Vickery estimated the four cubic yard square containers would cost $250 to $275 each, and that the city could save approximately $100,000 annually by replacing the present system with the containers. Cities now using a container system include Amarillo, Borger, Odessa, Midland and Plainview, he said.

Vickery, who attributes the Sanitation Department's 100 percent turnover rate to the fact that "we can't compete" with other employers, said "we should be able to pay as much as other utilities." If the city implements the container system, "we will have 10 or 11 men instead of 30 and we can pay them more," Vickery said. "We wouldn't fire anyone," he said, explaining that the department would transfer some employees and eliminate certain positions when other employees quit.

The container system would allow better control of flies and dogs keeping them away from the garbage, Vickery said. However, some persons will have to walk farther to throw their garbage in the containers than they now do with the cans, he said.

"I know we'll get some kickback from people having to walk farther," Vickery said. "I know some elderly people don't want to walk 70 feet to throw it away."

Sadat says Begin only peace block

By LISETTE BALOUY
Associated Press Writer

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Anwar Sadat claimed Saturday the only obstacle to Mideast peace was the "expansionist ambitions" of Menachem Begin. He said the Israeli prime minister wants peace, security guarantees "and on top of it all our land."

He called for establishment of a new political party that sources said would be headed by Sadat and would replace the current ruling Egypt Party, nominally led by Premier Mameouh Salem.

The Egypt Party has been torn by internal strife and has been unable to get key legislation through parliament. Sadat reaffirmed his position that he would not make a separate agreement with Israel in return for the Sinai Peninsula and insisted the solution of the Palestinian problem was the key to peace. Israel has occupied the West Bank of the Jordan River, the Gaza Strip, the Syrian Golan Heights and Egypt's Sinai Peninsula since the 1967 Mideast War.

Referring to last week's meeting of Egyptian and Israeli foreign ministers and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance at Leeds Castle, England, Sadat said, "All along Begin has been talking of security, security, security, but at the Leeds conference in England his foreign minister admitted it is land he wants. We say no!"

"If we don't solve the Palestinian question, we don't solve the Middle East problem," he said. Egypt remained "open of heart and mind" to any new Israeli proposals.

Sadat said Begin was accusing him of "rigidity," but he said "I have nothing against Mr. Begin. I am not spiteful. If he is angry because I met with Israeli opposition leader (Shimon) Peres and Defense Minister Ezer Weizman, this is his problem. But if someone asks to meet me I meet him."

Peres and Weizman are considered "doves" on the issue of Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territories and the Begin government was upset at Sadat's meeting with the two in Austria earlier this month.

"Weizman does not carry a new plan from me," Sadat said. "What happened is that with him and with Peres we discussed the whole Middle East conflict. We even spoke of the future after peace."

Sadat's proposals and statements on the domestic situation in Egypt apparently were made in an effort to dispel the idea that new laws cracking down on political dissent mean an end to the multi-party system.

Administration looking for victory on ban lifting

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is looking for a narrow victory in the Senate this week as it pushes for an end to the 3-year-old ban on arms sales to Turkey.

President Carter has given the issue top priority, saying it is "the most important foreign policy issue" still facing Congress in the current session.

Lawmakers will deal with the question when they take up a $2.8 billion foreign security aid bill for fiscal 1979 beginning Oct. 1. A vote on the embargo is expected Monday or Tuesday.

The killers fled in a taxi driven by another man and were later sighted in a neighborhood north of Madrid. Police searchers scoured the area Saturday for the fugitives, one of whom reportedly appeared to have been wounded.

The army conducted a funeral for the slain officers Saturday on the patio of army headquarters in downtown Madrid.

An estimated 1,000 rightists, clad in the blue shirts of the old Falange Party that helped Gen. Francisco Franco win the civil war in 1939, demonstrated nearby, shouting, "Down with the Constitution!"

Earlier in the week, the West Virginia Democrat had refused to predict the outcome. On all sides, the judgment was that the vote would be extremely close. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, said he expected it to "pass marginally."

"It's definitely touch and go," said a State Department aide involved in the repeal effort. However, the aide, who declined to be identified publicly, said the Carter camp expects to win with "soft" support "senators who have been looking for ways to accept the administration's intellectual arguments" for ending the embargo.

Sources close to Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., chief spokesman for keeping the embargo in force, said it appeared the administration had an edge of one or two votes with six or seven senators uncommitted.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted 8-4 against lifting the embargo. Four members were absent, and committee sources said that if they had been present, the vote likely would have been an 8-8 standoff. Supporters of lifting the ban then resorted to the strategy of amending the security assistance bill.

Mexican rioters not all students

A majority of the population of Mexico is 17 years old or younger.

Perhaps this also is true of the other Latin American nations, for when there is a riot action of almost any kind in the countries south of us the action is usually attributed to protesting "students."

The Lower Rio Grande Valley is close to the events of this kind which occur in Mexico, and one is inclined to remark questioningly, "What students?"

What is the difference between a punk and a student? Certainly not all the very young people in Mexico, or in the other Latin American nations, are the rioting, mob-action kind of protest.

It appears a shame and an unthoughtful act for the media to brand the rioters such as went on a rampage in Matamoros recently as "students." This throws them into the general youth category, and everyone knows that Mexico is predominantly youthful. One should not use the word "student" to describe the disturbing rioters, for all of them cannot be students, and all of them are not exactly youths.

Young people, it is true, are easier swayed than those who are more mature, and it does not speak at all well for the older people, the parents and the community leaders in Mexico to describe the rioters as students. In such a description there is an overtone of poor discipline, weak parental authority, and deteriorating family environment.

And that is not true, for Mexico has strong families, the nation is noted for its parents who stress authority of father and mother, and discipline is practiced firmly and in good direction among most of the population, rich and poor.

It is too bad that some group all those young Mexicans together in naming those involved in the riotous activity. A few bad apples can give the whole bushel a bad name. We ought to remember that. Back during the 1960s when some college students were involved in marches and worse in our country, they were not generalized as "students," for not all the students in any of the colleges involved were participating in the action.

We separated the chaff from the grain then, and now we can give Mexico credit for having good students and many fine young people, and hope our mature neighbors to the south will continue to keep an eye on the chaff, some of which all nations have.

The sheep rise up

By ROBERT LEFEVRE

The effect of Proposition 13 has been and is being felt across the country. Taxpayers, notably those who pay taxes on real estate, have taken heart. In my travels I find the climate of opinion virtually the same wherever I go. Because of high taxes people who earn and produce are at last beginning to express massive disapproval. Hope has been kindled. They see a light at the end of the tunnel.

It is now quite certain that tax reductions will reduce the number of jobs in government. In California, where more than $7 billion in surplus funds existed, the pressure against those jobs is less, and probably will be less than in some other areas. After all, the governor could (and did) channel some of that excess back into various bureaus to offset the pinch of lost employment among those who live on taxpayer's dollars.

But out of the turmoil and excitement, the charge and counter-charge, one fact has emerged. Those who work on the government payrolls really don't care who gets hurt, so long as they get theirs. It's been an eye-opening revelation.

Until Proposition 13, I, for one, tried to give government employees the benefit of doubt, sired by suspected ignorance. The bulk of them I reasoned, really didn't understand where their paychecks originated.

There is a mystique about government and there are many, including some highly-touted economists who ought to know better, who imagine that government produces money. It doesn't. It merely prints paper and issues credit. All real money is purchasing power. And all real purchasing power is produced in the marketplace and not in the precincts of the polls.

So when various labor unions and other pressure groups demanded more and higher pay out of governmental jobs, when they knew that the people of slender and modest means were already strapped by existing taxes, I excused it on grounds that the public at large really didn't understand that all government paychecks come out of the pockets of the producers, by means of taxation.

But now the issue is clear. It's cleaned up. There's no longer any room for the kindly benefit of the doubt. Government employees know where the money comes from all right. They've always known. And they want it regardless of who gets hurt.

You would have thought that a decent person having found that he was injuring a neighbor, would have at least apologized. Well, the government workers aren't in the mood for that. They want to keep on riding on the backs of their brothers.

We're supposed to be a people who hates the exploiter. We love the underdog. We think of ourselves as "good sports" and we don't like to see blacks or chicanos or other minorities injured. Or so we profess.

But the number of persons who own real estate in this country is a minority. And those who don't own real estate have been living off those who do for years. Further, they knew it all the time. Still they piled one tax on top of another and kept on doing it. Talk about exploitation!

And now that the exploited few can see a bit of relief in sight, the hungry tax eaters are screaming as if they've been injured! They haven't been injured at all. Justice can never injure the fair minded. The honest person can always go out and get an honest job where he becomes a producer, too. And he can buy some real estate and see how it feels. Every newspaper in the country runs dozens of ads every day. Plenty available. Oh, sure, the prices are high. What kind of prices do you think the existing owners of real estate paid? The people who, today, have had the drive and the guts to save their money and to pay top interest rates and in process buy some land, improved or otherwise, and then pay mounting taxes, know that owning real estate is only advantageous if you can make ends meet. Property doesn't pay taxes. People pay them. And the people who have title to real estate taxes pay dearly and have paid dearly for years.

Today's home owner or home buyer has been chained to his property the way a slave had been chained to his oar in a Roman galley.

What we have had in this country is a vast number of leeches, sucking the very life out of the constructive and hard working. And it is time it stopped.

Of course Prop. 13 hasn't stopped it and won't. But it sure has cleared the air. And what is really funny in a macabre sort of way is the number of professional politicians, who fought Prop. 13 tooth and nail, who are now jumping on the bandwagon, proclaiming that they want to please the public.

If they had really wanted to please the public, they could have created the bandwagon and led the parade. Now they are fawning and dripping ooze from their fingers as they try to assure everyone how eager they are to reduce taxes.

I certainly hope the property owners and the other taxpayers in all brackets get the message and keep it sorted out in their minds amid all the propaganda. Never trust a politician. They are as two-faced as Janus. They thought they had a flock of sheep to shear at their leisure. And the public has certainly been clipped again and again.

Its beginning to appear that these herds of tax-paying sheep (genus ovis) may have as many teeth as old lobo (genus lupus) refus.

Bakke vs. the absurdity of 'affirmative action'

BUTLER D. SHAFFER

I have waited a respectable period of time, following the Supreme Court's "Bakke" decision, before commenting upon the reaction of partisans thereto. I have never been disappointed in underestimating the thinking of most people. Sure enough, while the ink was still drying on the Court's opinion, there was a run on the media to express a sense of "righteous indignation" at the Court's even luke-warm attack on "affirmative action." One civil rights leader was so irrationally incensed that he lumped Proposition 13, the Bakke decision, and the growth of the Ku Klux Klan and Nazism (you remember, there were twenty of them who picketed for ten minutes in Chicago) as evidence of some perceived threat to minorities in America! I am surprised he failed to include re-runs of old Shirley Temple movies in his indictment!

How protesting against a system of run-away taxation that now consumes well over 40 percent of the annual income of most Americans is really a latent form of racism is beyond even my often-whimsical imagination. But to suggest, as one woman did, that the Bakke decision stands for a refusal "to accept blacks on an equal basis" is to break the umbilical cord to reality. How one can convert a decision that denies governmental agencies the right to give preferences to members of minority groups into an attack on the "equal rights" of such minorities, is a question not to be answered this side of Erewhon or Animal Farm.

One could dismiss such views were the reactions of other minority group representatives not equally aberrational. The most common defense of so-called "affirmative action" programs has been that blacks and other racial minorities have suffered legal oppression for many centuries. Slavery, for instance, kept the ancestors of many blacks in legal subjection. But slavery (except for that practiced by the political State) went out of style well over a century ago. How can a twenty year old black of today possibly be considered a victim of slavery? Ah, the response goes, the effects of slavery and other legal oppression continue to be passed down even today. There are various "benefits" enjoyed by pre-Civil War whites and "burdens" suffered by their black contemporaries which "continue," and which are handed down from generation to generation.

The blatant racism in such a proposition is apparent to anyone who bothers to think about it. The notion that the sins of some whites who lived over a century ago are passed on to all whites today, and that the injustice suffered by blacks from that same period of history is carried in the genes of modern-day blacks, is the purest form of racism. It declares that one's "rights" and one's "duties" are to be determined on the basis of what their race is, on the basis of what their ancestors are presumed to have done. After all, my grandfather fought for the North in the Civil War. Other ancestors of mine might well have been abolitionists. Am I not entitled to special consideration? No, it is enough that those who practiced slavery were white and that I — and my children — and Allan Bakke — (all of whom are white) should now be deprived of what we have earned, through merit, in order to provide an unearned preference to persons whose only claim is that their great-great-grandfathers were slaves. Not even Adolf Hitler could improve upon that arrangement!

Keep in mind that the case of Allan Bakke did not involve a marginal white student being passed over in favor of an equally-marginal minority applicant. This was not a case where the state university could have flipped a coin to decide but, instead, decided upon giving racial minorities a preference. During the years that Bakke sought admission to the University of California Medical School, his overall grade point average was 3.51 (a middle "B" average); that of the "affirmative action" admittees was 2.88 (in 1973) and 2.62 (in 1974), which works out to a high "C" average. In the admissions tests, Bakke scored in the 96th, 94th, 97th, and 72nd percentiles in the four categories tested. The "affirmative action" students who were admitted scored in the 46th, 24th, 35th, and 33rd percentiles (1973 admittees.) In other words, "C" students with admission test scores that averaged out to the 33rd percentile were being given preference over a "B" student whose test scores averaged right around the 90th percentile. The only basis for the preference was the race of the less-qualified students.

The argument for "affirmative action" is nothing more than a self-interest motivated claim to be given benefits at the expense of those who have earned theirs. It is a logical extension of the attitude fostered by "welfarism" namely, that people want to BE something without DOING something. "Affirmative action" only seeks to make this vulgar undertaking more attractive by attempting to cloak it in the rhetoric of respectability. But if it is not, at its core, the purest form of racism one could concoct, I shudder to think what the new and improved model would be like.

In 1976, voters in Puerto Rico endorsed continuation of U.S. commonwealth status for the island.

Ten years ago: Ten police, including three policemen, were killed when snipers using automatic weapons opened fire in a ghetto area on Cleveland's east side.

Five years ago: President Richard Nixon refused to release his Watergate tapes, and both the Senate Watergate Committee and Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox served subpoenas to obtain the material.

One year ago: Libya accused Egypt of conducting air raids deep inside Libya, despite efforts by Arab leaders to bring about a cease-fire between the two countries.

Today's birthdays: Former baseball star Don Drysdale is 42 years old. The one-time shortstop for the old Brooklyn Dodgers, Peeewe Reese, is 59.

Thought for today: Whenever a man has cast a longing eye on offices, a rottenness begins in his conduct — President Thomas Jefferson, 1743-1826.

Bitter Growth

Celery is "blanched" during the last stage of its growth. This is done by placing soil about the plant to prevent sunlight from reaching any part of the plant except the leaves. If allowed to grow naturally, the stalks would have a greenish color and a bitter taste.

Mafia busses children

Crosstown busing for New York City schoolchildren is a $73 million annual business.

You could hardly expect the hoodlums to keep hands off.

They haven't.
In New York City the underworld families of organized crime are muscling in on the school bus business, even warring with one another for control of it.

Queens Dist. Atty. John Santucci has evidence that half a dozen organized crime soldiers — many with long criminal records — are owners or silent partners in school bus companies.

They hold lucrative contracts with the city's board of education and they see to it that nobody else bids for those contracts.

Hired guns hang around the school bus barns to keep everybody in line.

Some hoods drive school buses. Other mobsters are driving late model luxury cars registered to the school bus companies and charged to the board of education.

One of the school bus owners has been arrested for forgery, extortion, income tax evasion and for carrying a loaded gun while serving as a bodyguard for a major crime family godfather.

But he still has his school bus contract.
So New York City's $73 million school bus business will probably cost taxpayers $85 million next year.

Most of the city's school bus contracts go to three apparently legitimate companies, but there are contracts worth millions left for the smaller companies.

Police records show that the owner of one of those companies was involved in the Profaci-Columbo and Colombo-Gallo crime family wars as far back as 1963 and was wounded in a mob shootout as recently as 1973.

Another company with a million-dollar school bus contract apparently is partly owned by a longtime underworld enforcer.

Records at the school board's Bureau of Pupil Transportation are "carefully casual." Vouchers per-bus-per-day are in such a purposeful jumble that nobody can backtrack on how much tax skimming has been going on.

And unless there are indictments, arrests and convictions these nefarious characters will stay in business, pocketing tax dollars which New York City — of all places — cannot afford.

Researching the records of these characters it is obvious that there have been half a dozen instances in the history of each during which he "beat the rap" because of legal loopholes or lenient judges. One gets the impression — reading a chronology of the unpunished crimes — that one could buy his way into or out of anything in New York City.

However contemporary Americans allow government to mismanage their money, history will never forgive this generation for this busing business — the inexcusable and unnecessary waste and danger to which we have subjected our children.

How to slash funeral costs IV

Beware-death traps

If a death occurs in your family — as it inevitably will — and if you are a close survivor of the deceased, you immediately will become a target for some of our nation's most vicious swindlers. Often, they will be men or women who seem to you to be friendly and honest — but don't fool yourself, they are neither.

If you are a dependent widow of the deceased, you will become not only a target but, all too frequently, also a victim, for your defenses will be way down (even non-existent for a while) and you're so easy a mark that it's actually painful for me even to write these warnings to you.

If you are a member of the deceased's family or an intimate friend, you, too, will be lured into making decisions or taking actual steps that are, at the very best, of no help in dealing with the emotional and social stresses of these tragic days and are, at worst, harmful to all of you who are left behind.

In short, beware! The death traps are set for YOU.

For instance, a favorite device is to collect a debt that the deceased never owed, or to deliver unordered merchandise for payment by the survivors (say, a Bible that was never purchased or a similarly heart-tugging item).

Another favorite of these gypsters is to inform the close survivor of a non-existent life insurance policy on which a final premium must be paid before benefits can be collected, or some other "valuable asset" requiring a final payment of some kind before the asset can be "yours."

Still another favorite is for a promoter of securities (including representatives of reputable investment firms) to phone with a report that he (or she) had been asked to recommend new purchases of stocks or bonds or switches in an existing securities portfolio of the deceased's — and sorry to hear about the deceased's passing, but here are recommendations and the advice that the survivor should carry through at once. The goal will be merely the commissions involved in the purchases and sales — but in the befuddled state of mind of the survivor, the first inclination is to say, "If that's what XYZ wanted, go ahead and follow the instructions."

If you are a dependent widow, you must be even more on guard against making ignorant, stupid decisions and errors.

Don't listen to any advice on investments and don't make any investment of any sort until your mind is working more normally and you have had ample time to get the advice of competent objective advisers concerned only with your welfare.

Don't buy or sell any securities.
Don't make any loans.
Don't convert your insurance policies.
Don't buy annuities.

Don't, in short, do anything, You have a limited amount of money which is now more important to you than ever. Take your time, wait — and then get the best advice available to you before you take a single step.

Other warnings for you, the survivors.
If you have decided on cremation (which cost only around $100) don't let anyone sell the family extra goods and services which can run up the bill into the $1,000 range even without a funeral service. You need not buy an urn either: the crematory will provide a simple container without charge — and you may send the ashes by ordinary parcel post or carry the container in a suitcase.

If you have decided to scatter the ashes, don't let anyone talk you out of doing what you want to do. You can scatter the ashes with or without ceremony, at any time (even years later). If they are to be scattered, however, have the ashes pulverized first, so that all the fragments are broken into a white powder which can be returned to the elements in a clean, orderly way in keeping with your sensitivities and the area's rules.

If you are planning bequeathal to a medical school, be sure the funeral director contacts the school to find out what kind of embalming (if any) the school wants. Ordinary embalming usually is not acceptable.

If the body is to go directly to the medical school, let the school make the arrangements with the funeral director.

In sum, to sidestep the viciously cruel death traps on all sides, be cautious, go slow, consult experienced, trusted advisers. Neither pay any unfamiliar debt nor sign any document before careful investigation and before you have recovered your balance.

Texans urged to express desires

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texans should let legislators and state officials know whether the current special legislative session on tax relief is worthwhile, Gov. Dolph Briscoe says.

"The key to this session is the expression on the part of individual citizens in the state as to what they want," Briscoe said in a radio interview taped for broadcast Sunday.

The governor said he was disappointed that legislation has not reached his desk in the session's first two weeks. He left open the possibility of calling a second session to enact his tax relief proposals.

"I don't think it will be necessary" (to call another session), he said on the State Capitol Dateline radio program. "I have never wanted to be in a position of, in any way, trying to threaten any action. I'm not going to close any doors, though, as to what might be necessary to do it (pass tax relief legislation)."

Tax limitation is essential this session, he said, when asked about a property tax reform bill by Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange. The proposal would set up a single tax assessing office in each county instead of several which might exist for different taxing districts.

"Without tax limitation, it would require the largest property tax increase in the history of this state," Briscoe said when reminded that Peveho has indicated he might drop the tax limit section.

"I'm not going to prejudge a piece of legislation before it gets to my desk," he said when asked if he would veto the bill without a limitation section. "I think it's absolutely essential that the limitation be there."

Briscoe defended one of his appointees, Hugh Yantis, whose Senate confirmation as State Insurance Board chairman is in serious jeopardy. Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, says he will block Yantis' confirmation through senatorial courtesy.

"Hugh Yantis has done an excellent job as chairman of the State Board of Insurance. I hope that Sen. Doggett will look at this record. He has held out increases in the cost of insurance probably more than anyone in many, many terms," Briscoe said, adding he has no one else in mind for the job.

Briscoe emphasized he will not retire from politics when his term ends in January. He said he has no plans to campaign in November for Attorney General John Hill, who beat him in the Democratic gubernatorial primary.

"I don't have plans for any campaign activity this fall. I'm a Democrat though, and I support the Democratic ticket," he added.

Stirring Words

It is possible that the philosophical expression which was uttered by Baron Pierre de Coubertin, founder of the modern Olympic Games — "The main issue in life is not victory but the fight, the essential is not to have won but to have fought well" — may have done much to encourage the development of sportsmanship awards in athletics.

Sick plant clinic

Joe Van Zandt and Thelma Bray are inspecting plants for the clinic Monday from 10:15 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and 1:30 - 3:30 p.m. at the Lovett Memorial Library. The clinic is a come and go affair (bring plants) for anyone with problems or questions about sick plants, diseases, insects, soil fertility, gardens, general landscape, plants or crops. At 2 p.m. Jim Valentine, areal soil chemist, will present an informal program.

Byrd expects filibuster on gas deregulation bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd says the Senate has seen enough filibustering for one year to suit him, but that he anticipates at least one more parliamentary stall over a natural gas deregulation bill.

Byrd also said Saturday that "excellent candidates" for filibusters include a bill granting more time for ratifying the Equal Rights Amendment and proposed constitutional amendments abolishing the Electoral College and giving full voting representation to the District of Columbia.

The natural gas bill, a part of the president's energy package, is being considered by a House-Senate conference committee. It is one of the priority pieces of legislation left to be considered before Congress adjourns for the year.

It will set out the pace and manner in which the United States will move toward deregulating natural gas prices, a subject that has been debated for decades.

"I think it is absolutely imperative that the people not be sent a message that the Congress cannot act because of a filibuster on one of the most important pieces of legislation that has come before Congress in the last 25 years," Byrd said during his regular weekly news conference. "I think there has been enough filibustering."

Sens. James Abourezk, D-S.D., and Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, led a filibuster against the natural gas bill last year. The Senate also has had filibusters on labor law changes and, briefly, against an Alaska lands bill this summer.

Oklahoma City officials seek witness to murders

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — An unknown witness to the slayings of six people in a south side restaurant is still in the community, say police, who are offering promises of protection and a $50,000 reward for information on the killings.

The murders were discovered Sunday night when the manager of the steakhouse found the bodies of six employees shot to death in the meat locker of his restaurant, the Sirloin Stockade.

On Friday, a police spokesman said an unknown third person, believed to have taken part in the robbery that led to the slayings, is still thought to be in the Oklahoma City area. And police believe that person did not fire any of the shots in the murders.

Putting together reports from people near the establishment and shreds of physical evidence, police developed the third person theory, which prompted Police Chief Tom Heggy to send an "open letter" to the witness.

In the letter, which was distributed throughout the city, Heggy asked the individual to come forward with information for the "rightness of the act" and for the reward of more than $50,000. "If you... did not pull the trigger, you are not a killer... you have nothing to fear from us."

Oklahoma County District Attorney Andrew Coats said the letter did not "commit us to giving anybody immunity." But he added, "I would give serious consideration to immunity if testimony helped us get the killers."

Since the letter was issued, the only response was a call that has now been discounted, police said Friday night.

Following the killings, citizens rushed to stores selling handguns and nearly tripled the number of gun permits being processed by city police, said the clerk in charge of permits.

Records clerk Juanita Lauer said 45 permits were received the day after the murders, 66 permits came in Tuesday, about 60 on Wednesday and around 50 on Thursday. That compares with about 20 on an average weekday.

More than 98 miles of gathering system in the Panhandle will feed Palo Duro's 217 miles.

An estimated 175 MMCFD of gas will be carried by the line and delivered to United Texas Transmission Co. At Sweetwater for final distribution across the state.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
 Rainshowers brought cool relief Saturday to many parts of Texas that have been baked dry by a month-long heat wave.
 In Wichita Falls, where the noon temperature has been at or near 100 degrees for the past month, it was 79 and raining at midday.
 Showers over Central West Texas were scattered within an area generally bordered by Wichita Falls, Weatherford, Temple and San Angelo — with a heavier concentration between Stephenville and Gainville.
 Rain was also reported in far West Texas in the Van Horn area, in the Panhandle around Amarillo and throughout most of Southeast Texas.
 Most rainfall amounts were less than three quarters of an inch, but at Evadale, north of Beaumont, 1.75 inches of rain fell during the 24-hour period ending at 11 a.m. Saturday.
 Forecasters said the outlook is for continued scattered thunderstorms over all but South Texas, where it will be continued hot.

Former Pampa couple killed in Amarillo

Two former Pampa residents were found dead in their Amarillo home Friday morning. They are William Floyd Dalton, 69, and his wife Edna, approximately the same age, of 3608 NE 22nd, Amarillo. Police told relatives the couple had been beaten to death.

The Daltons moved to Amarillo in 1948 from Pampa. Dalton was born on Aug. 14, 1908, in Carter, Okla. He was a retired refrigeration maintenance man at West Texas State University.
 Mrs. Dalton was born on April 14, 1911 in Watanki, Okla. The survivors are two sons, W. Wayne Porter and Harvey D. Dalton, both of Amarillo; two daughters Mrs. Wanda D. Mosby and Mrs. Flossy Price, both of Amarillo; one brother Paul W. Dalton, Pampa; 10 grandchildren.
 The Daltons were married on Aug. 24, 1928, in Childress. They were members of the Bykota Baptist Church, Amarillo.

Marchers protest in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — About 200 demonstrators marched through the downtown area Saturday, carrying placards critical of the federal government for not prosecuting a former policeman convicted in state court of killing a Mexican-American boy.
 The demonstrators, who had a city parade permit, marched without incident from the John F. Kennedy Memorial to the city police station and from there to City Hall, a distance of less than two miles.
 The protest came two days before the federal statute of limitations runs out on the case involving former policeman Darrell L. Cain, who was convicted in state court of shooting to death Santos Rodriguez, 12, in 1973.

Heaths are transferred

Capt. and Mrs. Bodell Heath, commanding officers of the Pampa Salvation Army Citadel, have been transferred to Beaumont, Texas, as commandants of the Army's activities there.
 They will be replaced here by Lt. and Mrs. David Craddock, who have been assistant officers at Beaumont. The Caradocks are scheduled to assume their duties here Aug. 2.

Zoning board acts on four tract requests

The Pampa Zoning Board approved two rezoning requests and denied two other requests for rezoning of property at its regular meeting Friday at City Hall.
 The board approved rezoning of two tracts in the Davis Place Addition, one from agriculture to multi-family and the other from agriculture to SF-2. The city commission will conduct public hearings on the rezoning at a future date.
 The board denied approval to rezoning of residential tract and a two-family dwelling tract to Commercial. The denials were made because of considerable opposition from persons living around the two tracts.

Three guards killed, three injured as inmates riot at Illinois prison

PONTIAC, Ill. (AP) — Three prison guards were stabbed to death and three others wounded Saturday when 1,100 inmates rioted and set fire to buildings of the Pontiac Correctional Center.

State Corrections Director Charles Rowe refused to answer questions during an afternoon news conference about injuries to inmates, although another prison spokesman earlier said some prisoners were hurt.
 Rowe said 250 riot-equipped state troopers and guards escorted 20 prisoners at a time back to their cells during the mid-afternoon hours.

Guerilla slaughters continue in Rhodesia

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — The military command said Saturday that nationalist guerrillas killed 39 black civilians in eastern Rhodesia, the latest reported in a series of civilian massacres, and government troops killed 106 guerrillas in follow-up operations.

The terse military communiqué gave no details, but black nationalist sources said the massacre occurred about two weeks ago and the victims were supporters of the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, a member of the transition government's ruling executive council.

The civilians were shot to death during a rally on a tribal reservation in the Wedza area, 80 miles east of Salisbury, the communiqué said.

News watch

WASHINGTON (AP) — Howard Jarvis, the activist who pushed California's tax-cutting Proposition 13 to success in a statewide election, is turning fund-raiser for an educational radio station whose budget was cut because of his success.
 National Public Radio announced here that Jarvis will record commercials for station KCRW in Santa Monica, Calif., asking the public to help make up part of the $97,000 cut from KCRW's budget.
 NPR said Santa Monica Community College, which holds KCRW's license, was forced to reduce its support to the station from $107,000 last year to $10,000 for the coming year because its own budget was cut by Proposition 13. However, the college's board of trustees agreed to allow the station to try to raise up to $70,000 in donations.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Joyce C. Lashof has been appointed assistant director of the congressional Office of Technology Assessment, Director Russell W. Peterson has announced.
 A Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Duke University, Dr. Lashof earned her medical degree at Women's Medical College of Pennsylvania. A former professor of preventive medicine at the University of Illinois, she also served for four years as director of the Illinois Department of Public Health. In the Carter administration, she has served as a deputy assistant secretary of health, education and welfare.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has given scientists at Washington State University in Pullman, Wash., a $32,821 grant to see if solar energy can be used to dry hops.
 The department said the scientists plan to convert the roof of a hop-drying kiln into a solar collector and make other modifications so consumption of fuel oil can be reduced. Hops, which are used in making beer, contain 80 percent moisture when harvested and must be dried to 8.5 percent to be used.

It was the second riot in four days at an Illinois prison. On Wednesday about 400 inmates took control of two cellblocks at the Stateville Correctional Center near Joliet. State police and prison guards restored order at Stateville within two hours, and no injuries were reported.

The state-run Pontiac prison is a maximum security facility with about 2,000 inmates. Nine guards and 11 inmates were injured when prisoners rioted at the facility seven years ago.

Rowe said one of the three injured guards was in serious condition and was transferred to a hospital in Peoria. Authorities said at least one woman guard was held hostage temporarily but escaped.
 Large fires gutted three prison buildings, but "are pretty much under control now," prison spokesman Marshall Ramsey said four hours after the riot began at 9:45 a.m. CDT. Ramsey said the buildings were used mostly for storage.
 Three prisoners attempted to scale a 12-foot brick wall that surrounds the prison but were captured by police.
 Rowe refused to say what caused the disturbance.

Less money, students causes teacher surplus

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Tight-fisted taxpayers and declining enrollments are forcing school districts in many parts of the country to fire teachers and trim the curriculum.

"Experienced teachers are having a rough time finding a place to work," said one Ohio official. "The 'frill' courses will probably go," added an educator in Colorado.

In some places, like Michigan, the drop in the number of teachers is being offset by a drop in the number of students; in other areas, like the West Allegheny district of Pennsylvania, youngsters returning to school this fall will find classrooms more crowded.

Despite recent changes in school financing systems, local property taxes are still a key source of revenue for education in most of the country. And these levies are the target of the spending and tax-cut drives which spread from California to over a dozen other states.

"Given the climate and the mood of the taxpayers today, the chances of getting (new local school) taxes passed by the voters is very small," said James Melton of the Kentucky School Boards Association.

While local funds are drying up, smaller enrollments are reducing state and federal aid subsidies which are tied to the number of pupils. An Associated Press spot check showed, however, that the severity of the problem varies from state to state and even from district to district.

In Hawaii, officials say no layoffs are planned; Michigan educators say the ratio of students to teachers has dropped from 24.8 to 1 in 1971-72 to 23.8 to 1 last year; Nevada authorities say enrollment and teacher employment are actually increasing.

Ohio educators, in contrast, report that enrollment dropped about 4 1/2 percent from 1975-76 to 1977-78; the number of full-time teachers decreased 4 percent. Roger Lulow of the Ohio Department of Education, said staff reductions—past, present and future—were due mainly to the "increased total cost of education and/or the failure of voters to approve local school levies." Voters in Cleveland have rejected two school tax proposals this year alone; officials say they have no way to balance next year's budget, let alone make up a $20 million deficit left from last year.

On a nationwide basis, figures from the U.S. Office of Education show enrollment in public elementary and secondary schools dropped 7 percent from 1971-72 to 1977-78, while the number of teachers rose 6 percent. No one knows what this fall's figures will show.

Budget troubles are entrenched in some states. Four districts in Oregon, for example, closed temporarily during the 1976-77 school year because voters rejected proposed budgets. Things could get even worse this year if voters approve "Measure 6," an initiative patterned after California's Proposition 13, limiting property taxes.

Other areas are just beginning to face the financial squeeze. Philadelphia laid off 1,800 teachers in May, the first time that city teachers had been fired solely to balance the budget. "Increased operating costs and static revenues," was the way school district spokesman William Jones summed up the problem.

The June 6 passage of Proposition 13 brought warnings of mass layoffs in California. The warnings have not come true so far, mainly because of a nearly $5 billion state surplus that is being used to make up for revenues lost in the 57 percent property tax cut.

"Statewide, I doubt if there will be a lot of teachers laid off," said Vic Biondi, aide to Wilson Riles, state school superintendent.

The budgets deadline has been extended from Aug. 10 to Sept. 10. There already have been some cuts, however—mainly in supplementary services like adult education and summer school and in the number of non-teaching employees—and authorities express concern about what will happen next year, when there may be no surplus to draw on.

"Our first concern is to keep cuts as far away from the classroom as possible," said Bill McMurray, executive director of the Classroom Teachers Association of San Francisco.

Officials in Oregon are making contingency plans in the event voters approve a November ballot measure limiting property taxes to 1.5 percent of market value. In Salem, property taxes for the fiscal year ended June 30 totaled $31 per $1,000 of valuation or 3.1 percent. There, fiscal officer Andy Anderson estimated that passage of the tax-cutting initiative would mean a $12 million overall loss and layoffs for 400 of the district's 1,200 teachers. Average class size, he said, would jump from 25 to 40.

Missouri officials do not face a major tax or spending initiative like Oregon's, but they are planning cutbacks because of rising costs, lower enrollments and voter resistance to higher budgets. The number of teachers in Kansas City is expected to drop from 2,200 last year to 2,050 this year; enrollment is estimated at 44,000, down from 46,000; the projected budget will drop $2 million to $73 million.

"A lot of districts are having a money crunch," said Stan Boman of the Missouri National Education Association. He said proposed boosts in school levies—which require approval of two-thirds of the voters—are being rejected. "They go down like crazy," Boman said.

In the West Allegheny School District, just outside of Pittsburgh, the school budget initially proposed called for a tax increase of 9 mills; because of public opposition, the new budget includes a 1.5-mill increase. Eleven of 154 teaching positions have been eliminated; music and art courses have been curtailed; and the average teacher to pupil ratio will go from 1 to 24 to 1 to 30.

PROFESSIONAL SINGERS, MUSICIANS COMING TO PAMPA

The Celebrant Singers and Orchestra, a nationally known musical group headquartered in Visalia, California, will be presenting a concert of contemporary Gospel music on Thursday, July 27 at 8:00 p.m. in the M.K. Brown Auditorium.

Their fast-paced 90-minute program entitled "An Evening of Musical Praise" is an inspiring presentation including new arrangements of old hymns as well as contemporary gospel. The program will also feature personal testimonies by members of the group.

Pulchritude's Peak

Bob Barker and Helen O'Connell co-host the "Miss Universe Beauty Pageant" to be broadcast live, via satellite, from Acapulco, Mexico, Monday, July 24 on the CBS Television Network.

If your appetite has been whetted by the sight of local bathing beauties, the "Miss Universe Beauty Pageant" can only add some international spice to the sport of girl watching. The pageant airs live from Acapulco, Mexico, on Monday, July 24.

Producer-director Sydney F. R. Smith, who has directed both the Miss USA and Miss Universe beauty pageants for the past 11 years, will be center-front this year—as producer.

Since Smith has been around all this super-national pulchritude for the last 11 years, he's eminently qualified to chat about the splendiferous strain of womenfolk called the Miss Universe contenders.

First, don't hand Smith any of that business about beauty-contest girls being a bunch of Dumb Doras. "They get smarter every year," Smith says. "Hipper, too. They used to be like so much bland apple pie. Nowadays, there's spice in the filling." And, according to Smith, the contestants are as cooperative as all get out, they take well to the TV cameras and also get along remarkably well with each other.

"It's fun," Smith says, "to make all the shots look beautiful, and fun to make all the girls look beautiful." Next to fun, there's excitement. "The shows are events, live, straight-ahead events. You don't find too many of those in television today."

There are those, Smith concedes, who believe that pageants on television have become pseudo-show business spectacles, complete with big-name guest stars, production

TV Star Scene

As an old saw says, "Only a fool never changes his mind." So, count Julia Child and Sally Struthers among the smart folks. Both — for different reasons — said they wanted no reprise of the series that brought them television fame. But that was a while back.

Julia, it was learned later, was convalescent from surgery when she rang down the curtain on her "French Chef" lessons. Now she's fine and ready to launch a new PBS series. This time around she's shedding her former Gallic boundaries and focusing on good food in general.

Eyebrows did raise, however, when the word first went around that Ms. Struthers may guest occasionally this fall on "All in the Family" with her TV parents, Carroll O'Connor and Jean Stapleton. In the not-so-old days she battled through the courts in an attempt to break totally free. It was her screen hubby Rob (Meathead) Reiner who first spread the happy rumor about Sally, a week after he announced his own intention to do a few guest spots. In the meantime, Rob is spending part of his vacation co-starring in a movie with his real wife, Penny Marshall (of "Laverne and Shirley"). Its title: "Love Me and I'll Be Your Best Friend."

Martin Mull starts the fun of his new comedy LP with the title, "Sex and Violins."

Pat Collins, who has just joined ABC's "Good Morning, America" is not just another pretty face doing features and selling stuff on TV. She apprenticed with theater critic Elliott Norton in Boston and enhanced her credentials as an arts critic on CBS's flagship station in New York for the past four years.

David Sheehan, who does daily newscasts in Los Angeles, has increased his work load with appearances on NBC's new nighttime "America Alive!" magazine show. David, as some in Hollywood remember, was the first commentator publicly to urge — even nag — Motion Picture Academy members to nominate John Travolta for an Oscar award for "Saturday Night Fever."

It's swell to be able to add that Travolta is among those who do remember. In fact, he has credited David's partisanship with landing him the nomination. David has explained that he felt many of the establishment members might skip seeing the film on the basis of its rock and youth angles and not realize until too late that both the movie and its star were big time.

The great English showman Lord Lew Grade, who produced two series built around Patrick McGougan ("Danger Man" and "The Prisoner"), is dickering for another first-class British actor, Trevor Howard, to star in a weekly small-screen whodunit. Well, well. History does repeat itself... sorta.

Way back when Jack Paar exited "The Tonight Show," opening the way to galloping fame and fortune for Johnny Carson, it was because Jack had bought a TV station in Maine and wanted to manage it himself... and did for a couple of years. Now Johnny is part of a group that has bought a TV station in Las Vegas, subject to FCC approval, of course. With Johnny, however, the station business is an extra; he isn't quitting his juicy NBC deal.

To paraphrase an old tune, do you remember Pearl Harbor? If not, two memory-priming miniseries will fill in the gaps this fall. NBC is re-doing "From Here to Eternity" with Natalie Wood playing the old Deborah Kerr role as the colonel's wife who strays into true love with a sergeant just before Japanese bombs set off World War II.

ABC's eve-of-World War II entry now filming on location is called "Pearl." Angie Dickinson stars as an army officer's wife. Natalie Wood's husband, Robert Wagner, is one of Angie's co-stars. Small world?

Lietzke overtakes faltering Nicklaus in Philly Classic

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bruce Lietzke, fresh from two weeks of fishing and putting around his new house, made up six strokes Saturday and overtook faltering Jack Nicklaus, gaining a one-stroke lead after three rounds of the $250,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic.

Lietzke started the day five strokes behind the tournament record two-round total of 130 for Nicklaus, last week's winner of the British Open for the third time. But Lietzke, winner a month ago of the Canadian Open, rolled in six birdie putts for a five-under-par 66 and a 54-hole total of 201, 12-under-par.

While Lietzke was burning up the Whitemarsh Country Club course at the same time spectators were being carried off from heat prostration, Nicklaus scrambled to a one-over-par 72, losing a chance to tie for the lead when he missed a five-foot putt on the 18th hole for a bogey.

Lietzke, the pro golf tour's 15th leading money winner, has had rounds of 67-68-66, while Nicklaus has fired 67-66-72 for a three-round total of 205.

After making a total of 14 birdies in the first two rounds, Nicklaus, golf's biggest attraction, had only two Saturday, and lost a stroke to par three times.

Three strokes off behind the leader were Gil Morgan, winner at Los Angeles this year, who shot a tournament tying record of seven-under-par 64, and Hubert Green, with a five-under 66. Both were at 204.

Another stroke back were 47-year-old Miller Barber, Ben Crenshaw, who tied for second behind Nicklaus at St. Andrews in Scotland last week, and 44-year-old Lee Elder.

Barber tied Nicklaus for the lead after nine holes Saturday, but the veteran wilted in the 96-degree heat and oppressive humidity, making a bogey, double bogey and bogey on three of the last six holes.

Crenshaw, three strokes behind Nicklaus after Friday's second round, slipped to a 72 Saturday and was four strokes behind Lietzke.

Kansas State charged with sex discrimination

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State University, despite boasting one of the most active women's athletic programs in the country, has been charged with sex discrimination in a complaint with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Kansas State, which has led the Big Eight in instituting women's basketball, softball and track programs, is accused of failing to provide equal athletic opportunities for women under Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972.

The complaint, filed Friday by the Alliance for Equality in Sports, said Title IX requires all educational institutions to provide such opportunities in competition, equipment and supplies, travel expenses, publicity, scholarships and employment by July 21, 1978.

"We believe Kansas State fails to meet the requirements of Title IX," said Jan Garton, president of the community action group.

"However, President (Duane) Acker contends the university is in compliance. And despite our efforts to present information to the contrary, the president has chosen to hold that position. We see this complaint as the only course of action left to us."

Garton said the complaint was merely a formal request asking HEW to investigate the alleged discrimination.

Sneva gets pole position

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — Rick Mears became the first driver to officially crack the 200 mile-per-hour barrier at Atlanta International Raceway, but teammate Tom Sneva upstaged him with a searing 202.475 mph effort later in the day to win the pole position for Sunday's 150-mile Indianapolis car race here.

Terry Ryan, whose Chevrolet wears the sponsorship of A.J. Foyt's Houston auto dealership, edged Foyt out for the pole position in qualifying for a 150-mile U.S. Auto Club stock car race which shares the program.

Mears, the only driver to win a race so far this season on a talent-packed team with Sneva and Mario Andretti, pushed his Penske racer to 201.267 mph on the first of his two qualifying laps. That broke Andretti's 12-year-old track record of 169.014 mph by several seconds.

Danny Ongais, a frequent pole position winner this year, managed to bump up Mears' record by four-hundredths of a second to 201.588 mph.

But with Sneva, who has set records already this season at Ontario, Calif., Motor Speedway, Indianapolis Motor Speedway and other tracks, still in line, the issue was far from settled.

After a 20-minute delay in time trials while a funeral was conducted at a cemetery adjacent to the speedway, Sneva went out in the 95-degree heat to make his run.

On his first lap, Sneva barely breached the 200 mph mark, but on his second trip around the high-banked oval, the Spokane, Wash., driver cut his elapsed time to 26.67 seconds for the record.

Bass tourney
Wendell Maxey of Berger took first place in the Greenbelt Tournament in Texas Division V of the Poor Boy Bass Association July 16. Maxey received $190 and a trophy.

Fourth place went to Roy Alderson of Letors, who received a prize of $54 and a trophy. Big Bass went to Maxey for a 5 pound, 3 ounce black bass. He won $80 and another trophy.

The next tournament is August 13 at Lake Ellsworth near Lawton, Okla.

PBA vet takes Amarillo lead

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Ernie Schlegel, an 11-year veteran of the PBA tour, knocked down an average of 222 pins for six games Saturday to grab the first round lead in the $60,000 Amarillo Open professional bowling tournament.

Schlegel, who has never won a PBA tournament, had a 12-pin lead over rookie Jeff Morin of Cleveland going into the second round Saturday night.

Schlegel rolled games of 212, 216, 208, 225, 232 and 243 for a 1,336 total.

Morin had a 1,324 pin total xogmxvone ilace while Nelson Burton Jr. of St. Louis, Mo., captured third with 1,300.

The 128-player field was to complete the second round of six games late Saturday night. A third qualifying round is set for Sunday with the top 24 bowlers advancing to match play for three eight-game rounds to wind up the tournament Monday night.

In the 1977 National Football League season, Roger Staubach of Dallas threw touchdown passes to nine different receivers.

Defensive end Harvey Martin of the Dallas Cowboys had 23 quarterback sacks in the 1977 National Football League season.

Rose on threshold of hitting record

By ANDY LIPPMAN
Associated Press Writer
Pete Rose is at the age where the whispers should be about his impending retirement. Instead, the Cincinnati Reds' third baseman has spent the season in the midst of adoration and cheers.

Rose, in his 37th year and in his 18th major league season, has broken into the elite company of 3,000 career hits and currently is poised on the threshold of breaking Tommy Holmes' 37-game hitting streak.

Since June 14, Rose has hit in 35 consecutive games going into Sunday's game at Montreal. If he hits safely Sunday, Rose can tie Holmes' record Monday night in New York, where Holmes now works in the community relations department of the Mets.

Holmes was 27 when he set the National League mark in 1945. Joe DiMaggio was 28 when he set the major league record of 56 games in 1941.

Between Holmes and DiMaggio, Rose will have to move past other luminaries in baseball's past including George Sisler, who had a 41-game streak in 1922, and Ty Cobb, who had a 40-game streak in 1911.

In the pre-1900 era, Willie Keeler hit in 44 straight games in 1897. Cobb had a 35-game streak in 1917 while four players have 34-game hitting streaks: Sisler, in 1925, Dom DiMaggio, in 1949, George McQuinn, in 1938, and John Stone, in 1930.

Age seemed a joke this year for Rose, who cracked at the start of the season: "Before I'm through, I'm going to pass Cap Anson in base hits and I don't even know who Cap Anson is."

During Rose's hitting streak, Rose passed Anson, who was in 10th place on the all-time hit list with 3,081. Currently, in ninth place is Paul Waner with 3,152 hits. Ty Cobb holds the major league mark of 4,191.

At his age, however, Rose still talks of records.

"I can't run, I don't have a good arm. But no one has ever said I can't hit," Rose concluded at the start of the season.

That has been the case since the first hit of his career in 1963 and it's especially been the case in the twilight years of his career — when records have fallen like rain for Rose.

"Records are part of the game," Rose said. "If you play long enough and hit enough, then you accumulate them. But you can't see too many of them just playing 10 years."

Champ's name is hardly a household word

By DAN SEWELL
AP Sports Writer
MIAMI (AP) — Fred Lewis recently won his fifth national championship in one of the most grueling sports played, but his name is hardly a household word.

"The lack of publicity really bothered me when I was younger," said Lewis, the king of professional handball. "I really felt strongly about it. But you get used to it. My feelings have changed over the years."

But while Lewis can accept the public's ignorance of his feats, he doesn't think it's justified.

"Handball is probably the toughest non-contact sport there is. You need endurance, you're using your mental capacity to the fullest. I think the public needs to be educated to how difficult the sport is to master. Once that happens, I think the national tour could develop a following," he said.

The game involves two players slamming a hard rubber ball off four walls in a 20 feet by 40 foot room. A top player such as Lewis uses either hand equally. He also must make split-second decisions on how to play the tricky caroms. And matches — two sets to 21 points and a tie-breaker set to 11 — last over two hours.

Lewis, a 30-year-old former University of Miami student, learned handball playing off building walls in the Bronx. He played all the New York street games, such as stickball, punchball and kick-the-can.

But handball was his favorite.

"I was always very competitive as a kid. I really enjoyed the game, and played all the time," he said. By age 17, he was competing in national junior tournaments. He continued his climb and in 1972 played Paul Haber in the national championship tournament.

Haber is a free-spirited carouser who once told baseball great Sandy Koufax that he, Haber, not Koufax, is the greatest Jewish athlete of all time. His off-court antics made him popular with the media, and his success on court was bringing publicity to the game.

But Lewis upset Haber, beginning his own domination of the sport.

The Fred Lewis era has been much quieter.

"Well, the tennis boom brought professional tennis players recognition and racquetball is doing real well now. Marty Hogan gets a lot of publicity; gives people a lot to write about," he said.

The brashness of a Hogan — a top racquetball player — or Haber just doesn't fit Lewis, a soft-spoken man who rarely raises his voice either on or off court.

"Me pop off? It'll never happen. That's just not me."

Lewis now serves as the handball and racquetball pro for Sportrooms, a chain of clubs in which the Miami Dolphins' Tim Foley owns part interest.

With that salary, plus the $10,000 to $12,000 he earns during a year on the handball circuit, Lewis now makes a comfortable living. It wasn't that five years ago, when he began devoting himself full-time to handball.

"It was a struggle at first. I made just enough to get by. I didn't have any money to sock away for financial security. I was worried because I knew I couldn't play handball all my life," he said.

Lewis made a few dollars here and there from challenge matches, but he says "inward motivation" carried him through the tough years. Now, with the expanding Sportrooms chain proud "to have me in their stable," Lewis feels secure financially.

He has plenty of time to play handball, run and lift weights to keep in shape. He got a scare last year when Mexico's Naty Alvarado burst upon the handball circuit, dominating ev-

Wichita Falls defeated Plainview 10-1 Saturday night to win the West Texas State 16-18 Babe Ruth Tournament.

The game was fairly even, with errors hurting Plainview and hard hitting pushing Wichita Falls ahead. In the sixth inning Wichita Falls exploded with 13 hits, scoring three runs. Wichita Falls short stop Kerry Hargrove was awarded most valuable player for the tournament. Hargrove had 11 hits with 16 times at bat for a .689 average. Hargrove also had two home runs, and batted in 10 runs. He was winning pitcher during one game and only committed one error during the tournament. Wichita Falls will journey next to Malvern, Arkansas for the sectional Babe Ruth Tournament. The winner of that meet will go the World Series.

Texas Panhandle Caprock was knocked out of competition when it went down to Plainview 11-5 Friday night.

After Thursday's demoralizing 18-6 defeat by Wichita Falls, Caprock allowed Plainview to score five runs at the top of the first inning and another run in the second. Caprock nearly caught up in the third inning when John Watson of Stinnett and Ricky Daughtery of Pampa each batted in two runs to make it 6-4, but they couldn't keep up as Plainview scored five more runs in the final three innings. The host team scored a final run in the fifth inning, when Rickey Ennis of Berger drove in Ricky Daughtery with a single.

The winning pitcher was Larry Williams. John Davis of Pampa started for Caprock and was replaced on the mound in the fourth inning by Pampan Steve Stout.

Games available if LA withdraws

LONDON (AP) — Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee, said Saturday the way will be open for other American cities to apply for the 1984 Summer Games if Los Angeles withdraws.

"I am told that Detroit might be interested," Killanin said, "although no official approach has been made."

"Meanwhile, I still hope that Los Angeles will find a way to go through with its bid. I am quite ready to meet with the Los Angeles people again if they want to come over to Europe."

Mayor Tom Bradley has said he will recommend to Los Angeles city council that the city withdraw its bid to stage the 1984 Games. This was after Killanin had told him that a proposal to make an independent group responsible for the games, instead of the city itself, was not in accordance with IOC rules.

The IOC had provisionally awarded the Games to Los Angeles on condition it signed the required contract by July 31. The deadline has now been extended to Aug. 31.

A meeting of the IOC executive board has been called in Lausanne July 29-31. If Los Angeles has a change of mind before then, or comes up with a compromise, the Lausanne meeting would be the last chance to reach an agreement.

Otherwise, the IOC executive board will invite new bids. Los Angeles was the only applicant at the end of last year.

Montreal, Mexico City and Munich have all been reported ready to take over the Games. But many IOC members would prefer a U.S. city. They fear the Olympic movement in the United States would suffer a severe blow if Los Angeles backed out and the Games went to another nation.

The U.S. Olympic Committee decided by only a narrow vote to sponsor Los Angeles in preference to New York City. Atlanta also had shown interest in holding the Games at one stage.

Draw offered

BAGUIO CITY, Philippines (AP) — Challenger Viktor Korchnoi had an excellent opportunity Saturday to gain the first victory of the world chess championship, but he let his advantage slip and offered a draw to champion Anatoly Karpov after 30 moves.

Worried Soviet chess experts from Karpov's delegation, who had been watching a half-dozen grandmasters analyze the game in the press room, smiled for the first time when it was announced that Korchnoi had offered a draw after four hours and 50 minutes of play, 10 minutes short of the time limit.

Korchnoi, the 47-year-old Soviet defector, put severe pressure on Karpov, 27, and was in good position to strike for a win after the 23rd move. But experts agreed he missed his best chance on the 24th move and the champion took advantage to turn the game into a draw.

"I'm almost convinced there was a great winning chance," said Yugoslav chess master Miroslav Radojic.

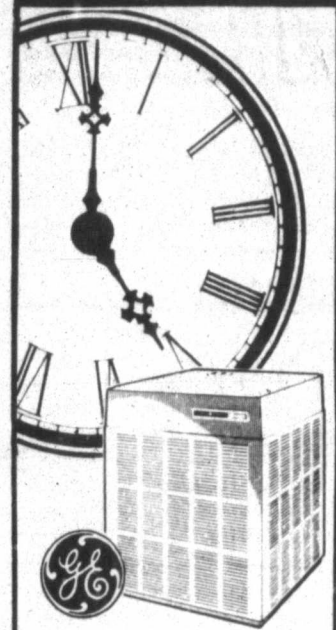

"I think he could have won," said Argentine grandmaster Miguel Najdorf.

Raymond Keene of England, one of Korchnoi's seconds, cursed when the draw was announced and said, "He must have made a bad mistake somewhere."

It was the third draw in three games, but as Radojic commented, "What is good about the match is that each game had been more fighting." Soviet grandmaster and former world champion Mikhail Tal agreed, saying: "It was a very interesting game — a real chess game."

Korchnoi spent half an hour thinking and he made a bad move," said Najdorf. "He obviously didn't have the right formula to win the game."

Annual coaches school begins 46th run

HOUSTON (AP) — The running and passing antics of Dickinson all-star Donnie Little and the slapstick humor of Texas basketball coach Abe Lemons will be among the highlights of the 1978 Texas High School Coaches Association Coaching School.

The school, billed as the largest of its kind in the world, begins its 46th annual run Sunday when schoolboy all-star basketball and football players check in at the University of Houston campus.

They'll begin workouts Monday in preparation for North-South all-star basketball and football games.

Little, who will attend the University of Texas at Austin this fall, will lead the South football stars against the North in Saturday night's game in the Astrodome.

Little quarterbacked Dickinson to the 1977 Class AAA state championship with a string of 13 consecutive victories after a season opening loss to Huntsville. He passed for 1,581 yards and 20 touchdowns and rushed another 1,613 yards and 15 touchdowns.

Perryon running back Brad Beck, who will join Little at Texas this fall, will head the North all-star football team, which will be coached by Perryon. High Coach Don Beck, the running back's father.

Beck gained almost 5,000 yards, threw 10 touchdown passes and scored 428 points during his schoolboy career.

The South football team will be coached by Port Neches-Groves Coach Doug Ethridge.

The South will have plenty of impetus in the all-star basketball game scheduled Friday night in UH's Hofheinz Pavilion. A South victory would tie the series at 17-17 and give the Rebs three straight victories.

The South, coached by Houston Westchester's Bob Latham, will be led by West Osco's Jerry Davis, 6-5, 200, who scored at a 34.8 clip last season. The South also has Terry Teagle of Broadus, who scored 2,956 points and got 1,407 rebounds in his schoolboy career.

The North will have a high-scoring lineup led by Dwight Pettigrew of Whitehouse and Jackie Vaughn of Silverton. Pettigrew hit 58 per cent of his shots and averaged 30 points last season and Vaughn hit at a 27-point average.

Odessa Permian Coach Al

Oglesby will direct the North basketball team.

Lemons, whose Longhorns won the National Invitation Tournament in New York last season, will lecture Thursday on the Longhorn basketball program. Other lecturers include Arkansas football coach Lou Holtz and Brownwood High School football Coach Gordon Wood.

THSAA officials predict the coaching school will set an attendance record for the 25th straight year. A record 7,081 coaches attended last year's session in Dallas.

Stacy leads in Women's Open

INDIANAPOLIS — Rookie Nancy Lopez blew a share of the lead with a horrendous 8-over-par 79, and defending champion Hollis Stacy moved into the third-round lead Saturday in the 26th U.S. Women's Open Golf Championship.

Stacy, who hides a fiercely competitive nature behind a bubbly personality, fought her way to a 1-over-par 72 and established a 1-stroke lead going into Sunday's final round of this national championship with a 217 total.

Veteran JoAnne Carner, a two-time winner of this title, had a share of the top spot until she bogeyed the final hole for a 73 and a 218 total, 5 strokes over par on the extremely difficult 6,115-yard Country Club of Indianapolis Course.

Lopez, the spectacular 21-year-old who is ending her rookie season this week, took herself out of it by matching her highest score ever as a pro. She was 6 strokes off the pace at 223.

"I'm very disappointed with my score and the way I played," said Lopez, who won a record five tournaments in a row earlier this season and was tied for the lead going into the third round here.

"Usually when I get to going bad I feel I can bring it back; make a charge and get it back," Lopez said. "I've done it before. But 79 is a really bad score. I'm very disappointed."

"I really didn't play that bad ly but I left a lot of putts short and I hit some flyers out of the rough."

She was still very much in contention until she bogeyed 3 of 4 holes starting on the eighth and then took a double-bogey 6 on the 14th.

Pig-tailed Jane Blalock and two-time former champion Donna Caponi Young were tied for third at 219, 2 shots back. Blalock had a par 71 and Young shot 73.

Next at 221 were Peggy Conley, Kathy Martin and long-time amateur competitor Carol Semple. Conley had the best round of the day, a 1-under-par 70. Martin shot 71 and Semple 77.

While most of the field was struggling in the breezy weather and the pressure that is peculiar to this championship, Stacy was able to forge a remarkable solid effort.

She went 2 shots ahead of the field with a 25-foot chip-in for birdie on the 14th but backed off with bogeys on 16 and 17.

Will Title IX enforcement kill money-making college athletics?

CHICAGO (AP) — Whew! Woody Hayes has kept his job as Ohio State's football coach. The Cotton Bowl still exists. Kentucky hasn't disbanded its basketball program.

Calm prevails despite the federal government crackdown on how money is spent on college and high school athletics.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare on Friday began what it called vigorous enforcement of Title IX, which requires athletic opportunities for men and women to be "comparable."

Colleges or high schools failing to comply face the loss of all federal funds.

"Most people knew this day was coming and took appropriate action," said Dr. Charles D. Henry, assistant commissioner of the Big 10.

"So far no damage has been done to our athletic departments, but there is still a fear that if Title IX is carried to an extreme it could kill the goose that lays the golden egg."

The concern is for the possibility that Title IX adjustments could hinder money-making athletic programs — which generally are male teams.

For example, Henry said, the Ohio State football program makes enough money to support 30 other Buckeye sports — 18 for men and 12 for women.

"Revenue-producing sports — football, basketball and sometimes hockey — need to be given some sort of preference," he added. "We should treat non-revenue men's sports and women's sports equally, but give revenue sports preference."

"We have good football programs and a good Rose Bowl contract and we get television money — which helps support women's athletics."

Henry said most people involved agree that revenue sports deserve special consideration. But HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. said Wednesday he still wasn't sure if he would count football scholarships separately when deciding if athletic departments are treating men and women comparably.

"If he says the football program can have 95 scholarships (without requiring matchers for women) and then everything else has to be equal, we'll be all right," Henry said. "If not, we're in trouble."

Henry added that even if HEW protects revenue-producing sports, women's groups could sue to force football to lose its preferential nature.

Dr. Charlotte West, president of the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women, said women athletes are not out to destroy or reduce men's athletics. The 900-member AIAW sponsors 18 national championships in 13 sports and is the women's equivalent of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

"We're all in this together. I want to promote men's athletics just like I want my male counterparts to promote women's athletics."

Charlie Thomas named senior college coach

DALLAS (AP) — Track coach Charlie Thomas of Texas A&M shaded baseball coach Mickey Sullivan of Baylor to be named senior college coach of the spring by the Texas Sports Writers Association.

Thomas received 29 first place ballots and 489 points in the preferential voting. Sullivan was a close second with 27 first place votes and 482 points.

The Aggies won the Southwest Conference track championship in what was expected to be a close chase by 44 points. Thomas' mile relay team lost only once during the season and his sprint relay team was defeated only twice.

Sullivan, winner of this award last year, duplicated last year's feat as his Baylor team won the SWC post-season baseball tournament then swept the NCAA regional tournament to qualify for the World Series. He lost his star pitcher, Burl Coker, in the SWC tournament.

Other nominees were golf coach Ronnie Choate of Sam Houston State, tennis coach Bill Crabtree of East Texas State, baseball coach Tom Chandler of Texas A&M and track coaches Dave Bethany of Texas Southern, Ted Banks of Texas at El Paso and Don Hood of Abilene Christian University.

Choate, Crabtree and Bethany coached their respective teams to national NAIA championships.

Fancy pitching at Pee Wee

FARMINGTON, N.M. (AP) — Some fancy pitching dominated the opening round of the Pee Wee Reese South Plains Regional baseball tournament Friday as Farmington, Las Cruces, Tulsa and Dallas notched wins.

The Dallas Texans smashed the Las Cruces Dodgers 19-0 behind the one-hit pitching of Rod Hinton and Jeff Wright. Cecil Vega of Dallas smashed a pinch hit grand slam in that contest.

Vic Prado and Ronnie Reeves of the host Farmington Twins combined for a no-hitter to edge Tuba City, Ariz., 2-1.

The Las Cruces Vikings blanked Denver 10-0 as Joe Guerra fired a five-inning one

Jackson expected to return to Yanks

CHICAGO (AP) — Reggie Jackson was expected to return from exile Sunday after the expiration of a five-day suspension without pay for disobeying the orders of New York Yankees Manager Billy Martin.

It remained to be seen whether the controversial slugger would, in fact, return and whether he would be welcomed with open arms before the Yankees faced the Chicago White Sox.

"If he's here, fine. If he's not, fine. We just have to deal with it either way," said utilityman Paul Blair. "It's not like people have never been suspended before."

"Because we won while he was gone didn't mean we went out and tried harder because Reggie wasn't with us," said Blair. "The man has to be himself. We all hope it will be positive when he comes back."

It may not be, according to first baseman Chris Chambliss, who said: "I don't think he can come back and have things be rosy."

"The team should always come first. But if he comes back, something else has to happen. There will still be more problems," he said.

With Thurman Munson on first, Jackson tried to bunt in the 10th inning of last Monday night's 9-7 loss to the Kansas City Royals. The bunt had been on the first pitch Jackson faced, but the sign was removed on later pitches and he was ordered verbally to swing away.

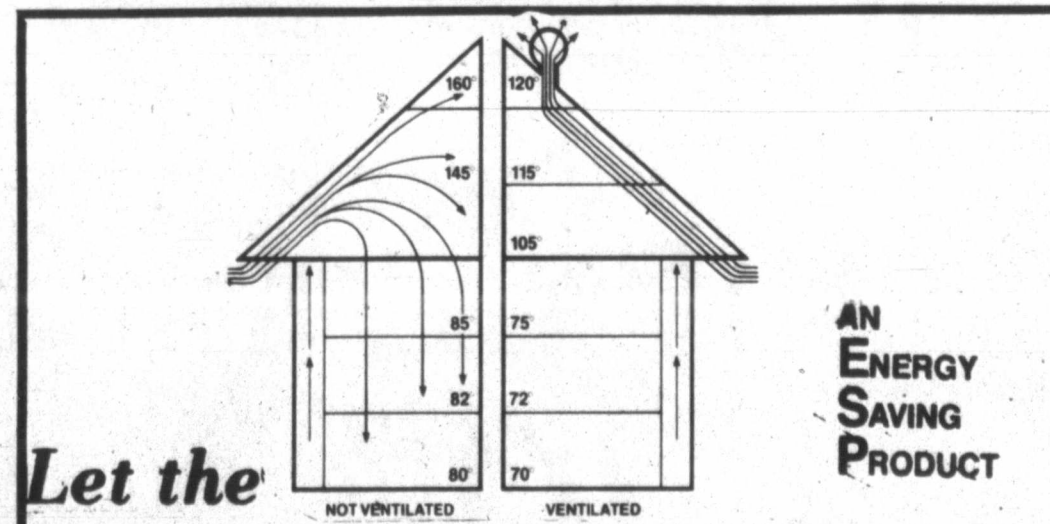

Jackson, who wasn't pleased over losing his right field position to Munson and being relegated to part-time designated hitter status, continued to bunt. He ultimately tipped a foul third strike and incurred the wrath of Martin.

"He didn't just hurt the manager. He hurt the team," Chambliss said. "The man's hitting fourth. He's always wanted to hit fourth and in that situation we needed him hitting

Let the wind do your cooling free!

Wisper Cool (TM) turbines and the wind can help you keep your cool this summer and save you money on air conditioning costs. In summer, an unventilated attic is an inferno of trapped heat that can reach temperatures up to 160 degrees. This puts added stress on your air conditioning and sends cooling bills through the roof. Wisper Cool turbines sit on top of your roof and the wind, not electricity, makes them spin. As they spin they pull the hot attic air out and your cooling bill down.

Wisper Cool turbines are strong and silent. They are so well built they're covered by a limited lifetime warranty. These turbine ventilators are so effective, over two million are spinning out savings as you read this story. All moving parts rotate silently on patented jewel type bearings with locked in lubricant. With Wisper Cool, your savings are seen but not heard.

With turbine ventilators, you'll reduce heat radiation through ceilings and increase your comfort. Many people have saved up to 27 per cent on their cooling bills. Air conditioners run less and last longer with Wisper Cool turbines.

Communist yields halt lower global grain stocks

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Analysts say that prospects for improved harvests in major grain areas, including the Soviet Union and China, have virtually ruled out a significant drop in global grain stocks in the coming year.

The Agriculture Department said Thursday that "the new harvest is now likely to equal or exceed global 1978-79 requirements" for wheat and so-called coarse grains such as corn.

American farmers have been affected directly in recent years by the world grain situation and particularly by harvest prospects in countries that import U.S. grain.

The report, issued by the department's Foreign Agricultural Service, also included a subtle hint that the current programs undertaken by the Carter administration to curb U.S. grain production and boost farm prices of wheat and corn may be continued for the 1979 crops.

Involved are the acreage set-aside programs requiring farmers to idle a portion of their cropland this year in exchange for federal price supports. Also, farmers are storing part of their excess wheat and corn from last year's harvest to help boost prices by keeping it off the market for an extended period.

The report said that despite the outlook for a larger world supply of grain in the 1978-79 year, which began July 1, it appears that world grain prices will continue "generally firm" in the coming months.

One reason, it said, is that most of the prospective gain in grain stocks is likely to occur in the Soviet Union. Also, the amount of grain available to the free market in the United States "will be well below year-earlier levels."

A third factor in the market situation is that, following the actions taken on reserves and production restraint in the U.S. over the last year, there is the possibility that similar actions in 1978-79, affecting either storage of the 1979 crop, or both, could be undertaken," the report said.

Officials have not yet indicated that the administration will continue the acreage set-aside program in 1979 to help reduce production of wheat, corn and other feed grains. Nor has the grain reserve program been extended to include 1978 or later production.

The report said that world production of wheat and coarse grains is expected to be about 1.108 billion metric tons, up from less than 1.077 billion tons in 1977-78, the year that ended June 30. Grain use was put at almost 1.099 billion tons against about 1.076 billion tons last year.

A metric ton is 2,205 pounds. Counting previous stockpiles, the world grain reserve next July 1 may be about 185.2 million tons, up 5.3 percent from 175.8 million tons carried forth this July 1. That would put world grain stocks at their highest level since 1971 million tons were left over nine years ago.

The Soviet Union's wheat and coarse grain harvest, reflecting a USDA estimate made July 10, was listed at 205 million tons, up from 184.5 million in 1977.

That does not include 10 million tons of "miscellaneous grains" such as rice and beans expected from the 1978 Soviet harvest.

Grain production in China was shown at 114 million tons, up from last year's reduced harvest of 108.8 million tons, the report said.

By comparison, U.S. grain production this year is expected to drop to 241.8 million tons from 257.4 million tons in 1977.

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the second month in a row, consumers will have only "adequate" supplies of beef in August, according to the Agriculture Department.

The department said Thursday in its monthly "Food Marketing Alert" that there will be a slight seasonal increase in the August beef supply but that overall there will be 4 to 6 percent less than a year ago.

Barrel House Bill... Willy... Willy... are all the same person. W.W. Ellis, Shipping Supervisor, for Celanese Chemical Company, Inc. Ellis is tagged with the first nickname because he answers his Celanese phone, "Barrel house, Bill speaking." Most people in town refer to him as Will and while growing up in Delaware he picked up "Willy".

Until recently, Ellis headed operations in all three barrel houses at Celanese. Approximately 25,000 drums of acetic acid, acetic anhydride, propionic acid, and butyric acid are stored in a year's time.

Ellis may be found atop a tank car loading 16-18 cars per day. Each car holds anywhere from 10,000 to 35,000 gallons of product. All of the tank cars are top loaded from two racks which have 30 loading spots along them.

"We are the last people to have contact with the product. It's the pay-off department. The quality of the product ends with us," explained Ellis. Each car has to be cleaned before the liquid product is loaded so no contamination will occur. Ellis was proud to add that last Wednesday Celanese Pampa Plant marked one million man hours without a lost time injury.

Ellis is proud of his job and takes it seriously. Mary Helen, his wife added, "he gets out there early." A co-worker refers to the department as "Will Ellis and his trains."

"Barrel house Bill" grew up in Wilmington, Del., where he attended Tower Hill School from kindergarten through the twelfth grade. His senior year, "Willy" was president of the student body.

The year after graduation he worked on a 110 acre farm outside Montchanin, Del. He did anything and everything. The following fall, Ellis attended the University of Alabama and was a member of the freshman football squad. He was studying mechanical engineering.

DuPont was the young man's employer for the next six years in Wilmington and Kankakee, Del. In 1938 Ellis was the first employee "out of the ranks" to be named supervisor. At the time he was working in the nylon area; this was before nylon was announced to the public.

Young Ellis became disillusioned when U.S. Rubber took over the Kankakee Ordinance Division where he was working. This was at the time DuPont went to work on the Manhattan Project.

Will Ellis joined the Army for two years after his mother's death in 1941. After the Army he went to Maryland and managed a farm.

The farm was really three farms (1500 acres) but was being run as one. While trying to clear the land Ellis said, "I bet I dug up a hundred windshields." Today that farm has a white post and rail fence and produced Kentucky Derby winner, Kelso.

While working on the farm, a family friend suggested Ellis go "northwest or southwest."

He chose Corpus Christi because of the minister of the Episcopal Church he attended was from there. Ellis wound up working as an operator at Celanese's Clarkwood facility (which is now the technical center) on the pilot project for the Pampa Plant.

In 1952 Ellis was transferred to Pampa. Mary Helen and Will Ellis have three sons: William Laird, Jr.; Ernest Black (E.B.); and Robert Winslow. Big sons. Last Christmas while visiting friends in Houston, another guest asked to be introduced to the Ellis football squad.

On the surface Will Ellis may at times seem gruff. A new employee said that he was, "scared to death of Bill."

Underneath there is a teddy bear. Early in the summer some friend's daughter (three years old) had heart surgery in Amarillo. Will took their six year old to church and made certain the boy didn't feel lost or left out.

Ellis has been active at St. Matthew's for the 26 years he has lived in Pampa. He has served on the vestry, been Junior Warden, and served on the Day School Board. At least once a day he goes by the church just to be certain all is well.

A fellow church member described Ellis, "he's one of the best fathers and husbands I know."

Another friend commented, "his bark is worse than his bite. Will Ellis cares about people."

Pernie Fallon:

an infatuation with gold jewelry

BY KATHY BURR
Pampa News Staff

Melting - shaping - designing - casting - polishing. That's just a part of her job.

When Pernie Fallon's oldest daughter (whose name is also Pernie) was in junior high, Pernie had a chance to watch her daughter make jewelry. That's when her interest in jewelry making began.

Mrs. Fallon explained with a smile that although she had never completed college, she had been an art major. Her major had never taken her into the area of jewelry, but she had done quite a bit of painting and sculpting. Pernie explained that after watching her daughter work in jewelry for 10 years, she decided she would take a shot at it, and try to learn more about the jewelry making process.

Where did she learn? She enrolled in a class for a semester, has read a variety of books, has taught herself a great deal and goes to seminars. She gives a great deal of credit for her knowledge in this area to Willetta Olds, who was the junior high arts and crafts teacher, and who taught Pernie her course. Today Pernie has her own business, and although she doesn't teach any courses, she said she would show someone how to work with jewelry.

Pernie has made jewelry for about two years now, and bases her prices on the weight of the final product. She said that it took her about one year to get all of the necessary equipment from the Swest Company in Dallas. This was an investment that cost Pernie almost $800. Part of her equipment includes a lathe that was used by her grandfather who was a watchmaker.

How is the jewelry made? First Pernie stressed that she works only in gold, "because I love gold." She added though that if someone would request silver, she would make it. The process itself sounds complicated and like hard work to anyone that isn't familiar with the process, but Pernie said that it was really very simple.

The only method Pernie uses is called the lost wax casting method, and begins with the design of the ring, which is done in wax. The final product will be an exact replica of the wax design. After Pernie completes the wax design she places it in a black metal oblong tube called a casting flask, with plaster of paris. She explained that usually she lets the design dry in the flask overnight, removes the bottom from the flask, and bakes the entire product in a type of oven called a kiln for five hours at 1450 degrees. While the plaster of paris mold is in the oven, the wax will evaporate leaving the design in the plaster of paris. Pernie then places the plaster of paris into a centrifugal casting machine. This machine will melt the gold and throw the molten gold into the mold, to produce the ring. All that is left then is polishing and finishing it.

How long does this entire process take. Well it can depend, Pernie explained. She said that designing the ring in the wax can take the longest, and may take her an entire week to complete this process alone. It usually only takes her about one day to cast the design, and she allows about one more week for polishing.

Is it ever difficult for her to design a product? "Sometimes it's difficult, but usually it isn't," she said. "If I'm trying to get something someone has in mind, then it's difficult," she said.

Pernie explained that jewelry making is really fairly common, but the largest problem is getting your own equipment. She added that it is a fairly common hobby among dentists, because the equipment used for dentistry is also used for jewelry making.

"It's not hard to learn," Pernie explained, "it's more mechanical than anything else." "My art background has contributed to my knowledge," she said, "but I do it because I really have a thing about gold. It can't be destroyed."

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Charlie and I have been married for 16 years and have had a fairly happy marriage. Charlie never was the jealous type, but I think he carries it to the other extreme.

We've become friendly with a rather odd couple who live in the same "condo." Izzy is 55, short, fat and generally unattractive. Suzy (his third wife) is cute, sexy and about 25 years younger than Izzy. She obviously married him for his money.

Lately Izzy has been getting much too friendly with me. He's forever putting his hands on me. Once he suggested "switching" and when I looked shocked, he laughed and said he was "only kidding."

It seems the four of us are spending more and more time together. Last night during a foursome of bridge at our place, Izzy tried to play footsie with me. He slipped off his shoe and practically had his foot in my lap. I loudly told him off while Charlie and Suzy just sat there.

I get the impression that Suzy doesn't care who Izzy plays footsie with as long as it isn't her. (I think she must have something else going for her.)

Anyway, Suzy suggested that the four of us vacation somewhere together. I made excuses why we couldn't, but Charlie was all for it.

Is our marriage sick? I don't care to spend so much time with this couple. Why should my husband want to? And why shouldn't he be annoyed that another man makes passes at his wife?

Help me.

CHARLIE'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Tell Charlie that if he enjoys Izzy's company, he should see him without you because that foursome has become boring.

(P.S. You could be right about Suzy's having something else going for her. Just make sure it isn't Charlie.)

DEAR ABBY: The wife who said her husband smelled because he seldom bathed, reminds me of a story they tell about Samuel Johnson, the noted English lexicographer of the 1700s.

Johnson was a "purist" where words were concerned, but when it came to his personal hygiene, he was a notorious slob who seldom bathed.

A woman sitting next to him on a coach train said: "Sir, you smell!" Whereupon Johnson replied: "Madam, you are wrong. YOU smell, I stink."

Perhaps the husband who was accused of "smelling" would like to show this to his wife.

LEE IN DELAWARE

DEAR LEE: Samuel Johnson was wrong. If he gave off an offensive odor, he "smelled" and "stank" as well. Or should Shakespeare's immortal line in "Romeo and Juliet" have been: "A rose by any other name would 'stink' as sweet?"

DEAR ABBY: Please print this letter! It may open the eyes of many angry, vindictive divorced parents who are doing their children a terrible disservice.

My marriage was a mess. After many separations, reconciliations and a hundred broken promises, I decided to terminate my marriage before it destroyed me. (My handsome, charming husband had a weakness for young girls—some of them so young he nearly landed in jail.) We had two children who didn't get to know their father very well, but they could understand what was being said to them. I never talked against him nor did I allow anyone else to. Rather, I taught my children to respect their father.

Today my children are both grown. I know they don't "love" their father the way they love me, but they don't "hate" him either. They call him long-distance on Father's Day and when he visits their town, they invite him (and his fourth wife) for a meal.

When you teach your child to hate the other parent, you do the child more harm than to do yourself good.

NO REGRETS IN DAYTON

DEAR NO: Thank you for a sensible letter. It comes at a time when many parents have agreed to disagree. I hope it opens a few eyes of those who are still able to see.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read your column about health and was concerned about what you said about eggs. I have just come back from California where I was going to a couple of body building gyms. A lot of the fellows told me that it is important to diet while body building.

I have been body building for three years and part of my diet for breakfast is five eggs, a piece of steak and two glasses of milk plus bread. For lunch I eat three boiled eggs and five slices of bread and a glass of milk. For dinner I make sure I get plenty of these foods — meat, eggs, potatoes, cheese, bread and milk. I can't really give you all my diet because it's impossible but these are the main foods. I eat about a dozen eggs a day and also consume plenty of protein pills.

Do you think this is bad for me? I am at the stage of going out for my first contest when I get back to California. My mom also tells me not to eat so many eggs but I think to gain muscle you have to eat these foods. I train every day and am 16 years old. What do you think?

DEAR READER — I think you've been had. There is no reason whatsoever that you need to eat a dozen eggs a day for a body building program nor any reason for you to consume a lot of expensive protein powders. I included your letter in my column because it is typical of a lot of the nonsense going around about body building. If your desire is to build muscle, not body fat, you need an exercise program that stimulates muscle growth.

As I have pointed out before, a pound of lean muscle fiber is about 73 percent water which leaves only 27 percent for other substances. A pound of lean muscle fiber contains only about 100 grams of protein.

The best protein the body can possibly have to build muscle protein is the protein that comes from other muscle. That's where the lean meat in your diet comes in. If you have enough calories from any foods including carbohydrate foods and an extra 100 grams of protein a week that you would get from one pound of lean meat a week, that should be enough to provide a growth of one pound of muscle each week if your exercise program stimulates growth. To be on the safe side you can increase your protein intake quite a bit and still not have to do what you're doing. In almost all instances of a good healthy person growing muscles with a sensible program, 100 grams of good protein a day is adequate. You can get that protein from good lean meat, lean chicken, fish and fortified skim milk. In this way you don't have to overload your body with fats, saturated fats and cholesterol.

Young men can and do develop fatty-cholesterol blockage of the arteries. The eating pattern you have established is going to train you to eat in a way that is conducive to early vascular disease with its complications of heart attacks and strokes. The only good thing I can say about your program is the exercise.

To help you sort out the facts as they exist I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-4, Weight Training for Energy and Weight Control. As the title implies, proper exercise and specifically weight training is one of the mechanisms that maintains your muscle mass and helps to prevent obesity.

Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Energy Saving Ideas

WASTE LESS, SAVE MORE

"In our homes, 41 percent of all the energy we pay for is actually wasted. In our commercial buildings, 48 percent of all energy is wasted and industry wastes 49 percent."

In a recent address at Energy Expo '78 in Rhode Island, Kennedy highlighted a number of energy-efficient systems now in use in Europe. He said that they all have two things in common: they were designed and selected on the basis of lowest operating cost, instead of lowest first cost as systems are in the U.S., and they did not depend on some future breakthrough to become justified.

The Alliance to Save Energy is a national voluntary group dedicated to helping Americans save energy. Kennedy is president of the York division of Borg-Warner Corporation and is a member of the board of advisors to the Alliance to Save Energy.

Europeans have eliminated much of this waste, says Kennedy, partly due to wider use of heat reclamation systems and large heat pump systems. "This has happened because in Europe energy historically has been costly and in short supply," Kennedy said. "This has forced Europeans to be strict conservationists, and it has pushed them to design and employ systems that use energy efficiently. System designs

Home preservation reaches peak

By MRS. ELAINE HOUSTON
County Extension Agent

Home food preservation is in full swing now. We have the most current bulletins in preservation available free from the County Extension Office. The bulletins include canning, freezing, drying, pickle making, jams, jellies, marmalades and safe canning procedures. We will also test pressure canners if your needs testing. Be sure to bring all parts of the canner and plan to leave it overnight.

For diabetics here is a recipe for sugarless jelly. The sugarless jelly recipe was taken from information received from Lafayette, Indiana from studies done in the experimental lab at Purdue University. The pectin is precipitated by glycerine rather than sugar and an artificial sweetener is used for sweetening.

The jelly contains slightly less than half the calories in ordinary jellies.

For grape jelly use ¼ frozen grape concentrate, ¼ cup water, ½ box powdered pectin, ¾ cup glycerine and 1¼ teaspoon artificial sweetener. Simmer fruit juice with water for 5 minutes. Add powdered pectin and glycerine, stirring constantly. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil 1 minute. Remove from heat, add sweetener. Pour into small jelly glasses. Cool, seal with paraffin and store in the refrigerator. The recipe makes approximately 1½ pints of jelly.

For other information for canning for the special diet contact the County Extension Office at 669-7429 or come by the County Extension Office in the Courthouse Annex.

ELEVEN 'HOT-LINE' NUMBERS TO HELP

Call toll-free "hot-lines" to solve problems quickly and conveniently without spending a dime.

Here's list of eleven helpful hot-line numbers to keep by the phone: — Consumer Product Safety Commission: 1-800-638-2666. Call this toll-free number to report a potentially dangerous product or a product-related injury. Also, request free fact sheets on a wide range of products. The CPSC investigates all kinds of products, from toothpicks to tricycles — but, they don't regulate the safety of cars, boats, airplanes, food, cosmetics or drugs.

— Solar Hot-Line: 1-800-523-2929. Dial this number for information and brochures on solar heating and cooling. The National Solar Heating and stuffs this line. — Housing Discrimination Hot-Line: 1-800-424-8590. This toll-free number is provided by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. They investigate charges of housing discrimination based on race, color, sex or national origin. But, the hot-line cannot help if the discrimination is based on marital status.

— Auto Safety Hot-Line: 1-800-424-9393. Call this number to find out whether a car has ever been recalled because of safety defects. Also, report hazardous aspects of a car and request free brochures and fact sheet. This hot-line is staffed by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

— Lawyer Referral Service: 1-800-252-9690. This service — provided by the State Bar of Texas — will prove the name of a local attorney who specializes in a particular problem. Then, call the lawyer and set up a 30 minute consultation for a nominal fee.

— Appliance Hot-Line: 1-800-621-0477. The Major Appliance Consumer Action Panel (MACAP) provides this number for people with unresolved complaints about refrigerators, ovens and other large appliances. The panel suggests first trying to settle the problem at the local level — but, if still not satisfied, give them a call.

NEWS OF HEALTH

YOUR SKIN

At any time of year, anyone may become one of the millions of Americans who are annoyed with two irritating skin afflictions that have plagued people for centuries: fungus infestations of the foot and groin.

These are caused by a fungus called "tinea," or ringworm, which is actually a microscopic plant. These plants grow on human skin, devouring only dead skin scales and accompanied by inflammatory burning and itching.

Although usually acquired in showers or locker rooms, the condition can be caught almost anywhere. The first signs of it are red, peeling, cracked or scaly patches of skin, followed by itching and burning.

Someone with these early symptoms would do well to consult with a pharmacist, who will probably recommend careful attention to personal hygiene, particularly drying thoroughly after daily bathing and avoiding using other people's towels or clothing.

Underwear and socks should be laundered and thoroughly dried, preferably in sunlight after each use. Loose-fitting clothing may be advised, also.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Charlie and I have been married for 16 years and have had a fairly happy marriage. Charlie never was the jealous type, but I think he carries it to the other extreme.

We've become friendly with a rather odd couple who live in the same "condo." Izzy is 55, short, fat and generally unattractive. Suzy (his third wife) is cute, sexy and about 25 years younger than Izzy. She obviously married him for his money.

Lately Izzy has been getting much too friendly with me. He's forever putting his hands on me. Once he suggested "switching" and when I looked shocked, he laughed and said he was "only kidding."

It seems the four of us are spending more and more time together. Last night during a foursome of bridge at our place, Izzy tried to play footsie with me. He slipped off his shoe and practically had his foot in my lap. I loudly told him off while Charlie and Suzy just sat there.

I get the impression that Suzy doesn't care who Izzy plays footsie with as long as it isn't her. (I think she must have something else going for her.)

Anyway, Suzy suggested that the four of us vacation somewhere together. I made excuses why we couldn't, but Charlie was all for it.

Is our marriage sick? I don't care to spend so much time with this couple. Why should my husband want to? And why shouldn't he be annoyed that another man makes passes at his wife?

Help me.

CHARLIE'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Tell Charlie that if he enjoys Izzy's company, he should see him without you because that foursome has become boring.

(P.S. You could be right about Suzy's having something else going for her. Just make sure it isn't Charlie.)

DEAR ABBY: The wife who said her husband smelled because he seldom bathed, reminds me of a story they tell about Samuel Johnson, the noted English lexicographer of the 1700s.

Johnson was a "purist" where words were concerned, but when it came to his personal hygiene, he was a notorious slob who seldom bathed.

A woman sitting next to him on a coach train said: "Sir, you smell!" Whereupon Johnson replied: "Madam, you are wrong. YOU smell, I stink."

Perhaps the husband who was accused of "smelling" would like to show this to his wife.

LEE IN DELAWARE

DEAR LEE: Samuel Johnson was wrong. If he gave off an offensive odor, he "smelled" and stank as well. Or should Shakespeare's immortal line in "Romeo and Juliet" have been: "A rose by any other name would 'stink' as sweet?"

DEAR ABBY: Please print this letter! It may open the eyes of many angry, vindictive divorced parents who are doing their children a terrible disservice.

My marriage was a mess. After many separations, reconciliations and a hundred broken promises, I decided to terminate my marriage before it destroyed me. (My handsome, charming husband had a weakness for young girls—some of them so young he nearly landed in jail.)

We had two children who didn't get to know their father very well, but they could understand what was being said to them. I never talked against him nor did I allow anyone else to. Rather, I taught my children to respect their father.

Today my children are both grown. I know they don't "love" their father the way they love me, but they don't "hate" him either. They call him long-distance on Father's Day and when he visits their town, they invite him (and his fourth wife) for a meal.

When you teach your child to hate the other parent, you do the child more harm than you do yourself good.

NO REGRETS IN DAYTON

DEAR NO: Thank you for a sensible letter. It comes at a time when many parents have agreed to disagree. I hope it opens a few eyes of those who are still able to see.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read your column about health and was concerned about what you said about eggs. I have just come back from California where I was going to a couple of body building gyms. A lot of the fellows told me that it is important to diet while body building.

I have been body building for three years and part of my diet for breakfast is five eggs, a piece of steak and two glasses of milk plus bread. For lunch I eat three boiled eggs and five slices of bread and a glass of milk. For dinner I make sure I get plenty of these foods — meat, eggs, potatoes, cheese, bread and milk. I can't really give you all my diet because it's impossible but these are the main foods. I eat about a dozen eggs a day and also consume plenty of protein pills.

Do you think this is bad for me? I am at the stage of going out for my first contest when I get back to California. My mom also tells me not to eat so many eggs but I think to gain muscle you have to eat these foods. I train every day and am 16 years old. What do you think?

DEAR READER — I think you've been had. There is no reason whatsoever that you need to eat a dozen eggs a day for a body building program nor any reason for you to consume a lot of expensive protein powders. I included your letter in my column because it is typical of a lot of the nonsense going around about body building. If your desire is to build muscle, not body fat, you need an exercise program that stimulates muscle growth.

As I have pointed out before, a pound of lean muscle fiber is about 73 percent water which leaves only 27 percent for other substances. A pound of lean muscle fiber contains only about 100 grams of protein.

The best protein the body can possibly have to build muscle protein is the protein that comes from other muscle. That's where the lean meat in your diet comes in.

If you have enough calories from any foods including carbohydrate foods and an extra 100 grams of protein a week that you would get from one pound of lean meat a week, that should be enough to provide a growth of one pound of muscle each week if your exercise program stimulates growth. To be on the safe side you can increase your protein intake quite a bit and still not have to do what you're doing.

In almost all instances of a good healthy person growing muscles with a sensible program, 100 grams of good protein a day is adequate. You can get that protein from good lean meat, lean chicken, fish and fortified skim milk. In this way you don't have to overload your body with fats, saturated fats and cholesterol.

Young men can and do develop fatty-cholesterol blockage of the arteries. The eating pattern you have established is going to train you to eat in a way that is conducive to early vascular disease with its complications of heart attacks and strokes. The only good thing I can say about your program is the exercise.

To help you sort out the facts as they exist I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-4, Weight Training for Energy and Weight Control exercise and specifically weight training is one of the mechanisms that maintains your muscle mass and helps to prevent obesity.

Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

NEWS OF HEALTH

YOUR SKIN

At any time of year, anyone may become one of the millions of Americans who are annoyed with two irritating skin afflictions that have plagued people for centuries: fungus infestations of the foot and groin.

These are caused by a fungus called "tinea," or ringworm, which is actually a microscopic plant. These plants grow on human skin, devouring only dead skin scales and accompanied by inflammatory burning and itching.

Although usually acquired in showers or locker rooms, the condition can be caught almost anywhere. The first signs of it are red, peeling, cracked or scaly patches of skin, followed by itching and burning.

Someone with these early symptoms would do well to consult with a pharmacist, who will probably recommend careful attention to personal hygiene, particularly drying thoroughly after daily bathing and avoiding using other people's towels or clothing.

Underwear and socks should be laundered and thoroughly dried, preferably in sunlight after each use. Loose-fitting clothing may be advised, also.

Staples offer variety

- By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor
- Potatoes and corn are staples that offer the cook a choice of dishes ranging from simple to complex.
- Oven-chipped potatoes, for example, require little work or watching. Yet, they are direct relatives of the elegant Potatoes Anna you'll find in the finest of French cookbooks.
- Tuna corn cakes, however, are an American creation, since corn is native to the Americas. Try them as hors d'oeuvres at your next party or make them for a shut-in who will appreciate honest homecooking as a change of diet.
- OVEN-CHIPPED POTATOES
- 4 Idaho potatoes, thinly sliced (do not pare)
 - 1/4 cup butter or margarine
 - 1 tablespoon grated onion
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1/8 teaspoon pepper

Grease a large, shallow baking dish. In it, arrange potato slices in layers. In a small saucepan, melt butter. Add grated onion, salt and pepper. Brush potato slices with butter mixture.

Bake in a 425-degree oven for 1 hour, or until potatoes are crisp and brown. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

- TUNA CORN CAKES
- 1 1/4 cups unfluffed all-purpose flour
 - 1 teaspoon baking powder
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 teaspoon pepper
 - 5 eggs, beaten

- 1 package (10 oz.) frozen whole kernel corn, thawed
- 2 cans (6 1/2 or 7 oz. each) tuna in vegetable oil
- 1/4 cup diced green pepper
- 1/4 cup diced red pepper or pimiento
- 1/4 cup chopped onion
- 1/2 cup salad oil

In a large bowl, mix together flour, baking powder, salt and pepper. Add beaten eggs and mix well. Fold in corn, green pepper, red pepper and onion.

Heat oil in a large heavy skillet until a drop of water added to the oil sizzles. Drop the batter by a 1/2-cup measure into the hot oil. Brown cakes well on both sides, turning once.

If desired, serve with fresh tomato sauce. Makes 5 to 6 servings.

(NOTE: For hors d'oeuvre-size Tuna Corn Cakes, use 1 tablespoon batter for each cake.)

New chocolate cake mix

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Are there chocolate freaks in your family, among your friends? Do you sometimes use cake mixes? If the answer to both questions is yes, then you may want to try this new devil's food cake. The "chocaholics" among our tasters went bananas over it.

We based this recipe on one a California friend worked out several years ago, but this time we used a new cake mix. Our recipe tester contributed her very own recipe for the frosting.

VERY VERY DEVIL'S FOOD CAKE

- 18.5-ounce package extra-moist devil's food cake mix (mix includes pudding ingredients)
 - 1/2 cup warm water
 - 1/4 cup corn oil
 - 4 large eggs
 - 1 cup commercial sour cream
 - 1 tablespoon vanilla
 - 1 1/2 cups semisweet chocolate pieces
- Mary Greene's Cocoa Frosting
- Into the large bowl of an electric mixer turn the cake mix (just as it comes from the package), water, oil, eggs, sour cream and vanilla. At low speed, scraping bowl constantly, beat until moistened. Now beat at medium speed, scraping bowl several times, for 2 minutes. Stir in the choc-

late pieces. Pour into a greased and floured 10-inch angel cake pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out free of batter and, when touched lightly, the cake springs back — 50 to 55 minutes. Cake will crack. Place cake in pan on a wire rack to cool for about 10 minutes. With a small metal spatula, loosen the edges; turn out on the wire rack and, bottom side up, cool completely. Leaving the cake bottom side up, spread the top and sides with Mary Greene's Cocoa Frosting. Serve "as is" or, better yet, with vanilla ice cream.

Mary Greene's Cocoa Frosting: On wax paper sift together 2 cups confectioner's sugar and 1/2 cup unsweetened cocoa powder. In a medium bowl, with a wooden spoon, slightly beat 1-3rd cup soft butter with 1 teaspoon vanilla. Gradually beat in the cocoa mixture, then enough hot tap water (2 to 3 tablespoons) to make a good spreading consistency.

Behold, on the mountains the feet of him who brings good tidings, who proclaims peace. Keep your feasts, O Judah, fulfill your vows, for never again shall the wicked come against you, he is utterly cut off. — Nahum 1:15.

Youth in Action

A million-and-a-half Boys Scouts are at it again! Since the early 1950s, young Americans active in Scouting have supported a nationwide blasting cap safety education program. Area Councils, Scout Troops and Cub Packs in practically every state have distributed materials to inform the public, and particularly young people, about hazards posed by blasting caps. They are receiving this blasting cap safety poster in the June 1978 issue of Boys' Life magazine with advice how to put it to work on school, church and public bulletin boards to spread the essential two-word lesson of blasting cap safety: DON'T TOUCH!

You need not be a member of the Boy Scouts to help in this campaign. For free copies of such material send your name and address to: Explosives Safety—IME, 420 Lexington Avenue, (Rm. 1707), New York, N.Y. 10017.

First aid tips for carpet

Pesky spots will appear on new carpets, no matter what precautions you take. When they do, it's important to act quickly to remove them before they set.

The following formulas, recommended by the National Institute of Rug Cleaning, will keep you well prepared for most emergencies.

Formula 1: Put 1 teaspoonful of neutral (non-alkaline) synthetic, soapless detergent in a jar or other container and add 1/2 pint of lukewarm water. Apply the solution, where recommended, directly on the stain with an eye dropper. Sponge up with a clean, white, unstarched cloth, beginning at the outer edges and working in. Blot up remaining moisture with damp cloths, sponging in the direction of the pile lay. Finally, sponge the area again several times with another damp cloth and finish by blotting up remaining moisture with damp cloths.

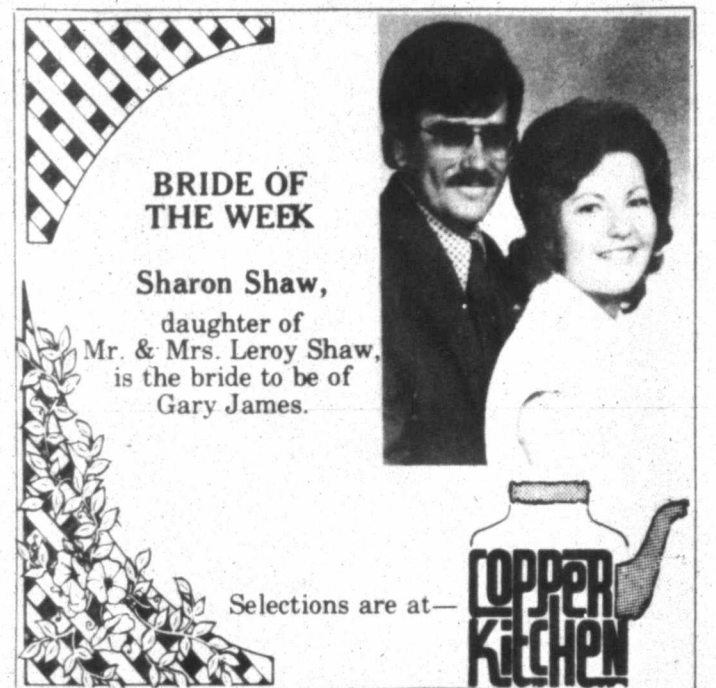

Formula 2: Apply 1 teaspoonful white vinegar mixed in a teacup or glass with 3 teaspoons lukewarm water directly to the stained area with a medicine dropper. Agitate the saturated area gently with a clean, white unstarched cloth. Allow the solution to remain on the stain for about 15 minutes. Blot up remaining moisture with damp cloths. Sponge the area again several times with another dampened cloth and finish by sponging in the direction of the pile.

Here are some tips for specific types of spots:

- 1. Animal accidents. Sponge the stained areas with several applications of clean, lukewarm water. Use a clean, damp cloth to absorb as much of the moisture as possible, and then apply Formula 2 as directed. Allow to dry thoroughly. Apply Formula 2 again.
- 2. Baby Accidents. Treat these the same as animal accidents.
- 3. Beverages. Alcohol, coffee, tea and soft drink spills should be sponged with lukewarm water, using clean, white, unstarched cloths. Absorb and repeat several times. Follow with Formula 1 as directed. If necessary, apply Formula 2.
- 4. Chewing Gum. Use a non-flammable household dry-cleaning fluid. Apply it liberally on and around the outside of the gum. Allow it to remain three or four minutes; lift off the gum with a dull knife. If it does not release readily, repeat the treatment. (It's wise to pretest the fluid on an inconspicuous area of your carpet.)
- 5. Fruits and Fruit Juices. Sponge the spot with a clean white cloth dampened with lukewarm water. Follow with Formula 1.
- 6. Furniture Dye Stains. Wood dyes and stains from bottoms of chair and table legs sometimes spot carpets. When these occur, consult your rug cleaner.
- 7. Ice Cream, Milk, Desserts. Sponge with lukewarm water, using a clean, white unstarched cloth. Follow with Formula 1.

Additional suggestions are available in the booklet "How To Keep All That Bigelow Beauty in Your Carpet," from the Department of Consumer Information, Bigelow-Sanford, Inc., P.O. Box 3089, Dept. BJA, Greenville, S.C. 29602.

Astro-Graph

By Bernice Bede Osol

July 24, 1978

Happenings far from your residence are likely to prove advantageous for you this coming year. Benefits could be derived from persons or things in other cities, states or even countries.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your edge in making important judgments today is to scan your inventory of similar experiences. Apply techniques which were previously successful. Like to find out more of what lies ahead for you? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your instincts in joint ventures are a shade sharper than usual today. All concerned could benefit if they accede to your hunches.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Someone whom you'll be dealing with on a one-to-one basis today will have more respect for assertiveness than for humility. You'll act accordingly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If advancement is an issue, show your superiors today how you'd handle matters if you were calling the shots. They'll be impressed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Sunshine will follow you today if you let the child within you bubble to the surface. Others will find your joyful attention.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Something good is in the offing for you and your family. There is an outsider involved who has already started the ball rolling.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In ironing out agreements today do not negotiate from weakness, though you may be in an inferior position. See yourself as being equal and your counterpart, too.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A bit of the Midas Touch abides with you today. You can turn a profit where you elect to. The gain's proportionate to the enterprise.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This should be a lighthearted day for you. You can equally enjoy being with the family and children, or socializing with close friends.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Situations could develop to your liking today when you discover good things can happen with minimum effort expended on your part.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Imitation is the sincerest flattery. Today you may find some of your friends copying either your mode of dress or your manners.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Rewards could be unusually substantial today where your work or career is concerned. The secret: Give priority to productivity.

Skyscraper for Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Plans to build a 70-story skyscraper as the tallest building outside Chicago and New York were announced Saturday by the Gerald D. Hines Interests. The El Paso Tower in Texas Commerce Plaza will occupy a downtown block directly south of the Houston Chronicle Building. A companion 1,200-car garage will occupy the block to the east and directly to the south of the Rice Hotel. The El Paso Co. will occupy 20 levels of the tower and Texas Commerce Bank will lease 15 levels. Hines said more than 65 percent of the tower's 1.6 million square feet of rentable office space has been committed. Other major tenants include the headquarters of Anderson, Clayton & Co., Ernst & Ernst, Arthur Young & Co., and the Pennzoil Co.

In agriculture

By JOE VANZANDT
County Extension Agent
Homeowners need to be on the alert for bagworms. I have had several calls recently about severe infestation of bagworms. Some of these heavy infestations can strip a tree very quickly and can cause death of the tree in a year or two.

Control of the bagworms while they are small is much easier and tree damage will be slight. Foliar applications of Seven, Malathion or Diazinon give good control. Make sure you cover all tree foliage when you spray. If only a few are present, you may prefer to pick them off by hand, just to be sure to destroy the bagworms after picking them off. Double check in a few days to insure that you didn't miss any as repeat applications may be needed.

Vegetables beat summer heat
Gray County gardeners can minimize harmful effects of hot weather stress in vegetables. In planning for vacation time away from home remember to arrange a caretaker for your garden — someone you can trust to carry out your instructions on irrigation and harvesting.

The usual high air temperatures of the Plains in July cause vegetable plants to give up water vapor from their leaves (transpire) rapidly. For example, fruiting tomato plants will require an irrigation of at least 1 to 1½ inches every 3 days. This is equivalent to a volume of 60 to 90 gallons per 100 square feet. You can check the delivery rate of your watering system by running the water into a 5 gallon pail, taking note of the time required to fill it. Then you will know how long to run your system to get the desired volume for the size of your garden.

Never leave squash and cucumber fruits to mature on the plants. The plants will stop producing new fruits if you allow them to load up. Continue to pick all fruits as soon as they are large enough to eat.

Maintain a 3-inch layer of mulch to keep the soil temperature from rising above 75 degrees. A thick layer of mulch will save on water especially while your plants are young and prevent weed growth, too.

Accident prevention
Special attention is directed to accident prevention on the farm and ranch during National Farm Safety Week, July 25-31.

A safe farm can help save lives and prevent a lot of suffering and disruption of family life. Also, it can help keep people on the job and doing more productive work.

Besides being attractive, a safe farm usually has facilities and equipment that are properly maintained for maximum safety and this same equipment will usually be more productive, efficient and economical. Yes, safety is indeed a good investment.

Hot, dry weather reducing crop yields across the state

COLLEGE STATION, TEXAS (AP) — Hot, dry weather across Texas has helped harvesting activities, but it is bringing low yields on dryland cash crops such as corn, sorghum and cereal grains, according to Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

First cuttings of the hay that livestock growers depend on for winter feed also have been slim, and second and third cuttings will be nil unless rains come soon, Pfannstiel said.

Some showers have been reported in Southeast Texas and the upper coast, but no relief is in sight for the rest of the state, he said.

In the Panhandle and Rolling Plains, irrigation wells and pumps are straining to water cotton, sorghum and corn.

Livestock also are suffering. Reports of drought-caused prussic acid poisoning — caused by grazing withering sorghum-sudan forage crops — have come from the Rolling Plains and Central Texas. And in Central Texas grasshoppers are competing with livestock for what's left on the very dry ranges. Stock tanks are drying up. Increasing runs are showing up at markets as cattle conditions decline.

East Texas peaches are not sizing well, and the state's famed pecan crop is not what early prospects showed in major production areas.

Here are reports from district Extension agents:

PANHANDLE: Soil moisture is short and grasshoppers and spider mites are building up in the upper tier of counties. Corn is hanging on where moisture is available, grain sorghum is in dire need of rain and late cotton is still progressing. Potato and onion harvesting is under way. Pastures run from average to below. Most ranges have adequate cover, and cattle are in generally good condition.

SOUTH PLAINS: Dryland cotton is reaching the critical stage because of dry, torrid weather, and even irrigated crops are having problems. Water pumps can't supply all the demands in some cases. Onion and potato harvesting is going strong, irrigated grain sorghum is blooming and cucumbers are being harvested.

ROLLING PLAINS: Temperatures as high as 116 degrees have hurt all crops, ranges in particular. Range fires are a problem in some areas, and prussic acid poisoning is showing up in livestock grazing sudan and sorghum pastures. Armyworms and grasshoppers are pressuring cotton fields. Cotton is squaring, and some is in early bloom. Pecan crop prospects remain favorable.

NORTH CENTRAL: Temperatures above 100 degrees are searing cotton, corn, sorghum, vegetable gardens, peaches and pastures. Very little hay re-growth is expected. The wheat harvest is complete. Livestock are still in good shape, but not gaining much weight. Stock tanks are low.

NORTHEAST: Very short soil moisture has cut hay yields by a third to a half. No second cutting is in prospect if rains don't come soon. All field crop yields are down, corn included. Early soybeans are blooming. Peach harvesting is producing small sizes. Drought and grasshoppers have left little grazing for declining livestock, causing some increase in marketing.

FAR WEST: There is some supplemental cattle feeding and marketing because of extremely dry pastures. Most cattle are in fair to good shape. Pecos and El Paso counties are on their third alfalfa cuttings. Pecos cantaloupes are almost ready. Powdery mildew killed squash, cantaloupes and cucumbers in Terrell County.

WEST CENTRAL: Pastures and ranges are below average. Livestock are now only in fair shape and marketing is increasing fast. Sterling County has four confirmed cases of screwworms. The cotton crop is fair. Producers are having irrigation water problems. Nearly all hay is harvested, and the drought has cut hopes for regrowth. Gillespie County peaches are peaking.

CENTRAL: Cotton has finished setting and is shedding. Hay yields are sharply reduced and prussic acid poisoning in livestock has occurred in several counties. Sorghum harvesting is progressing, but yields are low. Irrigated peanuts are holding up fairly well. Pecan casebearer infestation is up. Pastures and ranges are bare in some areas. Grasshoppers are working on fruit trees.

EAST: All field crops, including corn, are suffering from drought. Hay yields are down 25 to 50 percent. Peanut production is limited, and peaches are not sizing well. Grasshoppers are eating parched pastures. Cattle are losing weight, there is some supplemental feeding and marketing is increasing. Prices are steady.

SOUTHEAST AND UPPER GULF COAST: Soil moisture is short. Rice fields are being drained as harvest begins. Grain sorghum yields are generally good. Soybeans and pecans need rain. Pastures and ranges are below average. Livestock are in fair to good condition, and the marketing is holding steady.

SOUTH CENTRAL: Soil moisture is very short. Grasshoppers are causing damage. The pecan crop looks fair to good. Pastures and ranges are below average, although livestock are holding up. Marketing is steady.

SOUTHWEST: Pastures and ranges continue to deteriorate and stock water is critically short in some counties. Livestock remain in fair condition, but supplemental feeding will be required to maintain many breeding herds. Lowered yields are expected for rapidly maturing corn and grain sorghum. Unless rain comes soon, no hay re-growth is expected.

COASTAL BEND: Corn for grain is 40 percent harvested, but the crop is short because of drought. Sorghum grain cutting is continuing, with 75 percent in and yields averaging 2,500 pounds an acre. Hay yields also are down and baling wire is scarce. Peanuts, soybeans and orchards also need rain. Pecans will not produce as much as expected. The blackeyed pea harvest is almost completed. Livestock are still fairly good but need rain.

SOUTH: Livestock is deteriorating on dry ranges, and the hay crop is short. Corn harvesting is beginning, five percent of the cotton is picked and 90 percent of the sorghum harvested. Irrigated yields are normal, but the dryland crop is down.

Best fishing hole

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
PORT ISABEL, Texas (AP) — The best fishing hole in Texas? It's the first light on the right at night off the old causeway stretching from Port Isabel to South Padre Island.

At sundown in early July the bay under the Queen Isabella pier began to stir with feeding sea creatures of all sizes and degrees of ferocity out of the Gulf of Mexico.

And spotlights strategically posted the length of the causeway attracted shrimp by the thousands which turned on the speckled and sand trout, the pompano, the redfish, and other delectable delights of the ocean. Of course, there were such so-called trash fish as sting rays, sharks, gar, ribbon fish, and blowfish vying for equal time. Each had ample teeth.

On this particular evening, there was a good deal of jockeying for position around the light pole as the sun sank. There was a lot of "Tex-Mex" and four-letter English being banded about.

Every cast produced a strike if your lure or bait found the water. Sometimes your lure or bait never reached the 15-foot drop to the bay because it was entangled in the equipment of a luckless neighbor.

A Mexican-American kid no more than 10 years old arrived and eyed the action. He had the latest in equipment, a new rod and reel, a box full of lures, and a bucket with live shrimp and an oscillator to keep 'em that way.

He quickly hooked a large shrimp behind the "horn" on its head, put a split shot sinker some 24 inches above the bait and let fly with a cast through the web of lines.

It landed softly in the center of the spotlighted water. The boy turned the reel slowly — not with the furious action of his competitors. Soon he was landing a four-pound Spec with the aid of a retired judge who volunteered his long-handled net.

And again and again through the night he hooked and landed big trout.

An old woman, who was having no luck, finally asked the lad: "Could I have one of your fish, please?"

DECORATING TRENDS...

by Charlie's

THE FIRST PURPOSE of all interior decoration is to create a setting in which people can live happily and in their own individual ways. Beauty is essential...but it is possible to create beauty which is not livable for you.

That's why chairs should be comfortable to sit in—far reading, watching television, relaxing, entertaining. Furniture placement should not be dictated solely by visual effect, but you should think about conversation groupings that bring people together naturally, and consider the activities of your family.

That's why the color scheme should be one that you enjoy. Never choose a color scheme because it is currently in vogue. That's why you can use favorite pieces of furniture, even of different periods, if they contribute to the overall comfort, livability and personal appeal of the room.

We are specialists in home furnishing, and we will gladly work with you in creating a setting which will express your own ideas and way of life. Beauty will be an essential ingredient in that pattern...but it will be beauty meant for living with...Come in and talk over your decorating problems...soon.
