

Bridge repairs

The Santa Fe employees pouring concrete on this bridge just West of Hoover have just 10 seconds to prepare themselves for the train from the time it has sighted coming around a blind corner. Three miles up the track the train trips a signal which turns on a green light on the bridge and lets them know that it is on the way. Santa Fe is doing a major upgrading in its Plains Division. This includes three major projects between Pampa and Canadian this summer plus the Hoover project. The work is done with as little delay for the trains as possible. There is a bridge to be rebuilt near Miami which will take 8 to 16 men thirty days to complete. Another is being strengthened by Canadian. The Hoover bridge is 40' high and about 160' long. Santa Fe employees approximately 4,500 people in the Plains Division.

Carter plans full press on Civil Service plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is stepping up his campaign for passage of his troubled civil service revision plan to streamline federal hiring and firing.

He has redoubled his personal lobbying on the issue. His top aide, Hamilton Jordan, is organizing a broad public relations campaign like the one he ran in support of the Panama Canal treaties.

White House aides are seeking out reporters to tell them they smell a legislative victory in the air.

Today, Carter met with a group of 30 congressmen in the White House Cabinet Room, telling them that during his weekly Cabinet meetings around the same table "the constantly recurring theme is the inability to manage the bureaucracy adequately."

The president said his civil service plan is "a major step forward" toward remedying that situation. He appealed for help on the House floor, where the administration hopes to reverse some changes made to the plan in committee.

Later today, Carter planned to drop in on a White House briefing on the civil service plan for 75 business executives.

Last Friday, Carter made a pitch to visiting newspaper editors, and the White House press office issued a three-page "fact sheet" on the issue.

Tuesday he appealed personally to a group of congressmen who are Vietnam veterans.

Since unveiling the package last March, Carter has missed few openings to tell reporters, congressmen and anyone else who would listen that he considers passage among his top legislative priorities, and absolutely crucial to fulfilling his campaign promise to make the federal government more efficient and responsive to the public.

During attorney general race

Candidates wife stumps Pampa

The primary issue in the state attorney general campaign is energy, according to Linda Gale White, wife of Democratic candidate Mark White.

She commented on the energy problem while making a campaign stop in Pampa at the Gray County Courthouse at 8:15 a.m. today.

One of the most pressing problems concerning energy, she said, is the 30 percent excise tax that the state of Montana charges Texas for coal. She said that her husband promised in the primary campaign that he would sue the state of Montana and that he intends to keep that promise.

"Several cities have filed suits against Montana," she said, but White still plans to have the state of Texas file a suit against Montana to "add importance to the other suits."

Crime is another issue with which the candidate for attorney general is concerned, according to his wife, especially the problem of vandalism in the schools.

"Something needs to be done," she said, "before it reaches epidemic proportions. We have to start children at an early age educating them about crime. Mark says that we should take them to visit a jail instead of a courthouse. Let them see what happens to criminals. Show them the jail cells and how they (criminals) are fingerprinted."

White has served as assistant attorney general for three years and as secretary of state for four years. He resigned his post as secretary of state to seek the Democratic nomination for attorney general.

Fiscal responsibility was stressed by White during his term as secretary of state, according to his wife. "He returned over $4 million of his allotted budget as secretary of state to the state" during the years he was in office, according to Mrs. White.

White in Pampa, Mrs. White made a tour of the Gray County Courthouse meeting county officials and employees and passing out campaign literature.

Mrs. White said that she is enjoying campaigning. "This is our first state-wide election," she said "because Mark was appointed secretary of state. I like it. It's a totally new experience."

White is running against Jim Baker in the November election.

U.S. posts to reopen as ban ends

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key American observation posts of Soviet military activity — closed by Turkey three years ago when Congress stopped arms sales to that country — will reopen within a matter of months, military sources say, now that the arms ban has been lifted.

Congress imposed the embargo in response to Turkey's use of U.S. supplies arms to invade and occupy the troubled island of Cyprus, whose Greek and Turkish residents have feuded for generations. The embargo has been a major source of trouble in President Carter's dealings with Turkey.

Carter, who won a hair-breadth foreign policy victory when the House voted 208-205 Tuesday to lift the embargo, issued a statement immediately afterward warning Turkey against resorting again to arms to resolve the still-festering dispute over Cyprus. "Any effort to impose a military solution would be actively and unequivocally opposed by the United States," he said.

Resumption of intelligence operations in Turkey, the military sources said, will plug what they consider to have been a serious gap in the U.S. ability to monitor important military developments inside the Soviet Union. Defense Department officials recently told Congress that experience gained since the shutdown shows that the actual loss has been severe.

Three vital intelligence bases will be reopened, but a fourth, at Karamursel, will not be put back in action, officials said, because it no longer is considered necessary or worth the expense.

In addition to the intelligence bases, the Pentagon plans to move quickly to reactivate a long-range navigation station at Karga Burum, possibly within a week.

The Senate gave its approval to ending the embargo last week. There are minor differences between the Senate and House measures that remain to be worked out in a conference committee. The embargo repeal is part of a larger $1 billion military aid package.

Technically, the House amendment would permit Carter to lift the embargo only after telling Congress in writing that Turkey is making a good-faith effort to pull its troops off Cyprus and to resume peace talks with Greek Cypriots.

Briscoe mobilizes guard

By The Associated Press
Gov. Dolph Briscoe this morning mobilized National Guard units in Fredericksburg and Kerrville to help evacuate residents trapped by rapidly rising flood waters from the rampaging Guadalupe River.

At 6:30 a.m., a Department of Public Safety spokesman said the Kerrville DPS office put out the call to the National Guard to help evacuate residents, some of whom were reported standing on the roofs of their submerged homes. Briscoe responded, ordering 15 men and six trucks from the guard unit at Fredericksburg to the scene.

An hour later, Fort Sam Houston dispatched four Army helicopters for air-to-ground rescues. Two DPS helicopters from Corpus Christi and Austin were also summoned and other police helicopters from Austin was placed on emergency standby.

Despite the widespread alarm, no deaths or missing persons had been reported by mid-morning. Official reports from the stricken area said saturated bottom land near the south fork of the river had received 12 inches of rain by 11 p.m. Tuesday. The rain was still coming down at the rate of two inches an hour this morning.

Ochiltree grand jury probes death of Canyon resident

PERRYTON — The Ochiltree County grand jury was meeting today to consider the early Tuesday shooting death of a Canyon man by a city policeman.

Paul Martinez, 25, who reportedly had escaped from Texas and Oklahoma jails at least six times, died in Ochiltree General Hospital Tuesday morning about 20 minutes after being admitted with a bullet wound below the left shoulder. Identity of the officer who fired the fatal shot as Martinez reportedly was fleeing officers following a scuffle will not be revealed until after completion of the grand jury session, authorities here said.

Assistant Police Chief Joseph Hannon Tuesday said officers responded to a call at a downtown Perryton apartment complex about 11:30 p.m. Monday, concerning a disturbance.

As the officers approached the apartment building they saw a man leap from an outside stairway and run. One of the officers chased the man and caught him behind a nearby drive-in restaurant, Hannon said.

The two scuffled and the man fled the scene after pulling a knife and breaking free from the officer, Hannon reported.

Early Tuesday the same man was observed in a car parked in a service station on South Main. Another police officer arrived and when they tried to drag the man out of the car a scuffle developed, during which one of the officer's shotgun discharged into the pavement.

The man whom the officers were trying to arrest then pulled a knife and fled. As he ran away, Hannon reported, one of the officers fired a shotgun after warning the man to stop.

Despite being struck by shotgun pellets in the legs and buttocks, the man continued to run until being struck in the back by a shot from a .357 Magnum revolver, Hannon said.

Martinez had escaped three times from the Wellington jail since 1976, authorities there reported, and he reported had escaped from the Granite, Okla. reformatory twice and from the Greer County jail in Mangum, Okla., at least once.

Martinez was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Genaro Martinez of Canyon.

Firemen killed in blaze

NEW YORK (AP) — Part of the roof of a burning supermarket in Brooklyn collapsed today, killing five firefighters, authorities reported. At least one other firefighter was missing.

At least seven firemen were injured in the four-alarm blaze at a Waldbaum's supermarket. Six of them were taken to Coney Island Hospital, where a spokesman reported none was "in any life-threatening situations." Condition of the seventh fireman was not determined immediately.

Hidalgo DA indicted

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Federal grand jurors here charge that Hidalgo County District Attorney Oscar McInnis lied to them in June when he said he knew nothing of an alleged kidnap and murder plot.

McInnis, 61, was indicted here Tuesday on six counts of perjury. Patricia Parada, his alleged co-conspirator, was named in one perjury count.

The pair was indicted in June for allegedly plotting to have Miss Parada's ex-husband kidnapped and killed. Both have pleaded innocent to those charges.

A spokesman at the U.S. attorney's office in Brownsville said today that McInnis and Miss Parada will be arraigned here Aug. 11.

The spokesman also said bonds posted in June by the pair will be carried forward to the new indictment. Those bonds had been set at $500,000 for McInnis and $100,000 for Miss Parada. He was freed after posting a $25,000 cashier's check and she was released after posting $15,000 in checks and property deeds.

"I never had any discussion... about murdering Noe Villanueva or anybody else, as far as that's concerned," McInnis told the grand jury in June, according to Tuesday's indictment.

Prosecutors, armed with tape recordings they say were made when McInnis plotted with a county jail inmate, have claimed Villanueva was to be killed in Reynosa, Mexico. McInnis allegedly met with Daniel Rodriguez, a convicted murderer being held on drug charges in Hidalgo County jail, to discuss the plot.

However, investigators say Rodriguez told law enforcement officers of the meetings and further discussions between the two were recorded. The perjury indictment claims McInnis lied about meeting with Rodriguez and Miss Parada concerning the disposal of Villanueva's identification papers.

Investigators said they allowed the alleged plot to continue as if Villanueva had been killed, including the delivery of his identification papers to McInnis.

Totie Fields dies

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Comedienne Totie Fields died today, an official at Sunrise Hospital said. She was 48.

Miss Fields, who had suffered various ailments for more than two years, was dead when brought to the hospital by private ambulance, according to Rena Lees, a spokeswoman at the hospital.

A $130,000 civil suit has been filed in 223rd District Court against Herbert L. Klein, Lefors, as a result of an automobile accident on Oct. 3, 1977.

The suit was brought by Bobbie Howard, Lefors, for injuries she suffered as a result of the collision which occurred about two and a half miles west of Lefors.

The petition states that Howard was driving west on a farm to market road before the collision. Klein was driving south on a road leading from the Phillip's Plant to the farm to market road. There was a stop sign requiring traffic entering the farm to market road to stop and yield the right of way before going onto the farm to market road.

The suit contends that Klein was negligent in "failing to yield the right of way to the vehicle driven by Bobbie Howard, in failing to stop at the stop sign before entering the farm to market road in question, in failing to keep a proper lookout, in failing to stop in time to avoid the collision, and in failing to apply his brakes in time to avoid the collision."

Howard sustained "serious, painful and permanently disabling injuries in the collision," the suit said. Her injuries consisted of head injuries and partial facial paralysis, and she is required to take regular and continuous medication, according to the suit.

Howard is asking for $50,000 for "physical, emotional and mental pain and suffering past and future," $75,000 for "loss of earnings to date and loss of future wage earning capacity" and $5,000 for past and future medical expenses.

The suit was filed by A. W. Salyars, attorney from Lubbock, Texas.

Lefors man faces civil action

Yantis thinks 'socialization' good thing

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State Insurance Board Chairman Hugh Yantis, who might say farewell today, has told senators he thinks a little "socialization" in insurance rates might be a good thing.

Yantis, board member Durwood Manford and water commissioner Dorsey Hardeman — Gov. Dolph Briscoe's most controversial recent appointees — went before the Senate for confirmation today.

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, said he still intended to exercise his hometown senator's veto of Yantis but would not oppose a motion that would delay confirmation until next January.

"If you review his entire experience as a regulator, you will see it is one that is biased in favor of the regulated, not the general public," Doggett told reporters.

He indicated he was generally unimpressed with Yantis' pro-consumer record as chairman.

Before becoming insurance board chairman, Yantis was executive director of the Texas Water Quality Board.

The Senate Nominations Subcommittee cleared Yantis, Hardeman and Manford for floor consideration Tuesday by 7-0 votes.

Hardeman was grilled intensely by an old foe from his Senate days, Sen. A. R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, but the subcommittee and Doggett treated Yantis and Manford more or less gently.

Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, asked Yantis about his statements advocating an end to car insurance distinctions based on sex and occupation.

"My concern is, do you intend to socialize the rate making?" Jones asked.

"To an extent, yes, but not totally. The question of equality of the sexes and some occupations should supersede the statistics involved... I wouldn't want to distinguish between my daughters and my sons... knowing their insurance-exposure is not the same," Yantis replied.

He told the committee he thought he had been "a good chairman" and wanted to continue. He also said he if were passed over this session he would resign before the January regular session so Briscoe could appoint his successor — assuming Doggett continues to insist on his veto.

Doggett asked Manford about his public fist fight with board member Ned Price two years ago and about former chairman Joe Christie's recommendation he not be reappointed.

"I have never had any problem with working with anyone on this board or anywhere," said Manford, a board member since 1961.

Schwartz and Doggett tried to make a case for subjecting Hardeman to Doggett's veto, since he lives in Austin. Hardeman insisted he is legally a resident of San Angelo, where he votes.

Hardeman also defended his telling a lawyer to "kiss my..." after a water commission hearing. He said the lawyer tried to speak to him in violation of a state law forbidding participants in contested proceedings to talk informally with quasi-judicial officeholders.

OPINION PAGE

Small fish in erratic history

The President's chief advisor on drug abuse, psychiatrist Peter G. Bourne, becomes the first person on Carter's hand-picked staff to have committed a felony by his own admission.

Dr. Bourne used a fictitious name on a prescription for Quaalude, a mild sedative the federal government classifies as a narcotic. Under federal and Virginia law, this constitutes a felony. Bourne said he used the phony name for staffer Ellen Metsky because he wanted to protect her identity and guard against possible "policy blackmail." That leaves a big questionmark: Blackmail for what? Because an administrative assistant perhaps "needed" a drug to help keep control is there something blackmailable about it?

Both the law and medical ethics forbid making out prescriptions in fictitious names. Rightly so. Dr. Bourne erred using a false name. But the truth is, it is not an uncommon practice, particularly among psychiatrists and particularly among those treating the political or other elite.

It is our belief that a physician should be able to issue prescription drugs without a bureaucrat or law-enforcement officer breathing down his neck, asking what for? Dr. Bourne, with Carter from his early days in Georgia, is paying the price now for stringent action his own profession helped to initiate — government control of drugs.

It was doctors and pharmacist who pushed in 1914 for the Harrison Narcotic Act which controlled the sale of opium and all derivatives and later was amended to cover many other substances as well. By 1938, some 25,000 physicians had been arraigned on narcotics charges under the Act, and 3,000 doctors served penitentiary sentences.

The process of control has caught up with Dr. Bourne. This process was derived over more than 100 years of American history, emerging behind two motives. One, to keep drugs out of the hands of the people without a doctor's or pharmacist's say-so, and two, to keep the sale controlled by a special group who could also control the market price.

The American Pharmaceutical Association (APA) continues its opposition to the sale of drugs by generic names, something that would cut the price of many prescription drugs. Penicillin's cost is now about 2 and one-half cents a pill. But not in the drugstore.

In 1852, the APA was founded and in 1856 listed one of its goals as: "To as much as possible restrict the dispensing and sale of medicines to regularly educated druggists and apothecaries."

And so began a long history of control, culminating in the $1 billion anti-drug war cost in America each year. While TV commercials pump and push for drug-taking, the arms of the government, like the notorious DEA (Drug Enforcement Administration), continue to go after those who take the messages too seriously.

In 1977, in North Carolina alone, 12,575 persons were charged with drug offenses, mostly marijuana, and of the total more than 8,000 of those charged were under the age of 22.

The world of drugs is at least as old as writing. The Sumerians, generally credited with the first written language, used opium before 5000 B.C. The Egyptians used psychedelics, the so-called magic mushroom, and had a formula for producing alcohol by 3500 B.C.

Since then, drug control has followed an erratic if sometimes irrational path. In Egypt today, the death penalty exists for hashish smokers but not opium smokers because the latter are considered addicted.

In 17th Century Russia, the czar ruled that "anyone caught with tobacco should be tortured until he gives up the name of the supplier."

In 1920, the U.S. Department of Agriculture published a pamphlet urging Americans to grow cannabis (marijuana) as a profitable undertaking.

The following year, cigarettes were illegal in 14 states, and 92 anti-cigarette bills were pending in 28 states. Time and economic necessity, as well as "usage" by the people, do bring changes. No one today would dream of introducing a state bill declaring cigarettes illegal.

Still, the lawmakers, backed by the medical lobby, continued to foist controls over drugs, with the primary idea that the State knows best what is good for you.

In England, where heroin addicts are maintained by the state the cost of a shot is .04 cents per grain; in the United States, where no such program exists, the street price for the same amount is $30 to $90 — a strong impetus to crime, violent or otherwise, for a "stung-out" junkie.

North Carolina, after five years of fumbling, has finally decided this year that drunkenness was not a crime but a sickness.

Sitting perhaps forlornly today, reflecting on his circumstances, Dr. Bourne would probably find himself in agreement with Ludwig von Mises, a free market economist and social philosopher, who said in 1949:

"Opium and morphine are certainly dangerous, habit-forming drugs. But once the principle is admitted that it is the duty of government to protect the individual against his own foolishness, no serious objections can be advanced against further encroachments. A good case can be made out in favor of the prohibition of alcohol and nicotine. And why limit the government's benevolent providence to the protection of the individual's body only? Is not the harm a man can inflict on his mind and soul even more disastrous than and bodily evils? Why not prevent him from reading bad books and seeing bad plays, from looking at bad paintings and statues and from hearing bad music?"

Why not now?

Wall Street Journal

Reports that President Carter has trimmed his fiscal 1980 budget target by $15 billion are encouraging only in the sense that the President evidently recognizes that large federal deficits are a prime cause of inflation.

They are not encouraging, however, in terms of timing. The inflation is now, not 1980. We would be far more encouraged if we could see evidence that the President is having some success in fighting down the outlays the federal government will make over the next several months.

There has been lip service to such an effort in the administration's claims that it has carved about $10 billion off of the projected fiscal 1978 and 1979 deficits through spending short-falls and the like. The problem is that no one takes such claims very seriously any more; there is a widespread belief that the President overestimated revenues and underestimated outlays in the fiscal 1979 budget to begin with. And some analysts doubt that the government will be able to stay within the current $51 billion deficit target for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30.

But even assuming that the deficit remains close to the present targets of about $50 billion in fiscal 1978 and 1979, that isn't very much to cheer about. The economy, by almost anyone's measure, is pressing near the limits of its capacity. Imports and the trade deficit are soaring as the U.S. depends more heavily on imported goods to satisfy demand. Business credit demand is up sharply as corporations try to expand capacity and inventories.

And while all this is going on the federal government, which should be contributing to the nation's savings at such a time, is draining away savings and spending them to generate new demand. This, of course, means that the Federal Reserve Board is under heavy pressure to satisfy credit needs through money creation. That is exactly what it has been doing. The result: inflation.

This is not the kind of problem that can be dealt with through vague promises about what the President is going to do about the 1980 budget, even if the promises were believed. "Senior officials" feeding reporters stories about budget cutting "bloodbaths" have all said similar things before but there are still no evident scars on the federal bureaucracy.

If the President were really serious, he would go to Congress and say that the country will be in serious trouble over the next several months if he doesn't receive authority to impound certain outlays until the credit markets improve. A lack of seriousness is evident in the fact that he is instead hammering on the Fed to cover the government's profligacy by printing more money.

So pardon us if we're not much thrilled with what the President proposes to do in 1980. Who knows what we'll be faced with by then.

By WILLIAM SAFIRE
HOUSTON, Tex. — The two-year investigations by the House Ethics Committee and the Justice Department into the corruption of the House of Representatives by operatives of the South Korean CIA is ending in a way cynics predicted it would end: with a handful of former congressmen indicted, and a handful of present congressmen slapped lightly on the wrist.

Devotees of successful criminal cover-ups doff their hats reverently to Speaker Tip O'Neill, who quietly limited the scope of the probe; the Ben Civiletti of President Carter's Department of Political Justice, who won powerful friends on the hill in his botching of the investigation; to the Special Counsel Leon Jaworski, king of pressclips, who just did not have the gumption to go after the key witness that could have put 13 of our most powerful congressmen behind bars.

That witness is former Korean Ambassador Kim Jong Do, now a private citizen in Seoul. Although the bribe-takers could pretend that gifts and parties from "businessman" Tong Sun Park were not illegal, no such pretense is possible when a foreign ambassador slipped them thousands in cash. Such payment violates Article II of the U.S. Constitution, and the men on the take knew exactly what fundamental trust they were selling.

When it was pointed out in this space a few weeks ago that Jaworski - to Speaker O'Neill's intense relief - would no longer seek Ambassador Kim's presence under oath, a high diplomatic official took me atop the mountain to give me The Big Picture:

More important than putting a dozen lawmaking lawbreakers in jail, went the explanation, was the need to preserve the principle of diplomatic immunity. If the Korean ambassador could be forced to testify under oath about his bribery of congressmen, then our own ambassadors around the world would be vulnerable to local prosecution for real or fancied crimes.

This reasoning caused our Justice Department to give up any attempt to bring back the vital witness, and was responsible for the collapse of Jaworski's investigation.

But that argument - so readily embraced by politicians anxious to get rid of Koreagate before election time - is specious. Nobody is suggesting that the protections of diplomats be radically altered; on the contrary, the return of former Ambassador Kim for sworn testimony is the only way the traditions of an alliance can be upheld.

Our ally, South Korea, committed a grave and provocative act against the United States by inducing our congressmen to break our laws. Voluntarily, as a good ally, South Korea should now help us determine which of our congressmen are felons. We do not seek to punish their diplomat-briber - only to get his truthful testimony.

Our troops have been in South Korea for a generation to protect that country from attack. We have a right to expect South Korea to help us protect our own institutions from attack - and the successful subversion of the integrity of our congress is surely such an attack. If the South Koreans expect us to turn over $1 billion worth of military equipment to them in the next few years; as is planned, we can reciprocate by expecting their active aid in helping us expose and prosecute our congressional criminals.

Our State Department frets that we must not embarrass our Korean allies. The truth is that the embarrassment is more ours than theirs. They were the Johns, our congressmen were the prostitutes. If the Koreans would like an apology for our bugging of their presidential mansion - which was how we came to know of the bribery - we should gladly issue that apology, turning over to them the fruits of our eavesdropping as part of the general clearing of the air.

None of this is in the cards, of course: a Democratic Justice Department and a Democratic majority in Congress is determined to keep a scandal involving mostly Democrats from being fully revealed.

If Jaworski were the patriot he was long been cracked up to be, he would ask for prime television time from the networks (which he would promptly get) to say something like this:

"I have good reason to believe that at least 13 of our most senior congressmen have broken the law by taking bribes from a foreign ambassador. But I cannot prove my case until Congress and the president take the action needed to produce the witness.

"That action, my fellow Americans," Jaworski should say, "is not to trim economic aid, as had been done, which is a weak gesture to make it appear that we want our witness. That action would be to announce our intention to remove all U.S. troops and equipment from South Korea within 30 days unless that nation tells us what we need to know about our crooked congressmen

"Write and phone your congressman today. Tell him you will not vote for him next fall if he is unwilling to get to the bottom of this scandal. Get angry - that's the only way you'll get action.

I cannot do this job of exposing the felons alone. I need your help. Tell your congressman to stop pussyfooting on this issue, and start demanding that our ally act as an ally."

Beamed into 60 million homes, that message would get a reaction that would crack through the cover-up and brush aside the phony diplomatic niceties that protect the speaker's friends. Does Jaworski have the nerve? Don't hold your breath.

We can only hope that some day, when party power shifts, we will have an investigation of all those who abetted this year's successful cover-up.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Aug. 2, the 214th day of 1978. There are 151 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1914, Germany invaded France, Belgium and Luxembourg, and Russia invaded Germany as World War I heated up.

On this date:

In 1610, English navigator Henry Hudson entered the body of water now known as Hudson Bay.

In 1824, a new avenue was opened in New York City from Art Street to 13th Street. It became one of the world's most famous thoroughfares — Fifth Avenue.

In 1934, Adolf Hitler became dictator of Germany after the death of President Paul von Hindenburg.

In 1939, Albert Einstein wrote to President Franklin Roosevelt and advised that the United States begin an atomic research program.

In 1959, Vice President Richard Nixon received an enthusiastic welcome in Warsaw, Poland.

In 1974, former White House counsel John Dean was sentenced in Washington to one to four years in prison for his admitted role in the Watergate scandal.

Ten years ago: The accused assassin of Sen. Robert Kennedy, Sirhan Sirhan, pleaded innocent in Los Angeles, and his trial was set for Nov. 1.

Five years ago: Former CIA Director Richard Helms told the Senate Watergate Committee he resisted White House pressure to help out in the Watergate cover-up.

One year ago: A bill to establish a federal Department of Energy won approval in both houses of Congress.

Today's birthdays: Writer James Baldwin is 54 years old. Actress Myrna Loy is 73.

Thought for today: If you look back too much, you will soon be heading that way — anonymous.

Buying a new car — Part IV

The final choice of the best car for you

Sylvia Porter

Before buying one of the new '79 model economy cars that is best for you, you have visited several dealers for basic self-education only. By applying four key "tests," you probably have narrowed down the initial 34 new economy models from which you might have made a final selection, to say, three or four.

Now, on your second trip to visit the dealers offering these few models, you should test-drive the cars still under consideration, appraise their passenger and cargo specifications, get firm prices.

But you still won't make a final decision. So you should leave your checkbook at home and resist all lures.

Try to test-drive a car that is equipped similarly to the automobile in which you are interested. And don't drive it just around the block. Tell the salesperson that you're a serious customer and need to drive the car far enough to make an informed judgment. Then drive the car as you normally drive and on the kinds of roads you normally use. For your goal is to find out how well it fits your particular needs.

Let's say your choices have been narrowed to three cars. Each of these three has passed the first four "tests" outlined in yesterday's column. Now while test-driving each, you'll be rating the car on tests 5 through 13. To summarize each of these tests:

(5) Gauges and controls: are they visible and easy to use while driving?

(6) Visibility: can you see easily while changing lanes or parking the car?

(7) Steering effort: is it acceptable even when the car is stopped?

(8) Ventilation: do you get enough air with the windows closed and vents open?

(9) Noise: can you carry on a conversation in a normal voice at surface street speeds? At highway speeds?

(10) Acceleration: do you have enough power to keep up with traffic in view of the way you drive?

(11) Braking: have you confidence in the power brakes during normal driving?

(12) Ride: is it comfortable on the kind of roads you usually use, keeping in mind that a slightly firm ride is generally more comfortable on long trips than a soft ride?

(13) Handling: does the car go where you want it to go when you turn the steering wheel?

Rate each car on these points with a simple "like," or "don't like." This can be extremely revealing. And when you finish the drive, ask yourself whether you feel a sense of relief or regret when you shut off the engine.

Don't expect a car to score perfectly. If, on balance, you believe you can live with a particular car, based on its road test, then go on to evaluate the interior.

(14) Front passenger room: enough for the person who normally will be your passenger?

(15) Rear passenger room: What is the ease of entry? Is there enough room for the people who normally would be your back seat passengers? And if you have small children, might they outgrow the back before you're ready to get a different car?

(16) Cargo: hatchback — can you easily load or unload cargo without hitting your head on the hatch? Will your favorite suitcase fit behind the rear seat? (Don't guess; try it out.)

(17) Cargo area: trunkback — does the trunk lid swing up out of the way for easy loading? Will the trunk accept what you usually put into a trunk — bags of groceries or a big suitcase?

Obviously, none of these tests requires any technical skill on your part. You're evaluating the cars based on your own needs and likes. Beyond a few items of equipment you are ignoring specifications.

For whichever economy cars remain in the running after Test 17, get firm prices that include all the optional equipment you want as well as tax, licenses and registration. This is your total cost, not counting finance charges.

Now, which car is best for you? If only one car remains, that's it. If more remain, you might choose between the one that is lowest priced and another you prefer for other reasons.

The result is you'll choose "The Best Economy Car in the World For You." Get a free copy of a pamphlet with this title from the Mazda Information Bureau, P.O. Box 36730, Los Angeles, Calif. 90036 Send your name, address and zip code.

Funding the unpopular

By MARTHA ANGLE and ROBERT WALTERS
ST. PAUL, Minn. (NEA) — The conservatives' capture of the highly popular issue of drastic tax reductions is being viewed with great fascination — and considerable jealousy — by many of the nation's leading liberal political activists.

When more than 500 liberals from throughout the country met here recently under the auspices of the Conference of Alternative State and Local Public Policies, the topic of tax cuts was by far the single most popular agenda item.

But protracted discussions involving many of the nation's most talented liberal theoreticians failed to produce any consensus on a strategy to deal with the "tax revolt" that began in California and now is rapidly spreading to other states.

Most of those participating in the conference here were relatively young activists, in their 20s and 30s, who in recent years have been considerably less sanguine than older liberals about the efficacy of "New Deal" and "Great Society" solutions to the country's domestic problems.

As a result, there has been at least limited acceptance of the conservative argument that poverty, racial injustice and other social ills cannot be cured by "throwing money at them."

"We have seen first-hand the failure of last decade's social programs in our cities," admits Carol Bellamy, president of the New York City Council. "Austerity is not a metaphor in our cities. It is a daily fact of life."

"The New Deal is over," says Fred Branfman of the California Public Policy Center. "The concept that we can rely on public funds to pay for things we want to do is no longer applicable."

In addition, many liberals belatedly have joined conservatives in becoming distrustful of "big government" and assist the poor and members of minority groups — a task that invariably requires massive infusions of government funds.

"Poverty and racial injustice remain the recurring central problems of our time," says Barney Frank, a member of the Massachusetts state legislature. "And in our society, government is assigned the messy, dirty, unpopular jobs," including providing assistance to the powerless.

The liberals acknowledge that one explanation for the astounding popularity of California's Proposition 13 lies in the middle-class rebellion against onerous tax burdens, with the funds too often used to finance unproductive programs.

Schools in need #### of revisions

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Texas (AP) — The consensus among state school officials meeting here is that major revisions in school financing will be needed within 10 years, according to the U.S. Commissioner of Education.

Dr. Ernest Boyer said money for public education has been a "key topic" among the officials from 47 states and territories here.

Top public education officials from across the nation have gathered here for the annual Chief State School Officers conference.

"There's a strong sentiment that there's going to have to be a change in the way we finance public education," Boyer said.

He added that the Proposition 13 attitude sweeping east from California will lead to changes in school finance methods.

"New finance patterns will turn up in the next decade. They will differ from state to state but, clearly, ways will have to be found to fund inter-district equality," Boyer said.

The federal government now contributes about nine percent of the nation's total public education expenses, according to Boyer. He said the states should not count on the federal officials to solve the finance dilemma.

Boyer suggested that including school districts in federal revenue sharing programs might provide some assistance. The former chancellor of the State University of New York system also spoke of the use of teacher competency exams.

Civil suit filed

A $10,000 civil suit has been filed in 223rd District Court against the Shamrock Products Co. by Terri Kimbley.

The suit states that an automobile collision involving Kimbley and Stephen Wyndell Cox, an employee of Shamrock Products Co., which occurred on August 2, 1976, resulted in personal injury to Kimbley.

The suit charges the Cox was negligent and struck Kimbley's car from behind.

Chilean security chief under house arrest

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The Chilean government says it has ordered house arrest for its former security police chief and two of his men charged in the United States with plotting the assassination of Orlando Letelier. But their extradition is not expected.

Retired Brig. Gen. Juan Manuel Contreras Sepulveda, Col. Pedro Espinosa Bravo and Capt. Armando Fernandez Larios have been placed under preventive military arrest for a maximum period of two months pending the outcome of legal proceedings, the Interior Ministry said Tuesday night.

Contreras and Espinosa are at their homes and Fernandez is in a military hospital. "all under military custody and guard," an army communique said. It did not say why Fernandez was hospitalized.

The request for their detention was made by the United States, which said it would send formal extradition requests "in a matter of weeks." Observers said chances are slight the men will be extradited but a local trial is possible.

The three Chileans and four anti-Castro Cuban exiles in the United States were indicted by a federal grand jury in Washington Tuesday for the bomb-assassination of Letelier as his car moved through Washington's Embassy Row on Sept. 21, 1976. A young woman associate in the car, Ronni K. Moffitt, also was killed, and her husband, Michael, was wounded.

Letelier was ambassador to the United States, foreign minister and interior minister under the late President Salvador Allende, the Marxist overthrown by the military in September 1973. He was arrested and exiled after the coup and became an outspoken foe of President Augusto Pinochet's military government.

Contreras headed the Chilean junta's security police, the DINA, from its organization in early 1974 until its dissolution a year ago. The Washington indictment said he "initiated the existing extradition treaty between both countries." That 1902 treaty provides that each country will extradite people charged with crimes in the other country but that neither country is bound to hand over its own citizens. Under a 1933 pact, Chile agreed to try its own citizens if it does not extradite them.

Townley, who was deported by the Chilean government last April and cooperated in the U.S. investigation, was named a co-conspirator in the indictment but was not indicted. Prosecutors in Washington said he agreed to plead guilty to a single count of conspiracy to murder in the next few days.

The four Cubans indicted for participation in the alleged murder plot were Guillermo Novo Sampol, Alvin Ross Diaz, Virgilio Paz Romero and Jose Dionisio Suarez Esquivel, all of Union City, N.J.

Paz and Suarez are fugitives while Novo and Ross are in jail in New York City.

action which began the conspiracy and ... ordered the assassination of Orlando Letelier." Espinosa, director of operations for DINA, was accused of conveying the assassination order to Capt. Fernandez and an American DINA agent, Michael Townley. The indictment said Fernandez then went to the United States and shadowed Letelier to determine his habits.

"I don't think that there is anyone who seriously believes that General Pinochet will voluntarily give up people who could trace the murder of Mr. Letelier and my wife directly to his doorstep," Michael Moffitt said in Washington.

"Sources very close to the investigation tell me the chances are probably less than 10 percent that we'll get an extradition."

Although the Chilean government acted swiftly in detaining its three indicted nationals, it said their arrest did not signify guilt and was taken "exclusively under provisions of today's biggest gold miners, but during the 17th and 18th centuries, South America mines produced up to 80 percent of the world's supply.

The discovery of gold in California and Australia in the mid-19th century marked another expansion in production. More of the precious metal was mined in the 25 years from 1850 to 1875 than had been mined in the preceding 350 years.

Exploration and modern technology have boosted production, but gold remains a rare commodity. The amount mined in 1977 throughout the entire world is the equivalent of just under 2,000 tons. In contrast, the United States alone produced more than 600 million tons of coal in the same year.

The United States holds more gold than any other country — 277 million troy ounces, or 8,460.6 tons.

Bite of the Gold Bug strikes

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
"O cursed lust for gold,
"To what dost thou not drive the hearts of men!"
"The Aeneid." Virgil. 70-19

Gold. The dream at the end of the rainbow. The ring that ties two people together. The symbol of man's hope and of man's greed.

It is neither the rarest metal in the world nor the most expensive. But gold has a mystique that has lasted through the ages and has helped push its price to record highs in recent days.

What's so special about gold? "It's a historic thing," said William Buttermann of the Bureau of Mines. "It has a very ancient reputation ... It's very durable in a chemical and physical sense ... It's quite rare and was even more so in ancient times."

James Jolley, Buttermann's colleague at the bureau, had another explanation. "There's a lot of charisma about it," he said.

Jolley is an expert on platinum, which is both rarer and more costly than gold. World-wide platinum production in 1977 is estimated at just under 3 million troy ounces, compared to 38.5 million troy ounces of gold and 318.4 million troy ounces of silver. A troy ounce equals 1.097 regular ounces.

Platinum is selling at almost $250 an ounce, while gold — even after its sharp rise — is just over $200.

Platinum, however, doesn't have the same appeal. "It's just a white metal," said Jolley, adding that gold's yellow color is unique among natural metals.

Gold is easy to shape and polish; it doesn't rust, tarnish or corrode. Because of its relative scarcity, it is prized as one of the few things which, in a time of soaring inflation and currency fluctuations, will always be worth having.

Most newly mined gold goes for jewelry and dental purposes. The rest of it is bought and sold, then bought and sold again, and again, by investors who swap paper certificates rather than actual gold bars.

The drawing power of gold goes back before the birth of Christ and it seems just as strong now as it was then. The Egyptian King Tutankhamen was buried in a solid-gold coffin more than 3,300 years ago; today, thousands of Americans are flocking to exhibitions of articles from his tomb.

Gold was, in part, responsible for the exploration of the Americas.

"Get gold," was the message Spain's King Ferdinand gave his conquistadors when he sent them to the New World in 1511. From 1492 to 1600, more than 8 million troy ounces of gold — much of it mined by slaves or stolen from temples — came from South America. The Soviet Union and South Africa are

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
Drenching rains sent rivers in the Texas Hill Country roaring out of their banks early today, prompting the National Weather Service to issue flash flood warnings for persons along the Guadalupe River and the Sabinal River.

Forecasters said the situation along Guadalupe River and along all its tributaries was "critical" and said the situation along the Sabinal and its tributaries was "serious."

The warnings issued by the NWS were blunt. "Please get away from the Guadalupe River at once," forecasters said in the warning issued at San Antonio.

There were no reports of injuries, but some communications facilities were damaged by lightning accompanied by the heavy, rain-soaked thunderstorms.

A Texas Department of Public Safety spokesman at San Antonio said the DPS reported that about 12 inches of rain fell at the headwaters of the Guadalupe River between 11 p.m. Tuesday and 5:30 a.m. today. He said rainfall rates in the same area were continuing at about two inches per hour.

At Hunt, roaring brown flood water was two feet deep across Texas 39, the DPS said. At Ingram, water from the Guadalupe River was running four feet over a dam. At Center Point, the Guadalupe was running about 21 feet above normal, the spokesman reported.

There were no reports of evacuations in the area, but telephone and power lines were downed in heavy thunderstorms and reports from the area were sketchy.

Lightning damaged some communications equipment at the DPS office at Kerrville, the spokesman said.

Forecasters warned all persons to stay away from both the Guadalupe River and the Sabinal River.

Some urban flooding was reported during the night in San Antonio as heavy amounts of rainfall were reported across a wide area of South Central Texas and in the Hill Country.

Skies were cloudy early today over most of Central and Southeast Texas. The low cloudiness associated with the warm, moist air blowing in from the Gulf of Mexico was expected to move northward into North Central Texas today, taking with it some of the heavy rainfall activity.

Early morning temperatures were quite warm. Most readings in the 70s with extremes ranging from 58 at Marfa in the mountains of Southwest Texas to near 80 along the gulf coast.

Forecasters called for partly cloudy skies over most of the state today. Showers and thunderstorms were expected to develop in areas from the Big Bend region eastward across the state and northward into many sections of North Central Texas. Highs today were expected to range from the middle 80s to the upper 90s.

Some early morning readings included 71 at Amarillo, 73 at Wichita Falls, 76 at Texarkana, 74 at Dallas-Fort Worth, 76 at Austin, 72 at Lufkin, 75 at Houston, 80 at Corpus Christi and Brownsville, 74 at Del Rio, 72 at San Angelo, 77 at El Paso and 71 at Lubbock.

National weather

By The Associated Press
Southern Texas continued feeling the effects of Tropical Storm "Amelia" today although the storm itself is dead.

Flood watches and warnings were issued across wide areas of the Southern part of the state with scattered rain still falling.

Rainfall was measured at six inches Tuesday in Pearsall, five inches in Pleasanton and WASHINGTON (AP) — Even if a proposed $16.2 billion tax cut becomes law, the federal tax bite for all but a few Americans will go up next year because of inflation and a higher Social Security tab, according to new congressional figures.

The figures, compiled by staff economists for the Joint Committee on Taxation, show only people in the $15,000 tax bracket would end 1979 with a lower tax bill — and the reduction would be only $2 to $3.

The reason is that although federal income taxes will go down, the reduction will be more than offset by inflation, pushing taxpayers into higher brackets, and by increases in the Social Security payroll taxes approved last December.

While economists' calculations were based on a projected inflation rate of 7 percent, the latest Carter administration prediction is for an overall inflation rate of 7.2 percent this year.

There have been efforts in this election year to roll back the Social Security tax increases, but those moves died in mid-May when the House Ways and Means Committee rejected the ideas.

The same committee last week approved the $16.2 billion tax cut. Although the legislation is not what President Carter had wanted, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said Tuesday he expects it to be approved by the full House.

The tax cut bill — if examined without considering other factors — would provide for a tax break of from $105 to $213 for single people earning from $20,000 to $30,000 a year. The reduction would be from $146 to $304 for a family of four in the same income range.

Peter Davis, an economist for the joint committee, said Tuesday night that when inflation and the higher Social Security payroll taxes are taken into account, however, the tax picture appears quite different.

Under those circumstances, according to figures compiled by Davis, that same middle-income taxpayer would be paying anywhere from $83 to $261 more in taxes in 1979 than he paid this year.

For a single person earning $10,000, the tax cut legislation before the House would amount to a cut of $15. But after inflation and the Social Security tax hike, that same taxpayer would be paying $40 more than he paid the previous year. For a married person with two children, the bill would go up $29.

The tax approved by the Ways and Means Committee is considerably smaller than the one originally proposed by President Carter. The president's plan outlined in January — a hefty $24.5 billion reduction — was designed to offset both inflation and the higher Social Security payroll taxes.

Jackson doubts passage of natural gas bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Senate Energy Committee said Tuesday supporters of a natural gas compromise have the votes to break a filibuster planned by opponents of the pricing plan.

But Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said he is much less confident that the natural gas bill will be approved by the Senate.

The bill, a critical piece of President Carter's energy plan, is to come before the Senate on Friday.

Democratic Sens. James Abourezk of South Dakota and Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio announced Tuesday they will seek to block a vote on the natural gas compromise by making repeated attempts to send it back to a congressional conference committee.

To break a filibuster led by Abourezk, Jackson and Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd must gather 60 votes to end debate.

"We have the votes for cloture (ending debate)," Jackson said in a brief interview, "but I am much less sure about the bill itself."

The legislation, the product of six months of negotiations between senators and House members, would allow natural gas prices to rise gradually until 1985 when controls would be lifted.

There was some indication that the compromise agreement might come unraveled before it reaches the Senate floor.

Sen. Mark Hatfield, of Oregon, one of three Republican supporters of the compromise, said he believes a provision designed to protect natural gas producers from inflation has been faultily drafted.

Asked if he will vote for the bill as presently written, Hatfield said, "Not now."

At a news conference Tuesday, Abourezk and Metzenbaum said that by supporting the natural gas compromise, Carter had sold out to the oil and gas industry.

Carter aide resigns from presidential circle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Margaret "Midge" Costanza, the feisty presidential aide whose style never suited the Carter administration, is resigning after 18 tempestuous months as an outsider among the president's inner circle.

The controversial firebrand, who had witnessed a steady erosion of her power, hand-delivered a letter of resignation on Monday, just days after she "had words" with President Carter.

The letter — "the most difficult I've ever written" — became public Tuesday night, as Ms. Costanza reportedly vacationed in Florida.

Her resignation followed by 12 days that of Dr. Peter G. Bourne, the president's adviser on drugs who had written a fictitious patient name when he prescribed a powerful sedative for one of his employees.

Carter, after showing initial reluctance, accepted Ms. Costanza's resignation "with regret," according to sources who asked not to be named.

What was characterized as Ms. Costanza's first argument with the president arose last week after Gerald Rafterson, the new White House communications adviser, abruptly canceled her appearance on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America" program so that she would not upstage a colleague also booked on the show.

Once the administration's liaison with minorities, women and various interest groups, Ms. Costanza's domain had been limited in May to handling women's issues. At the same time she was removed from her large office near Carter's to smaller quarters in the White House basement. Her staff was cut at the same time.

Her other duties were given to Anne Wexler, former deputy undersecretary of commerce, who joined the White House staff on April 19.

There was speculation that the reduced responsibility was a signal for her to resign. Friends, who asked not to be named, contend she threatened to leave in May, but decided to remain after Carter assured her she would not be moved out of the White House altogether.

This time, at their meeting Monday, Carter urged Ms. Costanza to take a two-week vacation and think about whether she wanted to resign.

Though she insisted her decision to quit was final, the White House did not announce the resignation immediately and had no plans to do so until it was leaked Tuesday evening.

"She's just beaten down and that's ironic because she's so resilient," a friend said.

McKean appointed to LP-Gas board

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — John Byron McKean, Seguin, has been appointed the public member of the recently constituted LP-Gas Advisory Committee, the Texas Railroad Committee said Tuesday.

McKean, who is in the investments business, joins six representatives of the Texas Liquefied Petroleum Gas industry on the panel that will conduct studies and offer advice to the commission.

Baylor receives grant

HOUSTON (AP) — A $750,000 Mellon Foundation grant has been received by Baylor College of Medicine to help finance the development of safer and more efficient contraceptives.

Dr. Bert W. O'Malley, chairman of the college's Center for Population Research and Reproductive Biology, said Tuesday other objectives of the research include alleviation of infertility in childless couples and ways to eliminate genetic and birth defects.

Foreclosures lowest on record

HOUSTON (AP) — Home foreclosures in July by two federal agencies in Houston were the lowest for any month since they began keeping such tabulations in 1968.

A total of 12 foreclosures were reported Tuesday by the Federal Housing Administration and the Veterans Administration. The previous monthly low was 18 last February.

Project out for San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Rejecting Mayor Lila Cockrell's advice to wait, Councilman Glen Hartman officially launched a move Tuesday aimed at removing San Antonio from the South Texas Project nuclear power plant.

"We simply cannot wait until September to take the first steps in what may become a rather complex process," he said in a memorandum to the mayor and city council.

Hartman, who has voted for continued financing of San Antonio's 28 percent share in the Matagorda County project, said his move was precipitated by information disclosed last week about expected delays and new cost overrun projections.

The total cost of the project, estimated in 1975 at $900 million, is now estimated at $1.3 billion, including $558 million from San Antonio.

But City Public Service officials disclosed last week that an outside management study, expected to be completed next month, is expected to forecast delays of more than two years and associated cost overruns in the millions of dollars.

Hartman said information available now "convinces me that the time has come to take specific preparatory steps to withdraw."

The 11-member council voted 7-4 recently to approve another $75 million for the project. But it was the first time more than two council members have voted against it.

Hartman voted with the majority on that occasion, as did Henry Cisneros. Cisneros called Tuesday for a task force to study the potential of using lignite as the cornerstone of San Antonio's energy program.

Hartman's memo did not go so far as to say San Antonio ought to get out, but he asked for full information and processes — the necessary first step.

Mayor Cockrell has urged council members to sit tight until the new study is completed.

The mayor, a CPS trustee, said she is convinced the project is a bargain although costs might escalate above current projections.

Councilman Joe Alderete, already an opponent of the project, says Houston Lighting & Power is interested in buying San Antonio's share.

HL&P, San Antonio, the City of Austin and Central Power & Light are partners in the venture.

The plant was supposed to provide 30 percent of San Antonio's electricity by 1982.

Reporter may be jailed

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — Lawyers for New York Times reporter Myron Farber, rebuffed by U.S. Supreme Court Justice Byron White in an attempt to keep the journalist out of jail, said they would turn to Justice Thurgood Marshall in an eleventh-hour appeal.

Farber was to report to jail today to begin an indefinite term for civil contempt because he refused to surrender his notes in the Dr. X murder trial here. Farber also faces a criminal contempt charge — six months in jail beginning after he surrenders his notes.

It was Farber whose journalistic investigation of what he dubbed the Dr. X case resulted in the re-opening of an official investigation into the deaths of a number of local hospital patients in the 1960s. Dr. Mario Jascavech was accused of killing five patients with the muscle relaxant cure.

On Tuesday, the judge in Jascavech's trial agreed with a defense motion for dismissal of two of the counts and ordered a directed verdict of acquittal on those two murder charges.

Meanwhile, in Washington Tuesday, White denied the reporter's request that his jailing be delayed while the contempt convictions were appealed.

Jascavech's attorneys contend they need the reporter's files to assist their defense.

"There is no present authority in this court either that newsmen are constitutionally privileged to withhold duly sub-

Delay may cost plant

HOUSTON (AP) — A B.F. Goodrich spokesman said Tuesday a construction permit delay may cause a proposed $200 million chemical plant at Bayport to be built elsewhere.

The joint project by Goodrich and Bechtel Corp. would employ about 200 workers.

Robert Downey, a company public affairs spokesman in Cleveland, Ohio, said one Texas site and two Louisiana sites are being considered as possible relocation areas and a decision would be made in September.

He said the project is behind schedule because of five weeks of Texas Air Control Board hearings on a construction permit. The Galveston Bay Conservation and Preservation Association opposes the permit.

Bayport is an industrial development on Galveston Bay in east Harris County.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Why can't women be as broad-minded as men? We've been married 15 years, and my wife is doing a super job with our home and children, but she's letting a small incident she happened to witness make a difference in our lives.

Now, you're a business woman, Abby, and you know how hard it is to keep a good secretary. Mine has been with me for five years and she does a great job. She's always on time, she's efficient, and the price is right.

Well, last week my wife dropped in at the office, and she happened to see me hug my secretary. I've made friendly gestures like this for some time to show I appreciate her, but now my wife is steamed, and she's giving me a hard time.

Abby, will you please say something in your column about how hard it is to find a good secretary?

JULIUS

DEAR JULIUS: A good plumber is also hard to find! I mean one who comes immediately when you call him, has all the parts he needs with him and does the job at a price that's right. How would you like to come home and find your wife "showing her appreciation" by hugging him? The next time you want to show your "appreciation," try money.

DEAR ABBY: You told a reader that you took Catholic instruction to better understand Catholicism—"to learn, not turn." What a beautiful idea! I'm Catholic and regularly read publications of other religions.

Our small parish in Lockport, N.Y., has conducted a weekly series where ministers and pastors are invited to tell us about their beliefs and show us their churches (unfortunately, there is no synagogue nearby).

I hope your example prompts others among your millions of readers to become more curious and understanding, and less prejudiced and blindly accusative.

A.M., JR.

DEAR A.M.: So do I. Prejudice is based on ignorance. I can't stress strongly enough the importance of learning about religions that differ from our own. Where there is knowledge and compassion there cannot be hate or prejudice.

DEAR ABBY: In a column, you used the phrase, "You can insure this feeling by..." The word is ensure, unless one can insure feelings as Betty Grable's legs were insured.

Ensure means to make sure, to make more probable. Insure means to provide for indemnity or reimbursement in the event that something happens. And, for good measure, assure means to promise. Example: The salesman assured him that insuring his life would ensure his family's financial security.

Words are our professional tools, and we do well to keep them sharp.

WILLIAM H. HEWITT: WHITTIER, CALIF.

DEAR MR. HEWITT: My Webster's New International Dictionary (Second Edition; unabridged) shows that "insure" is a synonym for "ensure"—and vice versa—(Betty Grable's legs notwithstanding).

CONFIDENTIAL TO HEARTBROKEN AUNT IN ANOKA: Don't be so quick to judge. Sometimes it takes more love to give away a child than to keep it.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am 67 years old and in fairly good health but have terribly cold hands, especially the back of my hands. The heat in our home is 70 degrees but my hands and even my feet are cold—not as bad in the summer. I have to sleep with socks on but it's unreasonable for me to have to wear gloves as well. Please tell me why and what I can do about it.

DEAR READER—The reason people's hands and feet get cold before the rest of the body is because they're farthest away from the heart. The warm blood has to travel farthest to reach the hands and feet. If you actually did skin temperature measurements on individuals, you would demonstrate lower skin temperatures over the hands and feet.

Wearing good warm socks to bed is not a bad idea and there's nothing wrong with wearing gloves either if your hands are really cold. As people get older they're more likely to have cold hands and feet, perhaps because of circulatory changes. In any case one thing that helps is exercise. It's easier to get cold sitting and watching TV than it is if you're moving around, even doing light housework. I would suggest that you try to increase your level of physical activity and see if that won't help to some extent. You may still feel cold at night but those socks and gloves won't hurt you. Since there are very few medicines that people can take that don't have a few side effects, be thankful that you can solve your problem that easily.

Perhaps you'll be interested in factors that affect body temperature. I'm sending you The Health Letter number 7-6, Body Temperature and Fever. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am a 48-year-old male. Some time ago I had a vasectomy. Since the operation I met a woman whom I wish to marry. She would like to have my child. We have discussed this at some length. Does my body still produce seed even though the cords are cut? My girlfriend is willing to have artificial insemination if the seeds are from me.

DEAR READER—Quite a few people write about having a sterilization procedure reversed. This includes both men and women. In general, anyone who has such an operation should consider it as permanent, since it is likely to be.

Despite that, your best bet would be to see if your vasectomy could be reversed. This involves reconnecting the two severed ends of the tiny vas tube. In the past these operations were successful in less than one out of four cases—success being judged on the basis of the man being able to father a child.

In recent times microsurgery has been used and under the microscope a better job of connecting the severed ends of the vas tube can be accomplished. Some surgeons who do this highly specialized technique claim as high as a 75 percent success rate. See a urologist and find out if there is someone near your home who does the modern microsurgical technique to reverse a vasectomy operation.

Yes, the testicles continue to produce sperm cells after the vasectomy operation has been performed. They are merely trapped because there is no way for them to escape.

Pointers for making potatoe perfection

By Aileen Claire NEA Food Editor

Baked potatoes are a standby in most homes and restaurants. If you aren't satisfied with your potatoes despite years of practice, a few tips may help improve this tasty, simple, inexpensive vegetable.

First, never bake a potato in aluminum foil. That gives it a steamy, watery texture instead of the dry fluffiness that is a true potato characteristic.

And never open potatoes with a knife. Open them with a fork, since a sharp instrument forces the potato down instead of fluffing it up, detracting from its natural lightness.

For added eating pleasure, whip up stuffing or low-calorie toppings for your next potato bake. Also try a cottage cheese or mushroom topped potato with a green salad for a satisfying, lower calorie meal.

STUFFED IDAHO POTATOES
4 Idaho potatoes
1 egg
2 tablespoons milk
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 tablespoon grated onion
1 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper

Scrub potatoes well. Dry potatoes, and prick with a fork. Bake in 425-degree oven for 55 to 60 minutes or until soft.

Cut slice off top of each potato and carefully scoop out pulp. In a large bowl, combine potato pulp, egg, milk, butter, onion, salt and pepper. Beat until smooth. Spoon potato mixture back into potato shells. Place on a baking sheet. Bake in a 350-degree oven 30 minutes or until thoroughly heated. Serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

Variations: To mashed potato mixture, add 1/2 cup shredded Swiss or Cheddar cheese, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley or 1/2 teaspoon dried dill weed.

LOW-CALORIE COTTAGE CHEESE TOPPING

1 cup (8 oz.) cottage cheese
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1/4 teaspoon chopped chives
1/8 teaspoon dried dill weed
1/4 teaspoon salt
Pepper to taste

In a small bowl, beat cottage cheese until smooth. Add parsley, chives, dill weed, salt and pepper. Mix well. Makes 1 cup, enough topping for 4 potatoes.

LOW-CALORIE MUSHROOM TOPPING

1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1/4 cup chopped onion
1/4 pound mushrooms, chopped
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon dried leaf savory

In a skillet melt butter. Add onion and cook 3 minutes. Add mushrooms, salt, pepper and savory. Cook 5 minutes longer, stirring frequently. Makes about 1 cup, enough topping for 4 potatoes.

Make additional conserves, relish

By Aileen Claire NEA Food Editor

Conserves and relishes add a special touch to the poultry, hams or beef dishes you serve for the holidays or for fall post-game entertaining.

Make use of late summer bumper crops before the first frost by putting up tomato conserve-chutney or green tomato garden relish.

Since Christmas is not that far away, you may want to make additional conserves and relishes to fill special gift jars.

TOMATO CONSERVE-CHUTNEY
3 pounds tomatoes
1 orange
1/2 lemon
1 1/2 cups seedless raisins
2 cups liquid brown sugar
1 cup chopped walnuts

Remove stem ends from tomatoes. Dice tomatoes coarsely. Put into large, heavy saucepan or kettle.

Cut orange and lemon into thin slices. Discard seeds. Cut orange slices in quarters and lemon slices in halves. Add orange and lemon slices, raisins and liquid brown sugar to tomatoes.

Cook slowly, stirring frequently, until thick, about 3 hours. Stir in walnuts. Ladle into hot sterilized glasses. Seal. Cool, label and store. Makes about 5 cups.

GREEN TOMATO GARDEN RELISH

8 pounds medium-sized green tomatoes (about 24 tomatoes)
6 cups finely shredded green cabbage (about 1 1/4 lbs.)
3 cups chopped onions (3 large onions)
1 cup diced celery

Remove stem ends from tomatoes. Cut tomatoes into very thin slices. (You should have about 5 1/2 quarts.) Layer vegetables in very large bowl or kettle, sprinkling each layer with salt. Let stand 12 hours or overnight. Drain vegetables well, pressing lightly in sieve. Put vegetables into large kettle.

Bring vinegar, liquid brown sugar, celery and mustard seeds and pepper to boiling in medium-sized saucepan. Pour over vegetables. Cover. Bring to boiling. Reduce heat to low and cook, stirring frequently, 15 to 20 minutes until vegetables are tender-crisp. (Do not overcook.)

Ladle at once into hot sterilized jars. Seal. Cool, label and store.

- 1 large green pepper, seeded and diced
- 1 large sweet red pepper, seeded and diced
- 1/2 cup salt
- 3 cups cider vinegar
- 2 1/2 cups liquid brown sugar
- 2 tablespoons celery seeds
- 4 teaspoons mustard seeds
- 1 teaspoon pepper

Remove stem ends from tomatoes. Cut tomatoes into very thin slices. (You should have about 5 1/2 quarts.)

Layer vegetables in very large bowl or kettle, sprinkling each layer with salt. Let stand 12 hours or overnight. Drain vegetables well, pressing lightly in sieve. Put vegetables into large kettle.

Bring vinegar, liquid brown sugar, celery and mustard seeds and pepper to boiling in medium-sized saucepan. Pour over vegetables. Cover. Bring to boiling. Reduce heat to low and cook, stirring frequently, 15 to 20 minutes until vegetables are tender-crisp. (Do not overcook.)

Your Birthday

Aug. 3, 1978

All those unusual happenings that have been part of your life for the last couple of years will finally come to an end. A new, happy year is in store for you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Prepare before you react today. Implementing your projects may take a little initial spadework in order for your ideas to take root. Having trouble selecting a career? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Curb any impulsive tendency today to say exactly what's on your mind. Take a moment to calm yourself. You'll be able to behave more wisely.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Persistence will accomplish your aims today, so don't allow yourself to withdraw the minute things look like they're getting a little tough.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Mysterious factors could come into play and save the day just when you thought an important goal might be out of reach. Stick to your objectives.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't let negative thinking creep into your day. Tailor your ideas to the events as they occur. You can make nice things happen.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Before agreeing to anything, especially in writing, seek expert counsel in the field in which you are dealing. A quick decision would be a mistake.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't underestimate your talent today. What you have to offer is more valuable to the other party than you give yourself credit for.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't be disappointed if something falls through unexpectedly. A new approach or concept will work things out even better.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Cooperation that you counted on to complete a task might not be forthcoming today. Actually, if you do the job yourself it'll work out more to your satisfaction.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Criticism is constructive only if you can offer an alternative you know to be superior. Be sure you have the answers if evaluating another's work.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's always wise to take care in commercial dealings, but today offers fresh ideas or new fashions if you'll take the time to shop more carefully. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Erxleben: new rule unjust

Sports

PAMPA NEWS Wednesday, August 2, 1978 7

By ANDY LIPPMAN
Associated Press Writer
KINGS MILLS, Ohio (AP) — College football kicking sensation Russell Erxleben, a field goal threat from 60 to 65 yards out, feels a new NCAA rule is "an injustice to me."

The University of Texas senior believes his skill at making what he calls "transcontinental field goals" contributed to the passage during the off-season of a rule that defuses the field goal facet of football. Following the lead of the National Football League, the National Collegiate Athletic Association voted to return field goals missed from outside the 20-yard line to the line of scrimmage.

In past years, a missed field goal meant the opposing team took over at the 20-yard line. The rule would particularly affect long ball kickers such as Erxleben and Texas A&M's

Tony Franklin. "Deep down inside, I believe it's an injustice to me. It's like penalizing (Heisman Trophy winner and former Texas teammate) Earl Campbell because he is a good runner."

Erxleben was among a celebrity list of college stars on hand to mark the opening of the College Football Hall of Fame. He was joined by Charles Alexander, Louisiana State University running back; Ted Brown, running back from North Carolina State and quarterback Chuck Fusina of Penn State, Rick Leach of Michigan and Jack Thompson of Washington State.

Erxleben admits, however, the rule change may be beneficial to him in the long run. "I'm being stubborn now, but it will get me ready for the pros one year sooner," the 6-foot-4, 218-pound kicking specialist said.

"It's going to take some of the pressure off when I get to the pros." He believes the new rule won't prevent him from continuing as a potent offensive weapon for the Longhorns. The top kicker in Texas history, he set an NCAA record in 1977 with a 67-yard field goal against Rice.

He has kicked 10 field goals of more than 50 yards and three of more than 60 yards. In addition, he led the nation in punting in 1976 with a 46.6 yard average.

"The coach has told me that from 60 to 65 yards out I'll still be in consideration range for a field goal," Erxleben said. The 60-65 yard range is not as far as Erxleben claims to be able to kick.

"I can kick 76 yards with the wind," he said. His famous foot has brought him fame — and more attention than he prefers. Four months ago he put a license plate on his car that said "UT-Kick."

RUSSELL ERXLEBEN

This week he is sporting a new plate which merely has the regulation numbers and letters.

Rose's streak finally ends after 44 games

ATLANTA (AP) — Pete Rose's dramatic chase of Joe DiMaggio's all-time record of hitting in 56 straight games has ended at 44.

"I would have liked to see what would have happened if I had gotten up in the 50s," Rose said Tuesday night after failing to hit for the first time since mid-June. He was 0-for-4 with a walk against rookie left-hander Larry McWilliams and veteran reliever Gene Garber of the Atlanta Braves.

"But 44 is not bad," said the scrappy 37-year-old captain of the Cincinnati Reds. "I'm not really disgusted because I hit the ball well. I'll come back tomorrow and get a hit."

Texas girl all-around leader
HURON, S.D. (AP) — Danny Salisbury of Vici, Okla., and Candy Thoreson of Gruver, Texas, continued to lead the all-around standings Tuesday after the fourth performance in the first round of the High School National Finals Rodeo.

Kevin Nordahl of Helena, Mont., was second in the boys all-around standings and Kathy noon competition, but 545 shooters braved the weather to shoot in the small-gauge event.

Six remained after four rounds of 25 targets each when the tie-breaker was called due to lightning. Oklahoma took the team lead after Tuesday night's results with Washington second. Utah was third and Nevada fourth. Team points were not available.

The rodeo continues through Sunday.

Those still in contention for the 28-gauge title are: Robert Paxton of Dallas; Chip Youngblood of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.; Walt Baderek of Klamath Falls, Ore.; John Robertson of Opelousas, La.; Charles Brocato of Jackson, Miss.; and John Dail of Anderson, S.C.

Dail won the junior title with his 100 straight. Three shooters — Baderek, John Sherer of Lubbock, Texas, and Wayne Mayes, Hixson, Tenn. — are still without a miss after the 410 and 28-gauge 100 target events.

Tie-breakers will be held Friday afternoon.

Thompson knows about decisions

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Decisions, decisions. Jack Thompson knows all about them, whether it's deciding what play to call or pitting a lucrative pro football contract against one more year of college eligibility.

JACK THOMPSON

Thompson, a 6-foot-3, 215-pound quarterback for Washington State University, is within reach of NCAA and Pacific-10 Conference passing and total offense records.

But having been redshirted during his freshman season, he was eligible for the recent National Football League draft and it took a serious talk with his father to convince him that money isn't everything.

"There were a lot of variables I had to consider," the Samoan-born Thompson explained Monday at the start of the annual NCAA-ABC college football cross-country promotion tour. "The main reason I would have chosen to turn pro was to realize financial stabil-

Public paying more for people who won't protect themselves

NEW YORK (AP) — What is the public's responsibility to individuals who fail to protect themselves? Homeowners in the northern New Jersey town of Plainfield suffered heavy flood damage in early August 1973, much of it uninsured. Following the destruction, there was a rush to buy protection. Of 329 flood policies sold during the entire year, 220 of which, he says, is bearing more and more of the bill for the negligence of individual property owners. "Between 1966 and 1976 the Small Business Administration made 19 times as many disaster loans (worth 11 times as many dollars) as it did during the preceding 12-year period," he reports. That money came from taxes, Kunreuther points out.

That is, the public was asked to share the individual's loss, even though the individual in many instances had the wherewithal to protect himself — and did not. As chairman of the University of Pennsylvania's Department of Decision Sciences, Kunreuther has observed procrastination often, and not just in regard to earthquake, flood or other disaster insurance. "We cannot continue to assume that human beings are — or can easily be turned into — that phantom we traditionally have called a "rational" decision maker," he wrote recently for The Wharton Magazine. Through 3,000 interviews, the professor and his staff sought to learn why homeowners in susceptible areas spend hundreds of dollars on fire insurance, but decline protection against other potential disasters.

Business Mirror

"Basically," he found "it is not the magnitude of the potential loss that inspires people to buy insurance voluntarily — it is the frequency with which a loss (no matter what size) is likely to occur."

These frequent losses might be minor, and financially manageable for the policyholder without insurance. But the owner insures. Meanwhile, the less likely but disastrous event is not covered.

This, suggests Kunreuther, is illogical. "Standard models of rational economic behavior would predict just the opposite choice," he said. Rational or not, tests show it is the way people act and react.

Even with heavily subsidized premiums under the National Flood Insurance Program, people have declined to buy, Kunreuther states, and he cites the Rapid City flood as evidence.

When that South Dakota city was ravaged in June 1972 by water pouring from storms in the Black Hills, only 29 policies were in force, although the city had qualified under the national plan a year earlier.

Clayton subject of complaints

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Speaker Bill Clayton wanted the special legislative session, but one of its by-products is a problem he didn't want.

Some 50 of the 150 House members — not yet as firmly organized as the "Dirty 30" dissidents that hounded Speaker Gus Mutscher in 1971 — are meeting regularly to gripe about Clayton.

They plan another talk session tonight.

A lawmaker who attended Monday night's meeting said that while the dissidents did not agree on whether to recruit an opponent for Clayton they did disagree on who.

—Issue a manifesto or statement of House members' rights, to be drafted by Rep. Matt Garcia, D-San Antonio.

—List the qualities of an ideal speaker, with Rep. Bob Maloney, R-Dallas, doing the preliminary writing.

—Collect representatives' grievances against Clayton, with Rep. Dave Allred, D-Wichita Falls, in charge.

A source said Rep. Buddy Temple, D-Diboll, sent word Monday he no longer considered himself a viable candidate to oppose Clayton's third-term bid.

One representative who is not yet a candidate but has been mentioned as a possible opponent for Clayton was Rep. Ben Grant, D-Marshall, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee and a Dirty 30 alumnus.

"Ben is not doing anything to encourage it," the source said. "It is a spontaneous thing, completely from other people."

The legislative source said complaints against Clayton included:

—"Heat sheets" used last Thursday and Friday, showing each representative's pro-or anti-"team" voting record on amendments to a property tax relief proposal favored by Clayton.

Many of those at Monday's meeting felt Clayton brushed off complaints that House staff members violated rules by preparing the voting records. Clayton said personal staff, not House staff, did it, and that it isn't against the rules. Most believed Clayton's executive assistant, Jack Gullhorn, was responsible.

—The belief, correct or not, that Clayton worked for defeat of some liberal members in the Democratic primary.

No tax relief in sight during current session

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Hope waned Tuesday of adjourning the special legislative session before next Tuesday or of submitting a package of property tax relief proposals to the voters.

Meanwhile, today's House calendar was headed by Orange Rep. Wayne Peveto's uniform property tax appraisal bill, similar to one defeated by senators Monday, 18-9.

But Peveto said late Monday that in the wake of the Senate decision, he wasn't sure he would run with his bill. "I'm not playing games. I just don't know," he said.

Speaker Bill Clayton's forces fell six short of the 100 votes needed to approve a constitutional amendment on property tax relief Monday.

If approved by two-thirds of the House and Senate, such a proposal would be submitted to the voters Nov. 7.

There is a chance Clayton will try again, but he said that would happen only when he is sure there won't be a repeat of Monday's 94-45 debacle.

"It is a guarantee of a 30-day session. We are going to be here till Aug. 8," the session's mandatory adjournment date, said Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, the floor lieutenant on constitutional amendments.

He said Monday's failure to send the package of constitutional amendments — including a possible homestead exemption from school taxes and evaluation of farm land on productivity — might mean failure of the special session to do something about property taxes.

"It pretty well puts it in jeopardy at this point," he said.

Monday's floor session was an ugly-tempered affair, with Clayton at one point declaring he would strictly enforce the rule against personal attacks against representatives in floor speeches.

Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, criticized Clayton for a back-room meeting over the week-end with school administrators, who are upset over a provision allowing local voters to roll back property tax increases.

Bryant offered — and Von Dohlen accepted — an amendment requiring 35 percent of a community's voters to petition for a rollback election.

Clayton, he said, "committed to the school people that he would take out the local referendum or else water it down so much, cripple it so bad, that no citizen could ever use it."

"I think it is a deceitful way to proceed, but it is time to call the bluff of these promise makers back there and see if they'll support the amendment they said they would support," he said.

Von Dohlen said Bryant — a supporter of speaker candidate Buddy Temple, D-Diboll — had behaved "to the disgust of the members" while Clayton had been "fair to all."

While weakening the local referendum position, the House voted 97-42 to add a provision setting up initiative and referendum, which Californians used to cut their taxes through Proposition 13.

Chances were considered slim the provision would pass the special session, however, because a similar proposal failed to gather the necessary majority Monday in the Senate State Affairs Committee.

Waterspout strikes beach resort

KILL DEVIL HILLS, N.C. (AP) — A huge waterspout caught this beach resort community by surprise as it turned vicious, crossed onto land and slammed a row of small houses down like children's building blocks.

Harriet Tillet, 75, was killed.

The gray twister was several hundred feet high as it slammed ashore, witnesses said. In a matter of seconds, it left a path of destruction about 75 yards wide and 350 yards inland before fading away.

Fire Chief Bill Guard said the victim's body was found in a ditch about 75 feet from her house, which was leveled by the twister.

Town officials kept the area off limits to unauthorized people today, to prevent looting while the cleanup continued.

The cinder block house where Mrs. Tillet lived was smashed against a house next door on stilts. And that house also was leveled, leaving a pile of rubble topped by a mattress, a stray drawer, and here and there a piece of clothing.

Guard said the house on stilts was empty, because a family that had rented it for vacation had left the night before.

"I don't know who they are, but I think they're three of the luckiest people in the world," he said.

Some Americans win against inflation

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Most Americans think they lose from inflation, and most probably do. But there are lot of people who manage to break even, and others who are outright winners.

Nearly breaking even are the 35 million persons who receive Social Security payments, federal employees and workers whose union-negotiated wage increases keep pace with prices.

Winners include most physicians, corporate executives and workers whose wages and other benefits have exceeded the rise in the cost of living.

Barry Bosworth and the Council on Wage and Price Stability, which he directs, have been outspoken in their criticism of those who are ahead of the inflation game, saying they are gaining at the expense of the rest of the population.

Among labor unions, Bosworth has singled out the 2.2 million member Teamsters, the United Auto Workers and the United Steelworkers as being among those whose gains have put them in a privileged position relative to other workers.

Wage and benefit increases for major unions have been averaging between 9.5 percent and 10 percent a year, Bosworth says, while overall average worker earnings have been rising by about 7 percent, close to the recent rates of inflation.

However, since the 7 percent average includes those whose wages increased by substantially higher figures, it means a lot of workers are receiving much smaller gains.

"These major unions have to be brought back into line with the rest of the economy," says Bosworth. "If these contracts again come in in the range of 30 percent and over (for three years), you might as well forget talking about decelerating inflation at any time in the near future."

Having said that, however, he adds that the average worker has done "terribly."

The government reported last week that workers' real spendable earnings, or earnings discounted for inflation and taxes, declined 0.4 percent in June and were down 2.3 percent from a year earlier.

Corporate profits kept up with inflation last year, rising an average of 11 percent for the biggest 1,200 companies, according to Business Week magazine, compared with an inflation rate for the year of 6.8 percent.

Pay of corporate executives also has tended to far outpace inflation. The magazine reported that during 1976, for example, direct pay of executives — salary plus bonuses — increased 27.2 percent. Corporate profits were up 26 percent that year, but inflation was just 4.8 percent, making it a good year for executives.

"Sometimes they get bonuses even when there has been no increase in profits; I've never understood it," said one administration official, who did not want to be named. He said that while corporate profits and executive salaries have generally been ahead of inflation, dividend payments have not.

Bosworth recently told the House Budget Committee that big business and big unions escape the injurious effects of inflation because of their power in the marketplace.

"It's not hurting them," he said. "If the cost of living goes up, then wages go up. The companies pass it through (into prices) without any particular difficulty."

"The people who suffer from inflation are the minority groups, people in retail trade and people on the fringes (of the economy), they get hurt by unemployment and inflation," he said.

Cuban handyman floats to freedom in U.S.

MIAMI (AP) — A Cuban handyman pulled from the sea near the Florida Keys says he used ping-pong paddles as oars and fought off sharks and dodged Cuban navy patrols during a harrowing seven-day journey to freedom floating on two innertubes.

Then he wept when he saw an American flag.

The ordeal of 27-year-old Ramon Estevez Cordova ended when he was rescued Sunday by the crew of a pleasure boat about five miles off the coast of Key Largo.

Cordova was surprised Monday when he was reunited with his foster sister, Sonia Batista, in Miami.

"I thought she lived in New York, so that is where I was trying to float to," he explained. Cordova's first words to his rescuers were, in Spanish, "Is this New York?"

Cordova said he had planned his flight for a year, wanting to escape the Cuban political system. He said he left his home in Habana del Este, a Havana suburb, on July 23 after waiting nine days for calm seas. At the coast he posed as a fisherman to avoid suspicion, then launched his makeshift craft — two innertubes he had scavenged from a car and a truck then bound with twine and covered with burlap.

Cordova said Cuban navy boats and helicopters searched for him the first day but could not see him because of high waves. However, he said, sharks and hunger were his worst fears during the trip.

"The sharks came every day about noon and tried to attack me. They tried to tip the raft over. I was surprised at their strength. Once I had my leg in the water and a shark hit me with his tail and rubbed the skin from my ankle," Cordova said, showing a crusty, deep sore on his leg.

Cordova was reported to be in good condition, despite a slight fever and rope burns where he had tied himself to the raft.

Coast Guard officials at Key West said they received a radio call from a German cargo ship about a man aboard a raft Saturday night, but a four-hour search of the area turned up nothing.

Cordova later told Immigration officials he refused to be picked up by the German ship because he feared it was a Russian vessel.

The 50-foot pleasure boat Xtabay plucked Cordova from the ocean the next day.

Loni Myers, a mate on the boat, said: "When he saw the American flag on the dock at Islamorada, he put his hand over his heart. I almost started crying."

Dixie Burns, also on the Xtabay, said the scene did make her cry.

"We were trying to convince him he was in America, but I didn't have an American flag on me," she said.

"When he saw the flag (at Islamorada), it was a very emotional scene," Ms. Burns said. "We all kind of cried a little. We saw the look in a man's eyes when he first sees freedom."
