

Death toll mounts in Amelia's wake

By GREG THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer
Weather forecasters predicted still more rain for Central Texas today, where at least 21 have died in flooding that followed weeks of harsh drought.

The National Weather Service said conditions were favorable for rain to continue drenching flood-ravaged areas for another "three to four days."

Waterways already swollen by the rains threatened areas downstream of the three-county section where at least 15 persons died Tuesday and Wednesday.

Six more were reported dead 200 miles to the north in the small farming community of Albany Thursday night, a Department of Public Safety spokesman said.

The storms spawned by the dregs of tropical storm Amelia set out on a new northeasterly path.

Weary rescue workers resumed their muddy search at daybreak in the Hill Country. Volunteers and law enforcement officers, on horseback and on foot, began combing the newly-accessible banks of the Medina River at daybreak.

"We're pretty sure we'll find some more (victims)," said Bandera police deputy Jackie Doyle. "We wish we weren't so sure."

Hundreds have been left homeless in the Hill Country, and while official damage estimates may be weeks away, the figure is expected to run easily into the tens of millions of dollars.

Authorities struggled to restore communication and transportation links to Albany, where the National Guard attempted to pluck some residents from their rooftop outposts.

At least seven inches of rain fell in the ravaged town, and neighboring Throckmorton County reported a rainfall of 17 inches. A DPS spokesman said accumulated rain water, a rising creek and the drainage system all contributed to the flood.

President Carter Thursday declared Texas a major disaster area, freeing federal recovery funds for the three hardest-hit Hill Country counties — Kerr, Bandera and Kendall. Ironically, the counties were already listed as disaster areas by the Agriculture Department due to drought conditions.

U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger, D-Texas, and Gov. Dolph Briscoe drove through Bandera County Thursday to survey the damage.

"Obviously, this area has gone from a drought disaster area to a flood disaster area in a matter of two days," Krueger said. "What we've gotten in the area is a year's worth of rain in only 48 hours."

Briscoe, who requested Carter's declaration, said, "This has to be one of the worst floods in the state's history. The devastation is unbelievable."

The FDAA and the state have arranged to establish disaster assistance centers in the flood area and announcements of the locations of the centers are to be made within a few days.

Clean-up operations have already begun in the Hill Country, but elsewhere in the state, flash flood warnings were issued as rainstorms thundered toward the west.

Downstream from the area hardest hit by the flooding Wednesday and Thursday, riverfront residents are bracing for the possibility cresting rivers and streams may claim their homes.

In West Texas, where the storms moved Thursday, U.S. Navy and Marine reserves were coordinating evacuation efforts for two low-lying areas in Abilene. Although some residents returned to their homes during the night, rising creek waters caused the areas to be evacuated again before dawn.

Flash flood warnings were issued Thursday night for at least 25 West Texas counties, and some were extended until noon today. Officials reported flooding and ordered some evacuations in Callahan and Knox counties.

Army Corps of Engineers officials in the Hill Country kept a watchful eye on cresting rivers and streams, hoping two dammed-up lakes could contain the flow. The Pedernales River was expected to flood out of its banks around Stonewall, Texas, and the historic LBJ Ranch was in its path. Late Thursday afternoon, a witness who flew over the ranch said more than half of the family plot where the late President Lyndon Johnson is buried was under water.

Waters from the Pedernales were expected to fill Lake Travis, northeast of Austin, but Army Corps of Engineers officials weren't as worried about the situation as they were about Canyon Lake to the south.

Record water levels predicted for Canyon Lake, fed by the flooded Guadalupe River, meant potential flooding for Seguin, a historically flood-prone city of about 16,000 east of San Antonio.

Seguin Mayor Al Koebig said the river was not expected to rise drastically until Sunday night, with an increase of 26 to 30 feet expected Monday and Tuesday.

"Unless we have some unusual weather between now and the forecast period, we're not in any danger," he said. "But if it rains tonight and tomorrow (Thursday and Friday) above Canyon, it could become critical. I don't want to alarm anyone at this time."

A U.S. Geological Survey official in Virginia said the Guadalupe was flowing at 149 billion gallons a day, more than twice the previous record flow established in 1959. As a comparison, he said the Potomac River's normal flow is 7 billion gallons a day.

"Any excess water that gets past the (Canyon Lake) dam will be uncontrolled," said Tom Donaldson of the Corps of Engineers. "We will do our best to control the flood."

Late Thursday, authorities listed 15 persons confirmed dead.

They were:
—Bertha Louise Baum, 80, of Abilene

—Mrs. King Buchanan, 70, of Bandera.

—Antonio Morales, 83, of Comfort.

—Johnny C. Pickett, 60, of Center Point.

—Mrs. Johnny C. Pickett, 60, of Center Point.

—Mrs. Claudia Livingston, 70, of Center Point.

—Ritchie Carlson, 7, of Center Point.

—Timothy Klenstein, 28, of Comfort.

—David Sanchez, 11, Bandera.

—Bonnie Bridges, 11, of Center Point.

—Alan Jones, age unknown, of Bremond.

—Arnold Ervin Watson, 44, of Bremond.

—Richard Bridges, 12, of Center Point.

—Mrs. Helen L. Woods, 53, Comfort.

—An 18-month old infant, last name McCabe.

After open market bombing

Israel promises vengeance

By LARRY THORSON
Associated Press Writer
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — "The murderers will be hit wherever they are," Israel warned after an air attack into southern Lebanon five hours after a Palestinian bombing of a Tel Aviv market.

The Israeli military command said its planes hit a guerrilla base at Dahar a-Tutah, 25 miles north of the border, in retaliation for the bomb loaded with nails and ball bearings that killed one person and wounded 48 in an outdoor Tel Aviv market Thursday.

The communiqué said the base was a "starting point for murder gangs against targets in Israel." It said all the Israeli planes returned safely.

Guerrilla sources in Beirut said six planes attacked a training base in the Zifta Valley of Yasser Arafat's Al Fatah, the biggest guerrilla army in the Palestine Liberation Organization. The sources said damage was heavy.

A PLO spokesman said five civilians were wounded "but our air defenses forced the raiding Israeli planes to leave the area without achieving their goals."

It was the first Israeli air strike into Lebanon since the Israeli invasion in March to drive the Palestinians back from Israel's northern border. The last Israeli troops withdrew from Lebanon on June 13, and two weeks afterward a bomb in a Jerusalem market killed two persons and wounded 47. But there was no retaliatory Israeli attack then, possibly because U.S. Vice President Walter F. Mondale was arriving in Israel the next day.

But there was no retaliatory Israeli attack then, possibly because U.S. Vice President Walter F. Mondale was arriving in Israel the next day.

Arafat's PLO and the rival Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine each claimed it was responsible for the bomb Thursday in Tel Aviv's Carmel Market. The Popular Front, headed by George Habash, rejects any negotiated settlement with Israel while Arafat says he would agree to one if it provided for a Palestinian state controlled by the PLO.

The board determined that the rehired employees were not active participants in the short-lived strike, but walked off their jobs because of threats.

Fifty-seven of the more than 140 fired garbage men will be rehired, Huebner said. The board had reinstated six former trash collectors last week.

Only three of 21 striking dog catchers will be reinstated, while two of 11 dismissed airport maintenance workers will get their jobs back, he added.

More than half of San Antonio's 313 garbage men walked off their jobs July 22 in a wage dispute. Within hours, Huebner fired 106 of them. Approximately another 35 were fired for refusing to work July 24 and the other employees were fired for striking the next day.

City officials were able to continue partial garbage collection with the non-striking employees and some 85 replacement workers hired July 24.

Meanwhile, leaders of the striking San Antonio Refuse Collectors Association and their supporters rallied Thursday at City Hall to demand reinstatement of all workers.

But no new concessions were made during a stormy city council session that Mayor Lila Cockrell adjourned after about 250 protesters in the audience interrupted her attempts to review the situation.

Proposal might hamper extension of city utilities

By JOHN PRICE
Pampa News Staff

A resolution prohibiting the extension of city utilities outside the corporate limits of Pampa will be proposed to the city commission at its regular meeting Aug. 8.

The resolution is another step being taken by city officials to regulate growth. The city is also seeking to annex land surrounding the northern half of Pampa.

City Manager Mack Wofford described the proposed measure as "an establishment of a policy telling developers City utilities can't be extended unless or until you're annexed." The resolution wouldn't be retroactive.

A tentative draft of the resolution, prepared by City Attorney Don Lane, states: "Resolved, that no utilities of the City of Pampa, Texas, shall be provided to or contracted for any property situated outside of the corporate limits of the City of Pampa, effective as of the date of the adoption of this resolution; provided, however, that there is excluded from the effect of this policy those properties situated outside of said corporate limits of the City of Pampa currently being furnished such utilities so long as there is continuous utilities provided to or contracted for said property."

"I'm convinced the city isn't under any legal obligation to make utilities available to people outside the city," said Lane.

"I think it would be another effective tool to regulate growth," he said. "It seems it would be cheaper to run a line to city water than to drill a well and put in your own water system."

The resolution is similar to an ordinance adopted by Plainview in 1965. Plainview City Manager Marshall Pharr said there are two basic reasons for prohibiting utilities outside of the city.

"If you served people outside the corporate limits there would be no limit to the extent of the service," Pharr said. "It's a city service and it has to stop somewhere."

"Under the present sales tax requirements, serving the general public, those not part of the corporation, would make the city liable to sales tax and regulation by the public Utilities Commission."

Pharr said Plainview has had not trouble with people contesting the ordinance. "I think it's an absolute necessity," he said.

In final action the board will meet in an executive session. Hazlett said, "We expect one or two personnel complaints to be brought up in the meeting."

Hazlett added, "One is a medical legal grievance, and the other is a complaint about the individuals schedule." Hazlett said that the complainant will have 10-15 minutes to air his grievance.

He added the board will look at necessary capital expenditures. Hazlett said, "We are restricting the capital expenditures to only those that are absolutely necessary."

The board will also consider policy and procedures recommendations. This involves reviewing obstetrical examinations, standing orders in the emergency room, dispensing of outpatient medicine and the handling of late charges. Hazlett said, "All of these have been reviewed with the medical staff, and have been approved."

Garbagemen reinstated by board

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A special review board has reinstated less than half of the more than 170 garbage men, dog catchers and airport maintenance workers fired last month for illegally striking. City Manager Tom Huebner said Thursday.

The board determined that the rehired employees were not active participants in the short-lived strike, but walked off their jobs because of threats.

Love Canal residents don't want state aid

By JANE SEE WHITE
Associated Press Writer
NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — State officials vow to spare no expense to evacuate families from their chemically poisoned homes, but hundreds of frightened residents of the tidy Love Canal district say the rescue is too little, too late.

Gov. Hugh Carey has asked President Carter to declare the neighborhood of small white clapboard houses a federal disaster area. Carey said toxic chemicals dumped there 30 years ago had created a "crisis of horrendous proportions."

Carey's appeal came following a state Health Department report noting a high incidence of miscarriages and birth defects in the area abutting a filled canal once used as a dump for chemical wastes. The state stopped short of ordering an evacuation, but warned pregnant women and families with infants under age 2 to move out.

Carey told President Carter that as many as 500 homes may be imperiled by the chemicals that ooze up from the old canal.

State Director of Operations Thomas Frey promised more than 600 irate Love Canal homeowners Thursday that the 35 families with pregnant women or infants would be moved into alternative housing "as soon as physically possible."

Frey said that shelter under consideration included subsidized public housing and houses on the private market, either for sale or for rent. He did not elaborate.

Frey said New York officials would meet at the White House next Wednesday to plot strategy with federal disaster, housing and environmental officials.

But the tormented residents of Love Canal were not pacified.

"I don't care how they do it, I want out," said Bonnie Snyder. "My 3-year-old adopted daughter is healthy, thank God, but I want her out of here. I will never feel safe here again."

Burly, bearded Terrence McCarty lives one block from the field that spouts puddles of chemical sewage. He stormed from the meeting.

Frey said Carey would seek emergency state legislation next week to allow property tax relief for some residents.

Hearing on increase concludes today

A hearing in Austin conducted by the Public Utilities Commission concerning Southwestern Public Service Company's request for a 10-percent rate increase is expected to finish today.

Pampa and 25 other area cities facing the increase have been represented at the week-long hearing by three consultants, who studied the rates and concluded the company is not entitled to the full amount. They have suggested a raise of no more than 1.7 percent.

One of the three consultants, Wayne Brown, is a certified public accountant from Pampa. Other cities, including Borger and Amarillo, have sent city officials to the hearings to protest the increase, but Pampa has not done so.

A ruling on the increase should be handed down "probably within a couple of months — it could be sooner," said Sandy Becker of the PUC. SPS, which defends the increase by saying it is needed to attract investors, can appeal to the courts if the PUC does not award the full requested 10 percent.

At its next meeting Aug. 8, the Pampa City Commission will consider scheduling a local utilities hearing.

OPINION PAGE

Courts uphold teachers' right not to pay taxes

In a landmark case with far-reaching implications, the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania last month denied any appeal from a decision that tenured teachers may not be fired for refusing to join or pay money to a union. The action upholds the Commonwealth Court's earlier ruling, issued January 4, 1977, that Daniell Zack and Warren Langley two Uniontown, Pa., area teachers, could not be fired on union demand because they had withdrawn their support from the Uniontown Area Education Association teachers union.

Following the state Supreme Court's lead, Caryl M. Kline, Pennsylvania Secretary of Education, announced on July 14 that, to allow "an otherwise competent teacher to be dismissed for non-payment of Association (union) dues is unreasonable since it does not have even an indirect relationship to the educational purpose of schools."

Both Zack and Langley obtained support in their court battle from the National Right to Work Legal Defense Foundation which in a recent bulletin, gave the background of the case.

It seems that Warren Zack, a promising young teacher had become disenchanted with the union leadership after he received notice of a dues increase in 1973. Having asked what services for teachers would be improved by the dues increase, and receiving no satisfactory answer, Zack decided to resign from the union by withholding payment of his dues; as a result of which, he received numerous calls from union officials who threatened him with being fired.

After listening in on one particularly venomous call, Warren Langley a veteran teacher who had befriended Zack, decided to join the young teacher in leaving the union.

That set the stage for a long, drawn out court battle. Bowing to union pressure, the Uniontown Area School District Board decided to fire both Zack and Langley, citing as its reasons for dismissal, "persistent and willful violation of the school laws" of Pennsylvania. The Board, however, did allow Zack and Langley to continue teaching pending appeals of their firing to the Secretary of Education and the courts.

After almost a year of complicated activity, the Court of Common Pleas, on May 20, 1976, found in favor of Zack and Langley, ruling that, "failure to pay dues cannot be considered to constitute persistent and willful violation of the school laws."

Determined to bend the two teachers to its will, the union, backed by the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, appealed the lower court decision to the Pennsylvania Commonwealth Court, and was again rebuffed with a denial of appeal. Whereupon the union, still determined, appealed once more to the Pennsylvania Supreme Court where, once again the teachers' right to refuse to pay union dues was upheld.

Presumably, that was the end of the line for the union since, according to the National Right to Work Legal Defense Foundation bulletin, Zack and Langley have been fully reinstated in their teaching positions, which implies that the union decided against carrying the case to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Commenting on the case and its outcome, Foundation Chairman Thomas J. Harris, said, "Mr. Zack and Mr. Langley are both outstanding teachers. They're tenured! But they were about to be kicked out of their classrooms because they chose to exercise their rights as free men. We're proud of the Foundation's role in preserving their right of free choice."

We're proud of the Foundation's support of the two teachers, too, and glad that the two threatened teachers won out over coercive unionism. But, as we suggested at the beginning, the case has even farther-reaching implications. Consider, if you will, its full import.

Three courts in a row confirmed and upheld the right of these two teachers not to belong to a union and not to pay dues against their wills. Yet, while all this was going on, and within the school system in which it was happening, children are forced to become members of the system and parents and other taxpayers are forced to support the system whether they want to or not.

In the case discussed, the rights to free choice of the few, tenured Zack and Langley, were confirmed and upheld. What about the equal and parallel rights of the many, the untenured children and taxpayers?

Judges of merit

THE SENATE AND HOUSE have agreed to create 152 new federal judgeships, increasing the federal judiciary by one-third and giving President Carter and the Senate the largest judicial patronage package in history.

And the Senate representation in a conference committee struggling over differences in the House and Senate versions of the legislation has scuttled merit selection language that would erode Senate clout in the selection process.

The House proposed that presidential nominees for the bench be chosen according to non-binding "procedures and guidelines" to insure that the best qualified candidates were considered. But Senate conferees resisted even this mild admonition in seeking to preserve their traditional control over nominations. The conference bill calls only for "standards and guidelines."

EITHER FORM COULD be waived by the president, whose nominating power is spelled out in the Constitution. A strong message from Congress, however, would make it difficult to bypass merit selection criteria — and President Carter promised in his campaign to minimize "political aspect or influence" in his judicial appointments.

Standards of competence and experience are useful in reviewing nominees proposed by senators, usually resulting in judges who are qualified.

BUT THE PRESENT SYSTEM does not seek out the "best qualified."

The merit selection statement should be restored in the continuing conference or in consideration by the full House, where it originated.

The impact of the massive increase in the federal judiciary gives added importance to the selection process.

No real progress

The "progress" reported at the summit meeting at Bonn dealt more with definitions of global economic woes than with solutions.

But the reluctance of the delegations from seven nations to condemn American policies acknowledged that leadership from the United States is considered essential to cope with the issues of inflation, unemployment and international monetary problems.

President Carter's plea to Germany and Japan to increase their imports from the United State did not obscure the fact the U.S. dependence upon foreign oil is a major cause of the decline in the dollar's value and resulting instability of other currencies.

And the congressional action pledged by the president on a portion of his long-stalled energy legislation is, admittedly, a minor part of an overall energy program. The measure deals with a plan to force industrial users of oil and natural gas to convert to coal.

The determination of America's trading partners, to protect their own lagging economic growth by discouraging U.S. imports is a concern, certainly. So, too, is the congressional vacillating on energy.

The president's reiteration of good intentions, however, at some point will have to be matched with results.

Prop 13 brought 'em out

By MARTHA ANGLE and ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Proposition 13 may not do much for government services in California, but it was a real tonic for the voter apathy that has plagued the electorate there and elsewhere in the nation in recent years.

Although less than half the 1978 primary elections have been held so far and turnout data from them is still incomplete, it looks as though tax-slashing Prop 13 had real pulling power.

While voter turnouts in most other states continued their steady decline from previous elections, the pattern was broken in California.

Nearly 60 percent of registered voters, and 34.7 percent of the state's voting age population, trooped to the polls June 6 to pull the lever for or against a massive property tax reduction, according to a preliminary analysis by the Committee for the Study of the American Electorate, which tracks turnout trends nationwide.

In both categories, that represents a significant increase over turnout for the 1974 primary in California, the last held in a non-presidential year, although it is roughly comparable to the 1970 turnout.

What makes California look like a paragon of voter participation is the record in other big states this year.

In Ohio, for instance, only 15.5 percent of the voting age population went to the polls for this year's primaries, compared with 22.8 percent four years ago. In Illinois, the figure was 14.5 percent this year and 19.7 percent in 1974. In New Jersey, it was a dismal 11.5 this year versus 18 percent four years ago.

In Iowa and Texas, turnout was actually up slightly over 1974, but they were exceptions to the general trend — and not as dramatic as California.

It's too soon to predict whether voter-initiated tax propositions that will be appearing on general election ballots in a number of states will have the same salutary effect on turnout as Prop 13 in California, but the possibility clearly exists.

"Voters are smart," says political analyst Richard Scammon. "When there's something really interesting on the ballot, they come out and vote. When it's just a bunch of hambones, they don't. It's a wonderful dilemma for the liberals, who believe in popular government until it produces a result they don't like."

The rapidly growing political activism of teachers and other tax-paid educators may help explain some of the resistance in state legislatures to spending cutbacks and tax reduction schemes like Prop 13.

Educators now constitute the second largest occupational group in state legislatures (lawyers remain firmly in first place), according to figures from the Insurance Information Institute quoted in the latest bulletin of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities.

Educators occupy 9 percent of all state legislative seats in the country this year, compared with 3 percent in 1966.

Despite efforts by the Carter administration to downplay bad news on the economic front, voices of doom and gloom keep pumping out pessimistic forecasts.

On Capitol Hill, the influential Joint Economics Committee is preparing its annual midyear report and the picture it will paint is by no means rosy. Committee economists foresee continued high inflation, even if food prices come down slightly, and an upwards drift in the unemployment rate — which has been the only bright spot in the economic picture this year.

None of which is likely to improve Carter's standing in the opinion polls, nor enhance the re-election prospects of House members and senators who are up this year.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Friday, Aug. 4, the 216th day of 1978. There are 149 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1914, Britain declared war on Germany at the beginning of the First World War. And the United States proclaimed its neutrality.

On this date:
In 1790, a U.S. naval force which later became the Coast Guard was formed.

In 1892, Lizzie Borden was arrested in Fall River, Mass., and charged with the hatchet murders of her father and step-mother.

In 1916, the United States bought the Danish Virgin Islands for $25 million.

In 1944, during World War II, Nazi police captured 14-year-old Anne Frank and seven other Jews in their hiding place in Amsterdam, the Netherlands.

In 1962, President John Kennedy announced that the highest American award for a civilian would go to Dr. Frances Kelsey, the federal official who kept the harmful drug Thalidomide off the American market.

In 1976, 81 people were executed in the Sudan after being charged with trying to overthrow the government.

Ten years ago: Israeli planes were hammering Arab guerilla bases in Jordan, and tanks and artillery were dueling along the Jordan River.

Five years ago: Argentina's Peronist party nominated former dictator Juan Peron and his wife, Isabel, as the party's presidential and vice presidential candidates in a national election scheduled for September.

One year ago: President Carter proposed that Congress give legal status to aliens who had entered the country unlawfully before 1977.

Today's birthdays: Britain's Queen Mother Elizabeth is 78 years old. Former Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson is 79.

Thought for today: We don't know one millionth of 1 percent about anything — Thomas Edison, American inventor, 1847-1931.

Special drug tips for elderly

Sylvia Porter

No matter what the final form of the tax legislation now being written so laboriously under such destructively disruptive circumstances in Washington, one point is certain: there'll be no tax relief worthy of the name for the millions of you who spend hefty sums on medicines essential to your health — particularly you, the citizen 65 years or older. In fact, if the White House had its way, any tax change that would be heralded as a "liberalization" would be no more than cosmetic — if that.

For while the medical deduction rules would be softened on the surface, the definition of what qualifies as a deductible medical expense would be tightened. This narrowing would hurt rather than help most of the millions of you directly involved.

Thus, if your drug bills take a substantial slice of your spending money — and the elderly must spend a far, far greater proportion of their disposable incomes for drugs than any other segment of our population — it's more vital than ever before to know the rules for buying medicine and for keeping your bills to a sensible minimum. Here are special tips for you — any American buying medicines and every elderly citizen in particular:

(1) Ask your pharmacist or physician for additional instructions if you do not fully understand the directions for taking whatever medicine has been prescribed.

(2) Always keep in mind that caffeine, nicotine, alcohol, and some foods can affect the way medicines work. Be sure to inquire whether you should avoid using any foods, beverages or other medicines while taking your prescription.

(3) If you have difficulty opening safety-type containers, ask the pharmacist for an easy-to-open container. The law permits the pharmacist to dispense your medicine in an easily opened bottle only if you or your physician specifically ask for this. Of course, keep medicines out of the reach of children at all times.

(4) Just a few days ago, a federal judge ordered a nationally known drug company to recall 1.5 million bottles of popular vitamin tablets because many adults were unable to put the child-proof caps on properly. This marked the first such recall under the Poison Prevention Packaging Act.

(5) Call your physician at once should any new symptoms or side effects occur while you are taking the drugs.

(6) Never mix different tablets and capsules together in one container. Keep each medicine in its own container and make sure that the container bears the correct label. This is especially important while you are traveling.

(7) Never swap medicines with someone who believes he or she has the same condition that you have. It can be extremely dangerous to take prescription medicines prescribed for someone else.

(8) Each time you leave your physician's office or your pharmacy, ask yourself and answer the following questions:

What are the names of each of my medicines?

What is each medicine supposed to do to help me in my condition or to ease my discomfort?

Exactly how and when should I take the medicine?

Is there anything special I should be doing or avoid doing while I'm taking these medicines?

Are there any side effects for which I should be on the alert and which I should report to my physician immediately?

(9) Don't ever waste what probably is an expensive medicine — such as an antibiotic — by discontinuing its use because you feel better. If you don't take the medicine for the recommended number of days or even weeks, you'll probably get sick all over again and have to spend money for a new series of pills.

(10) Keep an accurate count of your daily dosage (so you will not have to ask yourself whether or not you took your 2 o'clock pills or whatever) by measuring out each day's dosage when you get up in the morning. Put the dosage in a separate container on which you have copied the original label.

(11) Don't ever experiment on your own! Take only the recommended dosage of both prescription and non-prescription medicines.

Should you think the above is oversimplification, a U.S. Food and Drug Administration study showed that less than half or you even read non-prescription labels. And should you doubt the urgency of this problem to the over-65, while the elderly represent 10 percent of the population, they receive 25 percent of all prescriptions written by physicians.

Briefly noted...

occupations. Job satisfaction was highest in the white-collar population and in the top income category, $25,000 and Surprise.

At $55,900 for the cheapest — if that is the word — model, the Rolls-Royce is not one of your big sellers in the auto line. Americans purchased a grand total of 1,129 last year.

Which is why the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration feels safe in exempting the British luxury car from U.S. mileage requirements of 18 miles per gallon. The Rolls averages 10.9 miles.

Money talks again — but in this case there's hardly anybody around to listen.

The situation is considerably different with another traditional British export.

Shipments of Scotch whiskey this year are up more than 13 percent over the same point in 1977. The biggest buyer, as usual, is the United States. Americans so far have exchanged $133 million for 14.37 million gallons, 25.6 percent more than last year.

Now that's what you call a mass market.

Mother pushes children from balcony

By JIM BOARDMAN Associated Press Writer SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A woman whose husband committed suicide two days ago plunged with her seven children from an 11-story hotel balcony in downtown Salt Lake City today in what police said may have been a bizarre religious act. The mother and six of the children died.

Police Lt. Roger Kinnersley said "at least three of the older children jumped of their own volition" from chairs stacked on the balcony. Authorities said the mother pushed some of the children.

Police Lt. Nick Paloukos said, "All indications are they were religious fanatics and decided to join the father." He said the father, who committed suicide Tuesday night, was the leader of an obscure religious sect.

A 15-year-old girl who survived was reported in critical condition.

The family members were "devoted to each other, extremely so," said police Sgt. Brent Davis, who said he knew the father personally. Davis said the father, whom he identified as Emmanuel David, 39, "believed he was the Holy Ghost, Jesus Christ and God — all three at the same time."

The police sergeant said David changed his name from Bruce Longo several years ago.

Kinnersley said David had been excommunicated from the Mormon Church about 15 years ago and had several times declared himself a leader of that church and had demanded that tithes be paid to him.

Authorities identified the dead woman as Rachel David, 38. Names and ages of the children were not immediately available.

"I just couldn't believe it," said Felix Palacios, a delivery truck driver who said he saw the woman throw two children from the balcony of the International Dunes Hotel before jumping. He said he saw the children struggling and trying to hold onto the balcony railing.

Paloukos, the police lieutenant, said some of the children were screaming and struggling with the mother.

Authorities said two of the bodies fell to the sidewalk, and the others landed on the roof of the hotel coffee shop.

Pipeline ruptures, explodes; two dead, several injured

FORT MADISON, Iowa (AP) — A gas pipeline ruptured and burst into flames along Highway 2 west of here early today and set several buildings afire, authorities said. Two persons were feared dead and several were injured.

"We haven't removed the bodies from the building because of the intense heat. The heat is just now getting down to where we can go in," said Lee County Sheriff Don Arnold.

He said several buildings were afire in the rural southeastern Iowa community.

Three persons were transferred to the burn unit at University Hospitals in Iowa City, and "two or three others were treated and released," Arnold said.

Restaurant association schedules meeting

W.H. "Buckshot" Price, executive vice president of the Texas Restaurant Association, is scheduled to address a joint meeting of Panhandle Restaurant and Hotel-Motel Associations.

The dinner meeting is scheduled to be held at the Hilton Inn in Amarillo on August 10 at 6:30 p.m.

Reservations may be made by calling J. Grubb, 355-0211; Herb Washington, 372-8101, ext. 359 or the Hilton Inn, 373-3701.

Hospital officials in Fort Madison identified three of the survivors as Robert Rider, 54, his wife Mary, 49, and their daughter Cindy, 23.

All three were in critical condition with extensive burns, a University Hospitals spokesman said.

Jean Hoffmeister, a spokesman for the disaster control office at the Fort Madison community hospital, confirmed that three persons injured in the fire were treated and released.

The six apparently lived in a house near the fire, she said.

Administration opposed to credit for college, private education tuition

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is holding firm in his opposition to income tax breaks to offset the cost of college and private school education even though the plan's backers have scaled it down to cut costs.

"The president continues his strong opposition" to tuition tax credits, White House spokesman Rex Granum said Thursday after the Senate Finance Committee approved the slimmed-down proposal.

The committee measure would provide a tax credit of up to $500 a year to offset the cost of college tuition, and up to $250 a year to defray tuition at private schools, including parochial institutions.

Congressional aides said the program, when fully in place, would benefit an estimated 12.3 million students, with about 70 percent of the benefits going to defray the cost of college education and about 30 percent going to offset the cost at private schools.

Backers of the proposal also say it would cost the government an estimated $2.8 billion in the fiscal year beginning Sept. 1, 1982, down from an estimate of nearly $5.3 billion under a measure the Finance Committee approved earlier this year.

The credits permit taxpayers to deduct money directly from taxes owed the government. Current law does not give taxpayers a break on the costs of education, but the idea has been gaining popularity in Congress in recent years.

The Senate has approved several such proposals in the past, and the House of Representatives approved a three-year plan earlier this year. The House bill calls for credits of up to $100 for elementary and secondary school tuition and a maximum of $250 for college tuition.

Sen. William V. Roth Jr., R-Del., a principal backer of the Senate bill, said the revisions were designed to help blunt administration objections.

"This modification, which will reduce the total cost of the bill by more than 45 percent, is being made to meet the president's objections halfway, in the hope he will reconsider his veto threat," Roth said.

White House spokesman Granum declined to say whether Carter would veto the committee bill, even though he did restate Carter's longstanding opposition to credits.

Carter plans no further attack on unemployment during year

By R. GREGORY NOKES Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Because it is now concentrating its attention on inflation, the Carter administration doesn't expect to make further substantial progress in reducing unemployment this year.

In fact, administration officials say they wouldn't be surprised if May's 5.7 percent jobless rate is the low for the year. The Labor Department was scheduled to release the July jobs report today, and a small increase in unemployment was considered likely.

The administration still hopes for public recognition for having done better at creating jobs than was thought possible when the year began — even if joblessness does increase slightly in the coming months.

In January, when unemployment was 6.3 percent, the administration was forecasting a decline to only 6.2 percent by the final quarter of this year. After unemployment dropped to 6.1 percent in May, the forecast was revised to 5.9 percent.

But even that forecast appeared too pessimistic when unemployment declined to 5.7 percent in June, a three-year low. The government said 700,000 jobs were created during the month and that the proportion of the nation's working-age population with jobs rose to a record 58.9 percent.

However, with other indicators showing that the economy is growing at a slower pace than before, both government and private economists think it likely unemployment will rise slightly before heading downward again by the end of the year.

The administration is not yet willing to say that the jobless rate will drop below 5.7 percent by December.

Since its forecast for next year is a decline to just 5.6 percent by the fourth quarter, the forecast implies the administration is satisfied that the current levels of unemployment are the best that can be attained under present circumstances.

Those circumstances, of course, are dominated by inflation, which is exceeding expectations at the same time unemployment is lower than previously forecast. Prices increased at an 11.4 percent an-

The Nation's Weather
By The Associated Press

Texas continued to battle flooded streams and rainy weather today as storms spread across Oklahoma and Arkansas.

The Texas weather flooding has left at least 21 persons dead and caused widespread damage in central and western Texas.

Heavy thundershowers stretched from south-west Texas across the Dallas and Abilene areas into Oklahoma and Arkansas.

There were heavy thundershowers in southern and north-western Arizona causing local flooding and small dust storms.

The Atlantic Coast had scattered showers.

Skies were clear and temperatures cool across the northern Plains and the Great Lakes region into Missouri and Kentucky. A few areas in Montana and the Dakotas had readings in the 40s.

Some thundershowers lingered in northern California but the remainder of the west coast was partly cloudy.

Early morning temperatures around the nation ranged from 44 in Laramie, Wyo., to 92 in Blythe, Calif.

Here are some other early morning temperatures and conditions from around the nation:

Eastern U.S.: Atlanta 70, foggy; Boston 75, cloudy; Chicago 61, clear; Cincinnati 68, clear; Cleveland 70, partly cloudy; Detroit 54, clear; Indianapolis 67, clear; Louisville 71, clear; Miami 80, clear; Nashville 73, cloudy; New Orleans 82, clear; New York 73, cloudy; Philadelphia 77, cloudy; Pittsburgh 65, foggy; Washington 75, showery.

Western U.S.: Anchorage 58, clear; Denver 53, cloudy; Des Moines 58, clear; Fort Worth 80, cloudy; Kansas City 59, clear; Los Angeles 65, partly cloudy; Mpls-St. Paul 48, clear; Phoenix 92, blowing dust; St. Louis 66, cloudy; Salt Lake City 70, clear; San Diego 70, partly cloudy; San Francisco 55, partly cloudy; Seattle 64, fair.

Classes offered for Pampans

Educational benefits of veterans will be explained during a 7:30 p.m. Thursday meeting at the Pampa Chamber of Commerce by representatives of Clarendon College.

Loyd Waters, registrar, said a total of 30 courses will be offered in Pampa by the college this fall.

The classes will be held between 7 and 10 p.m. on Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays beginning Aug. 29. The fall classes will end Dec. 15.

Costs of the local classes, to meet at Pampa High School will range from $52 for three hours to $117 for 10 hours. Waters said. Books and laboratory fees will be in addition to the course fees.

Waters stressed that with the additional courses being offered in Pampa by Clarendon College, it will be possible for residents of Pampa and the surrounding area to obtain associate degrees (two years of college work) "without leaving home" and also while continuing their employment.

The associate degrees offered by College include science arts and secretarial sciences.

Registration for the local evening classes will be from 6 to 8 p.m. Aug. 21 and 28. Additional information may be obtained from Waters at Clarendon College or at Pampa High School during registration hours.

All tuition and fees must be paid at the time of registration, Waters said.

Braniff, Southwest agree

DALLAS (AP) — Southwest Airlines and Braniff International announced Thursday they had settled long-standing differences and signed agreements to work together.

The two airlines have squabbled since the early 1970s when Southwest began low-fare flights between Dallas, Houston and San Antonio — cities also served by Braniff.

The agreements Thursday call for Braniff to lease a 727-200 aircraft to Southwest for two years and also provide training and maintenance services in connection with the plane.

"We are pleased to reach these agreements and look forward to the full normalization of relations between the two companies," said Herbert D. Kelleher, Southwest chairman, and William B. Caldwell, Braniff vice president.

Accidents decrease for Pampa in July

Traffic accidents in Pampa in July 1978 decreased 17 percent from the same period a year ago, according to the Police Department.

Failure to yield right of way, was involved in 24 percent of the accidents in July, making it the most frequent contributing factor. Improper lane usage and changing lanes contributed to 19 percent of the accidents. Unsafe backing, following too closely and the influence of alcohol or drugs each contributed to 11 percent of July accidents.

Fifty percent of the accidents involving alcohol or drugs took place on Tuesday, as well as 25 percent of all accidents. Thirteen percent of the accidents in July occurred on Hobart between the 700 block north and 23rd Street; 83 percent were in residential areas, and 67 percent occurred between 6 and 11 p.m.

As part of the Selective Traffic Enforcement Program, officers will concentrate on N. Hobart and other areas frequently involved in accidents.

Dollar dips slightly

LONDON (AP) — The dollar dropped slightly on the European and Japanese foreign exchange markets today, while gold opened lower but gained as the dollar slipped.

Dealers reported generally quiet end-of-week trading. Many operators had left on their annual August holidays.

In Zurich, where the dollar dropped to an all-time low of 1.6910 Swiss francs Thursday, it was quoted in midmorning at 1.7035 francs, still below Thursday's record-low closing rate of 1.7060.

Pampan dies from gunshot

A 40-year Pampa resident allegedly killed himself in his home Tuesday and was found by his stepdaughter Wednesday night.

Thaddeus Joseph Boadway, 68, of 701 E. Kingsmill, died immediately of a self-inflicted gunshot wound after he stuck a gun in his mouth and fired, according to Venora Cole, justice of the peace. Boadway's stepdaughter, Mrs. Milly Sanders of Pampa, found the body at approximately 9:30 p.m. Wednesday. Cole estimated the time of death at 6 p.m. Tuesday.

Cole said Boadway's death was "very definitely intentional" although police did not find a suicide note. Boadway reportedly had been ill recently, and suffered from severe arthritis. His wife, Lou, is presently hospitalized in Groom.

Boadway was born in Ardmore, Okla. and moved to Pampa in 1938. He worked for Cabot Corporation as a maintenance superintendent for 33 years, and retired eight years ago.

Problems to big for director

Bill Leonard, who resigned as civil defense director recently, said the reason for his resignation was he no longer has the time to devote to the position.

"It's getting to be more of a responsibility," he said. "There just wasn't the time to handle it. I've had it 17 years, and well I thought I'd let somebody else try it for a while. It grows. It gets to be a bigger problem."

When asked what was causing the problems to grow, he said, "Well the community is getting bigger. All this growth we've got — the expansion."

The civil defense director is responsible for handling man-made disasters, according to Leonard.

County Judge Don Hinton will appoint a new civil defense director when he returns from vacation.

City property use not part of plan

HOUSTON (AP) — The plan to eventually use city property for a Mexican-American center was not part of a deal cut with the mayor in return for an endorsement of the Metropolitan Transit Authority, a Houston Mexican-American leader says.

Fruncio Reyes, counsel for the Political Association of Spanish-Speaking Organizations, said Thursday that help with a Mexican market and cultural center was not mentioned in discussions with Mayor Jim McConn last month.

At that time, PASO was considering whether to endorse the transit proposition. But PASO did ask McConn for appointment of a Mexican-American to a municipal court judgeship and other city endorsements, he said.

McConn said Wednesday the city hopes to eventually allow the use of the HouTran bus garage site for an inner-city Mexican-American community center.

Former soldier wins compensation fight

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Donald Coe, a former Kentucky soldier who says his leukemia was caused by exposure to atomic blast tests, has won his fight for military compensation, which may amount to $1,000 a month.

Coe had contended for over a year that he deserved service-connected compensation after contracting leukemia that he says was caused by witnessing

Jetliner crashes several injured

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — A Chilean jetliner with 51 persons reported aboard crashed Thursday night as it was landing at the Buenos Aires Airport, causing a number of casualties. But airport sources said no one was killed.

The number of injured aboard the Lan-Chile Boeing 707 could not be learned immediately. "Most of the injured have suffered burns," said a source at the hospital to which they were taken.

The plane crashed just short of the runway as it was coming in to land and dropped suddenly about 500 yards from the runway.

It crashed near the Ezeiza Atomic Center 31 miles southwest of Buenos Aires, but there was no danger of a nuclear disaster. The plant is a research center and does not have a reactor.

About 10 ambulances were rushing casualties to the Ezeiza hospital.

Connally endorses Clements

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Former Texas Gov. John Connally endorsed Republican Bill Clements for governor Thursday, saying Clements would be a "governor who will speak out for the interests of Texas."

Clements faces Democrat John Hill in November.

"Some people say that my friend Bill Clements comes on strong," Connally said in a statement put out by Clements' campaign office. "And I say that's good because what we need today is a strong governor, strong enough to fight for what we Texans believe in and strong enough to assure that the federal government doesn't dictate every part of our lives."

Connally said he appointed Hill secretary of state during his terms as governor.

"But, John Hill as governor of Texas would have no choice but to support President Carter, his national program and his national party leaders."

men were told to "get up and watch the mushroom. It just felt like something real hot touching you."

The VA, in refusing Coe benefits, said there were no records that he was treated for radiation exposure during his nearly eight years in the Army and that he wasn't eligible for service-connected disability benefits.

After several visits to Vanderbilt University Hospital in Nashville, Tenn., for treatment, Coe said his health has improved.

"I feel very well, but my neck bothers me, and my eyes bother me, and I tire awfully easy."

Coe said a VA representative was to meet with him today to discuss the amount of compensation, "which could run from $700 to $1,000 a month."

A VA spokesman in Washington said the appeals board ruled only on the entitlement question, leaving to a regional board the amount to be awarded and whether Coe should receive retroactive benefits.

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: DESPERATE IN DENVER complained because her relatively young husband had lost all interest in sex. You replied, "Your husband needs to see a physician. If it's not physical, it's mental, and there are cures for both."

Sorry, but it won't help. The problem described by this unfulfilled 40-year-old housewife probably goes back to the time when the institution of marriage began.

Even though I am a heart surgeon, I have known countless male patients (and friends) who strike out at home, but score like crazy at the office. This particular paradox is probably an allergic reaction to the marriage certificate—regardless of whether it's printed on rice paper, papyrus, tapestry or whatever.

If that poor love-starved woman in Denver would dissolve her marriage, take up belly dancing, and then live in sin with the same guy she divorced, it would probably solve her problem.

NEW YORK SURGEON.

DEAR SURGEON: You maintain that marriage destroys romance simply because it's legal.

Nonsense! Romance's mortal enemy is the rigor mortis that sets in when a relationship becomes boring, monotonous and stale.

Nurturing romance is a 50-50 proposition, or a joint effort.

DEAR ABBY: We are adopting a baby and plan to bring it home from the hospital when it is two days old.

Although the baby will not be ours legally for six months, we would like to let friends know that we have the baby.

Is it proper to send out announcements as soon as we get the baby home, or must we wait until the adoption is legal?
R.R.

DEAR R.: The consensus of those who have adopted babies is that it's proper to make the announcement as soon as the new arrival is in your home.

DEAR ABBY: My life was utterly meaningless until I read your column today and learned that the official date for donning my white shoes is MEMORIAL DAY—and not one day before!

Thanks to you, Dear Abby, my life has taken a real meaning. White shoes are what life is all about. But for how long? I must know the exact cutoff date! And please tell me, what do I do with my feet and my life until that magic moment when I can wear my beloved white shoes again?

In the meantime, you'd better notify Pat Boone. I don't think he knows about this yet.

Sign me, "Standing Pat in my new white shoes."
PAT (MY REAL NAME)

CONFIDENTIAL TO E.A.P.: Don't bluff. The most refreshing and underused phrase in the English language is: "I don't know."

Who said the teen years are the happiest? For Abby's new booklet "What Teenagers Want to Know," write Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope, please.

Ask Dr. Lamb

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Could you please tell me what gives a woman of 64 an enlarged liver? Also what can be done for it? Is this a very bad thing to have? I went to the doctor for a physical and he told me I had an enlarged liver. I had a complete blood count taken and it was fine.

DEAR READER - There are many causes for an enlarged liver. There can be an accumulation of fat within the liver, it can be swollen in heart failure, it can have scar formation within it in response to a number of disorders including old viral hepatitis.

In an asymptomatic person who is otherwise in good health a minimal amount of enlargement of the liver is not particularly important. The doctor may feel the edge of it underneath the rib when he is examining the patient and judge that there is a minimal amount of enlargement present.

When that's the case there really isn't anything you need to do about it and I'm sure your doctor doesn't feel it's very important or he would have told you more about it and what you should do for it.

The important thing is for you to realize that a minimal amount of enlargement of the liver is frequently found during a medical examination and when that's all that's present it does not mean that you have any significant health problem. I am sending you The Health Letter number 748, Living With Your Liver. It discusses how the liver functions and some of the common disorders. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I feel sure that you have never been asked this question before and I have hesitated to ask other doctors. For about a year I have been unable to cry. I have had lots of sorrow and could relieve my emotions in that way. Can anything be done for this condition?

DEAR READER - No, I must say that I haven't been asked that question before. I presume by not being able to cry that you mean you do not have that type of emotional response rather than the physical absence of tear formation. Some people do have changes in their tear glands that cause their eyes to be dry and this is a specific medical problem. If it is true that you are talking about emotional crying for relief that is another matter and belongs in the psycho-logical realm.

People do get relief by being able to fully express their emotions. Doctors have known for years that holding in your emotions can have adverse effects. There, of course, has to be a happy medium on this because people also need to learn to control their emotions to live within the society.

If you have had lots of sorrow it might benefit you to have some professional counseling anyway. That way you can evaluate the events that have occurred in your life and get the advantage of a professional in helping you orient your life in a way that is more satisfactory to you. If you happen to have some emotional blocks manifested by your inability to cry, that too may resolve itself.

Polly's pointers

Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY - My Pointer is for anyone on a diet especially diabetics. Cook a variety of foods that are on your diet. Measure or weigh the correct amount for a meal. Put each meal on a TV dinner tray, label and freeze. This way several dinners are prepared at one time and one only needs to remove the desired meal from the freezer, heat in the oven and it is ready to eat. I have found having the correct amount already prepared keeps me from having that extra bite a lot of us are guilty of taking. If there is no dessert with such an already prepared frozen dinner add fruit to your meal.

My Pet Peeve is that I have been unable to buy sugarless candy in gift boxes. When someone gives regular candy instead of the sugarless kind because they could not find it in gift boxes it is very tempting for those of us who cannot have sugar to go off our diets when receive regular candy.

"Summertime...and the livin' is easy..."

There are 35 unwashed glasses on the countertop by the sink. I don't own 35 glasses.

The front door has not been shut all the way since June 10.

The water jug in the refrigerator has a piece of lettuce floating in it.

The washer has a better pulse than I do.

There are six cars in the driveway. None of them are ours. One of them runs.

The phone rings constantly. It was for me once. A kid wanted to be picked up at the ballpark.

I put baking soda in the refrigerator. Someone put milk on it and ate it.

I tried to take a shower by myself. A note slid under the door. It read, "Can I split a Pepsi?"

There is a bucket, a volleyball, and a stack of poker chips in the middle of the living room. It's a new game.

My husband says the house is always hot. Today, I discovered the furnace is on.

A man selling real estate in Mexico knocked on our door and asked for Mr. Bruce Bombek.

Bruce is seven years old. The kids used limes to liven up their Coke. Limes are $1.49 a pound.

They're going to put a street light at the end of our driveway. I found a suitcase full of dirty sweaters under a bed.

Someone ran through our house with black heel marks that are now permanently transferred to our yellow tile.

My daughter said my sewing machine misses the hole and breaks off on the bobbin plate.

Someone has been in the hall bathroom with the door locked for 15 days.

The dog looks fat. I found an application for college in the stove drawer.

Gym shoes that make you jump higher and make more basketball points just went up two bucks.

Short people suffer handicaps

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK (NEA) -

"Shortness," says Joan O. Weiss, "is not being beautiful. It's seen as a handicap in this country. You ask someone how tall he is, not how short."

Traditionally, the country grew up associating bigness with power and overvaluing tallness, says Ms. Weiss, a clinical social worker in the Medical Genetics Division of Moore Clinic at Johns Hopkins Medical Institutions in Baltimore.

So going about one's business in the United States - if you're one of an estimated 30,000 to 100,000 short-statured persons, many of whom Ms. Weiss deals with in her job - can be one hassle after another.

Pushing the elevator button for the 42nd floor; hanging up clothes in a hotel closet; reaching the bus strap; putting a dime in a public telephone.

Still, there are devices to cope with that - telescopic rods that fold out with scissors on one end to grip things or turn on light switches. That helps the person perhaps five feet or under. But there's no telescopic device to come to grips with the jibes of the smartaleck in school or at work or the stares on the bus.

And nothing short of a shotgun, often to get the minimum that's coming to you.

"People tend to ignore short people in social situations," Ms. Weiss says. "For example, they'll address the taller person in a restaurant and won't even ask a short person what he wants to eat. We tend to treat short people according to their size, like children, not their age."

How the overly short person is treated while a child, though, can equip him to deal with these things.

Ms. Weiss says, "One of the most important things a parent or teacher should remember is that if he tends to overprotect a short-statured child, that child will be very unsure of himself afterward. He can become withdrawn or might rebel and do all sorts of socially unacceptable things to show he can be independent."

"So the adult must let a short child handle a lot by himself even though, say, he may want to step in when someone calls the child shrimp or shorty."

"Often, you know," she continues, "other children are calling attention to his height merely out of curiosity. They may say why are you so short? The best way for the child to handle these things is in a matter of fact way, with simple, direct answers, like that's how I was born."

Encourage the child's sense of worth, make him comfortable with his size and, Ms. Weiss says, "He'll be self-assured handling these situations. He has to feel good enough about himself to realize that so many times it's the other person's problem who's staring or making remarks. He's the one who's insecure and needs a scapegoat. You have to go about your business and do what you feel is natural."

Eventually, people are going to forget how tall or short you are, anyway, and she says, "value you for your individuality."

And, too, "A short person's size can work to his advantage. You can be known and stand out in a very positive way."

But you have to stand up in a positive way first.

Astro-Graph

By Bernice Beae Osol

Aug. 5, 1978

Through your resourcefulness and cleverness you'll find ingenious ways to add to your resources this coming year. It will be important to act on your ideas instead of sitting on them.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll know a good buy when you see one today and you'll get true value. You won't ask for more than you deserve, but you won't accept less, either. Find out more of what lies ahead for you by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Challenges won't shake you one bit. You might even welcome them today. You're looking for something to get your teeth into.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Once you've given your word today, others can rely on you to follow through no matter how tough it is for you to keep your promise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If old pals have been in your thoughts lately, make it a point to get in touch or be with them today. You might learn of something important.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Once your ambitions are aroused today you'll be very clever and persistent in getting what you go after, regardless of the obstacles.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You might surprise yourself today at how well-equipped you are to handle touchy issues. Logical thinking coupled with experience is the reason.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Viewing things realistically and not expecting anything you didn't work for will make you extremely successful today.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Mature individuals make the best associates today. Their ability to adjust opinions to the thoughts of another makes them comfortable to be around.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A fine, productive day. You may work hard, but you won't mind a bit because of the deep satisfaction in completing a difficult task.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The faith you put in a friend's ideas, as well as standing by this person, will give him or her a good chance of succeeding today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your mind is on your responsibilities to your family today. Thus, you strengthen the security of the whole clan.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Others will respect you for your views today. They know you'll tell the truth even if it is painful to yourself or them.

The public is invited to attend all functions. Reservations are necessary for the fellowship breakfast and the luncheon. They can be made by calling 665-1301 during working hours.

Powers new pastor at Calvary Assembly

Rev. M. David Powers

Rev. M. David Powers is the new pastor of Calvary Assembly of God, Crawford and Love.

Powers and his family moved to Pampa from Benton, Ark., where he was the pastor of the Calvary Assembly.

He has served in Bristow, Okla. and Lancaster, Ohio. Powers is a native of Ohio.

He attended school at Emmanuel College, Franklin Springs, Geo., Northeastern State, Okla., and Connors State, Okla.

The public is invited to attend services at Calvary Assembly.

German composer says guitar ruin heritage

EAST LANSING (AP) — The spreading use of guitar music in church worship endangers the church's heritage of great music, says noted German composer Heinz Werner Zimmermann.

Zimmermann of the State Music Academy in Frankfurt told a workshop at Michigan State University that he advocates genuine "contemporary expressions in church music, but I reject a modern style defined only by triviality."

"Guitarists have a liking for syncopation, just as I do, but church music, even in syncopated style, should express something more than activism — something spiritual, something timeless," he said.

"Where guitarists prefer to make church music as simple as possible, I prefer to make church music as rich as possible."

Lamar Assembly slates Ferguson as speaker

Reverend Robert Ferguson, a missionary in the Far East will be the guest speaker on August 6, at the Lamar Assembly.

Ferguson and his wife have worked in the Bahama Islands and Singapore. When they return to the mission field they will be part of a team offering advanced bible training at Immanuel Bible College, Cebu City, Philippines.

The public is invited to attend these rallies.

"If you are pure and upright, surely then he will rouse himself for you and reward you with a rightful habitation. And though your beginning was small, your latter days will be very great." — Job 8:6,7.

Fear not that thy life shall come to an end, but rather fear that it shall never have a beginning. — John Henry Cardinal Newman.

A generation goes, and a generation comes, but the earth remains for ever. All things are full of weariness; a man cannot utter it; the eye is not satisfied with seeing, nor the ear filled with hearing. — Eccl. 1:4,8.

Your world, the world you live in day by day, is just about what you make it. It will be no better or bigger or finer than you are yourself. — Norman Vincent Peale, American clergyman.

Put no confidence in extortion, set no vain hopes on robbery; if riches increase, set not your heart on them. — Psalm 62:10.

Any man is wealthy who has good health, a happy home life, a business or profession, a passion for growth, and the ambition to be of service to his fellow men. He could not get any more out of life if he had a million dollars. — Robert Ingersoll, American philosopher.

An investment in Your Future ...ATTEND CHURCH

"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also"

A HAT WOULD BE SO MUCH COOLER!

She must go to the native market for her physical needs. The straw hat would be so much better than the old scarf tied and knotted about her head. Sweet, cool air could come through that straw and that would feel so wonderful in this heat!

Where does she go for her spiritual needs? Is there a church on the island? Does she know that she will be told about a great God there who will help her, guide her, and refresh her?

How fortunate we are in this country that there is a church in every community. Spiritual help, refreshment of soul, fellowship and love awaits all who enter her doors. We invite you to attend Church this week.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Coleman Adv. Ser.

Watson grabs PGA lead

By GARY MIHOCS
Associated Press Writer
OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus and Mother Nature, maybe the most potent forces in golf, both accommodated Tom Watson as he took the first-round lead in the PGA National Championship.

Nicklaus did his part Monday by hooking his opening tee shot into a ditch and staying in a rut the rest of the day to finish with an 8-over-par 79.

"It was not my day, and this is the kind of golf course where you can shoot a bad round," said the winner of more major tournaments than anybody in the history of golf.

"The course is very difficult, but I think the rain will make it easier this afternoon," added Nicklaus, who was playing No. 16 when thunder showers brought the first of two rain delays.

The water did soften Oakmont Country Club's previously hard, bouncy greens, making them more vulnerable to accurate irons like the ones wielded by Watson.

"Obviously, the rain affected the whole golf course," Watson said after he managed a 4-under-par 67, which put him 12 strokes ahead of Nicklaus and one ahead of runnerup Dave Stockton at 68.

"We could throw the balls right at the greens," added

Watson, who also sank birdie putts of 30 and 35 feet.

It was also a woeeful day for South African Gary Player, and he began it with four putts on the first green.

"You do that and you get scared. You're afraid you're going to miss from everywhere," admitted Player, who double-bogeyed the third hole and eventually finished with a 76, which tied him with U.S. Open champ Andy North and Ray Floyd.

Tied for third at 69, only 2 shots out, were Lee Trevino, Dave Hill, Ben Crenshaw and Johnny Miller.

Trevino, who played in a threesome with Stockton and Watson, got close with a birdie on the final hole.

Miller, mired in a puzzling, two-year slump returned to the scene of his 1973 U.S. Open triumph.

Staubach says expanded schedule to take its toll

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Dallas Cowboys quarterback Roger Staubach says the newly expanded 16-game National Football League schedule will take its toll on players, but adds that he doesn't want to miss any of the contests.

"It figures to increase the aches and pains of everyone," Staubach said, resting in his room on the campus of California Lutheran College, where the Super Bowl champion Cowboys are training for their 1978 preseason opener against the San Francisco 49ers Saturday night in Texas Stadium.

"But you want to play every week in this game," added Staubach, regarded by many as the premier quarterback in football.

Staubach, who played in a threesome with Stockton and Watson, got close with a birdie on the final hole.

Miller, mired in a puzzling, two-year slump returned to the scene of his 1973 U.S. Open triumph.

Trap club reorganizes

The Pampa Trap and Skeet Club has reorganized and is holding shoots the first and third Sundays of every month. The club's range is located near the rodeo grounds, and all shoots start at 2 p.m. Above, Kenneth Williams (foreground) and Robert Brogdon, two of the club's regular shooters, get in a practice round. The public is invited to attend the shoots, according to Manager W. E. Brogdon. Persons interested in joining the club can call Brogdon at 669-6505.

Wheeler rodeo August 11-12

The second of two Wheeler County 4-H Junior Rodeos is scheduled for Aug. 11-12 in the Wheeler Riding Club Arena. The first was held June 2-3.

A prize of $200 will be presented to the top cowboy and cowgirl. To be eligible for the prize, contestants must have entered both rodeos and must compete in at least three events in each rodeo. All age groups except pre-school will be competing for the $200, which will be awarded on the basis of total points earned.

Bill Hext of Canadian will furnish the stock. There will be four age groups: pre-school, 6-9, 10-14 and 15-19. Trophies will be awarded for first place in each event and ribbons will be given through sixth place. Books will close at noon Aug. 9.

A queen's contest will be held in conjunction with rodeo. The contest is open to all girls 19 and under. Deadline for entries is Aug. 8.

For rodeo entry blanks, queen contest entry blanks or other information, contact Don King, county extension agent, Box 448, Wheeler, or call 826-5243.

Lefors cycle races Sunday

Races will begin promptly at 2 p.m.

A 20-lap Enduro is scheduled after the regular races are over. No points will be awarded for the special event, which is open to all riders. An entry fee is required and a cash prize will go to the winner.

A new concession stand and restrooms are available for racing fans at Lefors. The super trophy and current point leaders will be posted in the concession stand.

Beef market ...

No one knows where it's headed

By BRIAN B. KING
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — It may be winter before feedgrain growers, food wholesalers and retailers, consumers and government inflation watchers know where the beef market is headed. Agriculture Department forecasters now suggest. Cattle raisers, who took it on the chin with four years of depressed prices before last summer's market upswing, are still culling herds, they said in an assessment Thursday. Until last September, that liquidation meant large supplies of beef and stable prices. Since then, demand has outpaced the supply. Before slipping last month, returns to farmers came within pennies of a new record high. Largely because of that, retail prices are running more than 30 percent above a year ago. By July 1, the number of cattle and calves was down 7 percent from a year earlier. But still the farmers and ranchers are sending heifers in record numbers to feedlots for feeding and slaughter, instead of holding them for breeding. Until that stops, the supply on the hoof will keep dwindling and prices will keep rising. Once it stops, it will take 27 months to 70 months for the herds to return to the size of recent years.

The new outlook said, "It may be after cattlemen sell this year's calves at higher prices before liquidation ends." Most of those sales occur in the fall. If that happens, it said, the Jan. 1 inventory could be 110 million to 112 million head, the smallest in nine years and 15 percent to 17 percent less than when the cutback started in 1975. The end of culling will itself sharply raise prices — cows that have been going to slaughter will become breeders, reducing the beef supply. Another department report Thursday gave the first strong indications that retailers have begun to pass along in full measure the higher costs of beef. They had been lagging behind this spring. While retail prices are easing off this summer because of "specials," retailers and wholesalers accounted for 38 percent of the record $1.1813 a pound June national average price for choice beef. That compares to 32.3 percent in May and 36.5 percent in March. Pork prices in June, that report said, were up 10.4 percent at the farm and 14.7 percent to the consumer. The middleman share was 40.3 percent of the average retail price of $1.442 a pound, compared to 37.9 percent in May and 41.9 percent in April.

For the entire marketbasket of 66 foods checked by the department, the spread between farm prices and retail prices widened by 3.2 percent between May and June.

Its weekly report Thursday on world agricultural developments said that a prolonged drought early in 1978 has put the Brazilians in the market for at least 1 million metric tons — 300,000 of which has already been purchased from the United States. But the drought-inflated Brazilian corn prices are also encouraging farmers there to increase production. By next spring they could have a record crop of 19 million tons to take into world markets against Americans, the report said.

price support loans the same that is charged on those for other crops. Under present law, cotton loan interest rates are adjusted quarterly while others are adjusted annually. All are geared to the interest rate the government pays when it borrows money.

Farm roundup

The forecast report noted that broiler chicken prices are moving up in response to consumer searches to a cheaper meat than beef or pork. The forecasters predicted rapid expansion of production in that sector through December — enough to keep total U.S. meat production slightly above 1977 levels despite the projected 4 percent decline for beef and only a slight increase in pork production.

They also said that they expect cattle, beef, hog and pork prices to average just about where they are now — perhaps a little lower — for the rest of this year. They said that retail beef prices should finish up 20 percent to 25 percent above 1977 averages; pork prices, 10 percent to 12 percent. At the farm, they showed an average $55.06 per 100 pounds for Choice steers at Omaha in the April-June quarter, the midpoint of their summer projection and the high point for fall.

The same pattern was predicted for the seven-market average for hogs, with a $47.84 per 100 pounds in the spring quarter. WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says that Brazil should be a major customer for U.S. corn and feedgrains this year rather than a competitor.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House cotton subcommittee has unanimously approved a measure that would make the interest rates farmers pay on cotton

Stock market acts like roller coaster

NEW YORK (AP) — Pushed by the heaviest trading activity on record, the stock market took a roller-coaster turn Thursday, climbing steeply then backing off to only a modest gain.

With an estimated 65.40 million shares traded, volume easily exceeded the previous New York Stock Exchange record of 63.49 million set April 17. Volume on Wednesday was 47.47 million shares.

For a while it looked as if Thursday's trading would also come close to repeating Wednesday's remarkable 22.78 point surge in the Dow Jones industrial average as buyers rushed in early in a carry-over of Wednesday's euphoric mood. The Dow leaped 12.47 points in the first hour of trading when 20.13 million shares changed hands, also a record volume for first hour trading, exceeding 17.58 million on April 25.

But with each surge of buying a round of selling by investors looking for profits on steep price gains leveled off the market gains. After a final surge to more than 15 points, late afternoon profit taking eroded the day's advance in the Dow index of blue chip stocks to just 3.38 at 895.96.

Also contributing to a more cautious attitude late in the day was the anticipation of weekly money supply figures issued by the Federal Reserve after the 4 p.m. close of the NYSE. When the figures were issued, M1, the Fed's calculation of basic money supply was up $2.7 billion. That was within the $1 to $3 billion jump Wall Streeters had generally expected.
