Committee reviewing findings in King case

BY MARGARET GENTRY Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) -

Three leading pathologists examined bullet fragments and tissue samples from the body of Martin Luther King Jr. in a search for fresh clues about his murder, the House assassinations committee reported today. One of them, New York City's chief medical examiner, Dr. Michael Baden, was to present the panel's finding in the committee's second day of to determine whether it could

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - Rifle-toting

The wildcat firefighters' strike showed signs of weakening late Monday, but there was no indication of a quick end to the police strike, now in its fifth day.

A federal mediator failed Monday to get city officials and the Memphis Police Association together in an effort to end the walkout.

Mayor Wyeth Chandler said the strikers were trying to close down Memphis and that the city was taking applications for their jobs. He said the personnel office had received more than 2,000 applications.

Fire department officials said 13 of the city's 48 fire stations were fully manned with both supervisory personnel and nonstriking firefighters.

Fire Director Robert Walker said a steady stream of firemen had called in offering to report for duty. "They called in and said 'We want to come to work,' and we said 'Come on.' It was the greatest message I've had all day." However. Chandler said striking policemen and firefighters were trying to talk sanitation workers, city hospital employees and workers of the cityowned light, gas and water division to join them on the picket lines.

The president of the Memphis AFL-CIO Labor Council suggested late Monday a citywide strike in support of the striking police and firemen.

'Our unions are prepared to start withholding from all industries and businesses our services for an indefinite period," said Tommy Powell, head of the 60,000-member labor council. "We will not allow the city to run the fire and police unions out.

Lorene Osborne, president of the Memphis Education Association, which represents 5,200 public school teachers in the city, said her union is asking teachers to avoid crossing police and firefighters' union picket lines if they are stationed at the schools.

Chandler said he would ask the City Council to withdraw recognition of the striking unions today.

The mayor also said the city may go to court for contempt citations against leaders of both the 1,100-member Memphis Police Association and Local 1784 of the International Association of Firefighters which represents 1,400 firemen. Both unions are under court orders to halt strikes.

The strikes and the curfew, which permits only law enforcement and emergency services personnel on the streets between 8 p.m. and 6 a.m., came as thousands of people converged on the city for the first anniversary Wednesday of the death of singer Elvis Pres-

Pay raise to be considered

A six percent pay increase for elected county and precinct officials will be considered by the Gray County Commissioner's Court Wednesday. The commissioners are scheduled to meet at 9 a.m. in the county courtroom of the Gray County Courthouse. It has been three years since the elected officials have received a pay increase, according to Don Hinton, county judge.

A six percent raise for all elected officials would cost the county approximately $13,000 per year, according to Hinton. Rises for all county employees would cost the county approximately $63,000 with all benefits included, Hinton said. There are about 112 or 114 people on the county payroll he said. When asked how the figure was arrived at, Hinton said, "It's just whatever the commissioner's court decides."

Asked how he felt about woting on his own pay increase, he said, "It's just part of the court system. The commissioner's court has the final say. This is the reason for the public hearings, too. Who else in the whole state other than the people should be able to decide.

The commissioners will consider making a resolution to Gov. Dolph Briscoe asking the governor to declare Gray County a disaster area. Declaring the county a Couple may be victims according to parents

PHOENIX AP - Parents of a newlywed couple authorities think may have been victims of Arizona fugitive killers said Monday they have not abondoned hope that honeymooners still are alive.

"We're doing a lot of praying," said James Judge Sr., of Amarillo, Texas. "We haven't lost hope yet.' James Judge Jr., 26, and his new wife, Margene, 24, were last heard from last Tuesday, when Margene called her mother from Cortez, Colo. The couple had been honeymooning in southern Colorado when their van apparently was stolen by fugitives from Arizona. The van turned up Friday near Casa Grande, when the Tisons and escaped killer Randy Greenawalt, 29, attempted to run a roadblock if it.

Donald Tison, 20, was killed in that exchange. Greenawalt, along with Ricky Tison, 18, and Raymond Tison, 19 were captured. They had been at large for about two weeks, after allegedly helping their father, Gary Tison, 42, and Greenawalt escape from Arizona State Prison. The elder Tison, also a convicted murderer, still is a fugitive.

Colorado and Arizona investigators are attempting to determine how the escapees got the Judge's van, and what happened to the newlyweds. There was no indication that the couple planned to go to Arizona, so authorities assume at least one of the five men was in Colorado.

Mrs. Jenelle Davis, Margene Judge's mother, said she won't give up hope until the couple is found.

Findings withheld in water study

We have stated our belief before that many federal agency studies are designed or manipulated to substantiate a pre-determined conclusion. But what if those doing the study proceed on an honest path to determine scientific facts?

The answer to that, in at least one incident, was to hold back the truthful information until it would be too late to hinder implementation of the agency's plans.

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) commissioned and paid for research on health effects of drinking water. It spent nearly $500,000 on the study, conducted by the Medical College of Virginia. It received quarterly reports on the progress throughout the two-year program.

The EPA has been insisting that costly carbon filtration and maximum contaminant levels are necessary to protect human health. It scheduled hearings in Washington for July 11-12.

The detailed two-year study of the effects on human health of trace organic chemicals in drinking water revealed no danger. No evidence at all to back EPA's determined insistence on its costly idea to change normal methods now in use

Although officials of EPA were cognizant of the results of the survey, they kept them quiet. Strangely, none of the research indications were included in EPA's Federal Register rationale for its proposed regulations.

Nothing was published until Richmond Times-Dispatch Reporter Jerry Lazarus reported the facts in the May 21 edition of his newspaper. The research team leader, Dr. Jospeh Borzelleca, said study conclusions probably will be printed in six or eight months.

That would be five or seven months after EPA stops accepting public comment on its proposed regulations July 31. Dr. Borzelleca is a member of the National Academy of Science and chairman of the NATO committee on House Conference on the Business Community, the White House Conference on Balanced Growth.

Still to come are White House Conferences on Families, Small Business, Education. Aging, Children and Youth, the Arts, the Humanities, Neighborhoods, Library and Information Services and the Future of the Coal Industry.

The list may be longer. No one seems to know for sure. - And that is part of the problem.

Although every one of these events bears the impressive imprimature of the White House, they are related to it in name only for the most part. It's been something like 30 years since a White House Conference was actually held in the White House, and some never even make it to Washington.

What such conferences really are is a focal point for special interest groups seeking visibility for the problems which concern them. Members of Congress allied with the interest group advocates often help persuade the president to call a conference on a particular subject. Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-WIS., chairman of the Senate Small Business Committee, single-handedly talked Carter into scheduling next year's White House Conference on Small Business, for instance.

Although White House conferences have been going on for 70 years (Theodore Roosevelt convened the first one, on conservation, in 1908), no one at the White House or elsewhere in the government has ever stopped to ask whether they produce anything worthwhile.

George Grassmuck, a University of Michigan political scientist, is in the midst of the first full-scale academic study of White House conferences and his research so far indicates their major product has always been "fat reports that molder on library shelves.

"They tend to churn out voluminous resolutions and recommendations, in no order of priority, which simply cannot be achieved. Participants go home feeling they ought to be listened to because they've been to a White House conference, and they get about the same reception as the fellow just back from Europe with slides of his vacation trip," Grassmuck said.

Of the 60 some White House conferences held since 1908, the scholar reports, only a couple ever had much concrete impact on public policy. The first White House Conference on Children, held in 1909, provided impetus for creation of the old Children's Bureau, now swallowed up in HEW, and a 1955 education conference contributed to development of federal aid to education.

Otherwise, it seems, the White House conferences have been largely a waste of time, enthusiasm and money. They are not particularly expensive, as government ventures go. The ill-starred White House Conference on Families, which Carter has now postponed until 1981, is budgeted at a mere $3 million. But if they do relatively little harm, they also do little apparent

Now that the "cat is out of the bag" it will be interesting to see how the eager-beavers in EPA will proceed on their plan to saddle water works across the nation with terrific new costs.

Water consumers can ill afford higher water rates, and, as taxpayers, they cannot continue to be saddled with government agencies which increase their tax costs with projects clear out of the realm of any reason.

Nation's Press

Regulators: New reactionaries

(Mobil Oil Corp. Ad) If the Capitalist Revolution of the 20th century created America's dynamic economic system, then today's army of government regulators, reacting to that revolution are trying to turn back the clock to the detriment of today's standard of living. In that respect, they clearly fit the role of reactionaries. And as their power and influence have grown, they have, in effect, made a counter-revolution.

This counter-revolution is both quantitative and qualitative. William Lilley III and James C. Miller III, who both served on the Council on Wage and Price Stability, make this point in their study entitled The New "Social Regulation." They write that the "old-style" or traditional economic regulation focused "on markets, rates, and the obligation to serve." The new regulation - social regulation — "affects the conditions under which goods and services are produced and the physical characteristics of products that are manufactured.

Because regulation itself - the counter-revolution - is constantly growing in new directions, the apparatus for its implementation also is expanding rapidly. Between 1970 and 1975. according to Lilley and Miller, the number of economic regulatory agencies in Washington increased by 25 percent and their budgets by 157 percent; agencies of social regulation grew by 42 percent. and their expenditures by 193 percent. Nor has the trend been reversed since 1975.

In the course of expanding their regulatory scope, the counter revoluntionaries have succeeded in a massive transfer of power. The result has been a shift of strength from those who produce goods to those who produce ideology - intellectuals. journalists, policy professionals, various reformers, and the regulators themselves.

These counter - revolutionary ideologues - reactionaries, if you will - have shown a marked anti-business bias. But their thrust is also aimed at the mass of Americans "who go around doing and enjoying things without permission." in the words of Paul H. Weaver, the political scientist and writer.

Thus. America has experienced a growing trend toward making manufacturers - and consumers - pay the social costs of modern goods and services. The drive toward cleaner air and water and safer products - however desirable the goals - has not been clearly presented to the American people in terms of the costs they must pay to achieve these goals. It has thus become a covert form of taxation.

Dr. Weaver has written that the 'underlying interests and ethos'' of the new regulatory class represent an animus 'not so much against business or technology as against the liberal values served by corporate capitalism and the benefits these institutions provide to the broad mass of the American people: economic growth, widespread prosperity, material satisfactions, a sense of nationhood, a belief in an open and self-determined future, and the many options and freedoms these make possible for ordinary citizens.

He adds that "the hostility of the new class to acts of consumption by consenting adults is paralleled by a vigorous opposition to all institutions that promote consumption - advertising, the corporation, and above all the Old Regulation.

Given today's rectionary climate, it becomes easier to understand why American business finds it increasingly difficult to perform so many tasks that used to happen routinely - such as adding new plant and equipment, for example.

The counter-revolution simple creates too many obstacles to new investment. As capital investment lags so does the productivity of American industry. Our country's recent record of productivity growth is among the lowest of major industrialized nations - and most experts agree that increased productivity is the only way we can increase America's standard of living.

When capital formation falters - and that's what's been happening --- so does the nation's progress toward new and better jobs and new and better products.

Feverish boom in art

In all history, there never has been a more monumental season for the world of art than the summer of 1978

In London in June, bidders from all over the world poured out a record $34.1 billion at Sothebyt Parke Bernet's auction of the Baron Robert von Hirsch collection of splendid art. Walter Feilchenfeldt, a Zurich dealer, paid the highest price ever at auction for a watercolor by any artist -$1,177,600 for an Albrecht Duerer work. "I was amazed at the prices here," said Feilchenfeldt, "but I paid them because we will never have another chance at some of these things.'

In New York City also in June, Sotheby Parket Bernet reported its first nine-figure month - record-smashing net sales of $112 million. Sales skyrocketed 40 percent on the strength of American bidding in such areas as Impressionist and modern painting. European Old Masters, French furniture and jewelry.

In Los Angeles at the same time, a new high was set for any American work of art $980,000 "The Jolly Flatboatmen," by George Caleb Dingham, circa 1848. In April, a world peak was reached for an American portrait with the $265,000 sale of a Thomas Eakings

Sales of paintings of major importance in the $1 million range are actually becoming commonplace! A Van Gogh has sold for $1.300,000 and a Rembrandt self-portrait for $1,519,200. These prices are hundreds of thousands of dollars above the levels they would have commanded only a few years back and, if brought to today's feverish auction market, the odds are they would bring substantially more.

Among individual artists, the upsurge also has been sensational for Renoirs. Monets, Picassos and Bragues.

You can find art prices published weekly in many newspapers and art departments in big-city department stores.

Franchised art galleries have been set up across the nation. While art investment funds have not multiplied as expected in Paris and in New York, investment counselors are offering advisory services in investment in art works.

Adding to the frenzy is the entrance of the young American into the investment-in-art sphere, investing thousands of dollars a year in paintings and sculptures, for aesthetic as well as money-making potentials.

Then there are the corporations - not only the famous giants who display contemporary sculpture and paintings in and around most, if not all, of their buildings, but also small companies

Investigating committee probes state insurance office

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A former Houston insurance agent who lost his license for selling unapproved group health policies says there was a pattern of "favoritism" at the State Insurance Department toward the Nationwide Corp. holding company.

The House General Investigating Committee planned to dig deeper into the accusation today by juestioning officials of the department.

"I want to know what the department did and why they did what they did," committee chairman DeWitt Hale; D-Corpus Christi, said near the end of Monday's session.

C. Daniel Hurlbut testified under oath Monday that he and his partner, A. C. Hovater, were duped by officers of Gulf Atlantic Life Insurance Co. in 1974-75

Hurlbut said the Nation-Wide Health Insurance Trust plan he and Hovater were selling was cooked up by Gulf Atlantic Life Insurance. Gulf Atlantic denied this in board proceedings.

Hurlbut said Gulf Atlantic officials had assured him the policy had been approved by the board and could legally be sold. Among customers that bought Nation-Wide group policies from Hurlbut and Hovater were the Pasadena and Humble

school districts. The insurance department let Gulf Atlantic get away with it, closing a hearing on the firm's alleged involvement without obtaining testimony from a key official, Hurlbut said. "In their infinite wisdom, they said the company was not involved and gave them a clean bill of health," he said.

Gulf Atlantic later consented to a fine - but got to keep its license - in a scheme involving sale of another health insurance plan not approved by the board, Hurlbut said.

"The sample policy form they gave us, telling us it would cover our trust, was the same one that covers that other trust," he said.

Later, he said, Gulf Atlantic left Texas, and the board admitted another firm in the Nationwide chain. West Coast Life, to the state.

Hurlbut called this "very highly suspect, very preferential treatment. Hale said Monday it appeared to him, after hearing just one side of the case, that the department slapped Gulf Atlantic on the wrist "for doing the same thing" that cost Hurlbut and Hovater their licenses.

"It is time we stopped the practice of deciding a young, male, urban driver is guilty until proven innocent," said Stone, who put a stop to rating distinctions based on sex, age and marital status in his state. Company spokesmen said the high rates paid by young male drivers are justified by their accident experience as a group. They said a Massachusettsstyle rating system would cut rates on 10.5 percent of the pe-hicles in Texas but raise them on 85.7 percent.

Stone traveled to Texas at state expense as an invited witness of the subcommittee. The subcommittee proposal would replace Texas' 18 auto rating categories - based largely on age, sex and marital status - with only five. There would be separate classifications only for drivers with less than three years' experience, farmers and those who use their cars in business. Inexperienced motorists with driver education would be rated separately. All others - regardless of age - would be in the "standard" classification. Stone said Massachusetts makes heavy use of merit rating, punishing drivers who cause accidents with additional premiums.

"The individual driving record is the most important variant in premium calculations," Stone said.

Foundation stages roundup

Tom Coffee will spearhead the effort in the Pampa area as the Panhandle Division of the Arthritis Foundation stages its third Annual Cattle Roundup.

Farmers, ranchers and feedlot managers in the 26 Panhandle counties are being asked to donate cattle to be auctioned off at the Amarillo Livestock Auction beginning at 1 p.m. Aug. 28.

The magic number for this year's roundup is 100. The foundation's goal of 100 head of donated cattle underscore the fact that there are more than 100 kinds of arthritis.

PAMPA NEWS Tuesday, August 15, 1978 3 Two Fort Worth men think cave men right

> FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) homey and ordinary as pos-- Two Fort Worth men think cave men might have been on the right track. Real 'estate broker Robert

Needham and architect Frank Moreland say they hope to build one of the nation's first housing developments in which homes are built into earthen mounds Needham said the homes will have about 2,000 square feet of space, will cost about $61,000 and will eventually enjoy "zero energy bills." The houses won't be buried.

Moreland said they would look like "a home shoved into a hill sideways." One side of the earth-covered house would be open, with lots of window space and the other three sides would be set into a shrub-covered hill.

'People will be surprised how ordinary they look from the inside," Needham said. "We want to make them as sible. They won't look ultramodern like you might expect.'

Needham said a site hasn't been picked for the Fort Worth project. He said seven to 10 earth-covered houses would be built first in an area where 200 or 300 could eventually be constructed.

The first batch of cave-style dwellings would be a dice roll. with no specific owners in mind

"We'll see how the market for those houses does and go from there." Needham said. He said that he hoped to offer some alternative energy sources as his earth-covered community grows. These would include wind generators and solar-electric cells. ultimatley aiming at elimination of energy bills

The homes would have a concrete shell, and that's important because of the fire factor.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Health Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. is scheduled to explain to a House subcommittee on Wednesday why he hasn't given them requested drug company documents.

Rep. John E. Moss said the committee wants the information because, "We have long suspected that a number of trade-name drug companies put their trade names on drugs actually manufactured by generic drug companies, resulting in higher consumer prices for the same exact drugs."

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) - Dr. William S. Banowsky, the conservative California educator chosen Monday night to be University of Oklahoma president, was to hold a press conference here today

Banowsky, 42, currently president of Pepperdine University in Malibu and Los Angeles, Calif., was the surprise choice of Oklahoma University regents. He had withdrawn his name from consideration last week. But the regents, in a 31/2 hour closed door session, telephoned Banowksy and persuaded him to reconsider.

Those completing advanced life saving were Mark Alexander, Richard Steger Jackie Hilton, Bennie Fallon, Karen Ladd, Geraldene Sutton, Julie Collier, Sharon Willis, Millie Fatheree, Tim Wilson and Mary Skoog.

Stroessner begins sixth

ASUNCION, Paraguay (AP) - South America's most durable military president, Gen. Alfredo Stroessner, begins his sixth term today with his country tranquil and only two dozen political prisoners in jail.

"Paraguay has realized its will of being a sovereign and independent nation, free from the threat of extremism of any kind." Stroessner said in an interview this week with the newspaper Ultima Hora.

Three moderate opposition groups boycotted the inauguration, calling the 66-yearold army commander's re-election a fraud, and held talks aimed at forging a coalition to press for more liberalization of Stroessner's one-party rule.

President Carter also snubbed the event, designating his ambassador to Paraguay to represent him.

Stroessner, South America's longest-ruling chief of state, lost his chief supply of military and economic aid last year when the Carter administration suspended it because of alleged human rights violations.

DEAR ABBY: About a year ago my wife seemed to turn frigid, and last week I learned the reason why. She's been having an affair with a friend of our son's!

My wife is 38 and very well built, and this kid is 16 and big for his age. (He was 15 when it started.) He hung around our house a lot, but I always thought he came over to see our boys. (We have three, ages 10, 12 and 16.) It never dawned on me that something was going on until I saw my wife kiss-ing him goodbye in the yard. Then she said, "I love you." (I read her lips.)

I had a long talk with her and she admitted that she was having an affair with this kid, but she said she still "loved" me and it was only a harmless little fling. (How "harmless" can it be if they are having sex?)

I told her I didn't want to see that boy around our house anymore. Should I tell his parents? What should I do now? We've been married for 18 years. I'm 39 and have never been unfaithful in my life. We had a wonderful marriage until she started fooling around with this kid. Please advise me.

CAN'T SLEEP IN VEGAS

DEAR CAN'T: You can't tolerate an extramarital affair, DEAR CAN'T: You can't tolerate an extramarital affair, whether you call it "fooling around," a "fling" or whatever. Nowhere in your letter do you say that your wife has agreed to stop seeing this boy. If she insists on seeing him, you should insist that she get counseling. And remind her that she is contributing to the delinquency of a minor!

DEAR ABBY: Lately I've been finding a lot of stuff in my mailbox that has not been sent through the mails. I'm referring to religious tracts, political propaganda, all kinds of advertisements, and even business cards soliciting business for house repairs, real estate, etc.

I don't want my mailbox cluttered up with all this junk. and I would like to put a stop to it.

There ought to be a law against it!

CLUTTERED MAILBOX IN L.A.

DEAR CLUTTERED: There is! It is illegal to use a mailbox for anything except mail for which postage has been paid to the U.S. Postal Service.

And to put a stop to it, simply gather all the unstamped material that has been placed in your mailbox, and give it to your postman with your complaints and my compliments!

DEAR ABBY: Someone wrote to ask what you would think of a woman who would take a job as a live-in housekeeper for a single man, and you replied, "I couldn't care less. But if I were to give it one moment's thought, I would assume that the housekeeper was KEEPING-not PLAYING-house.

"Skewers" of steak into 1/2-inch slices

By Aileen Claire NEA Food Editor

Flank steak lends itself to marinating, which helps tenderize this economical cut of meat.

When cut into diagonal strips, flank steak "skewers" around tomatoes, zucchini and fresh mushrooms for a special barbecue treat. The easy marinade is a combination of tomato sauce, orange juice and Worcestershire sauce.

This prepare-ahead kabob grills quickly, so you can eat when the mood hits you. SKEWERED STEAK AND VEGETABLES have been hearing a lot of nonsense. There is no health or nutritional difference between fertile and infertile eggs. As far as the cholesterol is concerned it's in the yolk.

The yolk is not fertilized and is nothing more than a big food sack for the developing chick embryo. The amount of cholesterol in the yolk or food sack is the same whether the egg has been fertilized or not and its action in the body is also the same. The idea that fertile eggs are better than infertile eggs is a bunch of nonsense that has been popularized by people who apparently have little or no knowledge of nutrition.

Since you are interested in controlling your cholesterol I'm sending you The Health Letter number 1-3, Diet Preventing Atherosclerosis, to help you. DEAR READER - Your present change is unrelated to your vasectomy. All a vasectomy does is tie off the pathway so the sperm cannot leave the testicles. In fact, it used to be done to improve men's sexual capacity. Such results, however, are more likely to be related to a psychological response rather than any true benefit. The testicles get smaller with age. Part of this may be caused by fundamental changes in hormone balance associated with aging. The testicles are under the control of hormones secreted by the pituitary gland underneath the brain. They really are the counterpart of ovaries which are also controlled by the pituitary gland and undergo degenerative changes at the time of the menopause. Another important factor which can affect the size is the circulation to that area. If you have poor arterial circulation to the pelvic region, you could have a decrease in the size of the testicle. Many men remain sexually active well past the age of 70. About half of American men are still sexually active at age 75. In other societies where fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries is less common, a higher portion of men remain active well beyond that age. Go ahead and see a urologist if you like and let him evaluate your status. You certainly should know if it is an indication of impaired circulation. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Johnson returns, Oilers lose

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers rejoiced the return of Billy "White Shoes" Johnson Monday night against the Philadelphia Eagles but the ace return specialist couldn't help the Oilers where they needed it most -- in the defensive secondary

"We had one bright spot tonight and that happened before the game-Billy came back." Oiler Coach O.A. "Bum" Phillips said after Eagle quarterbacks Ron Jaworski and John Walton tagged the Oilers for three TD passes in a 28-10 exhibition football victory.

Johnson, who refused to report to training camp in a bid for a new contract, decided Monday to suit up while continuing to negotiate on a contract. Johnson is seeking a contract estimated at about $100,000 annually.

Jaworski completed eight of nine passes for 123 yards in the first half including an eightyard touchdown shot to Keith Krepfle and set up Wilbert Montgomery's six-yard TD run

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Texas A&M Coach Emory Bellard has spent the summer watching his fullback position vanish.

George Woodard survived a rugged spring training, then broke his leg playing slow pitch softball on June 9 and will spend this season as a redshirt.

Shortly after Woodard's injury, it was learned that backup fullback Eddie Hardin's spring training neck injury was serious enough to end his football career.

But the shuffled backfield, a sleek assemblage that includes world class sprinter Curtis Dickey, may do a lot of vanishing too-over the opposition's goal line.

Bellard will have sophomore track star Mike Mosley at quarterback. Dickey and Adger Armstrong at halfbacks and a slimmer but faster David Brothers, borrowed from the halfback corps, to replace Woodard at fullback.

"You don't run across too many quarterbacks in the country capable of running a 9.5 100-yard dash, broad jumping 25 feet and running the high

Foreign accent in U.S. magazines

By MALCOLM N. CARTER

Associated Press Writer NEW YORK (AP) - Ach du Lieber! More and more U.S. magazines are speaking with a foreign eccent.

As profits climb apace and the dollar slackens against other currencies, foreigners are increasingly becoming owners of American magazines.

"The United States is the center of the world for our profession - it's the best place to be," says Daniel Filipacchi, the French publisher of Paris-Match and Oui.

"It's where you can make more money," adds Filipacchi, who is gambling more than $25 million on a revival of Look magazine as a weekly starting in January. "And it's where you can lose more money, too." The Magazine Publishers Association has been so impressed by what it characterizes as a trend over the last couple of years that the organization has established a new category for foreign members. Parents' magazine, with more than 1.5 million circula-launching a U.S. version of the monthly Geo to compete with the National Geographic.

It was a Briton, Vere Harmsworth, whose investment in Esquire enabled Clay Felker to take over that magazine after Australian Rupert Murdoch gained control of New York and New West, forcing Felker out as editor and publisher of those magazines.

Robert Farley, vice president of the Magazine Publishers Association, says the foreign entrepreneurs "have their own reasons" for investing in U.S. companies. But he adds his "suspicion' that these reasons center on a more than 20 percent increase in revenues in the industry for two years in a row, bringing the annual total to approximately $2 billion.

"I think the reason for the trend is that the individual has an extraordinarily high return on an investment if successful," notes securities analyst Ed Dunleavy of Merrill Lynch Pierce Fenner & Smith.

Other reasons might be that investors are always looking to expand their markets and that the dollar's weakness makes the United States particularly attractive, Farley says. Securities analyst Ken Noble a media specialist with Paine Weber Mitchell Hutchins, agrees with him.

To the foreigners, Noble adds, the American economy is free of uncertainties such as the election of a communist government and is otherwise 'relatively safe."

Investors like to remain in businesses they already know. he notes, saying that is why

Some agricultural areas vunerable, but the overall industry health appears sound

By BRIAN B. KING Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Some producers in important farming areas remain vulnerable to further setbacks but "the overall financial health of the industry appears sound," the Agriculture Department says in a midsummer look at farmers' pocketbooks.

The department has been predicting for months that net farm income this year may reach $25 billion or $26 billion. a 25 percent boost from the $20.1 billion in 1977.

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) -President Carter, who has had trouble racking up yardage with some of his proposals, almost forced his military aide to cough up the "national security" football.

Carter, after greeting members of the University of Missouri football team on Monday, was given an autographed football.

He then tossed the ball to his military aide, who, White House press secretary Jody Powell noted, was carrying the "black box," also known as "the football," which reputedly contains codes a president could use in launching a nuclear attack

> But the military aide caught the real football without dropping the other one.

OTTAWA (AP) - It's nothing personal, but a special committee of the Canadian Bar Association doesn't think Queen Elizabeth II should be Canada's head of state. For that matter, it doesn't want any English monarch filling the role. The committee, reacting to proposals for a new constitution, said Monday that the queen should continue to be recognized as head of the Commonwealth but that the Canadian head of state should be someone appointed by a House of Commons majority for a term of about six years.

Speaking at a news conference, Jacques Viau, Bar Association president, said: "Personally, I have nothing against the monarchy. Even (Quebec Premier Rene) Levesque, you saw last week, has nothing against the monarchy.

Viau was referring to a defense of the monarchy made last week by the 10 premiers, including Levesque, leader of the French separatist party in Quebec, during a conference in Regina.

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) - Lillian Carter, the president's mother, became an octogenarian today but that doesn't mean she's expected to slow down. As Maxine Reese, a Carter family friend, put it: "She's going to kill us all." Mrs. Reese and about 200 others threw a surprise 80th birthday party Monday for Miss Lillian, meeting her at the Plains railroad depot as she returned from a trip to Chicago, where she had been honored by a group from India. Mrs. Carter served in India with the Peace Corps Mrs. Reese said the Carter family probably won't celebrate Miss Lillian's birthday until this weekend, when President and Mrs. Carter will be in Plains as par of a vacation.

Adds Filipacchi, who says 'you don't have the market" in countries like England or Germany: "It's a kind of feeling, too. I enjoy to go to the United States. I don't enjoy going to Germany so much. Although the trend is dis-cernible in the magazine field, it is not noticeable for newspapers. To be sure, Murdoch publishes the San Antonio Express and News in Texas, and Kenneth Thomson, whose family organization owns The Times of London, publishes more than 55 newspapers in this country. A handful of small weeklies and dailies is published by Canadian and British companies, and a Canadian publisher started a Philadelphia tabloid recently. However, the number of foreign-owned newspapers has not increased markedly. "There isn't a great deal of it," says John Morton, a newspaper anaylst with John Muir & Co.
