

Red Adair-an action packed lifestyle

Red Adair
If you saw him walking down a street, you would probably think of him as an average, run-of-the-mill citizen.
But if you saw him work, you would probably think he was king of the industry.
Adair and his crew of seven work in the oil fields fighting oil and gas explosions.
His most recent job was north of Wheeler, fighting an explosion from a natural gas well.
Adair and his red suited crew arrived at the scene at approximately 4:30 p.m. Wednesday and finished the job by the middle of the afternoon Friday.

He was leaving to fight another fire in Carlsbad, N.M., but granted the News a brief interview before he left.
Adair, whose real name is Paul Neal, said he got started in the business because "I got hungry."
He started in this line of work around 1937 or '38, but a Newsweek article from May 1977, said Adair started in 1939.
Adair didn't invent the business but learned it from the man who did - Myron Kinley, according to Newsweek.

Kinley saw Adair thrown approximately 50 feet into the air by a blow out. When he hit the ground he picked himself up and went right back to work. Kinley hired him and he has been at it ever since.
"That's what it turned into," Adair remarked.
He was a definite attitude towards his work and well blow-outs.
"Anyone of the blowouts will hurt you," Adair said. "You just respect them all."

"It's sort of like fighting a little war," Adair has said.
His work hasn't been accident free. In fact he along with every member of his crew, has been injured at one time or another.
In 1954 Adair while fighting a California oil well fire had his hips and pelvis crushed by a crane.
Doctors pronounced him a cripple but four months later he was back at work.
Adair said the name "Red" came from his once red now turned gray hair. Add to this the red suits his crew wears on sites, the red Cadillac and Mercedes he drives, his red yacht, and perhaps that explains the name and the character.

Adair and his crew spend approximately 150 days out of the year at sites of fires and he admits to becoming tired of travel.
"I hate to see it happen, but thank God you can help others out," Adair said.
Work in his trade seems to be very special to Adair.
"There's nothing like working in the oil field - is there," he said to the man next to him. The man nodded his head in agreement and Adair said, "I wouldn't trade it. I couldn't change. I'm too old."

"I couldn't take an eight to five job on a factory line," he added quickly. "They would have to put me in a straight jacket."
A movie was made about Adair, his crew and his work in past time. It was entitled "Hellfighters," and starred John Wayne as Red Adair.
When Adair was asked what he thought about the movie, a broad smile came to his wrinkled face and he said, "I've never seen it completely."
"I enjoyed working with it on the set and with the

Two directions at the same time

By OWEN ULLMANN

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — United Steelworkers President Lloyd McBride seems to be looking in two directions at once, trying to move his union into the 1980s while peering over one shoulder at the opposition fomented by last year's bitter election.
Fifteen months after taking over the reins of the 1.4-million member union, the 61-year-old McBride, an unknown figure when elected, has emerged as a forceful leader in full charge of the USW.

Escapees sought by police

MINERAL WELLS, Texas (AP) — Mineral Wells police said they caught one of three jail escapees from Palo Pinto County Saturday as law officers and volunteers on horseback continued their search for the other two.
A police dispatcher said Karol McAtee, 24, of Mineral Wells was caught, but was unable to provide details. "They're (police) all out there now," the dispatcher said. He said no calls for ambulances or other emergency vehicles were made in connection with the arrest.

McAtee escaped Thursday, along with Michael Bender, 23, of Mineral Wells, and Dan Taggart, 18, of Dallas.
A relief jailer was stabbed and a woman dispatcher clubbed during the escape.

Apostle of peace returns home

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — More than 100,000 cheering Egyptians welcomed President Anwar Sadat home Saturday while in Damascus, other Arab leaders put the final touches on a "rejectionist" plan to undermine the Camp David accords.
In Jordan, King Hussein reiterated his country's objections to the U.S.-engineered peace proposals and chastised Sadat for suggesting that Egypt might go it alone and negotiate an agreement over the West Bank without Jordanian participation in peace talks.
Also, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, who is trying to seal the Camp David accords to the Arabs, played tourist for a day in Saudi Arabia after being forced to put off for 24 hours a meeting in Damascus with Syrian President Hafez Assad.

Syria is the final stop on the secretary's Mideast mission. He has already talked with the Saudis and Jordan's Hussein, making a bid for support for the accords but receiving no commitments.
At a news conference in Amman Saturday, Hussein repeated his country's objections to the new agreements saying they do not provide for total Israeli withdrawal from Arab lands or for the right of Palestinians to establish their own state in those lands. He said he would join the peace process only if the accords were modified.

In Egypt, Sadat was swamped by thousands of well-wishers at an airport reception attended by the entire Egyptian Cabinet and all 360 members of Parliament. Security police were forced to push the crowds aside so Sadat could reach his car for the ride into Cairo.
Sadat had flown in from Morocco, where he spent three days talking with King Hassan II without winning that moderate Arab leader's public support.
In Damascus, leaders of the Palestine Liberation Organization and four hard-line Arab states opposed to the Camp David accords met for a fourth day to complete a "final political statement."
The group included Libyan leader Moammar

Khadafy, PLO head Yasser Arafat and Presidents Hafez Assad of Syria, Houari Boumediene of Algeria and Ali Nasser Mohammed of South Yemen.
The accords reached outside Washington call for the end to Israeli military government on the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip followed by a self-governing Palestinian entity there. But they do not spell out precisely the kind of entity that will be established, nor do they specifically commit Israel to a timetable for withdrawal of all troops.
Jordan is asked under the plan to take part in the peace negotiations and to contribute to a police force on the West Bank.

Gag rule by Texas judge overturned

SEATTLE (AP) — The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has overturned the order of a visiting federal judge from Texas which barred reporters from talking to jurors after the July conviction of two members of a radical underground group accused of several bombings.
The opinion, based on an appeal by The Seattle Times, struck down an order issued by U.S. District Judge Leo Brewster in the bank robbery-conspiracy trial of John Sherman and Therese Ann Coupez.

The 9th Circuit Court said the gag order by Brewster, a visiting judge from Fort Worth, "was clearly erroneous as a matter of law."
When Brewster issued an oral order barring news media and the public from talking to jurors after the convictions, he said he wanted to enable jurors to serve on future panels and protect them from possible harassment.

The appeals court said neither of Brewster's reasons was sufficient for such a ban. If the judge desired, he could have excused the panel from future service, the opinion said. No "clear and present danger" of harassment existed, and other remedies could have been used if harassment occurred, the appeals court said.

The appeals court concluded that Brewster's order, as issued, was "too broad."
But the court avoided giving special privileges to the news media. The court said: "Nothing in this opinion should be construed as requiring jurors to speak to the media or anyone else. A juror may speak or remain silent as he desires." A footnote added that the decision should not be construed as limiting the power of district courts to protect jurors from harassment.

"It's not a media decision," said P. Cameron DeVore, a lawyer for The Times Devore, however, said he was pleased with the results.
Sherman and Ms. Coupez were members of a small, underground radical group which has admitted numerous political bombings and bank robberies in the Pacific Northwest.
On Friday, Sherman was convicted of another bank robbery and possessing a sawed-off shotgun.

Witness to robbery Mystery lady identified by Oklahoma authorities

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — A woman found injured on a city street unable to remember her name or her past was identified by police Saturday as a witness in an Oklahoma robbery.
Police identified the woman as Linda Sue Wright, 35, of Tulsa, Okla., who was supposed to be in court last week as a witness against a man accused of robbing her.
Detective Hoyt Hugg said identification was positive, but he said the woman did not recognize her real name when she was told Hugg said relatives were en route from Oklahoma to this Texas Panhandle city. They talked on the phone, but she did not remember them.
"A detective in Tulsa recognized her as a witness in a robbery trial. He saw her picture in the newspaper," Hugg said. "The identification is positive, but she still doesn't know who she is. She believes us, though."

Miss Wright was found Tuesday night on a traffic island in a busy intersection. She had a bump on the head, had lost her purse, and could not remember her name or where she came from. She did recall a few sports scores, such as the Los Angeles Rams victory over the Dallas Cowboys last Sunday, and that she had once attended parochial schools.
Amarillo Police Lt. Darrell Garner said Miss Wright was supposed to have testified Wednesday in the Tulsa robbery trial.
"We're sure about the identification. Everything matches — she even remembers the (Tulsa) detective's phone number," Garner said. "And her mother called and recognized her voice."

Garner said police also found the woman's car a few blocks from where the woman was found Tuesday.
Since she was found, she has been hospitalized in the intensive care ward at Northwest Hospital, where Dr. Louis A. Finney, a neurologist, said he believed the cause of her problem was "emotional or relational trauma in her personal life."
Hugg said: "She has relatives in Oklahoma, and they are on their way to pick her up. She's in good condition, but things are still coming back slowly."
"I imagine she will be released to her family, but she will still need medical care for a while."

Kidnapping ordeal still underway

By RUTHLANDA
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — On Feb. 3, 1978, Marci Klein, the 11-year-old daughter of fashion designer Calvin Klein, was kidnapped. She was released later that day after her father paid a $100,000 ransom.
One of Marci's baby sitters, Paule "Christine" Ransay, Miss Ransay's half-brother, Dominique, and Cecil Wiggins were charged with the kidnapping. Wiggins pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of second-degree kidnapping and is to be sentenced Oct. 18. The two other defendants currently are on trial in state Supreme Court here.

This past week Marci testified about the kidnapping. This is the story of her ordeal in her words. The questions were asked by prosecutor Thomas Demakis.
Q...What happened from the time you met your baby sitter, Josie, on the elevator, at about 7:30 in the morning of February 3, 1978?
A. Well, Josie got on the elevator and said she would walk me to my bus stop. So, she walked me to my bus stop and I got on the bus.

And then, two stops later, Christine got on, and she was crying. And I said, "What's wrong?" And she said, "It's not about me, it's about you."
And I started to cry. And I said, "What about me?"
And she said that my father was sick and dying in the hospital and that she's going to take me there.
And so, I said, "How do you know?"
And she said, "Your mother called me from Florida and told me to get you from school."
So, as I was getting off the bus, my friend, Jennie, who's in my class, I was crying when she said to me, "What's wrong?"

And I said, "My father is sick and dying in the hospital, and I have to go see him."
I got off the bus, and Christine and I got in a taxi. We got out of the taxi and, then we walked to the middle of the block.
I asked her what she was doing, and she said she was looking for a phone. And then she said, "Let's go upstairs."
And I said, "Where are we?"
And she said, "This is my house."

She started running up the steps fast and I told her to wait up for me, and then we got to the top floor, and someone put their hands around my mouth and my nose, and I started to scream, told me to be quiet, he won't hurt me, and then we went into Christine's house and then we went to a big bed.
And he threw me on the bed and he started tying up my hands and I started crying and told him that my father was sick and dying in the hospital, and I had to see, go to see him.

And he said, "Your father is not sick," and I said, "Yes, he is. He is dying, and I want to see him," and so, he said, "Don't worry your father is okay."
Then he was tying up my hands, and he said to me, "Now be quiet and I will not hurt you."
Then I said, "I am really scared. Please can you let me go."
And he said, "Now be quiet. I have two friends who are sex maniacs and they both speak Spanish, and they will come and don't try to talk them out of it."

OPINION PAGE

Mama, where is teacher?

The issue almost everywhere is money. That is the single-minded purpose that has kept several major cities' school systems shut down — no business as usual — as those kids we hear about so sorely needing education stayed home as teacher strikes for some of the folding green.

Teachers, forming one of the biggest unions in the country, are striking in New Orleans, Boston, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Dayton, Ohio, Seattle and Pontiac, Mich.

One may wonder why they waited until the first day of school to strike. But, let's face it, with most of them off all summer long, what interest or alarm could a summer strike stir up?

The teachers really do better for themselves than the Postal Workers, who at least work most of the year, or better than Teamsters, or most groups in the George Meany-directed AFL-CIO.

The teachers' union name, however, is a little more euphemistic than the other labor unions — It is called the National Education Association.

But, as a group that seeks to serve the interests of improving the lot of teachers, it certainly has little to do with education per se.

When the General Assembly meets in Austin next year, some teachers of Texas will swoop down on them at some strategically timed point. They will show up in the little cubicle offices of most legislators six strong, and tell each one right out, if you don't vote for a pay raise for us, we'll work to defeat you at the polls. And, they love to contend, we can do it.

Fact is, they can't. But they certainly have a lot of the representatives and senators hoodwinked.

We are not against teachers being paid a livable wage, a decent wage. But when one figures their total annual working time, plus Christmas holiday and Easter holiday breaks, they don't come off to badly. In Texas, the average pay of teachers is $10,600 a year — and this comes to a teacher in his or her mid- twenties.

In reading and listening to teacher union leaders, one constant piece of propaganda material keeps coming over. Namely, that if you don't vote for teacher pay hikes, you are against educating your kids.

This propaganda device is one commonly used in TV Commercialism: You make a "buyer" find something appealing by telling him how having it or doing it helps fight what he's against anyhow — such as with a roach killer spray... You certainly don't want roaches running all over your chow now, do you?

Another device is exhorting teachers, "Don't be afraid. Now is the time to stand by your colleagues. Don't desert those who are fighting your fight."

This of course, calls upon one's moral courage: You wouldn't desert a drowning friend, would you? Of course, a "colleague" is the fellow next to you, and you are his. So who are the colleagues that you're supposed to stand by? They are the handful of talkers who are mounting the podium and really saying, "Stand by me: I want more money."

Everybody would like more money. But if wishes were horses, as the saying goes, then beggars would ride.

But how much of a gilded carriage do we want for our teachers? That is the question...

Snow job

The plow that cost too little

Question: When does a $50 snowplow cost $205,900? Answer: When the federal government gets involved in buying it.

The story goes this way and we wonder if Jimmy Carter heard it. The 6,300 - people town of Sidney, Nebraska, wanted to get a new snowplow to replace one it bought in 1954, which was an old 1936 Civil Defense truck with a scraper on the front. It was used at the town's airport to clear runways.

The FAA at first said the town didn't get enough snow to "warrant" buying a snowplow. Then it changed its mind. The town budgeted $9,800 for the plow but found prices were running higher.

The feds advised the town federal money could be used for the purchase, such as revenue sharing. But, Sidney was told, it needed a plow costing at least $82,000 to meet federal specifications. (We have visions in our head of the cowboy on horseback as redesigned by OSHA for safety!)

The federal government decided the town could have $99,900 for the plow. The town said all it needed was $25,000.

No, said Ma Guvvint, you also need a $106,000 building to keep it in, plus $22,000 for an airport construction layout plan because in order to qualify for all the rest of the money, the airport needed to have a construction master plan in the works.

Well, the matter was kicked around for five months. Now, the FAA dropped its insistence on an airport master plan and said it would cut the grant back to $106,000 total, of which $45,000 would be for the snowplow. The town had to kick in 10 percent — $16,000 — still almost twice as much as originally budgeted.

Said a frustrated city manager: "That's it. If they say we can't have one without the other (a snowplow without a snowplow building), I guess we'll have to take both."

For the weary taxpayer who wonders why he has to pay so much in federal taxes, the Sidney case is one prime example of bureaucratic nincompoopery.

Perhaps the balance of the dough could be used to buy some snow, like the ski hills do, just to make sure the plow does get used this year. There is probably a federal regulation somewhere that says it must snow in the Winter in Sidney, Neb.

There are probably a lot of people everywhere, including us, who can only mutter... What a snow job!

Scrounging for voters

By ROBERT LEFEVRE
Within recent weeks the Congress of the United States has approved its own expansion. The argument which is supposed to justify this governmental growth is based on the idea of equal "rights" (so-called.) The assumption is that there should be a "right" to vote for everyone in the United States eighteen years of age or over.

No such "right" exists, of course. To cover this naked grab for power, Congress uses the term "rights." In context, what it really means is a political privilege now to be extended to persons who live in the District of Columbia.
According to the original Constitution only persons living in states have the privilege of voting. By act of Congress, which has yet to be ratified by the concurrence of 38 states as an amendment to the Constitution, those living in the District of Columbia will have their franchise extended beyond the "right" to vote for president given them a few years ago.
The reason for the creation of the District of Columbia was precisely the reason

Congress now seeks an amendment to override. At the time the Constitution was put together, it was deemed unwise for those living in the capital city to have a voice in government. Their own position clearly is conducive to only one kind of vote. They will predictably favor the people in power in order to enhance their own perquisites. Since they have a visible vested interest in the amassment of power, the District of Columbia was created to deprive residents of the voting option. So, behind the screen of self-righteousness and the cry of "equal rights," Congress has now gone on record as favoring the franchise for those in the District.

I think we should take off this mask of presumed piety and show the proposal for what it is. The truth is that Congress is terrified.

Beginning some time ago and rising to significant numbers during the sixties, Americans have been increasingly disenfranchised with government at all levels. There is a marked trend away from voting. If it continues, the government will have great difficulty in justifying its actions on the grounds of popular approval.

When those refusing to vote would not be moved by the cries of "Shame" and "don't be apathetic," the voting age was lowered in an effort to enlarge the base from which voting could take place. Now 18-year-olds can vote. But the big spur to numbers wasn't there when the votes were counted last time. So, if Washington, D.C., can have its franchise extended, then there will be another block of persons who can vote levers in favor of their own benefits ripped from the rest of the country.

It is likely that the Congress this time has struck paydirt. I suspect that the people in the District will be more eager to vote than any in the country, and certainly more eager than the teen-agers.

Indeed, I think it likely that more and more persons in the District will vote (after ratification, of course) while fewer and fewer elsewhere will bother with it.

Thus will slowly emerge the reality that we have been alluding to for at least a score of years: We have a government of, by and for the government, not at all interested in the people.

This is what the Congress and others in government hope the people of the United States will somehow not see. This is why I call upon my readers to see it and to pass along the good word.

The real American Revolution which was begun in 1775 is being reactivated, not by those seeking office, but by those who deny that any office can rightfully be imposed upon them. The true revolution is one against the presumed divine right of some to rule others. Whether the divine approval comes from a specific genetic pool or from ballot boxes is nothing but academic clutter. Firm in support of the divine right of rule are all those who vote.

The revolutionaries don't vote. They are conducting the world's first peaceful revolution: And to refuse to vote is to refuse to approve of the presumptive power now in the hands of the nation's bureaucrats. To a real revolutionary, it doesn't matter how you vote. The mere fact of voting binds the voter to the result of the balloting. If your side wins, you expect the losers to comply with your position. Therefore, if your side loses, you will be bound to comply with those who were able to marshal greater numbers. Thus the voting process is merely a quiet way of establishing the idea that might makes right.

But if you don't vote at all? Ah, there's the Achilles' heel of government. For as you and others pull away, saying in effect, "a plague on both your houses," the assumption of the divinity of majorities fades into discard. "Popular" government cannot stand if it is manifestly unpopular. And nothing demonstrates unpopularity quite as thoroughly as nonparticipation.

Work happily for the day when they hold an election and nobody comes. At that point the sanction from the victims of the state will vanish and those remaining in office will be shown for what they are: a gang of self-legalized looters who propose to do as they please with the persons and properties of others.

The women in the past of every man

In the past of every man there are some women he never forgets.

These are the only women in his life who are forever precisely the way they were — when he was young. Schoolteachers.

From elementary school I will forever be in love with Miss Harp who, when our classwork was finished early, would read to us for the precious final minutes before the bell.

What she read I have forgotten. But her beautiful face and halo of silver hair I will never forget.

Then there was an art teacher named Miss Brown-Green.

And a lovely library teacher named Miss Egan, whose physical symmetry awakened in young Paul an eternal admiration for the way girls look when they grow up.

In junior high school there were a couple of memorable men teachers — and don't try to make anything of this. Dr. M.E. Hurst made the subject of physics lastingly exciting. As did O.B. Badger in what we then called "manual training."

In high school, a dear diminutive English department teacher named Isabelle Ronan was always available for encouragement and counsel at any hour — and one day took me by the hand to the local radio station, saying to the radio station people: "This young man is ready now..."

I still communicate regularly with Miss Ronan.

But what I've been pondering recently is how different it might have been if my memories of these inspired and inspiring teachers from my past — I mean, if I remembered them instead carrying signs on a picket line.

On the opening day of school this year teachers in 14 states were striking or threatening to strike.

A generation grew up considering preachers and teachers and policemen aloof from and immune to such chores as walking a picket line. We expected teachers to live on chalk dust and red apples. These public servants were somehow expected to get so much satisfaction from their respected profession that they didn't need money.

But we have been short changing them on respect — and they do need money.

Because others are demanding more for doing less — and millions demand more for doing nothing at all — the teachers' dollars are shrinking a dime a year.

Further, deterioration of working conditions for many teachers has made the classroom unsafe at any wage. The meddling three-layered bureaucracy dwarfs any opportunity for individuality. And the disinclination of the school administration to support teacher prerogatives — all these factors contribute to frustration.

How can they be expected to discipline themselves when all around them they see it is the tantrum which pays off? Lie down on the sidewalk, kick up your heels, threaten to hold your breath until you turn blue — the very unbecoming behavior historically disallowed in spoiled brats — is now countenanced as an accepted means of pressuring peers.

But the next generation's recollections of its teachers will surely be less than ours are.

Cambodian politics

Americans for Democratic Action, following Sen. George McGovern's call for military intervention in Cambodia to stop the bloodshed. This is like John Wayne leading a draft-card-burning demonstration at the Pentagon! I am certain that South Dakota's contribution to self-sufficiency in natural gas must have experienced a sense of disillusionment with the gang of cut-throats known previously as "agrarian reformers."

Though I do not share this Black Hills buffoon's choice of military involvement in Cambodia, it is encouraging to see a few "liberals" and new-left humanoids twinging at mass genocide when practiced by socialist and communist regimes. It's a little like watching an old "Frankenstein" movie, and seeing the first sign of human life appearing in human form whose mind and soul had been dormant for so many years.

The Cambodian experience should serve as an example to ideologues of all persuasions... although it will not. It is far too easy, in the course of projecting one's own whims and delusions onto the rest of mankind, to ignore the reality of the political process. One cannot claim the right to be architect of the lives of others, and demand the power to carry out one's designs, and plead innocence for the resulting violence and disruption of human life. If one insists upon the right to control other people and make decisions for their lives, and affirms the legitimacy of political machinery to carry out those decisions, one must also be prepared to accept some measure of responsibility for the suffering that will always follow.

In the final analysis, the slaughter taking place in Cambodia is the logical extension of politics. It is not enough to whine that a Cambodia or a Uganda or a China or a Nazi Germany engages in violence and warfare with its own citizens. Until one can understand that politics is violence, is warfare, he is doomed to a lifetime of hacking at the branches of evil while continuing to nourish the root.

Doucette likes children

By PAMTUREK
Pampa News Staff

"I just like those little, little ones," is Mary Doucette's description of her feelings toward her pre-kindergarten students at St. Vincent de Paul School.

She has been teaching for nineteen years. Doucette taught her first year at Holy Souls; the building is now the Pampa Day Care Center. Her first fourteen years were spent teaching kindergarten and the last four have been with pre-kindergartners.

The veteran teacher was born in Essex, north of London, England. She met her husband, Al, during the war. "He came back here and I followed," she explained. All the ships had been converted to troop ships and it was difficult to find one that would take passengers.

Mary Doucette finally received word. "Can you be ready to leave in 24 hours," was the question that came over the phone. She packed and was on her way.

"I was on the water 10 days," she said. "I must be exaggerating... I'm a Texan now." It was not a short trip.

"I had never seen a frame house in my life - the first one was on the way in Kansas," Doucette said. She soon became accustomed to them.

After her arrival, the future teacher met M.K. Brown, who was also from England. When she and Al Doucette married, Brown gave her away at the wedding.

"I settled down and had a couple of children," she said.

Avril is a micro-biologist and medical technician and will soon begin studies to be an M.D.

John is a CPA in Amarillo.

The small, red head recalls London during World War II. She served in the Royal Air Force and met King George V and Queen Elizabeth. She served in the headquarters of the bomber command which was underground and highly secret. She described having to use code word when going to work in the mornings.

Mary Doucette

Memories of the V-2 "buzz bombs" are vivid. One of them hit a bank and she recalls the digging of possessions that had been in the bank's vault. Her father who was in the hotel business invested in diamonds. Mrs. Doucette remembers the return of the strong box containing the gems.

Things were a bit more quiet after moving to Pampa. "I wasn't use to the heat," she said of Pampa, but she explained that she very much likes the town now. "I would never go back to England."

Mary Doucette enjoys meeting people who know her. She has 18 students and knows their parents as friends. "I have made more friends through my children (students)," she said. "These are the bonuses and the benefits." The words used to describe her students? "They are so honest that it's wonderful... They are so real." Mary Doucette described her school room as if it were home. "I wouldn't know what to do if I couldn't go up there in the morning, I love it."

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The "Shifty Fifty" met Saturday and decided to steer clear of speakership politics but hold firm on plans for new House rules in the 1979 Texas Legislature.

Petition drive circulates here

A drive by a grieving Sunray mother to obtain corrective federal legislation regarding ingredient labels on drugs and vitamins has spread to Pampa.

Petitions are being circulated in Pampa by Mrs. Judith Loyd of 1922 N. Faulkner to aid in the drive launched by Mrs. Steve Weatherford in her efforts which have spread into 12 states.

Ronnie Weatherford, her five-year-old son, died May 15 in Texas Childrens Hospital, Houston.

His mother said his adverse reaction to a drug filler "at least worsened" his condition. She said her son had a reaction to corn sugar and that it was necessary for doctors treating him to "call drug companies every time they needed to change his medication."

Mrs. Weatherford said that the fastest time in which an answer was obtained was three hours and the longest was 24 hours.

She observed that a neurologist once commented that it is easier to find out the ingredients in dog food than what is in one pill.

"Nearly all products have corn sugar in them because it's cheaper and easier to manufacture," Mrs.

The center is located on FM 1292, one mile north and two and one-half miles west of Knox City.

Cattle tips to be discussed

Stocker cattle production and management will be discussed at a 7:30 p.m. Tuesday meeting in the Gray County Courthouse Annex meeting room, according to Jo VanZandt, county extension agent.

He said the seminar will feature presentations on health practices, parasite control, feed and management tips.

There will also be a report on stocker cattle shipping research being conducted on a cooperative basis with southeastern states, VanZandt said.

The informal discussions will be presented by three extension specialists: Dr. Gene Cope, veterinarian; Dr. John McNeill, beef cattle specialist; and Dr. Carl Patrick, entomologist. Producers attending the session will have an opportunity to ask questions, VanZandt said.

ANOTHER STEP FORWARD and two steps backward is again the rule apparently when dealing with the government as a Pampan recently discovered. Orville Whinery organized a petition drive against a fuel cost adjustment by Southwestern Public Service. Whinery mailed the petition, which included more than 1,000 names, to the Attorney General but only got a nice letter for his troubles - no action. The letter by attacking attorney general Martha U. Terry told Whinery to take his problem to the mayor, so he did. It is now in the hands of city officials and we are keeping a close eye on what the city fathers do about the feelings of the voters.

BRAVO TO THE HIGH SCHOOL journalists for their fine stand on trash in their most recent issue of the Little Harvester. We didn't like being the subject of their editorial comments and cartoon but we were glad to see that those few at least had the courage to stand up and say what they felt. The only way people have of correcting a situation is by interaction or speaking out for what they believe. We hope that the journalistic staff of the high school will aid us in correcting the situation that plagues the people of Pampa. We hope they will use as much creative talent in attacking the problem now that the editorial fun is over. Again BRAVO for the spirit you have displayed. If no other Pampan will speak out on an issue it is good to know the journalists of the future will.

WE WANT TO WELCOME Elena Callen to the Pampa News staff. Elena is the newest and youngest member of the editorial department at the paper and we have high hopes for the young woman who kicks off our high school intern program. Elena is currently working in the newsroom, but will shortly be out among the citizens of Pampa as a fully qualified reporter. The program is new and will take some time and adjustments before the problems with the system are solved. We hope the students who participate in the program are all as eager to learn as Elena appears to be.

TODAY IS THE BEST DAY to start regular attendance at the church of your choice.

Prison crowding local problem

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A House study committee said Saturday the 1979 Texas Legislature should give local communities more responsibility in taking care of those convicted of breaking the law.

"It is felt that the Texas Department of Corrections must embark on a strong community-based corrections program, as is used in several states in the nation today," said the interim report adopted unanimously by the House Social Services Committee.

The committee specifically proposed that the next legislature direct the TDC and Harris County officials to negotiate the sale of the Harris County Rehabilitation Center to the state "for use as a community-based correction facility."

IN WHAT WAS described as "not a normal procedure," mud was pumped from these tanks down into the drill pipes of a well leaking natural gas north of Wheeler Friday afternoon. The well, which exploded Wednesday because of a faulty valve, was capped by the famous Red Adair and his crew. Only one of the tanks of mud was used to stop the leak.

Gas well capped by Adair

A natural gas well north of Wheeler that exploded Wednesday morning was capped Friday afternoon by a team led by Red Adair of Houston.

The well, owned by Tri-Service Drill Co. and H.L. Brown Jr., was "killed" when 400 barrels of mud were pumped into it, according to Howard Baker of the company.

"We put the mud in at 2, 30 and had it dead by 3," said Baker. "Everything went real good. We're preparing to go back to drilling."

"I could have done it (the capping), but we got Red Adair down here just to be on the safe side. It cost us some money but he's worth it."

The explosion was caused by a faulty valve.

"There's no way you'd know how much gas leaked out of the well between Wednesday and Friday," Baker said. "You'd figure six to eight million cubic feet a day since it started. That's a low estimate."

Pampa SPS promotes Kunkel

Melvin Kunkel, District Manager for Southwestern Public Service Company in Pampa, has been named District Manager for the electric company in Amarillo.

The announcement was made today by Brac Biggers, Panhandle Division Manager for Southwestern Public Service Company, and will become effective October 1, 1978.

Kunkel will replace Roy Holmes who has been named Southwestern Public Service Company District Manager in Lubbock.

Kunkel is a native of Seguin, Texas, and is a graduate of Texas Tech University where he earned a bachelors degree in Industrial Engineering in 1950.

After graduation, he joined Southwestern Public Service Company as an engineer in the Lubbock office, and in 1953 was named District Manager at Slaton.

He became District Manager in Levelland in 1961 and District Manager in Pampa in 1972.

Kunkel is past president of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, the American Heart Association in Gray County, and past director of the Pampa Rotary Club.

While in Levelland, Kunkel was named its outstanding citizen in 1970.

Melvin Kunkel

assured that they have a strong county government," Kennedy said.

"I am impressed with the vast areas of responsibility the judge has. I consider it would be a challenge to do that job and do it well."

Chronister honored by Freemasons

Johnny Adam Chronister of 1706 Chestnut has been designated a Knight of the York Cross of Honour, the highest honorary degree in the York Rite of Freemasonry.

The degree is conferred only on those who have held the highest office in each of the four bodies of the rite. Only about 400 of the more than four and one-fourth million Freemasons in North America, the Philippines and Australia qualify for this honor.

Chronister has served as Master of Plemons Lodge of Masons; High Priest of Pampa Chapter, Royal Arch Masons; Master of Pampa Council, Royal and Select Masters; and Commander of Boger Commandery, Knight Templar.

The United States Army's First Cavalry division landed in Vietnam in 1965, the largest U.S. troop landing in the war.

Kennedy candidate for judges seat

Carl Kennedy of Pampa has announced he is the Republican candidate for the Gray County judge seat in the November election. He will face incumbent Democrat Don Hinton.

Kennedy was asked by Gray County Republican Chairman Bobbie Nisbet to seek the post in place of Joe Curtis, who died in May. "I did considerable research of the situation," Kennedy said, and accepted the candidacy Friday.

Kennedy was born in Pampa in 1932, and graduated from Pampa High School in 1951. He attended Texas Tech University as a marketing major and graduated in 1955 with a business degree.

After serving as a contracting officer in the U.S. Air Force for two and a half years, Kennedy returned to Pampa and went into business with his father. He married Pat Reynolds in 1959.

Since 1964 Kennedy has been an active partner in Wiley Reynolds and Sons, a farm and ranch business. He and his wife have five children.

Kennedy feels he is qualified to be judge because "I sincerely believe I have better experience in the administrative responsibilities of this office. Because of my family and church interest, I also feel I can do a superb job on the judicial side."

'If I Should Die' film to be shown tonight

"If I Should Die," the newest film from Evangelical Communication Research Foundation, will be shown at 6:30 tonight at Bethel Assembly of God, located at the corner of Hamilton and Worrell streets.

Rev. Paul DeWolfe, pastor, said the 46-minute film shows how "no one is immune to the sting of death - its grief or sorrow; yet, through personal testimonies the film shares a living hope for man to face not only death but also the loss of loved ones."

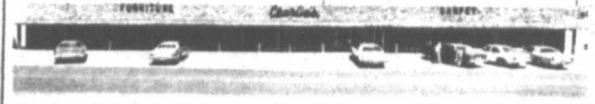

He said the film brings together some of the world's most respected Christian doctors, theologians and psychologists to investigate the subject and how death relates to history's most consistent textbook on death and dying - the Bible.

DECORATING TRENDS... by Charlie's

DEFINING SPACE with furniture groupings is one of the oldest and most basic principles of home furnishing, but it is one that keeps taking on new applications as our way of life changes.

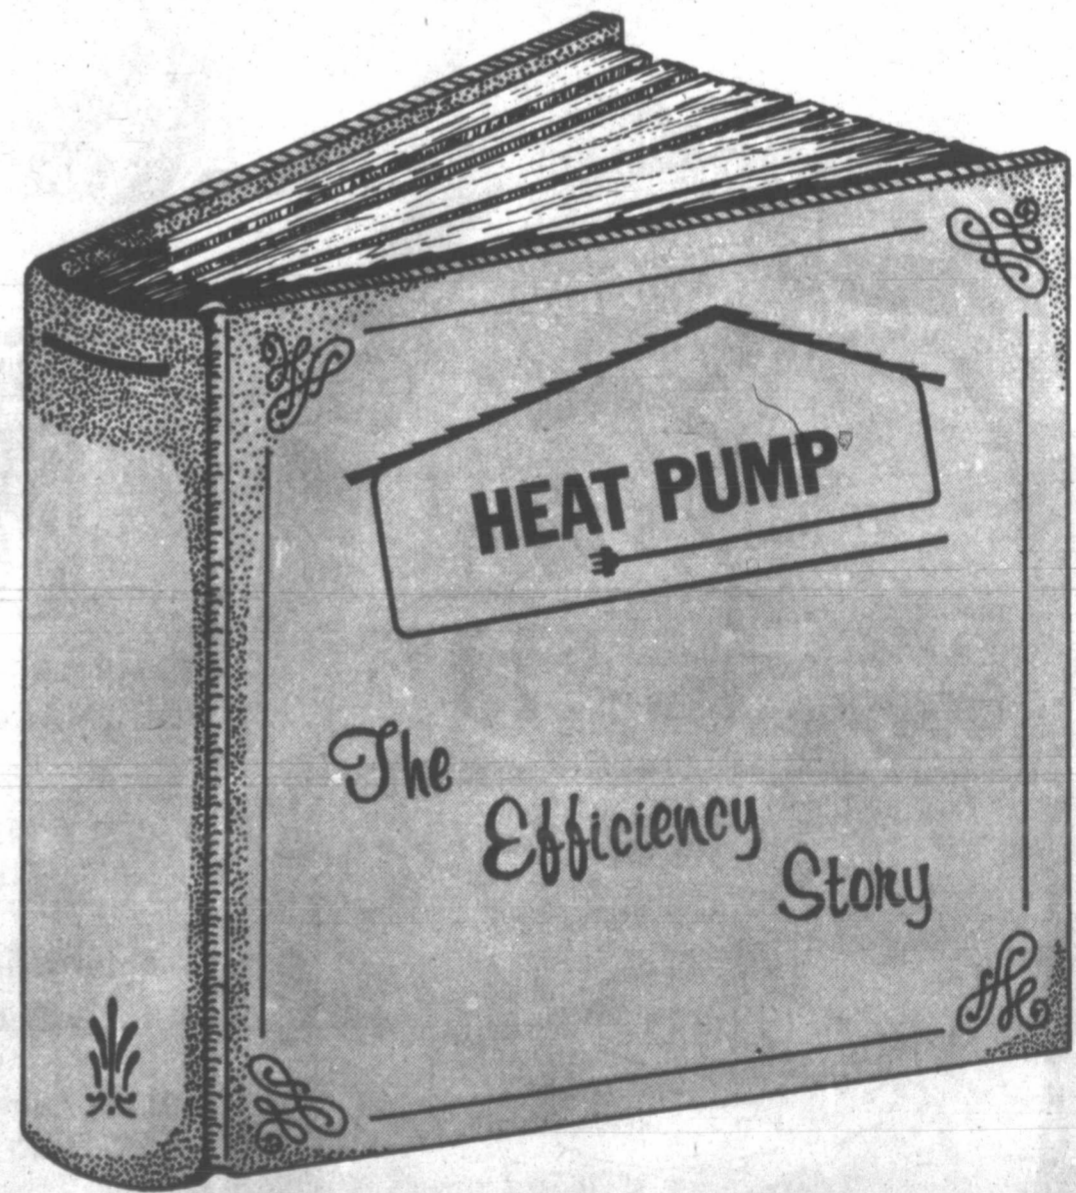

The coming of the television age, for instance, has revolutionized furniture selection and placement wherever the TV set is placed, whether in the family room, den or living area. Either the set must be mobile, the furniture movable, or comfortable seating has to be placed where the screen can be viewed without strain. Another change has been the disappearance in many homes of the formal dining room. Here furniture grouping can create the effect of a formal dining area without walls. Conversation area furnishings can "turn their back" to the dining area, helping to define it. Screens, beads or free standing dividers can separate areas handsomely without stealing space.

In large rooms furniture groups are especially effective...creating an entertainment area around the fireplace, a reading corner with chairs and bookcases, a dining or television area, a game area with table and chairs. Such groups break up the space and make it manageable - and beautifully functional.

Comfortable chairs are an important part of any decorative grouping...and they are an important part of our furniture displays, too. You'll find chairs galore in our selection, in colors and sizes, fabrics and finishes to complement your taste and present decor. Come in and browse.

Crude oil refining capacity increased

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — World-wide crude oil refining capacity has increased more than 70 percent since 1970.

With Europe setting the pace, world capacity has increased in the 8-year period from 44.8 million barrels to 76.6 million barrels a day.

The capacity of European refineries jumped from 16 million to 32.6 million barrels daily. North American refineries moved from 13.6 million to 19.3 million barrels a day. The Far East jumped from 5 million to 9.6 million.

In its annual report on industry trends, Hydrocarbon Processing, a trade publication, says the present growth trend in refining capacity bears out the increasing use of crude oil as the world's preferred energy source.

The publication forecasts that in 1979 worldwide capital expenditures on new refining projects will approximate $11.2 billion and that maintenance costs will add another $4.3 billion.

In two years the number of refinery construction projects have increased from 857 to 1,014.

"This increasing refinery construction activity is directly related not only to the increasing dependence on crude oil as the major source of energy, but also to the rapidly growing worldwide demand for gasoline," the publication said.

"Similarly, U.S. refinery construction activity has been steadily growing, but with greater acceleration. Since June 1976, it has gone from a low of 183 projects to its present level of 255 projects."

The increased consumption of gasoline worldwide, the report added, is showing up in the rising level of construction activity of gasoline oriented refinery units.

Since 1970, the publication said, the industrial areas have increased their share of world refining capacity from 77.2 percent to 80.3 percent.

"Their 26.9 million barrels a day capacity increase amounted to 84.6 percent of the total worldwide lease of 31.8 million barrels a day during this 8-year period," the report said.

Compared with the $11.2 billion for refining projects, the publication estimates other worldwide capital expenditures by the industry next year will include $13 billion for petrochemical projects, $3.3 billion for gas processing facilities, and $450 million for solid fuels projects.

Maintenance expenditure estimates include $5.7 billion for petrochemical plants and $490 million for gas processing facilities.

Capital expenditure projections for 1979 in the United States include $3.4 billion for refining, $2.6 billion for petrochemicals, $300 million for gas processing, and $150 million for solid fuels.

Anticipated expenditures in other areas of the world total $7.8 billion for refining projects, $10.4 billion for petrochemical facilities, $3 billion for gas processing, and $300 million for solid fuels projects.

Hydrocarbon Processing said refinery operating factors in the United States averaged 91.3 percent for all of 1977 compared with 87.6 percent for all of 1976.

"The increasing operating factors have been caused by greater demand for gasoline and heating fuels," the report said.

"The refining industry has done an excellent job keeping up with these demands. But it is now at the limit of its capacity. More capacity will have to be installed to meet the ever-increasing demand for energy."

The publication said the current list of firm refinery projects should boost U.S. refining capacity by 1.5 million barrels a day.

"About 532,000 barrels a day should come on stream during 1978, of which about 166,000 barrels a day already has been completed," the report said.

"Another 475,000 barrels a day is scheduled for completion in 1979, while 501,000 more should be completed in 1980. Nothing is scheduled beyond 1980 for the United States at the present time."

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The "Shifty Fifty" met Saturday and decided to steer clear of speakership politics but hold firm on plans for new House rules in the 1979 Texas Legislature.

Only 16 of the House members who organized during the recent special session showed up at private restaurant for the session.

Petition drive circulates here

A drive by a grieving Sunray mother to obtain corrective federal legislation regarding ingredient labels on drugs and vitamins has spread to Pampa.

Petitions are being circulated in Pampa by Mrs. Judith Loyd of 1922 N. Faulkner to aid in the drive launched by Mrs. Steve Weatherford in her efforts which have spread into 12 states.

Ronnie Weatherford, her five-year-old son, died May 15 in Texas Childrens Hospital, Houston.

His mother said his adverse reaction to a drug filler "at least worsened" his condition. She said her son had a reaction to corn sugar and that it was necessary for doctors treating him to "call drug companies every time they needed to change his medication."

Mrs. Weatherford said that the fastest time in which an answer was obtained was three hours and the longest was 24 hours.

She observed that a neurologist once commented that it is easier to find out the ingredients in dog food than what is in one pill.

"Nearly all products have corn sugar in them because it's cheaper and easier to manufacture," Mrs.

Field day planned for Wednesday

A field day will be held Wednesday at the Soil Conservation Service Plant Materials Center at Knox City, according to James L. McDonald, Pampa district conservationist.

He said the public is invited to visit the center which serves both Texas and Oklahoma.

A.C. Spencer, executive director of the Texas Soil and Water Conservation Board, will be the main speaker. He will speak at 12:30 p.m.

Guided tours will be conducted through the 90-acre center from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. A barbecue lunch will be available on a prepaid basis at $3 per person with payment to be sent to the Chamber of Commerce, Box 91, Knox City 78529.

The center is located on FM 1292, two miles north and two and one-half miles west of Knox City.

Cattle tips to be discussed

Stocker cattle production and management will be discussed at a 7:30 p.m. Tuesday meeting in the Gray County Courthouse Annex meeting room, according to Jo VanZandt, county extension agent.

He said the seminar will feature presentations on health practices, parasite control, feed and management tips.

There will also be a report on stocker cattle shipping research being conducted on a cooperative basis with southeastern states, VanZandt said.

The informal discussions will be presented by three extension specialists: Dr. Gene Cope, veterinarian; Dr. John McNeill, beef cattle specialist; and Dr. Carl Patrick, entomologist. Producers attending the session will have an opportunity to ask questions, VanZandt said.

Behind the Scenes

with
Pampa News City Editor
 Greg Hardin

ANOTHER STEP FORWARD and two steps backward is again the rule apparently when dealing with the government as a Pampan recently discovered. Orville Whinery organized a petition drive against a fuel cost adjustment by Southwestern Public Service. Whinery mailed the petition, which included more than 1,000 names, to the Attorney General but only got a nice letter for his troubles - no action. The letter by assistant attorney general Martha U. Terry told Whinery to take his problem to the mayor, so he did. It is now in the hands of city officials and we are keeping a close eye on what the city fathers do about the feelings of the voters.

BRAVO! TO THE HIGH SCHOOL journalists for their fine stand on trash in their most recent issue of the Little Harvester. We didn't like being the subject of their editorial comments and cartoon but we were glad to see that those few at least had the courage to stand up and say what they felt. The only way people have of correcting a situation is by interaction or speaking out for what they believe. We hope that the journalistic staff of the high school will aid us in correcting the situation that plagues the people of Pampa. We hope they will use as much creative talent in attacking the problem now that the editorial fun is over. Again BRAVO for the spirit you have displayed. If no other Pampan will speak out on an issue it is good to know the journalists of the future will.

WE WANT TO WELCOME Elena Callen to the Pampa News staff. Elena is the newest and youngest member of the editorial department at the paper and we have high hopes for the young woman who kicks off our high school intern program. Elena is currently working in the newsroom, but will shortly be out among the citizens of Pampa as a fully qualified reporter. The program is new and will take some time and adjustments before the problems with the system are solved. We hope the students who participate in the program are all as eager to learn as Elena appears to be.

Prison crowding local problem

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A House study committee said Saturday the 1979 Texas Legislature should give local communities more responsibility in taking care of those convicted of breaking the law.

"It is felt that the Texas Department of Corrections must embark on a strong community-based corrections program, as is used in several states in the nation today," said the interim report adopted unanimously by the House Social Services Committee.

The committee specifically proposed that the next legislature direct the TDC and Harris County officials to negotiate the sale of the Harris County Rehabilitation Center to the state "for use as a community-based correction facility."

IN WHAT WAS described as "not a normal procedure," mud was pumped from these tanks down into the drill pipes of a well leaking natural gas north of Wheeler Friday afternoon. The well, which exploded Wednesday because of a faulty valve, was capped by the famous Red Adair and his crew. Only one of the tanks of mud was used to stop the leak.

Gas well capped by Adair

A natural gas well north of Wheeler that exploded Wednesday morning was capped Friday afternoon by a team led by Red Adair of Houston.

The well, owned by Tri-Service Drill Co. and H.L. Brown Jr., was "killed" when 400 barrels of mud were pumped into it, according to Howard Baker of the company.

"We put the mud in at 2:30 and had it dead by 3," said Baker. "Everything went real good. We're preparing to go back to drilling."

"I could have done it (the capping), but we got Red Adair down here just to be on the safe side. It cost us some money but he's worth it."

The explosion was caused by a faulty valve.

"There's no way you'd know how much gas leaked out of the well between Wednesday and Friday," Baker said. "You'd figure six to eight million cubic feet a day since it started. That's a low estimate."

Group here tonight

The New-man Singers, a singing group from Fort Worth, will be ministering in song at 7 tonight at the Lamar Full Gospel Assembly Church, 1200 S. Sumner. The public is invited.

Kennedy candidate for judges seat

Carl Kennedy of Pampa has announced he is the Republican candidate for the Gray County judge seat in the November election. He will face incumbent Democrat Don Hinton.

Kennedy was asked by Gray County Republican Chairman Bobbie Nisbet to seek the post in place of Joe Curtis, who died in May. "I did considerable research of the situation," Kennedy said, and accepted the candidacy Friday.

Kennedy was born in Pampa in 1932, and graduated from Pampa High School in 1951. He attended Texas Tech University as a marketing major and graduated in 1955 with a business degree.

After serving as a contracting officer in the U.S. Air Force for two and a half years, Kennedy returned to Pampa and went into business with his father. He married Pat Reynolds in 1959.

Since 1964 Kennedy has been an active partner in Wiley Reynolds and Sons, a farm and ranch business. He and his wife have five children.

Kennedy feels he is qualified to be judge because "I sincerely believe I have better experience in the administrative responsibilities of this office. Because of my family and church interest, I also feel I can do a superb job on the judicial side."

"Because of the condition of our national economy, I believe our community needs to be assured that they have a strong county government," Kennedy said.

"I am impressed with the vast areas of responsibility the judge has. I consider it would be a challenge to do that job and do it well."

Chronister honored by Freemasons

Johnny Adam Chronister of 1706 Chestnut has been designated a Knight of the York Cross of Honour, the highest honorary degree in the York Rite of Freemasonry.

The degree is conferred only on those who have held the highest office in each of the four bodies of the rite. Only about 400 of the more than four and one-fourth million Freemasons in North America, the Philippines and Australia qualify for this honor.

Chronister has served as Master of Plemons Lodge of Masons; High Priest of Pampa Chapter; Royal Arch Masons; Master of Pampa Council; Royal and Select Masters; and Commander of Boger Commandery, Knight Templar.

The United States Army's First Cavalry division landed in Vietnam in 1965, the largest U.S. troop landing in the war.

'If I Should Die' film to be shown tonight

"If I Should Die," the newest film from Evangelical Communication Research Foundation, will be shown at 6:30 tonight at Bethel Assembly of God, located at the corner of Hamilton and Worrell streets.

Rev. Paul DeWolfe, pastor, said the 46-minute film shows how "no one is immune to the sting of death — its grief or sorrow; yet, through personal testimonies the film shares a living hope for man to face not only death but also the loss of loved ones."

He said the film brings together some of the world's most respected Christian doctors, theologians and psychologists to investigate the subject and how death relates to history's most consistent textbook on death and dying — the Bible.

Rev. DeWolfe said the public is invited to see the film.

DECORATING TRENDS...

by Charlie's

DEFINING SPACE with furniture groupings is one of the oldest and most basic principles of home furnishing, but it is one that keeps taking on new applications as our way of life changes.

The coming of the television age, for instance, has revolutionized furniture selection and placement wherever the TV set is placed, whether in the family room, den or living area. Either the set must be mobile, the furniture movable, or comfortable seating has to be placed where the screen can be viewed without strain.

Another change has been the disappearance in many homes of the formal dining room. Here furniture grouping can create the effect of a formal dining area without walls. Conversation area furnishings can "turn their back" to the dining area, helping to define it. Screens, beads or free standing dividers can separate areas handsomely without stealing space.

In large rooms furniture groups are especially effective...creating an entertainment area around the fireplace, a reading corner with chairs and bookcases, a dining or television area, a game area with table and chairs. Such groups break up the space and make it manageable -- and beautifully functional.

Comfortable chairs are an important part of any decorative grouping...and they are an important part of our furniture displays, too. You'll find chairs galore in our selection, in colors and sizes, fabrics and finishes to complement your taste and present decor. Come in and browse.

Crude oil refining capacity increased

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — World-wide crude oil refining capacity has increased more than 70 percent since 1970.

With Europe setting the pace, world capacity has increased in the 8-year period from 44.8 million barrels to 76.6 million barrels a day.

The capacity of European refineries jumped from 16 million to 32.6 million barrels daily. North American refineries moved from 13.6 million to 19.3 million barrels a day. The Far East jumped from 5 million to 9.6 million.

In its annual report on industry trends, Hydrocarbon Processing, a trade publication, says the present growth trend in refining capacity bears out the increasing use of crude oil as the world's preferred energy source.

The publication forecasts that in 1979 worldwide capital expenditures on new refining projects will approximate $11.2 billion and that maintenance costs will add another $4.3 billion.

In two years the number of refinery construction projects has increased from 857 to 1,014.

"This increasing refinery construction activity is directly related not only to the increasing dependence on crude oil as the major source of energy, but also to the rapidly growing worldwide demand for gasoline," the publication said.

"Similarly, U.S. refinery construction activity has been steadily growing, but with greater acceleration. Since June 1976, it has gone from a low of 183 projects to its present level of 255 projects."

The increased consumption of gasoline worldwide, the report added, is showing up in the rising level of construction activity of gasoline oriented refinery units.

Since 1970, the publication said, the industrial areas have increased their share of world refining capacity from 77.2 percent to 80.3 percent.

"Their 26.9 million barrels a day capacity increase amounted to 84.6 percent of the total worldwide lease of 31.8 million barrels a day during this 8-year period," the report said.

Compared with the $11.2 billion for refining projects, the publication estimates other worldwide capital expenditures by the industry next year will include $13 billion for petrochemical projects, $3.3 billion for gas processing facilities, and $450 million solid fuels projects.

Maintenance expenditure estimates include $5.7 billion for petrochemical plants and $490 million for gas processing facilities.

Capital expenditure projections for 1979 in the United States include $3.4 billion for refining, $2.6 billion for petrochemicals, $300 million for gas processing, and $150 million for solid fuels.

Anticipated expenditures in other areas of the world total $7.8 billion for refining projects, $10.4 billion for petrochemical facilities, $3 billion for gas processing, and $300 million for solid fuels projects.

Hydrocarbon Processing said refinery operating factors in the United States averaged 91.3 percent for all of 1977 compared with 87.6 percent for all of 1976.

"The increasing operating factors have been caused by greater demand for gasoline and heating fuels," the report said.

"The refining industry has done an excellent job keeping up with these demands. But it is now at the limit of its capacity. More capacity will have to be installed to meet the ever-increasing demand for energy."

The publication said the current list of firm refinery projects should boost U.S. refining capacity by 1.5 million barrels a day.

"About 532,000 barrels a day should come on stream during 1978, of which about 166,000 barrels a day already has been completed," the report said.

"Another 475,000 barrels a day is scheduled for completion in 1979, while 501,000 more should be completed in 1980. Nothing is scheduled beyond 1980 for the United States at the present time."

Beauty queen has many skills

By ROB WOOD
Associated Press Writer
BAY CITY, Texas (AP)—One look at Judy Barbour and there are no questions why she won several beauty titles and was a professional model.

One talk with Judy Barbour and there are no questions why she was salutatorian of her high school class at Wharton and an "A" student at the University of Houston.

But to see the 5-foot-4-inch, 110-pound beauty doesn't tip you to the fact that she has her commercial pilot's license, is a better-than-average shot with a rifle, a get-your-limit fisherman, and recently wrote a cookbook on how to prepare wild game such as elk, deer, dove, quail, duck, and such.

The book was written, Mrs. Barbour said in a recent interview, for those women whose husbands enjoy hunting, and bring home game that ends up in the freezer and shakes there for a year or more.

"I was in the same boat for sometime until I decided if my husband wanted to hunt, I had better learn how to cook wild game. I experimented and tried different things. I also learned that the real hunter and sportsman is a conservationist. What they kill they kill to eat."

"Now I can honestly say my family prefers the wild game to other meats. It is not as fat, has a very small amount of cholesterol and is much better nutritionally," she said.

Judy's husband, Harry, is a Bay City farmer and rancher, a professional hunter, and a partner in a big game outfitters' firm at Jackson, Wyo.

The couple spends half of the year in Texas and six months in Wyoming.

While in Wyoming, Mrs. Barbour does some hunting, a lot of cooking and her share of flying.

Now that she has a commercial license, Mrs. Barbour often is the pilot of a twin-engine plane chartered by outdoorsmen for trips into the western wilds.

Flying in the mountains of Wyoming is a thrill, especially for someone who was frightened when my husband suggested the first time I take the controls.

"Now I feel at home in the plane and I can say to Barry, 'Move over and let me fly,'" she said.

In her book, entitled "Elegant Elk-Delicious Deer", Mrs. Barbour has compiled all of her cooking experiments. Lessons learned from the wives married to other hunters, a few touches of the good life.

For examples, she suggest this menu for the wives of hunters on the day the old boys pack up the guns and head for the hills.

A bottle of wine, avocado halves stuffed with caviar, fresh fruit salad in cantaloup, pheasant or grouse, rice, sourdough French bread and southern pecan pie.

Or for a send-off the hunting husbands try hot wine, elk shish-kebab, zucchini casserole, armadine and sand tarts with sherbet.

Mrs. Barbour, who carefully dodges discussions of her age and refers to her two sons "as majors", was asked to describe the martial philosophy of a woman who is an expert cook, a hunter, a deepsea fisherman, a pilot, and so on and so on.

Only about half the adult population of America is sensitive to poison ivy.

In Agriculture

By JOE VANZANIT
County Extension Agent

Rain, rain, rain! What a wonderful gift. As so often is the case in this country, it goes from one extreme to the other. This will allow the wheat crop to get started this fall.

Some farmers will be planting as soon as fields dry. However, other farmers will wait and see how much and what their volunteer crop looks like—some may decide to leave their volunteer while others will plow up their volunteer and probably sow right behind the plow.

Normally, we say that volunteer is a source of infection for wheat streak mosaic. However, this year should be an exception to this because the long, hot dry summer killed most all summer grasses that carry the virus over during the summer. About the only source would be grasses around irrigated fields. Considering the weather situation, volunteer wheat coming up after the rains should not have any more mosaic than planted what would. The mosaic is carried from infected grass plants to wheat by the wheat curl mite.

Stocker cattle seminar
The rain should also create more interest in stocker cattle for the next season. Although rains are late and fall grazing of wheat will be limited, pasture prospects are certainly improved over what they were a week ago. There may still be a potential for good profit in properly managed stocker operations.

Cattlemen and prospective cattle operators are invited to a seminar on stocker cattle production at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday in Pampa at the Courthouse Annex.

Three extension specialists will present the program on health practices, parasite control, feed and management tips. Also a report on stocker cattle shipping research being conducted on a cooperative basis with southeastern states will be given.

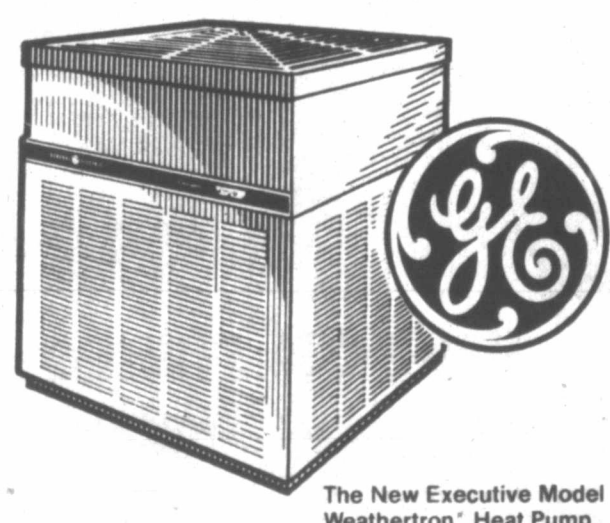

Speakers include: Dr. Gene Cope, veterinarian; Dr. John McNeil, beef cattle specialist; and Dr. Carl Patrick, entomologist. Their discussions will be informal and producers will have ample opportunity to get questions answered.

Fruit growers confab
Everyone interested or involved in fruit production is invited to attend the 1978 Texas Fruit Conference and Short Course at Texas A&M University, Oct. 3-4. A wide range of topics dealing with results of reasearch and extension programs will be presented. Special emphasis will be given to peach, apple, plum and blueberry production.

For more information contact the county extension office.
Fruit rots
There are a number of diseases that attack apples and pears just as they approach maturity. They will cause brown circular spots on the fruit. These fruit rots can be controlled with foliar sprays of a protective fungicide. There are a number of these on the market. Captan and Maneb, are effective against the fruit rots. It is important that you begin spraying in most areas during mid - summer and continue at two to three week intervals until the fruit is near harvest. It is important also that you control insects. Insects can carry the disease - causing organisms to healthy fruit. It is important that you follow a regular disease and insect program. It is too late for this year, but if you are having problems with rot, plan a disease and insect control program next year. For further information on apple fruit rots and other home garden diseases, contact the county extension office.

Pampa blanked in Altus

By JOE BLOBAUM
Pampa News Sports Editor

ALTUS, Okla. — The Pampa Harvesters are still trying to get their road act together, while Altus found the home crowd to its liking here Friday night during a 21-0 blanking of its Texas position.

Originally billed as the Steve McKeaver show, the Bulldogs' star running back had to share the top spot on the card with quarterback Gregg Buck, who riddled Pampa's secondary for over 200 yards passing in the victory.

"I think we knew he was that good," Coach John Welborn said of Buck's 14-for-26 performance. "We just didn't play the ball. We'd hang back and hang back after the pass was thrown. You've got to go after the ball once it's in the air."

The McKeaver-Buck duo accounted for 337 of Altus' 392 total yards. McKeaver carried the ball 13 times for 122 yards and lugged a screen pass to the Harvester 12-yard line late in the first half to set up the Bulldogs' first score.

Pampa missed a pair of scoring opportunities, however, before McKeaver. Buck and the Altus defense combined to shut down the Harvesters.

Jeff Copeland gave the Texas invaders great field position midway through the first quarter when he blocked Randy Reber's punt and recovered the loose ball at the Bulldog 13. But a five-yard penalty and two sacks of quarterback Rick Dougherty killed the first scoring chance for Pampa.

The Harvester defense repelled one Altus attack before the offense had another opportunity to get on the board. Starting on Pampa's 32, the Bulldogs picked up a pair of first downs to set up a first- and -goal on the one-yard line.

A five-yard penalty and a three-yard loss later, linebacker Mike Crippen intercepted Buck's pass and gave it back to the Pampa offense on its own seven.

That's when the Harvester offense, dormant through 1 1/2 quarters, finally came to life. Dougherty scrambled 22 yards to pick up the first Pampa first down of the night, with 6:39 remaining in the half.

After another first down and a clipping penalty on the Harvesters, Mike Porter ran a draw play from his own 27 to the Altus 11-yard line. It looked as if Pampa would get on the scoreboard with three minutes left in the half, but Doug Smith fumbled on the very next play and Altus' Cleatus McDonel covered the loose ball at the Bulldog 10.

That was just the beginning of a series of breaks that led to a 7-0 lead for the Bulldogs. The Harvester defense held fast, but a roughing the kicker penalty gave Altus new life — and a first down — on their own 32.

Buck threw a screen pass to McKeaver on first down, and the Bulldog halfback ran through tacklers to the Pampa 12. A roughness penalty gave Altus a first- and -goal on the Harvester six, and it took McKeaver just one twisting, slashing run to give his team a 6-0 lead with 46 seconds left in the half.

"We missed two or three tackles, and he's a good back," Welborn said of McKeaver's run with the pass. "You have to tackle him when you get the chance and we didn't."

A last-ditch effort by the Harvesters stalled on the Altus 29 when Dougherty's pass into the end zone fell incomplete.

It didn't take long for the Bulldogs to pad their lead once the second half started. After a one-yard run by Doug Kennedy on Pampa's opening play, Blair Philbrick intercepted a Dougherty pass on the Altus 43.

Following a five-yard penalty, McKeaver ripped off a 50-yard gallop to the Pampa 18. On the next play, Buck called his own number on the option and wasn't touched until his teammates corralled him in the end zone.

The Harvesters came back and drove to the Bulldog 22, but Porter was stopped short on a fourth-down attempt and Altus took over once again.

The Bulldogs didn't relinquish the ball until just 48 seconds remained in the third quarter. Following an exchange of punts, Pampa drove down to the Altus 26, where the Bulldogs stopped the Harvesters a foot short of a first down. An obvious pass interference infraction that wasn't called helped the Bulldog defense keep Pampa off the scoreboard during the drive.

Altus got its final touchdown when, with 2:38 remaining, Buck hit Jeff Hart with a pass in the middle of Pampa's secondary. Hart covered the 30 yards after breaking two tackles and added his third extra-point boot of the night for a 21-0 Altus lead.

"We just played a sorry game," Welborn said of the miscues and missed opportunities. "They whipped us physically. We played a good football team, but we probably made them look better than they are."

The Harvesters will play another good group of Bulldogs next week when they host Borger. That pack of Bulldogs blanked Hereford 13-0 Friday night. Hereford downed Pampa 13-7 in the season opener for both schools.

Wheeler bests Phillips, extends record to 3-0

WHEELER — Phillips actually led 7-6 at one point, but Wheeler used its powerful ground game to grind out a 37-7 win over the Blackhawks here Friday night.

The defending Class B state champions picked up 435 yards on the ground, including 267 on 23 carries by All-State halfback Marvin Grimes. Grimes scored once from four yards out, while sophomore fullback Benny Baker added a pair of touchdowns on runs of one and three yards.

Phillips, meanwhile, used a 15-for-36 passing attack to roll up 270 yards through the air, but the Mustangs intercepted five passes to take the wind out of the Hawk aerial attack.

White Deer finds 13 lucky number

CLAUDE — White Deer's Bucks ended one losing streak and lengthened another here Friday night as they won a wild 27-20 ball game from the Claude Mustangs.

Coach Mike Purchell's charges rolled up nearly 400 yards total offense to end a 12-game losing streak that dated back to last season, when the Bucks suffered through an 0-10 campaign.

"Number 12 was lucky for us," Purchell said. "We'd almost forgotten how good it felt to win."

After three relatively mild quarters had ended with the Bucks on top 14-6; the teams combined to light up the scoreboard for 27 points in the final 12 minutes.

"We kind of eased off and they kept coming," Purchell said. "It was a hitting ball game. They came back and stuck us like it was nothing — nothing. We had to hang on for dear life before it was over."

White Deer jumped to a 14-0 halftime lead on a 34-yard pass from Ralph Gallett to Doug Warminski and a four-yard run by Lloyd Bohannon. But Mike Weatherly led the Claude comeback with a six-yard run in the third quarter, and it took a 56-yard Gallett-to-Mike Pettit bomb to give the Bucks another two-touchdown lead.

Another Weatherly run, this time for two yards out, narrowed the gap to 21-12, but Gallett came right back with a one-yard plunge for a 27-12 lead.

"Gallett threw the ball very well," Purchell said. "We dropped several we could have

Groom Tigers donimate Irish

GROOM — "I think we dominated the game. The statistics show that. We did everything but score, but we scored enough."

That was Russell Roberts' assessment of his team's 20-7 victory over a gummy Shamrock team here Friday night.

The statistics favored the Tigers heavily. Groom racked up 20 first downs to four for the Irish and totaled over 300 yards on offense while limiting Shamrock to under 100.

"We pretty much ran where we wanted to," Roberts said of the 292 yards accumulated on the ground. "They came up tight and gave us the pass, but we couldn't hit them."

Groom just barely got on the scoreboard in the first half. Sophomore fullback Dwain Weller, who led all ball carriers with 198 yards on 35 carries, bulled his way over from the one on a fourth- and -goal with just seconds left.

That was all the scoring until the first minute of the fourth quarter, when Jigger Britten scored Groom's second touchdown from six yards out. Britten finished with 109 yards on 24 carries.

McLean downed 15-7 on turnovers

SILVERTON — For the second straight week, turnovers crushed McLean's hopes for its second win of the season as the Tigers dropped a 15-7 decision to the Silvertown Owls.

McLean was down 9-0 almost immediately. Punter Chuck Pierce had to cover the ball in his own end zone for a Silvertown safety. On the ensuing free kick, a penalty on the Tigers gave Silvertown the ball deep in McLean territory.

Silvertown's Paul Brannon wasted little time, going six yards for the touchdown and an eight-point Owl lead.

"The safety hurt us real bad, because it happened so early in the game," Coach Bill Coward said.

But the Tigers roared back to score their TD, marching 65 yards after receiving the kickoff. Tommy Eck's 15-yard run capped the drive and Steve Ellison's kick reduced the deficit to two points.

That was about as much offense as McLean could generate, however. The Owls gave the Tigers 18 first downs, but held McLean to just over 100 yards total offense.

"We just couldn't get our offense uncorked," Coward said. "They stunted almost every play. We showed it to them all week long in practice but we couldn't pick it up."

Silvertown's final score came after Wayne Reed intercepted a pass and returned it to the Tiger one-yard line. From there,

Sox move up

TORONTO (AP) — Jim Rice belted his 43rd home run of the season and Carl Yazstrzemi and Jack Brohamer added run-scoring singles as the Boston Red Sox beat the Toronto Blue Jays 3-1 Saturday.

The victory moved the Red Sox to within one game of the first-place New York Yankees in the American League East. New York was routed by Cleveland 10-1 in its game Saturday.

Luis Tiant, 11-8, scattered seven hits to get the victory for the Red Sox. Dave McKay's leadoff walk in the sixth followed by Alan Ashby's double into the leftfield corner produced the lone run off the veteran right-hander, who struck out six and walked five.

Miami wins district opener

MIAMI — The Miami Warriors took the wind out of the Textline Tornados here Friday as the Warriors defeated the Tornados 20-7 in the District 1-B opener for both teams.

Miami racked up 277 yards total offense compared with only 157 for Textline.

In spite of Miami's dominance over Textline, Miami coach Dennis Anderson said he was not particularly pleased with the performance of the Warriors.

"I don't think we played very well," Anderson said. "The offense made too many mistakes. They were missing their blocks."

The Warriors will concentrate on offense in practice this week before they host Groom Friday, according to Anderson.

Although Miami dominated Textline, the outstanding player in the game was Textline's Gregg Caldwell. He ran 41 yards for the Tornados only touchdown, and the Warriors had trouble containing him all evening.

"He (Caldwell) is a pretty exceptional player," Anderson commented. "He's got a lot of speed. I don't know what he runs the hundred in, but I imagine it's nine something."

In first quarter action, the name of the game was turnovers as each team recovered a fumble and Miami nabbed an interception.

The Warriors were given good field position late in the first quarter when junior Randy Stone picked off a Danny Poole pass on the Textline 20-yard line.

Miami moved up to the six-yard line before junior halfback Kevin Jenkins fumbled and Textline recovered.

Unable to make a first down, Caldwell punted, giving Miami the ball on the Textline 20-yard line. A 20-yard pass to sophomore David Haws gave the Warriors a first and goal on the eight-yard line.

From the six-yard line Daugherty found Haws open in the end zone and put six points on the board.

The Warriors came right back for another touchdown after regaining possession on the Textline 47-yard line.

From the 47, Daugherty found Haws once again. Haws tucked away the ball and was finally dragged down on the 5-yard line.

On second and goal, Jenkins took the handoff from Daugherty into the end zone, chalking up another six points.

Once again Stone's foot failed, and the scoreboard read 12-0 for the remainder of the first half.

Textline's only score came in the third quarter when Caldwell picked off a Daugherty pass near the Textline 35-yard line. He ran the ball back for about 13 yards before he was stopped on the Tornado 48.

Textline fought their way into Miami territory where, on first and ten, Caldwell ran around left end and romped 41 yards for a touchdown.

Miami's final scoring effort of the game came with 5:05 left to play.

The Warriors moved into scoring range when, from the Textline 38-yard line, Daugherty hit Johnny Heiskell near the 25-yard line. Heiskell ran for about 17 more yards before he was hauled down on the 8-yard line.

On fourth and goal from the one-yard line, Daugherty ran around left end on a quarterback sneak to up the Miami total to 18.

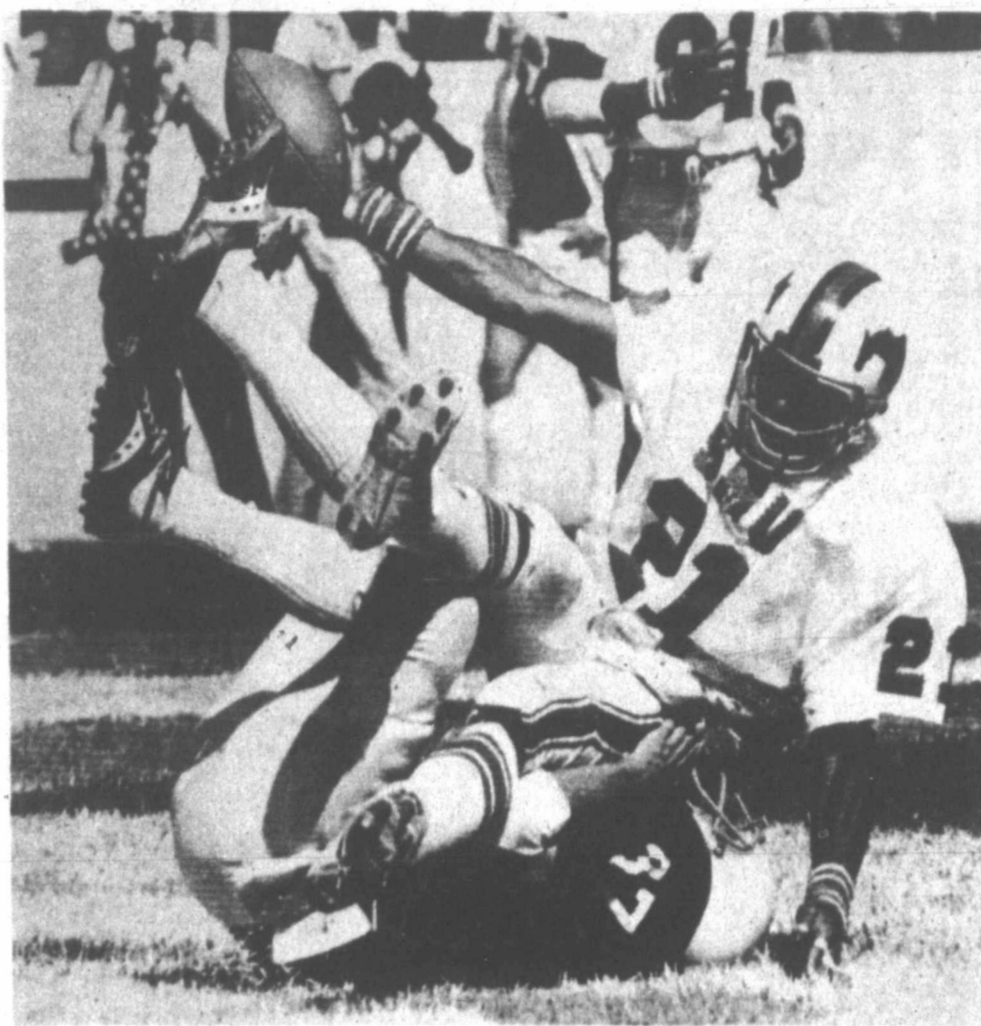

The Warriors picked up a two-point conversion on a pitchout to Jenkins. Jenkins ran around right into the end zone to make the final score 20-7.

Penn State rallies to edge SMU

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — A pair of third period touchdowns on a 16-yard pass by quarterback Chuck Fusina and a three-yard run by fullback Matt Suhey rallied third-ranked Penn State to a 26-21 college football victory Saturday over Southern Methodist and its aerial show.

Penn State, unbeaten in four games, trailed the 17-point underdog Mustangs from the Southwest Conference 21-12 with 12 minutes left in the third quarter.

State then drove 69 yards on nine plays with Fusina throwing 16 yards to Scott Fitzkee and Matt Bahr converting the extra point to reduce the SMU lead to 21-19.

After SMU was forced to punt, Penn State rolled 73 yards on 12 plays for the winning touchdown. Fusina completed passes of 7, 13 and 12 yards that moved the ball for a first down to the SMU 30. Freshman Joel Coles ran for 12. Booker Moore raced 15, and Suhey then cracked three yards into the end zone. Bahr converted to make it 26-21.

SMU sophomore quarterback Mike Ford's pinpoint passing keyed two second-quarter touchdowns that sent the Mustangs off at halftime with a 14-12 lead. All of Penn State's first half points came on field goals by Bahr — 25, 26, 41 and 30 yards. The Penn State kicker now has 13 three-pointers in 15 attempts this season.

USC knocks off Tide

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Charles White made up for two costly fumbles by shredding Alabama's defense for 199 yards, including a 40-yard touchdown run, as No. 7 Southern California knocked off No. 1 Alabama 24-14 Saturday.

Jans then marched to the Alabama 23 on a drive that lasted almost 8 1/2 minutes.

Southern Cal wrapped it up in the final period on TD passes of 6 and 40 yards from Paul McDonald to Kevin Williams.

The Crimson Tide had pulled to 10-7 when Major Ogilvie scored on a 41-yard dash early in the third period.

But McDonald's touchdown passes to Williams built the Trojans' lead to 24-7 and more than offset a 41-yard Alabama scoring pass from Jeff Rutledge to Bart Krout with 7:10 remaining.

Both teams came into the game with 2-0 records.

Notre Dame falls for second straight loss

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Rich Leach hurled three second-half touchdown passes, two to Doug Marsh, and a 40-yard clincher to Ralph Clayton Saturday to lead fifth-ranked Michigan to a 28-14 victory over No. 14 Notre Dame.

It was the second loss in a row for the Irish and the first time that's happened in 15 years.

Trailing 14-7 at the half, the Wolverines turned a recovered fumble and two pass interceptions into touchdowns against the Irish.

The Irish struck for a quick lead when Russell Davis fumbled on a 16-yard pass.

Leach directed a 71-yard drive in 15 plays before hitting Marsh with a five-yard touchdown pass.

After an interception, on the opening play of the fourth quarter, Leach connected with Marsh for 17 yards and a touchdown. Gregg Willner missed the conversion attempt and Michigan led 20-14.

Mike Harden then intercepted another pass and two plays later, Leach unloaded with his bomb to Clayton to put the game out of reach.

Walk-on player thwarts WTSU

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — Freshman Arthur Williams, a walk-on player from Memphis, was a surprise starter and helped lead Southern Illinois to a 17-3 Missouri Valley Conference football victory over defending champion West Texas State Saturday.

The two teams combined for 16 punts in a low-scoring first half, with the only scoring coming from SIU kicker Les Petroff who connected on a 37-yard field goal in the first quarter.

SIU struck in the third period as Williams hit Kevin House with a 68-yard pass play. Minutes later, the Sulukis made it 17-0 as sophomore Joe Croft ran 15 yards following an SIU pass interception.

The Buffaloes' only score came on a 22-yard field goal by Ricky Wright with 11:49 to go in the game.

West Texas running back Bo Robinson was the game's top individual, gaining 111 yards in 23 trips.

The victory was SIU's first in MVC competition which the Sulukis entered last season. They are 2-1 overall and 1-1 in the conference. West Texas is 1-3 and 0-1.

Dallas, Cards seek return to past glories

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP)—Where have the Cardiac Cardinals gone? For that matter where is the Dallas Domesday defense?

Both have been nearly extinct species in the early, early National Football League campaign.

St. Louis high-flying offense which produced so many last-second victories under Don Corvelli has been spluttering like the opposition has 12 men on the field under new Coach Bud Wilkinson.

And the Dallas defense which was so dominating in the NFL playoffs last year has played like there were 10 men on the field in welding 24 and 27 points to the New York Giants and the Los Angeles Rams, respectively.

"We are a disappointed football team," said Wilkinson, the 61-year-old former Oklahoma coach who brings his winless Cardinals into Texas Stadium for a National Conference Eastern Division matchup with the suddenly less than awesome Cowboys.

"Sure, the schedule is tough, but the schedule is a fact of life," said Wilkinson. "Yes, we've had some injury problems. But you can't look at those two factors and say that's why we haven't won."

"We haven't won because we still have not played with the intensity we should have. We've lost because we've dropped passes and missed tackles."

Dallas Coach Tom Landry said it's still the same old Cardinals in one respect: "I see no difference in attitude and pursuit. They are a hard-hitting team. I look at the Cardinals and I see all-out effort. We've got to him 'em fast."

St. Louis had four defensive starters missing last week and fielded a patchwork offensive line. Of course, halfback Terry Metcalf, who terrorized the Cowboys for years, has gone to Canadian football. Tight end J.V. Cain is out with an injury. Wide receiver Mel Gray, who dropped three passes last week, still frightens the Cowboys.

"He always comes alive against us, he's done it every year," said Cowboy special scout Ernie Allen.

Dallas is 2-1 but battered and bruised after a 27-14 loss to the Los Angeles Rams in which the defense collapsed.

"I'm still not worried," said Landry. "We can look awful bad but we also can look awful good," Wilkinson said. "The Cowboys still have the best team in football. We'll have to get very lucky to beat them."

Rams won't key on Campbell

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP)—Los Angeles Rams Coach Ray Malavasi says the Rams won't be singling out Houston Oiler rookie Earl Campbell, the National Football League's leading rusher, for any special treatment Sunday when LA brings its unbeaten record to the Astrodome.

The Rams, after a preseason of discontent, go into the game with a 3-0 record and an im-

Hunter safety course offered

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department and the Pampa Optimist Club have combined forces to offer a hunter safety course for Pampa's young hunters.

Buck Williams of the P&WD said the course will begin Oct. 5 at the Optimist Boys Club, 601 E. Craven, at 7:30 p.m. The course usually consists of four classes running about two hours each, he said. All classes will meet on Thursday night.

The course is restricted to hunters 12 years of age and older. Williams said interested persons can register at Al's Surplus, 1900 Alcock, from 8-5 Monday through Friday. There is a $3 registration fee.

Volunteer instructors will run the course, Williams said. He added that hunter safety courses are voluntary in Texas, but are required in most surrounding states.

Topics to be covered include handling of firearms, first aid in the field and survival, as well as basic hunter safety. The course is geared for 12-14-year-olds, Williams said.

"We stopped Dorsett because we have tremendous defensive speed and on that particular day we had great pursuit to the football."

But that doesn't mean the Rams defense won't be aware of who's carrying the football. "He's different than Dorsett," Malavasi said of Campbell. "He's bigger and more powerful."

Campbell goes into the game with 322 yards on 62 carries and two 100-yard performances in his first three professional games and is a major reason the Oilers have developed a bonafide running game instead of the touchdown bomb offense of Dan Pastorini to Ken Burrough.

After a season opening loss to Atlanta, the Oilers have won two straight in the fourth quarter by putting together ground-oriented drives, usually with Campbell leading the charge. Oiler Coach O.A. "Bum"

Phillips realizes however that Oilers are going to have to discard their fourth quarter comebacks against the Rams.

"I'm proud of the way we came back the last two weeks but we can't play like that and expect to win," Phillips said. "We're going to have to put it together and keep it together against L.A."

The Ram rushing attack depends on John Cappelletti and Cullen Bryant. Bryant has 142 yards on 42 carries and Cappelletti has 122 yards on 41 carries in three games.

The game is a sellout for the second straight week and will be shown on local television.

“Central Holding Place for Badmen”

gallery

Amarillo may be the cosmopolitan center of the Panhandle; Pampa may be the Mecca of the Panhandle (according to Chamber of Commerce literature); Canadian may be the boom town of the Panhandle, but Mobeetie is The Historical Town.

Sallie B. Harris, president of the Old Mobeetie Association and author of a volume on the history of the area: “Mobeetie has probably had more names and been moved from one location to another more times than any other town known, and probably has had the most disasters.”

Mobeetie, “the Capitol of the Panhandle of Texas, at one time”; Mobeetie, location of the oldest jail in the Panhandle, which still stands. It was recently restored and was opened as a museum Labor Day.

In Harris’ words, “The stone jail was begun in 1880 after the Courthouse was completed, and the rock was hauled seven miles from Emanuel Dubb’s (first county judge in the Texas Panhandle and in Wheeler County) farm east of town. The pit is still visible where the rock was quarried, one hundred years ago.

“Rock Masons who cut and built the jail were shipped from Ireland. The jail took five years to complete because of disqualification in the use of some faulty stones. It was completed and approved in 1886 after the hanging device was installed by the contractor, a John W. Thomas of Fort Worth.”

This “central holding place for badmen”, as it is called on a plaque outside the building, was built at a cost of $18,500, including $1,200 for the hanging device, which was put in to meet state requirements.

The second jail was a distinct improvement over the first one, a 10 by 10 by 8 foot tall cottonwood structure with a dirt floor and no door or windows (criminals were taken in a by ladder).

The stone jail has two levels: the upstairs contained the cells for prisoners, while the downstairs provided living quarters for the sheriff. A former Texas Ranger, Capt.

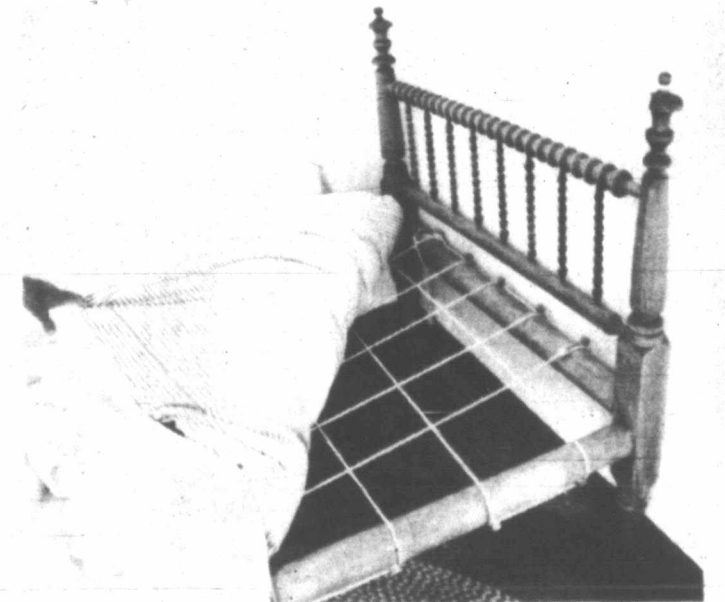

G.W. Arrington, served as sheriff of Wheeler and 14 attached counties from 1882-1890. During that time some of his children, who are still alive, were born in the jail.

A few interesting historical facts about the jail and the original community, known today as “Old Mobeetie”:

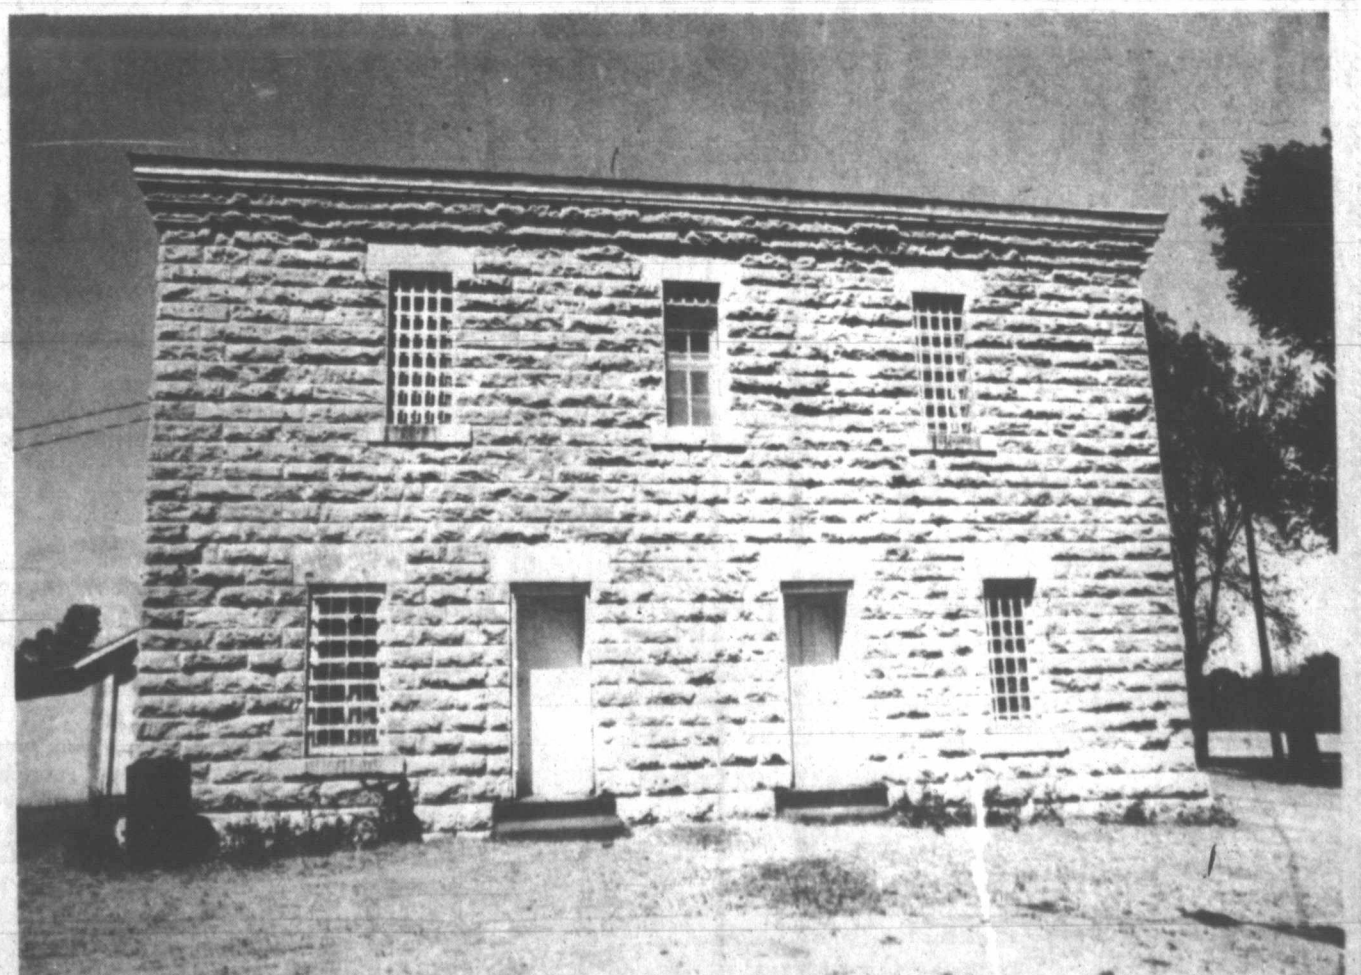

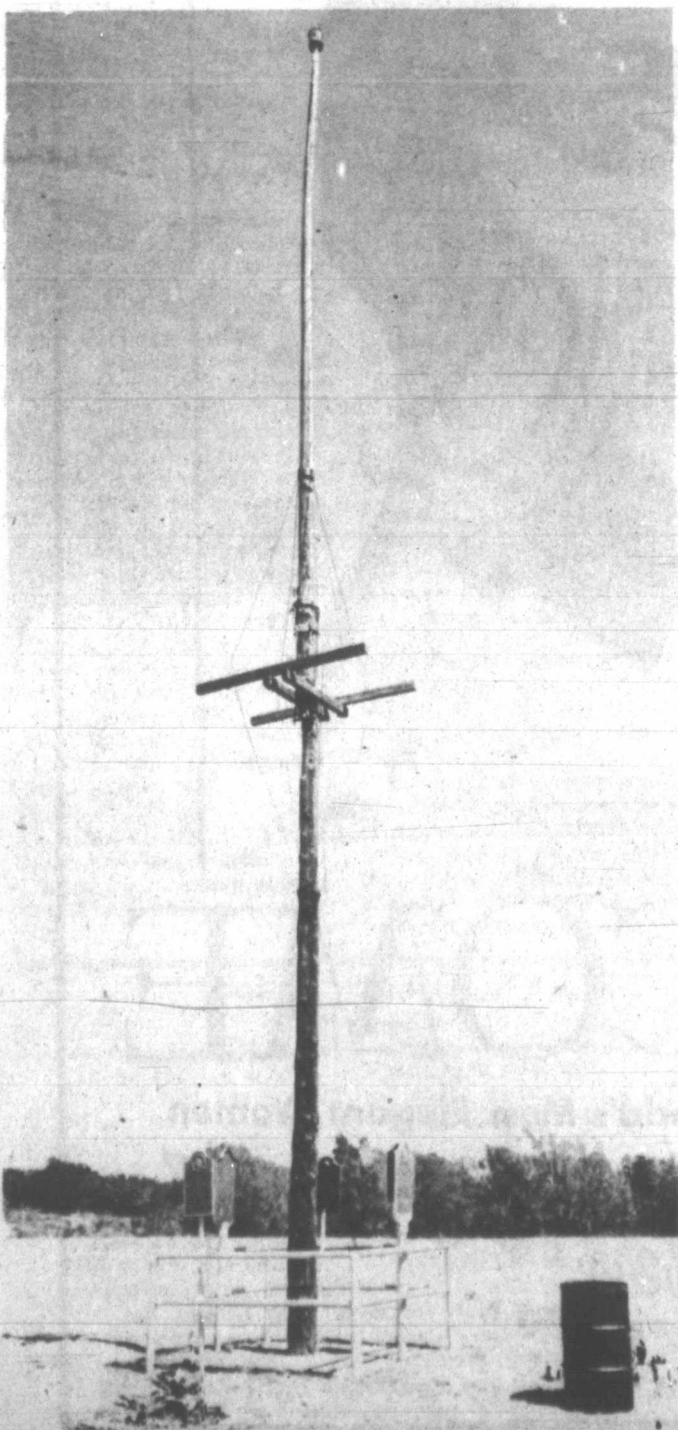

— Mobeetie began in 1873 as the settlement of Hide Town, where hunters piled their buffalo hides so freighters from Dodge City, Kansas could pick them up and take them to market. After two years all the buffalo had been killed, so the town was moved and the name was changed to Sweetwater.

— From 1875 until 1879, before a county court was organized, Sweetwater was a “rough and rowdy town patronized by soldiers, buffalo hunters, freighters, gamblers, cowboys and roughnecks of every description,” according to Sallie Harris. At one time, a total of 13 saloons were counted on Main Street, and “houses of ill repute” prospered. The nearest law was 200 miles away in (See OLDEST on page 14)

(Above and right) The ground level of the jail building, originally used as living quarters for sheriffs, now contains a museum. (Below) The 50 foot flagpole now standing in front of the building was originally located at Fort Elliott, about a mile to the northwest. J.J. Long, a teamster-merchant, was hired to provide the flagpole for the fort. He cut two trees at Cedar Breaks, 30 miles away, and hauled them to the fort by wagon. After Fort Elliott closed in 1890, Long bought the pole and placed it in front of his store. It was erected at its present location in 1949.

Oldest jail in the Panhandle now a museum

Henritta, Texas, "so the six gun was the chief law used, and every man carried one or two."

The town has been moved five times. The name was changed to Mobeetie (an Indian word meaning Sweetwater) in 1879 when a post office was applied for and refused because there was already a town named Sweetwater in Texas. An Indian scout (tribe unknown) was consulted, the town was renamed and a post office was granted.

In 1879, the state granted Wheeler County jurisdiction over the entire Panhandle — 26 counties in all — as governing body. In effect, this made the county seat, Mobeetie, the capitol of the Panhandle.

A prisoner once escaped through the jail roof and jumped off, landing on a washpot on the ground. He was tracked to a nearby creek and, although he was injured and there was snow on the ground, he waded in and escaped his pursuers.

The famed gambler Bat Masterson was reportedly sheriff for a time. He was also a surveyor, and the town site was surveyed by him with the help of a young man named Temple Houston.

Temple Houston was the son of Sam Houston, the "Father of Texas." Young Houston was a lawyer as well as an attorney, and he served as a state senator from Wheeler County from 1885-1887. He went on to give the dedicatory speech for the Texas Capitol in 1888.

The booming town was at its peak by 1885, but after 1890 it was all downhill for Mobeetie. A string of occurrences — the closing of nearby Fort Elliott; the building of the Santa Fe Railroad, which missed Mobeetie by 30 miles and resulted in the new town of Canadian; the devastating tornado of 1896; the Rock Island railroad, which also missed Mobeetie by 30 miles, resulting in the new town of Shamrock; and the move of the county courthouse from Mobeetie to Wheeler in 1908 — all these blows literally decimated the businesses and population of Mobeetie.

In 1928, when the Santa Fe built a line from Pampa to Clinton, missing Mobeetie by a mile, the local merchants decided to move the town north to its fifth and present location, about a half-mile north of Highway 152. There New Mobeetie stands today, a small, steady, and finally permanent community.

Old Mobeetie became but a ghost, a shadow of its former self. Nothing remained but a few homes and the jail building, with its two foot-thick stone walls. A town representing the white settlers' taming of the once desolate Panhandle was abandoned; it seemed as though the area's pioneer center of government, rich in history, would be forgotten.

Not so, fortunately. A group of local citizens became concerned and formed the Old Mobeetie Association. With the cooperation of the entire county, and with much work and many donations, they recently reopened the jail and are in the process of building a frontier town and state park at the site.

Charlie and Grace Bright, a husband-wife caretaker team, live in a trailer at the site and maintain the jail museum, giving tours of the building.

"We came out about two years ago," Grace Bright said. "Kids were tearing it up. All the window glass was broken and the front doors were torn off." Graffiti, some of it dating back to the 1950s, still defaces a few of the downstairs walls. Most is of the nature of "John Doe was here, 1961" and can be interpreted as a phase of the building's history.

"We're trying to rebuild most of Old Mobeetie the way it used to be," said Grace. That includes a church, barber shop, grocery store and, yes, all 13 saloons.

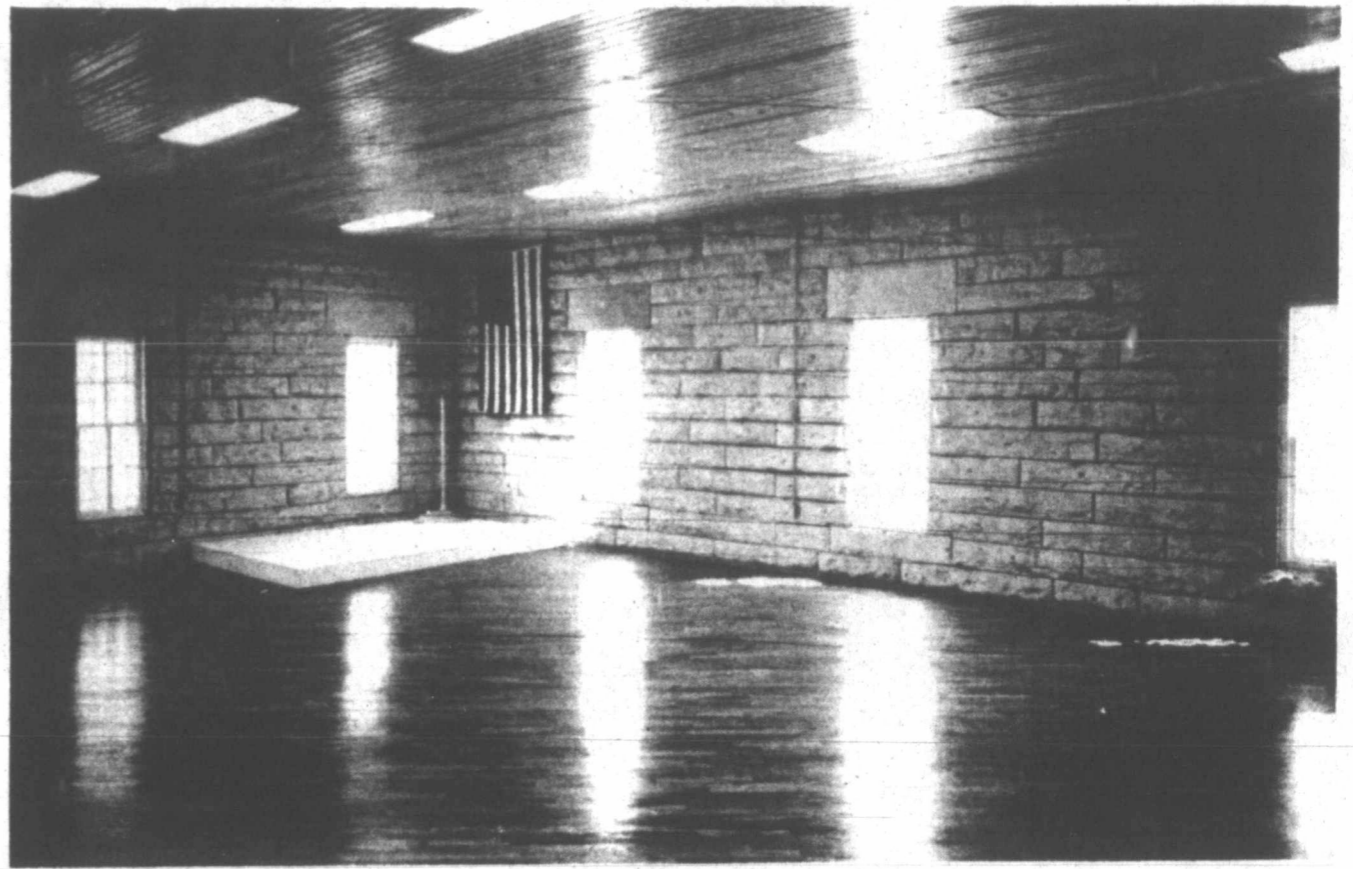

At an Old Settlers remembrance on Labor Day, over $300 was collected toward the restoration goal from over 1200 registered visitors. Donations to the jail fund come in regularly, Grace said, and a country-western dance is held the first Saturday of each month under the arbor behind the jail building.

Grace Bright said she has no idea when the town restoration will be completed, but it is likely to be a slow process. "We can't get nobody to help us," she said. "We don't get paid for what we do, but we get our trailer and utilities furnished."

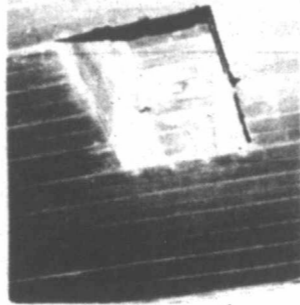

A visit to the jail museum is a must for history-conscious Pampans; it's an easy half-hour drive east on Highway 152. The tour is free, and the Brights are friendly and informative. Visitors are asked to sign a guestbook, and donations are welcome.

Judging from the existing museum, the restored town of Old Mobeetie promises to be a historian's delight.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our 24-year-old daughter, Debbie, has been living in New York for a year. (We live in California.) Debbie is a sensible, educated, single woman who has an excellent position. She's told us that she's romantically involved with John, a 33-year-old professional man. She says he is an outstanding person with fine qualities. They are not engaged, but he's the first man she's ever been serious about. Our only objection to this match is that John is not of our religion.

Debbie phoned to tell us that John's mother called her from Portland, Ore., and offered to pay her air fare there for the weekend to meet John's father, who is dying of cancer. They've never met Debbie, but have spoken to her on the phone often. John's mother said she felt that her husband would be happier knowing that his only son was going with a lovely girl.

Because my husband and I disapprove of our daughter's involvement with a man not of our faith, we told Debbie that we did not want her to go to Portland. Do you think we were wrong?

WONDERING IN WOODSIDE

DEAR WONDERING: Yes. A 24-year-old woman with your daughter's qualifications is capable of making her own decisions (including whom she should marry), and for you to put the kibosh on that trip for any reason was wrong. Whether or not Debbie and John marry, if she can make a dying man happy I think she should go. And I hope she does.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are finally being divorced after 12 years of a very stormy marriage and several separations.

My lawyer instructed me to move out of the house, so I did. The problem is that every time I go to the house to talk to my wife about some matter pertaining to the settlement, one thing leads to another and I end up sleeping there. (With her.)

It's ridiculous the way I go out and move the car so nobody will see it parked in front of the house all night. Aren't we legally married until the divorce decree is final? If so, aren't we entitled to sleep together if we feel like it?

Please don't tell me that if we still want to sleep together we should consider saving our marriage. She is impossible to live with, and she says the same about me, but I must admit sex with her is the best. Do you think we're crazy?

BEING HONEST

DEAR HONEST: No. I think you're wise to recognize that fact that sexual compatibility isn't everything. But if you want to know if you're entitled to marital privileges until your divorce is final, ask your lawyer.

DEAR ABBY: In a courtship between a woman 68 and a man 70, who should offer the first kiss?

Please don't think this is a joke. I am a widow and he is a widower, and we are getting very close to where I will need the answer.

If he should make the first move, should I respond willingly? Or am I the one who should let him know I am not adverse to a romantic relationship? (I'm not, but I don't want to push for it.)

Women used to sit back and let the men make all the overtures, but perhaps women's lib has changed all that. Or has it?

OLDSTERS

DEAR OLDSTERS: If you feel like kissing him, go ahead and kiss him. He'll probably meet you halfway, and beat you to the finish line.

Ask Dr. Lamb

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 60 years old. My husband is 58. We have always had a very good marriage and still do but lately something has happened to our sex life. It, too, was very good but we have both lost the urge. Somehow we feel that something precious has been lost. About nine months ago, after a physical examination, my doctor reduced my estrogen. I had a hysterectomy 13 years ago and I have been taking Premarin pills since. Not only did he reduce my medicine to three times a week but the amount in each pill is less. Shortly thereafter I lost most of my interest in sex.

Furthermore, I think I'm getting many hot flashes. Quite often I wake up in the early morning hours very hot and have to throw off the covers. Otherwise I'm in excellent health and can think of nothing else that would cause this.

About the same time my husband's doctor prescribed Valium for him because of a stressful job situation. It seems like that is when his lack of desire started.

My questions are: Could the reduction of estrogen be my problem and if so, why can't I go back to the former quantity of Premarin? Would it be harmful since I've already had my uterus out and therefore I can't very well get cancer of it? Also, is my lack of estrogen causing hot flashes?

Has the Valium caused my husband to lose his libido? Have you ever heard of this as a side effect? Or are we just getting old? I would sure appreciate a reply as I'm too embarrassed to ask my doctor.

DEAR READER — I think you had better ask your doctor because both of your questions are very sensible ones.

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — Recently I purchased a beautiful old quilt that has several rust stains on it. Does anyone have any suggestions for how they can be removed? — LINDA

DEAR LINDA — Many old quilts are very valuable so do handle with care. The fabric may be fragile from age and that would have a bearing on how severe a treatment it could take. If the rust spots are in the white part of the quilt you might experiment on an inconspicuous spot with lemon juice and salt. If the rest of the quilt could be covered to prevent fading the treated parts could be placed in the sunlight. Carefully remove by rinsing the treated places. Why not take the quilt to a dry cleaner first and get an opinion as to how much they feel the fabric can take. — POLLY

FASHIONS FOCUS ON SHOULDER

Fashions focus on the shoulder this season. From the popular shoulder strappings, tucks, embroidery and other detailing currently popular, fashion is adding an exaggerated shape with shoulder pads. The look ranges from the more extreme "football" effect to a slight shoulder modification. Besides pads in jackets and coats, women will see them also in blouses and dresses.

Considered a basic homesewing notion, shoulder pads were primarily used in outerwear and suit jackets or blazers. However, in line with an increased fashion emphasis, notion companies are expanding shoulder pad varieties and quantities. Some of the types available include blouse pads, iron-ons, press-on-peel-offs, heavy designer weights and covered pads. Some companies distinguish between shoulder pads and shoulder shapes with the shape being a thinner version.

Many interfacing companies provide information for making shoulder pads. For a set-in sleeve, the armhole seamline of the garment is traced between front and back armhole notches. The width along the shoulder seam and number of padding layers needed depends on the garment, figure and look intended. Before sewing any shoulder pad into a garment along armhole and shoulder seam allowances, first pin the shoulder pad in place and try the garment on. Placement, size or amount of padding is easiest altered at that time.

Figure-wise, exaggerated shoulders usually have a shortening and broadening effect on the figure but can also balance a heavy hipline. Slight to moderate padding often makes garments fit better, maintain their shape longer and even correct some fitting problems such as sloping shoulders.

APPLIANCE ECONOMY

Which appliance cooks which food most economically? Compare operating costs. Use beef stew as the trial recipe, and 4.5 cents per kilowatt hour (KWH) as the fuel cost.

Cooking the stew on a large surface unit on low heat for about three hours will cost about six cents, and using pressure saucepan on a small surface unit and a medium heat setting costs only 1 cent for one half hour of cooking time. Three hours of oven baking in a well-insulated oven costs about 6 cents. The cost of using a conventional oven would be slightly higher. Continuous heating 10 hours in a low wattage slow cooker costs 3 cents. Beef stew requires about one hour of cooking in a microwave oven on the high setting, which would cost about 7 cents.

Determine the cost of various methods of preparing the foods your family frequently eats. Multiply the wattage of the appliance by the hours or fraction of an hour the appliance is used. Divide the answer by 1,000 and you will know the number of kilowatt hours of electricity used by each method. Multiply the number of KWH used by the local rate charged for each KWH.

Remember that some appliances are thermostatically controlled and are not "on" the full cooking time. An electric oven is "on" only one-fourth of the cooking time. Start with foods you prepare often, use appliances efficiently and use the most efficient appliance to save home energy.

INSTANT BREAD PUDDING

8 to 10 slices white bread
2 packages (4-serving size) vanilla flavor instant pudding and pie filling
4 cups cold milk
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg

1 teaspoon vanilla
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1/4 cup chopped nuts

Trim crusts from bread; toast and cut into 1/2-inch cubes. Arrange half of the bread cubes in 1-1/2-quart baking dish. Prepare pudding mix with milk as directed on package for pudding, adding salt, nutmeg, cinnamon and vanilla before beating. Pour half the pudding over bread cubes, add remaining bread cubes and top with remaining pudding. Combine brown sugar and nuts. Sprinkle over pudding, and broil 2 to 3 minutes. Chill. Makes 6 cups or 10 to 12 servings.

1 1/2 cups chicken broth
1 1/2 cups milk
3 cups cubed cooked chicken or turkey
1 cup cooked peas
1/4 cup chopped pimento
1 cup quartered orange pieces
1 cup halved green grapes
1/4 cup Bacardi light rum
8 baked patty shells

In large saucepan, melt butter. Add green pepper and onions and cook until soft. Add flour and cook until bubbly and smooth. Remove from heat and gradually blend in broth and milk. Cook, stirring, until thickened and smooth. Add chicken, peas, pimento, orange, grapes and rum. Heat, stirring occasionally. Serve in patty shells. Makes 8 servings.

Plums are plum dandy

By Allan and Sheila Swenson
NEA Garden Columnists

Plums can be grown more easily in more parts of America than practically any other tree fruit. You have a greater selection of species and varieties. Some can tolerate extreme cold, while others prefer warmer climates. Their small tree size lets you plant plums both as decorative landscape accents and for fruitful fun.

Your choice is wide among the five basic plum groups descended from European plum families. The Prune group provides plums that can be picked and dried with pit intact. Green Gage plums are identified by round fruit with yellow, green or reddish flesh, which is sweet and juicy. Yellow Egg plums are mainly commercial canning types. Imperatrice plums include most of the blue-colored ones that bear heavily, yielding medium-size, oval-shaped fruit with firm flesh. Lombard-type plums are reddish, smaller and somewhat lower in quality.

American and Japanese plums are also available; the Japanese types being more attractive in blooming habit. Among the hundreds of plum varieties, some are self fruitful, others require cross pollination from another plum tree nearby.

European plums have the best flavor and offer you wider choices of varieties. Montfort is an old French blue plum with dark purple, juicy, rich fruit. French Damson is vigorous and productive, yielding large plums for making plum preserves.

Green Gage is a European favorite with medium size, yellow-green fruit, mottled with red. It is ideal for dessert with rich, juicy taste. Leaton Gage bears high quality plums on vigorous, productive trees.

In colder areas, Mount Royal, a prune type, is good for dessert or jam, and survives even icy Canadian winters. Purple Heart, developed in New Hampshire, has deep red fruits with sweet, red flesh. This tree is low and spreading, fitting well into home landscape scenes.

For warmer areas, Abundance is a heavy yielder of large, cherry-red fruits with light yellow flesh. It makes tasty jam or jelly. Burbank, with abundant, large, bright reddish-purple fruits matures late. Its meaty, golden yellow flesh is excellent for baking and cooking.

Among Japanese plums that usually require two trees to insure cross pollination, Formosa has large attractive, juicy fruit, but it bears biennially.

Santa Rosa is one of Luther Burbank's more noteworthy developments, prolific with large, attractive fruits.

Burbank is hardy, both the trees and their buds. It produces heavily, yielding medium to large fruits, juicy sweet on low-growing, somewhat drooping trees.

Mail order fruit tree nurseries list other superior varieties and our latest book, "Landscape You Can Eat," provides detailed culture directions too.

Explorer Vitus Jonassen Berling discovered Alaska in 1741.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Braswell
Buckner-Braswell vows

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bennett Braswell, II honeymooned in Acapulco following their Aug. 12 wedding at Trinity Episcopal Church in Longview. Parents of the bride, the former Judith Janet Buckner, are Dr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Buckner of Longview Dr. and Mrs. Roy F. Braswell, 2701 Beech, are parents of the groom.

The bride wore a formal gown of white satin faced organza and re-embroidered with French Alencon lace. The gown was designed with a wedding band neckline, long bishop sleeves which came to a fitted lace cuff and an empire bodice which fell in an A-line skirt with an attached chapel length train. The bodice and sleeves of the gown were heavily appliqued with Alencon lace and accented with clusters of seed pearls. The hem was scalloped with Alencon lace. Tiny covered buttons complimented the cuffs of the sleeves. The fingertip length veil of matching lace and illusion was made by the bride's mother.

The bride's mother wore an ankle length floral print dress. The groom's mother wore a floor length blue qiana dress with cut-out scalloped sleeves. Honor attendants were Mrs. Gil Staley of Dallas and Susan Miceli of New Orleans, cousin of

Teens do help moms at home

Who says teenagers don't help out around the home? In fact they do, says the American Council of Life Insurance. An analysis of a study prepared for The American Home Economics Association found the average time teenagers worked around the home was about 2 hours a day. For example, in homes where the mother was not employed, the average household work done by teenagers ranged from 1 hour and 12 minutes a day in 1 child families to 3 hours and 24 minutes in 7 to 9 children families. When mom worked, teenagers' average time varied from 1 hour and six minutes a day in 1 child households to 3 hours and 36 minutes with 5 or 6 children around. The study's conclusion: "The accumulated contributions of teenagers added up to a sizable amount of household work time, whether or not their mothers were employed."

Curse or coincidence?
Which is diamond legend

Black magic or misunderstanding? Did the fabulous Hope Diamond bring its owners everything from death and disgrace to madness? The Jewelry Industry Council thinks not, and cites the fact that many years ago, jewelry was not as easy to protect from thieves as it is today, what with modern vaults, detective services and insurance policies. It was far easier just to let it be known that a secret and dire curse would punish those who sought to remove jewels from their rightful owners.

So it was in 1668, when a French gem dealer traveling through India "lifted" the sapphire-blue diamond now known as the Hope from a sacred statue of the Hindu goddess Rama-Sita. Temple priests spread the word that the trader, Jean Baptiste Tavernier, was under Rama's curse. Tavernier's European enemies, including rival gem dealers, eagerly embroidered upon the story.

When he died on an expedition to Russia, it was said that he had been devoured by wolves as punishment for his theft. In fact, says the Council, no one really knows how Tavernier died. Since he was 84 at the time and the Russian winter was harsh, he might simply have been done in by a bad cold.

But what about the evil luck that supposedly pursued others who owned or wore the gem? Tavernier sold the 112 carat blue diamond to King Louis XIV of France, whose jeweler shaped it into a 67½ carat heart. Louis gave this bauble to his current mistress to wear—and promptly lost interest in her. Did the Blue Heart cause his change of heart? Not likely, say Council researchers, pointing out that the King had a notoriously roving eye and changed mistresses frequently.

Louis XIV's death from smallpox—a disease then ravaging Europe—was also more coincidence than curse, the Council believes. Before dying at the ripe age of 77, he had owned the "unlucky" diamond for 47 years—and all during that time had led a life of such dazzling luxury and splendor that his subjects called him "the Sun King."

Two of the Sun King's successors were undeniably unlucky. Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette inherited the diamond—and lost their heads to the guillotine. But the royal couple would undoubtedly have been doomed even if they had never seen the diamond that did them in, but the wretched social conditions that finally exploded into the French Revolution.

During that bloody uprising, the Blue Heart mysteriously disappeared, only to turn up in England almost 40 years later, recut into a rounded oval weighing over 44 carats. It was snapped up for $90,000 in 1830 by one Henry Philip Hope, a wealthy Londoner who gave the stone its now-famous name.

In 1894, the young heir to the Hope fortune met and married the girl of his dreams. She was May Yohe, a curvaceous, sly-eyed American beauty who had become a London musical comedy star. Young Henry Hope gave her the fabulous diamond as a wedding gift. Could any girl ask for more?

Apparently—for after eight years of marriage, the bored ex-actress ran off with an American army officer. Lord Hope, having gone through all his money, was forced to sell his family's famous diamond. May Yohe also fell on evil times; her soldier went AWOL, her attempts at a stage comeback fizzled, and she wound up working as a scrubwoman. Once again, people began to whisper about the "curse" of the Hope Diamond.

But once again, the curse turns out to have been largely a myth. Although poor Henry never recouped, May's luck eventually improved. Her third marriage, to Captain John A. Smuts, brought her little money but much happiness. A reporter, interviewing her in 1938 when she was 72, found her "still married, still happy and still charming," and seemingly harboring no regrets.

Then there was Mrs. Evelyn McLean, the Washington socialite who was fascinated by the Hope Diamond for the entire 35 years that she owned it. She wore the gem constantly, while detectives stood by to make sure she wouldn't be robbed of her treasure. No matter what happened to her—and plenty did—she refused to believe the superstitions about the stone.

Her young son was killed by a car. Her daughter took an overdose of sleeping pills.

Her husband Edward died in a mental institution. But Mrs. McLean never blamed the diamond for her misfortunes, nor did she allow them to destroy her zest for life. A colorful character who tossed $50,000 parties and slept between $4,000 pink silk sheets, she once pawned the Hope Diamond in a vain attempt to ransom the Lindbergh baby. Succumbing to pneumonia at the age of 60, she died as she had lived—surrounded by the Washington celebrities who had been her friends.

After Mrs. McLean's death in 1947, the Hope languished in a vault until gem merchant Harry Winston bought it two years later. Edward McLean had paid $154,000 for the Hope Diamond back in 1911. Winston acquired the Hope, along with the rest of Mrs. McLean's jewelry, for more than $1,000,000.

Loveliness of the distance runner

Some women spend a fortune on expensive makeup and cosmetics to improve their skin and cleanse their face. But, if you're into jogging, you know that an invigorating run through the park or along the road can help to bring the reward of a clear, glowing and healthy complexion.

Running is a natural cleansing process. When you run, you help to shake loose the "toxins" of a sedentary life. The blood flow to the surface of your skin is increased and you develop a "facial flush". In fact, you feel a natural glow all over. In the meantime, some of the toxins of your body are removed through increased perspiration. So, don't wear facial makeup when you run. It clogs your pores and makes natural perspiring difficult.

Running depletes body moisture. Make sure you drink lots of water before, during (if possible) and after a run. And, just as you must replenish your body moisture, so must you replenish your skin moisture. That's where a cleanser with moisturizers can help.

After a bracing run, most women like to feel "soap and water" clean. But soap, rather than moisturizing, tends to dry your skin. What to do? Use new Keri facial cleanser in place of soap for thorough, gentle cleaning. It is a completely soapless cleanser and moisturizer which lets your skin secrete naturally, while preserving and supplementing your own vital moisture. Simply apply a sufficient amount to your face, massage, rinse thoroughly with water and pat dry. It's so gentle, it will even remove makeup without irritating, and its clean fragrance is a fitting compliment for the woman on the run.

So, if you want to glow with a true beauty, start from the inside out and get into a regular regimen . . . jogging and new Keri facial cleanser. Together they can make you the loveliest of the long distance runners! †

Etruscan-inspired artisan

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK (NEA) — One wrong question and Delphin Broussailles will be out of his chair and this room at the Ares Gallery on Madison Avenue.

He's a short, ferret-faced man, 35, who favors corduroy suits, anonymity and aviator glasses, and who seems incapable of smiling. His wavy brown hair parts in the middle and he will not discuss certain things.

"It's not important what my father does," he says, slamming the subject shut in English so perfect it's hard to remember he's French. Well, it seemed pertinent. Broussailles is so apart from other men — perhaps it's the genes.

"My family is not artistic," he relents. He won't discuss them any further except to say, "I have never had to think about money. I have been fortunate in that I have been able to pursue my studies since I have been in school."

He's been free to devote himself with an intensity few are capable of to philosophy, to history.

And to gold. Every morning at 5:30 at home in Strasbourg, France, where he and his artist wife live, he goes into a small workshop.

It's very quiet there and it stays quiet well into the evening when he leaves. What time? He shrugs. What matters, he says, is that, "I'm trying to set myself in a situation so completely beyond me, so all-encompassing that within that arena I can think about the relationship of the Etruscan mind and the 20th century mind."

So he sits there in the quiet, conceiving, then fashioning Etruscan-inspired gold rings, necklaces, fibula — ancient pin-like devices used to fasten clothing — often with emeralds, sapphires and rubies, but no other precious stones.

He conjures up pieces so elaborate and painstaking that the gallery, which is sponsoring his first exhibition, supplies magnifying glasses to view the detail.

Seven days a week, he takes up 22 carat gold which he has alloyed with this additive or that, "to change the color in a very emotional and beautiful way."

"I work on one piece from start to finish without anything else in my studio," he says, his brows furrowing so intensely, it's disarming.

"And at completion, I remove it. There's no residue."

For more than 10 years, since he first became intrigued with the gold works of Etruscan artisans who lived in Italy during the 5th century B.C., he's been studying them and spending he can't estimate how long — months, certainly — on his own individual pieces.

"I work nearly eight months a year, but there are long periods between pieces," he says. "Then I travel and go to libraries. I think and read and experience as much as I can."

And all the time, he's exhilarated. "There are no lows, only highs. You keep sharing (as he has decided to do now with his first exhibition) and learning and growing and becoming fat with information."

Technically what he does, he says, is "better than any Etruscan. I've never seen work that does what I can do with the techniques. That's fact and I study facts."

Before 1968, when he made his wife's wedding ring, he'd never made anything of gold. He'd never made anything, in fact. "But it was most important to make her ring since she would have it her whole life."

So he studied and taught himself what a goldsmith knows.

Then, to understand how the Etruscans worked, he spent one year alone mastering the process of granulation. Every day, all day, he made nothing but granules, over and over again, until it was part of him.

"Granulation is the art of covering a surface on perfect tangent points with tiny little spheres, marrying metal to metal," he says. "The highest point of granulation was in the 5th century B.C. Then it lost fashion. The information, which was handed down in families — goldsmiths would be buried with it — once again surfaced in the 18th century and

The main portion of New Westminster, British Columbia, was destroyed by fire in 1898, leaving an estimated $2 million damage.

High-Steppin' Variety

Mary Tyler Moore is back with an hour-long variety show, which begins Sunday, Sept. 24 on CBS.

Mary Tyler Moore, who starred for seven years in the successful situation comedy bearing her name, returns to series television each week in "Mary," an hour-long program of comedy, music and song, beginning Sunday, Sept. 24 on CBS.

The series differs from the usual variety program in that it will not utilize the talents and appeal of weekly guest stars. Rather, it will concentrate on the myriad talents of a carefully selected repertory company, Mary's new "family," consisting of Dick Shawn, James Hampton, Swoosie Kurtz, David Letterman, Judy Kahan and Michael Keaton.

During the premiere hour, Mary will introduce the new cast via specially prepared audition tapes. One production number will be dedicated to her old comedy cohort, with the presentation of the first (and undoubtedly last) television appearance of the Ed Asner Dancers. Another will feature Mary and the Tony Stevens

Los Angeles engagement in his solo comedy, "The 2nd Greatest Entertainer in the World." James Hampton counts "Mary" as his fifth series, having been seen regularly on "F Troop," "The Doris Day Show," "Hawkins" and in the blackout segments of "Love American Style."

Swoosie Kurtz is a comparative newcomer to television, but over the past few seasons has been honored as one of Broadway's most talented young actresses. David Letterman is also a newcomer to television.

Judy Kahan, seen most recently as Rob Reiner's wife in the limited series, "Free Country," made her Broadway bow as Glynis John's daughter in the musical, "A Little Night Music." She has also been seen on CBS as a regular in "Doc" and "All's Fair."

Rounding out the company is Michael Keaton, whose career has been mainly restricted to nightclubs.

TV Star Scene

By RUTH THOMPSON

For the John Travolta fans wondering how often he'll get to class on this season's "Welcome Back, Kotter," the answer is: eight sessions. And that's not bad at all, considering that the movie deals spawned by his "Saturday Night Fever" success are competing for his time and talent. Incidentally, his new billing on the series is "Special Guest Star."

Meanwhile, may the newest sweatshop, Stephen Shortridge strikes the kind of luck that befell Cheryl Ladd when she stepped into the last-season vacancy caused by the absence of Farrah Fawcett-Majors (who is now also back on a four-episode guest-star deal). Stephen may have limitations as the Beau de Lobarre character, but he's only acting, folks. His parents are both educators, and he himself was both a good enough student and athlete to win a scholarship to Idaho State College.

So may fun continue to be fun — for the viewer — but the farce roles are played by disciplined, goal-oriented actors.

And speaking of goal-orientation. Coincidentally, in the real world, this is the week when high-school sophomores get the word about the HOBY opportunity open to them for only this one year of their lives. HOBY is the new acronym for the HUGH O'BRIEN Youth Foundation scholarships. Winners from each state get an all-expenses-paid seminar week to Atlanta next April for the leadership seminar now in its 20th year.

Last year's winners got to rap with the publisher of The New York Times, the head of NBC and Muhammad Ali ... among others. Presidents and senators (often of diverse political views) concur that this is a project worthy of their time ... and so they participate. For the first 10 years Hugh funded it wholly by himself from his movie and TV earnings. Now, in the interests of expanding to a number of interim regional seminars, he's getting supplemental donations.

The project's intent: "To reward — and call attention to the good youngster" who is a good citizen. And there's a special footnote for motivated 15-year-olds from Hugh himself. "The selection process begins the end of September when all public and private (including parochial) high school principals receive the selection material from the National Association of Secondary School Principals ... deadline for schools to send in their one selected boy or girl is Nov. 16. EVERY sophomore is eligible." Hugh adds, even if posters are not put up ... those interested should then contact their principals. The info has been sent to them. Norman Cousins and Marnie Doud Eisenhower are the Chairman and Honorary Chairman of the Selections Committee.

Abe Vigoda waited a long time for his first big TV break in "Barney Miller." Therefore, he's slightly less than charitable about the demise of his spin-off series, "Fish." Blames it on "poor writing." Maybe it was just a poor idea to dilute a funny series in the first place?

Whatever, Abe's doing all right along the guest route. He's already taped a "Rockford Files" episode with James Garner and then he still has a Broadway play in the offing.

Definitely not funny. But at the very least, top-of-the-head. That's the repartee of last spring when "Little House on the Prairie" had its wrap-up party. Teenage Melissa Anderson (Mary Ingalls) says to Allison Armgren (Nasty Nellie Olsen), "Yes, but I won't be seeing you." She meant, of course, that while she would be back in the story line (with first a teaching career and then marriage ahead), producer-star Michael Landon had informed her that the true story of Mary (from the bio of sister Laura) would be followed. Mary, early in her life, suffered irreversible blindness. Though Landon has allowed himself dramatic license in other aspects of the pioneer saga, he insisted on fidelity with the Mary-theme.

Lord Grade — known as Sir Lew until Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth upgraded him — is reportedly committed to taping Joey Heatherton's London Palladium appearance as a TV special for worldwide distribution.

Curse or coincidence? Which is diamond legend

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Braswell

Buckner-Braswell vows

Mr and Mrs Roy Bennett Braswell II honeymooned in Acapulco following their Aug. 12 wedding at Trinity Episcopal Church in Longview. Parents of the bride, the former Judith Janet Buckner, are Dr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Buckner of Longview Dr. and Mrs. Roy F. Braswell, 2701 Beech, are parents of the groom.

The bride wore a formal gown of white satin faced organza and re-embroidered with French Alencon lace. The gown was designed with a wedding band neckline, long bishop sleeves which came to a fitted lace cuff and an empire bodice which fell in an A-line skirt with an attached chapel length train. The bodice and sleeves of the gown were heavily appliqued with Alencon lace and accented with clusters of seed pearls. The hem was scalloped with Alencon lace. Tiny covered buttons complimented the cuffs of the sleeves. The fingertip length veil of matching lace and illusion was made by the bride's mother.

The bride's mother wore an ankle length floral print dress. The groom's mother wore a floor length blue qiana dress with cut-out scalloped sleeves.

Honor attendants were Mrs. Gil Staley of Dallas and Susan Miceil of New Orleans, cousin of

Teens do help moms at home

Who says teenagers don't help out around the home?

In fact they do, says the American Council of Life Insurance.

An analysis of a study prepared for The American Home Economics Association found the average time teenagers worked around the home was about 2 hours a day.

For example, in homes where the mother was not employed, the average household work done by teenagers ranged from 1 hour and 12 minutes a day in 1 child families to 3 hours and 24 minutes in 7 to 9 children families.

When mom worked, teenagers' average time varied from 1 hour and six minutes a day in 1 child households to 3 hours and 36 minutes with 5 or 6 children around.

The study's conclusion: "The accumulated contributions of teenagers added up to a sizable amount of household work time, whether or not their mothers were employed."

Black magic or misunderstanding? Did the fabulous Hope Diamond bring its owners everything from death and disgrace to madness?

The Jewelry Industry Council thinks not, and cites the fact that many years ago, jewelry was not as easy to protect from thieves as it is today, what with modern vaults, detective services and insurance policies. It was far easier just to let it be known that a secret and dire curse would punish those who sought to remove jewels from their rightful owners.

So it was in 1668, when a French gem dealer traveling through India "lifted" the sapphire-blue diamond now known as the Hope from a sacred statue of the Hindu goddess Rama-Sita. Temple priests spread the word that the trader, Jean Baptiste Tavernier, was under Rama's curse. Tavernier's European enemies, including rival gem dealers, eagerly embroidered upon the story.

When he died on an expedition to Russia, it was said that he had been devoured by wolves as punishment for his theft. In fact, says the Council, no one really knows how Tavernier died. Since he was 84 at the time and the Russian winter was harsh, he might simply have been done in by a bad cold.

But what about the evil luck that supposedly pursued others who owned or wore the gem? Tavernier sold the 112 carat blue diamond to King Louis XIV of France, whose jeweler shaped it into a 67½ carat heart. Louis gave this bauble to his current mistress to wear—and promptly lost interest in her. Did the Blue Heart cause his change of heart? Not likely, say Council researchers, pointing out that the King had a notoriously roving eye and changed mistresses frequently.

Louis XIV's death from smallpox—a disease then ravaging Europe—was also more coincidence than curse, the Council believes. Before dying at the ripe age of 77, he had owned the "unlucky" diamond for 47 years—and all during that time had led a life of such dazzling luxury and splendor that his subjects called him "the Sun King."

Two of the Sun King's successors were undeniably unlucky. Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette inherited the diamond—and lost their heads to the guillotine. But the royal couple would undoubtedly have been doomed even if they had never seen the fateful gem. It wasn't the diamond that did them in, but the wretched social conditions that finally exploded into the French Revolution.

During that bloody uprising, the Blue Heart mysteriously disappeared, only to turn up in England almost 40 years later, recut into a rounded oval weighing over 44 carats. It was snapped up for $90,000 in 1830 by one Henry Philip Hope, a wealthy Londoner who gave the stone its now-famous name.

FAVORITE OF THE KING - The sapphire blue diamond, now known as the Hope, was once given to one of the mistresses by King Louis XIV. The 112 carat gem was cut into a 67½ carat heart by the King's jeweler. Today, the diamond, re-cut, is at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, a gift from Harry Winston.

In 1894, the young heir to the Hope fortune met and married the girl of his dreams. She was May Yohe, a curvaceous, sloop-eyed American beauty who had become a London musical comedy star. Young Henry Hope gave her the fabulous diamond as a wedding gift. Could any girl ask for more?

Apparently—for after eight years of marriage, the bored ex-actress ran off with an American army officer, Lord Hope, having gone through all his money, was forced to sell his family's famous diamond. May Yohe also fell on evil times: her soldier went AWOL, her attempts at a stage comeback fizzled, and she wound up working as a scrubwoman. Once again, people began to whisper about the "curse" of the Hope Diamond.

But once again, the curse turns out to have been largely a myth. Although poor Henry never recouped, May's luck eventually improved. Her third marriage, to Captain John A. Smuts, brought her little money but much happiness. A reporter, interviewing her in 1938 when she was 72, found her "still married, still happy and still charming," and seemingly harboring no regrets.

Then there was Mrs. Evelyn McLean, the Washington socialite who was fascinated by the Hope Diamond for the entire 35 years that she owned it. She wore the gem constantly, while detectives stood by to make sure she wouldn't be robbed of her treasure. No matter what happened to her—and plenty did—she refused to believe the superstitions about the stone.

The Chinese claim to have invented the toothbrush in 1498—and it appears to be basically the same as the modern brush.

Her young son was killed by a car. Her daughter took an overdose of sleeping pills.

Her husband Edward died in a mental institution. But Mrs. McLean never blamed the diamond for her misfortunes, nor did she allow them to destroy her zest for life. A colorful character who tossed $50,000 parties and slept between $4,000 pink silk sheets, she once pawned the Hope Diamond in a vain attempt to ransom the Lindbergh baby. Succumbing to pneumonia at the age of 60, she died as she had lived—surrounded by the Washington celebrities who had been her friends.

After Mrs. McLean's death in 1947, the Hope languished in a vault until gem merchant Harry Winston bought it two years later. Edward McLean had paid $154,000 for the Hope Diamond back in 1911. Winston acquired the Hope, along with the rest of Mrs. McLean's jewelry, for more than $1,000,000.

Loveliness of the distance runner

Some women spend a fortune on expensive makeup and cosmetics to improve their skin and cleanse their face. But, if you're into jogging, you know that an invigorating run through the park or along the road can help to bring the reward of a clear, glowing and healthy complexion.

Running is a natural cleansing process. When you run, you help to shake loose the "toxins" of a sedentary life. The blood flow to the surface of your skin is increased and you develop a "facial flush". In fact, you feel a natural glow all over. In the meantime, some of the toxins of your body are removed through increased perspiration. So, don't wear facial makeup when you run. It clogs your pores and makes natural perspiring difficult.

Running depletes body moisture. Make sure you drink lots of water before, during (if possible) and after a run. And, just as you must replenish your body moisture, so must you replenish your skin moisture. That's where a cleanser with moisturizers can help.

After a bracing run, most women like to feel "soap and water" clean. But soap, rather than moisturizing, tends to dry your skin. What to do? Use new Keri facial cleanser in place of soap for thorough, gentle cleaning. It is a completely soapless cleanser and moisturizer which lets your skin secrete naturally, while preserving and supplementing your own vital moisture. Simply apply a sufficient amount to your face, massage, rinse thoroughly with water and pat dry. It's so gentle, it will even remove makeup without irritating, and its clean fragrance is a fitting compliment for the woman on the run.

So, if you want to glow with a true beauty, start from the inside out and get into a regular regimen... jogging and new Keri facial cleanser. Together they can make you the loveliest of the long distance runners! †

Etruscan-inspired artisan

By Ellie Grossman
NEW YORK (NEA) - One wrong question and Delphin Broussailles will be out of his chair and this room at the Ares Gallery on Madison Avenue.

He's a short, ferret-faced man, 35, who favors corduroy suits, anonymity and aviator glasses, and who seems incapable of smiling. His wavy brown hair parts in the middle and he will not discuss certain things.

"It's not important what my father does," he says, slamming the subject shut in English so perfect it's hard to remember he's French. Well, it seemed pertinent. Broussailles is so apart from other men — perhaps it's the genes.

"My family is not artistic," he relents. He won't discuss them any further except to say, "I have never had to think about money. I have been fortunate in that I have been able to pursue my studies since I have been in school."

He's been free to devote himself with an intensity few are capable of to philosophy, to history.

And to gold. Every morning at 5:30 at home in Strasbourg, France, where he and his artist wife live, he goes into a small workshop.

It's very quiet there and it stays quiet well into the evening when he leaves. What time? He shrugs. What matters, he says, is that, "I'm trying to set myself in a situation so completely beyond me, so all-encompassing that within that arena I can think about the relationship of the Etruscan mind and the 20th century mind."

So he sits there in the quiet, conceiving, then fashioning Etruscan-inspired gold rings, necklaces, fibula — ancient pin-like devices used to fasten clothing — often with emeralds, sapphires and rubies, but no other precious stones.

He conjures up pieces so elaborate and painstaking that the gallery, which is sponsoring his first exhibition, supplies magnifying glasses to view the detail.

Seven days a week, he takes up 22 carat gold which he has alloyed with this additive or that, "to change the color in a very emotional and beautiful way."

"I work on one piece from start to finish without anything else in my studio," he says, his brows furrowing so intensely, it's disarming.

"And at completion, I remove it. There's no residue."

For more than 10 years, since he first became intrigued with the gold works of Etruscan artisans who lived in Italy during the 5th century B.C., he's been studying them and spending he can't estimate how long — months, certainly — on his own individual pieces.

"I work nearly eight months a year, but there are long periods between pieces," he says. "Then I travel and go to libraries. I think and read and experience as much as I can."

And all the time, he's exhilarated. "There are no lows, only highs. You keep sharing (as he has decided to do now with his first exhibition) and learning and growing and becoming fat with information."

Technically what he does, he says, is "better than any Etruscan. I've never seen work that does what I can do with the techniques. That's fact and I study facts."

Before 1968, when he made his wife's wedding ring, he'd never made anything of gold. He'd never made anything, in fact. "But it was most important to make her ring since she would have it her whole life."

So he studied and taught himself what a goldsmith knows.

Then, to understand how the Etruscans worked, he spent one year alone mastering the process of granulation. Every day, all day, he made nothing but granules, over and over again, until it was part of him.

"Granulation is the art of covering a surface on perfect tangent points with tiny little spheres, marrying metal to metal," he says.

"The highest point of granulation was in the 5th century B.C. Then it lost fashion. The information, which was handed down in families — goldsmiths would be buried with it — once again surfaced in the 18th century and now it's rather common knowledge.

"I could teach you to do it today," he adds. It's just a skill. But, ah, from there, what you conceive spontaneously — still with "exact classical sensibility" — that object that makes itself from gold one-half the thickness of a piece of paper, that's what counts.

In his studio, alone, he carries on his life work, trying to understand "how and why I can exist in a contemporary way producing 5th century work. I have to keep searching and learning."

He says his door is always open, but he has few friends because "I don't enjoy talking about nothing."

He does enjoy green flowers and children (not cats and dogs) and, says the gallery owner, a maternal, darkhaired woman, "Anything that's beautiful that can be experienced through the senses makes him absolutely mad with joy."

Fashion and Beauty Tips

Furry update

You don't have to buy fur this year to get the feel of it. Update an old jacket or coat with a fur — real or ersatz — boa.

Serviceable stick

Buy a gloss stick and get double service out of it. Use it on your cheeks as well as your lips.

Facial tonic

A good end-of-summer facial mask can be made by adding the juice of a lemon to one cup buttermilk. Blend, pat it on and splash it off with cool water after 20 minutes.

Hair better

Be sure to tell a new hairdresser how much time you spend on your hair and if you're good at managing it, so he can accommodate you.

Shape saver

If you're a summer tennis player, be sure to take up another sport or exercise now so your body retains its shape and tone.

Dry detail

Wait five minutes between coats of nail polish to make sure the under-coat is completely dry.

High-Steppin' Variety

Mary Tyler Moore is back with an hour-long variety show, which begins Sunday, Sept. 24 on CBS.

Mary Tyler Moore, who starred for seven years in the successful situation comedy bearing her name, returns to series television each week in "Mary," an hour-long program of comedy, music and song, beginning Sunday, Sept. 24 on CBS.

The series differs from the usual variety program in that it will not utilize the talents and appeal of weekly guest stars. Rather, it will concentrate on the myriad talents of a carefully selected repertory company, Mary's new "family," consisting of Dick Shawn, James Hampton, Shooie Kurtz, David Letterman, Judy Kahan and Michael Keaton.

During the premiere hour, Mary will introduce the new cast via specially prepared audition tapes. One production number will be dedicated to her old comedy cohort, with the presentation of the first (and undoubtedly last) television appearance of the Ed Asner Dancers. Another will feature Mary and the Tony Stevens

Dancers. A special satirical salute will honor the first 25 minutes of "Mary" and, in what will be regular weekly features, Mary's monologue will deal with a vexing or controversial but always humorous subject. A end of each show, the entire cast will be depicted gathering at a nearby nightclub to relax and rehash the evening.

The world of music, dance and comedy is a natural television progression for Mary Tyler Moore, who began her career as a singer and dancer. Those talents were showcased in the feature motion picture, "Thoroughly Modern Millie" and have come to the television fore on various specials. During the five-year run of "The Dick Van Dyke Show," she received two Emmy Awards and during the seven-year run of her own comedy series, amassed four more.

Dick Shawn returns to television after completing a successful Broadway and

Los Angeles engagement in his solo comedy, "The 2nd Greatest Entertainer in the World." James Hampton counts "Mary" as his fifth series, having been seen regularly on "F Troop," "The Doris Day Show," "Hawkins" and in the blackout segments of "Love American Style."

Swoosie Kurtz is a comparative newcomer to television, but over the past few seasons has been honored as one of Broadway's most talented young actresses. David Letterman is also a newcomer to television.

Judy Kahan, seen most recently as Rob Reiner's wife in the limited series, "Free Country," made her Broadway bow as Glynis John's daughter in the musical, "A Little Night Music." She has also been seen on CBS as a regular in "Doc" and "All's Fair."

Rounding out the company is Michael Keaton, whose career has been mainly restricted to nightclubs.

TV Star Scene

By RUTH THOMPSON

For the John Travolta fans wondering how often he'll get to class on this season's "Welcome Back, Kotter," the answer is: eight sessions. And that's not bad at all, considering that the movie deals spawned by his "Saturday Night Fever" success are competing for his time and talent. Incidentally, his new billing on the series is "Special Guest Star."

Meanwhile, may the newest sweatshop, Stephen Shortridge strikes the kind of luck that befell Cheryl Ladd when she stepped into the last-season vandy caused by the absence of Farrah Fawcett-Majors (who is now also back on a four-episode guest-star deal). Stephen may have limitations as the Beau de Labarre character, but he's only acting, folks. His parents are both educators, and he himself was both a good enough student and athlete to win a scholarship to Idaho State College.

So may fun continue to be fun — for the viewer — but the farce roles are played by disciplined, goal-oriented actors.

And speaking of goal-orientation. Coincidentally, in the real world, this is the week when high-school sophomores get the word about the HOBY opportunity open to them for only this one year of their lives. HOBY is the new acronym for the HUGH O'BRIEN Youth Foundation scholarships. Winners from each state get an all-expenses-paid seminar week to Atlanta next April for the leadership seminar now in its 20th year.

Last year's winners got to rap with the publisher of the New York Times, the head of NBC and Muhammad Ali ... among others. Presidents and senators (often of diverse political views) concur that this is a project worthy of their time ... and so they participate. For the first 10 years Hugh funded it wholly by himself from his movie and TV earnings. Now, in the interests of expanding to a number of interim regional seminars, he's getting supplemental donations.

The project's intent: "To reward — and call attention to the good youngster" who is a good citizen. And there's a special footnote for motivated 15-year-olds from Hugh himself. "The selection process begins the end of September when all public and private (including parochial) high school principals receive the selection material from the National Association of Secondary School Principals ... deadline for schools to send in their one selected boy or girl is Nov. 16. EVERY sophomore is eligible." Hugh adds, even if posters are not up ... those interested should then contact their principals. The info has been sent to them. Norman Cousins and Mammie Doud Eisenhower are the Chairman and Honorary Chairman of the Selections Committee.

Abe Vigoda waited a long time for his first big TV break in "Barney Miller." Therefore, he's slightly less than charitable about the demise of his spin-off series, "Fish." Blames it on "poor writing." Maybe it was just a poor idea to dilute a funny series in the first place?

Whatever, Abe's doing all right along the guest route. He's already taped a "Rockford Files" episode with James Garner and then he still has a Broadway play in the offing.

Definitely not funny. But at the very least, top-of-the-head. That's the repartee of last spring when "Little House on the Prairie" had its wrap-up party. Teenage Melissa Anderson (Mary Ingalls) said to Allison Arngrim (Nasty Nellie Olsen), "Yes, but I won't be seeing you." She meant, of course, that while she would be back in the story line (with first a teaching career and then marriage ahead), producer-star Michael Landon had informed her that the true story of Mary (from the bio of sister Laura) would be followed. Mary, early in her life, suffered irreversible blindness. Though Landon has allowed himself dramatic license in other aspects of the pioneer saga, he insisted on fidelity with the Mary-theme.

Lord Grade — known as Sir Lew until Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth upgraded him — is reported committed to taping Joey Heatherton's London Palladium appearance as a TV special for worldwide distribution.

Astro-Graph

By Bernice Bede Osol

September 25, 1978
A situation is likely to arise this coming year to call attention to you. How you conduct yourself regarding this issue will determine whether you get that raise, promotion or chance you are seeking.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You have a tendency sometimes to see-saw back and forth over what your objectives should be, thereby accomplishing nothing. Like to find out more of what lies ahead for you? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Under-the-table information that comes to you today may have little or no truth to it. Before you get upset, carefully check the facts.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) People you know little about must be carefully dealt with today or you could come up with the short end of a stick. Take care where you place your trust.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Have a clear-cut understanding of who is responsible for what if you're involved in a joint effort. Each party could feel used if ground rules aren't established first.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Save your way-out, revolutionary ideas for another day. Your thinking is a little off-course and your chances of running aground are great.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Speculative situations should be avoided today. Lady Luck has a day off and she won't be around at that moment when you usually count on her.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Old domestic issues have a way of rearing their ugly heads today. If you allow them to gain control, you can again expect family turbulence.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You have two chances of getting others to do things for you today — slim and none. If you can't do it on your own, wait for another day when help is available.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A social obligation you may have been avoiding could demand attention today. Do it graciously and get it out of the way.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Conditions could prevent you from doing what you had planned today. Sidestep frustration. Exercise tolerance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your undertakings must be clearly thought-out step-by-step today or you'll run the risk of painting yourself into a corner. Make haste slowly.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't be intimidated into going along with the gang today if you can't really afford it. Unless, of course, they'll foot the bill.

Caldecott enters second era

By Norman Nadel
NEW YORK (NEA) - For children present and still to come, the second century starts in December.

Shortly before Christmas in 1878, "The House That Jack Built" and "The Diverging History of John Gilpin," both illustrated by 32-year-old Randolph Caldecott, had been published in London. They and 14 more picture books for children, all with illustrations by Caldecott and done between 1878 and 1886, have been in print ever since.

Yet for a while, quite recently, it looked as if there would be no second century for these little Caldecott classics of children's literature. Declining sales, along with the increasing cost of printing the books from the original wood blocks, led the present publisher, Frederick Warne & Co., to decide, reluctantly, to drop them.

They have not been dropped. Not only will four of the picture books continue to appear, but the adventure of saving them has resulted in one of the most beautifully executed volumes of the year, directed at anyone, regardless of age, who loves books, honors talent and enjoys children. It is "The Randolph Caldecott Treasury," published by Warne ($25 until December 31, $30 after). Fittingly, it was a gentle woman who loves books, honors talent and enjoys children who brought this about:

Elizabeth T. Billington had grown up in a New York City home where there were no "children's books." True, the familiar tales and fables, illustrated by Beatrix Potter, L. Leslie Brooke, Walter Crane and Randolph Caldecott were all there, but they were enjoyed by children and adults alike. They were for everybody.

As a very young woman she worked for the Warne publishing house. In fact, she was there the day in 1936 when Frederick G. Melcher, editor of Publishers Weekly, told the Warne people that he was donating a Caldecott Medal, to be presented annually to the illustrator of the most distinguished American picture book for children published in the United States. The Caldecott Medal continues to be a reliable accolade for any book that earns it.

Though she left full-time work soon after, she continued to be associated with Warne, and happened to be at an editorial meeting of the company's headquarters in London in 1971 when she learned they planned to let the Caldecott books go.

"I was aghast," she vividly recalls. "So I made my little plea for keeping them in print, and put forth the idea that if they prepared a treasury of Caldecott they could earn enough money to justify the expense of new plates for at least the books included in the treasury. And I had a job."

Mrs. Billington worked as editor on the "Treasury" until early 1977, then helped with design and layout. (It is appearing now in a first edition of 10,000 copies, plus a leather-bound limited edition of 250 numbered copies, signed by her and each including a numbered Caldecott print, at $100 each.)

During that time she went frequently to England, traveling from Chester, where the artist was born in 1846, to London, where he built reputation for his work. But Caldecott had been a very private person who shunned publicity, and, she relates, "I had a great deal of trouble finding the man."

"I read his letters and biographies. Then as I sat and looked at all the picture books, I envisioned that he had sat with children in London and had sung these songs. So I went to the piano and began to sing them — 'Hey Diddle Diddle,' 'Where are you going, my Pretty Maid?' and the rest. And that's how I discovered how he saw movement; in the rhythm of the songs."

Mrs. Billington's quest is the major text of the "Treasury," but the reproductions of Caldecott's art are what make it treasurable. The off-white, or ivory, paper; the brown ink, the soft colors in the 48 color plates, all are utterly true to the Caldecott books as they were done a century ago and have been done since.

What has set Caldecott apart all these decades is his animated way of going beyond merely illustrating the simple, basic story or rhyme. In "The Milkmaid," whom Mrs. Billington likes to refer to as the first liberated woman, a lady sends her son to find a wife with a fortune. So when he meets the farmer's daughter he asks: "But what is your fortune, my pretty Maid?" "My face is my fortune, Sir," she said. "Then I can't marry you, my Pretty Maid!" "Nobody asked you, Sir!" she said.

Thus ends the story. But Caldecott romps on through five more pictures, showing the milkmaid and her two friends, also milkmaids, rousting the pompous lad out of the pasture on a bucking cow, while her dog goes after his dog, and thus a triumph over vanity is celebrated. There are similar inventions that embellish "The Dish Ran Away With The Spoon" ("Hey Diddle Diddle") and "The House That Jack Built," as further examples.

There is nothing wrong with buying "The Randolph Caldecott Treasury" for children, who will enjoy his work in it, but it is designed for adults with an eye for a veritable love of a book. New editions of the four stories included, made from these same plates, will be coming from Warne's as children's books. Into the second century.

CAMERON GRANT, left, and James Winn, duo-pianists from Denver, Colo., will perform in Pampa on Oct. 7. The duo has been playing for over a dozen years and the couple is only in their mid-twenties. They have earned high praise from newspapers such as the Boston Globe because of their "unanimity of purpose, of concept and musical ideal."

History of the Commodores

By PETER J. BOYER
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Commodores, perhaps the world's best and most successful rhythm and blues band, was born as a group when its six principals were students at Alabama's Tuskegee Institute in the late '60s. It is significant that only one of the six major-ed in music.

Three of them were business majors — and it shows. The Commodores planned their career like a marketing team plans a product campaign.

Their basic premise was that the market for soul music was too limited. From that premise, they drew out their strategy. Phase I of The Commodore Plan for Success — avoid being labeled "just another black R&B group."

"In our earlier days, being stereotyped as a black group was a major concern with us," says trumpeter William King. "From jump street ('the beginning' in Tuskegee parlance), we wanted not to be categorized as just playing black music."

The Commodores wanted soul AND pop markets. They came into this world stocked with their own supply of soul. The pop they had to go out and acquire — Phase II of The Commodore Plan for Success.

"The R&B, that was in us," King says, "we grew up with R&B music. When we got to college, the first thing we did was go out and buy every pop and rock album we could lay our hands on."

"We wanted to see what pop was." Being a black group with a background in R&B can put you in a box. "So," says King, "we put a lot of thought and a lot of time in how in the world we were gonna get out of that box."

"And we found the main way to stay out of that box is not through your performances, it's through your music. You have to be able to write the type of music they're going to play on pop stations."

The Commodores — King, bassist Ronald LaPreau, singer Lionel Richie, drummer Walter "Clyde" Orange, guitarist Tommy McClary and keyboarder Milan Williams — began a search for a new trend the pop radio stations would likely go for. Disco, they decided, was it.

King says even though the Commodores' "heads were somewhere else," their first album, "Machine Gun," was all dance music. The Commodores easily cornered the disco market, then moved toward the heart of white pop music with a song called "Easy" in 1977. It was a mighty pop hit, and proved to the group the pop market was theirs for the asking.

"Three Times a Lady," their latest entry, wasted little time breaking through the R&B charts to the pop side, and then went directly to the top.

Didi Conn known as versatile actress

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In a movie season that has brought an onrush of attractive young acting talent, no performer seems more versatile than Didi Conn.

She starred as the ambitious young singer in "You Light Up My Life." She played the would-be-beautician Frenchy in "Grease." She even enacted the voice of Raggedy Ann in the animated feature "Raggedy Ann and Andy."

This month she can be seen as a 17-year-old high school girl in "Almost Summer," the Motion Picture Production for Universal Pictures. "It wasn't easy since I was 26 and going through a divorce when I made the picture," she remarked. "And the boy who was my sweetheart in the movie was John Friedrich, who was making his first movie at 17."

How did she manage? "The braces on my teeth helped," she said. "I had never worn braces as a girl, and I found them useful as an aid to the acting. The girl I played, Donna DeVito, wants desperately to be popular, and the braces helped portray the insecurity of the character; they acted as a kind of blockade between her and the achievement of her dreams."

"Almost Summer" was directed by Martin Davidson, whose previous film had been "The Lords of Flatbush." As with the earlier movie, which featured such unknowns as Sylvester Stallone, Henry Winkler, Susan Blakely and Perry King, the director worked with little-known actors: Bruno Kirby, Lee Purcell, Thomas Carter and Tim Matheson.

The story spans the last two weeks of the term at a California high school, the time of proms and elections and looking ahead to summer. Even though Didi Conn is a decade out of high school, she felt sympathetic to the characters' feelings: "I have a lot of respect for the problems of high school students; they are just as important to them as going through a divorce or finding jobs are to me."

Didi Conn, 27, is dark-haired with a thin, attractive face and a lively voice that harks back to her native Brooklyn. She claims to have nurtured the acting urge since before kindergarten, and you can feel the undercurrent of that long-time drive.

Perhaps that is why "You Light Up My Life" seemed so convincingly real. The heroine was a young woman who hustled from recording studios to TV auditions to commercial sessions. Didi, who appeared in 50 TV commercials in 1973 alone, admitted she knew the territory.

"The picture that came out was nothing like the original script," she said, admitting that she injected much of her own experience.

Is Waylon getting mellow?

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Is brash, swaggering, macho Waylon Jennings getting mellow?

There are signs that Jennings has softened his anti-Nashville establishment stance. And he's become slightly more accessible to the media, relaxing a tacks-tough barrier that has guarded his privacy.

In the past month, Jennings made two rare public appearances in Nashville.

On Sept. 9, he and close friend Johnny Cash gave a surprise performance on the Grand Ole Opry. Jennings, best known for progressive country hits like "Luckenbach, Texas," "Good Hearted Woman" and "Mamas, Don't Let Your Babies Grow Up To Be Cowboys," had not appeared on the Opry for about 10 years.

He had shunned the Opry because he was not permitted to use a full set of drums.

In late August, he taped a concert at the Grand Ole Opry House, but not on the regular Opry show.

Besides disagreements with the revered Grand Ole Opry, Jennings also has shunned the Country Music Association awards show the past few years because he objects to musicians competing against each other.
