Smith makes no progress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Both sides agree Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith failed to dissolve U.S. government opposition to his plans for racially torn Rhodesia during a two hour meeting at the State Department.

"It was a meeting with all the bark off," said State Department spokesman Hodding Carter. "Both sides expressed their points of view very clearly and forcefully. There was no progress made."

Smith, who is white, and the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, one of the black partners in his regime, were to meet reporters from several American publications today after the meeting Monday with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young and Peter Jay, the British ambassador to the United States.

"It was a repetition of old ideas," said Smith, whose critics say his plans for Rhodesia would perpetuate the power and privileges of a white minority under the guise of black majority rule.

"They have their own ideas, and we have our own ideas," Sithole said after Monday's meeting. And when Smith was asked if he had changed the views of the Carter administration that his "internal settlement" is an unacceptable plan for bringing blacks into power, he replied, "Negative."

A joint British-American statement issued after the meeting renewed a call for a conference among Smith's administration and all other parties to the present unrest in Rhodesia — including black guerrilla groups — with the aim of agreeing to a new plan for transition to majority rule. Smith has been reluctant to agree to such a meeting.

The statement said nothing about lifting economic sanctions that have crippled Rhodesia's economy.

"Our meeting today with Mr. Smith and his colleagues gave us the opportunity to discuss the rapidly deteriorating situation in Rhodesia," the statement said.

Smith did say the possibility was left open for another meeting when the remaining two blacks in the Salisbury government, Bishop Abel Muzorewa and Chief Jeremiah Chirau, arrive later this week.

Earlier Monday, Smith told reporters he's still hoping for free elections by the end of the year.

Prisoner kept alive to face execution

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A Death Row convict sentenced to die by injection was force-fed with a tube Monday to keep him alive until he can be executed.

The prisoner, David Lee Powell, 27, accused of killing a policeman, had not eaten in 13 days. His attorney said he was trying to commit suicide by starving himself.

But prison officials, saying it is their responsibility to keep him alive until he is to be put to death, transferred him to the prison hospital and inserted a tube down his throat to his stomach.

"At 5 p.m. doctors force-fed him by pumping liquid nourishment into his stomach, and his condition has improved," prison spokesman Ron Taylor said. "He is now taking liquid on his own."

Taylor said he did not know if Powell resisted the tube, but said Powell was in a "weakened condition" when taken from his Death Row cell at the Ellis

Unit, 18 miles away, and hospitalized after a doctor examined him.

Powell's action was apart from a separate hunger strike by 108 prisoners at the Ellis Unit. The Ellis prisoners remained in the exercise yard where they have been since Thursday, refusing to eat or return to their cells.

That strike was staged in sympathy with a federal trial in Houston in which inmates allege living conditions in the prison are so harsh they constitute cruel and unusual punishment.

Powell was sentenced to death last month for the shooting death of policeman Ralph Ablanado, 26, who had stopped him for a traffic violation.

Powell pleaded innocent by reason of insanity during his trial. His attorney, Edith Roberts of Austin, said "He is very suicidal. He wants to die. The instructions he gave us during the trial were to argue for the injection."

His execution date has not yet been set, and Taylor said the appeals process will probably delay any execution for years.

"He wants to die now, but we have the responsibility to maintain his health" until he is to be put to death, Taylor said.

Powell began his fast Sept. 27, the day he was convicted in Austin. He was transferred Friday from the county jail to Death Row, located at the Ellis Unit, where he continued his fast.

Defense attorneys described Powell as a rural high school valedictorian and University of Texas honors program student who became a "speed freak" and drug dealer, and was not responsible for his actions.

Texas last used the electric chair in 1964, and lawmakers changed the method of execution to death by injection in 1977. Prison officials have yet to use the new method, which calls for a lethal dose of sodium thiopental injected into the prisoner's bloodstream.

Good afternoon

News in brief

CLEAR

The forecast for Pampa is mostly fair with warm afternoons through Wednesday. The high today and Wednesday will be near 80 and the low tonight will be in the low 50s. Winds will be out of the west-southwest at 10-15 mph today diminishing to 5-10 mph tonight.

Farber ordered back to jail

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — New York Times reporter Myron A. Farber was ordered today to return to jail Thursday unless he surrenders his files in a murder case.

Superior Court Judge Theodore W. Trautwein said Farber, who is Jewish, would be given the extra time so that he could observe Yom Kippur, a holiday in the Jewish religion.

Wilkerson joins Clements' race

Mayor R.D. Wilkerson has joined the Mayors for Clements Statewide Steering Committee, a group of mayors supporting Republican gubernatorial candidate Bill Clements in his campaign for the November election.

Wilkerson joined mayors in more than 20 other Texas communities in forming the committee, which is being co-chaired by Mayors Jerry Hodge of Amarillo and Ernest Angelo of Midland.

"The Clements office called from Austin and asked me to join, and at first I was reluctant," said Wilkerson. "But I'm just not a Hill supporter, so I consented."

"I find it easy to support Clements with his background and platform."

The 25 mayors on the committee are: Wilkerson; Hodge; Angelo; George Arrington, Canadian; Bob M. Nall, Tyler; Othal Brand, McAllen; Jerry McClure, Borger; Gene Cummings, Fort Stockton; John Carlson, Wharton; Bob Youker, Harlingen; John Colquitt, Dalhart; Paul Daniels, Liberty; Tom Dunn, Waxahachie; Jim Hoffpauir, Lampasas.

Leslie Clayton, Brenham; Giles McCrary, Post; Homer Bower, Rockdale; J.D. Harper, Goldthwaite; Ben Pate, Plains; Mike Salin, Dumas; Johnny Love, Morton; Howard M. Sego, Glen Rose; Bob Clark, Semnole; C. Ralph Blodgett, Spearman; and J.P. "Pat" Ragsdale, Eldorado.

Ray to wed this week

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A black minister once associated with Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. says he will perform the prison marriage ceremony of James Earl Ray, convicted assassin of the civil rights leader.

The Rev. James Lawson said Monday that the marriage of Ray to Anna Sandhu, a 32-year-old freelance artist, would take place either Thursday or Friday at the Brushy Mountain Penitentiary in Tennessee, where Ray is serving a 99-year term.

"The warden has approved. The day will be either Thursday or Friday," said Lawson, pastor of Holman United Methodist Church in Los Angeles. "Her family will be there but there will be no press."

Lawson said he and other black leaders have come to have doubts about whether

Ray was King's assassin. "But clearly, even if James Earl Ray were the killer beyond the shadow of a doubt and Dr. King could return to perform the marriage, he would do it," the minister said. "Anyone who couldn't understand that didn't know Martin Luther King. For him, love served as the basis for community and justice."

Lawson said that until 1974, he was a minister in Memphis, where King was killed, and had worked with King on civil rights matters for 11 years prior to the shooting.

He said Ray, 50, and Ms. Sandhu, a divorcee, asked him to perform the ceremony.

"We ministers are in the world to stand by people and demonstrate the grace of God in life," Lawson said.

Israeli gunboats shell Palestinian base camps

By The Associated Press

Israeli gunboats shelled Palestinian guerrilla camps in southern Lebanon during the night, but the Syrian-Christian truce in Beirut remained in force for the third night despite Syrian sniper fire. Beirut's Christian radio station reported.

The Voice of Lebanon said the guerrillas returned the Israeli gunboat fire. No other details were given, there was no confirmation of the report, and the Israeli military command in Tel Aviv refused to confirm or deny the report.

Israeli gunboats shelled Moslem West Beirut, some 50 miles north of the Israeli-Lebanese border, last Thursday night to warn the Syrians to call off their war against Israel's Christian allies in East Beirut.

A cease-fire took effect in Beirut on Saturday after 10 days of fighting that left 1,300 dead and 2,000 wounded by Lebanese police count.

The Christian radio said although the truce was holding Syrian snipers were still active, particularly in the Quarantina bridge area on the northeast side of the city.

The bridge is on the supply highway from Jounieh, the Christian port 15 miles north of Beirut, to the Christian half of the city. The broadcast said because of the sniping, the bridge remained closed to traffic.

The Christian radio also charged that the Syrians were maintaining their "food blockade" of East Beirut, preventing International Red Cross vehicles from bringing food and medicine to the survivors of the Syrian artillery, rocket and machine-gun fire. But foreign reporters in Beirut saw vehicles entering the Christian sector from the north on Monday.

Lebanon's President Elias Sarkis was on a visit to three Arab governments that contribute troops to the Arab League peacekeeping force in Lebanon after negotiations with Syrian President Hafez Assad, whose army supplies the bulk of the peace force.

The mandate for the peacekeepers expires Oct. 28, and it was believed that Sarkis was seeking agreement for an extension.

The Christian radio station said Sarkis also was trying to get other Arab nations to increase the size of their forces in Lebanon so the Syrians could be reduced until all nations had the same size contingent. But this report was considered highly suspect since it was unlikely that Assad would agree to anything less than a dominant role in Lebanon.

Sarkis went first to Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, to confer with Crown Prince Fahd. Though the Saudi troop contribution to the peace force is small, the wealthy oil state is the force's chief financial backer.

Politics become embarrassing for candidates

By The Associated Press

It was a day of embarrassments for some Texas politicians Monday.

A Democratic judge in West Texas says he was "set up" by Republicans and misrepresented in a GOP literature as a supporter of Bill Clements' campaign for governor.

In San Antonio, a Republican strategy plan mailed "confidential" was accidentally marked to the office manager for the Bexar County Democratic party, who promptly gave it to the press.

The GOP memo, sent apparently by accident to Democrat Basil Archev, said the Republican's fund-raising "has declined disastrously" and listed the party's "most targeted" 1978 national races against "vulnerable Democrat incumbents."

The target races included six U.S. Senate seats, 19 congressional races, and six contests for governor. The only Texas race mentioned was U.S. House District 22 where Democrat Bob Gammage is challenged by Republican Ron Paul. The race between Clements and Attorney General John Hill was not mentioned.

In the South Plains town of Post, Garza County Judge Giles Dalby said he backs Democratic candidate Hill and has never supported Clements, despite a GOP campaign publication showing the judge with Clements and identifying Dalby as a Clements supporter.

Dalby admitted signing a release the Republicans say authorized the campaign flyer, but the judge said he did not realize what it was at the time. "They moved in on me like gangbusters. This little girl was handing me a paper to sign, someone was taking my picture. I didn't realize it was a release. I thought it was a voter registration form," Dalby said.

Hill called the campaign literature a "fake newspaper" and said it was another of "political sabotage."

In other developments, Clements released a personal financial report showing he is worth more than $30 million.

The statement showed that Clements owns 630,191 shares of Sedco Inc., which the New York Stock Exchange quotation Monday would make the holding worth about $25.3 million. Clements also said he owns or leases real estate worth $4.9 million in Texas, New Mexico, Colorado and Virginia.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, also complained in Austin, that his opponent, Democrat Bob Krueger, is trying to obscure Krueger's position on the recent labor reform bill.

"Texans overwhelmingly favor the right to work and the favorable labor-management climate it promotes that has so clearly benefited the Texas economy," Tower said.

Retirement benefits approved by commission

By JOHN PRICE
Pampa News Staff

An ordinance increasing contributions by the city and city employees to Texas Municipal Retirement System employees' benefits was approved on first reading at the regular city commission meeting this morning.

The ordinance, funded in the recently-adopted city budget, enables the city and employees to contribute a percentage of the employees' entire salaries to retirement benefits, thereby increasing the benefits. It will become effective Jan. 1.

Under the present retirement plan, employees and the city cannot contribute more than five percent of the first $6,000 of employee income.

The commission will consider the second and final reading of the ordinance at its next regular meeting Oct. 24.

Commissioners set Nov. 14 as the date to receive bids for the purchase of approximately 20 six-to-eight-yard dumpster-boxes, used for commercial solid waste collection.

The city already has 194 of the boxes, which cost about $350 each, said R.B. Cooke, director of public works.

"We'd be talking somewhere in the vicinity of $7,000" to purchase the new boxes, said City Manager Mack Wofford.

A four-year extension of a lease with the state for office space in City Hall for the Texas Railroad Commission was approved by the commission.

Today's action extends the lease from Sept. 1, 1979 to Aug. 31, 1983. The lease, based on $100 per month, is "to a certain extent a token lease," said Wofford.

The TRC has leased the office for 15 years that Wofford is aware of, he said.

Before the meeting adjourned, the commission heard Ken Fields, a local attorney, request the city to extend water lines to seven houses east of the city owned by Bill Hulsey.

Hulsey would like to rent or sell the houses, described as "smaller frame-type dwellings," but can't do so without water service. Fields said. Citing a need for low to medium income housing in the Pampa area, he asked the commission to sidestep a new city ordinance prohibiting any further extension of city-owned utilities outside the corporate limits.

Mayor R.D. Wilkerson said the city would consider the request.

BILLBOARDS VISIBLE from many of Philadelphia's main thoroughfares advise voters to vote against proposed change in city's charter to allow a mayor to run for more than two consecutive terms.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

How to be a parasite

At the same time that the administration is voicing displeasure with industry for not slowing the pace of wage and price rises, we are treated to an inside view of how the political menage beats the drum for greater federal spending.

Sponsored by a representative in Congress, a seminar was recently held in Denver and featured speakers from national and regional federal agencies. The meeting was for the expressed purpose of letting people know of the many ways they could get money from the feds.

An aide to the representative said, "There is more money available from the government than ever before. People just need to know where to go and how to ask for it, that's what this conference is about." He also said that people were unsophisticated in soliciting funds from the government.

We are not naming the representative nor the aide because there is no point in pointing the finger at one of our lawmakers when to a more or less degree most all are engaged in the same type of activity. Getting more for the folks back home is the name of the game in staying in power.

Both elective and appointed officials in the various governmental agencies are doing nothing of any great effect to stop the spending and the increased debt of the federal government. This fiscal irresponsibility is the basic condition which causes our inflation problems.

Escalating prices and wages are only a symptom of the true disease. A cure to our inflation problem will not be found by government officials trying to make a scapegoat out of business.

The chairman of the Federal Reserve Board has suggested that major industries establish their own price and wage guidelines to "help control an inflation rate which threatens to push the economy toward a serious recession in the near future."

G. William Miller, chairman of the Fed, said, "If we pursue a course that does not soon contain the forces accelerating the advance of prices, the result will be increasing economic disruption and distortion, ending, in all probability, in serious recession."

"Business must show more restraint on prices," Miller said, but he made no mention of government curbing its spending spree.

It appears to us that the continual harping on what business should do is more of a smokescreen than any realistic attempt to solve the number one problem which affects all of us.

When federal agencies advertise their wares to induce more people to seek federal grants of all kinds and when elected officials tell us that there is more "free" money available than ever before, we have cause to doubt their sincerity.

Let the politicians and their bureaucracy get their own house in order, then make the appeal for cooperation from the people and business enterprises.

Congress: rule thyself

By MARTHA ANGLE
and ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Judging by the reaction from most members of the Senate, you'd think S. 3086 was a bill advocating the spread of bubonic plague across the country.

The bill's author, Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., has been the target of much of that reaction from his colleagues. Most of their responses are supposed to be funny, some are snide and they almost never are complimentary.

Only two senators have signed up as co-sponsors of the legislation: Sens. James G. Abourezk, D-S.D., and Henry L. Bellmon, R-Okla., both of whom are mavericks.

One veteran Capitol Hill observer calls S. 3086 "the most radical proposal to surface during the 95th Congress."

What terrible fate would be visited upon the Republic if the Congress itself comply with eight major pieces of previous legislation that included unwarranted exemptions for the House and Senate at the time of their passage.

That includes almost every major law approved by Congress since the New Deal to provide protection of workers' rights:

The Civil Rights Act of 1964, the Equal Employment Opportunity Act, the National Labor Relations Act, the Fair Labor Standards Act and the Occupational Safety and Health Act.

But the duplicity doesn't end there, because Congress has a penchant for excluding itself from laws it imposes upon everyone else.

For example, members of the House and Senate, their staffs and other federal employees have their own pension plan and don't have to make any contributions to support the Social Security system.

(That may explain why the lawmakers were oblivious to the impact of their actions when they voted late last year to require millions of other Americans to almost double their mandatory Social Security contributions in just four years.)

When Congress passed the Freedom of information Act, it mandated that every department and agency in the executive branch of the federal government make available for public inspection the papers and documents in their possession.

Everything Congress does in its official capacity also is the public's business—but in drafting the act, the legislators excluded their files from public scrutiny.

When it became apparent that some Freedom of Information Act disclosures were violating personal privacy, Congress passed the Privacy Act to safeguard government-held information relating to individual citizens. Again, Congress was exempted.

Leahy's bill would require that Congress obey all of those laws. Although its chances of passage currently range from slim to none, Common Cause has suggested still other areas of potential future improvement.

For instance, when Congress voted to authorize public financing of presidential elections, one committee report cited "the pervasive evils of our present system for campaign financing" and warned that "the potentials for abuse are all too clear."

Yet members of Congress repeatedly have rejected proposals to finance their own with federal funds, preferring instead the present system of accepting money from special interest groups.

Congress rightfully demands a full accounting from every federal department and agency before appropriating funds to meet annual budgets. The General Accounting Office, an arm of Congress, is empowered to audit the financial records of every component of the executive branch.

But no independent auditor has authority to review Congress' financial records. The House last year even refused to consider a proposal to hire internal auditors with authority to check its books.

The case for reform is a strong one, and there's no need to impose any special requirements on Congress. All that's necessary is that the legislators abide by the laws they've already written for the country's mere mortals.

By BUTLER D. SHAFFER

1. The FBI has announced an imaginative, new program to combat crime. Named the "Family Council," this program is designed to get people aware of something many of us have known for years: if you want to protect yourself and your family from being victimized, you'll have to provide the protection yourself.

The old bromide that government exists to protect us from criminal activities enjoys little support anymore. About all that the police are able to do—if you have been victimized—is make a record of the fact and, on rare occasions, actually catch the criminal. But as far as providing protection... that has always been a very personal matter. As John F. Kennedy and Lee Harvey Oswald both learned in Dallas, there is no way that the police can prevent others from attacking you if they choose to. That being the case, the burden has always been upon you and me to protect ourselves. It is encouraging, however, to finally see the principal law-enforcement branch of the federal government admitting this to be the case.

2. A group of Spanish-speaking Catholics have written an irate letter protesting the appointment of an Anglo bishop to head the Catholic Diocese of which they are members. While the letter signers admitted that there was nothing about the man himself they found objectionable—in fact, they actually had praise for him as a person—they were critical of the idea of appointing a non-Spanish person in a Diocese which was predominantly Spanish-speaking. It is an interesting observation on life these days that such protests tend to be characterized as expressions of ethnic "liberation." If, on the other hand, a group of whites had protested the appointment of a black bishop, the characterizations would have (appropriately) been "racist."

The incident only serves to confirm a point I have made on numerous other occasions: "racism" is the product of people choosing—for whatever reason—to identify themselves with their ancestry. When one attaches any significance to his ancestry, he sets himself up in a state of conflict with those who do not happen to share his identifying characteristics. In this sense, racial, ethnic, nationalistic and sexual "liberation" movements have been the principal fomenters of social conflict throughout the world in the past few decades.

3. San Francisco police—at the urging of local businessmen—have been arresting the so-called "street musicians" who work the Fisherman's Wharf area of the city. Not that these musicians pose any great threat to public tranquility; the local businessmen simply don't want them around because—so they believe—they are a distraction to potential customers. The attack upon street people (whether musicians, peddlers, food sellers or even beggars) has traditionally been premised upon the same anti-competitive sentiments underlying most laws.

In most communities, there are either outright restrictions or rigid controls placed on such street activities. Retailers have been the promoters of such laws because they don't like the idea of free competition. So-called "Green River" ordinances—which prohibit or limit door-to-door selling—have also been pushed by local retailers, who see this form of selling as a threat to their business interests. It once again serves as a reminder that the governmental controls on economic activity have not been forged by wild-eyed socialists or devotees of Charles Fourier: They are the product of trade associations and business firms seeking to interfere with the exercise of economic free choice by others.

4. A California woman has been charged with murder over the death of a new-born baby. She is charged with having functioned as an unlicensed midwife. Even though the parents of the baby wanted her to assist in the delivery, the state is apparently taking the position that the parents should have no such right of selection. More and more people are choosing to have their babies at home—much to the consternation of the medical profession, I am sure—and so this case is being pushed to discourage freemidwifery.

The argument is made in response, of course, that the baby died, and that licensing would help reduce fatalities. The fact that many hundreds of babies die of negligence in hospitals that are licensed is, of course, overlooked. What the case really boils down to is an insistence, by political authorities, that the birth-process itself be institutionalized. After all, if people can run around having their babies at home, with the assistance of people who are not controlled by state licensing, think of the many people who might come into this world unnoticed, unrecorded and unnumbered by the State!

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Tuesday, Oct. 10, the 283rd day of 1978. There are 82 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On this date in 1911, Chinese revolutionaries under Dr. Sun Yat-sen overthrew the Manchu Dynasty in China.

On this date:
In 1845, the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., was opened.

In 1913, the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans flowed together in the Panama Canal as the Gamboa Dam was blown up by U.S. engineers.

In 1938, Nazi Germany completed the occupation of Czechoslovakia's Sudetenland.

In 1943, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek was sworn in as the President of China on the 32nd anniversary of the founding of the republic.

In 1963, a dam collapsed near Belluno, Italy, and the flood that followed killed an estimated 1,800 people.

In 1971, the death toll was put at more than 200 in a hurricane that swept parts of Haiti, Cuba, Mexico and Florida.

Ten years ago: The U.S. House of Representatives passed and sent to President Lyndon Johnson a compromise bill to restrict the mail order sales of rifles, shotguns and ammunition.

Five years ago: Vice President Spiro Agnew resigned under an agreement with the Justice Department in which he pleaded no contest to Federal income tax evasion charges.

One year ago: Two Soviet cosmonauts had to give up their space mission after unexplained trouble in docking with a space station and were ordered to return to earth.

Today's birthdays: Actress Helen Hayes is 78 years old. Pianist and composer Theolonious Monk is 60. Democratic Sen. Adlai Stevenson III of Illinois is 48.

Thought for today: Better ask twice than lose your way—a Danish proverb.

Horizons for women

The horizons for women have been pushed back beyond the kitchen window—a rather long way beyond.

Fortune magazine recently sought and found the women who graduated from Harvard's Business School five years ago—and they are doing all right!

When Linda Taylor enrolled in Harvard Business School in 1971 she was a "pioneer." Men students in those days were asking, "What are you doing here?" But she knew better.

She graduated with the class of '73 and today Linda Taylor helps to oversee the $500 million pension fund of the United Mine Workers.

Female enrollment at other business schools got going about the same time. But what Fortune sought to do was to follow the fortunes of the Harvard class of '73. Here's what they discovered:

On average, they are now 32 years old. They are all over the world working in banking, consulting, sales and marketing, advertising, accounting, money management, corporate planning, college administration and government.

Almost all are in positions theretofore considered "men's jobs."

Judith Gehrke finished in the top 5 percent of that Harvard class; she now has a planning job at International Paper and, on the side, runs a business of her own called "Design Lines."

She works from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. each day.

It can be argued that these graduated at a propitious time; the Labor Department had just decreed that companies with government contracts had to hire more women.

But that assist notwithstanding, these graduates' accomplishments were not gratuitous.

Lisa Spector, investment banker, was named a vice president of White Weld (now Merrill Lynch) last August.

If any married women in the class have found that their careers conflict with their marriages, none says so.

Most respond that the job of being a wife combines very easily with the paying kind.

Partly because with two incomes these couples can eat out a lot.

Ask them about conflicts with motherhood, and some will concede that the tug between children and careers is powerful.

Which may explain why only six of the women are mothers and only two of those are employed full time.

Most are postponing the "children decision" until nearer the end of their childbearing years.

How are these women doing compared to men of the same class? Among those on salary the median income is $32,250.

Except for a few male superstars, the women enjoy a median income almost equal to that of men from the same Harvard class.

Almost. Not quite. Yet.

Is quality of U.S. discs deteriorating?

Sylvia Porter

Snap, crackle, pop—these are sounds you're accustomed to hearing from your cereal bowl, not your new phonograph record.

But the quality of U.S. discs is deteriorating, particularly in comparison to those made by Japanese and European record manufacturers, claim many recording authorities and record buyers. And such surface noises as described above, plus warpage and other defects are now commonly found in American-made records.

The phenomenal growth of the record business itself is the prime factor behind the problem. While artists once proudly framed their gold records (sales of $1 million), last year more than 70 albums sold platinum (sales of more than a million records). Between '73 and '77 yearly sales of albums soared from $1.2 to nearly $2.2 billion.

With so many more records being rushed into production and sales—especially pop music records—a rise in the number of defective discs would seem inevitable. Hi-fi equipment also is more sophisticated and sensitive. Thus the question arises: are American records deteriorating? Or are the elaborate and costly stereo sets many record fans own enabling them to hear distortions that earlier generations of equipment couldn't pick up?

Not all experts feel the answer is in doubt.

"There has been a steady decline in the quality of American-made records," reports John Eargle, former chief engineer at Mercury records and a veteran of the recording business. "It is hard to say when the trend began, but it accelerated during the oil embargo, when vinyl (the petroleum-based plastic of which discs are made) was in short supply."

"The poor state of the art domestically is underscored by the recent influx of Japanese and European imports."

"By and large European and Japanese manufacturers take more care and produce better quality records than most American producers," agrees Larry Klein, technical director of the magazine Stereo Review, whose average reader owns $1,800 worth of hi-fi gear. "We do find top quality records in a normal domestic run, but it's a surprise when we do."

"Consumers in Europe and Japan are getting a consistently higher quality product, but they are paying more for it," adds Ed Outwater, national quality control manager for Warner Brothers Records.

And with this emphasis on price, Outwater hits a key point.

As James Head of RCA's custom record division asserts, for instance, "We make as good a record as anybody. Our quality is not deteriorating, but of course anything that is mass-produced is not going to be as high-quality an item as one where price is no object." And confirming Head's view is the clear fact that foreign-made records are more expensive, both here and abroad, than domestics.

In Japan, a single stereo album costs the equivalent of $10 or more. The same record imported to the U.S. might sell for $11-$12, while domestically produced albums sell for considerably less.

Whether the higher price of records is the reason, Japanese and European record consumers tend to demand—and get—a higher standard product. Records in Japan are not sealed as they are here. Japanese buyers are encouraged to examine them in the store under a bright light to see if they are warped or flawed. If they find any problems once they play the discs at home, they return the records to the retailer.

In contrast, U.S. buyers are either lazier or more indifferent to quality.

"People get used to lousy records," Mike Ludvik, assistant manager at a Tower Records store in San Francisco, told my Washington associate, Brooke Shearer. Tower is a major West Coast retail chain. "If customers get a warped record that they can still play, they don't bother to return it. This is especially true of people who buy popular records. We get more returns from classical record buyers."

Klein of Stereo Review attributes the decline in quality of U.S.-made records to cost-cutting. As costs of performers and studio time have risen, record producers have cut corners both when tape recording and during the production and pressing process. Improper packaging, shipping and storage also have caused warping.

"Improving the quality of U.S.-made records shouldn't raise the price that much," emphasizes Klein, "but the big firms are only starting to realize it."

No priority

In Cambodia, everybody is guaranteed a job. The jobs are all on the farm. Even sex is regulated in Cambodia.

"Leaders have decreed 'mating periods,' several days each year during which young men and women may meet romantically without fear of reprisal," according to an article in the San Francisco Examiner.

If young couples talk about anything "save economic development" between mating periods, they are liable to be summarily executed.

In enforcing the decree that everybody must be a farm worker, the Conquering Communist tribes killed a million or more Cambodians.

The killing has reached such proportions that even Senator McGovern, Dove of Doves, has suggested that some military force should go in and stop it.

The senator must be given some credit for speaking out. We haven't heard any other peaceniks of the Vietnam War days say anything about it, and certainly if they talk as loudly now as they did then it couldn't have been missed.

Is Cambodia into "just another civil rebellion" as the Fondas and the Clarks of that time described the Vietnam "situation"?

Human rights don't mean much in Cambodia just now. The right to a job is guaranteed, but not the right to life.

City and State news

Pampans should not be alarmed

Pampa homeowners and renters should not be alarmed if their October electricity bills continue to carry the four percent state sales tax, according to State Comptroller Bob Bullock.

Under the law, the utility companies will continue adding the tax on their October bills if the billing cycle begins before Oct. 1, Bullock said.

Southwestern Public Service Co.'s October billings in Pampa will include the tax, said District Manager Joe Gidden. "Starting with our November billings it will be deleted," he added.

Pioneer Natural Gas Co.'s October billings will not include the sales tax, according to Barbara Carter, chief clerk at Pioneer's Pampa office.

The Texas Legislature voted in special session earlier this year to repeal the state sales tax on residential gas and electric bills effective Oct. 1.

Under the law, the repeal of the sales tax actually is effective with the start of the utility companies' billing period on or after Oct. 1.

This means, Bullock explained, that a customer whose billing period is Oct. 3 through Nov. 3 will get advantage of the tax break as of Oct. 3.

A customer whose billing cycle is Sept. 25 through Oct. 25 will continue to pay the sales tax through Oct. 25, he said.

Homeowners and renters needn't jump on their utility companies about the sales tax on the October bills, Bullock said, because "they are only following the law."

In Gray County Extension program

Result demonstrations key ingredients

Result demonstrations in farming and ranching have been key ingredients in the Gray County Extension program for many years, according to Joe VanZandt, county extension agent.

County agricultural leaders are joining with others around the state in observing October as "Farm Demonstration Month in Texas," as proclaimed by Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

In signing the proclamation, the governor called upon all citizens to join in the observance and noted that the first farmer-conducted demonstration on the use of scientific research in farming was inaugurated on the Walter C. Porter farm, near Terrell, in 1903 by Dr. Seaman A. Knapp, special agent for the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Since that time more than 150,000 Texas farmers and ranchers have participated in cooperative farm demonstration work. Last year, more than 4,300 demonstrations were underway, covering a wide variety of farm and ranch programs, VanZandt said.

Fifteen of these farm demonstrations are underway in Gray County this year, with seven of them to be included in a Thursday afternoon tour to be conducted in the Alaneed, McLean vicinity.

Demonstrations have been established on a wide variety of crop and livestock enterprises that are important to Gray County agriculture, VanZandt said.

This year's crop demonstrations include wheat variety, wheat fertilization, sorghum fertilization, alfalfa fertilization and grass control, Johnson grass and bindweed control.

Livestock and range demonstrations include swine feeding, cattle implants, lovegrass fertilization, shinoak control, sand sage brush control, gold aster weed control, stocker cattle management and marketing.

Thursday's tour will begin at 1:30 p.m. at the Les Darsey farm, on Hwy. 291 five miles north of Alaneed. Here Dr. Bob Stewart, director of the USDA Research Center at Bushland will discuss results of manure applications in alfalfa fertilization and Wayne Chenault, research associate at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Bushland, will discuss research results of herbicides for grass and weed control in alfalfa.

Moving from the Darsey farm, tour participants will view the results of a demonstration in the use of herbicides in control of Johnson grass along county road rights-of-way. Dr. Frank Petr, agronomist at the Texas Agricultural Extension Service center at Amarillo, will discuss the project.

Control of shinoak will be discussed by Dr. Tommy Welch, range and brush control specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Vernon, during a stop at the Tony Smitherman farm.

During a stop at Jack C. "Butch" Turpin's place, Welch will report on the results of a demonstration in use of herbicide in control of sand sage.

Welch will discuss the results of research on use of herbicides in control of gold aster weed during a stop at Boyd Meador's farm and Petr will review demonstration results in lovegrass fertility and management at Jim Allison's.

The last stop on the tour will be the Clyde Brown's farm where Leon New, area irrigation specialist at Lubbock, will discuss diagnosing irrigation well problems and possible solutions to increase pumping rate and efficiency.

VanZandt said all interested farm and ranch operators are invited to make the tour in their own vehicle. He said the tour will be fast moving and will offer an excellent opportunity to see and hear about these research and demonstration plots.

The tour, sponsored by the Gray County Extension Service crops and livestock committees, will conclude about 5 p.m. after traveling about 32 miles, VanZandt said.

All Texas Air Tour makes stop in Pampa

The 30th annual All Texas Air Tour made an overnight stop in Pampa Sunday evening with approximately 65 airplanes landing at Perry Lefors Field between 4 and 6 p.m. Sunday.

The approximately 150 guests of Pampa stayed overnight at the Coronado Inn where the Pampa Chamber of Commerce's aviation committee and the Top O' Texans organization hosted a hospitality hour in the Starlight Room.

While in Pampa, the air tour group had their out-of-state party. At this party, tour participants bring various foods manufactured in their state and a smorgasbord of the various foods is served during the party.

Planes in the air tour came from Canada, Michigan, New York, North Carolina, Kentucky and several other states, as well from throughout Texas, chamber officials report.

Pampa is usually on the itinerary of the Texas Air Tour each year. They left Pampa shortly after 8 a.m. Monday enroute to Floydada.

From Floydada the Monday schedule included stops in Dalhart, Plainview and Odessa where they were to spend the night.

BALL MISSING

DALLAS (AP) — A ball is missing here. A 400-pound, cast-iron wrecking ball, that is.

Utility company officials are a little mystified as to how the ball disappeared.

After using the ball to tear down several power company structures, they said, foreman Jimmy Don Billman loaded it onto a flatbed truck with a crane. When he arrived at the company's headquarters the ball was gone.

Bill retraced the route and found a large crater in the middle of a street but no ball.

"We could conclude only that someone made off with it," said Jack Clifton, the company's office manager.

Texas forecast

By The Associated Press
 Dense, patchy ground fog cut visibility to less than one mile in the Midland-Odessa area of West Texas early this morning, but forecasters said partly cloudy skies would dominate Texas by the afternoon.
 Fog also formed in parts of South Texas.
 A stationary front extended across the state from near Childress southwestward to El Paso at dawn and skies were partly cloudy in East Texas and clear elsewhere.
 Early morning temperatures ranged from a cool 43 at Dalhart in the extreme northwestern Panhandle up to 69 degrees at Galveston on the coast. Other readings included: Austin 64 and fog, Brownsville 68, Dallas-Fort Worth 68, Houston 57 and Beaumont 60 and fog.
 The National Weather Service Forecast called for partly cloudy skies across the state today. Afternoon temperatures were expected to be mostly in the 80s, except near 90 degrees in the Big Bend area.

Fire prevention week spreads over Pampa

With posters in business windows, brochures brought home from school by students and sirens sounding all over Pampa at noon this week, it becomes apparent that this is Fire Prevention Week.
 A fire prevention and safety committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the activities of Fire Prevention Week in Pampa.
 A wide variety of activities is scheduled throughout the period ending Friday to alert Pampa residents to the fact that fire safety is an every day necessity.
 One of the highlights of the week will be the appearance of Ben Bullard, assistant safety director for the Texas Farm Bureau in Waco, before 15 different groups within the city.
 Bullard will appear at assemblies at all of the schools in Pampa and in most of the civic clubs during the week.
 Chamber officials said they feel that his demonstrations will enlighten people to be more fire safety conscious. The audiences will have an opportunity to see how fire can be man's best friend or his worst enemy by observing a graphically animated fire prevention demonstration.
 The Texas Farm Bureau safety department personnel have presented this educational fire prevention program more than 1,100 times for some 288,000 people in 216 Texas counties. The program is being brought to Pampa under sponsorship of the Gray County Farm Bureau.
 Other activities in observance of Fire Prevention Week will be fire drills conducted at each school under supervision of the Pampa Fire Department and a demonstration of the department's ladder truck to the students.
 The fire department will observe Fire Prevention Week by hosting an open house at Central Fire Station beginning at 9 a.m. Wednesday. The public is invited to tour the fire station, see the equipment available to protect them and have a cup of coffee with the firefighters.

Deaths

CLAUDE JEFFRIES
 Mr. Claude Marshall Jeffries, 85, of 2237 Beech died at 3:20 a.m. at Highland General Hospital.
 Services will be at 2 p.m. Thursday, at Carmichael-Whately Colonial Chapel with Glen Walton of the North Amarillo Church of Christ officiating.
 Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery with Masonic graveside services by Masonic Lodge 966 AF & AM.
 Born Dec. 7, 1892 at Bonham, Jeffries moved to the panhandle in 1926 from Covington, Okla., and to Pampa in 1932. He was an early day teaming contractor, beginning in 1908.
 When Jeffries' father died the young man was 16 and inherited a teamster business. In those days heavy work was done by mules or horses. He watched the transition to trucks, he owned the C.M. Jeffries Trucking Co. for 50 years.
 Leliah Helen Bass married him July 28, 1916, at Tulsa, Okla.

Jeffries was a member of the Church of Christ, Pampa Masonic Lodge 966 AF & AM, Khiva Shrine of Amarillo, Pampa Shrine Club and the Dallas Consistory, 32 degree.
 He is survived by his wife of the home; two daughters, Mrs. Claudine Bradley and Mrs. Virginia Body of Pampa; two brothers, Charley Jeffries of Pampa and C.R. Jeffries of Evansville, Ind.; four grandchildren and 10 great grandchildren.
 Masons are asked to meet at the lodge hall at 1 p.m. Thursday.

DOROTHY HOWARD
WELLINGTON - Miss Dorothy Lou Howard, 50, died Monday.
 Services will be at 2 p.m. today, at the Assembly of God Church, The Rev. Woodrow Weidner, pastor, and the Rev. A.R. Vaughan, retired minister, will officiate. Burial will be in North Fairview Cemetery by Guy Owens Funeral Home.
 Miss Howard was born at Eldorado, Okla. and moved to Wellington in 1931.
 Survivors include: four sisters, Mrs. Wilbur Laucamp of Lafayette, Colo., Mrs. Bill Adick of Littleton, Colo., Mrs. Dick LaTondre of Santa Clara, Calif. and Mrs. York of Potot, and two brothers, A.C. Howard of Pampa and Dale of Paonia, Colo.

Green resigns from DA's post

PALESTINE, Texas (AP) — Bill Green has resigned from a district attorney's post that had already been stripped from him by the courts and says he will be a write-in candidate for county judge of Anderson County.
 The 30-year-old Democrat was disbarred last February and suspended from office last April after being convicted in 1977 of public lewdness in Austin. But he had refused to leave office; insisting that he was still the district attorney until all his appeals were exhausted.
 He announced Monday, however, that he was abandoning that course because of the "slow and tedious" court proceedings involved.
 "I thought it was somewhat futile to continue twisting in the wind waiting for the... process to run its course," Green said.
 He said Monday his letter of resignation to Gov. Dolph Briscoe would be "in the mail tonight" and that he had already filed his intent to run Nov. 7 against Democratic incumbent County Judge N.R. Link.
 Green said "folks all across the district" encouraged him to run.
 "They are the rank and file, the John and Jane Does of this county, and they have asked me to remain active in county government," Green said.
 An acting prosecutor, Richard Handorf, was appointed district attorney after Green was suspended last April, but the controversy never ceased.
 A tri-county Democratic Party committee met last month and voted to put the name of Billy Bandy on the General Election ballot to serve out the remainder of Green's term. Republicans challenged the action, saying Handorf should serve out the 27 months left in the term.
 Green was serving his first term as district attorney for Anderson, Henderson and Houston counties. His January 1977 arrest in Austin on the lewdness charge came in his first month of office.
 Green was arrested in a booth of an x-rated adult peep show in Austin and was convicted three months later. He broke away from policemen who arrested him in the booth with another man. He was chased down and caught in a hotel several blocks away.

Davis to testify against her husband in hearing

HOUSTON (AP) — Priscilla Davis, a witness against her husband in a capital murder trial last year when he was acquitted of slaying her 12-year-old daughter, is expected to testify again today in the pretrial hearing of Fort Worth millionaire T. Cullen Davis.
 Davis is charged with soliciting the murder of Fort Worth Judge Joe Eidson, who had presided in the long and bitter Davis divorce trial. Eidson later removed himself from the divorce proceedings.
 Mrs. Davis was on the stand for about 90 minutes Monday as defense attorneys probed into her financial dealings over the past two years.
 Chief defense lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes asked Mrs. Davis if she had ever attempted to contact anyone in an effort to have her estranged husband killed.
 She answered quickly and firmly, "no sir."
 The defense and prosecution are plodding through a thick stack of motions, 83 from the defense alone, before State District Judge Wallace Moore.
 Also testifying Monday was Ron Jannings, an FBI agent, who was asked if there were more tape recordings than the four previously mentioned by the prosecution. Jannings said there were no more tapes.
 The tapes, first presented in court during an August bond hearing for Davis, allegedly include the Fort Worth industrialist in a kill-of-hire contract on the life of Judge Eidson.
 The defense questioning also involved fingerprints taken from some $100 bills allegedly paid to FBI informant David McCrory for the killing of the judge.

Jannings said none of the bills contained prints of T. Cullen Davis.
 Early Monday, Davis, pale from almost two months in prison but dapper in dress and impassive in appearance, pleaded innocent to all charges.
 Mrs. Davis, hesitant sometimes in her testimony and often stating she couldn't remember exact dates, was questioned over and over by the defense as to the money she had loaned or the loans or gifts she had received in the past two years.
 Bank statements for the months of May, June, August, and September of this year from Mrs. Davis' account were brought into court.
 The pretrial hearings are expected to last throughout the week.
 Judge Moore has set Oct. 16 as the tentative date for the beginning of the trial.

Canadian Chamber sets foliage tour

CANADIAN — The annual fall foliage tour of the Canadian - Hemphill County Chamber of Commerce will be held Sunday, Oct. 29.
 Announcement of the scheduling of the tour and other events was made during the chamber's Monday night meeting by Nana Ezzelle, chamber president.
 Registration for the tour will be at the Moody Building Sunday afternoon, the chamber executive said.
 The tour itself will begin at the entrance to Lake Marvin Road and culminate at the lake where A.S. Jackson's famed Nature Trail in the lake's picnic area will be featured.
 The day's activities will also include a business and industrial tour. The Moody Building and Canadian Millwork will be visited on this tour with a 20 - minute film about area drilling rigs to be shown in the Canadian Room of the First State Bank. A bus trip will also be made to an area drilling rig.
 Tickets for the business and industrial tour, limited to a total of 2,000, may be obtained at the chamber office.
 Other activities scheduled for the day of the foliage tour will include the annual hobby show and the Women's Service League's Kountry Kitchen.

The hobby show will be held in the city auditorium with various hobby items to be on display and for sale. Clara Hoobler will be chairman of this event.
 The Kountry Kitchen will operate from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Oct. 29 in the Moody Mall Coffee Shop. The Service League will be serving beef on bun, coffee, tea, soft drinks and will sell homemade pies, cakes, bread, candies and other items.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Jay High School students, who got an unexpected two-day holiday after a Sunday night fire blamed on vandals caused more than $100,000 damage, will probably return to class Wednesday, according to school officials.
 "It's the worst case of vandalism in the district's history," said Northside School District Superintendent Ed Cody, who added that the vandals also damaged other portions of the school. "It (the damage total) could be substantially more than $100,000."
 "It was definitely arson," said Assistant Fire Chief Reyes Lopez.

Judge 'set up' for picture taking

POST, Texas (AP) — Garza County Judge Giles W. Dalby, a Democrat, says he was "set up" by gubernatorial candidate Bill Clements and his campaign workers into having his picture taken as a supporter of the GOP candidate.
 Dalby said his photograph recently appeared in a Clements campaign publication identifying him as a Clements supporter even though the judge says he is campaigning for Democratic candidate John Hill.
 Dalby said he was photographed when he welcomed Clements to Garza County as part of his duty as county judge.
 A Clements campaign spokesman said, however, that Dalby signed a release giving his consent to the Clements for Governor Campaign Committee "to use my name, photograph, and/or statements in advertising materials...to help elect Bill Clements governor of Texas."
 Dalby admits signing the release, but he insisted he did not realize what he was signing.
 "They moved in on me like gangbusters. This little girl was handing me a paper to sign, someone was taking my picture...I didn't realize it was a release. It was on a clipboard, and I thought it was a registration form," Dalby said.
 He said the Clements campaign sent him a $1 modeling fee for the picture, but he said he returned the money with a letter saying "I cannot accept the check because I do not wish to act as a model for news releases."

Texan has money, faith restored

BAYTOWN, Texas (AP) — A Baytown man had his faith in human nature renewed and his anger at his wife erased by a high school youth who returned $2,200 he found in the middle of a road in Liberty County.
 Kerry Jones, a high school junior, was driving home from his girlfriend's house Sunday night when he spotted "something green" lying in the middle of the road — a money bag.
 "I opened it up and saw all the money along with some checks and a telephone bill," the 17-year-old said.
 With a few telephone calls, Jones tracked down the owner of the money, John Ruse, who said the cash was part of his profits from the sale of a truck stop near Baytown.
 Ruse's wife, Wanda, placed the money bag on top of their car Sunday as they were leaving on a visit with her mother in Hull, Texas.
 "We must have driven about 15 miles before I realized I had left the money on top of the car," Mrs. Ruse said.
 They backtracked frantically to her mother's house, and were relieved to find that Jones had already called.
 Ruse said he was "very surprised" anyone would return the money, and he gave Jones $100 for his honesty.
 "He said he didn't want the reward," Ruse said. "But I told him that if someone else had found it, I wouldn't have gotten my money back."
 "I didn't think there were people like that left anymore," he said.

Check presented to Lions Club

SKELLYTOWN — A check for $1,140 was presented to the Skellytown Lions Club Monday night by representatives of the women who operated the concession stand at baseball and softball games last summer.
 Presenting the check to Kenneth Cox, boss Lion, were Mrs. Larty Brown and Mrs. Richard Sturgill. The money represented profits from the concession stand.
 Cox said the money will be utilized in the local Lions club's various civic projects.

Krueger has problems

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The challenger with the German name that Mexican-Americans have trouble pronouncing knows that the senator he wants to replace has a name that voters remember.
 But U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger of New Braunfels says he is used to hearing his name mispronounced. His father did it half the time.
 "When he answered the San Antonio line, he said, 'Kroeger.' On the New Braunfels line it was, 'Kree-ger.' Actually, it should be about halfway between those," he said.
 Name identification is the name of the game now as Krueger tries to unseat veteran Republican U.S. Sen. John Tower.
 Krueger aides said "frankly" they are disappointed about the lack of enthusiasm they have found for the Senate race in important South Texas. They are looking for something to spark voter interest.
 They think Krueger's quick-hitting helicopter whistletop tours are helping.
 Monday, the helicopter touched down in nine South Texas towns. Last week it hit 58 Texas cities in four days.
 Krueger said a simple introduction and handshake can be as important as a vigorous campaign talk.
 "It does have an effect. A majority of people in this country have never met a U.S. senator or congressman. I remember every senator I met before I went up there," the two-term representative said.
 The day began at 7:30 a.m. in Alice. After a brief stop in Falfurrias, the Krueger copter touched down at Pan American University in Edinburg. The stop got off to a stumbling start when a campus campaign worker introduced Krueger as the "next congressman from Texas."
 But Krueger quickly won the crowd's support — especially when he adeptly handled a question from a Tower supporter.

Foreign briefs

VENICE, Italy (AP) — Chinese Foreign Minister Huang Hua has toured the landmarks of this island city that sent Marco Polo to China in the 13th Century.

Huang Hua, who winds up a five-day visit to northern Italy today, visited the Doges' Palace and other landmarks and watched glass blowing at one of the glassworks on the island of Murano. Today, he is touring the Fiat auto plant in Turin.

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — The official death toll in the new monsoon floods in West Bengal state is 623, but it is believed more than 1,000 have died, officials say.

Low-lying parts of Calcutta were flooded again Sunday by driving rains. Authorities say more than 2,100 persons have died since the monsoon rains began in June.

TURIN, Italy (AP) — Scientists from several countries are making tests today and Tuesday on the Holy Shroud following a public display of the linen cloth believed by many Roman Catholics to be Christ's burial cloth.

The 43-day display of the the 14-by-3-foot cloth at the Turin Cathedral ended Sunday, and church officials estimated more than 3 million people saw it. The last previous public display was in 1933, and the cloth was shown on Italian television in 1973.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am Wife No. 2. My husband's previous marriage ended in divorce seven years ago. They had three children.

My husband's ex-in-laws recently invited him (and me) to their 50th wedding anniversary party. He accepted even though he has not been part of their family for seven years.

Of course, his ex-wife and their children were at this party. When Wife No. 1 asked my husband if he would mind posing for some "family" pictures with her, their children and the grandparents, my husband agreed willingly, as though they were still one big happy family!

I think I did well to attend this party without having to sit on the sidelines while my husband posed for "family photographs" of a family he is no longer a member of.

Was I, Wife No. 2, out of line to object to the picture taking bit under the circumstances?

WIFE NO. 2

DEAR WIFE NO. 2: Yes. Even though your husband is no longer married to the mother of his children, perhaps the golden wedding couple (and conceivably your husband's children) would treasure a picture of the three generations (of which you are not a part).

DEAR ABBY: I have many comments in mind when I read various letters in your column, but I must write about the newly coined word, "clergyman" in lieu of "clergymen,"—in order to avoid offending women.

I think the funniest feminist term I ever saw was in a college newspaper that referred to a freshman as "freshperson."

MA. RION F. IN PHILLY

DEAR MARION: Thanks for another for my collection. I still think replacing "manhole" with "personhole" takes the prize.

DEAR ABBY: Never in my life have I been so miserable. I am writing this as I sit in a hospital corridor where I have been for six hours, waiting, waiting, waiting, waiting until a 12-year-old boy comes out of surgery.

Last night I was driving my car when I suddenly struck something. It was this boy on a bicycle. He was directly in front of me without a light anywhere on his bicycle. He was wearing a dark shirt and dark trousers. I had no idea that he was there until I hit him. I wasn't going fast, but this poor kid was badly injured, and I was told that his chances for survival were slim. And if he does live, what his mental condition will be is anybody's guess.

You can't help me—or this boy—but maybe if you print this, parents will see it and make sure their kids have the proper lights on their bikes so that accidents like this can be avoided.

Thanks, Abby.

DEAR MISERABLE: Thanks for a worthwhile reminder. Parents!

Ask Dr. Lamb

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB— I am writing to you because many people who have problems do and I have one. I am 25 years old and only weigh 95 pounds. I am 5 feet 4 inches tall.

As you can see, I am very skinny, and don't ask me to go see a doctor because I have, and they all say I am OK. They give me a bunch of vitamins that won't help me to gain weight and I am very worried about this. On the other hand, my mother's mother was skinny, but not as skinny as I am, and the rest of my family is OK. Please help!

DEAR READER— In the first place, you are absolutely right about taking a bunch of vitamins. They won't help you gain weight. Vitamins do not contain calories. If you are already on a balanced diet and get an adequate amount of vitamins, taking additional ones won't help at all.

Most of the vitamins that you would be interested in for this purpose serve simply as catalysts to break down your food. The energy is in the food, not the vitamins. If you already have enough catalysts to break down the food you eat, adding more catalysts won't help.

You'll be surprised at my suggestion. Why don't you take up weight lifting? You don't want to get fat. That's not very appealing. You want to develop your muscle size. Women who take up weight lifting find that it helps them a great deal. It will develop your strength and muscle size, and you can be shapely at the same time. You don't need to worry about becoming an Arnold Schwarzenegger because you don't have to grow large bulging muscles in the process.

Weight lifting for women is an idea whose time has come. Women do not tend to Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY— Tired of breaking fingernails trying to open and close aluminum storm windows? I cut wooden dowels into six-inch lengths and keep two on each window sill. I use these sticks to push the metal tabs in the corners of the windows to open and close them instead of using my fingers. Great for saving the nails and wonderful for the disposition, too. — MARJORIE

DEAR POLLY— My Pet Peeve is literally a "pet" peeve. It really irks me that people allow their dogs to stick their heads out of car windows while going down the road at 50 mph. These people must not realize how much damage this can do to a dog — it could be blinded by the fierce wind, not to mention the danger of flying sand, pebbles and dirt. I feel sorry for dogs with such dumb human owners. — M.D.

DEAR POLLY— When making slacks press the creases in with a cloth dipped in a solution of one-half white vinegar and one-half water. The crease will last the life of the slacks. — MRS. J.W.B.

Leaves of 3, let it be

By Edward R. Ricciuti
Of all the poisonous plants in North America, none has caused more misery for more people than the three-leafed menace, poison ivy.

Along with its close relatives, poison oak and poison sumac, poison ivy has afflicted about half of all Americans living today, despite the fact that most people know poison ivy is a plant to beware.

The rash caused by poison ivy is an allergy, an over-reaction by the body to a foreign substance or "allergen."

The allergen in poison ivy, oak and sumac is a toxic chemical called urushiol, which is found in the sticky sap of the plants.

If the sap comes in contact with the human skin — especially where it is soft and thin, as between the fingers — molecules of urushiol will penetrate it. Once within the skin, the urushiol is greeted by white blood cells, known as lymphocytes, part of the body's defense against foreign substances.

No reaction occurs at this first encounter, so people really never know the first time they have poison ivy. But from that point on, any time the lymphocytes are in the presence of urushiol a skin rash will break out.

The rash can occur on any part of the skin, because the lymphocytes spread through the body, carrying their sensitivity with them.

Each time a person gets poison ivy, he or she becomes more susceptible to it. Conversely, the longer a person goes without exposure to the plant, the less the body will react to it.

One can contract poison ivy without ever touching the plant. Urushiol can be picked up from shoes, trousers or other clothing that has brushed through poison ivy or from a dog or cat that has been in it.

Particles containing urushiol are carried by the smoke from burning poison ivy and can be inhaled into the lungs, where the resulting irritation is extremely painful and dangerous.

The rash caused by poison ivy appears anywhere from four hours to three days after exposure. The affected part of the skin reddens, then breaks out into bumps and blisters, which soon begin to ooze.

Despite popular belief, the clear fluid from the blisters does not contain urushiol, so there is no danger of the fluid spreading the rash to other parts of the body. If the urushiol has not been completely washed off the skin, however, the allergen can be spread by touching it with the fingers.

Generally, the rash lasts a week or two, then disappears. But it can cause complications. Very rarely, a person with an extremely severe case of poison ivy can develop kidney problems, and people with bad cases have temporarily lost their vision when the eyelids have swelled and closed.

It is a good idea to know how to identify poison ivy and its cousins. The old saw, "Leaves of three, let it be," holds for poison ivy and poison oak because each stalk has three leaflets growing on it.

Other than this characteristic, there is great variability in the plants. The leaves can be edged with tiny teeth or smooth, and the plants can be vines or shrubs. Generally, the leaves are green, but some are dark in hue, others light. In autumn, the leaves turn yellow or bright red.

Poison ivy is most common in the central and eastern parts of the United States and nearby areas of Canada, although it can be found in virtually all parts of the United States except the desert southwest. The ivy grows best in damp, shady woodlands.

Poison oak grows primarily along the west coast, where poison ivy is rare.

Poison sumac grows mainly in the eastern half of the country, almost exclusively in swampy areas. It is a small tree about the height of a man, with a series of from seven to 13 leaflets per stalk. Late in the summer or early in the autumn, its leaves turn a vivid scarlet.

If one has been exposed to poison ivy, oak or sumac, washing the skin with strong soap as soon as possible will remove much of the sap and moderate the reaction. Calamine lotion and similar preparations can relieve itching, although severe cases should be treated by a physician.

A Collection of cooking misspellings

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Americans have always enjoyed cooking and/or eating dishes from other countries.

However, misspelling the names of these foreign specialties began long ago and continues today. Here's our latest collection of such misspellings. First, one from almost 50 years ago.

In "Favorite Recipes of the Movie Stars," published in 1931, Helen Twelvetrees, described as "a young star who doesn't bother her head about calories and vitamins, but usually takes a salad for lunch just because she finds it tempting," gave a Mexican salad as her favorite.

Its name was misspelled as "Wakimoli." The late Helen Evans Brown, in her "West Coast Cookbook," published in 1952, cited a similar choice misspelling: "waca molay." GUACAMOLE is correct. In its simplest form it consists of mashed avocado, lemon juice, chopped onion, salt and pepper, garnished with lettuce and tomatoes. Nowadays guacamole is usually offered as a dip with tortilla chips for scooping it up.

In a cookbook published by the women's committee of a Midwest philharmonic association a recipe for "ramalade" is given. In a leaflet circulated by a cooking utensil manufacturer, there's a recipe for "remolade."

REMOULADE is correct. The name of this French sauce would never be misspelled in New Orleans, its home in the United States. Remoulade, according to Larousse Gastronomique, is "mayonnaise to which gherkins, capers, parsley, spring onions, chervil, chopped tarragon and anchovy essence are added." New Orleans cooks wouldn't consider making remoulade without adding mustard.

A recipe for a German coffee-cake, contributed by a home cook, recently showed up as "kucken."

KUCHEN is correct. There are many varieties of this coffee-cake; a traditional one is a sweet yeast dough topped with apples or plums.

In a food newsletter, we found a recipe for a popular Slavic bun. Its name is misspelled: "kolachky."

KOLACKY, KOLACH, KOLACE, KOLATCH or KOLACHES are the acceptable spellings in Webster.

In a recent contest, the name of a French tart was misspelled: "kische."

QUICHE is correct. We're happy to say that the contestant's ingredients are impeccable — a filling of eggs, cream, cheese and bacon baked in a pastry shell.

LAWN CARE TIPS

Things To Do In October

Leaves on the ground and your favorite football team on television. No question about it: Autumn is underway.

And some final lawn care chores are in order, say Massey-Ferguson lawn care specialists. Also some tips on buying new lawn care equipment. But we'll get to that in a moment.

It's unnecessary to rake leaves but once, when they're all off the tree. Leave the foliage that falls in the shrubbery, flower garden and vegetable garden. It's the best natural mulch.

After raking, give your lawn its final mowing.

If your lawn is dry, water it generously before the first freeze. Same for all ornamental shrubbery and small deciduous trees.

Next, spray your lawn against snow mold — those gray-pink large circular spots on the blade that show up in the spring — with any of several commercial fungicides. A compressed air sprayer works best to apply it.

Finally, put your mower away in top condition. Take it to a reliable dealer for a checkover and sharpening.

Next, drain the oil and gasoline.

Replace the old sparkplug.

Tighten all loose nuts and bolts.

Wipe excess oil from the machine.

For those of you who will be trading in your old machine on a shiny new riding mower or lawn tractor, take note of the following tips:

1. Shop around to acquaint yourself with what's available.

2. Arrange for demonstrations.

3. Locate the position of hand controls and gear shift.

4. Does the unit have the weight and power to do the job you have in mind? This is especially important when considering hilly or sloping areas, and attachment use. Your dealer can help you decide.

5. Check the ease of service. Will it be simple to change spark plugs, check the oil and battery, add oil and fuel, grease moving parts?

6. Check the starting mechanism for ease of operation.

7. Choose the transmission best suited to your needs: standard, variable speed or hydrostatic.

8. If you're planning to use the machine to plow through snow, be sure you get a lawn tractor with enough horsepower to do the job.

9. Make yourself as big a fool as possible if you wish to make one of the fair sex tremendously in love with you.

What's up with the sexes

Now Viva magazine has unearthed Montez's 10 rules for men on the "Art of Fascinating." Here they are:

1. Make an immense hit with the ladies by pretending to be no admirer of any particular woman but a professed adorer and slave of the whole sex.

2. Be more serviceable and render yourself more agreeable to a lady by bringing her all the bad news you hear, especially if it relates to herself.

3. Dance with all the might of your body and all the fire of your soul.

4. Should you invite a lady out to supper, order three times as much of expensive dishes as it will be possible to eat, as this will show her that you have a generous disregard of money.

5. Go out to drink with your male friends between each act if you invite a lady to the theater. This will show her you have confidence she can protect herself.

6. Make sure you never approach a lady except when dressed so as to look precisely as though a tailor had made you not more than 15 minutes before.

7. Go at least an hour before the time you are invited to dine, for the lady will never forget you as the attentive gentleman who allowed her neither time to dress nor to superintend her dinner.

8. Never allow yourself to sit five minutes by the side of a lady without paying her some delicate attention, such as leaning affectionately upon her or throwing your arm over the back of her chair.

9. Give one a good idea of your gentility at the table by taking your napkin and tying it around your neck as a bib. Fall to, without paying attention to the lady next to you, for ladies like not to be disturbed at meals.

10. Make yourself as big a fool as possible if you wish to make one of the fair sex tremendously in love with you.

Astro-Graph

By Bernice Bede Osol

October 10, 1978
 You will have more than your share of opportunities this coming year, but they will not be in the long-shot department. Stick to the blue chips and sure things.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today you may be tempted to cater to whims of overindulgence. If you do, there is an indication you may suffer financially as well as physically. Find out more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You could succumb to a desire today to make an important change just for the sake of change. Don't let restlessness lead you to unsound reasoning.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Refrain from embellishing your achievement too grandly today. Your credibility will suffer by telling tall tales.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) For one who seldom counts his chickens before they're hatched, you may be banking too heavily today on something not yet a reality.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Someone who is aware that you can be manipulated today through flattery may lay it on rather thick in order to achieve his ends.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Disappointment is likely today if you expect others to do more for you than you would for them if roles were reversed.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Large groups could get on your nerves today, so by all means don't subject yourself to them. You'll be happier where things are less hectic.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Taking bows prematurely for something not yet accomplished could backfire on you. One who'd like to trip you up might ask to see the finished product.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Usually you like to play things by ear, but today if you don't have everything planned step-by-step you could experience some serious pitfalls.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be wary of getting involved in a venture today where the heavy end of the expenses could fall to you because of something you permitted another to manage.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be extremely careful in horse-trading today. You'll go in thinking that you have the edge. In reality, you won't.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're not your usually reliable self today. You may pretend that you took care of something for another when you really hadn't. The truth will out.

World Series to open tonight

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Right-hander Ed Figueroa, starting a World Series game one year later than he expected to, faces left-hander Tommy John, who was never supposed to pitch again, when the Fall Classic opens tonight between the New York Yankees and the Los Angeles Dodgers.

This 75th anniversary Series, a rematch of last year's show-down won by the Yanks in six games, has its seeds in an ancient subway rivalry that often pitted the Bronx Bombers against the Brooklyn Bums. On the eve of the Series, the Dodgers have lost one of their most beloved members, Jim Gilliam, who spanned the Brooklyn and Los Angeles eras as a player and a coach, died Sunday night of cardiac arrest. The Dodgers are dedicating the Series to Gilliam, whose funeral will be Wednesday. Davey Lopes, the Dodgers' fiery second baseman, warned newsmen not to emphasize the team's memorial to Gilliam.

"If they beat us, they beat us cause they're a better team," said Lopes, one of the heroes in the Dodgers' four-game National League playoff victory over Philadelphia. "The death of Jim Gilliam will have nothing to do with it."

Third baseman Craig Nettles, whose fourth-game homer and sparkling glove work sparked the Yanks to a third straight American League playoff triumph over Kansas City, suggested that the Dodgers' testament to Gilliam might work against them.

"They might have that on their minds so much, they might forget what they have to do on the field," he said.

Victory is the only thing on the minds of tonight's starting pitchers.

Figueroa, a born-again pitcher since Bob Lemon replaced Billy Martin as the Yanks' manager at midseason, credits his new boss with turning his and the team's season around.

Figueroa, 20-9, worked more regularly under Lemon, and he will be debuting in the World Series and facing the Dodgers in real competition for the first time.

"I was supposed to pitch the sixth game (last year)," said the first and only 20-game winner from Puerto Rico. "I walked away (left the team) because of the way Billy treated me. He told me I would pitch and I didn't."

"After Billy resigned, Bob Lemon came. Then we became a family." John's head has always been squarely on his shoulders, it's his arm that has needed help. A unique tendon transplant turned a disabled pitcher into a scientific miracle.

"My arm is better and stronger than before the operation (in 1974)," said John, who was surprisingly tabbed by Los Angeles skipper Tom Lasorda to get the opening-game ball.

"I thought they would go with Burt Hooton," said John, 17-10 in the regular season and a shutout winner over Philadelphia last week.

John, a loser against the Yanks last October and a former American Leaguer with Chicago, says his record against New York over the years is around .500. "With the White Sox, how could it have been good?" he said with his usual smile.

Herzog unhappy with offer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Kansas City Royals Manager Whitey Herzog got a one-year contract offer from the team's front office Monday, but he said he was not pleased with it.

Cycle results

LEFORS — James Jerry and Joe Skinner all recorded victories Sunday in motocross racing at the Lefors Super Track. The next day of racing is scheduled Oct. 22. Sunday's results:

- 50 CC — 1. James Skinner 2. Waylon Flaharity 3. Bobby Pugh
- 80 CC Jr. — 1. Greg Alexander 2. Steven Roberson 3. Brent Cates
- 80 CC Sr. — 1. Jerry Skinner 2. Morris Troxwell 3. Marvin Skinner
- 100 CC — 1. Dene Coble 2. Jimmy Barker 3. Doug Youree
- 125 CC — 1. Joe Skinner 2. Terry Lewis 3. Dene Coble
- 250 CC — 1. Ricky Higgins 2. Brad Houck 3. Randy Hinds
- 400 CC — 1. Kurt Kelley 2. Larry Franks 3. David Winegeart

"Yeah, I received an offer for a one-year contract and I'm thinking it over," Herzog said Monday night. "But I'm not very happy with the offer."

He would not elaborate on that statement.

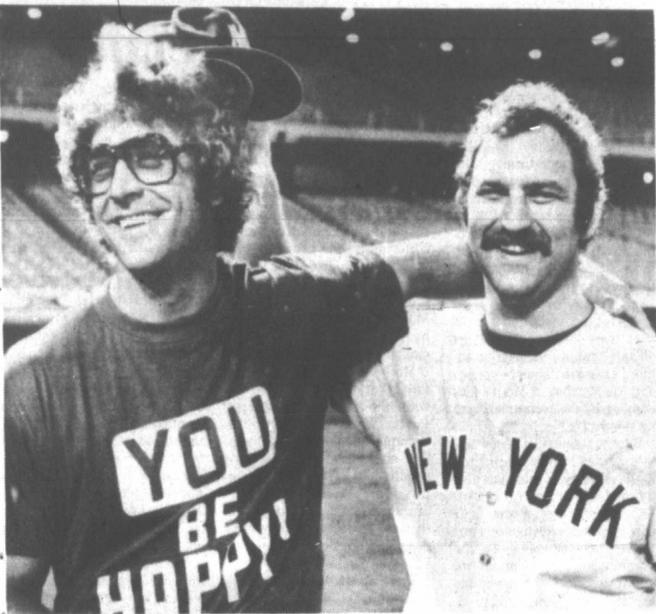

Herzog was given the offer during a meeting Monday afternoon with Joe Burke, Royals general manager.

Herzog, who has led the team to three straight American League West Division championships, had expressed concern recently over what he believed was a lack of complete support from the team's front office.

Saturday night, after the Royals lost for the third straight year to the Yankees in the league championship series, Herzog suggested that he might not return.

"Maybe it would be best if someone else manages this club," he said following the loss. "We've been here three times and haven't won. Well, I'm going to wait and see what they offer me."

Griese's shoes filled capably by Strock

By DAN SEWELL
AP Sports Writer
MIAMI (AP) — Don Strock has hardly been a Cinderella story as the Miami Dolphins' quarterback, but he can take pride in his accomplishments as the clock nears midnight in his starting tenure.

Strock tossed two touchdowns Monday night and nose tackle Bob Baumhower returned a fumble 13 yards for a touchdown as the Dolphins blanked the winless Cincinnati Bengals 21-0. Strock, who has been booed each home game, yielded to Bob Griese in the fourth quarter.

The crowd greeted Griese, making his first appearance since a knee injury in the final exhibition game, with a thunderous ovation. Griese opened with a 17-yard pass completion, finished with two of four, and indicated he's ready to pick up where last season — the best of his career — ended.

"It felt great to be in there. I'm able to set up and throw, and the knee feels fine. It's hard to answer how much more time I need, but it's mainly just timing now," said Griese, who quarterbacked the Dolphins' final two possessions.

Coach Don Shula said he won't decide until Thursday whether Griese will start at San Diego Sunday, but added, "It goes without saying how good it was to see No. 12 back on the field."

Griese's return to the starting position will mean Strock's return to the bench, where he's languished most of his five-year career.

"I've made my share of mistakes, but the offense was moving tonight. Our goal has been to make the playoffs. As far as who's quarterback, that doesn't make any difference," Strock said.

He reflected, "We're 4-2 and we're tied for the lead. I kept us in the race. I've got to be happy about that."

Strock completed 12 of 20 passes for 154 yards against the Bengals. As he was being hit by Reggie Williams in the first quarter, he hit on a 4-yard scoring pass to Duriel Harris.

The Dolphins took a 14-0 lead in the second quarter on a 27-yard Pottstown-to-Pittston pass. Strock is from Pottstown, Pa., and the recipient, rookie Jimmy Cefalo, is from Pittston, Pa.

Strock has thrown nine touch-down passes.

"I thought he made a lot of good plays overall. He missed a couple of people and that kept him from an outstanding performance tonight," Shula said of Strock.

Sooners solidify position

By The Associated Press
After losing to Oklahoma on Saturday, Texas Coach Fred Akers voiced the opinion that the Sooners, indeed, were deserving of the nation's No. 1 ranking.

The Sooners solidified their position atop of the The Associated Press poll Monday by collecting 52 of 63 first-place votes from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters for 1,260 points.

That widened their lead over Southern Cal's Trojans, who were idle over the weekend. The country's No. 2 team received five first-place votes and 1,144 points. Last week, Oklahoma's lead was 1,226-1,166.

Michigan dropped from third to fifth despite a 21-17 victory over Arizona and relinquished the spot to Arkansas and Penn State, which tied for No. 3 with 1,071 points and three first-place votes apiece. Arkansas crushed Texas Christian 42-3 while Penn State trounced Kentucky 30-0.

Michigan didn't get any votes for first place this time and accumulated 1,040 points.

The defeat by Oklahoma cost Texas a six-place drop in the standings — the Longhorns falling from No. 6 to No. 12. Southwestern Conference colleague Texas A&M, meanwhile, moved up a notch to No. 6 with 931 points following a 38-9 rout of Texas Tech.

Alabama climbed a spot to No. 7 after beating Washington 20-17; Nebraska moved two spots to No. 8 following a 23-0 beating of previously undefeated Iowa State; Pittsburgh whipped Boston College 32-15 and held on to No. 9, and Maryland climbed from 12th to 10th with a 31-7 shellacking of North Carolina State.

The Second Ten consists of Louisiana State; Texas; Colorado; UCLA; Florida State; Ohio State; Houston; Stanford; Missouri and Iowa State.

Might be beginning of the end

WASHINGTON (AP) — It just might be the beginning of the end for Molly Moo at the Agriculture Department. Same goes for Gussie Goose, Mary Mutton, Fred the Horse, Who Liked Bread, and the Professor.

Those are characters in USDA pamphlets available to schools and groups since about 1975 to help instruct children about proper eating habits and nutrition.

But as popular as some department people say the pamphlets have been, Molly Moo and her associates will be reviewed with all other USDA nutrition education aids under a new program just under way.

Months in the making, the program involves a "pilot multi-media campaign" to inform children about good dietary practices. It will cost about $550,000.

Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman, who is in charge of the department's food and consumer services, says the campaign will include television spots in an effort to reach children and assess the messages' impact.

Research guidelines have been developed with the aid of the Children's Television Workshop, the three major television networks, the advertising industry, food industry, public interest groups and nutrition educators.

"American children watch an average of two hours of food commercials each week on television," says Ms. Foreman. "The department wants to offer positive nutrition messages to help children make wise food choices."

Consequently, she says, USDA is seeking proposals from advertising agencies, universities, research firms and other on how to develop "messages, strategies and materials" for the project.

The aim will be to direct the messages at children from ages 5 to 12 to "encourage them to eat breakfast, nutritious snacks and more fruits and vegetables," says Ms. Foreman.

Molly Moo had something of the same idea. As the pamphlet, featuring a blue and white cow, said:

"Molly makes the milk you drink. Other foods are made from milk. They are good for you, too. They supply many of the things your body needs to keep you active at work and play."

Armed man arrested during game

MIAMI (AP) — After being shooed away twice from the Miami Dolphins' bench, a man claiming to be an atomic engineer was charged with carrying a concealed 44-caliber Magnum in the Orange Bowl where 55,000 fans gathered to watch a National Football League game.

Police Sgt. C.W. Reynolds said security guards twice had warned the man, who identified himself as Mark Scheff Abrams, 28, of Miami Lakes, to leave the Dolphins' bench area at the 50-yard line before the start of the Monday night game between the Dolphins and the Cincinnati Bengals.

A youth who had been sitting behind the bench spotted patrolman Robert W. Reed in the end zone and told the canine officer that he saw a man who appeared to be carrying a gun.

Reed hurried over with his dog and found Abrams with Reynolds and another patrolman.

"I tried to pat him down," Reed said. "I lifted the jacket and there was the gun. He went to grab it. My dog jumped at him and he threw his hands up and I took the gun away."

Abrams was charged with carrying a concealed weapon, a third-degree felony, and was being held at the Dade County jail.

The weapon was a chrome-plated pistol loaded with copper-jacketed, hollow-point bullets. Such a bullet is made to pierce a hard surface and then mushroom.

"It was a working gun," Reed said. "I took the ammunition out and dry-fired it to see. It worked."

Sgt. Robert Evans, in charge of the police detail at the football stadium, said the man didn't threaten anyone. No shots were fired.

"I can see it on national TV," Evans said. "This guy starts shooting Dolphins. Here's a stadium full of people, the guy's running around with a fully loaded cannon."

Assassination aftermath

ROME (AP) — Via Aldo Moro: streets all over Italy now carry that name. Medals and monuments, too, honor the former premier, turning him into a popular hero four months after his death at the hands of terrorist kidnapers.

But fallout from this Moromania also threatens to unglue the political alliances that held together so firmly during Aldo Moro's long captivity by Red Brigades terrorists.

At least three books will go on sale soon in which major authors examine Italian terrorism and the handling of Moro's kidnapping by the government and its political allies.

Recent publication of new letters written by Moro during the 55 days he was held has also touched off a political storm. The letters, kept secret until now by police investigators, are viewed as damaging to the Communist Party. It is not known who leaked them to the press.

As happened in the United States after President Kennedy's slaying in 1963, many Italian cities and towns renamed schools, streets and squares following the abduction of the five-time premier in an ambush in Rome on March 16 and the discovery of his body June 9.

A table-tennis tournament in Genoa, a cycling race near Rome and a gymnastics exhibition in Naples were all renamed for Moro as part of the recent trend to honor him.

The trade fair in his hometown of Bari in southern Italy sold Moro coins valued at 5,000 lire each — $5.50 — that were accepted as money at the fair.

And the annual festival of his Christian Democrat Party issued Moro stamps for use in sealing letters.

Italians still make pilgrimages to Via Michelangelo Caetani, the narrow street, a stone's throw from the Communist and Christian Democrat parties' headquarters, where Moro's body was found stuffed in the back of a car. They pray and leave flowers and such notes as "Man dies but the ideal remains, the blood of martyrs is the seed of Christianity."

But some critics say the rush to create a Moro myth is in bad taste and is merely an attempt to make political capital out of his death.

"It's not the bocce tournaments that are offensive," says Vittorio Cervone, a senator who was a close friend of Moro, "but the bad faith of those in the party who always held Moro in contempt but who now have realized that he is merchandise which sells well."

Moro's widow, Eleonora, and family friends have cut ties with the Christian Democrat Party, which along with the Communists supported a hard-line stance and ruled out any negotiations with Moro's captors. Some reports say Mrs. Moro will join the Socialists, the one party that urged no door be closed in an attempt to save Moro's life.

Socialist leader Bettino Craxi recently was given a bullet-proof Alfa Romeo, protection Moro was without when he was grabbed by gunmen who killed his five bodyguards. Craxi said the donors included friends of the Moros.

The government's no-deal stance, applauded at the time by Italy's allies and Italians themselves, is now subject to considerable second-guessing.

The press is filled with reports of various schemes to free Moro that were said to have been under consideration by top officials — despite their proclaimed hard-line stance — such as releasing one jailed terrorist and giving the Red Brigades "recognition."

Noted Sicilian author Leonardo Sciascia in an upcoming book disputes the contention that Moro's letters were not "morally attributable" to him but were written by a man under duress or perhaps drugged. He claims Moro was abandoned or betrayed by his allies for their own political reasons.

Other critics say the refusal to recognize the letters as indeed those of Moro "the politician" is merely an attempt at myth-making.

Moro wrote several dozen letters from captivity, addressed to political and governmental leaders and friends, urging the government to make a deal to save his life.

"I die if my party so decides, in the fullness of Christian faith and in the immense love for an exemplary family I adore. But this bloodbath will not go well for (party secretary Benigno) Zaccagnini, (Premier Giulio) Andreotti, the party. Or for the country. Each will have to bear his responsibility," he wrote in one letter.

In another letter published for the first time just two weeks ago, he accused the Communist Party of giving him the death sentence "as a reward after the long march." This appears to be a reference to the political deal he had engineered just before his kidnapping to open the doors to political power to the communists for the first time in 30 years, though denying them cabinet seats.

The Communists claim the publication of the letter is an attempt to discredit them and set back their chances of entering the government of this NATO-member country.

Paradoxically, the wave of Moromania is coming just as police appear to have made a breakthrough in the hunt for Moro's kidnapers with the arrest of Corrado Alunni, the reputed leader of the Red Brigades.

THREE GENERATIONS

We salute our newspaper carriers, the boys and girls who faithfully deliver our newspaper. It's their devotion to their carrier job that makes our product possible. We can have the finest writers, photos, features and the greatest sales ads but if our newspaper is not delivered on time or at all, we have wasted all these efforts. So, again we salute our little business men and women, who are gaining valuable experience and responsibility.

National briefs

BOSTON (AP) — Runaway federal spending perpetuated by Democrats in Congress has made a "new poor" of the middle class, says Republican National Chairman William Brock.

Brock, in Massachusetts to stump for GOP congressional candidates, said Democratic congressmen care only for the "pride of authorship" of new programs, not about the programs' effectiveness. "Inflation has turned the middle class into the new poor," he said. "We do not have the self-discipline in government that you would have in your home."

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — The Coast Guard is launching an inquiry to try and find out why the Lobsta lobsterboat and its crew of five sank about 45 miles southeast of Montauk, N.Y.

One of the crewmen was Stephen Hoyt, son of Rosalynn Carter's press secretary, Mary Finch Hoyt. Lt. William J. McGrani Jr. of the Marine Safety Office in Providence said Monday it is standard procedure for the Coast Guard to look into any "major marine disaster." The hearings start Thursday. A search after the capsized trawler was spotted Sept. 23 turned up no evidence of the crew.

REDDING, Calif. (AP) — Veteran California Highway Patrol Officer Don McKeown went to investigate a fatal accident and found that his 18-year-old son was one of the two persons killed.

The CHP said Steven McKeown was driving a small foreign-made pickup truck at a high rate of speed on Happy Valley Road near this Northern California town when it went out of control and rolled over several times early Sunday. The three occupants were thrown out. Also killed was Debbie Kelly, 17, of Central Valley, north of Redding. Injured was Vickie Cuellar, 16, also of Central Valley.

ATLANTA (AP) — The head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference says Rhodesia's coalition government has proven itself to be little more than an instrument for continued white minority rule.

Joseph Lowery spoke to a crowd of about 200 protesting the arrival of Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith in the United States. Smith is attempting to generate U.S. support for his coalition government during a one-week, unofficial tour of this country. "We do not believe that any settlement in Southern Africa, and particularly in Rhodesia, can work that does not include the negotiation and the participation of the Patriotic Front," Lowery said.

FOCUS

Newspaper Week

Newspapers have come a long way since the Chinese first began producing a journal called Tsing Bao, probably during the 6th century. Worldwide, about 350 million newspapers now roll off the presses each day, some 60 million of them in the United States. The combined hard work of writers, photographers, editors, typesetters, printers, delivery people, and many others helps bring printed news about events around the world to street corner newsstands and readers' homes in just a few hours. National Newspaper Week, October 8-14, honors these workers, and the accurate, up-to-date newspapers they produce.

Washington Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House has announced that President Carter will hold a news conference at 4 p.m. Tuesday.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spanish explorers established the first settlement in the eastern United States only 34 years after Christopher Columbus made his first voyage of discovery to the New World, according to a new Department of Energy publication.

"A Salute to Hispanic-Americans in Science and Industry," focuses mainly on contemporary contributions of Hispanics in science and technology. But the narrative also deals with history. Citing historian John Fiske's 1893 book, "The Discovery of America," the publication says the settlement was established in 1526 at almost the same spot in Virginia where Englishmen were to build Jamestown nearly a century later.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Society of Anesthesiologists has signed an agreement with the Federal Trade Commission allowing some of its doctors to hold salaried hospital positions instead of charging a fee for each service.

The society, which represents about 15,000 doctors who specialize in administering anesthesia during surgery, had an ethical rule that members should be paid by billing for each service. The FTC, though, charged that the practice had the effect of helping to fix prices and violated antitrust law. The society did not agree to any violation in the agreement announced Saturday.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional study says that federal nutrition research has been largely successful in ensuring an adequate intake of all essential nutrients for the population, but there has been little research on the long-term effects of the diet consumed by Americans.

The Office of Technology Assessment released a report Sunday that said reorienting research efforts could lead to the discovery of links between diet and diseases such as heart disease and cancer. However, the report said refocusing nutritional research is difficult because it is now scattered among 14 federal agencies which follow no coherent strategy or definition in the research.

Wagner leaving her job after discovering plot

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) — Kathi Wagner is leaving her job at the motel where she claims to have uncovered a possible presidential assassination plot.

The Secret Service says Ms. Wagner was responsible for a hoax threat on President Carter's life, but Ms. Wagner is sticking by her story.

She says her interrogation by the Secret Service following the Aug. 28 incident "was uncalculated because they assumed I was lying and guilty until proven innocent."

Dennis Crandall, a Secret Service agent in Salt Lake City who took part in the investigation, said that "after what we consider a very thorough investigation, we concluded that the story was a fabrication."

No arrests or charges were made, but Crandall said, "We are keeping apprised of what she is up to." He said Ms. Wagner "can appear very charming and lucid at times."

Ms. Wagner, a 23-year-old divorced mother of two and a former mental patient, says an unidentified man in a tailored suit and flashy tie knocked her unconscious in a hotel room she had entered to clean. Ramada Inn employees said the room contained a mirror on which were the soap-scrubbed words, "The president will die Thursday."

Next to the mirror was a picture of Carter with an "X" etched over it and mattresses in the room had been burned. Ms. Wagner said the man told her, "You shouldn't have come in here," before hitting her on the head with a handgun, knocking her unconscious. She was hospitalized briefly for shock and smoke inhalation.

Carter and his family were vacationing at the time in Wyoming's Grand Teton National Park, but made a brief stop in Idaho Falls two days after the incident.

Described by authorities as "not very cooperative" during questioning, Ms. Wagner said she took a polygraph test administered by the Idaho Falls Police Department and was told she failed it.

Crandall said he could not comment on the test or even confirm it was given.

"They were really giving me a bad time," Ms. Wagner said of the Secret Service. "They stated to me that I had passed out and subconsciously done these things that the man did." She said she had experienced five blackouts during the previous year, but each lasted "just seconds" and "I wouldn't do anything during them."

She said she was told by authorities at a closed magistrate court hearing Sept. 6 that if she would voluntarily spend five days at the state mental hospital — "to get over all I'd been through" — they would drop plans for a committal hearing.

She agreed. While at the hospital, she said a psychiatrist "told me that I was not mentally ill."

It was her second stay at State Hospital South in Blackfoot.

Committee gives LA go-ahead

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — The International Olympic Committee today gave the final go-ahead to Los Angeles to stage the 1984 Summer Games.

A special mail ballot among members approved by a large majority a decision by the IOC executive board in August which had recommended acceptance of Los Angeles' plan to hold and finance the Games.

The vote was 74-3 in favor of the recommendation with eight abstentions. Forty-five votes were needed for approval.

An IOC spokesman declined to name the three members who rejected the recommendation of the executive board.

POT & CONTACT LENSES

NEW YORK (AP) — Wearers of contact lenses may suffer severe discomfort if they smoke marijuana, according to Dr. Harry Hollander, an optometrist.

Hollander, author of "The Consumer's Guide to Contact Lenses," says the "smoke from pot inhibits tear flow, creating a swelling of the cornea."

"As a result, lenses don't feel or fit the same, resulting in discomfort."

Production of tears, he says, "provides a much-needed moisture buffer between the eye and contact lenses."

Pot smoking, he adds, may alter the chemical properties of the lenses themselves.
