Prison authorities hope inmate strike is over

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Prison officials hoped today the system-wide strike is over as the last eight striking inmates at the Ellis unit near here were put in their cells Tuesday night.

"Operations are normal," Ellis Warden R.M. Cousins said, "but I don't know how long it will take."

Cousins said the protestors will be charged with violating prison rules, but added it will take a while to prepare the charges. "When you start charging 400 or 500 people it takes a while."

"It's just like the courts," he said.

Inmates at several units, up to several hundred in all, were demonstrating their support for the Houston federal court trial of lawsuits filed by fellow prisoners against the Texas Department of Corrections.

The only reported incident during the six-day strike occured last Thursday, when three inmates at the Darrington unit were injured when an assistant warden fired a shotgun blast was a warning.

Officers began taking the prisoners from the yard to their cells Tuesday night, saying "there's a limit." One hundred of the 108 remaining strikers at the Ellis unit asked to be allowed back in their cells Tuesday afternoon.

Taylor said some inmates at the Coffield unit near Palestine were "put in their cells," noting some "reasonable force" was used.

However, as additional inmates were joining the strike at other units, dozens were returning to work, Taylor said.

In addition to the 100 who returned to their cells at Ellis, officials at Ramsey One said they had 62 prisoners at work. At Ramsey Two, 194 prisoners still refused to work but were returned to their cells Tuesday night.

Taylor said several hundred inmates had refused to work at the Coffield Unit, but 80 who were being held in the yard area decided they would rather work than go to their cells.

At the Darrington Unit south of Houston, the number of striking inmates dropped from 150 to 136, and 71 inmates remained on strike at the Eastham Unit north of Trinity.

Abilene selling liquor legally

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Taylor County district court is the only one that can decide Abilene's liquor fess, the Texas Supreme Court said today.

The high court issued an opinion to back up its Sept. 20 decision overruling an Austin district court order that kept the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission from issuing liquor and beer permits.

Within hours after the decision alcoholic beverages were being sold legally in Abilene for the first time since Prohibition.

"The statute (the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Code) confers original and exclusive jurisdiction on the district court of Taylor County for trial of any controversy governed by the statute arising out of the local option election on June 17," the Supreme Court opinion said. "A suit is an election contest when the validity of a local option election, or the correct ascertainment of the result thereof, is its subject matter."

Following the June 17 local option election a canvass by the Taylor County commissioners showed the "Drys" won by a narrow vote. However, on July 10 an Abilene district judge ordered another canvass because the first count did not include votes cast in voting Precinct 19. The July 20 canvass showed the "Wets" winning. Applications were made to the TABC on the basis of the July 20 canvass.

Estes denied presidential pardon

DALLAS, (AP) — Convicted swindler Billie Sol Estes has been denied a presidential pardon, the Justice Department has confirmed.

A Justice Department spokesman said the Estes application for a pardon from President Carter was denied on Sept. 27.

Estes, 52, of Abilene, was convicted of fraud in 1963 for his part in a multi-million dollar scheme involving non-existent fertilizer tanks. He was sentenced to 15 years in prison, but was paroled in 1971 after serving only part of the term.

Estes' request for a presidential pardon was filed in March by his son-in-law, Morris Lindsey, who included character depositions from Abilene Mayor Oliver Howard and Taylor County Sheriff Jack Landrum in his petition to federal authorities.

Assistant Attorney General John Stannish of the pardon's division would not say if the Justice Department had recommended the pardon be denied but said, "I can tell you the White House generally goes along with our recommendations."

Ledbetter named teacher of year

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An Austin second-grade teacher has been named Texas Teacher of the Year.

Bernice Kathryn Ledbetter will compete for the National Teacher of the Year.

She teaches at Casis Elementary School and was selected from 50 entrants across the state. Other finalists were Thelma B. Moore of Spring Branch Independent School District; Ann Allen of Ysleta Independent School District and Dorothy Green of Dallas Independent School District.

Sarkis wins agreement for Lebanese conference

FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Bursts of gunfire and explosions jolted the Syrian-Christian cease-fire in Beirut before dawn today as Syrian troops and their adversaries in Lebanon's Christian militias were reported bring up reinforcements.

On the political front, President Elias Sarkis won agreement from Arab countries policing Lebanon's civil war armistice to hold a foreign ministers conference Sunday to try to achieve a comprehensive settlement of the Lebanese crisis.

Beirut police and other eyewitnesses reported an increase of sniper fire on roads leading into the city's Christian enclave, apparently to cover the influx of reinforcements.

The Christians accused the Syrians of initiating the firing during the night. They claimed Syrian sniper fire killed 15 Christians and wounded 25 on the bridges leading into East Beirut from the Christian hinterland to the north.

There was no comment from the Syrians.

Independent observers said both Christians and Syrians were reinforcing their positions with artillery and tanks in the area of the Quarantina and Borj Hammoud Bridges that control access from the Christian sector to the north. The Christians so far have failed to take the bridges from the Syrians to gain a badly needed resupply route.

The Christian Voice of Lebanon radio said cars carrying food, water and medical supplies to Ashrafieh were blocked at Syrian checkpoints. But traffic was bogged down mainly by sniper fire from both sides.

A taxicab had its windshield riddled with bullets crossing from East to West Beirut. It screeched up Hamra Street in West Beirut toward the American University Hospital carrying a bleeding passenger slumped in the front seat.

The flareup was the second threat in less than 24 hours to the cease-fire, now in its fourth day. Syrian and Christian forces exchanged machine-gun and sniper fire and rocket grenades for an hour across the green line Tuesday afternoon.

Informed sources said the Christian militias also cut off the main water pipeline from East Beirut to Moslem West Beirut, depriving most of the Moslem half of the city of water.

The water cutoff appeared to be in retaliation for a food blockade which the Christian Voice of Lebanon radio station claimed the Syrians had clamped on East Beirut. It said all relief and supply convoys to the Christian sector, including Red Cross vehicles, were being turned back, and that only cars with small amounts of food were being allowed through.

Republicans, Democrats agree

Candidates mount 'get-out-the-vote' campaigns

By The Associated Press

Republicans and Democrats in Texas are in agreement on at least one issue this week — both have mounted serious "get-out-the-vote" campaigns.

State Democratic Chairman Billy Goldberg has urged the state executive committee to turn its efforts toward getting out the vote, and State GOP chairman Ernesto Angelo has announced a vote-getting reception in Midland next Tuesday, headlined by former California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Goldberg predicted Tuesday that about half of the state's eligible voters will turn out at the polls Nov. 7 to elect a governor, U.S. Senator, attorney general and dozens of local candidates.

He said Democrats are concentrating their voter-registration drive in precincts that have voted at least 70 percent Democratic in previous elections.

"We think we have been most successful in registering more than 174,000 new Democrats," he said.

As for the Republicans, Midland Mayor Angelo said Reagan will discuss the major issues of 1978 and his analysis of the GOP campaign effort at Tuesday's reception.

He said Reagan will also appear at events promoting Jim Baker, GOP candidate for attorney general; Rep. Joe Robbins, R-Lubbock, candidate for the state senate; and GOP state house hopefuls Duff Duff of Odessa and Jim Brandon of Amarillo.

GOP gubernatorial candidate Bill Clements has charged that his opponent, John Hill, was engaging in "cheap campaign tactics" by claiming that a Clements campaign newspaper missed a photograph of Garza County Judge Giles Dalby of Post. Hill claimed Dalby was a Hill coordinator and had never been a Clements supporter.

Meanwhile, Hill has announced that he will be honored today in his hometown of Kilgore with a John Hill Day luncheon hosted by the Kilgore Rotary Club with the Lions and Kiwanis clubs as co-hosts.

In San Antonio, Democratic attorney general candidate Mark White proposed a conference of all interested parties to discuss the growing problem of school violence. He said he'll call the conference if elected.

In Houston, White's GOP opponent Jim Baker announced that Julian Martinez of Dallas has joined his campaign as director of Mexican-Americans for Jim Baker.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, said at a campaign appearance in Hamilton that he has been endorsed by the Houston Chronicle and the Corpus Christi Caller-Times. Previously, Tower was endorsed by the Dallas Morning News, Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, and Wichita Falls Times-Record-News.

In San Antonio, Krueger said Tower missed two key votes while campaigning in Texas — the extension of the Equal Rights Amendment and the Kemp-Roth tax cut bill.

Torrijos turns Panama over to successor today

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Brig. Gen. Omar Torrijos turns over Panama to his hand-picked successor today, but he is expected to exert a strong influence on the new administration.

The general will continue to head the national guard that brought him to power in a coup 10 years ago today. After the election of former Education Minister Aristides Royo, he will lead senior guard officers in swearing allegiance to the new president.

Royo, a moderate who helped negotiate the new Panama Canal treaties, is expected to govern with some independence. But he has promised to consult with Torrijos often and to keep the country on the same left-center course steered by the 49-year-old general.

Torrijos stunned the nation Sept. 1 when he announced he would not continue as the nation's chief executive. Most political observers believe the general, who is very popular, could have had any position he wanted.

Torrijos' present title, chief of government, ceases to exist today under a stipulation in the 1972 constitution. The general, who has been keeping a low profile lately, is not on the official program, but his figurehead president, Demetrio B. Lakas, is scheduled to speak.

Royo will be elected by the 505-member National Assembly of Community Representatives, which has no legislative powers, shortly after it begins a six-year term.

Royo, 38, is the only candidate, and more than two-thirds of the representatives have pledged their support.

The election was scheduled for the same gymnasium in which President Carter and Torrijos signed documents June 16 formalizing the new canal treaties.

About 3,000 persons were to attend, including dignitaries from all over the Americas, a big delegation from Cuba and actor John Wayne, an old friend of Torrijos and a supporter of his fight for Panamanian sovereignty over the canal.

The government declared a national holiday, and Panama City was decorated with large signs paying tribute to Torrijos. A big electric sign on the national lottery building read: "3,650 Days of Struggle and Valor."

"Omar Has Fulfilled," said another sign. "The Torrijos government should not be judged by the material achievements that can speak for themselves, such as acquiring the canal for Panama, the Bayano Dam and the Cerro Colorado Copper Project," said one television commentator.

"The most important thing the Torrijos government is leaving the country is stability and balance."

"Panama has no guerrilla warfare, no kidnappings, no violence directed at private enterprise and no hijackings as have been seen in so many other countries."

Chief of staff says commissioner's 'copping out'

The Gray County Commissioners' Court would be "copping out" by leasing the county hospitals, according to comments by Dr. Joe R. Donaldson, Highland General Hospital chief of staff.

Donaldson's comments were made at the Highland and McLean General Hospitals Board of Managers meeting Tuesday in the conference room at Highland General Hospital.

Officials of American Medical International Inc. (AMI), a hospital management corporation, were present at the meeting to answer questions about a proposed lease agreement now being considered by the Gray County Commissioners' Court.

Under the proposed lease agreement, AMI would lease the county hospitals and take over operation and management of the hospitals. The corporation would also make needed repairs to the hospital plumbing totaling approximately $750,000 and pay the balance due on a Hill-Burton grant the hospital received in 1969.

"We talked about this at the staff meeting and there was some feeling that this was a cop-out as far as the county commissioners are concerned," Donaldson said.

"Three years ago the county commissioners couldn't keep their hands off the hospitals. After a grand jury and two trials and some $70,000 or $100,000 in county tax money we lost three doctors and the hospital went from money in the bank to borrowing money."

"Gradually with a little recruitment of physicians and the diligence of this board and administrator in getting some new physicians, I think our medical community is in a little better position than it was three years ago."

"But then we come to a situation where we need to spend some capital money and they're going to lease it (the hospital) out."

The staff members who had been associated with AMI previously at Worley Hospital were enthusiastic and complimentary about the corporation, according to Donaldson.

"I think the staff is generally in agreement that we probably don't have any choice," Donaldson said. "As far as the hospital is concerned we're talking about a hospital district. This is clearly three years in the process, and I don't think the plumbing will wait that long."

"We're talking about a bond issue and I don't think a bond issue will pass."

"And I don't think the county commissioners are willing to spend this kind of money, so I don't think we have any choice."

"The county commissioners would spend the money if we had it," responded O.L. Presley, county commissioner.

"They (AMI) don't have the money either," Donaldson said. "They're not going to give us anything. They expect to get the money back. There's no such thing as a free lunch. Somebody's going to have to pay for it. It isn't going to be any cheaper medical care. Somebody's still going to have to pay for it."

R.W. Sidwell, board of managers chairman, asked the county commissioners when the target date was to institute a lease agreement.

Nothing has been decided yet, according to J.O. McCracken, county commissioner. Everything in the proposed lease will be studied line by line, he said.

"This is not cop-out," he added.

In other action the board of managers agreed to turn over approximately $20,000 in accounts receivable to a collection agency. The accounts are from late 1977 and early 1978, according to Barry Breen, comptroller.

The board also heard the September financial report.

Highland General Hospital showed $35,968 in profit for the month while McLean General Hospital showed a loss of $3,857, according to Breen.

Through September the county hospitals show a profit of $258,656 for the year, Breen said.

The wilderness lock

If a measure now being debated in Congress had been proposed and passed several years ago, we probably would not be getting oil from the Alaskan pipeline. It is doubtful that a pipeline for oil or gas could have been built. Perhaps the discovery of new oil would never have taken place.

Congressional efforts today are targeting on millions of Alaskan acres to deny the nation access to valuable mineral and fossil fuel deposits.

The house is asking to set aside more than a million acres for national parks, national forests, wildlife refuges and wild and scenic river corridors. Of these and other tracts, 66 million acres would receive "wilderness" designation, putting them off limits to any development. Off limits perhaps except for a push camp or two for "favored" public officials.

Sixty-six million acres, this is an area greater than many of our larger states. The proposal to set aside this vast area has been called, "The most sweeping conservation bill in history."

We don't believe the bill can rightfully be called conservation. Natural resources will not be conserved, they will simply be locked up tight where none can be discovered, much less developed.

Within the confines of this nation, less than two percent of the surface of the land has been disturbed through mining and petroleum extraction. Just suppose that our forefathers had locked up an equivalent amount of the land in the nation. Where would we be today in energy and natural resources?

In Alaska the climate and terrain is not as amiable to resource discovery as it is in the lower 49 states. It is doubtful that even one percent of the land mass will ever be disturbed as resources are discovered and developed for future use.

Why lock up 100 percent of the proposed wilderness area just to avoid the utilization of one percent for development of valuable resources? Is not 99 percent enough to leave for viewing by posterity?

The Senate is said to support a plan that would set aside even more land than the measure before the House.

There is a group now working hard to thwart the Congress in its attempts to foist the wilderness bill on Alaska and the nation. The Committee for Sensible Use of Alaska Lands (SUAL) has been sparked by Alaskans but includes many persons from diverse organizations across the nation.

We doubt the amount of sensible consideration they will get, but we certainly wish them well in their efforts to hold off this gigantic land grab. Big Brother already has too much total control over the lower 49 without taking most of Alaska to add to his empire.

We go along with David Freer, field director of SUAL and former deputy mayor of Juneau, Alaska, who said, "the measure would render large parts of our state incapable of sustaining human activity above the stone-age level. Most Alaskans feel that we are being unfairly dealt with by Congress."

Members of the Congress are reacting to a belief that conservation is a very popular issue nationwide. If they are correct we fear the popularity stems more from emotional rather than a studious analysis of the facts. So, with the Congress, the consideration is based on politics as usual, not leadership designed to further the total good for the nation.

Consultation and your tax bill

By EDWIN FEULNER
(Heritage Foundation Forum)

An ad appearing regularly in The Washington Post and other papers touts the advantages of becoming a free lance consultant. "You too can earn up to $500 a day as a part-time or full-time consultant to business and government," the advertiser claims. And you and I, Mr. and Mrs. Reader, may have to pick up the tab. How big a tab? According to a report in a recent issue of The Post, there are probably close to four million people drawing salaries from the public till, even though they are not government employees.

This is on top of the nearly three million civil servants employed directly by the federal government.

One agency alone, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, is supporting an estimated 900,217 outside "consultants," researchers, and others, each one earning "somewhere between $10,000 and $20,000," according to HEW sources.

The Washington, D.C., "Yellow pages" contain page after page of listings - City & Town Planners; Educational Consultants; Agricultural Consultants; consulting scientists; and lawyers coming out of the kazoo. You know why they're all in Washington!

This is not a diatribe against consulting. It is an effort, however, to give you an idea where your tax money is going to show you why our government is costing us as much as it does.

As Spencer Rich wrote in the Post: "These figures illustrate how the federal government, without appearing to be enlarging its labor force, is actually swelling the rolls of those dependent on it for jobs and is obtaining extra services without officially adding to its payrolls."

Of related interest: Senator William Proxmire (D-Wisc.) has since 1975, been awarding a monthly "Golden Fleece" award to a federal agency for "the biggest, most ridiculous or most ironic waste of the taxpayers' money."

In April of this year, for example, the award went to the National Institute for Mental Health, for funding a study of behavior and relationships in a Peruvian brothel. The study was part of a $97,000 grant which paid for an 18-month field trip to Peru by an outside researcher and his associates.

In 1977 similar awards went to the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration for spending nearly $27,000 to determine why prison inmates want to escape; to the Department of Labor for granting a $384,948 contract to hire 101 people for a door-to-door survey to count the dogs, cats and horses in Ventura County, California; and to the National Endowment for the Arts, for making a $6,025 grant to an artist and her cameraman husband to film the throwing of crepe paper and burning gases out of a high flying airplane.

As the ad said, "You too can earn up to $500 a day..."

By MARTHA ANGLE and ROBERT WALTERS
MINNEAPOLIS (NEA) - When the dust settles a month from now, it is entirely possible that Republicans will occupy both U.S. Senate seats and the governorship here in the land of the late Hubert H. Humphrey.

It is not only possible, it is downright probable - as of this writing, at any rate. Which speaks volumes about the current condition of the "house that Hubert built," the remarkable Democratic - Farmer - Labor Party of Minnesota.

The DFL, at the ripe old age of 34, is going through a classic mid-life crisis. And it is not so much external pressures (e.g., Republicans and a nationwide tax revolt that threaten its well-being as various internal stresses that erupted with embarrassing ferocity in the Sept. 12 primary.

It is difficult for outsiders to comprehend the panic that swept through much of the DFL when millionaire businessman Robert Short narrowly defeated liberal Rep. Don Fraser, the party's endorsed candidate for Humphrey's old Senate seat.

That is because outsiders have never understood how fragile the alliance is that Humphrey welded a generation ago between the radical, protest-oriented Farmer - Labor party and the urban, organization-minded Democratic Party of New Deal.

For thirty - some years, Hubert H. Humphrey not only held the uneasy marriage together, but managed to keep the DFL identified with a coherent philosophy of liberalism and social activism. Orville Freeman, Eugene McCarthy, Walter F. Mondale - all were outstanding graduates of the Humphrey school of politics.

Yet for those same thirty - odd years, Bob Short, whose roots are essentially in the old Farmer - Labor wing of the party, was also a major factor in the DFL. Despite his generous contributions to Humphrey and other liberals, Short regularly warred against many of the liberals who dominated the party and against the unique endorsement system the DFL establishment used to forestall bloody primary fights.

Running against the "bosses," Short helped deliver Minnesota's 1956 national convention delegates to Estes Kefauver, whipping Humphrey and his Adlai Stevenson supporters. In 1966, when the DFL tried to dump incumbent Gov. Karl Rolvaag in favor of his lieutenant governor, Short teamed up with Rolvaag in the primary and beat the endorsed slate - only to lose to the Republicans in November. And now he has defeated another DFL-endorsed liberal, Don Fraser, for the very seat Humphrey held so long.

"Bob Short is like the Mongols against whom the Chinese built the great wall," said DFL treasurer David Lebedoff, a leading authority on Minnesota politics. "Every ten years or so, he comes along to pillage the city and ravish the maidens."

This year, the DFL was torn apart by controversies over abortion, the Equal Rights Amendment, gun control and the use of motor boats and snowmobiles in the wild Boundary Waters Canoe Area. Short and Fraser split on all of them, with Short tossing in some virulent antigovernment, tax-cutting rhetoric for good measure.

While Sen. Wendell Anderson and Gov. Rudy Perpich were not really caught up in those fights, they have problems of their own - largely stemming from the fact they inherited their jobs when Mondale became vice-president rather than winning them in an election.

Republicans are happily exploiting the disarray within the DFL. Rudy Boschwitz, a personable plywood manufacturer and maverick liberal, has opened a wide lead over Anderson. Quiet, moderate Rep. Albert Quie is leading Perpich slightly. And Twin Cities attorney David Durenberger, who looks and sounds like a more conservative Fritz Mondale, is openly soliciting - and receiving - support from Fraser backers in the DFL.

Most DFL leaders insist the party will survive, with its old ideals intact, regardless of what happens Nov. 7. "You don't wipe out 30 years of progressive tradition in one election," insisted top Mondale aide Richard Moe, a former DFL chairman.

Maybe not. But if Bob Short gets elected, the fight for the party's soul will continue for a long time. Which is why Dave Durenberger, Republican though he may be, is seen by many DFLers as the key to the party's future.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Oct. 11, the 284th day of 1978. There are 81 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1779, a Revolutionary War hero, the Polish nobleman, Casimir Pulaski, was killed in fighting for American independence at the Battle of Savannah.

On this date:

In 1811, the first steam ferry was put into operation by inventor John Stevens between New York City and Hoboken, N.J.

In 1863, Thomas Edison filed papers for his first invention, an electrical vote recorder to rapidly tabulate votes in Congress. Congress rejected it.

In 1899, Britain's Winston Churchill sailed to South Africa to cover the Boer War as chief correspondent of the London Morning Post.

In 1932, the Democratic National Committee sponsored a television program from New York - the first political telecast in the United States.

In 1962, Pope John XXIII opened the second Vatican Council of the Roman Catholic Church.

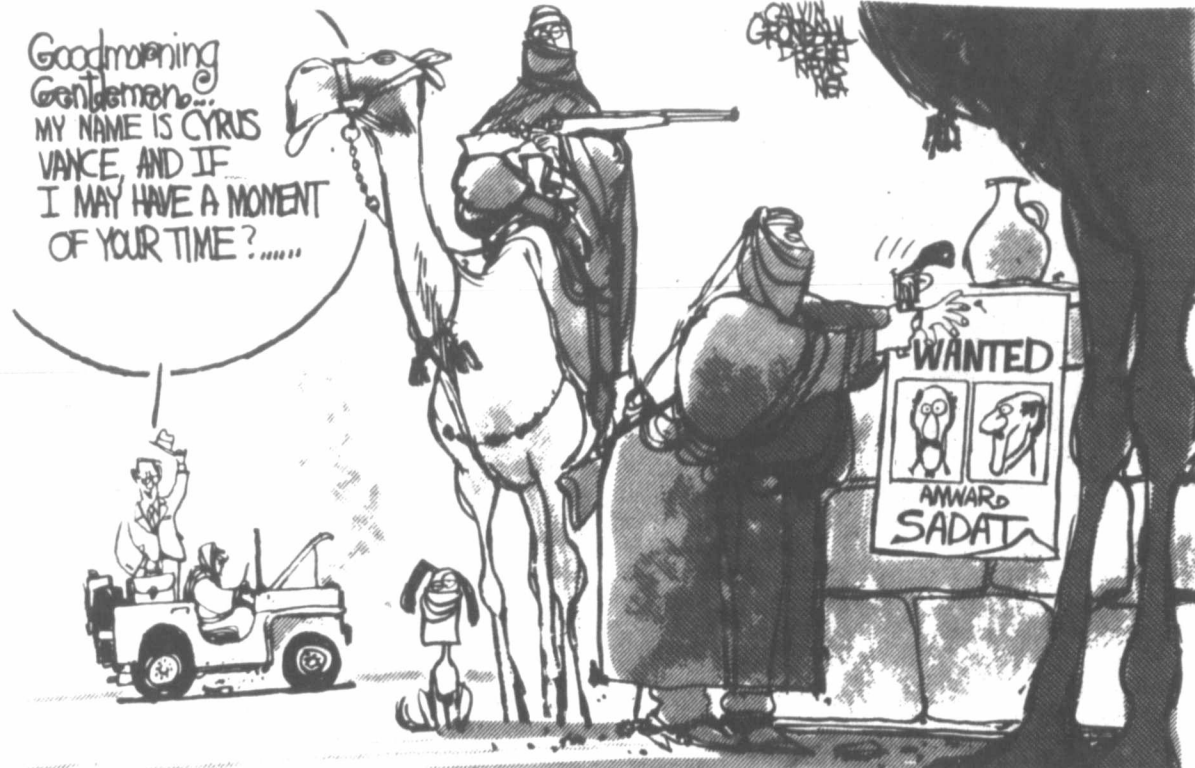

In 1976, reports from China said Mao Tse-tung's widow and three others had been arrested. They later were denounced as the "gang of four."

Ten years ago: The national guard in Panama staged a bloodless coup, ousting President Arnulfo Arias, who took refuge in the Panama Canal Zone.

Five years ago: There was heavy fighting in the Middle East as a large Israeli armored force pushed out of the Golan Heights in the direction of Damascus, smashing through Syrian defenses.

One year ago: Israel's cabinet approved an agreement reached by Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan and President Carter on procedures for a new Mideast peace conference.

Today's birthdays: Choreographer Jerome Robbins is 60 years old. Newsman Joseph Alsop is 68.

The not so fresh-men

By DON GRAFF

Back to school is acquiring new meaning these days.

It is no longer primarily a matter of millions of students in the traditional elementary to college-level ages picking up studies in the fall where they left off in the spring.

Increasing numbers of older citizens are also returning to classrooms. Currently, something like 23 percent of college and university students are on the mature side of 30. In very round numbers, that works out to some two- and a-half million.

The trend has been underway for several years. Federal Office of Education figures covering the 1972-77 period show an enrollment increase of 80 percent for the 30-34 age group and 69.7 percent for 35 and older. For the same period, the 18- and 19-year olds, the traditional new men and women on campus, registered only a 9 percent increase.

The mature students are going back to school for a variety of reasons. Some are improving job skills or making midlife career changes and developing new skills for new jobs. Some are resuming studies interrupted years before, others finally beginning long - postponed educations. Women whose children have left the nest are turning to school for self-improvement or to begin careers. Others are combining education with continuing family responsibilities.

Whatever the individual motivations, they collectively are an increasingly important factor on the higher education scene for a number of reasons.

Continuing education for adults has been around for a long time, but the current development involves much more than courses in pottery-making, clerical and other semi-skilled functions or nondemanding lecture series in pop academic fields. Institutions are introducing new courses, revising methodology and restructuring class schedules - offering more evening and weekend courses - to meet the older students' interests and requirements. Some schools are granting academic credit for "life experience" - the know-how, professional or otherwise, with which the older new student matriculates.

The impact is most noticeable at two-year schools, the numerous community colleges that have blossomed in recent decades. Some two-thirds of the students now attending two-year schools are over 21. The American Association of Community and Junior Colleges reports, and the average age of enrolled students is around a ripe 30.

While educators generally welcome the older-student trend, the two-year school administrations are particularly enthusiastic. It has enabled many to broaden curricula to the advantage of younger students as well and to upgrade professional requirements. And it enhances their role and contributions as community services.

There is also a financial angle. The older students are arriving in increasing numbers just as the wave of students generated by the postwar baby booms is departing the campuses. To a considerable extent, they are offsetting static or declining enrollments and the consequent financial pinch. For this reason, many private schools, unable to turn to legislatures for increased appropriations to make up for fewer tuitions, are actively recruiting older prospects.

In the very long term, the trend if it continues could have what most education professionals regard as a highly constructive effect on the restructuring of the education system. The focus of higher education would not be almost exclusively on a single and limited age group. Instead, it would be broadened to take in a much larger portion of the population.

The eventual result could be what many have always believed the goal should be - a system of "lifelong learning."

Your money's worth

Something for everyone

(First of 10 columns)

The sweeping new tax law, which started out as a tax reduction bill, has good news for taxpayers in just about every income bracket (with a few items of bad news sprinkled in for some of the nation's more sophisticated tax shelter investors).

First, fundamentally, the new law should give the U.S. economy a major stimulant. Capital gains tax cuts, income tax reductions, new retirement plan benefits, spectacular real estate breaks - all these and more are featured in the new provisions.

It's a clear signal that Congress has heard and is heeding the tax-revolt warnings being sounded by Americans at all income levels, in every area of the U.S., of every age. Even more, it's an unmistakable clue that Congress is responding positively to the anti-tax feeling at the grass roots of our nation.

The great bulk of these tax breaks go into effect in 1979 - but that doesn't mean you should, or can, wait until next year to start taking advantage of the changes! You must begin NOW - RIGHT NOW - to set up your financial affairs so you don't lose one penny in tax dollars while waiting for 1979's lower rates. At the same time, there are steps you must take in '78 to get the full benefit of 1979's big breaks.

That's what this series is all about: ways you can lower your tax bills - individual, business, investment - in 1978 and in 1979.

Start with this key item for millions of taxpaying Americans - the dependency deduction.

In '78 the deduction is the long-familiar $750 plus a general credit. In '79 that jumps by one-third to $1,000 - which gives you a double-barreled benefit next year. Not only will your dependency deduction be bigger than ever before in history, but your dependents also will be able to earn more than ever before and still qualify as your dependents. Now, here's what you still can do in 1978 to pick up vital dependency deductions and cut your tax to a legal minimum.

Say you send a check to your mother every month to help pay her bills. You could add more to her checks in the remaining months of 1978, and actually come out ahead when you take taxes into account.

You can get a dependency deduction for your mother if (1) she has a gross income of less than $750 (up to $1,000 in '79), and (2) you provide more than half her support. In addition, you can deduct your mother's medical expenses on your return if you pay them and provide more than half her support.

To suggest how a few extra dollars in support can make a big difference to you, say that last year your mother got Social Security benefits of $3,600 and had no other income. You, her son, provided $3,400 for her support, concluding paying $1,000 in medical bills.

(1) You supported your mother with $3,400 - but received absolutely NO TAX BENEFIT. You got no dependency deduction and no medical deduction, for you didn't provide more than half your mother's support.

(2) The Internal Revenue Service came out on top. Your mother's personal exemption was of no value to her, for she had no taxable income from which to deduct it. You lost out on $1,750 in deductions ($1,000 in medical expenses plus $750 dependency exemption). The IRS got what your mother and you didn't get - the whole works.

(3) Now it's the end of 1978 and you raise your annual support figure to more than $3,600. All other facts remain the same. But your mother has more to live on and you, the son, come out the winner.

(4) You get the dependency deduction and the medical expense deduction because you provide more than half your mother's support, by paying $200 extra, you pick up deductions that will net you - in the 36 percent tax bracket - a tax saving of $630.

TAX ACTION NOW: If you're supporting a relative, Eli Warach, division editor - in-chief of Prentice - Hall, urges you to figure up right away how much you will provide in support in '78 - and how much your relative will get from other sources. You may find that adding just a few dollars to your share between now and year-end - less than 85 days from now - will put you over the half-support mark and lock in your extra deductions.

Don't delay - and risk losing big-time tax savings!

Tomorrow: How to get an extra deduction even if you contribute less than half support.

Aides tell Bullock to resign

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — "Mr. Superstar, you're going to crawl one of these days," a Dallas woman once screamed at Comptroller Bob Bullock after he had closed her restaurant for not paying taxes.

Bullock's not crawling, but he's hurting. His "media boys" have turned against him, and he says, "I'm sitting here trying to wiggle a dagger out of my back and figure out 'Who's Brutus?' ... I thought, 'I deserved better than that.'"

It was disclosed in published reports Tuesday that two former aides had told Bullock Oct. 2 he should fire deputy comptroller Ralph Wayne and then resign himself.

Bill Collier, former director of tax information, and his assistant, George Kuempel, said in a joint letter of resignation that they informed Bullock and Wayne numerous times of unspecified "actions that could be considered wrong legally or morally."

They said Bullock should resign to avoid "the inevitable scandals that will one day envelop the comptroller's office and everyone who works here."

Jim McNabb, also from the tax information division, quit on Saturday. He accused another employee of covering up information on flight logs requested by two reporters in the aftermath of the Collier-Kuempel resignation.

"They gave them (the reporters) more than they asked for," Bullock said. "The suggestion of a cover-up is ridiculous."

Collier and Kuempel had quit the Houston Chronicle to work for Bullock, and McNabb had left radio broadcasting. All got much higher salaries on their state jobs, with Collier making $32,500, Kuempel $30,000 and McNabb $24,000.

Collier-Kuempel said Bullock's recent actions "show that your arrogance toward the law and disrespect for the public trust placed in you is worse than ever."

Bullock said Collier's wife also had worked for him until she got pregnant, and he added, "Mister, you talk about a puzzled fellow, you're talking to him."

He said he had never received any spoken or written complaints from Kuempel or McNabb, but that Collier had voiced several complaints.

One was that Bullock concentrated too much office time criticizing Attorney General John Hill during Hill's successful Democratic primary race against Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Bullock says being governor "is a lifelong dream." Hill's election could bump Bullock out of real contention for eight years, but Briscoe would have been expected to serve only four years.

Bullock said Collier also told him that Jay Brummett of the comptroller's office was spending "too much time on personal business for Ralph Wayne. ... He also said he didn't like the idea of Ralph's secretary, Sherry Revier, writing (business) checks for Ralph. He said she was always busy (for Wayne) on state time."

Bullock said Collier had suggested that Bullock should spend more time in the office. Bullock said he had spent every day from May 23 through July with his teen-age son, Bob, who was injured in a motorcycle accident.

Also, Bullock said, Collier told him "he didn't like the way I had treated Bill English." Bullock's agents closed English's Austin restaurant at lunchtime one day for allegedly failing to pay sales taxes.

Wayne, a former state senator from Plainview, acknowledged his secretary occasionally signed checks but added that he had rented a separate office and hired two employees to handle his, outside business interests. Wayne said he owns radio stations in Brownwood, Marshall, Odessa and Plainview and a savings and loan institution in Tulia.

The Kuempel-Collier letter also stated that Bullock should resign because of his health.

In July 1972, two large, benign tumors were discovered while Bullock was being treated for a kidney disorder, and he had the lower third and a wedge at the top of the same lung removed. He also has emphysema, a lung disease, but persists in smoking.

He said, however, he had a hospital checkup two weeks ago and was pronounced in good health.

A Chronicle story on the flight logs said during the fiscal year ending Aug. 31, the logs indicated Bullock was the lone passenger on 47 flights in a seven-passenger King Air 100. On 26 flights, Wayne was alone.

The reports also said the dates of the flights were not recorded for the past year, but Bullock said state law does not require such information. Bullock, 49, became comptroller in January 1975.

He served in the Texas House of Representatives in 1957-61, practiced private law for several years and then was appointed in 1967 as an assistant attorney general. He was a member of Gov. Preston Smith's inner circle in 1969-71 as an administrative assistant. Smith appointed him secretary of state in 1971.

In 1972 the Senate rejected Smith's appointment of Bullock to the state insurance board, and he stayed on as secretary of state until Jan. 1, 1973.

He campaigned for comptroller for two years before his election, getting 71 percent of the vote against his Republican

Blood drive set

A blood drive for Dennis Walker of 808 E. Malone, who has been a patient at High Plains Baptist Hospital in Amarillo for two months, will be held from 3 to 6 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 18, at Highland General Hospital.

Officials of the Coffey Memorial Blood Bank, Amarillo, report there is a need for 50 pints of blood to be donated to replace the blood components Walker has already received from the blood bank.

In 1967, President Lyndon Johnson signed a $70-billion defense bill, the biggest single appropriation in United States history.

Chamber holds elections by mail

CANADIAN — A membership election by mail is being conducted by the Canadian - Hemphill County Chamber of Commerce to select five new members of the organization's board of directors for 1979.

The ballots will be canvassed and a new president and vice president elected during the chamber's November meeting.

Candidates for the five directors positions include: place 1, Connie Albin and Jim Pollard; place 2, Keith Robbins and Bill Morgan; place 3, Donna Lingg and Larry Davis; place 5, Pete Kenney and Vernon Hawkins; and place 6, Dave Richter and Jay Godwin.

Ezzelle noted that applications are still being taken for the post of chamber secretary - manager, to fill the vacancy being created by retirement of veteran chamber official John Wilkinson.

The chamber is seeking a fulltime manager, with a salary of up to $1,000 a month. The new manager and a receptionist will occupy new offices in the former Malouf Abraham office in the downtown area.

Mrs. Ezzelle said this office space has been rented, but that the relocation from the present office at 233 Main will not be made until the new manager is hired.

Applications for the secretary - manager position may be sent to the Canadian - Hemphill County Chamber of Commerce at 233 Main. Mrs. Ezzelle said.

Judge to rule on Mobil Oil suit today

HOUSTON (AP) — District Judge Arthur Leshar was expected to rule today on a lawsuit in which Mobil Oil Corp. charges Superior Oil Co. with pirating away Mobil employees and stealing its trade secrets.

Attorneys for both companies closed out the 11-day trial Tuesday with final arguments.

The Superior Oil attorneys told the judge Mobil failed to prove any employees were pirated away, much less the 39 claimed, or that any Superior employee who came from Mobil passed trade secrets.

Mobil was asking Leshar to stop Superior from using any confidential information gained from former Mobil employees. The firm alleged Superior used trade secrets obtained from the former employees to prepare winning bids for two oil and gas tracts off the coast of Cameron, La.

Davis hearing continues as FBI agent testifies

By ROB WOOD
 Associated Press Writer
 HOUSTON (AP) — An FBI agent testified Tuesday he once told the major witness against Fort Worth industrialist Cullen Davis in a kill-for-hire plot, "you talk too much. Let Davis do the talking."

Agent Ron Jannings, during his second day on the stand during pretrial hearings, said the witness, David McCrory, also had in his possession a .22-caliber pistol with a silencer, contrary to federal law.

Jannings said the FBI knew that McCrory had the weapon, but took no actions.

McCrory was an employee of Davis who went to authorities and said his boss had paid him $25,000 to kill State District Judge Joe Eidson, the presiding jurist over the long and bitter divorce proceedings of Davis and his estranged wife, Priscilla.

Eidson removed himself from the divorce trial after Davis' arrest and charges in the murder-for-hire case.

Earlier Tuesday, State District Judge Wallace Moore ruled that four tape recordings, allegedly linking the millionaire Davis with a scheme to kill Eidson, can be admitted as evidence in the trial, now scheduled to begin Monday.

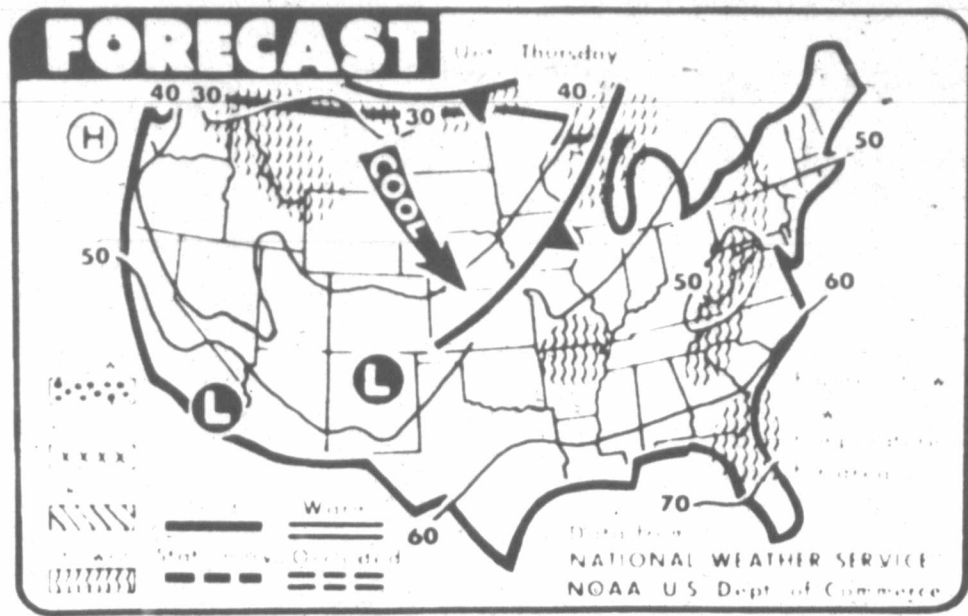

Moore overruled a defense motion by his old friend, chief defense attorney, Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, to keep the tapes out of the trial.

Haynes argued McCrory was acting as an FBI agent, yet failed to inform Davis of his constitutional rights.

Prosecutors said McCrory was not an agent nor considered an informer.

Priscilla Davis ended two days of testimony Tuesday after Haynes had questioned her on financial dealings during the past two years and her relationship with Pat Burleson, an associate of McCrory and the owner of Fort Worth karate schools.

She said Tuesday she met with Burleson to discuss "the security I would need for the upcoming divorce case."

Carter is confident Sadat won't back down on treaty

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
 Associated Press Writer
 WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says he is confident President Anwar Sadat of Egypt will not let "any single element" in dispute with Israel over the West Bank and Gaza stand in the way of an Egyptian-Israeli treaty.

On domestic issues raised at a nationally broadcast news conference Tuesday, the president warned that he would not hesitate to veto a $29.6 billion tax cut approved by the Senate but would accept a compromise that comes closer to the $16.3 billion House version.

The president said he planned to work with House and Senate tax leaders starting today in an effort to reach a compromise he could sign.

Carter was asked about reports that Israel and Egypt disagree about the linkage between the two parts of the Camp David agreement.

Sadat has said the agreements are linked. Israel says they are not contingent "upon each other."

Carter had some support for both sides. He said that there was no "legal" interconnection between the Sinai agreement and the more complicated and disputed West Bank and Gaza agreement.

But he said, "In the minds of myself, Prime Minister (Menachem) Begin (of Israel) and President Sadat, they are interrelated." That apparently referred to a mutual understanding developed at the Camp David talks.

Carter will host a new round of peace talks at the White House starting Thursday. He met Tuesday afternoon with an Israeli delegation headed by Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan to go over the details.

Carter said at least two aspects of the West Bank and Gaza plan are still unresolved.

One is whether Israel agreed to a three-month or five-year moratorium on new settlements. Another is the American answers to the questions raised by King Hussein of Jordan, who so far has refused to join the talks.

On other issues raised at the press conference, Carter:

- Said he would not meet with Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith and his black arters in the "internal settlement." Smith is in the United States trying to raise public support for his regime.
- The president also said he was not familiar with a bargain Smith says he struck in 1976 with former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. Smith says that bargain promised him diplomatic recognition and economic relations if he agreed to majority rule, which he says he has done.

— Indicated his "preference" was to send the forthcoming SALT II agreement to the Senate as a treaty requiring a two-thirds vote for approval rather than as an executive agreement requiring only a majority vote, but in both the House and Senate.

FBI agents probe slaying of girl

SAN MARCOS, Texas (AP) — Gary Job Corps Center officials say the FBI is investigating the slaying at the center of a 16-year-old girl whose semi-nude body was found about noon Monday in a tool shed.

Sylvia Selvera, 16, of Pearlsall, Texas, was one of 2,200 low-income youths enrolled at the huge federally-funded vocational center.

The Travis County medical examiner's office ruled Tuesday that Miss Selvera of Pearlsall had been strangled.

Another student discovered her body.

The FBI is investigating because it has jurisdiction over crimes committed on federal property, said Albert Perkins, director of the center.

Prisoners testify to beatings, rapes, lack of medical attention

HOUSTON (AP) — Inmates of the Texas prison system have testified they were beaten, raped and medically ignored in the state institution they are suing in federal court here.

A class-action suit filed by eight inmates of the prison system calls for major changes in the state's correctional institutions, alleging their rights have been violated because treatment in the facilities is tantamount to cruel and unusual punishment.

The hearing began Oct. 2 in federal court here and could last up to four months.

Tuesday, a convicted capital murderer testified medical officials of the Texas Department of Corrections denied him surgery on his broken nose because he was on Death Row.

Henry Martinez Porter, 36, sentenced to death in the fatal shooting of a Fort Worth policeman, said his nose was broken while he was in the Bexar County Jail in San Antonio in 1975 but did not realize it until arriving on death row.

Porter testified he had trouble breathing but had to go through exhaustive efforts to get an examination by a doctor.

"He told me the only way any of us inmates (on Death Row) could see a doctor would be if our lives were threatened," Porter testified.

Porter said another physician later told him he needed surgery on his nose but it could not be performed because he was on death row.

Thomas Franklin Porter, no relation to Henry Porter, testified two prison guards watched while three inmates beat another prisoner, and inmate John Michael Hill told the court he was homosexually raped by his former cellmate at the Ramsey unit.

Board of Trustees to meet Thursday

The Board of Trustees of the Wheeler Independent School District will meet at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Wheeler ISD Board Room.

Included in the agenda will be a discussion of bids on the installation of a hot water system and a brief discussion of the building program.

"They are different."

"The last thing I want to do is think about death. But the time will come. Maybe not today or even tomorrow, but the time will come. For my family's benefit I took time to check into the facts about funerals and the available benefits from Social Security and the Veteran's Administration. I went by and visited with the people at Duenkel-Smith Funeral Home. They are different. Different because they were really interested in me having the facts. They answered all my questions and even gave me a booklet to take home. They told me they had those books for anyone who wanted them; and just for the asking too. I liked their open attitude and that's why when the time does come, I'll trust the Duenkel-Smith Funeral Home."

Texas forecast

By The Associated Press
 Big patches of early morning fog cut visibility to less than a mile in parts of South Central Texas today while showers formed in the southwestern part of the state.

A weak stationary front, located across West Texas from near Childress to near Marfa on Tuesday, dissipated during the night. A few showers and thunderstorms moved southeast toward Del Rio.

Warm, moist air continued to dominate East Texas. And, two small areas of light showers formed just before dawn near Lampasas and San Angelo.

Pre-dawn temperatures were mostly in the 70s under cloudy or partly cloudy skies in East Texas. West Texas temperatures dipped into the 50s, except in the Panhandle and high valleys where the mercury dropped into the 40s.

Some early morning readings included 48 degrees at Dalhart in the northwestern Panhandle, 72 at Dallas-Fort Worth, 57 at El Paso, 71 at San Antonio, 62 at Houston and 72 at Brownsville at the southern tip of the state.

The National Weather Service forecast called for a few showers and thundershowers to develop over parts of South Texas later today, with fair skies prevailing elsewhere in Texas. Afternoon highs were expected to reach into the 80s.

Mismanagement charges leveled at state agency by government

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) — Charges of general administrative and fiscal mismanagement have been leveled at a Texas agency that finds jobs for American Indians, according to a Department of Labor spokesman.

Pete Homer of the DOL's Indian Affairs Division told the Lufkin News in a telephone interview Tuesday that the "verbal complaint" was made against Indian Employment Training Services Inc. of Houston.

Homer said he did not mention the complaint in an earlier interview with the newspaper because it was not written.

FOCUS

Eleanor

Eleanor Roosevelt, born October 11, 1884, was a shy and awkward young woman in 1902, when a young law student and distant cousin named Franklin Roosevelt proposed to her. When the couple married in 1905, the president of the United States, Eleanor's Uncle Theodore, gave away the bride. Eleanor moved in to the White House herself after Franklin's inauguration as president in 1933. As first lady, she traveled, wrote, and spoke out on important national and world problems, upsetting some people who didn't think a president's wife should take such an active public role. She became a delegate to the United Nations after her husband's death in 1945.

Inflated Judgment

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — Federal Judge Earl E. O'Connor made it known he wanted no party, no cake and no singing for his 56th birthday. The staff obliged, but the judge didn't mention balloons.

So when he opened the door to his chamber restroom on his birthday, 400 inflated balloons poured out.

"There's your pin," commented secretary Mary Petty, pointing to a hatpin attached to the door. "You've got your day's work cut out for you."

Snapping Jaws

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Unless you're friends with Charlie, it may not be safe to go for an uninvited swim in his pond.

He's already eaten a fellow alligator, and tried to take a plug out of a lawn mower. Not a spark plug, either.

Charlie, an 8-foot alligator, is the unofficial mascot of the U.S. Army Depot in North Charleston. He lives in a pond next to the main gate.

A depot employee put Charlie and another alligator in the pond about 26 years ago when both reptiles were measured in inches instead of feet. One day Charlie ate his pal.

More recently, an employee was cutting the grass around the pond when Charlie lunged out and chopped down on the lawn mower.

"He stopped that four-horsepower mower cold," said James O. Drawdy, a depot employee. "Of course, the guy running that thing was way around the corner by then — gone."

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: An old friend of the family, a widow with plenty of money, does not realize that she has practically no friends because she is so tight with a dollar.

My wife and "Mrs. Cheap skate" are about the same age (75), and when Mrs. Cheap skate was laid up recently with a broken ankle, my wife did all her shopping for her, and even drove her to a doctor in another city.

As a reward, Mrs. Cheap skate treated us to lunch at a fast-food restaurant.

My wife sets a beautiful table and prepares delicious meals when we have guests. We had Mrs. Cheap skate for dinner last evening, and when we took her home, she said, in parting, "We'll have to go out to lunch soon — Dutch treat, of course!"

This woman complains that she is lonely and doesn't know what to do with her time. I say someone should tell her in plain English why she is so lonely. My wife says it would destroy our friendship and hurt her.

What do you say, Abby?

NO NAME IN GLENDALE

DEAR NO NAME: I suspect you're more irked with Mrs. Cheap skate's cheapness than concerned about her loneliness.

Her lack of friends is HER problem, and at 75 she's not likely to change. Your letter causes me to wonder why you and your wife would continue to cater to a person whose friendship is clearly all take and no give.

DEAR ABBY: While cleaning our desk drawer, I came across a 1935 $5 bill from China. That was before China went Communist and became the People's Republic of China.

Can you tell me what this $5 bill is worth and where I can cash it in?

CHINESE BILL-HOLDER

DEAR BILL-HOLDER: The bill is out of circulation and cannot be cashed. But one day it might be worth much more than $5 if kept as a collector's item.

DEAR ABBY: Please publish this "help-wanted ad" in your column. It might make teenagers think twice before risking pregnancy.

Qualifications: Patience, compassion, understanding and mature judgment.

Salary: None. In fact, you must plan on spending at least $3,500 a year for the privilege of taking this job.

Abby, I am only 16, and I am not ready to take the job described above. Life is too short to be tied down with a baby when I could be out having fun. Sign me...

NOT READY TO BE A PARENT

Ask Dr. Lamb

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a former weight lifter and jogger. Because of an injury, I was inactive for quite some time. During this period, I had a large weight gain. I have gone back to weight lifting but I am also trying to lose pounds. Local lifters advise me to eat quantities of protein and roughage. I am interested in your opinion.

Also, because of the increased exercise, I find myself arising each morning with exceptional stiffness in my legs and ankles. Is there anything I can do to loosen these muscles as average stretching exercises do not always work.

DEAR READER — We often see your problem in former athletes. While they are physically active as a distance runner, a champion swimmer or a football player, they use many calories. When they stop their exercise, they don't use nearly as many calories, but they keep on eating as many so they get fat and out of shape.

Excess protein will not help you. The roughage may enable you to maintain normal bowel function. Most foods that contain lots of roughage don't contain lots of calories, so that's a plus in your favor. You must limit your caloric intake while increasing your physical activity. By following such a routine for several months, you may be able to get back to a more normal weight level for you.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. It provides fewer calories than you are probably used to, but it's about right if you really want to lose some excess fat.

I wouldn't like for you to stick to this diet forever. Try it for six weeks, and then stabilize yourself without trying to reduce your weight at all for about three weeks. Then go back to it.

You should increase your daily walking activity and then you can return to your weight lifting program at a reasonable level. Your muscle stiffness means you are overdoing your exercise program. The practical exercise programs are those that train and don't strain. Continue your stretching exercises, but decrease your level of weight training so that you don't have a lot of soreness and stiffness each day.

You are not any different from anybody else. If you control your caloric intake and increase your caloric expenditure to a sensible degree, you will be able to gradually eliminate any excess fat you have picked up.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read in one of your columns that if vitamin C was old and used a lot, it might increase your tendency to develop kidney stones. Why should age of the vitamin C make any difference?

You have me worried. We have a bottle of it that is seven years old. It tastes the same. Isn't ascorbic acid just ascorbic acid regardless of its age? Should we not take this now? We have used it as one to two pills a day when someone was sick. We have about 200 pills left.

DEAR READER — Throw it away. The problem is that vitamin C can convert chemically to oxalate. The older the vitamin C is, the more likely it has already undergone this chemical change, even if it does taste the same to you.

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — I hope someone can tell me how to remove a small blood stain from a new mattress. I have tried ice water and baking soda with no luck. — TERESA

DEAR TERESA — Make a paste of starch and water and apply thickly to the stains. Let dry, brush off and repeat if necessary. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — We all know that tomatoes are easier to peel if they are first scalded. But if you only want to peel one or two for a salad or sandwich rub the back of your paring knife over the skin surface and the tomato will peel as easily as when scalded. — MARY H.

DEAR MARY H — I have a friend who swears by this and always tells me I should do it but I have tried and it simply does not work as well as scalding does for me. — POLLY

Walking after mastectomy The surgeon said, 'I'm so sorry'

(Editor's note: Susan Nethery, a 32-year-old mother of four, underwent surgery for breast cancer in May 1976. In this series of excerpts from her new book, "One Year and Counting," she describes her adjustment to the physical and emotional scars of mastectomy while sustained by her close-knit family, sense of humor and deep religious faith.

In this first of four parts, she learns of her mastectomy.)

By Susan Nethery

Faintly, from far away, I heard my name being called.

"Susan? Susan. Take a few more deep breaths for me now."

More deep breaths? Have I taken some already? ...

I drifted off to sleep again.

"Susan!" More insistent now. "Take some deep breaths for me. It's time to wake up."

No. I just want to sleep. Dr. Garrett is going to operate. Oh, no! Don't let him operate yet! I'm not asleep!

"Susan? Listen to me. It's over. You're in the recovery room." Slowly I opened my eyes. This was not the operating room. There was a man in the bed next to mine, snoring loudly.

I began to feel. "I'm so cold. Please get me a blanket. I'm so cold." My teeth were chattering so that I could hardly speak.

"You've already got three blankets. You'll be warmer soon."

I can't really tell. Oh! Pain!

Quickly I moved my hand. All right. I'm alive, I'm cold, I hurt. Now what?

"Susan? Take some deep breaths."

As I struggled to comply, it came to me.

I know. I'll ask the nurse. "Nurse? What happened?"

Simple! Why didn't I think of that before?

"Dr. Garrett will be here in just a minute. He'll tell you all about it."

So much for that brilliant maneuver. Activate Plan B. Okay, sweet nurse. Here

THE NETHERY FAMILY: (clockwise from left) Susan, Ross, Laura, Jim, Rick and Lana.

I've got to think. I've got to wake up.

Closing my eyes, pretending to sleep, I tried to get my head together.

I'm not in heaven. I wouldn't have to listen to that snoring in heaven. I must still be alive!

Okay. I'm alive and I'm cold. The nurse isn't looking.

Slowly, I moved my right hand under the covers toward my left breast. Bandages, lots of them.

I can't really tell. Oh! Pain!

Quickly I moved my hand. All right. I'm alive, I'm cold, I hurt. Now what?

"Susan? Take some deep breaths."

As I struggled to comply, it came to me.

I know. I'll ask the nurse. "Nurse? What happened?"

Simple! Why didn't I think of that before?

"Dr. Garrett will be here in just a minute. He'll tell you all about it."

So much for that brilliant maneuver. Activate Plan B. Okay, sweet nurse. Here comes the biggy.

"What time is it?"

"Oh, about 1:30."

Suddenly I didn't feel so smart. Six hours. Six hours since I came up to surgery. Even an idiot could figure out what that means.

I heard Dr. Garrett say my name. I didn't want to open my eyes. (If I don't open my eyes, he'll go away.)

"Susan?" He said my name so gently. I could hear the pain in his voice.

He's hurting, too. He doesn't want to tell me this. I have to help him. It's not his fault.

"I know. It's okay. I know." I looked up and he was smiling — a strained smile, but a smile. And I smiled back.

"You really messed up my day," he said, trying.

I wanted to reply in kind: Business slow this morning, huh? Thought you'd get a little extra practice? But all that came out was, "I'm sorry."

"I'm sorry, too. I'm so sorry."

There was an awkward silence. I had my eyes closed, fighting tears. I don't know what he was doing.

"Listen," he said, struggling for words. "I have to tell you about it; then you can go back to sleep. It was malignant. I did just what I said I'd do if it turned out that way. There didn't seem to be any in the lymph nodes. I'm sure we got it all, but we'll have a more definite report in a few days."

"Does Jim know?"

"I told your family before I did the operation. They know."

What else was there to say?

"Dr. Garrett?"

"Hmmm?"

"I'm so cold. Why is it so cold in here?" And I went back to sleep.

'BIG' RESTAURATEUR PARKESBURG, W.Va. (AP)

— Signs promoting Jim Butcher's two-year-old restaurant read. "To heck with the diet, come in and overeat" and "This is the place to go if you can't stop."

And at 350 pounds, Butcher is the embodiment of his philosophy.

"I can't remember ever being under 200 pounds. Ever since I played high school football, I've weighed upwards of 240," he said.

"I've never been proud of being overweight, but at least I'm healthy," the 46-year-old restaurateur said. "I tried a couple of diets. They darned near killed me."

Gripes don't get attention

NEW YORK (AP) — With so many people today irritated about so many things, the cold fury of those with specialized, limited-interest gripes gets relatively little attention.

Businessmen generally have many sources of irritation, especially with Washington, but two of their complaints have not been widely expressed because, simply, they are nearly speechless with frustration:

1. About elected officials, who seem constantly to seek higher pay and fringe benefits for themselves, lecturing executives on what corporate perquisites they should be ashamed to accept.

2. About the administration, which runs huge, inflation-producing budget deficits, telling them they will have to do more to control inflation, even if it means accepting some form of official restraints.

George Meany, meanwhile, is in a lather about the ingratitude of big business which, he says, has been seeking to ruin the union movement instead of acclaiming unions for their defense of free enterprise.

"It is proper to ask some questions about the role of the captains of American industry," Meany commented in an article in the "American Federationist," an official AFL-CIO publication.

He described the captains as "those who pretend to be defenders of free enterprise, but who are seeking to destroy a labor movement that has always defended free enterprise."

Some individual investors think they are being ruined too. And some presidents of so-called second-and third-tier companies — big concerns, but not the biggest — join them in their indignation.

They are upset about some of the big institutional investors, such as insurers, pension and mutual funds, and bank-administered trusts.

Some of these institutions have long followed a conservative policy of investing only in the top 50 or 100 companies, thus denying smaller companies the capital they need to grow.

Lately, these institutions have become even more timid. Or so it is said. At any rate, some of them are keeping scores of millions of dollars in cash, or in bonds or other fixed-income securities.

If invested in stocks, individual investors say, that money could give a giant thrust to the market. Since it isn't, the market can't seem to generate momentum. It does, however, generate frustration and wrath.

Economists are sore about some of the data they get from Washington. They say, for example, that jobless figures are inaccurate and could be adversely affecting government policy decisions.

Many other economists think it's just the reverse, that the number of unemployed is really much lower than the figure reported by government statisticians.

Crane says voters think differently

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The square-jawed Republican congressman from the Illinois prairie who wants to be president, Philip Crane, says American voters see their country's foreign policy like everything else — in terms of "me, here, now."

In other words, says Crane, the most important question for any individual is what impact an issue is likely to have on his or her personal life and, most especially, on the pocketbook.

Americans may praise President Carter for achieving a Middle East summit agreement, he adds, but it isn't the sort of thing that will win votes while inflation remains the nation's most important problem.

"The viability of our economy is the No. 1 issue, and it is intimately tied to national defense and our ability to play a strong leadership role in the world," Crane said in an interview.

"But even at the height of the Vietnam war, the war itself was never the main issue. Me, here, now — stick to that, and you will have the people's interest. Anything beyond our shores is an abstraction."

In a sense, it was an expression of the strategy Crane employs as he travels about the country, talking to businesspeople, labor, students, retired persons and ethnic groups in pursuit of the Republican Party's 1980 presidential nomination.

This week, the 47-year-old lawmaker is embarking on another such trip, an 8,000-mile flying tour of the U.S. heartland and some Southern states where political conservatives like himself are seeking office at the local, state and national levels in the November elections.

Crane is a conservative ideologue, a former university history teacher and a writer of books presenting conservative views of the United States and the world.

The most recent was a lengthy condemnation of the Panama Canal treaties, which Crane opposed on grounds the documents would risk giving the Soviet Union eventual control over the waterway.

While his unsuccessful campaign against the canal treaties gave Crane some valuable national exposure, he has yet to be taken seriously as a presidential contender by many people except his own most dedicated followers.

"Crane will make (Ronald) Reagan look like a moderate," said one of the Californian's campaign strategists. "If Crane stays in, Reagan could be forced into a position somewhat closer to the center."

In Congress, Crane serves on committees that deal with government spending and the other "pocketbook issues" that he says are dearest to the hearts of voters. A keystone of his political philosophy is that there is too much government.

Investigators still searching for clues

YUKON, Okla. (AP) — Investigators were still trying to get details Tuesday in the bizarre case of a woman who allegedly shot one granddaughter to death and critically wounded another before shooting herself in what police said was an apparent suicide attempt.

Police said that Lena Smith, 52, and 4-year-old Rhonda Smith were removed from the critical to serious list at Oklahoma City hospitals. Both reportedly had damage to internal organs.

Dawn Smith, 6, was slain in the Sunday morning shooting near a service station on U.S. 66 in this suburb just west of Oklahoma City.

Detective Warren Wells said the family was from Texas but the grandmother, the father and the two girls moved here eight months ago. He said the natural mother of the girls, Patty Watson, was contacted Sunday afternoon at her home in Odessa, Texas, and arrived here on Monday.

A letter and note written by the woman was found in the death vehicle, police said. They said it detailed her burial wishes and other arrangements she wanted made.

Police said the woman apparently shot the two girls then turned the gun on herself in a suicide attempt. But officers said she was still able to drive to the service station to seek help.

"We don't have any motive," said Wells.

Wells said investigators said Mrs. Smith and her grandchildren had checked into a Yukon motel Saturday morning.

Wells said that although the girls and their grandmother were away from the home most of Saturday and overnight, the father apparently believed the three were visiting other relatives.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You could rain on your own parade today as well as on those you are with if your attitude is glum rather than festive. Get in the spirit.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Sweep no family responsibilities under the rug today. You'll collect lots of guilt regarding things you could have done, but didn't.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't ask for a critique today of your actions from a pal who tells it like it is. You may not be prepared to deal with the raw truth.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be extremely sensible today in the management of your financial and material resources. Don't loan what you can't afford.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You may feel unable to achieve today without the assistance of strong allies. In actuality, you'll perform much better as a loner.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Assuming others' responsibilities could severely stifle your independence today. They could be straws that might break the camel's back.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Social demands may prove surprisingly burdensome today. What you thought would be fun may end up being a bummer.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Personal ambitions might have to be shelved today because duty calls. Fighting this fact of life will only make things worse.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's not like you to be so rigid, but today if your views are opposed you won't give an inch. Clinging to a fixed position will suffocate you.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) An old obligation may clamor for payment today. Even though it may financially inconvenience you, it's best you get it off the ledger.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today you may have difficulty in seeing beyond the negative side and thereby overlook a possible solution to your problems.

Inspired Lopes leads Dodger rout

TERRY FORSTER, relief pitcher for the Los Angeles Dodgers, goes through his motions Tuesday night against the New York Yankees in the first game of the World Series. Forster came in during the eighth to assist Tommy John for the win. (AP Laserphoto)

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Davey Lopes, the team captain, showed the way with a pair of home runs and some rousing exuberance around the bases as the Los Angeles Dodgers began their emotional campaign to capture the 1978 World Series title.

Supplying the power from his leadoff position, Lopes keyed a pair of three-run innings with a two-run homer and a three-run blast, leading the National League champs to an 11-5 opening-game victory over the defending world champion New York Yankees Tuesday night.

As he rounded first base in the second inning, Lopes raised his right fist toward the sky. When he passed the bag following homer No. 2 in the fourth inning, he thrust both arms in the air.

"Yeah I was thinking of Jim," said Lopes, the fiery Dodger second baseman, referring to longtime Dodger coach Jim Gilliam, who died Sunday night after three weeks in a coma following a stroke. "He meant so much to me."

"I know Gilliam is up there watching us. The Dodgers don't have to beat just 25 of us. With Gilliam, they have to beat 50 of us."

"I mean that Gilliam's spirit is in each one of us. We're trying to do our damndest to win this thing for him. If you look out there closely, you'll see Jim Gilliam in all of the holes in the field."

Gilliam was to be buried today and Lopes, one of his favorite pupils, was expected to be one of the pallbearers.

Then Lopes and his teammates will try to back the Yankees to the wall when Dodger ace right-hander Burt Hooton hooks up with right-hander Catfish Hunter in Game 2 tonight.

"We'd like to leave here with a split," said Hunter, who will be pitching in his 11th Series game. "Any team is better in its own ballpark. The Dodgers are better here and we're better in our park."

Hooton, who was 1-1 against the Yanks in last year's Series, expressed little outward excitement about his starting assignment.

"I'm sure my heart will be beating a little bit tomorrow," said the dour Hooton, who is sarcastically nicknamed "Happy" by his manager, Tom LaSorda. "A pitcher dreams about being in the World Series all his life and I've been in two back to back. A whole bunch of guys haven't played in one."

"All I can say is that he (Lopes) said he was as high as the sky, and now I believe him," said Hunter.

Reggie Jackson, the Yanks' inspirational leader this October and last, supplied three hits, including a record-breaking, 430-foot homer, but it wasn't enough against left-hander Tommy John's baffling sinkerball.

Jackson, who homered on his last three pitches in the Yanks' triumphant Game 6 last year, singled his first time up Tuesday night, then grounded out. In his third at-bat, he creamed John's fastball, giving him six homers in his last four Series games. Yankee immortal Lou Gehrig held the record of five in four games spanning the 1928 and 1932 Fall Classics.

"Lou Gehrig was one of the all-time greats," said Jackson. "I'm just one of the faces in the crowd. Maybe a little more recognizable."

Dolphin swimmers place at Lubbock

The Pampa Dolphin Swim Club traveled to Lubbock over the weekend and came home with several good showings in their opening meet of the season.

The Dolphins have been working out for five weeks, but Coach Mike Eckhart said they needed to continue some intense training. Placing in the top three of their events were the following swimmers:

Richard Steger — 100 fly, second; 200 I.M., first; 100 back, second; 50 free, third; 100 breast, third; 500 free, third; 100 back, second; 50 free, first; 200 free, first; 200 I.M., first; 100 fly, second.

Reid Steger — 100 fly, second; 200 I.M., first; 200 free, first; 50 free, first; 100 back, first; 100 breast, first; 100 free, second.

Kipp Lester — 50 fly, second; 50 free, B certificate; 100 free, first.

Susan Darling — 200 I.M., third; 50 back, third.

Robbie Hill — 200 I.M., second; 100 back, first; 100 free, B certificate; 100 back, first; 50 free, first; 100 breast, first.

Tim Darling placed third in the 25 free, Raymond Hill third in the 100 and 200 fly, Shane Ethridge second in the 100 back and first in the 100 breast, and Tim Anderson third in the 100 breast and Richelle Hill second in the 50 breast.

They don't like individuals, on or off the field," said Page, who as a defensive tackle helped the Vikings to four Super Bowl appearances. "They (the management) have a hard time dealing with people on a personal level."

Page, enamored with the sport of running, dropped his weight to about 220 pounds, far below average for a lineman, and was often replaced this year on short-yardage plays.

"Every team has its different personalities and it's not my job to mold them into one," said Bud Grant.

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Alan Page, once the heart if not the soul of the Minnesota Vikings defense but now a wispy 220 pounder, has been placed on irrevocable waivers, and the least surprised person of all was Page.

Page, enamored with the sport of running, dropped his weight to about 220 pounds, far below average for a lineman, and was often replaced this year on short-yardage plays.

"Every team has its different personalities and it's not my job to mold them into one," said Bud Grant.

Kurt Lester, Renita Hill and Colin O'Neal were among those placing fourth, fifth or sixth in their individual events.

Coach Eckhart felt his swimmers did a fair job for their first meet of the year and is looking forward to the team's first home meet, scheduled for Nov. 11-12 at the Pampa Youth Center.

Senate negotiators trying to put tax-cut compromise together

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate-passed tax bill is heading for a conference committee where negotiators will be working against the calendar and the threat of a veto to put together a compromise tax cut just in time for election day.

The Senate measure, which would reduce taxes by $29.3 billion in 1979, includes cuts for most individuals, a heavy reduction in capital gains taxes on investors and new tax relief for businesses.

The bill was passed on a 96-4 vote Tuesday night, a few hours after President Carter described it as unacceptably large.

He told a news conference that if the conference committee will take the best parts from the Senate bill and the best from the $16.3 billion version passed by the House, "We can have an acceptable tax bill which I will sign."

New figures by congressional aides estimate the Senate bill would result in a $285 tax cut in 1979 for a typical four-member family earning $17,500, compared with $115 in the House bill. At $20,000, the Senate tax cut would be $316 and the House cut $146.

For a married couple with no children and earning $20,000, the Senate bill would mean a tax cut of $239 while the House cut would be $81. A single person at $20,000 would get $147 under the Senate bill and $105 in the House version.

The $29.3 billion price tag on the bill compares with the $16.3 billion passed by the House and the $20 billion level proposed most recently by the Carter administration.

Sen. Russell B. Long, floor manager of the bill, told reporters that Senate-House conferees will begin work on the tax legislation Thursday and likely will be unable to finish before sometime Saturday — when Congress hopes to adjourn for the year and hit the campaign trail.

After the compromise clears the conference, it still is subject to a final vote in the House and Senate.

Despite their differences, the Senate and House bills agree on at least four major priorities. Both would:

—Replace the current $35-per-person individual tax credit (as well as the optional credit of up to $180) and the $750 exemption with a $1,000-per-person exemption.

—Increase the standard deduction, which is used by taxpayers who do not itemize. This would go up to $2,300 for single persons and $3,400 for couples filing a joint return.

—Repeat the existing deduction allowed for state and local gasoline taxes. This will mean slightly higher taxes for most of the 30 percent of taxpayers who itemize deductions.

—Provide for a big cut in the tax on capital gains, which are profits from the sale of property owned for a year or longer, in an effort to spur investment.

The Senate bill would go considerably beyond the House version in cutting individual taxes, mainly through adjustment in the tax rates. The Senate voted about $19 billion in individual reductions; the House, $10.4 billion.

McInnis indicated in murder plot

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — A state grand jury has received evidence concerning a murder plot allegedly devised by Oscar McInnis, suspended district attorney of Hidalgo County.

Attorney Michael Hinton of Houston, a special prosecutor called in to handle the case, began presenting evidence to the grand jurors Tuesday.

Federal indictments stemming from the purported plot were dismissed against McInnis and Patricia Parada of McAllen by a federal judge who said the case is out of the jurisdiction of the federal courts.

Perjury counts also were dropped against them. The indictment had charged that the pair plotted to have Miss Parada's ex-husband kidnapped and killed.

McInnis has been suspended from office pending a removal suit filed against him by the Texas Prosecutors Coordinating Council.

Preston Henrichson, appointed as interim district attorney, was denied funds from the local county commissioners to hire a special prosecutor. Henrichson then turned to the Texas District and County Attorneys association, which came up with the money.

Attorneys attacking system

HOUSTON (AP) — Attorneys for eight persons charged in connection with the May 7 Moody Park rioting are attacking the state grand jury system in an attempt to have the charges dismissed.

They requested subpoenas Tuesday for 15 district court judges in Harris County to testify about how grand juries are picked in Texas.

Robin Collins, one of the attorneys, said they are trying to gain dismissals of the indictments for felony rioting and aggravated assault dropped on grounds that grand jurors are chosen unfairly.

Collins said the system results in a low representation on grand juries of low-income, young and poorly educated people. The attorney said he isn't sure whether the judges will be called, however.

Texas is the only state still using the "key man" system of grand jury selection in which commissioners, or key men, are named by judges, and they select prospective grand jurors.

Collins said. Grand juries in other states are chosen at random from a list, usually the voter-registration list, he said.

District Judge J.D. Guyon, whose grand jury issued the indictments against the defendants, testified in a hearing Tuesday that he followed state statutes and picked four commissioners, who chose 20 prospective jurors. Guyon said he took the top 12 from the list.

Eight former grand jurors have appeared so far in the hearing, which began Monday before District Judge Lee Dugan. All described a business or social connection between themselves and the commissioner who appointed them.

"What we're saying is Judge Guyon is necessarily picking people out of the sphere he's associated with and his commissioners pick people from the sphere they're associated with and that excludes people beyond those spheres," said defense attorney Frank Alvarez.

Vatican to do nothing on probe of Pope's death

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican is expected to do nothing about Italian press demands for an investigation into the death of Pope John Paul I and suspicions of foul play.

John Paul's doctor said the 65-year-old pontiff died of a heart attack Sept. 28, just 34 days after his election, and one Vatican source said any further official explanation would be an embarrassing "capitulation to popular pressure."

The press campaign for a probe began Oct. 1 when Milan's Corriere della Sera, widely regarded as Italy's best newspaper, reported that "doubts and suspicions" about the pope's death had been raised.

"We cannot understand why an autopsy on Pope John Paul's body was not performed," the paper said. "The church had nothing to lose — on the contrary much to gain — if an autopsy had been conducted, especially since the Vatican constitution does not explicitly forbid such an autopsy."

The next day an ultra-conservative Italian Catholic lay organization, Civita Cristiana, announced it had petitioned the Vatican Courts of Justice to "open a judicial inquiry to ascertain the true causes" of the pope's death. But Cardinal Carlo Confalonieri, dean of the College of Cardinals, said there was no question about the cause of the pope's death and no need for an autopsy, according to Vatican officials.

"I don't see Vatican official circles taking these demands very seriously," said the Rev. John Long, an officer of the Vatican's Secretariat of Christian Unity.

He said he didn't believe press reports that some of the cardinals had asked for a formal Vatican statement on the matter. Others, including a spokesman for the U.S. cardinals, also disputed the report. The Rev. Donald Campion, a Jesuit expert on Vatican affairs, conceded that a full, official medical report should have been issued as soon as possible after the pope died.

May not be in time to prevent problems

Congress to vote on spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is preparing to vote on a huge military spending bill but perhaps not in time to prevent payroll problems for more than 2 million service personnel and civilian employees.

With a $117.5 billion price tag, the legislation would be the largest appropriation ever passed by Congress. It will finance practically all defense spending in the fiscal year that began Oct. 1.

Senate and House conferees wrapped up their work on the bill Tuesday after four days of negotiations. The conference report, which includes one still-unresolved issue, must be approved by the full House and Senate.

The House, which is expected to act first on the conference report, does not plan to vote before Thursday at the earliest.

Then it would go to the Senate and, finally, to the White House for signature.

The conference report leaves unresolved whether to consolidate Army and Navy helicopter pilot training at Fort Rucker, Ala. The House originally approved the consolidation but the Senate rejected it. The issue will be voted on again separately by both houses. In theory, failure of one house or the other to yield on that point could jeopardize the compromises reached by the conference committee.

Even without an unanticipated impasse, the Pentagon said it is uncertain whether it will be able to meet a payroll on Friday for 466,000 defense employees.

Payday for 1.5 million uniformed personnel falls on Sunday, and these checks normally would go out earlier because of the weekend, a Pentagon spokesman said.

The Defense Department has been without funds since the start of the new fiscal year. The defense spokesman said alternatives are being discussed, such as sending out checks with instructions not to cash them.

The legislation totals $5.2 billion more than last year's spending, which was a record, but is $1.5 billion short of President Carter's request for this fiscal year. Conferees said the total fell under the administration's proposal because money for a nuclear aircraft carrier was stripped from the bill after the president vetoed the ship.

The legislation contains a restriction on abortions that would be paid for with military money.

It also, for the first time, would grant travel and moving allowances for the families of junior enlisted personnel sent overseas. The Pentagon had lobbied strenuously for the benefits.

The bill would put a worldwide ceiling of 350,000 on the number of dependents overseas, but conference staff said this still would leave room for travel allowances for 6,000-9,000 dependents.

Deletion of funds for the nuclear aircraft carrier defused most of the controversy over weapons buying.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, said the legislation contains $12 billion to buy planes and $4 billion for ship construction.

Conferees scrapped a House provision to put a one-year moratorium on the up-or-out policy, under which an officer is retired if he or she is passed over twice for promotion.

WHIMSICAL RABBIT
NEW YORK (AP) — Short-stop Rabbit Maraville was only 5-5 and 155 pounds but he was a big enough player to make it to the Baseball Hall of Fame. He was famous for his vest-pocket catches of pop flies.

The Rabbit was also something of a flake. Once he waded into a hotel pool, where his team, the Boston Braves, was staying, caught a goldfish and took a bite out of it. On another occasion he crawled between the legs of the plate umpire while coming up to bat.

National news

WASHINGTON (AP) — An investigation into the financial affairs of Sen. Edward W. Brooke will not be completed before the Nov. 7 election, the Senate Ethics Committee says.

The committee said Monday the investigation could not be completed until Brooke, R-Mass., turned over requested information to its special counsel. Meanwhile, Brooke aides said the senator was cooperating fully with the committee. Brooke, who is running for reelection, is being investigated by the committee to determine if he filed a false Senate financial disclosure statement.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Blacks and labor representatives met with Hamilton Jordan, President Carter's top aide, to map strategy for passage of the Humphrey-Hawkins employment bill before Congress adjourns this year.

The group included Coretta Scott King, widow of civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. and Sen. Muriel Humphrey, D-Minn., whose late husband was a sponsor of the bill. Jordan told the group that the bill, which would set a target of no more than 4 percent unemployment by 1983, was one of Carter's top priorities.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader says Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger should be fired because he is a tool of big oil and gas companies and has undermined President Carter's energy program.

Nader said that under Schlesinger the "Carter energy program, which the people in this country voted on in 1976, has been subverted." Nader voiced his objections in a meeting Monday with presidential aide Stuart E. Eizenstat. Nader said Eizenstat was "generally noncommittal" on the matter.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The

National Organization for Women pledged to intensify its efforts on behalf of the Equal Rights Amendment following congressional approval of a measure extending the deadline for ratifying the amendment.

Eleanor Smeal, NOW president, said the organization plans a "major national campaign that will be as active in as many states as possible." She declined, though, to name any states that will be targeted for a special lobbying push. Congress has extended the deadline for ratification by 38 states from March 22, 1979, to June 30, 1982.

HOUSTON (AP) — One Texas Department of Corrections inmate testified today an inmate was beaten while two prison officers watched and another inmate told of being homosexually raped during testimony in a suit filed by eight prison inmates against the prison system.

The inmates seek major changes in the way prisoners are handled in the prison system.

Thomas Franklin Porter, serving a 35-year sentence, said two prison guards watched while three inmates beat another inmate, Ricky Musick, following an argument in the dining hall at the Wynn unit.

John Michael Hill, 24, serving a 15-year sentence, testified he was sexually assaulted by another inmate and did not resist at first because he feared for his life.

A third inmate, Henry Martinez Porter, 36, of San Antonio, said he was told by prison medical officers he could not get needed surgery on his nose because he was on death row. Porter is not related to Thomas Porter.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — An oil industry crewboat caught fire off the Louisiana coast, forcing the 15 offshore oil workers aboard to abandon the vessel, but all were rescued a short time later, the Coast Guard said today.

Lt. Tom Pearson, a Coast Guard spokesman, said the Mr. Walter had left the Marsh Island area and was heading for the mouth of the Atchafalaya River — about 30 miles away — when the fire broke out late Monday night.

The workers abandoned the 85-foot vessel as it burned, but were picked up about two hours later by the tugboat The Dad. Some were in lifejackets in the water, some were in life-rafts.

Pearson said, and all were reported in good condition.

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The key to winning the annual Waiters and Waitresses Race, said champ Steve Crudi, is to make sure "you don't look at the glasses as you walk."

Dressed in work uniforms, 40 entrants glided up and down Trumbull Street Sunday balancing beverage trays holding four full glasses of champagne each.

The finalists were those who crossed the finish line with 16 of their original 22 ounces of bubbly still in the glasses after the quarter-mile hike.

Crudi, 34, an 18-year veteran of the profession, balanced his tray in one hand and finished in just under two minutes.

Karen Ramdeen, 20, of Manchester carried her tray with both hands to win the women's race in 3:02.14. The secret is to "be relaxed and concentrate," she said.

The race was sponsored by the Hotel and Restaurant Employees Union, AFL-CIO.

Names in the news

NEW YORK (AP) — Rudy Vallee crooned a few bars and reminisced about the days the Copacabana nightclub was the "Villa Vallee," as the famous nightspot reopened on its 50th anniversary as a showcase for recording artists.

The Copa, run as a discotheque since 1976, "is without a doubt the biggest name in show business," owner John Juliano said Monday. "During the '40s, '50s and '60s if you didn't play the Copa you were nowhere."

Vallee, 77, played the Copa in 1929. As the Villa Vallee the nightclub served steak for $2.50 and "had an overflow so big you couldn't get in," he said.

MANCHESTER, Conn. (AP) — The 80-year-old mother of President Carter says she was surprised when she met Gov. Ella Grasso.

"Before I met Ella, I thought she was going to be a great big fat person, sort of sweaty," Lillian Carter said Monday amid laughter from several hundred Democrats including Mrs.

Grasso. "You've seen 'em. But she's just the opposite — charming, not fat, not sweaty."

Mrs. Carter met Mrs. Grasso for the first time when the two were part of the U.S. delegation to Pope John Paul I's funeral.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The cowboy feud between Gene Autry and Roy Rogers was just a Hollywood game, Autry says in his autobiography, "Back In The Saddle Again."

According to Autry, his old Republic Pictures boss, Herbert J. Yates, was angered when he enlisted in the Army Air Corps after Pearl Harbor.

"By the time you come back, you'll be forgotten," the studio boss said. "And it won't hurt us. No, sir. If we have to, we'll spend a million dollars to promote (Roy) Rogers. And we'll make him bigger than you ever were."

Autry returned from the war to find that Rogers indeed was a big star. But as for their feud:

"That was just a publicity thing. The Republic publicity department thought it would be a good idea. . . . But there was no personal feud whatsoever."

NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Peter Bourne, who resigned as President Carter's chief adviser on drug abuse, says that while cocaine should not be legalized, the government shouldn't fight it.

"I don't think we need a massive law enforcement crackdown," Bourne said. "We can't enforce the (drug) laws that we have on the books now. So that I don't think the interests of the American people would be served by having more stringent laws."

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Singer Bobby Vinton has received the high degree he never had time to study for because he was too busy recording hit songs.

The native of Canonsburg in nearby Washington County returned to Pittsburgh to receive an honorary Doctor of Music degree from Duquesne University.

Student body president has finger on problem

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer
MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Jim Mallon figures his finger is firmly on the pulse of his 40,000 constituents.

All the average student cares about is sex and drugs and rock 'n' roll. In that order," says the student body president at the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Chairing student senate meetings with a huge plastic gavel or cavorting on campus in clown suits, Mallon and his vice president, Leon Varjian, have brought new humor to this campus, a hotbed of anti-war radicalism in the 1960s.

Mallon, 22, a communications arts senior, and Varjian, who at 27 is in his 10th year of college, founded the "Pail and Shovel" party last spring.

They proposed converting students funds into pennies and dumping them into a campus fountain, so students could dig in — with pails and shovels.

"Pail and Shovel is dedicated to the four-year-old in all of us," Mallon said in his dish-eveled student union office, which features a filing cabinet marked "Toys."

Mallon and Varjian began by building a giant campaign "platform" out of Popsicle sticks. Now, they're the dominant figures in student politics — 29 Pail and Shovel candidates won election to the 36-member student senate last week.

"We have two more than a two-thirds majority now and no one can stop us," Mallon gloated.

Stop them from what? Their campaign promises include:

Flooding the football stadium for mock naval battles, stuffing and mounting all deans, converting parking meters into gumball machines and running clocks backward so classes end before they start.
