Engine room explosion aboard tanker kills 59

SINGAPORE (AP) — An engine room explosion that sent metal fragments flying like shrapnel through the bowels of a Greek oil tanker killed 59 persons, including two sisters, Singapore police said today. A third sister and 18 other persons were hospitalized with severe burns, and 71 others suffered less serious injuries, they said.

The blast occurred Thursday afternoon aboard the 35,676-ton Spyros, tied up for repairs and cleaning at the Jurong Shipyard. There was no official word on the cause of the explosion, but there was speculation it either was touched off by sparks from welding torches in the ship's boiler room or a leak in a gas cylinder. The tanker had no cargo aboard at the time of the blast.

Hospital sources said many of the victims were burned beyond recognition. Police said the dead included a least six of the ship's 33-member crew and two of the three sisters working as cleaners aboard the vessel. The crew included 27 Greeks, two Chileans, two Indonesians, an Englishman and a Filipino.

Paul Abraham, an employee of an electricity substation that supplied power to the ship, said he switched off electricity to the Spyros immediately after the blast and climbed aboard with portable lights.

"As I descended into the ship, I saw badly burned workers struggling to get to the top deck," he said. "One had all his hair singed, leaving only his bare scalp. From below I could hear screams of people in pain. I came across charred bodies, some piled on top of each other, while others were hidden behind pipes after being thrown by the explosion."

Shipyard worker Ah Cheong said he had left the engine room to collect some tools from the wharf about 2 p.m. and that "on my way back I heard a thunderous explosion followed by a fire and thick clouds of smoke. Suddenly there was pandemonium. There were screams for help and shouts of fire. I rushed back to the ship and joined other workers to pull out the injured. . . Some of them were so badly burned I could hardly recognize their faces."

Another survivor said panic erupted in the boiler room after the blast. "By some miracle I managed to make my way to the first ladder and it was there that I saw at least three people dashing around with their hair and clothes on fire. The sight was just unbearable and I threw up right on the bottom step."

Firemen, aided by two fire-fighting tugs, battled the blaze for 25 minutes before bringing it under control. Green tarpaulins and cardboard covered the bodies as they were brought on deck.

Search and rescue teams were hampered by oil, a residue from the ship's tanks, and water sloshing around in the darkened engine and boiler rooms. One firefighter said most of the victims were found in the oil-water mix in the bowels of the ship.

The Spyros is owned by the Ulysses Tanker Corp., of Greece and registered in Liberia, according to Lloyd's Register of Ships.

Firefighting tugs poured water on the tanker as it burned Friday in hopes that the fire would be brought under control as rescue efforts continued.

Texas politics focusing on governor's race

By The Associated Press

Texas political activity focused on the race for governor Thursday, with Democratic hopeful John Hill happy about some new-found power and Republican Bill Clements the recipient of some new-found help.

Hill bragged about winning agreement from the federal government to give Texas what he called veto power over any nuclear waste storage sites.

"This is a significant step in my continuing efforts to make certain our citizens are fully protected from any hazards of nuclear waste disposal," Hill said.

Two Texas sites are now under consideration as nuclear waste disposal sites.

"The Energy Department is investigating sites in Randall County in the Panhandle and in Anderson County in East Texas as possible nuclear waste storage areas, and I'm sure it will be welcome news to residents of those counties that the federal government will not locate a nuclear waste disposal site in their communities without first getting approval of the state of Texas," Hill said.

While Hill's good news came from the federal government, Clements' good news came from an opponent — Raza Unida candidate Mario Campa.

"The goal of the Raza Unida party is to break up the political monopoly that has controlled Mexican-Americans," Campa told a news conference in Austin. "The next best thing would be to vote for someone other than the Democratic candidate. In this case that leaves Clements."

Campa stressed that he was not saying he endorsed Clements "or any other party other than Raza Unida."

Clements got in some licks of his own, coming out with a statement that hammered at a now-familiar theme. The statement said Hill's "10-year campaign to be governor is composed almost exclusively of a string of promises to vested interest groups. His most recent campaign financial statement alone shows that more than 70 vested interest groups, including out-of-state union contributors, have their hooks in him — to the tune of almost $200,000 — and there's no telling what some of these expect in exchange."

Over in the race for Republican John Tower's seat in the Senate, challenger Bob Krueger, D-Texas, was in Austin with Secretary of Interior Cecil Andrus.

Tower said in Livingston that Krueger has changed positions on giving two senators to the District of Columbia. He noted that Krueger was quoted recently in an interview as saying he would be happy to leave the issue up to state legislators.

Bilingual program may cause some problems

By JACK KEEVER

Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Superintendent John Briggs of Bay City told a statewide meeting on bilingual education that his school district of 4,100 students includes 14 Vietnamese, six Thais, four Indians — with two dialects — three Germans and one Persian.

"We can take care of the Vietnamese and the Germans, but that Persian is going to cause problems," said Briggs, drawing loud laughter as he illustrated the difficulties with a new bilingual plan.

The revised statewide plan was adopted by the State Board of Education in June on an emergency basis, but a final vote has not been taken. It could come at the Saturday board meeting.

A board committee listened to four hours of testimony Thursday, with each of approximately 60 witnesses limited to a 3½-minute presentation.

Maria Gonzales, a bilingual San Angelo teacher, asserted that providing bilingual education through the 12th grade is not the way to prepare Spanish-speaking students for an English-speaking world.

The board plan makes bilingual education for limited English-speaking children mandatory through the fifth grade, with additional English language training continuing through the final year of high school.

A special state allowance would be allotted to schools, but the money would not cover all costs of the program.

Any district that failed to make a "good faith" effort to comply with the plan would be subject to "full accreditation review."

State law now requires schools to provide bilingual programs in kindergarten through the third grade if they have 20 or more children of limited English-speaking ability in any grade.

Ms. Gonzales said forcing schools to teach Spanish beyond the third grade works to the "disadvantage of the children." She said Spanish-speaking parents want their children to learn English.

"After all," she said, "this is an English-speaking world, and when they go out (from school) they will get everything in English."

"I'd like to ditto everything the young lady had to say," said Superintendent Gordon

Harmon of Abilene. "What's good for Harlingen is not necessarily good for Abilene and wouldn't necessarily work in San Angelo and Lubbock."

Elementary school teacher Theresa Black of Goldthwaite said the proposed plan would be "one more step toward the destruction of the American education system."

"My main objection is that small districts cannot afford such a major change," she said.

Such opposition was applauded by a crowd that was so large that many had to sit on the floor or stand in the hearing room.

Paul Velez of the American GI Forum insisted that the plan "does not go far enough," and Gus Garcia, a former Austin school board member who ran unsuccessfully for the state board, added:

"The state board of education should be in the vanguard of bilingual education, but it has taken exactly the opposite position," refusing "to move unless forced by the federal government — and every step that it has taken has been taken begrudgingly."

Velez recommended that the proposed expanded bilingual program be paid for by the state — not local school districts.

His recommendation to eliminate the option of parents to withdraw their children from bilingual programs was greeted with a loud "Ohhhhhh" from the crowd in opposition.

Velez maintained that science and mathematics are not optional, and "there is no difference in this case."

Superintendent Jesse Gomez of Harlingen said his district's student enrollment of 13,000 is 75 percent Mexican-American. He presented a school board resolution calling for state financial assistance to teach Spanish "as a second language" through the 12th grade.

Garcia said the "best way to describe bilingual education is terribly inadequate." He said it totals only $25 a year per student.

"Once you move north of the Nueces River, you're not going to find many school boards who think they need bilingual education," said Briggs.

"We need to draw the line and tell these people (the federal government) what we are going to do and what we are not going to do," he said.

Wilson to call congressional hearings into CETA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Angered over "discrimination" against an Indian tribe in his district, Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Texas, says he will call for congressional hearings early next year into scandals surrounding the Department of Labor's Comprehensive Employment and Training Act programs.

Wilson became incensed after learning that the Alabama-Coushatta Indians weren't receiving "a fair share" of federal job training funds.

Wilson said complaints from the tribe also led The Lufkin

News to begin investigating the local CETA sponsor — Indian Employment Training Service Inc. — which has led to a Department of Labor investigation into the $2 million program based in Houston.

"The DOL were apologists for their subcontractors," said Wilson referring to the treatment of the Alabama-Coushattas. "And until they went down and saw the mess on the ground, they just tried to apologize and say it wasn't that bad and it was the fault of my Indians because they couldn't fill out forms like other Indians."

Wilson said the "mess on the ground" included:

- The use of DOL funds ($368.29 a month) to lease a 1978 Cadillac Seville for the use of IETS Executive Director Ward Phelan. The agency also leased three 1978 Ford LTDs; — And the rental of "lavish" office space for IETS in Houston for $1,800 a month. Previously, the agency had paid $250 a month for their headquarters at the Alabama-Coushatta Indian Reservation near Livingston, reported the Lufkin paper.

Wilson said he called DOL officials earlier this week and asked for an investigation.

DOL spokesman Phil Mason acknowledged Thursday that a four-man team was in Texas looking into the allegations, adding that DOL policy prohibits its comment on pending investigations.

Comment came nevertheless from DOL team member Carl Earles, who said he would recommend a "100 percent audit" of IETS "to negate any doubts about the financial structure."

Leasing discussion highlights meeting

Discussion of the effects of leasing the county hospitals highlighted the Gray County Commissioners' Court meeting today at 9 a.m. in the county courtroom of the Gray County Courthouse.

Ola Covey, retired county treasurer, asked the commissioners to invite Robert Brown, director of the county's pension fund, to come to Gray County to discuss the effects of leasing the county hospitals on the retirement fund.

The county retirement fund is administered through the Texas District and County Retirement Fund.

County employees who have already retired may have their monthly payments cut, according to Covey. She asked the commissioners to fully explore the effects before making a decision on leasing the hospital.

Don Hinton, county judge, said he would contact Brown either today or Monday to invite him to discuss what will happen to the county's retirement fund if the county decided to lease the hospital.

The commissioners approved a road policy for county subdivisions.

The policy approved by the commissioners' court is the same policy that is used by Randall County.

Gene Barber, civil engineer, requested the commissioners to consider a "less severe" policy.

The policy approved requires roads to have a six-inch caliche base with a 1½-inch asphalt cover.

Commissioners stressed that the policy may be amended, and it is being used as a starting point.

In other action the commissioners:

- appointed Donald Butler as election judge for Precinct 10 and W.A. Rankin as assistant judge.
- approved the final minutes of the Board of Equalization.
- approved the 1977 audit of Gray County offices.
- paid bills as recommended by the county auditor.
- approved the county treasurer's report.
- approved eight transfers of funds as recommended by the county auditor.

News in brief

COOLER

The forecast for Pampa is fair and cooler today and fair and warmer Saturday. The high today will be in the low 60s and the low tonight will be in the upper 30s. The high Saturday will be in the upper 60s. The winds will be out of the northeast at 15-20 mph today shifting to the south at 10-15 mph Saturday.

Senate rejects sugar bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today rejected the only sugar-growers' relief bill President Carter has said he would sign, passing instead a measure that could add 6.5 cents to the retail price of a five-pound bag of sugar this winter.

The bill approved 50-22 also could add at least 45 cents more over the next four years.

The Carter-endorsed substitute, killed by a 47-25 vote, would have added 1.5 cents to the bag's cost without future escalations.

Subsidies would have been used to help growers meet production costs but those payments were specifically prohibited by the final version.

A 1977 law that raised sugar prices by about 3 cents a pound last winter already requires a 1.2-cent-a-pound hike this winter. And that means consumers will be paying at least $1.29 for a five-pound bag that cost $1.23 this summer, regardless of the outcome of pending legislation.

SPS may take over plant

CANADIAN — An offer by Southwestern Public Service Co. to take over the city-owned electric generating plant will be considered by city council here Monday night.

The $2 million lease-purchase offer was made to city officials during a special council meeting Tuesday night.

Officials of the electric utility firm said the proposed arrangement would provide a long-term solution to the city's current power dilemma.

The proposal made by SPS calls for the firm to pay the city $132,700 annually for each of the next ten years and an additional $35,000 annually from 1990 to 2007.

The lease-purchase proposal also calls for all of the current city power plant employees to join Southwestern Public Service's local force.

It was noted that if the offer to take over the generating plant is not approved by city officials, SPS will continue to maintain its emergency power service to Canadian.

Carter makes good on promise

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, making good on part of a key campaign promise, is signing into law the first major revision of the federal civil service system in this century.

A signing ceremony for the bill, passed by Congress after one of the administration's most protracted and extensive lobbying efforts, was scheduled today at the White House.

The measure:

- Makes it easier for bosses to fire rank-and-file federal workers on grounds of laziness or inefficiency.
- Allows the top 9,200 federal executives to compete for performance bonuses, if they agree to provisions that could also ease their transfer or demotion.
- Virtually ends automatic "merit" pay raises for 72,000 mid-level managers, pegging pay raises instead to performance.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

OPINION PAGE

In nation of laws, Feds inconsistent

The country has too many laws, rules and interpretations of laws and rules by the "learned" judges of the land.

But, in a nation of laws, a law is a law, and that is that.

So now comes a federal judge who ruled in Texas the other day that Texas school districts must provide free education to the children of Mexicans who are in the United States illegally.

In a specific case he ruled that the Tyler Independent School District (in East Texas) could not charge tuition to the children of illegal aliens in an effort to offset the rising cost of education. The district's policy was based on a Texas law which calls for the fees.

The judge said the illegal aliens were entitled to equal protection of the law under the U.S. Constitution and therefore were eligible for the same free education provided to the children of legal Texas residents, according to wire service reports.

One wonders why federal authorities traveling in the realm of the judge who made the decision do not seize the illegal aliens and deport them pronto. If an alien is in the United States illegally, then that is against the law — if the word "illegal" means anything.

One who observes the laws of state and federal governments finds it difficult to understand how anyone in this country illegally should receive the same benefits the home folks receive, instead of being deported. The dictionary clearly states that the word "illegal" means: "Contrary to or violating a law or rule or regulation or something else (as an established custom) having the force of law: unlawful, illicit..."

Of course all this would be irrelevant and the discussion unnecessary in the ideal society where there were no government, no laws, no judges and everyone attended to his own affairs and never infringed upon the rights of his neighbor. Ideally, too, there would not be any public schools in the first place.

But that is not the case, and it is difficult to connect educating large numbers of illegal aliens who under the system we now have should be deported. That is hard on illegal aliens, but, one thing, in this country, as we know it, the law is the law, or is it? One wonders why some must observe the same law and obey it that some judges and others turn their backs on.

One knows that behind the allowing of illegal aliens to remain in this country without being picked up for deportation is the philosophy of the President of the United States. His utterances on amnesty by the Congress in the future for them has brought this problem about.

And it is a problem, and will be one for a long, long while. For one thing, the judge's ruling is opposed to a Texas law, and many schools are going to feel the burden of the expense the judge's ruling will heap upon them.

One can see litigation, appeals, and more problems piled upon other problems as the impact of the ruling sweeps the state — and their regions.

A barrel of snakes has been opened up needlessly. It is not a pleasant matter, and this will grow more apparent in the light of the tomorrows.

The urban program

The Carter administration plans to save the cities. The price is $8.3 billion.

"I am convinced that it is in our national interest not only to save our cities and urban communities," the president explained, "but also to strengthen them and make more attractive places in which to live and work."

He is "convinced." A president arrives at such an "urban policy" via politics alone. His red-hot liberal secretary of Housing and Urban Development, Patricia Roberts Harris, who still lives in the great Society, had pushed for several billions more, as had the organized mayors. As had National Urban League President Vernon Jordan.

Jimmy Carter, however, has read the mood of the people — by whom we do not mean those voting blocs standing to gain by federal largesse — and has reckoned these are not the times for big big spending. Just big spending.

Probably the most controversial feature of the Carter plan is the establishment of a "national development bank" to provide investment subsidies for firms in distressed areas; the bank would guarantee loans (how does a bankrupt government guarantee loans?) and coordinate $550 million in new economic development grants.

However the supporters of the bank plan protest their innocence, this institution would go into competition with private banks, which the politicians have been longing, only partially successfully, to control. This formula would channel taxpayers' money into politically fashionable areas, which are almost by definition bad risks, thereby undermining the soundness of legitimate banks, that can risk capital only on promising ventures.

If any recent government program can be said to be unpromising, it is federal aid to the cities. Indeed, President Carter as much as acknowledged the abysmal history of federal urban assistance.

The president seems to think that by merely talking about it, the bitter memories — the proliferating slums, the hopeless joblessness, the swelling crime tide, and so on — can be blanked out. His urban strategy is more of the same.

By MARTHA ANGLE
and ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The reconvening of the United States Supreme Court for its 1978-79 term provides a timely occasion to examine a disturbing trend in that tribunal's most recent proclamations on the role of the news media in this country.

The court in general and Chief Justice

Warren E. Burger in particular appear well on their way to molding a new doctrine of press rights and responsibilities, based on two highly questionable theses.

The unique constitutional protection afforded to the news media, embodied in the First Amendment's guarantee of a free press, applies to the dissemination but not to the gathering of news.

Notwithstanding the apparently absolute working of the First Amendment, news-gathering organizations and the journalists in their employ merit no special status in our society.

Journalists who are true professionals have never asked for special privileges that might accrue to their benefit as individuals. They have, however, sought the freedom and protection necessary to perform an often difficult and delicate job.

That concept was succinctly articulated by Justices John Paul Stevens, William J.

Brennan Jr. and Lewis F. Powell Jr. in a dissenting opinion in one of a series of press-related cases decided by the court before it recessed last spring:

"This (First Amendment) protection is not for the private benefit of those who might qualify as representatives of the 'press' but to insure that the citizens are fully informed regarding matters of public interest and importance."

In an earlier case, a court majority described the press as "a mighty catalyst in awakening public interest in governmental affairs, exposing corruption among public officers and employees, and generally informing the citizenry of public events and occurrences."

Such "corruption among public officers" has, on numerous occasions in the past, involved both judges and law enforcement officials. The court, however, ignored those precedents when ruling earlier this year that police officers could search newsrooms after securing a judge's signature on a warrant.

In that case (Zurcher v. Stanford Daily), Justices Potter Stewart and Thurgood Marshall concluded that it was "self-evident that police searches of newspaper offices burden freedom of the press." But the court's majority brushed aside the notion of granting special protection to the press.

In a gratuitous concurring opinion in another case (First National Bank v. Bellotti) last spring, Burger insisted that the framers of the Bill of Rights never contemplated "conferring special and extraordinary privileges or status on the 'institutional press.'"

Finally, Burger wrote the majority opinion in a third case (Houchins v. KQED, Inc.) rejecting a San Francisco television station's arguments that it had a right to send reporters and camera crews into a California jail to investigate reports of prisoner abuse and mistreatment.

"The media has no special right of access to the jail different from or greater than that accorded the public generally," concluded Burger's decision.

Yet Burger's own court recognizes that reporters, acting as representatives of the public, do have special requirements. A special section of seats is set aside for journalists, and only they are allowed to take notes during oral arguments.

Special assistance in both gathering the news (copies of legal briefs and court opinions are set aside for press use) and disseminating information (in the form of typewriters, telephones and work space) is provided to journalists by the Supreme Court.

Those arrangements are essential if the public is to be rapidly and efficiently informed about the work of the court — but Burger and his colleagues refused last spring to apply the same realistic standards in their opinions.

The continuation of that trend during the court's new term can only impede the free flow of information to the public.

A disturbing trend

"Wake up, Harry, it's London!"

The burden of handouts

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

While every effort should be made to limit state and local taxes, an equally strong effort must be made to limit public expenditures. Unless there is a limitation on expenditures, especially at the federal level, tax limitation at the state and local levels won't achieve its goal.

The First Chicago World Report, published by the First Chicago Corporation, touched on this truth in its July-August issue.

The publication stated: "The drive for tax limitation is not a product of unreasonable expectations or severe money illusion, but an understandable reaction to a tax burden that has indeed risen very rapidly."

The strongest battles are, however, being waged at the wrong level of government and the least onerous form of taxation. The biggest tax increases have not been in local property taxes, but in federal payroll taxes, state individual and corporate income taxes, and the tax on money that we call inflation.

It follows that the first object of limitation should be federal taxes, coupled with comparable attention to the spending side of the budget where the real burden ultimately lies.

The First Chicago World Report sheds considerable light on the burdensome federal expenditures. It notes, for example, that there has been "enormous growth of in-kind subsidies" such as food stamps, Medicaid and housing allowances. These make up a large part of federal transfer payments from the middle class to the dependent elements in American society.

The Report also reveals that from 1965 to 1977 government wages and salaries rose 187 per cent, government transfer payments to individuals (handouts) rose 417 per cent, and the remaining private sources of income rose only 162 per cent.

The Report concluded: "Workers in the private sector, who produce most marketable goods and services, are clearly supporting larger numbers of (or larger payments to) those who either work for the government or receive cash or in-kind income from the government."

This is the situation that produces discontent within the private sector. Indeed there would be much more discontent if the productive majority understood the full range of goodies and benefits made available to government employees.

Servicemen, for instance, receive good salaries these days, but they still get commissary privileges, including low-cost food and liquor. The space-available vacation flights for service families and retired personnel constitute a scandalous abuse of public generosity. Even mention this subject, and a huge howl of protest arises.

The taxpaying public, however, will have to be very tough-minded if expenditure limitation is to be achieved. It will be necessary to take away free services from all sorts of people who have been enjoying them at taxpayer expense for years.

Your money's worth

IRA plans more attractive than ever

(Third of 10 columns)

Starting in '79 — only 80 days from now — some provisions of the new tax law will make retirement plans better than ever. Thus, right now could be the ideal time for you to take advantage of your own personal tax shelter to provide for your own future security.

Millions of you are not covered by company pension and profit-sharing plans, Keogh government plans, etc. For you, an Individual Retirement Account (IRA) is a bonanza, for you can contribute up to the lesser of $1,500 or 15 percent of your earned income to an IRA and get a current tax deduction for the contribution. In effect, you're getting a deduction for adding to your savings.

On top of this, whatever is contributed to your IRA grows 100 percent tax-free. Each year you have more tax-free dollars earning more tax-free dollars. The money your IRA earns isn't diluted by the tax collector; you have a free and clear compounding of every penny in the account until you retire — and not a penny is taxed until then, when presumably you will be in a lower tax bracket than you are today.

But what about the commonplace situation where one spouse does not hold a job but spends many hours taking care of the house?

It is now permissible to set aside retirement savings for the benefit of a spouse who does not work outside the home. If you're eligible to deduct IRA contributions, you can contribute up to $1,750 — an extra $250. You can contribute up to $875 for your own IRA account and up to $875 to a separate IRA for your spouse. The total deduction is limited to 15 percent of compensation and can't exceed twice the smaller of your contributions.

How do you set up an IRA? It's simple, easy, quick — and a financial institution can handle it for you. In the meantime, here are Prentice-Hall's answers to questions you ask most frequently:

Q My spouse works part-time and makes just a few dollars a year. That's the only work she does outside the home. Does this mean I cannot set up an IRA in her behalf?

A That's exactly what it means. If she makes one penny of earned income, you can't set up a spousal IRA.

But you may be in line for an even bigger write-off, for assuming she doesn't become a member of a company retirement plan, she can contribute up to 15 percent of her earned income, or $1,500, whichever is less, to a regular IRA. So if you both contribute to regular IRAs, it's possible to deduct up to $3,000 on a joint return.

Q My spouse doesn't have any earned income but she gets a lot of income from interest and dividends. Can I set up an IRA for her?

A You certainly can. There's no restriction on the amount of investment income she can receive.

Q Suppose I set up an IRA in my spouse's behalf this year and she gets a job in '79. What happens to the spousal IRA?

A No problem. You and your spouse can convert your spousal IRAs into regular IRAs. The tax law says the same IRA can be a spousal IRA one year and a regular IRA the next.

Q What happens to my spouse's IRA if she gets a job with a company that has a retirement plan and she becomes a member?

A Your spouse's IRA becomes, in effect, a frozen trust. The account balance will be held in abeyance for later distribution according to the account's terms.

Q Once I set up an IRA, am I committed to annual payments?

A No. If you don't want to contribute in a given year, you can skip that year. It's up to you. But contributions that aren't made can't be made up in a later year.

The important new tax break for taxpayers with Keogh plans and Individual Retirement Accounts is:

You can now make cash contributions after the close of the year and deduct the contribution in the current year.

Payoff: you not only have extra time to figure out your contribution, but also have the use of your money that much longer.

IRA: you have 45 days after the end of the year to make a deductible contribution on your prior year's return. Specifically, you can make your cash contribution on or before Feb. 14, 1979, and deduct this on your '78 return. If you haven't set up an IRA by the end of '78, you can both set up one and contribute to it through Feb. 14 and take a deduction on your 1978 return.

Because of the new law, that deduction will be worth more in 1978 than in 1979.

Tomorrow: If you support a parent in a rest home.

Today is Friday, Oct. 13, the 286th day of 1978. There are 79 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1755, the Continental Congress in Philadelphia ordered the construction of a naval fleet. It was the beginning of the U.S. Navy.

On this date:

In 1792, George Washington dedicated the cornerstone of the executive mansion in Washington.

In 1845, Texas ratified the U.S. Constitution.

In 1860, the first aerial photograph in the U.S. was taken from a balloon over Boston.

In 1943, a coastal storm claimed 46 lives in northern California and the Pacific Northwest.

In 1969, the Soviets had seven cosmonauts in orbit in three spacecraft.

In 1975, President Gerald Ford signed a congressional resolution providing for 200 American civilians to man monitoring stations in a buffer zone between Israel and Egypt.

Ten years ago: Panama's new military ruler, Col. Jose Pinilla, swore in a new cabinet of civilians.

Five years ago: Israel tank forces continued a drive into Syria, and Jordan joined the Middle East war as the fourth Arab combatant against the Israelis.

One year ago: U.S. Defense Secretary Harold Brown and Yugoslav military officials meeting in Belgrade agreed to expanded defense ties between the United States and Yugoslavia.

Today's birthdays: British political leader Margaret Thatcher is 53 years old. Playwright Frank Gilroy also is 53. Former film star Laraine Day is 58.

Thought for today: Individuals may form communities, but it is institutions alone that create a nation — Benjamin Disraeli, British prime minister, 1804-1881.

Bill may link Lubbock, Houston

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate-House conference committee members were optimistic today that a highway and mass transit compromise that includes an interstate link between Houston and Lubbock would be approved by the Congress and President Carter.

The so-called "Port to Plains" roadway would tie Interstate 27 with Interstate 10, which stretches from Houston to El Paso by way of San Antonio.

Negotiators worked on the differences between a $60.9 billion House bill and the $51.2 billion Senate version. They came up with a figure of $53.8 billion, still a tidy sum more than the $48.5 billion called for in Carter's budget.

Both Texans on the conference committee — Democrat Sen. Lloyd Bentsen and Rep. Ray Roberts of McKinney, also a Democrat — predicted the compromise would be to the liking of both the president and Congress.

"The people of West Texas have fought for the 'Port-to-Plains' highway for along time," said Bentsen, who chaired the Senate conferees. "The highway bill designates it as a demonstration project for a new connector primary highway program I have proposed...intended to fill in some of the gaps left by our interstate system."

A second "connector primary" highway linking Interstate 40 in Amarillo with Interstate 10 in Las Cruces, N.M., was also approved.

The estimated cost of each four-lane, limited access highway was not immediately available because the state must decide the route of the new roads and choose between two types of federal financing.

One plan calls for the federal government to pay for 90 percent of the project if Texas chooses to provide the remaining 10 percent from its primary highway fund. The alternative allows the state to compete for a maximum of 75 percent federal share from a new Priority Program fund under the Department of Transportation.

Bentsen, however, noted that the Amarillo to Las Cruces highway will "be approximately 480 miles long and will generally follow U.S. highways 60 and 70."

The compromise also continues funding for railroad relocation projects in Brownsville and Greenville.

The Brownsville project calls for moving the Southern Pacific and Missouri Pacific railyards from downtown Brownsville to the Port of Brownsville. More than $1.2 million has already been spent on the project for engineering. The total cost is estimated at $24.4 million.

The Greenville relocation requires construction of an overpass to alleviate the problems at a railroad crossing that blocks access to a hospital. More than $4 million was allocated for the relocation, which has already cost about $200,000.

The federal government will pick up 95 percent of the relocation costs for both rail projects, with the railroads affected making up the difference.

The negotiators also approved a demonstration rural transportation project for the Sherman-Denison area.

Modern farmers no longer warm up by old wood stove

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — In the old days, cotton farmers might gather around an old woodstove to talk about the market at the end of a hard day's work in the fields.

Nowadays, farmers in Texas and Oklahoma gather around the oil' video display terminal as they cotton up to the workings of a computer.

The computer links 150 cotton gins to 40 buyer offices in Dallas, Lubbock and Memphis, Tenn. The computer and its satellite screens allow farmers to offer their product to all 40 buyers at once, meaning a more stable market.

In past years, such offerings were made by telephone only to three or four buyers, and prices varied widely.

"For the first time, both buyers and sellers know what cotton is trading for at any moment," said C.L. Boggs, general manager of the Plains Cotton Cooperative Association (PCCA) in Lubbock.

"In the past you could always pick up a newspaper and see what cotton did yesterday," Boggs said. "Now by looking at the terminal a buyer or seller can tell what it traded for 30 seconds ago."

Included in the computer network is an up-to-the-minute recap of the number of bales being sold and the prices they're bringing.

The PCCA is one of four major cotton cooperatives in the nation, and operates the computer network for its 20,000 cotton-producing members.

When producers put their cotton up for sale, buyers have 15 minutes to enter a bid. The computer selects the highest bid and awards the sale. If two high bids are identical, the computer will award the sale to the first bid made.

Boggs said trading over the computer network went over the 1 million bale mark, best in the operation's history.

Jury rules against Pampa couple

A 223rd District Court jury ruled Wednesday that Cliff and Freda Martin conveyed property to Jerry Don and Alice Lorraine Garmon "with intent to hinder, delay or defraud Pampa Chrysler - Dodge Inc." in collecting $21,421.08 from the sale of two Dodge dump trucks.

Cliff Martin purchased the two trucks from Pampa Chrysler - Dodge in November 1976 with a loan from First National Bank of Pampa, according to testimony in the civil case. He returned one truck after one month and the other truck after three months, he said.

Martin received notice on May 17, 1977 that he had failed to comply with the written terms of the contract with First National Bank of Pampa and Pampa Chrysler - Dodge, according to the plaintiff's complaint.

The following day the Martins conveyed property they owned to the Garmons, according to the complaint. Alice Garmon is the Martins' daughter.

The Martins had been renting out the property for approximately $160 per month, according to testimony. The Garmons continued to rent out the property and assumed the mortgage on the property.

The jury found that the Martins had not been paid for the property by the Garmons.

The jury also found the property had been conveyed to the Garmons so it would be protected from having a lien placed on it.

ATLANTA (AP) — Daredevil Evel Knievel is in an Atlanta hospital for minor surgery to drain an abscess from his right heel, a hospital spokesman said.

"We don't expect complications," said spokesman Ron Wolff of Northside Hospital. He said Knievel was expected to be hospitalized for two or three days.

Knievel entered the hospital after the heel infection flared up during a visit to Atlanta, Wolff said.

Texans cough up money for health

DALLAS (AP) — Increasing thousands of Texans huff, puff and cough up hundreds of dollars apiece each year to trim their waistlines — and their pocketbooks — at health spas and other "fat farms."

To the uninitiated, the health club's rows of alien, vinyl-cushioned machines with their weights, cables and pulleys look like a chrome-plated relic of the Spanish Inquisition.

But health club patrons insist the exercise room is what it's all about. There before mirrored walls that reward the faithful and prod those of considerable girth, patrons under the guiding eye of trained supervisors can work off the fruits of a mis-spent life.

Inside air conditioned, often plush surroundings patrons can lift weights, run, perspire in a sauna, plunge into an icy pool or simply relax in the eucalyptus-scented atmosphere of a whirlpool bath.

"I come here because I wouldn't exercise at home," said Mike B., an ex-paratrooper and retired Dallas broadcast engineer whose condition belies his almost 70 years.

Curling 25-pound dumbbells in each hand as he spoke, Mike said to get in shape and meet new people with similar interests is worth the $360 he paid for his membership.

He joined seven years after he had surgery to correct a heart condition. And he credits the club with improving the quality of his life. "Maybe I'll die just a little more comfortably," said Mike. One health spa owner says doctors have been telling patients for years to eat right and exercise more and "that message is finally getting over."

Sonny Resor, part owner of 12 Dallas-Fort Worth area health clubs, denies there has been any growth spurt in the industry.

"I've been in the business for 13 years and during that time there has been steady growth," said Resor, who contends growth is in direct proportion to the population.

"What we are seeing" said Resor, "is more customers keeping their memberships. It is stylish to be in shape."

"I started at first because I needed the exercise," said Mary Studer, a Dallas hairstylist. "But now I come because it's fun."

Cabot names new controller

John A. Wheeler

Victor P. Raymond, Vice President of Cabot Corporation and General Manager of Machinery Division announced the appointment of John A. Wheeler to the position of Controller of Machinery Division.

Wheeler has been with Cabot Corporation for seventeen years and for the past several years has served in the Corporate Controller's Department as Senior Financial Analyst for the Engineered Products Group.

Wheeler replaces Thurman Brown, who has accepted the position of Controller at Cabot's newest acquisition, Kaweck - Berylco Industries, Inc., headquartered in Reading, Pennsylvania.

Wheeler, his wife, Eloise, and their four children have recently moved to Pampa.

Frames and stamps on display during exhibit by stamp club

More than 100 frames of exhibits and some 15 stamp dealers are planned for AM-PEX '78, the fourth annual exhibition and bourse of the Amarillo Golden Spread Stamp Club.

The two day event, Saturday and Sunday is being held at the Quality Inn, 2915 Interstate 40 East, Amarillo, Texas.

The theme of the show is the centennial of the Butterfield Stage in the Panhandle of Texas. The stamp club's souvenir program contains much interesting postal history and stories about life in the Panhandle 100 years ago.

The U.S. Postal Service will have a booth with many of the late regular issue and commemoratives for sale and has provided a commemorative pictorial postmark which will be used on envelopes mailed at the show. The United Nations Postal Administration will display that agency's postal material.

Among the interesting exhibits are those showing letters carried by stage coach, Spanish American War letters and "Tonga Tin Can Mail" — letters dropped in tin cans by ships to float to the shoreline of the island of Tonga in the South Pacific.

The public is invited to attend this free show at the Quality Inn Saturday, October 14 from 10 A.M. to 10 P.M. and Sunday, October 15 from 10 A.M. to 5 P.M.

BILL CLEMENTS WILL CUT TAXES AND GOVERNMENT SPENDING

Texas was built by men with the vision to look ahead and the grit to get things done. Bill Clements is the man to keep this tradition alive for the future of Texas.

Bill Clements will bring a strong, fresh and tough approach to our government in Austin. He is a businessman, not a politician. Bill Clements started with nothing and built a successful, worldwide company with hard work and the skill to manage men and money. And now Bill Clements wants to preserve the future of our state and he wants the working people of Texas to have the same opportunities he had.

With his proposed "Taxpayers' Bill of Rights," Bill Clements is committed to protecting Texans from excessive taxation and runaway government spending. He is pledged to cutting taxes and returning that money directly to the taxpayers.

As former Chairman of the Southern Methodist University Board of Governors, Bill Clements knows how to make education in Texas the best in the Nation. He's for discipline in the classroom and "back to basics" quality education.

As the son and grandson of farmers, Bill Clements knows the frustrations that an indifferent government can cause people who make their living off the land. He will use the strength of the State Government to fight burdensome Federal restrictions.

"I believe that Texas has always had more promise than problems, but the balance is more delicate each year. We need to get to work now."

Mugabe tells U.S. to butt out

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
 Associated Press Writer
 SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Black guerrilla chief Robert Mugabe has told America to butt out of Rhodesian peace efforts, and Prime Minister Ian Smith says he opposes U.S. "preconditions" for talks.

Their positions, announced half a world apart Thursday, dampened U.S. and British efforts to get the communist-backed guerrillas to the negotiating table with Rhodesia's transition government.

"It is within our rights to demand that states who have no legal right or interest in the Rhodesian constitutional situation ought not to have any presence at any future constitutional conferences dealing with the matter. We now name the United States as one state which must never attend," Mugabe said in a statement from the Mozambique capital of Maputo.

Mugabe was incensed that the State Department had granted Smith a visa to visit the United States and said by doing so that Washington "exceeded its jurisdiction as mediator."

He also accused Washington of "supplying arms, money and technology to Rhodesia" and mercenaries as well, but he offered no evidence. An estimated 400 Americans are reported fighting in Rhodesia as members of the army but without U.S. government approval.

Mugabe and fellow guerrilla chief Joshua Nkomo head the Patriotic Front, which has been fighting a six-year bush war against Smith's government.

Witness, defense attorney clash during Davis hearing

HOUSTON (AP) — The key prosecution witness and the chief defense attorney verbally clashed several times during pretrial testimony in the Cullen Davis case Thursday.

And State District Court Judge Wallace Moore warned, "put in the record these two men don't like each other and I will have no more of this."

David McCrory, an FBI informant, and Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, the defense attorney, warred all day with first one and then the other tossing a verbal spear.

Haynes asked McCrory where he had gone on a day late in August, and the witness answered, "I stopped at a store and bought a six-pack of beer, your favorite brand, Mr. Haynes."

The attorney leaped to his feet and said to the judge, "How does he know my favorite brand, if I have one? I resent that answer."

Earlier Haynes told McCrory that if he failed to understand a question "say so and I will re-phrase."

Then when Haynes said he didn't understand an answer from the witness, McCrory said, "Mr. Haynes if you fail to understand an answer, say so and I will re-phrase it."

Testifying under tight security with U.S. Marshal T.R. Coney of Houston always nearby, McCrory said his life had been threatened, he was afraid of being killed and had asked for federal protection.

The chain-smoking McCrory said he was now under the federal witness protection act, which gives him security and $950 a month in government money to pay for rent and food until his part in the Davis trial is over.

Davis is accused of soliciting the murder of Fort Worth Judge Joe Eidson, who had presided during most of the lengthy divorce proceedings between the defendant and his estranges wife, Priscilla.

Eidson later removed himself from the case.

McCrory testified Cullen Davis wanted Eidson killed and "I suggested to federal officers we get a picture of the judge and some identification to take to Cullen Davis so he would believe the judge had been killed."

A picture was made of Eidson posed as if dead in the trunk of a car.

McCrory said, "Eidson is who Cullen wanted killed, and he wanted about 15 persons killed."

Haynes asked McCrory, who once worked for a firm owned by the Davis financial empire, if he had ever told anyone he had been offered money to turn against his former boss.

McCrory answered, in a loud and angry voice, "No sir, I didn't tell anyone such a thing and if you (Haynes) got someone to say that, it is a lie."

McCrory also said Cullen Davis once told him he wanted his brother, Bill Davis, killed.

"He told me to find someone to kidnap his brother and take him to another state where he did some scuba diving and make it look like he drowned," McCrory said.

Asked why he had gone to federal law enforcement officers, McCrory said, "I just didn't want to be mixed up in the planning of a murder. The officers said that in all likelihood I wouldn't be prosecuted because I came forward."

McCrory refused to answer questions concerning his place of residence and said he had been advised by U.S. marshals that he did not have to reply to such queries.

"In fact," McCrory said, "I don't know why they allow you to even ask these questions. There are certain things about the program (the federal witness protection act) that I can't discuss with anyone."

Defense attorneys have gone through four days of pretrial hearings in an attempt to get judicial approval of some 90 motions, most of them aimed at obtaining the release of evidence prepared by the prosecution.

The trial was moved here from Fort Worth on a change of venue.

Friggaphobics Beware

If you happen to be a triskaidekaphobe or a Friggaphobic, today is a day to be careful. Friggaphobics don't like Fridays. Triskaidekaphobes fear the number 13. According to the National Geographic Society, humans have been battling these fears for centuries. Some standard methods of protection on Friday the 13th include winking at white horses, refusing to eat bananas with ketchup, whistling while passing cemeteries, and tipping your hat to lop-eared dogs. Friday the 13th superstitions even made their way into America's national pastime. Whenever Babe Ruth ran to the outfield during any game on Friday the 13th, he always touched first base for good luck.

Remember the magic of Halloween

Remember the magic of a childhood Halloween?

Essential ingredients included parties, sweets, and the pleasure of pretending, for just one night, to be someone else — be it hobo or fairy princess. And if you were mischievous, you may have planned some pranks as well.

A UNICEF Halloween can't offer pranks, thank goodness, but it provides all the fun and magic of a traditional Halloween and more.

To the adults who contribute and to the small Trick or Treaters who visit countless homes in their quest for coins and folding money, benefits include deep satisfaction and the pride of a job well done.

And to millions of the world's poorest children helped by UNICEF, the benefits range from better education to survival itself.

October 31 is National UNICEF Day by presidential proclamation, and October 29 is Pampa's UNICEF Day — a day for remembering the children of Asia, Africa, and Latin America. And those coins for UNICEF can go a long way. Just 5 cents provides vaccine to protect a child against polio.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I was the houseguest recently of a sorority sister in another state. Her father is a very handsome, gray-haired man with a lovely smile and a charming personality. While I was there, he told me that he travels a lot for business reasons, and would really enjoy meeting me—alone—sometimes. At first I thought he was joking, but I soon realized by other things he said and did that he meant it. I just laughed, pretending not to take him seriously, and stayed away from him as much as possible.

Now that I am back at college he has called me a few times wanting to know when we can arrange a meeting. What should I do? I am 20, and don't want to get involved with an old married man. He says he admires my mature mind and he wouldn't do anything I didn't want to do. Please help me. PROBLEM IN PITTSBURGH

DEAR PROBLEM: If he calls you again, tell him that your mature mind is made up, you don't want to meet him anywhere, and if he ever calls again, you will tell your parents and his daughter. That should cool him off!

DEAR ABBY: There is a girl at our school who says she can't go to any of the school dances because it is against her religion. I think that is just about the dumbest thing I have ever heard.

I have told this to some other kids and they agreed that it must be a very stupid religion that won't let their people dance. I can't understand a religion like that, can you? LOVES TO DANCE

DEAR LOVES: Some religions do disapprove of dancing. But it isn't necessary to understand the other person's religion—just respect it.

DEAR ABBY: I am supposed to be married right after Christmas, but I'm not sure I can go through with it. My fiance, whom I'll call Gene, introduced me to Jack (also a made-up name) who will be the best man at our wedding. You guessed it, Abby. The more I see of Jack, the more I like him.

Abby, I'm so mixed up I need some good sound advice from a wise outsider. Should I hope this thing with Jack will pass? Or should I break off with Gene? I could never tell Gene the real reason, but I get the shakes thinking about marrying one man and feeling so strongly attracted to another. HARRISBURG HASSLE

DEAR HARRISBURG: A girl could be making the mistake of her life to marry a man while she feels strongly attracted to another. This attraction is a clear warning signal that means you aren't ready for marriage yet.

Tell Gene you want to think about marriage a while longer. And keep thinking about it until NOBODY looks as good to you as the man you're going to marry.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Ask Dr. Lamb

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to know about penicilliamine which is used in the treatment of rheumatoid arthritis. Many patients in my area are interested in this drug, particularly since we have read glowing reports about it in newspapers. Is it really a miracle drug in curing rheumatoid arthritis?

DEAR READER — Judging from some reports, you would think there was a new cure invented for some of our long-term diseases almost every month. I am afraid this is more sensationalism than science. The news stories in reference to penicilliamine in some papers is a classic example of this problem.

Penicilliamine is a good medicine. As the Arthritis Foundation has pointed out, it is not a miracle drug to cure all cases of rheumatoid arthritis. In fact, it can cause a list of complications as long as your arm. Some of these complications are worse than rheumatoid arthritis.

It can affect blood elements leading to bleeding, cause kidney problems and other disorders. No one should be on this medicine without being carefully followed by his physician.

Penicilliamine was pioneered by Dr. Israeli Jaffe. The use of the medicine for treatment of rheumatoid arthritis has not been approved by the Food and Drug Administration at this writing. Dr. Jaffe felt that some of the newspaper stories that overstated the case for penicilliamine in treating rheumatoid arthritis was really a "cruel disservice to arthritis sufferers."

The medicine is reserved for those cases of long-standing, recurrent attacks of severe rheumatoid arthritis that have not been effectively controlled with other measures.

In some patients, who do not develop any complications from the penicilliamine treatment, it has proved to be an important addition to their medical-management program. In short, it is a very useful medicine in a small number of selected cases of the much larger number of people who have rheumatoid arthritis.

To give you more information about rheumatoid arthritis, I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-11. Other readers who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1561, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 16 years old and jog three or four times a week, but I seem to be breathing harder than I should when I jog. I was wondering if it is because my father smokes heavily and I breathe the smoke from his cigarettes?

DEAR READER — You can get harmful effects from second-hand smoke. Perhaps one of the best examples is if people smoke heavily in a closed room. In the course of time, the carbon-monoxide level can build up to levels higher than allowed in industrial environments. There is no way I can tell whether your father's smoking pollutes the air in your house enough to cause you a significant problem. I would be inclined to doubt it, no matter how irritating the smoke may be to you. Of course, if the house is closed up, and he smokes an awful lot, then you might have a point.

More than likely, you're jogging too fast. A proper jog is done at a speed which doesn't cause a person to become breathless. If you can't talk comfortably while you are jogging, you are jogging too fast. The purpose of jogging is to cover distance, not speed. It's usually just as good for the body to jog three miles slowly as it is to jog it a little faster.

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — I have used many cleansers on our white metal kitchen cupboards but they still have a yellow film. Even scouring powders will not remove the yellow. I would like to know how some of the readers have solved this problem.

My Pet Peeve is an old but very annoying one. It is with pet owners who let their pets run wild in the neighboring yards. Also there are those dogs that are tied outside for 24 hours every day and then bark at their own shadows. This is quite annoying at 3 a.m. — SUE

DEAR SUE — I am sure we will be hearing from readers concerning the yellow on your kitchen cabinets but in the meantime you might sprinkle dry baking soda on a damp sponge. This will remove many discolorations. Wipe off with a clean moist sponge and buff dry. — POLLY

Spanish onions are worth stuffing

STUFFED ONIONS - made with the Spanish variety they're both attractive and delicious.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

Associated Press Food Editor

When you want to serve a new vegetable dish for a company dinner, you may be interested in trying this recipe for stuffed onion halves. It's made with the sweet, mild-flavored Spanish variety of onion — widely available from fall to spring — and the stuffed halves are both attractive and delicious. A lovely accompaniment for chicken or fish that has been baked or broiled in simple fashion. Good, too, with turkey roasted minus stuffing. Wonderful, if you are splurging, with steak or chops.

STUFFED ONIONS

3 medium (about 1 1/4 pounds) Spanish onions, each about 3 inches across
Salt
1 1/2 cups fine fresh bread crumbs
2 tablespoons minced parsley
1 clove garlic, minced
1/4 teaspoon oregano

Sauerbrauten is a hearty meal

SAVORY SAUERBRATEN MAKES A HEARTY MEAL

Let your thoughts drift back to the kitchens of old Germany and visualize steaming tureens of soup, a well-stocked larder of sausages hanging from the rafters, fruit-filled kuchen baking in the oven and traditional "sweet-sour" main dishes marinating to rise to full flavor.

The "sweet-sour" combination entree is very typical of German Cookery with Sauerbraten being the best known. The word actually means "sour roast" with the beef marinated and cooked in a vinegar mixture.

Our version of this German-inspired meal uses an oven cooking bag to ease preparation and save cleanup. Beef gravy, a sweet 'n sour mix, vinegar and ginger are combined in the bag and then beef cubes are added and coated well with the gravy mixture. This QUICK 'N EASY GERMAN SAUERBRATEN stays juicy and tender in the oven bag, and if desired, the recipe can be prepared ahead and refrigerated until dinner time. Another plus — it can be cooked in either a conventional or microwave oven. How convenient to have a choice!

Accompany the sauerbraten with spaetzle (German noodles), fresh warm slices of pumpernickle bread and a stein of cold, frothy beer. What a treat!

QUICK 'N EASY GERMAN SAUERBRATEN

1 can (15 oz.) beef gravy

1 package (2 oz.) sweet 'n sour sauce mix
1/4 cup vinegar
1/4 teaspoon ginger
2 pounds beef chuck, cut in 1-inch cubes

Conventional Oven: Preheat oven to 350°F. Combine beef gravy, sauce mix, vinegar and ginger in regular size (10" x 16") Brown-In-Bag; place in 12 x 8 x 2-inch baking dish. Add beef cubes, turning bag to coat with gravy; distribute beef cubes in single layer for cooking. Close bag with twist tie; make 6 half-inch slits in top. Bake 1 1/2 hours or until tender.

Microwave Oven: Follow directions above except close bag with rubber band, string or 1/2-inch strip cut from open end of bag; make 6 half-inch slits in top. Micro-cook 23 to 25

BULGUR WITH PEAS
Nourishing, satisfying, delicious!
2 cups boiling water
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup medium bulgur
10-ounce package frozen tiny green peas
3 tablespoons butter, soft
In a 2-quart saucepan bring the water and salt to a boil; add the bulgur and stir well. Simmer, covered, until soft — about 15 minutes. Let stand off heat about 10 minutes; the water should be absorbed, but if it isn't, drain. Meanwhile cook the peas according to package directions; fold into the bulgur with the butter. Makes 4 to 6 main-dish servings.

SHIRLEY JUNGBLUTH RETURNS TO PAMPA FOR FINE ARTS FAIR

Shirley Jungbluth, former resident and teacher at P.H.S., will again show handmade southwestern jewelry at the Arts and Crafts Festival. She carries a quality line of sterling and turquoise and other precious and semi-precious stones and metals. There has been added to the already extensive line, a new collection of gold-filled Indian jewelry. It is beautiful.

Please drop by the booth to visit with Mrs. Jungbluth and perhaps do your Christmas shopping with someone you know and trust to have quality and very low prices.

Most often asked Questions On Nutrition
BY: KATRINA BIGHAM

Q. Can you get too much vitamin A? If so, how much is too much?

A. Leading nutritionists seem to agree that vitamin A taken in amounts greater than 50,000 units daily can be toxic if continued for a long period. Vitamin A is a fat-soluble vitamin and therefore tends to be stored in the body (thus the possibility of toxicity). The most desirable vitamin A supplement appears to be fish liver oils. The correct dosage seems to vary widely with the individual and vitamin E doubles the curative effect of A. Dr. Roger J. Williams says there is no way of knowing what your own vitamin A needs are except by experimentation and observation. However, Dr. Henry C. Sherman recommends 20,000 units as a daily routine dosage and Adelle Davis suggests 25,000 units. Benefits of vitamin A can range from more vigor to better vision, clearer skin, healthier hair, protection against and faster relief from colds and a good-to-be-alive feeling.

Vitamin A should be taken with meals containing some fat. Doses of this vitamin are also more effective if taken in small amounts twice or three times daily rather than at one time.

THE SINGING ALLEY FAMILY of Tulsa, Oklahoma, will be in concert Sunday at 11:00 AM at the Calvary Assembly, corner of Crawford and Love streets. Paster M. David Powers invites everyone to attend this special service.

Central Baptist Church to begin revival services

Central Baptist Church will be in revival services beginning Sunday evening, October 15.

Dr. Joel Gregory, Pastor of the Gambrell Street Baptist Church in Fort Worth, will be the preacher for the week and Rev. Jason Luck, Minister of Music and Youth at Central, will lead the music.

Educated at Baylor University and Southwestern Seminary, Dr. Gregory is a popular speaker at Pastor-Layman's Conferences and leads January Bible Study Conferences.

He is also a materials writer for the Baptist Sunday School and is presently the Vice President of the Tarrant Baptist Association Pastors' Conference.

Revival services will begin at 7:00 P.M. on Sunday evening and at 7:30 P.M. Monday through Friday.

There will be a special emphasis for each evening: Monday night is Sunday School night; Tuesday night is Youth night; Wednesday night is Family night & Thursday night is Children's night.

On Friday evening there will be a "Pie Supper" fellowship after the evening service. A nursery will be provided at all services.

Lutheran Brotherhood offers management class

Do you have a will? Have you planned your estate? How do you get credit? What kind of life insurance should I buy? What is my debt load and limit? How can I make my income reach?

These and many other important questions will be dealt with in the Christian Money Management Course to be offered at Zion Lutheran Church, 1200 Duncan, beginning October 22nd.

The four week course will meet each Sunday at 5:00 on October 22nd, 29th and November 5th and 12th, in the Parish Hall.

A light "carry in" sandwiches and chips supper will be shared at the break. The course is free of charge and members of the community are invited and welcome to participate.

A packet of helpful materials prepared and paid for by Lutheran Brotherhood Benevolent Insurance Co. will be provided.

According to Rev. Timothy Koenig, Pastor of Zion, "This is a real opportunity to meet some practical needs in our concern for the best and wisest use of all our material blessings."

Further information about the course may be obtained by calling 669-2774 or 669-7845.

Carter family to hold revival

The Jimmy Carter Family will be in revival services at Bethel Assembly of God, Hamilton and Worrell Streets, October 18 through 29, according to the Rev. Paul DeWolfe, pastor.

The Carters have traveled extensively across the United States for 8 1/2 years.

The entire family will be singing each night. You will especially enjoy the two boys Todd II, and Tim B, as they sing. This family is blessed with an exciting ministry in song and the preaching of God's Word that will excite you as you listen.

Jimmy Carter has been preaching since he was sixteen and your heart will be stirred by the Word of God as he ministers each night.

If you are having difficulty in your home and family you will be encouraged as you view and hear the unity God has given this family.

You are urged to come and hear this family and their timely messages in song and word.

Services are scheduled for 7:30 P.M. nightly Monday through Friday; Sunday at 9:45 and 11:00 A.M.; 7:00 P.M.

WITH

Our fears seem as big and as terrible as this alligator sometimes, don't they? Fear about this thing and that can paralyze us and prevent us from doing our daily work.

Many of our fears are real. A great many of our fears, however, are unfounded — a result of thinking and worrying about ourselves. Sir John Denham phrased it this way:

"My fears are causeless and ungrounded, Fantastic dreams and melancholy fumes."

There is only one thing that will dispel fear of this type. We must do something to get out of ourselves. That means loving and helping others.

The Bible puts it so well in I John 4:18. "There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear; because fear hath torment. He that feareth is not made perfect in love."

The Church is God's Agency designed to help you. We invite you to attend this week.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Will inherit religious empire

Church of God has new crown prince

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Four months after the ouster of TV evangelist Garner Ted Armstrong, the troubled Worldwide Church of God has a new crown prince — a formerly Jewish lawyer-accountant who could inherit the rich religious empire of Armstrong's father.

THURSDAY

Stanley Rader, smooth-talking adviser to ailing 86-year-old church patriarch Herbert Armstrong, has emerged as victor in an apparent power struggle that pitted father against son, with Rader in the middle.

The upshot was Garner Ted's "disfellowship" last June. Rader compares the father-son schism of Herbert and Garner Ted to the biblical story of David and Absalom.

"The son wanted to destroy everything the father had built."

Now, the mustachioed 48-year-old Rader occupies Garner Ted's former office, with its views of snowcapped mountains and the church's Ambassador College complex. He travels the world with Herbert and, by his own account, has taken Garner Ted's place in his father's heart.

"Mr. Armstrong has said publicly very often that I am a son in whom he is well pleased," says Rader. "The only other one he ever said that about was Ted Armstrong."

Rader, a convert, gave up a lucrative law practice in his rise to become general counsel and treasurer of the 75,000-member church.

In a four-hour interview, he lifted the secrecy surrounding the church, speaking of Garner Ted's alleged transgressions, his own conversion, the church's wealth and his role in its future.

He wore a pure white suit and dark glasses. There was only one question he declined to answer — the exact amount of his salary.

"My salary was always a little more than Ted Armstrong's," Rader says. It is known that the son received $85,000 a year plus such perquisites as private planes and trips abroad.

The Worldwide Church's lavish spending on its leaders has been a sore point with its ministers and members. Some have quit in protest.

"We're quite wealthy," Rader says. Last year, the fundamentalist sect grossed $68 million; this year it will be closer to $78 million.

Yet, the church spends more than it gets — last year $1.2 million more — but Rader insists it goes to the church's prime mission, to spread the word of a second coming of Christ.

Most money comes in tithes from members and "co-workers," non-members who contribute, as chess star Bobby Fischer did.

Outsiders are often shocked by the level of tithing — 10 percent of a member's yearly income for the church, 10 percent for religious festivals and another 10th every third year for the church's poor.

"Members can join the church without giving any money," says Rader. "But they are taught scripturally it would be a sin not to tithe. It would be stealing from God."

"What we generally find," he adds, "is that when they stop giving they stop believing."

Rader met Herbert Armstrong in 1956 when he came to California from White Plains, N.Y., as a young lawyer and began handling church legal matters. But he did not become a church member for nearly 20 years.

"My background was Jewish, but I was not in any religion," Rader says. "It wasn't something I thought about much."

By the middle 1960s he had become close with Armstrong, he recalls. "Mr. Armstrong asked me to give up all my commitments and devote my talent, energy and time to him. In 1969 I said yes."

At that time Garner Ted was the church's star, a radio and TV evangelist who drew millions in contributions. He was handsome, silken-voiced and the same age as Stanley Rader.

Two years later, there were murmurings of adultery and gambling involving Garner Ted. Rader says Herbert secretly cast his son out of the church in 1971 but then allowed him to return.

The "problems" never went away, however, and by this year excommunication was the only solution, Rader says. "We have never admitted the adultery allegation that was widespread. But his condition was contrary to the requirements of a minister."

Worse, Rader says, when Herbert suffered a heart attack in 1977, Garner Ted tried to seize control by saying his father was senile and dying. "I think he believed his father was so sick and so weak he would never return to an active role," says Rader.

"Where Ted made his crucial mistake," he says, "was he tried to run me down in the eyes of his father and that tipped his hand."

Now, Rader is in the church, baptized "in a bathtub at the Mandarin Hotel in Hong Kong" while on a world tour. And Garner Ted is gone, seeking converts for his own Church of God International and, he says, glad to be out of his father's "fear-ridden organization."

"Mr. Rader is very clearly the victor in what was a power struggle," Garner Ted says. "He moved into my office, into my desk; his secretary sits where mine sat."

On Rader's desk is a portrait of the grandfatherly Herbert Armstrong with the inscription: "I was shooting the moon on you."

Many — including Garner Ted — think Herbert eventually will tap Rader as his successor, but Rader shrugs this off. "I don't feel that is my calling. I don't want to be a minister," Rader says, then adds: "Of course, several letters have come in recently telling me that Christ was not a minister. He was a carpenter."

Although Rader leaves the impression that a divine summons might change his mind, he insists he only wants to be the chief lieutenant. He is sure any new church leader would want him as right-hand man.

"Let me put it this way," he says. "There are no bodies buried. But if there were, I would know where they are buried."

Palo Duro Union Presbytery to meet in Pampa church

The twenty-first stated meeting of Palo Duro Union Presbytery will meet at the First Presbyterian Church in Pampa on October 15-16.

The meeting will convene with a dinner at 5:30 p.m. Sunday and will adjourn in the afternoon on Monday.

Speaker for the dinner meeting on Sunday will be Reverend Louis N. Grier, Jr. from Wakyama City, Japan.

Preaching on Monday morning will be Dr. Winston Lawson, Atlanta, Georgia.

Dr. Lawson is a staff member of the General Assembly Mission Board of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.

The Sacrament of Communion will be observed during worship.

Palo Duro Union Presbytery is in the Synod of the Sun and includes churches in fifty-eight (58) towns in the Texas

Panhandle and south to Wichita Falls and Abilene area.

The Reverend Paul D. Young is the General Presbyter of Palo Duro Union Presbytery with offices in Lubbock.

Pastor of the host church is Reverend Joseph L. Turner.

Politics disillusion Argentines

By RICHARD BOUDREAU
Associated Press Writer
LUJAN, Argentina (AP) — Young Argentines, disillusioned by the country's fratricidal politics, are turning to religion with mass expressions of faith and enthusiasm once shown for their world champion soccer team and the late political messiah Juan Peron.

The political strife has "opened our eyes and made us look beyond politics to something more transcendental, something that won't fail," says SERGIO Ruben, a young organizer of a massive march to a Lujan shrine.

A quieter resurgence of religion also is filling churches in this Roman Catholic country in the face of difficulties: replenishing seminaries and religious orders, and, according to many priests, drawing more people to counseling on marriage, first communion and other sacraments.

But the more visible upsurge of "popular religion" has been led by young Catholics who rarely attend mass, but who are flocking to pilgrimages to patron shrines, prompting the church to accept the affairs as acts of faith rather than mere secular festivals of superstition.

The biggest such procession ever held in Argentina came a fortnight ago when 800,000 young Catholics walked the 43 miles from Buenos Aires in a day and a night to thank Our Lady of Lujan, the national patron saint, for favors granted — a marriage saved, a job gained, a child's failing eye-sight restored.

The turnout for this fourth annual youth march, larger than the others combined, was a sign of the times as Argentines, coping with three-digit inflation, lingering terrorism and strict military rule, seek inner strength or outward release.

More people, about four million a year, now visit the Gothic basilica here than the casinos and beaches of Mar del Plata, Argentina's favorite resort.

Students also are leaving the universities, overcrowded grounds for pro-Peronists guerillas, to become priests. The number of seminary students, after dropping from 631 in 1960 to 343 in 1973, shot to 1,400 last year, according to church figures. Vocations to religious orders are up from 27 in 1972 to more than 200 now.

As in the rest of Latin America, fewer than 10 percent of Argentine Catholics — who number 24 million of the country's 26 million people — go to mass. But priests say attendance is rising slowly.

Cleveland teachers strike ends

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD
Associated Press Writer
CLEVELAND (AP) — A 36-day strike by Cleveland school employees has ended, but the ailing 100,000-pupil system still has plenty of problems.

Six unions representing 10,000 teaching and non-academic employees ratified a new contract Thursday by a 146-vote margin, ending the walkout that had closed schools since Sept. 7.

Non-teaching employees were to report to work today, with teachers returning Monday and most pupils directed to begin the school year on Tuesday.

Student carrying signs reading, "Let us learn," and "Back to school" were on hand as union members voted 2,358 to 2,212 to accept the new contract, reversing an earlier vote to reject it.

"We've been waiting," said Janet Brown, a 16-year-old senior whose mother is an elementary school teacher. "We can't eat and I can't learn."

The end of the strike does not, however, resolve other problems facing the Cleveland school district.

The walkout kept school officials from meeting a deadline for certifying its enrollment to the state, jeopardizing $34.5 million in state aid. Superintendent Peter Carlin said school officials would ask the Ohio General Assembly to free the funds.

The school board also is in the midst of contempt proceedings before a federal judge for allegedly defying desegregation orders.

And uncertainty continues over whether U.S. District Judge Frank Battisti, who is supervising desegregation of the city's public school system, will require the district to proceed this fall with a plan calling for limited cross-town busing and the closing of some schools.

Testimony before Battisti this week indicated the 11,000 pupils affected by the school closing plan might have to miss another 21 days of class before the plan can be implemented.

In addition, the state Controlling Board, which placed restrictions on spending by the debt-ridden school system in August, must lift the prohibitions so that the 8 percent salary increase negotiated with the unions can be honored. The board meets Monday.

Under the old contract, the starting salary of a Cleveland teacher was $9,100, while the average salary was $14,873 a year.

Students will make up days lost to the strike by giving up Christmas and spring recesses, but no Saturday classes will be necessary, Carlin said.

The contract promises an additional 6 percent raise if Cleveland voters approve an $11.1 million school tax increase in November.

Cupbearers to sing

"The Cupbearers" David Harris and Tim Taylor will be singing in both services Sunday at Lamar Full Gospel Assembly, 1200 S. Sumner.

The schedule of the services are at 10:45 a.m. and 7 p.m. Pastor Gene Allen will be ministering in both services.

His sermon topic Sunday morning will be, "What we can do when confronted with fear?" The public is invited.

There will be a nursery attendant for each service.

Russians told they can buy all the grain they want

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has been told it can buy as much U.S. grain as it wants this year and farmers have plenty to sell.

As a delegation of Soviet officials met Wednesday at the Agriculture Department to talk over prospective grain import requirements, the department's Crop Reporting Board said that based on Oct. 1 surveys the corn harvest will be about 6.82 billion bushels.

The new estimate was up 7 percent from last year's crop of 6.37 billion bushels, the previous record, and above the September forecast of almost 6.8 billion bushels. Thus, the new corn harvest plus grain already on hand is much more than USDA experts say will be needed in the coming year.

That means the Carter administration soon must make tough decisions on acreage curbs for the 1979 corn crops and other feed grains to help slow the buildup of excess grain.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland says he will submit proposals for the 1979 feed grains program to the White House this weekend and hopes to announce the plan as early as next Monday or Tuesday.

The board also said a record 1.79 billion bushels of soybeans are being produced, up from last month's estimate of more than 1.77 billion bushels and 2 percent more than the 1977 harvest of 1.72 billion, the previous record.

The total wheat crop was pegged at about 1.78 billion bushels, 12 percent less than 1977, and below the September estimate of less than 1.79 billion bushels.

But wheat stockpiles also are huge, the most since the early 1960s, and further acreage curbs have been announced for the 1979 harvest.

Assistant Secretary Dale E. Hathaway told reporters Russia was informed it could buy 15 million metric tons of wheat and corn in the third year of a purchase agreement that began Oct. 1 without further consultation between the two countries.

Hathaway and other USDA officials met during the day with a Soviet delegation headed by B.S. Gordeev, deputy minister of foreign trade.

Hathaway said he told the Russians that the United States "could make additional quantities" of grain available over the 15 million metric tons specified if Moscow wants to buy it.

A year ago USDA also informed Moscow that it could buy 15 million metric tons of grain in the year that ended Sept. 30. About 14.8 million metric tons was purchased by the Soviets.

The agreement calls for Russia to buy a minimum of six million metric tons of U.S. wheat and corn annually and up to eight million without further negotiations.

Hathaway said the Russians did not indicate how much grain over the minimum they might buy in 1978-79. However, he said they indicated they intended to abide by the pact's minimum purchase requirement.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Imports of quota-type meat in the first eight months of this year were up about 12 percent from the same period in 1977, according to the latest government figures.

Based on U.S. Customs inspections, imports of fresh, chilled and frozen beef, veal, mutton and goat meat totaled almost 919.8 million pounds against 821.2 million from January to August of last year, says the Agriculture Department.

The limit on such imports this calendar year is about 1.5 billion pounds, including a boost of 200 million pounds ordered by President Carter last spring to help cool off consumer beef prices.

Legislation is in Congress, supported by the cattle industry, that would establish a "counter-cyclical" formula for regulating the imports, which involve mostly beef used to make hamburger for American consumers.

The measure, which has passed the Senate and is waiting on action by the House, basically would allow more imported meat during times that U.S. cow slaughter — the major source of domestic hamburger — is declining and less when producers market more of their cows.

It also would limit the authority of the president to intervene in the import process, as in the case when Carter increased the foreign beef quota earlier this year. The administration opposes this feature of the bill.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said this week he doubted Congress will complete action on the measure before adjourning.

The U.S. Customs figures showed that Australia, the leading provider, accounted for about $10.8 million pounds of the eight-month import total, up 28.3 percent from a year earlier. New Zealand, second, accounted for 199 million pounds, up 6.6 percent.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A wheat group has urged Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland to initiate an export subsidy program for U.S. wheat to help offset subsidized competition by the European Community if and when the need arises.

Ray Davis, chairman of the board of Great Plains Wheat Inc., told Bergland in a letter recently that the European subsidy for exported wheat now is $120 per metric ton.

A metric ton is 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat. Thus, the community's subsidy — which makes its wheat cheaper to foreign buyers — is $3.27 a bushel.

Idaho refuge goes golden for cranes' 'spiritual'

JERRY JOHNSTON
Deseret News

GRAY'S LAKE, Idaho (AP) — Every October the Grays Lake Wildlife Refuge here thumbs its nose at all those "Keep Idaho Green" signs and goes golden.

Air and apples grow crisper, days shorten and the Grays Lake cranes go into their ritual "spiritual" before migrating.

The ritual means more than ever to wildlife researchers these days. It means a week of worry as a budding flock of endangered whooping cranes works its way to New Mexico with "adopted" sandhill crane parents.

For days, you'll find anxious officials waiting by phones like expectant fathers. And for good reason.

More than once in this century, the whooper has been thought to be extinct. In 1941, only 15 birds could be found. Since the crane is native only to North America, the federal government and the National Audubon Society took action.

The whoopers' nesting area was finally discovered near the Yukon in 1954. Canada set the site now known as Wood Buffalo National Park aside and the flock began to grow again.

Still, more had to be done. Since the whooper lays two eggs, and only one usually reaches maturity, wildlife biologists began removing the "spare" egg from the nests and incubating it.

But except for a captive flock of cranes in Laurel, Md., most attempts to turn eggs into whooping cranes failed. Until Grays Lake.

Today, the Grays Lake experiment — with its visiting scientists, television crews and curious reporters — is the most dramatic attempt to insure a future for the majestic bird, which can grow to five feet tall and live up to 60 years.

Here's how it works:

With one flock of whoopers firmly established at Wood Buffalo in Alberta, both Canadian and U.S. officials believed a "back-up" flock of whoopers should be nurtured along another migration route. That's where Grays Lake and Rod DREWEN came in.

DREWEN had heard Fred G. Bard, a Canadian naturalist, propose setting whooping crane eggs in the nests of sandhill cranes to be hatched. The idea intrigued him.

While a doctoral candidate at the University of Idaho, DREWEN found he could shuffle the sandhill eggs from one nest to another without problems. He also discovered the Grays Lake sandhill was similar in size and temperament to the whooper. In 1974, he began his experiment.

Fertile whooping crane eggs, worth a king's ransom to museums and black marketeers, were hand-carried in padded cases from Wood Buffalo and Maryland to the Idaho refuge.

To everyone's delight, the parent sandhills DREWEN had selected not only hatched the eggs, but integrated the young whoopers into the family unit. The Grays Lake project was under way.

It hasn't been easy. Many whooper chicks died. Coyotes, cold weather and wire fences took their toll. Of the 61 eggs delivered to DREWEN since 1975, only seven whoopers remain.

"We've removed 15 miles of wire fence that caused problems," DREWEN said. "Sandhill parents would take the chicks to feed and whooper young were so tall they kept walking into the strands."

"Predators are not as big a problem now either. Tentatively we should be getting eggs through 1980 and eventually hope to have a flock of 20 pairs of whoopers here."

Among DREWEN's worries, the new migration path was once the most crucial. Many feared the whooping cranes would leave their parents and veer into the Wood Buffalo flight path.

Not so. Not only have the young cranes learned to live on a sandhill's diet, they've learned their homing patterns as well.

One stop the whoopers will make en route to the Bosque del Apache Wildlife Refuge in New Mexico is the Ouray refuge near Roosevelt, Utah.

Herb Troester, the manager there, has gone out of his way to make sure the whoopers have five-star accommodations when they arrive.

"I've been burning the bulrushes and cattails off to make it more open for them," he explained. "We also began farming Ouray last year for the first time in seven years, leaving a stand of grain in the field for feed."

After Ouray, it's a short flight to the Monte Vista Refuge in Colorado, then on to New Mexico. The route is so critical to the crane's survival, that DREWEN himself makes the trip, wintering with the whoopers in the Southwest to conduct further studies.

"In New Mexico, almost 80,000 people show up during the winter to see the cranes. Many onlookers ask for each whooper by name," DREWEN said.

Some, it seems, are already mini-legends.

"Ulcers," for example, is a non-conformist crane which often strayed over geese hunting grounds. As feared, "Ulcers" joined the geese and was never seen again.

Then there is "Miracles," which has been chased by cows, trapped in fences, shot at and lost, but is still around.

DREWEN discovered that young whoopers sought each other out for friendship, and it's expected they'll do likewise

On the light side

Happy, But De-Pressed
BRYAN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Aggies have literally pressed Ron Vandiver into a corner.

So far this year, Aggies' sixth-ranked football team has defeated Kansas, Boston College, Memphis State, Texas Tech and Vandiver.

Vandiver owns the Coach's Shop and Fabric Care Center and he's been discounting men's clothing and dry cleaning at a rate equal to the points by which the Aggies out-score opponents.

Thus, the Aggies' 38-9 victory over Texas Tech Saturday meant discounts of 29 percent for the week.

Vandiver has run the discount program the past three seasons, but this year's big-ofense team proved too much. The program will end Saturday — before the Aggies clash with Houston in the Astrodome.

"We all have tired backs and our inventory is dangerously low," Vandiver said. "We quit. The Aggies are too strong."

Coffee Feud Brewing
SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — A feud is brewing between U.S. District Judge Allen Sharp and the U.S. comptroller general's office over a cup of coffee. If Sharp has his way, the issue may go to Congress.

The comptroller general ruled Sept. 20 that federal courts may not provide coffee, soft drinks or snacks free to jurors because such refreshments "are in the nature of entertainment."

Sharp has now written Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., and Chief Justice Warren Burger for help.

Sharp asked Bayh for congressional action to change the ruling. "As an old-line fiscal conservative, I find this ruling to be absolutely absurd," Sharp wrote.

To Burger, Sharp wrote that the situation "unnecessarily restricts the authority of a district judge to treat federal court jurors with simple courtesy and respect. Considering the very small amount that such jurors are paid anyway, it challenges all common sense to say we can't give them a simple cup

Lost In Baltimore
BALTIMORE (AP) — Residents of Baltimore were asked in an informal poll at the City Fair, "Do you live in Baltimore City?"

Of the 7,137 persons responding, 24 percent answered, "Not sure."

Fifty-five percent said they were city-dwellers. The other 21 percent were sure they lived elsewhere.

TRAIN MUSEUM
RAVENGLASS, England (AP) — One of the world's smallest-gauge public railways (15 inches) in England's Lake District now boasts its own museum.

Situated at Ravenglass, at one end of the famous Ravenglass and Eskdale Railway, the museum exhibits the railway during its first 100 years via relics, models, photographs and slides.

Big fiberglass flagpoles in Dallas from Maine

POLE PRODUCERS Joe and Glenith Gray stand before their shop in Sargentville, Maine, directly across the street from the flagpole factory in which he used to work. The two produced the world's three largest fiberglass flagpoles in the winter of 1974-75, when the nation was cranking up for the bicentennial.

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent
SARGENTVILLE, Maine (AP) — Joe and Glenith Gray suffer visitors to their little town with the patience of those accustomed to living with greatness.

"That little white clapboard shed across the street," Glenith said. "That's where we made it. May I offer you a beer?"

What Glenith and Joe made in the little shed, which is shuttered now for the winter, was the world's largest fiberglass flagpole. In fact, the world's THREE largest fiberglass flagpoles.

That might not interest Guinness, and apparently doesn't, but to the 673 residents of Sargentville it was about the most exciting event since they built the Deer Isle bridge.

The poles were made in the winter of 1974-75, when the nation was cranking up for the Bicentennial. The poles, for the record, are 100 feet tall, 5 feet thick at the bottom tapering to an inch at the top.

They now reside in Texas, which is not surprising. Would the Big-D Civic Center settle for less? What is surprising is the place of their origin.

Sargentville is not what you would call an industrial center.

"As you can see, it's just a little village," Glenith said.

Getting out here, out on a coastal peninsula known locally as Eggmoggin Reach, is a navigating adventure along spidery blacktop roads blessedly uninterrupted by much civilization or many directional signs, an ideal place for, say, a boys' camp, not, for heaven's sake, a flagpole factory.

"Well, Camp Robin Hood is my first love," said F.B. Littlefield, who owns the flagpole factory. "I've operated the camp for 50 years. The flagpole factory came much later."

"I got in the flag business pretty much by accident."

"Nine years ago I decided to make flagpoles as well. I didn't need a big shop or many employees. Joe and Glenith Gray were among the first."

"I put the shop in Sargentville simply because my family has been there 212 years. I wasn't expecting it to become famous, just a nice local business."

"Six or seven years ago," Littlefield recalled, "I was asked to make a pole somebody could sit on for a flagpole-sitting record. It was some foolishness involving a radio station."

"I built a 25-foot pole with a 6-foot-wide octagonal house on top. The sitter was named Gridge. I believe, from somewhere around Danvers."

"Never learned how he made out."

'I do' means 'I don't' in many first marriages

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer
PLATTEVILLE, Wis. (AP) — Sociology professor Ray Short says first marriages have only a 50-50 success rate these days because too many people are saying "I do" when really they don't.

But Short, who teaches a "marriage and family" course at the University of Wisconsin-Platteville, says there's a way to beat the odds and significantly diminish the chances of divorce or separation.

"You can't just think you're in love," said Short, who frequently lectures at high schools throughout the Midwest. "That can't be trusted. Today's young people are looking for a better way."

love, the imperfection recognized and accepted."

Separation by time or distance will mean waning interest if it's an infatuation, Short said. Frequent quarrels also are a bad sign.

"The kissing and making up is beautiful, but the hell that goes on in between will lead one or both to start looking around," he said.

Impatience with the other's family or friends is a sign of an infatuation, as are drastic personality changes depending on whether one's love interest is present, he said.

Likewise, it is significant how one unthinkingly refers to a lover: an offhand reference to "the idiot" or "that little wench" do not bode well for happily ever after. In addition, true lovers are not jealous or possessive, Short said.

But he said perhaps the most important indicators of true love are an unselfish ego response and an overall attitude of giving and sharing toward the other.

"If you ask yourself these questions about a relationship before you go ahead, it may keep you from saying 'I do' and then later saying you don't," says Short.

National news

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Persons charged with minor crimes may be given tickets instead of being hauled off to jail, under a new state law aimed at cutting the time police spend making arrests.

Crimes covered by the statute, which takes effect Oct. 25, include misdemeanors like loitering for prostitution, misconduct at an emergency, inhaling solvents, failure to obey an officer's directions and public gaming. Maximum penalty for the offenses is a $100 fine, and some offenders will be able to pay their fines without going to court. Use of the tickets is up to police, subject to court approval.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Four followers of the Rev. Sun Myung Moon charge that Minnesota's charitable solicitations law infringes on their religious freedom by favoring "local, established religions over newer, unconventional religious movements."

The Minnesota Chapter of the Unification Church filed a U.S. District Court challenge of a 1978 statute requiring most charities to report fund-raising activities to the state. The state attorney general's office said the law was aimed at controlling fund drives by groups claiming religious affiliations. The statute exempts religious groups that raise more than half their funds from members or take in less than $10,000 annually.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country singer Tammy Wynette has 30 days to answer a Circuit Court petition in which former husband and singing partner George Jones blames alcoholism for falling $36,000 behind in child support payments.

Jones' lawyer, Jack Norman Jr., said Wednesday that Jones already had turned over $15,000 to the court clerk in partial payment but will need more time to gather the balance.

"And as you can see in the petition, he says he is owed nearly that much by her in offsetting taxes," Norman said.

SADAT was nearby.

"I told the security man that I would at least like to look at him because I really think he's something else," she said. "The security man told me I was there and they made me stand in the hall. We met and we kissed each other. I also was kissed by President Carter in the Oval Office. I will thank Dinah Shore for that all of my life."

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Alaska Gov. Jay Hammond says the federal government is unjustly holding about 70 million acres of land needed by Alaska for agricultural and industrial development.

Hammond told the San Francisco Press Club on Wednesday that the land is part of 104 million acres promised to Alaska when the area was granted statehood in 1959. The governor is touring the West Coast seeking support for the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act, a bill that would release the land now set aside for national parks.

NEW YORK (AP) — Movie queen Bette Davis says "one of the most exciting things that has happened to me in 50 years" was being kissed by President Carter and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

In an interview, Miss Davis called her meeting with Sadat and Carter "one of those lucky, lucky accidents..."

Miss Davis was in Washington taping a segment for Dinah Shore's television show, a portion of which involved an interview with Rosalynn Carter. While combing her hair in a White House room near the Oval Office, she learned that

RENTON, Wash. (AP) — First class passengers will sit six abreast in three pairs in the Boeing Co.'s new 767 twin-aisle jetliner.

The firm unveiled a mockup of the 200-seat airliner's interior Wednesday. The plans call for tourist class passengers to sit seven abreast, two-three-two. Boeing says the tourist class seats are about one inch wider than those on standard airliners. Boeing announced plans for the 767 last July. The first jet is expected to roll in March 1981, with the first delivery set for June 1982.

Tonight: Battle of walking wounded

By JOE BLOBAUM
 Pampa News Sports Editor
 Tonight's football game between the Pampa Harvesters and Monterey Plainsmen could be billed as "The Battle of the Walking Wounded."

Welborn's injury report relates to Mike Porter. Welborn said the senior tailback, who suffered a hip injury against Borger, could be back "in a couple of weeks." Porter had been expected to miss the rest of the season.

Robertson hurt his shoulder in practice. Shifting from tackle to center will be junior Mickey Bynum. Danny Buzzard will replace Bynum in the tackle slot, while Jeff Copeland will fill Baker's shoes.

On defense, the only major switch involves sophomore Cliff Anderson, who has been promoted from the Shocker squad to take an inside linebacker position. He'll be joined there by senior Julian Clark, who has seen most of his action at tight end this season.

offensive play must be run against every set the Plainsmen will use on defense. And as Welborn and his staff know, practice doesn't necessarily make perfect. "Once they get in a ballgame, you never know if they'll get it straight or go blank. Injuries make it a tough situation."

"fourth quarterback," and promote three sophomores to the starting squad. "I just hope we can keep it on the field," he joked Thursday morning. "It's just little things that are hurting us, but it's a lot of little things."

Yankee hopes lie in Guidry's arm

By FRED ROTHENBERG
 AP Sports Writer
 NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees, down 2-0 and in desperate need of a victory tonight in the third game of the World Series, give the ball to ace Ron Guidry, who won nearly 90 percent of his decisions this season.

York's one-game playoff victory over Boston and its American League pennant-clinching triumph over Kansas City. Does he like being the net underneath the Yanks' tightrope act?

five games. Having seen him, I'm not surprised he is 25-3, just that anybody could be 25-3. Guidry seems almost embarrassed by the superlatives and comparisons his gaudy record prompts.

Guidry admits to tiring late in the season, but he was able to make the adjustment from an overpowering thrower to a pitcher who could win when he wasn't at his best. He gives catcher Thurman Munson credit for coaxing late-season wins out of a sleepy arm.

With five days rest since his playoff win over Kansas City, Guidry says he feels strong, setting up a classic confrontation between Guidry's power and fastball and the Dodgers' power and fastball hitting.

have pitched creditably and relievers Terry Forster and Bob Welch have nailed down the two wins. Meanwhile, Reggie Jackson has hit the only Yankee homer and has been carrying the offensive load, knocking in half of New York's runs. The other major threats — Thurman Munson, Graig Nettles and Chris Chambliss — each have one hit. Of the six Yankee pitchers used so far, only relief ace Rich Gossage has been especially effective.

The Los Angeles Dodgers, winners of both games at Dodger Stadium respond with their proven postseason pitcher, Don Sutton, 15-11 in the regular season. The Yankees have been about to go down for the third time on several occasions during their uphill season, and each time the skinny Guidry's powerful left arm tossed them a life preserver. Fifteen times Guidry has stopped Yankee losing streaks, and he has been the winning pitcher in New

The lean left-hander from Louisiana finished his remarkable season with a 25-3 record and a 1.73 earned run average, drawing admiration from another respected member of the pitching profession. "Watching him pitch a couple of times this year I thought he was Sandy Koufax reincarnated," said Sutton. "Accidentally you should lose at least

"I don't feel like I'm the best pitcher," said the 28-year-old phenom. "When I sit alongside Jim (Catfish Hunter), I feel meek. Here's a guy who's won 20 games for so many years. "All I've done was win 40 games in two years. Guys like Seaver, Palmer and Cat have 200 wins in eight or nine years. All I can say right now is that I was one of the best pitchers, that I had one helluva year." "For me to be No. 1 would take a lot of consistent years of winning."

Guidry says a tip-off for when his fastball isn't overpowering is when the weaker hitters in the lineup, who normally can't handle the outside fastball, continue to foul that pitch off. "They have tremendous talent but I'm a power pitcher and it will be my power versus their power. I just hope to have a little extra to get by."

"We've been down all year," said Nettles. "Coming back is nothing new for us." Playing in Yankee Stadium should be an additional edge for the Yankees because of the unique dimensions of the ballpark.

Shockers blank Borger

The Pampa Shockers exploded for 18 points in a third-quarter scoring spree and went on to avenge their only defeat of the season Thursday night with an 18-0 shutout of the Borger Bulldogs.

The teams went through a scoreless first half before a sparse crowd at Harvester Field, but there were plenty of anxious moments for both sides before the Shockers lit up the scoreboard with their second-half onslaught.

Leroy Kuhn lost the second of five Pampa fumbles on the night when he coughed up the ball on the Borger 43 in the second period. A long pass gave the Bulldogs a first-and-goal, but the Shocker defense stiffened and held to give the offense possession at the Pampa 5.

A shanked punt gave the Bulldogs excellent field position again before the half ended, but Dwayne Dunn recovered a fumble on the Shocker 7 to stop the last scoring threat of the first half.

Following the pattern established a week earlier against Dumas, the Shockers completely dominated the second half to claim the win.

Bobby Dorsey had one long punt return wiped out by a clipping penalty in the opening moments of the third quarter, but Kuhn promptly advanced the ball 43 yards to the Borger one. From there, Dorsey bulled over for the first of two touchdowns and Pampa led 6-0 with 6:50 left in the quarter.

A run attempt for the extra point failed, as would all of Pampa's PAT efforts. But just over a minute later, Dorsey electrified the audience with another sparkling return, this time to the Borger 10.

On the first play from the 10, quarterback Derrick Young began a throwing exhibition with a perfect toss to John Schilling for Pampa's second TD.

The Shockers found themselves in business once more before the quarter ended and passes to Andy Richardson and Schilling gave Pampa a first and goal on the Bulldog 1.

Dorsey shoved his way into the end zone on the next play to complete the night's scoring. An extra-point pass from Young to Jeff McDougall appeared to be good, but a holding penalty nullified the catch and a run attempt from the 18 failed.

Pampa had one more chance to score in the fourth quarter, set up on a 30-yard run by Kuhn and a facemask penalty on Borger. But Brian Driscoll lost Pampa's fifth fumble to end the threat. Seconds later, a fine interception by Chuck Walker ended Borger's last chance to get on the board.

Now 5-1 on the season, the Shockers host Palo Duro Thursday for their next action.

Rose rejects Reds contract

CINCINNATI (AP) — Pete Rose says it will take a miracle for him to be back in a Cincinnati Reds uniform next season.

The Reds' third baseman Thursday rejected what the Cincinnati Reds called their final offer, and concluded that it was unlikely he would be with the National League team in 1979.

"I love this town, but evidently the people who run the ballclub don't love me," Rose said at a press conference. "I did everything they ask. I don't see why any other player should come into this city — my city — and make more money."

"Who in all of baseball has had a better record in the last 16 years?"

Rose, who has a history of contract wrangles during his 16 years in Cincinnati, hit .302 last baseball season, the 13th time in 14 years he has reached the .300 plateau. He tied an all-time National League consecutive game-hitting streak of 44. He also got his 3,000th career hit earlier in the season, and by the end of the year, was in ninth place among all-time hitters.

Spikers whip Caprock

AMARILLO — They've been playing for better than a month now, but the Pampa High volleyball team really began its quest for a second straight district title with a 15-3, 15-4 romp over the Caprock Longhorns here Thursday night. Bringing 14-2 record into the match, the Harvester spikers had little trouble in handling their first district opponent of the year.

Lefors tops Skellytown, 30-0

Lefors' other score came when Richie Kidwell, Brent Finney and Jeff Whatley trapped the Skellytown punter in the end zone for a safety. Kidwell led the team with 11 tackles, while Richard Hutchinson had seven stops. Coach Don Parsons also cited Billy West, Michael Jackson and Preston West for their defensive efforts. The young Pirates host McLean Thursday night at 6 for their next action.

LA clears last Olympic hurdle

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The city of Los Angeles has cleared its last hurdle on what turned out to be a very slow track and will be the host city for a "Spartan" Summer Olympics in 1984. After a lengthy struggle of wills between the city and the International Olympic Committee as well as disagreements among city officials, an unprecedented Olympic contract was approved Thursday on an 8-4 vote by the City Council. The IOC agreed to the terms in a poll of its members earlier this month. Mayor Tom Bradley called the contract "historic" and said he would invite IOC President Lord Killanin to come to Los Angeles for the final signing. By historic, Bradley was referring to the IOC's reluctant agreement to give up its demand that the host city assume financial responsibility for the Games, as has been the tradition for years. After the IOC tentatively approved the Games for Los Angeles last spring, Bradley nearly pulled the city out of the Olympic bidding in July when the IOC would not give in to the city's request to transfer financial risk from the host city to a private local organizing committee.

GET MORE FOR LESS BEFORE IT'S TOO LATE.

GOOD NEWS! You can still get brand new '78 Toyota Corollas that are still '78 priced. When you check out the other car manufacturers' '79 prices, your Toyota dealer's '78 prices will look awfully good. But when they're gone, they're gone. So act fast.

MORE GOOD NEWS! Toyota Corollas are built to last with a long list of standard features you don't pay extra for. Features like welded unitized body construction, hi-back vinyl bucket seats, power assisted front disc brakes and a whole lot more. Now's the time to see your Toyota dealer for a great year-end deal. What kind of deal can you make? Just ask.

THE 1978 CLEARANCE IS ON!

Rate jumps to 10 percent

Prime rate should interest you

NEW YORK (AP) — You'd probably think the prime rate was more important if you needed a couple of million dollars to invest in a new factory.

To General Motors and other large American companies, news that the prime rate — the interest banks charge their best corporate customers — is going to 10 percent means that borrowing money to finance large-scale development is going to cost more.

The increase — the ninth this year — was signaled Thursday when Chase Manhattan Bank, the nation's third largest, raised its prime rate from 9 3/4 to 10 percent. Other banks are expected to follow Chase's lead in the next few days.

But for the average American, the prime rate is important mainly as an indicator that borrowing is getting more expensive for everybody. That's because the rates of little men and big institutions are entwined. Actions of the government, large banks and major corporations tend eventually to trickle down to affect everyone.

The prime rate is going up because the Federal Reserve Board is making it more expensive for banks to borrow money from the nation's central bank. The intent is to control inflation by slowing economic growth, thus making the beleaguered U.S. dollar more attractive to foreign investors.

But interest rates on consumer loans — such as mortgages, now hovering near 10 percent in many states — are rising because banks are finding themselves pressed for cash to lend. As the economy recovers from the 1974-75 recession, Americans are going back to the loan windows in droves — and operating under time-tested tenets of supply and demand, banks are attempting to limit the requests for loans by making them more expensive.

"It's the demand for credit that really pushes the rates up," according to Leif Olsen, senior vice president of New York's Citibank, the nation's second-largest commercial bank.

So in a sense, increases in the prime rate and increases in consumer interest rates both result from growth in the economy. But the prime rises as a result of efforts to cut the growth signified by the rise in consumer rates.

According to Olsen, comparing increases in the prime to those in consumer rates "is like saying if the price of melons goes up, the price of oranges or bananas will go up."

Why then is the prime so closely watched? Tradition is part of it. The prime rate was introduced in the 1930s at a level of 1 1/2 percent. It stayed there until 1947, when its increase after so many years became a major news event that eventually marked the prime as a rate to watch.

"Because it was unchanged for so long, it received a lot of attention," said Olsen. "I would say the attention it receives is a lot more than it deserves."

Yet the prime rate has a psychological effect on other interest rates.

"It becomes an indicator of where other rates will go" because of its visibility, said David Jones, an economist at Aubrey G. Lanston & Co. Inc., a New York investment-banking firm.

Jones said consumer lending rates "are not as sensitive to money-market conditions as the prime, but they do tend to move in the same direction."

Arab oil embargo took shape five years ago

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — The Arab oil embargo that caused gasoline lines to form at service stations across the nation was taking shape just five years ago.

War had broken out in the Middle East, and, on Oct. 16, 1973, Persian Gulf countries meeting in Kuwait announced a 70 percent increase in posted crude oil prices.

A day later, ministers of nine countries announced crude oil production cutbacks of 5 percent a month until Israel withdrew from Arab lands.

The next day, Oct. 18, Saudi Arabia and Qatar boosted the cutbacks to 10 percent and Abu Dhabi formally started the embargo of exports to the United States.

Libya followed Abu Dhabi a day later, one day ahead of Saudi Arabia.

On Oct. 21, Iraq called for the breaking of Arab diplomatic relations with the United States, while Kuwait, Qatar, Bahrain, and Dubai joined the embargo.

A month later, Nov. 26, the Sixth Arab Summit Conference in Algiers confirmed the embargo and the continuation of production cutbacks until Israel withdrew from Arab territories.

As the full impact of the embargo was beginning to be felt in the United States, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries met Dec. 23 in Teheran and decided to raise crude oil posted prices 130 percent.

By early February, spot crude oil prices were reported to be nosediving because of large quantities of available supplies Arab ministers scheduled a Feb. 14 meeting in Libya, but it was postponed because of a controversy over whether or not the embargo against the United States should be lifted.

The Arab embargo was lifted March 19, 1974, two days after an OPEC conference in Vienna decided to freeze crude prices.

The full effects of the embargo on U.S. consumers were delayed until early 1974 because the embargo began while U.S. stocks of crude oil and products were high and additional import shipments were in transit.

Before March 19, however, long lines of motorists seeking gasoline were common, gasoline rationing coupons had been printed, and Congress had reduced the highway speed limit to 55 miles an hour.

Since the Arab embargo, U.S. production of crude oil has declined but demand for petroleum products has increased.

As the embargo got under way, U.S. crude production was averaging about 9.2 million barrels a day. The current average, including production from Alaska's Prudhoe Bay, is about 8.7 million a day.

In the past five years, domestic demand for petroleum products has increased from 17.3 million barrels a day to more than 19 million barrels daily.

Gasoline consumption, for example, has increased since 1973 from an average of 6.7 million barrels a day to a current level of about 7.4 million.

And the American Petroleum Institute reports gasoline demand continues to climb.

In the four years from 1973 to 1977 gasoline demand, the API reports, rose only 4 percent while it increased 7.7 percent during the 12-month 1977-78 period ending in July.

Frank N. Ikard, API president, says consumers are buying smaller cars but are buying more of them and driving them more.

"Add to that the rise in population and the total use of energy keeps rising," Ikard said.

And the Arab share of U.S. imports is increasing.

In 1973, Arab nations supplied about 853,000 barrels of oil a day or 13.6 percent of U.S. imports. Arab imports today approximate 2.9 million barrels a day or approximately 50 percent of foreign receipts.

The API says Arab oil now accounts for about 15.5 percent of total U.S. supply, compared with 4.8 percent in 1973.

University funds need correction

HOUSTON (AP) — A University of Houston vice president says a downward adjustment of $15.3 million is needed to correct a short-term investments account that has been under investigation since November.

"I emphasize this downward adjustment... is not a loss figure but rather what it takes to correct the university's records," UH Vice President Dr. Roger Singleton said.

Singleton said this week the adjustment "results from a combination of bookkeeping inaccuracies as well as the consequences of short term investment activities conducted in the name of the university."

Singleton turned his report over to the Texas House Interim Cash Management Committee headed by Rep. Frank Hartung, R-Houston.

A scandal involving the university's short-term investments erupted last November when a financial analyst, Samuel Harwell, was fired.

Harwell and Patrick Sullivan, a half-brother, were later indicted and pleaded guilty to federal charges involving $5.2 million in university funds deposited in a California bank and used as collateral for loans obtained by Sullivan.
