Oil workers wait

By JOHN MOSSMAN
Associated Press Writer
DENVER (AP) — The nation's 60,000 oil refinery workers continued to delay their threatened nationwide strike, as union officials awaited Carter Administration reaction to a possible 73-cent-per-hour raise.

The contract dispute is the first major union showdown over President Carter's voluntary wage-price guidelines, which allow for a 7 percent increase in wages and benefits over the life of a contract.

A.F. Grospron, president of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union, confirmed Monday that he had been in touch with officials of Carter's anti-inflation program. He said he sought "an interpretation of how the wage guidelines would be applied to contract settlements within the oil industry."

Some of the officials, who Grospron did not identify, were to meet with Grospron today in Denver, the union president said.

White House spokesman Mark Henderson said he did not know of any such meeting.

The union leader said Monday the possibility of a nationwide walkout remained "very real." But he said there would be no immediate strike despite the expiration of contracts Sunday night. Most workers were on the job Monday, although oil workers stayed out at Gulf and ARCO refineries in Port Arthur, Texas.

The strike was delayed by an offer from Amoco calling for a 73-cent-per-hour raise in the first year and a wage reopener clause the second year.

With oil workers currently averaging $8.82 an hour, the 73-cent increase amounts to a 8.3 percent increase. If the union agreed to hold its wage increase to less than 6 percent in the second year, the contract apparently would comply with the 7 percent guideline.

Amoco, a subsidiary of Standard Oil of Indiana, contended Monday that its workers average $9.34 per hour and certain employees are exempt from the increase. The proposal, Amoco said, would therefore comply with the 7 percent guideline.

Grospron said earlier Monday that the union's oil policy bargaining committee had rejected contract offers from 21 companies, including Gulf, Mobil, Texaco, Conoco and Exxon. He said all of those offers proposed two-year agreements with percentage increases each year. Most offered 7 percent in both years, or 8 percent the first year and 6 percent the second.

CHIMNEY SWEEP TERRY BLUMER, dressed in traditional garb, takes to the rooftops in Pampa Wednesday. According to Blumer, "sweeps" have always worn the black tails and top hat for good luck.

Dirt gets swept away

By STAFF WRITER

Last year the beautiful Pampa home of Mr. and Mrs. E.C. Sidwell of 1901 Charles was threatened by a chimney fire, caused when fireplace flames ignited creosote residue caked inside the dirty chimney.

Fortunately, the fire was spotted and extinguished before it got out of hand.

Therefore, it was no surprise when Sidwell saw a chimney sweep in the neighborhood Monday, he grabbed him and put him to work. Lucky for Sidwell, too, since Terry Blumer of Amarillo is probably the only chimney sweep in the Panhandle.

Blumer said his nearest competition is in Albuquerque and Denton.

Blumer was in town for the first time Wednesday at the request of Mr. and Mrs. John Lee Bell, who saw him recently on an Amarillo television station. They obtained Blumer's name and telephone number from the station and contacted him, after which they lined him up with several local jobs to make his trip worthwhile. Now, Blumer said, Mrs. Bell is his unofficial business agent in Pampa.

Blumer calls his one-man operation "Westminster Chimney and Flue Works Ltd." The 19-year-old Amarillo native has been sweeping chimneys since October. He entered the business because he "wanted something interesting where I could be my own boss and set my own hours."

He couldn't afford to go east and learn, but he received a good instruction manual when he ordered the tools of his trade (including the traditional black top hat). The manual showed him the job step by step.

"I practiced on chimneys in my neighborhood until I got the hang of it," Blumer said. "It's not that hard a trade, but unless you know what you're doing it can cause you some problems."

No two chimneys are alike, Blumer testified. "The first one I cleaned took about three and a half hours," he said. Now he can polish off a masonry chimney in one or one-and-a-half hours, chimneys with steel construction take a bit longer.

Asked about the most obvious drawback to his work, Blumer grinned and said: "It's not the cleanest job in the world."

He said the grime is a bother "only when you get in the shower and wash your hair and the shampoo turns black."

Asked how often a chimney should be cleaned, he replied: "You could ask 20 sweeps and get 20 different answers."

"It's something that has to be done. If it's not cleaned it's a fire hazard."

Blumer said many old houses in the area are extremely vulnerable to fire because their chimneys have never been cleaned. Law requires residents of Canada and London, England to have their chimneys cleaned annually, he said.

Cold weather doesn't bother Blumer as much as some of its effects. "The wind isn't as bad as a steep-roofed house with lots of ice," he said.

He has yet to fall, but "I've come close—once was today at the Bell's house," he recalled. And he denies having ever "dropped in" on anyone, a la St. Nick.

According to Blumer, there are about 2,000 chimney sweeps in the U.S., and they share a newsletter. But he doesn't intend to join them on a full-time basis, or make chimney sweeping his career. He's just doing it part time to get him through college.

Until then, don't expect to see Terry Blumer climbing a roof without his top hat. "It's bad luck," he smiled as he started up the ladder, hat snugly in place.

Witness arrested

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Prosecutors vowed today to expose before the jury a jailed defense witness who testified he was offered $20,000 to kill millionaire defendant Cullen Davis.

Chief Prosecutor Tolly Wilson confirmed Monday night that ex-convict Larry Gene Lucas had been arrested and was held under $100,000 bond on a charge of aggravated perjury.

Wilson said the witness on which that charge was based will testify on rebuttal today that Lucas was lying when he told Dec. 11 of the offer by FBI informant David McCrory.

McCrory, 40, is the state's key witness in Davis' murder conspiracy trial.

"Are you saying he'll blow Lucas out of the water?" a reporter asked Wilson before he produced his surprise witness.

"Yep," he replied.

"I say it will go to the jury and they (defense lawyers) will be unable to prevent it," Wilson said. "It's perfectly legitimate rebuttal testimony. We have evidence that Lucas didn't talk to McCrory at all, at least not about that. It didn't happen the way he said it happened."

Lucas, a convicted burglar, testified last month that he was approached by McCrory in a

Fort Worth bar and offered $10,000 to kill the Fort Worth industrialist. When he refused, Lucas said, McCrory upgraded the proposal to $20,000.

Lucas testified he spurned that offer also and that McCrory told him, "We're going to get him (Davis) one way or the other."

Davis, 45, said from the outset he was the target of a frame-up orchestrated by his estranged wife Priscilla and set in motion by McCrory.

Opposing attorneys clashed today over events surrounding the Lucas arrest and two prosecutors took the stand to answer defense questions about the episode.

State Attorney Terry Wilson, no relation to Tolly Wilson, said the previously unidentified witness is Joe Espinoza, a crony of Lucas.

Wilson said Espinoza told the grand jury he was not present when McCrory allegedly made the offer to Lucas.

Lucas testified Espinoza was there and overheard the conversation.

The Houston prosecutor said the state "did not intend to arrest Lucas on the sealed indictment until the end of this trial unless we had to."

Further suspension of gas rate hike approved

By JOHN PRICE
Pampa News Staff

An additional 30-day suspension of a proposed Pioneer Natural Gas Co. rate increase was approved by the city commission today after commissioners heard the report of a local rate consultant.

Wayne Brown, a Pampa accountant and member of a team studying the increase for 63 West Texas cities, told the commission that while Pioneer had agreed to an $11.5 million overall increase, negotiations are continuing.

Pioneer had asked for a $19.6 million, or a 26.9 percent increase, but decided to attempt to negotiate the final increase with the cities rather than appeal to the Texas Railroad Commission.

"They probably could have gotten $1.5 million more on appeal," Brown said. But Pioneer decided to accept and implement the $11.5 million increase rather than lose future revenue by extending the appeal process, he said.

Brown said the consultants and Pioneer representatives agreed to leave the gas cost adjustment to customers at 100 percent, rather than reduce it to 85 percent as the consultants had proposed.

While Pioneer passes 100 percent of its actual gas cost to customers, Brown said, the company doesn't have a total gas cost adjustment. Pioneer doesn't pass along related revenue taxes and the costs of moving and compressing gas, he said.

The $11.5 million increase translates into approximately a 15 percent increase for customers in all cities except Pampa, Brown said.

Pampa's increase will be greater, although Pampans won't be paying more than customers in other cities, because the city's rates are now lower than those in the rest of Pioneer's West Texas distribution system. The increase is designed to provide equal rates throughout the system.

Asked by Commissioner O.M. Prigmore if Pampa should ask for the same increase percentage as the rest of the system, Mayor R.D. Wilkerson replied: "Our rate increase should be based on a percentage basis rather than a dollar basis."

The commission originally suspended the rate increase for 90 days at its Oct. 10 meeting, and is entitled to the additional suspension under the Public Utilities Act. The commission will have to act on the increase when it meets Feb. 13. Pioneer hopes to conclude negotiations and put new rates into effect by Feb. 15, Brown said.

The first reading of an ordinance amending the Pampa's cable television franchise was approved by commissioners this morning.

The ordinance limits the current power of the city to take over the cable company at practically any time. Second and final reading of the ordinance, and approval of the sale of the franchise from Merrill Cable T.V. to Sammons Communications Inc., will be on the agenda for the commission's Jan. 23 meeting.

Due to lack of preparation, the commission postponed the appointment of a committee to study recreational needs in the city. The committee will be considered Jan. 23.

A plan for the development of the 247-acre Inez Carter Park was adopted by the commission. The plan, submitted by the Pampa Environmental Beautification Foundation, has an estimated cost of $5,500, not including a sprinkler system. Wofford said a sprinkler system would probably be necessary and will cost between $6-7,000.

THE RECENT SNOWFALL made Pampa's streets very slippery. A lack of snow shoveling on city sidewalks, as shown above, didn't make it any easier for downtown shoppers to get around.

66th legislative session begins

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The 66th Legislature, holding a constitutional mandate for property tax relief and wondering how a Republican governor will deal with Democratic lawmakers, convened at noon today.

Early items of business included election of a House speaker, with Bill Clayton of Springlake expected to win an unprecedented third consecutive term, and appointment of Senate committees.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, presiding officer of the Senate, had one juicy plum to hand out — chairmanship of the Senate Finance Committee, which writes that chamber's version of the two-year state budget.

Sen. A.M. Aikin, D-Paris, longtime chairman of the powerful committee, chose not to seek reelection.

Clayton must delay his appointments until the House decides Republican Kae Patrick's contest of the re-election of Rep. Don Cartwright, D-San Antonio. Cartwright has several years' seniority, which is considered in making House committee assignments.

The speaker said he hoped the House could make its decision on Patrick's challenge early enough for him to announce appointments before lawmakers recess for the weekend.

Committee assignments are important because most of the Legislature's work of screening and rewriting bills takes place in the committees.

Clayton swears he has made no committee decisions and "only moved my little magnetic board out to the house Sunday evening."

He said he had not decided whether to return the chairmen of the major committees or shuffle the deck.

"If I change one of them, I am going to change them all," he said.

One chairman who asked for a new assignment was Rep. Tom Massey, D-San Angelo, who has run the House Public Education Committee since 1975.

That committee will deal with the tough issue of school finance, particularly whether to include intangible wealth such as cash, stocks and bonds when measuring a school district's need for state aid.

Clayton hopes for a House vote on permanent operating rules Wednesday, the same day Gov. Dolph Briscoe makes his farewell speech. Briscoe is expected to recommend that lawmakers cut taxes another $1 billion.

Among Clayton's proposed rule changes is creation of two new committees — one to handle all "sunset" legislation and another to give separate consideration to the "human services" issues that went last session to the House Health and Welfare Committee.

Clayton could have trouble on rules from the Sam Houston Caucus, a loosely organized group of representatives who claimed during last year's "tax relief session" that he was abusing his power.

The caucus' proposals include election of committee chairmen and vice chairmen by committee members themselves.

Clayton said he's not giving up any powers voluntarily, including the appointment of committee chairmen.

One major task facing the session is passage of bills implementing the "Tax Relief Amendment" to the Texas Constitution.

Good afternoon

News in brief

The forecast for Pampa calls for partly cloudy skies and slightly warmer temperatures today, turning mostly cloudy tonight with a possibility of freezing drizzle. The high today should reach the mid 30s, the low tonight is expected in the mid 20s. Winds today will be southeasterly up to 15 mph.

Resurfacing project approved

Members of the Pampa Independent School board voted four to one Monday night to approve the resurfacing of Rand Matson track at Harvester Field.

The project, which will cost $16,998, will include resurfacing of the existing track and new striping to change the track from yards to meters to conform with new state regulations. The one dissenting vote came from board

Vice-President Paul Simmons.

Simmons has asked that a breakdown of costs be included with the bid from Vibra-Whirl Co. of Panhandle but it wasn't included.

The board also approved a $6,400 contract to have the City of Pampa supply appraisal services for 1979. The new contract was a $600 increase from the 1978 appraisal contract.

Canadian chooses full-time manager

CANADIAN — The Canadian Chamber of Commerce hired a full-time manager Monday night.

Chosen for the $1000 a month post was Hugh Wilson, a long time resident of Canadian and the former owner-operator of General Parts store.

Wilson was chosen unanimously for a one year term.

Question of jobs

A pretty red, white and blue poster that appears about this time every year at the local post office states that "every alien must report his address during January of each year". This sounds simple enough, however, the message is printed in English and most of the aliens in and around Pampa are Chicanos who neither read or speak English. One other point is that some of these Chicanos are also illegal aliens who don't plan on reporting.

How many people are we talking about? No one really knows. Officially there are 7.2 million Chicanos in the United States, this is a 60 per cent increase in eight years and we can expect about 1 million immigrants, legal and illegal, each year.

In Texas one in four residents is Mexican and contrary to popular belief only 8.5 per cent of Chicanos are farm workers. Four out of five live in cities and many of them are poor.

The population of Mexico has soared from 25 million in 1950 to 65 million today and is projected to reach 130 million by the year 2000. Nearly one-fifth of all Mexicans earn less than $75 a year and even the most menial migrant laborer can increase his wages ten fold in the U.S. and getting here is relatively easy.

The oil and gas boom in the Panhandle has created a huge demand for labor, a demand larger than the available workforce. This void has been filled by transient labor from dozens of states but it also has drawn many from Mexico. Many people are not aware that the Border Patrol works this far north or even aware that we have an illegal alien problem as these people keep a very low profile so they won't be caught and sent home.

In 1978 over fifty illegal aliens were caught and sent home from the Pampa area. Many of these have returned and many others were never stopped.

Last year 860,000 would-be immigrants were caught by the Border Patrol at the 2000-mile Mexican border — but a bigger number got through. And they are going to continue to come as long as someone will offer them a job.

We continually cry to Washington for help for the unemployed usually in the form of free handout or made up jobs that effectively only transfer funds from those who earn a living to those that don't. Wouldn't it be much simpler to ask employers not to hire illegal aliens or to report those who do so that an unemployed person could have a job and not a handout. Government is costing us far too much money without us being forced to support our neighbors because he or she has no job as they are filled by illegal aliens. Aliens who for the most part are sending their wages out of the country to support the families they left behind.

As you sit in your warm comfortable home and read this you may say to yourself, "this problem doesn't affect me, I have a job" and you may be right but what about your sons and daughters. What happens to them when they go looking for a job?

No solution

The often bitter debate over capital punishment has been somewhat dormant since Gary Gilmore was shot to death in a theatrical-style execution in a Utah prison early in 1977.

Now, you can expect the question again to emerge, with the focus this time on two men scheduled to die in the same prison. (Although those executions recently were stayed by a court, the question still persists.)

It's an issue about which few people express no opinion. There's little middle ground. Proponents generally are rabid and sometimes nearly sadistic, while opponents often come across as syrupy and pious. And, for what it's worth, this also is an area in which you'll find libertarians to be on both sides of the fence.

Let's say here that from a moral standpoint, the killing of a human being is wrong. And we'd like to see that principle accepted regardless of who does the killing — the individual or the "state."

We painfully remember an anecdote told by the physician who examined Gilmore following his shooting by a firing squad. The physician discovered that the flurry of shots had not yet killed the intended victim; although he had been wounded around the heart, there was a possibility his life could have been saved. Of course, the irony exists in the fact that the doctor wasn't allowed even to think about reviving Gilmore. After all, he was supposed to die.

This is clearly sick stuff, but make no mistake. We shed absolutely no tears for the wanton murderer. However, no one can reasonably deny that the billions of dollars taken from American taxpayers every year and spent to "fight crime" have had absolutely no effect on stopping people from committing wrongful acts. And no one, in our opinion, has yet proved satisfactorily that the regular execution of serious criminals would deter others from doing the same thing.

A grossly unfair double-bind is graphically illustrated in the case of an arrested criminal who is assisted by the "public defender." An individual is hurt by another person, either through bodily injury or theft of property. Money is taken from the victim to make sure the culprit has adequate legal counsel. Simultaneously, the victim is forced to pay someone to prosecute the evil-doer. The judge and jury are subsidized by the victim, who additionally foots the bill for the towering edifice in which the trial takes place.

All this occurs so that "justice" can be served. And, if the defendant finally is found "guilty," the person he hurt or stole from must subsequently pay to feed and clothe him, as well as provide medical and dental care.

Frequently, we hear debates about the purpose of imprisoning convicted criminals. One faction says the reason for having prisons is to punish offenders, the other advocates "rehabilitation."

Neither goal appears to be appropriate. If there exists a legitimate reason for us having to give up our earnings to pay for prisons, it should be nothing more than to provide a vehicle for isolating those persons who steadfastly refuse to behave in a benign manner.

There is no ready answer to this problem, as centuries of increasing crime have clearly shown. But the "Devil's Island" concept of penology appears to have some merit. Maybe we should provide a place for evil people to live among themselves. That way, they no longer would be a danger to peaceful individuals, and yet, we decent people would not be promulgating evil by performing acts which at best must be considered vengeful and corrupt. And who knows? Maybe they'd all decide voluntarily to kill each other.

Why don't you write us some letters and express your own feelings about this enigmatic, enduring issue? Let's talk about it soon.

Contradiction is the only fixed Washington policy

by butler d. shaffer

Having specialized in the field of labor law during the years I was in law practice, I became quite familiar with the confused and contradictory reasoning that underlies government policies toward employment. Minimum wage laws — supposedly enacted for the purpose of benefiting lower-paid workers — have been responsible for most of the unemployment in this country, principally among the very lower-paid persons the law was theoretically designed to help. Likewise, the policy underlying collective bargaining has been to promote the employment rights of employees (at least, that is how it has been presented.) Instead, labor unions are granted a monopoly position in units in which they are the certified bargaining representative, and if 49 percent of the employees in that unit prefer other representation, or wish to represent themselves, they are prevented from doing so.

More contradictory labor policies have arisen in recent years. As I have written on a number of other occasions, the vulgar practice known as "affirmative action" is a living contradiction of the very policy it is supposedly designed to effectuate, namely, the removal of racial, sexual, ethnic, and religious criteria in employment. There is no question that discrimination based upon such factors is irrational and vulgar in itself.

Nevertheless, to suggest that discrimination in favor of those who have been discriminated against in the past is an appropriate rectification of past behavior is most obnoxious to any person who operates on the basis of principled behavior. It does, after all, attempt to elevate to the sphere of moral philosophy a practice which deserves no higher standing than the rantings of a Ku Klux Klan leaguer.

The federal government, firmly dedicated to the illogic of ending racial and sexual discrimination by enforcing standards that require an employer to discriminate on the basis of race and sex, has issued new guidelines designed to protect employers from charges of "reverse discrimination" filed by non-preferred white males who protest their federally-decreed second-class status.

The chairwoman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission contributed to the confusion of press in the field of labor law when it was reported that she told a news conference that employers had a legal obligation to comply with such laws voluntarily. A legal obligation to voluntarily comply? Why didn't George Orwell think of that?

Meanwhile, at the other end of the midway, the National Labor Relations Board has ruled that union representation elections can be set aside if inaccurate or false statements are made during the course of a campaign, and if those statements had a significant impact on the voting. While the NLRB has always taken a dim view of the right of employers to engage in free speech (in spite of there being some mention of "free speech" in the Constitution), it should be noted that the present makeup of the board is almost totally pro-union. As a consequence, I would imagine that we can look forward to an out-pouring of cases in which the NLRB considers the limits of employer free-speech to be that which is not very effective or persuasive.

Still, perhaps the NLRB has come across a good idea. If it is now a matter of federal policy to set aside the results of union elections where the winner used false or misleading statements to win, what about applying this same standard to political elections? If truthfulness is considered so important in such parochial matters as elections involving only a single company, why should it not be insisted upon with even greater vigor where the election involves the control of the most gargantuan political machinery in the history of mankind?

Shall we, perhaps, see the federal government picking up on this NLRB-enunciated policy of "truthfulness-in-elections" and apply it to the politicians: "setting aside" any election in which the winner was found to have used inaccurate or misleading statements? Of course not. As I stated at the outset, contradiction seems to be the only consistent policy operating in Washington, D.C.

Progress report on gasahol

by paul harvey

Gasahol — a mixture of 10 percent alcohol and 90 percent gasoline — is but one of many alternative fuels. But this is a progress report on that one.

Brazil has raced on ahead of the rest of us in the development and use of gasahol. Most of Brazil's automobiles now run on a 90-10 or an 80-20 mix.

Meanwhile, for a conversion cost of about $350 per car, Brazil is running more and more automobiles entirely on alcohol. Five hundred telephone company Volkswagen repair cars now operate exclusively on alcohol.

Last year Brazil produced more than 200 million gallons of alcohol for use in automobile engines.

In the United States gasahol is already available in selected service stations in Indiana, Illinois and Iowa.

Users of gasahol report this cleaner burning fuel reduces carbon-monoxide emissions by 30 percent and increases miles-per-gallon by 5 percent.

Critics argue that alcohol as a motor fuel — either in pure form or a mixture — uses up too much critically needed grain.

Promoters of gasahol remind the critics that our nation has a chronic annual grain surplus — and also that the alcohol used in gasahol can be made from weeds that will grow where most grain crops won't. Also from garbage. Indeed, alcohol is the one fuel which can be made from "almost anything."

In Selma, Alabama...employing the expertise of a former bootlegger and a young agricultural scientist...a farmer's co-op is now turning out 200 gallons of grain alcohol a month.

The idea of alcohol as a fuel is not new. A blend called "Agrol" was marketed in the 1930s — but in those days — when oil was a dollar a barrel — "Agrol" was prohibitively costly.

Now that oil is 11, 12, 13 dollars a barrel and going higher — gasahol is becoming price competitive.

The new gasoline pumps are being designed to record prices up to two dollars a gallon. Increased petroleum prices inevitably will make alternatives more desirable.

I believe my file includes all of the arguments against gasahol. Yet at least one oil company, Mobil, is betting $10 million that alcohol eventually can be economically extracted from coal.

Out of this research could come an all-new concept in combustion engines. Under the auspices of the EPA and the United States Naval Academy, a heat-balanced engine is being tested which "is more efficient than the regular combustion engine, offers a substantial increase in miles per gallon, is 98 percent free of noxious emissions, operates at lower pressures and lower temperatures which should mean lower repair bills — and it can run on almost anything — gasoline, diesel fuel, benzine, kerosene or alcohol." We are getting there.

Treasures to share

By WILLIAM STEIF

Outside Logan (pop. 796) on the principal highways of northwest Kansas stand six 5-by-14-foot signs. They say:

"Dane G. Hansen Memorial Museum, Oriental art, guns and coins. Periodic Smithsonian exhibits."

To the sophisticates of New York or Los Angeles, that may not seem a matter of great moment. But for the folks in the thousands of American towns like Logan, Kan., those signs and their counterparts nationwide indicate the federal government's vast reservoir of knowledge is coming to see them.

The vehicle is the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service — SITES, for short — that begun a quarter-century ago.

SITES currently has about 170 traveling shows on the road, says Debbie Dawson, one of the SITES' 10 exhibit coordinators. Each exhibit stays in one place four to six weeks, and each exhibit spends a total of one to two years on the road.

"The World of Haitian Paintings," 57 pictures from the collection of Claude August Douyon of Port-au-Prince, is fairly typical. It covers works of 32 painters, including Hector Hyppolite, Haiti's foremost artist. It was originally organized by Arnold Lehman, of the Miami Museum. It is unusual — colorful, detailed, filled with tropical symbols and voodooism. And it is so good that SITES picked it up and first showed it in a room off the lobby of the Inter-American Development Bank in Washington.

A quarter-century ago, that's as far as it would have gone. But from Washington, now it'll go first to Parkersburg, W. Va., then to Santa Clara, Calif., Durham, N.C., Medford, Ore., Chattanooga, Tenn., Surrey, British Columbia, and so on.

What are some of the other SITES shows now on the road?

There's Berlin Porcelain, from West Germany; America's First Ladies, from the Smithsonian collections; a flight exhibit, from the Smithsonian's new Air and Space Museum; Treasures of Cyprus, from the Cypriot Archeological Museum; The Deep South's Folk Art and Crafts, from the Smithsonian and many more.

About eight million people see these exhibits annually. They're shown in widely varying locales: Chicago's Art Institute, local banks, libraries and schools, stores off the malls of shopping centers.

Rental fees cover most of the expenses of running SITES and paying its 20-member staff, headed by Dennis Gould. The fees are paid by local sponsors and range from $95 to $15,000, depending on who's doing the renting and what the particular show's security requirements are.

Ms. Dawson says the exhibits fall into three categories: High-security, which means the exhibit can only be shown in an art gallery, museum or bank, with 24-hour guard, electronic surveillance and temperature controls; moderate-security, with fewer guards; and limited-security, which means the exhibit can be in a school or shopping center.

SITES' yearly budget is about $1.5 million, and most of that comes back from rental fees. Anyone — or virtually any group — can sponsor an exhibit, but there are a few requirements: The exhibits can't be outdoors, in hallways or in the malls of shopping centers; they must be open to the public; they can't be used for fund-raising.

Until Gould took over SITES in the early 1970's it was a small program. Then, with the impending Bicentennial celebration, it got a great push and it's been roaring ahead ever since.

If you're interested in getting a SITES show for your home town, phone (202) 381-6631 to speak to Eileen Harakal; or write her in care of SITES, Arts and Industries Building, Room 2170 Washington, D.C. 20560. She'll send you a list of what's available now and in the near future.

Book policy updated

The book and material selection policy approved by the American Library Association was updated Monday by the Lovett Memorial Library.

The move, taken at a board meeting, was made so the library would be in tune with other book selection policies throughout the United States, said Librarian Dan Snider.

The board also discussed plans for an exhibit that will be presented during February in the Library Conference Room. The display, called "The Texas Rangers: Their First 150 years," will be free.

Probation revoked for three

Three persons had their probation revoked recently in 223rd District Court.

Jerry Lee Roten was convicted April 17 of burglary and placed on five years probation. He had his probation revoked because he failed to report to the probation officer and did not pay a related fee.

Leo Medley had probation revoked for two cases of public intoxication. Medley was sentenced to two years in the Gray County Jail.

Kim Dewitt Mann, convicted July 31 of burglary and placed on five years probation, had her probation revoked for public intoxication and use of alcohol. District Attorney, Harold Comer recommended a sentence of three years in the Texas Women's Correctional Institute.

Attending the three-week course from Pampa are Roger Lee Donelson and

Auto repair protection studied

By SUSAN STOLER
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Are you tired of finding out your car's $10 carburetor adjustment has ballooned to a $50 engine repair?

If so, a legislative subcommittee is considering ways to help you out, like requiring auto repair shops to register with the state and give customers written estimates.

"We've studied auto repairs a number of times and there are a growing number of complaints," says Sen. Ron Clower, D-Garland, chairman of the Senate Consumer Affairs subcommittee.

The panel postponed a final vote Monday on its auto repair report when some members left for other meetings. However, Clower said he would reschedule a meeting this week.

Under a proposed committee report, auto repair facilities would register with the Texas Motor Vehicle Commission. Estimates of repairs over $25 would be required in writing.

Consumers would not be liable for work costing more than 10 percent of the approved written estimate, unless they consented to the added costs either in writing or orally.

"If state action is not taken soon to correct the abuses in the area of auto repair, there is the increasing likelihood that federal regulations or legislation will be introduced," the report says.

Auto repair shops violating the proposed regulations would be subject to a civil suit filed by either city, county, district or state prosecutors. Two successful suits against a repair shop within two years would allow the motor vehicle commission to revoke its license.

In other matters, the subcommittee unanimously adopted its report on the state fire marshal's office. The report recommended a uniform fire code.

Sheriff fights vandalism

"I'm gonna sit out there all night until I catch 'em, if I have to," said Sheriff Rufe Jordan Monday, as he reported a combined incident of robbery and vandalism in Pampa during the weekend.

According to Jordan, thieves and vandals invaded the property of Billy Scribner for the second time in a month Saturday night. They stole over 200 feet of lumber and 50 gallons of gasoline, while breaking expensive locks off barn doors on Scribner's stable and private garage property a few miles off

Borger Highway. Diesel oil was also poured into the drinking water of horses on the property.

City and State news

Jordan said recently that he had become angered by increased incidents of criminal mischief, especially involving the use of firearms, and that he intended to step up efforts to capture those responsible. But "some places are hard to watch," Jordan said Monday. "While you're watching one place they sneak up on another."

Regarding malicious or careless use of firearms, Jordan said that two men had been arrested for minor fire arm offenses on Dec. 28 and 29.

Phillip Keith Taylor was charged with illegal use of a firearm in a public place on Dec. 28 and was fined $25 by Justice of the Peace Nat Lunsford.

Christopher Coffman was charged with illegal discharge of a firearm from a public road and was fined $25 by Justice of the Peace Nat Lunsford. Lunsford said that the range of fine for such offenses was $1 to $200.

Weather blamed for gas cutbacks

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Blame the weatherman — at least in part — for natural gas curtailments during Texas' ice storm last week, states a railroad commission report.

The commission's gas utilities division said Monday a cold front that swept the state within 24 hours, mechanical failures and "understated temperature forecasting" caused the curtailments.

Only more accurate and timely forecasting and enlarged gas storage facilities can head off other curtailments, the report said.

The preliminary report on the Jan. 1-4 crisis was submitted to the commission by division director Joseph Piotrowski.

Commissioner Mack Wallace asked Piotrowski for a full study in order to avoid future curtailments. He said the study should analyze how consumers' energy costs are affected by curtailments.

The staff found that five of the state's largest transmission systems — Pioneer Natural Gas Co. of Amarillo; Lone Star Gas Co. of Dallas; Lo-Vaca Gathering Co., serving South and Central Texas; Arkla Gas Transmission Co., serving East and Southeast Texas; and United Gas Pipeline Co. — imposed "substantive curtailments" of gas.

The largest and most severe curtailments were by Lo-Vaca and Lone Star, the report stated.

"The curtailments primarily affected large usage customers — including electrical utilities and school districts — who either have agreed to an immediate interruptible status in return for low rates, or who have alternative fuel capability," the study said.

Weather Texas forecasts

By The Associated Press
A warming trend was forecast for most of Texas today with some areas expecting readings to be above freezing for the first time in several days.

Highs were to be in the 30s in Northwest Texas and in the 40s and 50s over the remainder of the state. Forecasts called for the possibility of some light rain or drizzle in the Lower Rio Grande Valley today, but most of the state had no mention of precipitation of any form in the latest forecasts.

Fog reduced visibility in portions of the Texas Panhandle and South Plains during the pre-dawn hours today. Skies were cloudy along the gulf coast and in the Valley and some areas of North Central Texas, but skies were clear over most of the state.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 20s and 30s with extremes ranging from seven at Dalhart in the Panhandle to 43 at McAllen in the Valley. Some early morning readings included 22 at Amarillo, 24 at Wichita Falls, 22 at Texarkana, 28 at Dallas-Fort Worth, 22 at Austin, 17 at Lufkin, 24 at Houston, 36 at Corpus Christi, 29 at Del Rio, 22 at San Angelo, 30 at El Paso and 27 at Lubbock.

National

By The Associated Press
Fair skies were reported in most of the nation today, a respite from days of rain, snow and freezing drizzle.

Stormy winter weather claimed another life Monday, that of a truck driver killed when his tractor-trailer rig slid from an icy Oklahoma highway. The death brought to at least 20 the number of weather-related deaths since Saturday.

Snow, sleet and rain knocked out power and glazed roads in parts of the East Monday, forcing some schools to close and causing scattered power failures.

Electric chair sought

CHICAGO (AP)—The electric chair will be sought for John Wayne Gacy, indicted on charges of murdering seven young men and boys whose bodies were buried at his suburban Chicago home or thrown into a nearby river, authorities say.

Bernard Carey, Cook County states attorney, said Monday he would ask for Gacy's execution. He said there was "more than one reason" why prosecutors could ask for the death penalty, but he refused to elaborate.

Gacy was indicted Monday by a Cook County grand jury for the seven murders.

Investigators have found the remains of 26 young men and boys beneath Gacy's home in Des Plaines, a northwest Chicago suburb.

Two area men hurt

Two McLean men were injured this morning when their car failed to negotiate a curve at the intersection of State Highway 152 and Farm and Market Road 2857.

Kenneth Rigby, 18, driver of the vehicle and Johnny Rigby, 23, were both injured when their vehicle collided with an embankment and ditch at the intersection.

A spokesman for Highland General Hospital said the men were still receiving emergency treatment and no report on their condition was available.

Department of Public Safety Trooper Harry Keyes said the Rigby vehicle was a total loss.

Local group to meet

Women's Aglow Fellowship will meet Thursday, at 7:30 p.m. at the Senior Citizens Center, 500 W. Francis. Guest speakers will be Jim and Joy Maloney from the James E. Maloney Evangelistic Association in Amarillo.

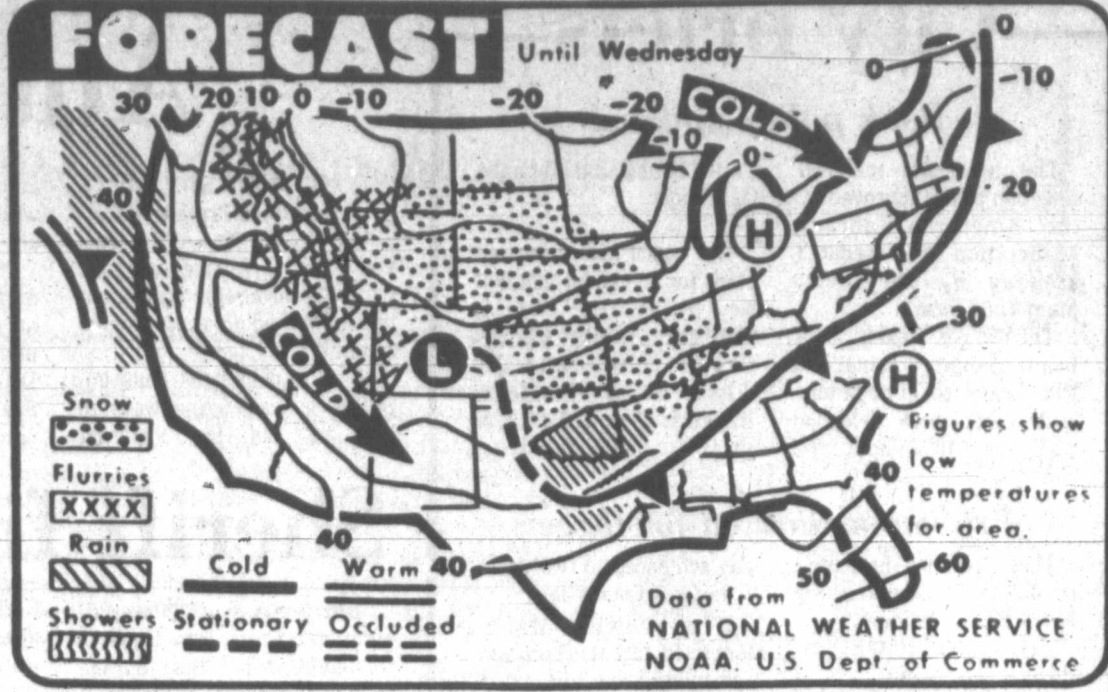

The Maloneys are graduates of Christ for the Nations Institute in Dallas, who travel fulltime sharing the word of God and ministering the workings of the Holy Spirit to the people.

The public is welcome to attend, and husbands are especially invited to join their wives this month.

Minor accidents

The car of Clay Williams was in collision with an auto driven by Larry Dale Quisenberry at the intersection of Houston and Frederick streets.

A car driven by Spencer King was in collision with an auto driven by Louston Lynn Samual at the intersection of Huff Road and Crawford Street.

WEATHER FORECAST by the National Weather Service calls for snow flurries and snow from the northern and central Rockies across most of the Plains to the Midwest. Rain is forecast for eastern Texas, southern Oklahoma, western Arkansas and the Pacific coast. Cold to very cold temperatures are expected in most areas.

Tax deductions discussed

Each year millions of taxpayers ask themselves, Should I file an itemized tax return? The answer is Yes, if your deductions exceed the standard deduction already allowed.

For single taxpayers, that means deductible expenses must exceed $2,200 or $3,200 for married persons.

When considering itemizing, examine five major areas: interest, taxes, medical and dental expenses, charitable contributions and miscellaneous deductions.

Interest on loans frequently contribute the greatest amount to itemized deduction expenses.

Be sure you account for all interest fees whether you borrowed to simply have cash on hand or pay for a home mortgage, car and/or education. And don't overlook the finance charge incurred when purchasing items by credit card, installment plan or budget charge cards.

Deductible medical-dental payments include non-reimbursed fees which exceed three percent of your adjusted gross income. Such fees include those paid to physicians or dentists, payments for hospital services, laboratory fees or x-rays and costs for eyeglasses, hearing aids and parts, dentures and crutches.

Dear Abby

by abilai van buren

DEAR ABBY: Every Monday night my husband goes to a friend's house to watch Monday Night Football with a bunch of guys, so I find something else to do.

Well, last Monday night I went to a movie with a girlfriend and on the way home I spotted my husband's car in front of his friend's house, so I thought I'd run in and say hi.

The door wasn't locked, so I just opened it and walked in. There I found my husband and three other guys sitting around in ladies' underwear, garter belts, wigs, high heels and makeup—the works. I nearly fainted.

They didn't seem upset at all. They just laughed it off.

Abby, my husband is normal in every way. We have three children and our sex life is great, so I'm sure he isn't a homosexual.

What do you call a man who gets dressed up in women's clothes just for the heck of it?

HONEY IN OMAHA

DEAR HONEY: A transvestite. And in Omaha, he's a MID-vestite.

DEAR ABBY: In answer to the woman who was sure her husband was on drugs but didn't know what to do about it, you were absolutely right! He must admit that he needs help before anything can be done for him.

But what about the wife? She's going out of her mind worrying about him. A few years ago I was in a similar situation—only it was my son who was on drugs. I felt so guilty and helpless, I didn't know where to turn. Then I discovered FAMILIES ANONYMOUS.

After attending one meeting I had my first good night's sleep in years! From other members who had experienced the agonies I had been through, I learned how to handle my son. When he saw the change in my attitude, his attitude began to change and so did he. It was just like a miracle!

He is now clean and happily married and, best of all, we are a loving family.

Abby, please tell your readers about this wonderful group.

GRATEFUL

DEAR GRATEFUL: I know that you are a legitimate self-help group. There are no dues or fees, no forms to fill out, no formal sign-up, no last names, and visitors are welcome.

For the location of a meeting in your area, write: FAMILIES ANONYMOUS, Inc., P.O. Box No. 344, Torrance, Calif. 90501. Please enclose a large stamped, self-addressed envelope for their response as they are a non-profit organization run by volunteers.

DEAR ABBY: My beloved husband, Jim, was electrocuted last summer at work. He had been in the Navy, but because of alcoholism was given an undesirable discharge. Twenty years later, that discharge was changed to "honorable" because of his active participation in Alcoholics Anonymous. (That's how we met.)

My problem? Jim was given a veteran's funeral and I was presented with a three-cornered flag which I keep in my closet in a plastic bag.

I want to fly that flag, Abby, because Jim was proud of his country and so am I. But some friends say I can't fly the flag. Can I?

BARBARA R.

DEAR BARBARA: There is absolutely no reason why you can't fly that flag as long as it is flown in accordance with the regulations.

Dr. Lamb

by lawrence lamb m.d.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have had asthma since early childhood with only a little improvement over the years. I am 16 and rarely have problems when exercising in warmer months. It seems to be in the winter when I run in the cold air that I have the most problems. Sometimes I'm practically disabled from wheezing.

I know the solution would be to cut back on outdoor workouts during this time, but when practicing basketball much of the running is done outside. Is there any reason the cold air should cause this wheezing or illness more easily than warmer weather? Participation in sports is very important to me. I would appreciate any advice you can give me.

DEAR READER — You've identified the culprit. It is the cold air. Very good studies have shown that cold air will cause an asthmatic attack during exercise even though the same amount of exercises in warm weather would not.

This is an important consideration for parents and teachers with all young asthmatics who might want to do physical exertion. The environment is important and a good way to help prevent asthmatic attacks during exercise is to do the exertion in warm, comfortable surroundings. Swimming, which is a good exercise for many asthmatics, should be done in a pool with the temperature between 85 and 90 degrees F.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 8-6 Asthma. It will give you more information about asthma and exercise for asthmatics. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a log-stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10015.

Whether or not a person who has asthma can exercise depends on what kind of exercise he might choose to do. Just because a person has asthma doesn't mean he can't be active. In the 1972 Olympics, five medal winners were asthmatics.

Exercise can cause asthmatic attacks. This is particularly true of prolonged, strenuous, physical activity. If the vigorous exertion is over five to eight minutes long, it is more likely it will precipitate an attack. There are lots of athletic events, though, that aren't that long, such as what you do during a baseball game. Long distance running would be an example of a poor choice of a sport for a young asthmatic. Many track and field events that are of relatively short duration would be quite satisfactory.

Also, there are some medicines that asthmatics can take prior to engaging in sports and physical exertion that can help prevent attacks. One of these is Cromolyn Sodium which is a fairly new medicine. The medicine is usually inhaled before the exertion to prevent bronchial spasms. Finally, I want to be sure you are seeing your physician. Proper management of your asthma at this stage can help you lead a more healthy and active life in the years to come.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am suffering from erysipelas on the right leg round the ankle resulting from a second degree burn experienced nine months ago. I understand the cause of this disease is unknown and there is no treatment other than rest. Is this correct?

DEAR READER — No, it's not. I don't know that you have erysipelas—that's the diagnosis you sent me. Erysipelas is an infection of the skin caused by streptococci bacteria of the same general group that causes a step throat. Usually the infection is of the skin over the face, although it can occur around a surgical incision or an injury. If you are correct and you do have erysipelas, then it can and should be treated with appropriate antibiotics.

BEAT INFLATED HIPS

(This is the second in a series of 15 articles in which Josephine Lowman, author of "Why Grow Old?" and leading authority on health and beauty, tells you exactly what to do to lose 20 pounds in eight weeks. You may want to save these menus and exercises to refer back to during the eight-week period.)

Inflation is on everyone's lips and on many people's hips! Has it hit you in more ways than one? It is just as hard on the figure as it is on the pocketbook. Fortunately, we have more control over our personal expansion than the government has over prices.

We KNOW that we can bring our inflation back to normal because lovely curves lie under the deposits of fat. These can be recaptured with diet and exercise, and in just eight weeks' time! This is no idle fancy of mine. It can happen to YOU if you really want it to. Why settle for burdensome pounds that make you look older, feel older, and are hazardous to health?

This is the second day of my eight-week Beauty Improvement plan (BIP) which gives you a loss of from 15 to 20 pounds in eight weeks. Today I want to talk to you about the menus. Their calorie count is around 1,200 a day, a little less or a little more. This gives the average woman a loss of about two pounds a week. Do not cut it lower than that.

When a woman has quite a lot of weight to lose, her skin must be given time to shrink to new proportions if wrinkles and flabbiness are to be avoided. Also, Dr. Robert Bradfield of the University of California warns that a too severely restricted caloric intake (800 a day or less) can cause hair loss. Be happy with losing 15 to 20 pounds in eight weeks.

The menus are planned for one person only. If you have others to feed, double the portions recommended for you. This will give them 2,400 calories a day instead of 1,200. Multiply by the number of people to be fed. If others still require more calories, you can compensate easily with a few additions to their meals.

If you live alone you may at times have to buy a larger quantity than that needed for one person. If so, store the surplus in the refrigerator or freezer. Many lone reducers like to prepare larger amounts, enough for several meals, and freeze the extra portions for later use.

Small portions lead to big losses. Be accurate when measuring your servings. You will need measuring spoons and cup. A small kitchen scale would be helpful but is not necessary. You can judge amounts fairly precisely without one. For instance, when a pound of anything is divided into four parts, each part contains four ounces and one usual size cup or glass of liquid has eight ounces. Remember that there is some loss in cooking. For instance, a pound of hamburger loses five ounces and a 2 1/2-pound fryer loses about six ounces during preparation.

The lunches are planned to be taken to work. Today many offices have refrigerators and hot plates. If yours doesn't, any problems you have can be solved with a thermos and a couple of containers.

MENU FOR WEDNESDAY BREAKFAST

Wheat pancakes with pineapple: Two 4-inch wheat pancakes topped with 1/4 cup crushed pineapple (packed in its own juice or fresh).

Bacon: One strip.
Skim milk: One 8-ounce glass.

Broiled mushroom caps: 8 large mushroom caps brushed with lemon juice.

Asparagus: 1 cup spears.
Boiled potato: One medium potato with 1 teaspoon butter or margarine, paprika and chopped, fresh parsley.

(Optional: one medium baked potato)

Skim milk: One 8-ounce glass
Orange: One Large.

If you missed the first day of this series or would like to have the entire course in a booklet, send for the BIP kit. This has complete directions for a loss of from 15 to 20 pounds in eight weeks, new and exciting calorie-counted menus for two weeks, spot reducing exercises and a wall chart on which to plot your progress and watch your beauty line rise as your weight line drops. For your kit, send $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for the BIP kit to Josephine Lowman, in care of this newspaper.

Swing your legs

Stand with your right side toward a chair and place your right hand on top of the chair for balance. Swing your right leg forward and your left arm backward simultaneously, arm and leg straight, toe pointed.

Now swing right leg back as you swing your left arm forward, smoothly. Continue. After a while, turn your left side to the chair and swing your right arm and left leg back and forth.

One in 10 hogs have illegal amounts of drugs

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Government tests show the illegal amounts of sulfa drugs continued to show up in almost one out of every 10 hogs slaughtered to provide the nation's pork supply last year.

Although not final, the figures compiled by Agriculture Department experts showed that through Nov. 21, about 9.3 percent of tissue samples checked for sulfonamide residues since the beginning of the year exceeded the legal limit.

The figures were provided by the department's Food Safety and Quality Service at the request of a reporter. Hog producers have used sulfa drugs for years to stimulate animals' growth and as a disease preventive. One called sulfamethazine has caused the biggest problem with residues showing up in pork.

The figures showed that of 5,712 tissue samples checked for sulfa residues last year, 530 of them contained amounts higher than federal regulations allow.

Although the heaviest concentrations of sulfa show up in livers and kidneys of swine, it also has been detected regularly in the red meat, such as pork roasts and hams.

For example, in the July-September quarter of last year sulfamethazine residue violations were detected in 163 pork livers from a sampling of 1,572 tested, a violation rate of 10.4 percent.

Illegally high residues of the drug were detected in 82 of 184 samples of muscle tissue (red meat), a violation rate of 44.5 percent, the figures showed.

The Food and Drug Administration allows no more than one-tenth of one part per million of sulfa residue in pork. The Agriculture Department is responsible for monitoring the meat supply for violations.

Stocks expected to hit new highs

NEW YORK (AP) — This isn't a forecast, a recommendation or an endorsement. It is merely to say that some analysts expect the Dow Jones industrial average to top 1,000 points one of these days.

You've heard it before, but the market hasn't. Repeatedly it has balked at "that barrier." And when it broke through, in 1973 and 1976, it quickly fell back again, seemingly exhausted by the effort.

Recently it's been slightly above or below 800 points, wary of high interest rates, inflation and the possibility of a recession, and buffeted by various forecasts of a fall into the mid-700s.

All this barely disturbs some analysts who focus on the future, who rely on fundamentals, and who maintain that the market eventually will overcome the negatives now strewn in its way.

"A new cyclical expansion of stock prices is likely to begin sometime in 1979," says Argus Research. Prices might fall some before the rise, it concedes, but then comes a market "that shouldn't be missed."

Like most bull markets, "it will probably get underway at a time of relatively poor economic conditions and widespread fear and confusion." But when it takes off, it will have a "tailwind."

The tailwind, says Argus, will be the containment of inflation and an acceleration in dividend growth. "As a result, equity prices could be swept to record high levels in the 1980s."

Arnold Bernhard, founder of the Value Line Investment Survey, has long been on record with a forecast well beyond 1,000 points by 1982. John Wright, of Wright Investors Service, shares the view: Babson's Reports expects the 1979 market to get a shade above 1,000 points.

Riots in Panama

Broken windows and burned-out buildings were the scene 15 years ago today, when anti-American riots broke out in Panama. Twenty-five people died in the disturbance, which began with a demonstration against American students who had refused to fly the flag of Panama together with the U.S. flag at their Canal Zone high school. Panama immediately broke off diplomatic relations with the United States, and demanded important changes in the 1903 treaty governing the Canal Zone and the Panama Canal.

Negotiations over the next 13 years eventually led to the two new canal treaties which the Senate approved last spring.

DO YOU KNOW — In what year is Panama scheduled to take control of the Panama Canal?

Announcers need 'Babble Bowl'

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — This may be the time for the hope and promise of a fresh new year, but sometimes I worry about all we're leaving behind. TV football announcers, for instance.

They're with us from August until January, their worn bromides dazing us through the long season. By season's end, with the holiday games and the Super Bowl, these sportscasters are more familiar to us than family.

Then suddenly, they're gone. It takes weeks for some of us to get over the separation anxiety: some fans don't recover until August, when it all begins anew. And what about the sportscasters themselves? Do the unspent clichés rot stillborn in those wonderful minds until the clash of helmet and pad again stirs them to duty?

I think television owes us a solution. Since there is no evidence the networks are working on the matter, here's a suggestion — let the announcers go on after the season ends.

I know ballplayers need an offseason to recover, but sportscasters don't. Why not let them just take to the air on week ends without football games? They could have announcing contests... no, a series of contests between the network broadcast teams, with the winner decided in a final clash of words.

They could call it the Babble Bowl. An impartial moderator would suggest a situation lifted from an actual football game; the network team responding first with an appropriate cliché would win the match.

It could go like this: Moderator: "A quarterback is surrounded by mean-and-intent-looking linemen from the other team. He's hit and he falls, but before he crashes to the ground, he unloads a perfect 30-yard pass to his receiver."

Winning comment: "Great play! That's the kind of thing you just can't coach." Moderator: "In an important college game, the ball carrier dives for the end zone but loses the ball before crossing the goal line. The referee calls a touchdown, but instant replay shows that the ref goofed." Winning comment: "Y'know folks, those men in the striped shirts have a tough job down there... they don't have the benefit of slo-mo and instant replay. Hindsight is always 20-20."

Moderator: "It's the fourth game of the season. The Bears and the Vikings meet for what promises to be a dull game.

The game fulfills that promise." Winning analysis: "You know, these Bears and Vikings are in the same division. They came to play. A must-win situation for both clubs."

Moderator: In a nationally televised game, a coaching legend is incensed when his team's last-ditch drive is stopped by an interception.

Stanford coach to take over 49ers?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Stanford head football coach Bill Walsh says he's "trying to make some decisions," but his school has called a news conference for today that reportedly will pave the way for his hiring by the beleaguered San Francisco 49ers.

Walsh, 46, is expected to be named to replace fired 49ers Coach Fred O'Connor. O'Connor lost his job Monday, along with General Manager Joe Thomas, after 49ers owner Eddie J. DeBartolo Jr. announced he was unhappy with "our total operation."

Contacted at his home after DeBartolo's long-expected announcement, Walsh wouldn't comment on reports he'd been tapped to return to pro football as a head coach of the 49ers.

"I'm in a position where I'm trying to make some decisions. It's a rather sensitive time," Walsh said.

But minutes later, Stanford Athletic Director Andy Geigeh called a news conference, reportedly to announce that Walsh has been released from his contract with the university.

The 49ers posted a pitiful 2-14 record, the team's worst in the past National Football League season.

In announcing the firings

Monday, 49ers owner DeBartolo said in a prepared statement that the franchise "has not progressed properly and I feel we must make changes to become more competitive."

He said an announcement on a new general manager and coach would be made soon. A new coach would be the fourth for the 49ers in three years.

DeBartolo said he was "distressed we have been losing games. What concerns me every bit as much as our record is the fact that our image and stature in the community has suffered."

DeBartolo's statement included no compliments for Thomas, who was hired in 1977. But he said O'Connor "did a most commendable job for the 49ers, especially considering the circumstances under which he was selected and the short-term nature of his appointment."

O'Connor became coach last November after Pete McCulley was fired. McCulley was 1-8, O'Connor 1-6.

Mentioned as possible replacements for Thomas, who was not available for comment, are Don Klosterman, general manager of the Los Angeles Rams, and Dick Mansperger, personnel director of the Seattle Seahawks.

Bradshaw named MVP

NEW YORK (AP) — Terry Bradshaw, who quarterbacked the Pittsburgh Steelers to the National Football League's best record during the regular season and into the Super Bowl, was named The Associated Press' Most Valuable Player today.

Bradshaw, who led the American Conference in passing and the league in touchdowns with a career-high 28, edged rookie running back Earl Campbell of the Houston Oilers 36 votes to 33 in nationwide balloting by 84 sports writers and broadcasters, three from each NFL city.

Jim Zorn, the left-handed quarterback of the Seattle Seahawks, was a distant third in the balloting with six votes, followed by Dallas Cowboys' quarterback Roger Staubach with four. No other player received more than one vote.

"Terry's play and statistics speak for themselves. Both were outstanding," said Steelers' Coach Chuck Noll. "He is deserving of any award. The players voted him MVP for two successive seasons and now this honor proves what a great player he is."

And Dick Hoak, Pittsburgh's backfield coach, added: "Terry has always been an underrated football player. He's big, he's strong, he throws as well as anyone. He can run with anyone and he has matured to become an outstanding quarterback."

Bradshaw, an AP College Division All-American as a senior at Louisiana Tech and the Steelers' No. 1 draft choice in 1970, completed 207 of 368 passes for 2,915 yards, a league-high 7.92 yards per pass as the Steelers compiled a regular-season 14-2 record en route to the AFC's Central Division title.

Most notable, perhaps, was the absence of injuries which had plagued Bradshaw in past seasons, and the presence of a consistency which had been missing much of that time.

Despite being blessed with a corps of receivers including Lynn Swann, John Stallworth and Randy Grossman, Bradshaw was relatively sparing in his passing. When he threw, he was rarely off target.

Against Buffalo he completed 14 of 19 passes, then did the same against Cincinnati. He hit on 13 of 18 against Atlanta, 16 of 23 against New Orleans and 10 of 14 against Denver in other regular-season games that turned what was supposed to be a close division race into a runaway.

Campbell, the Heisman Trophy winner from the University of Texas, took the NFL by storm, winning the rushing title with 1,450 yards.

Spartans retain No. 1 spot

By The Associated Press
Michigan State, which erased a 13-point deficit and beat Big Ten rival Minnesota 69-62 in its only game last week, remains on top in the latest Associated Press college basketball poll.

The Spartans, 9-1, received 38 of 59 first-place votes from the national panel of sports writers and broadcasters and a total of 1,140 points for a comfortable lead over runnerup Notre Dame, which collected eight first-place votes and 1,048 points.

The top four teams were unchanged from the previous week, with Michigan State and Notre Dame followed by North Carolina and Illinois. The Tar Heels got just one first-place vote but totaled 1,010 points, while the Illini, unbeaten in 14 games, received five first-place votes and 994 points.

Louisiana State, which was unbeaten before losing to Vanderbilt Monday night, moved from seventh place to fifth with six first-place votes and 968 points.

UCLA retained sixth place with 837 points while preseason favorite Duke slipped from fifth to seventh with 823 points despite victories over Davidson, Long Beach State and Tulane last week.

The lone remaining first-place vote went to North Carolina State, which remained in eighth place with 801 votes.

Two newcomers enjoying unbeaten seasons completed the Top Ten. Indiana State, 11-0, moved up to ninth place with 608 points followed closely by Arkansas, 9-0, with 606 points. Texas A&M, idle last week, fell one notch to 11th place, followed by Louisville, Marquette, Georgetown, D.C. Kansas, Michigan, Kentucky, Temple, Long Beach State and Syracuse.
