Protest expected for Chinese leader

WASHINGTON (AP) — Groups ranging from anti-communists to radical Maoists plan a barrage of protests when Chinese leader Teng Hsiao-ping arrives this weekend.

But federal officials say Teng's entourage and the demonstrators probably will never get within a block of one another as authorities plan to tightly control the protesters' movements.

Department officials were reluctant in interviews Thursday to discuss the security precautions, which are known to be heavy for the first visit ever by a leader of China's 30-year-old communist government.

It's going to be quite tight and secure," said State Department spokesman Warren Christopher. "Chinese security officials have been in this country to help plan security, but U.S. officials would give no details on their activities or say when they arrived."

Teng, the 71-year-old deputy premier who has led China's shift toward greater diplomatic and economic cooperation with the West, arrives Sunday to begin a six-day stay that also will take him to Atlanta, Houston and Seattle.

The U.S. Park Service, which controls activities on federal land near the White House, has issued demonstration permits to five groups and said Thursday more permit requests may yet come in.

Good afternoon News in brief

The forecast for tonight calls for one to two inches of snow with the low in the teens. The high tomorrow will be near 30 with the chance of snow diminishing after tonight. A travelers advisory will be in effect tonight and tomorrow.

Garbage disposal contract considered

City officials are looking into the possibility of contracting with an Amarillo firm for garbage disposal in Pampa.

several plans being considered by officials as they study converting from garbage cans to larger containers. The city commission is still trying to determine the best way to finance such a move.

Plan would help elderly with bills

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A proposal to help the elderly pay high utility bills sounds good, state welfare officials agree, but it could jeopardize other medical and social funds supplements.

Sen. Bill Patman, D-Ganado, explained his legislative plan Thursday to divert $69 million annually from natural gas severance taxes to the utility bill relief fund.

whole program goes out," Moore added. Patman agreed, saying, "It could reduce Supplemental Security Income checks or food stamps if certain (disbursement) methods are used."

Under the senator's plan, Texas voters would be asked to approve a constitutional amendment dedicating one cent of the 7 1/2-cent severance tax to a utility relief fund.

500 feared dead in crash

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A passenger train packed with men, women and children ran off the tracks in western Bangladesh today and as many as 500 persons were feared dead, the United News of India reported.

and four passenger cars jumped the tracks and landed in a ditch. It said the accident occurred in Chuadanga, about 95 miles west of Dacca in Kushtia district near the border with India.

4 hostages held

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A 33-year-old ex-convict barricaded himself in an apartment on the city's West Side Thursday night, after a police officer answering a disturbance call was shot in the back and leg.

but later was paroled. Police said he has a lengthy record, including three charges of homicide, two of robbery, and one of burglary, assault and weapons violation.

Special SWAT officers and negotiating teams tried all night and early today to coax Richard Jimenez from the housing project apartment, where a woman he had been dating and her three children were said to be held captive.

Weather plays games

Road conditions were reported clear this morning by the Department of Public Safety for District 4, which covers New Mexico to the Texas-Oklahoma border. However, further rain or snow could add to the hazardous road conditions that existed Thursday because of the weather.

roads were expected to freeze. Amarillo had the most snow and rain fall with 33 inches of precipitation reported. Temperatures there ranged from the low 30s to 36 during the day. A Department of Public Safety official said that the highways in Amarillo had some slick spots from freezing ice.

River gave way Thursday, forcing the evacuation of 300 families. New York state residents were hit by heavy rain and wet snow that sent rivers and streams over their banks. High water forced evacuations in the western part of the state, and the storm left thousands without power for up to 12 hours.

Today's forecast calls for a 50 percent chance of precipitation and lows in the mid-teens tonight.

Borger reported its area roads as clear even though 10 of an inch fell. The high there was in the mid-30s.

In upstate New York, road crews mixed sand and crushed stone with salt stockpiles as several cities reported critical shortages. In New York City, more than 2 inches of rain had been recorded since Wednesday night.

Rain and snow dampened the streets of Pampa and surrounding areas Thursday. Fluctuating temperatures between 30 and 40 degrees left ice and puddles on roads.

Meanwhile, record-setting rains and icy floodwaters soaked parts of New England, New York and New Jersey today, driving more than 1,200 residents from their homes, the Associated Press reported.

High tides and winds in Atlantic City, N.J., caused an estimated $1 million damage to beaches in the casino section.

Pampa received 16 inches of precipitation while areas within a 50 mile radius had an average of 17 inches, according to reports from Departments of Public Safety.

Midwesterners took a fresh grip on their snow shovels to combat expected new snowfalls.

Meanwhile, the Associated Press reported that the sun and moon will join this weekend to produce unusually high tides worldwide, according to scientist whose research spans 350 years of ocean data.

In the north, Perryton reported that an inch of snow fell, leaving 11 inches of precipitation.

The National Weather Service in Los Angeles said tides this weekend are expected to reach 6.9 feet, the highest level likely this year. But there will be no winds to create flooding, the weather service said.

Perryton also reported the lowest temperatures of the day at 29 degrees. Pampa's low was 35 degrees, although temperatures dropped into the 20s Thursday night.

The moon's gravitational pull is the main force governing ocean tides, but the study showed tides have been highest when three unusual factors combine.

Driving conditions in the Perryton area were considered to be slick and hazardous.

First, the sun, Earth and moon align briefly along a straight line. This occurs twice a month, at the time of the full and new moon, and results in what are known as "spring tides," in which the range between high and low tides is about 20 percent greater than normal.

The Wheeler area, east of Pampa, had lows in the mid-30s. The rain and snow fall left about a 10 of inch of precipitation there.

Record rains, gale winds and high tides built floods that sent hundreds packing in the coastal communities of Revere, Nahant and Scituate near Boston. About 400 people were evacuated from Quincy, and others left Marshfield, Hull and Salem as Massachusetts suffered its wettest January in 161 years.

Driving on Wheeler roads was expected to be hazardous since melted snow froze overnight.

Boston recorded 2.33 inches of rain in 24 hours, bringing the January total to a record 10.33 inches. In Grafton, Mass., a 15-foot section of a dam on the Quinsigamond

Valuable books found in shed

THORNDALE, Texas (AP) — The Rev. Reinhard Wuensche Sr., a religious historian, did not know what to expect when he was summoned to a shed near an abandoned farmhouse suspected of containing valuable church relics.

He used to live on the Reinhard Schneider farm where the books were recently found in an old immigration coffer by its present owners, who summoned church officials.

But Wuensche said they appear authentic. The deterioration of the handwritten notes inside the quality of the paper, Paper made nowadays is much thinner. These books are straw-weighted for all their size.

He opened an old forgotten trunk stashed in the shed and began poring over its contents.

Afterward, the books were disinfected and deodorized — "rats had gotten in and lived in there and chewed on some of the books." He said the volumes were printed within about a 10-year span with the oldest one dated 1558.

He said the volumes, written by the German monk whose teachings were the foundation of the Lutheran Church, still have the brass fittings used to hold them closed. He said notations indicate they were brought to Texas by Kramer and once had been in possession of the Lamspringengis Monastery, but Wuensche said he does not know where such a place is.

"At first all I found were Milam County archives," said Wuensche. "It was later in the afternoon when I suddenly discovered them."

The rat-infested coffer yielded what Lutheran Church officials believe is a priceless collection of the works of Martin Luther, the church's founder, printed in the 1500s.

One notation, written in Latin, says "Magnificently donated by the royal graciousness of Rudolph August, duke of Brunswick and Luxembourg."

Police said a man identifying himself as Jimenez called, gave his name, and said "I want someone with some brains, someone of higher rank."

Wuensche, archivist for the Texas District of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, examined the six volumes and said Thursday, "I honestly believe they are authentic."

The volumes are part of an eight-book set Wuensche said Volumes 1 and 4 were missing. In the title page of each volume are the initials "V.D.M.I.A.E." Wuensche said this was Latin for "God's word maintains itself to eternity."

The officer offered to relay the call by radio to police at the scene and also urged the man to surrender. He declined, but gave the officer the telephone number of the apartment.

Wuensche has arranged to take the 420-year-old books to St. Louis for examination by the church's national archivist, Gerhard Kramer. By coincidence, the books

Commission's life on line

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Good Neighbor Commission will soon be in the market for a legislator to help save its life.

The 36-year-old commission is threatened with extinction and is writing its own prescription to stay alive.

Executive Director Eddie Aurispa reminded the Senate Finance Committee on Thursday that the Sunset Advisory Commission did not recommend whether to extend the good neighbor commission.

He noted, however, six of the eight sunset advisory members voted "in the affirmative for a recommendation."

Failure of the Legislature to enact a bill continuing the commission would put it out of business in 1980.

It was created in 1943 to offset anti-American propaganda some legislators have said publicly through the years they think the agency is a waste of state tax dollars.

The finance committee is working on a budget prepared by the Legislative Budget Board, which recommended $326,362 in state funds for the commission in 1980-81.

This is approximately the current level of financing and is $422,394 less than the commission requested, but Aurispa said the agency would accept the board's budget recommendation.

Rep. Lance Lalor, D-Houston, has introduced a bill to create a Commission on Inter-American Resources, which purportedly would assume many of the good neighbor commission's duties.

Its stated goal is to foster inter-American goodwill, but

Dear Abby

by abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 82 and in good health. My wife died three years ago and I live alone in an apartment.

Two years ago a nice-looking 65-year-old widow moved into the apartment across the hall and we became friendly. We started eating together—usually at my place. She would prepare everything at her place and bring it over.

After supper we watched TV, held hands, and exchanged a few kisses. Well, before I knew it, things got out of hand and she was spending the night with me. In my bed!

I finally put a stop to it when she began to tell me she was "in love" with me. At no time did I tell her I was in love with her because I'm not.

Now she comes over every night without being invited, and she's pressuring me to marry her.

I have no intentions of marrying this lady or any other. How do I disassociate myself from her without hurting her feelings?

WANTS OUT

DEAR WANTS: Be honest. Tell the lady you have no plans to marry her and she will probably disassociate herself from YOU. If she doesn't, you could cool the relationship by seeing another lady or two...or three.

DEAR ABBY: Sex is an animal instinct which is normal in animals. Man is an animal, right? SO when man feels the natural urge to have sex, what is wrong with following his natural instincts?

MAX

DEAR MAX: Animals have a natural urge to procreate. The lowest animals mate by instinct. Man, the highest of all animals, mates not only to procreate, but to express the ultimate in love.

Animals have no capacity for love. One mate is a good as the next. Casual and promiscuous mating among civilized people (or simply using another to satisfy one's own selfish sex urge) is not only immoral, it's meaningless. It is for lower animals. It's also for the birds.

DEAR ABBY: We have two small boys. One is 4 and the other is 2½. I feel that my husband expects too much too soon of them.

The little tykes come to the table happy and hungry, but by the time my husband gets through correcting their every move ("Sit up straight, take your elbows off the table, stop talking with your mouth full, you're eating too fast, you're eating too slow etc.") these poor kids leave the table in tears with their plates practically untouched.

How can I make my husband understand that, besides making the boys dread mealtime, it could be bad for their health?

IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR IN: You have three "little boys." Tell the one you're married to that there is a more effective way to teach children. It's true that serious digestive problems often develop when children (and adults as well) attempt to eat when they are upset.

Implore your husband to resist the urge to shout criticisms and orders at the table. Gentleness is the key word here. Should he forget, gently kick him in the ankle.

Dr. Lamb

by lawrence lamb m.d.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am a 37-year-old male and I have arthritis. I have found that by keeping my body weight down I feel better. I am 6 foot 3 with a large frame and weigh 190 pounds. I am interested in jogging. My stress test was OK. The problem is that there is too much stress on my legs for jogging.

Since strokes are common in my family, I'd like to stay as light as I can and still be healthy. I would also like to be active to the extent that this might prevent problems later on. Is my calculation of an optimal weight of 170 pounds correct? Because of my arthritis, I should do exercises that work my heart and develop my circulation but ones that do not stress my joints. Are there any that I could do at home?

DEAR READER: Regardless of how tall you are or how big your frame is, the rule is always the same. The way to find out if you are too fat is by measuring the fat under the skin. That means literally getting hold of your skin around the waist. If you have a half inch or more, you usually have some fat you could lose.

Since you are only 37, the probabilities are that you have rheumatoid arthritis.

You're absolutely right about your concepts of exercising. One of the best exercises I know for people who have joint disorders of any type, whether they are from osteoarthritis, rheu-matoid arthritis or osteoporosis is swimming. The buoyancy of the water helps to support the body and eliminates the undesirable strain on the joints. At the same time, swimming is a good endurance exercise and can build up your heart and lungs.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am a 15-year-old girl and I don't wear a brassiere. All my friends joke and jeer at me about it. I am writing to prove them or me wrong.

What are the pros and cons on bras? One friend says that I can get breast cancer. Is that true? Should I stay comfortable and not wear one or wear one for health reasons? Or, does it really make any difference?

DEAR READER: It might depend on what you have to put inside your brassiere. A brassiere does provide support to an ample breast and helps prevent sagging. If you don't wear a brassiere, the ligaments inside the breast tend to stretch. That means the amply endowed woman is apt to have sagging problems earlier in life if she doesn't wear a brassiere.

If you happen to be a jogger or are physically active, you might find that not wearing a brassiere merely from the clothing rubbing you.

No, you can't get breast cancer from not wearing a brassiere.

Helping to break child abuse cycle

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK (NEA) — They're one of a kind, the abusing mother and her abused child. Both fearful, rejected, immature; the former teaching the latter to deal with frustrations by losing control physically.

So the child becomes an abusing parent — whose children then go on to abuse theirs.

But while the child is always viewed sympathetically, the parent is despised. Allow compassion for the mother, too, and maybe the cycle can be interrupted.

That's the "help one, save many" philosophy underlying SCAN-New York (Suspected Child Abuse and Neglect), a privately funded volunteer, parent-aides association which operates like similar programs in Little Rock, Ark.; Chicago; Denver; Berkeley, Calif.; and elsewhere in the country.

Formed in 1977 by Nancy Fisher, SCAN-New York oversees 20 volunteers who work one-to-one with 20 abusive and/or neglectful mothers referred to the organization by authorities.

Mothers whose children are kept in protective custody in the hospital after the burns or fractures heal; who are told by Child Protective Services, if you want your child back, let a SCAN-New York volunteer work with you, along with the professionals.

The volunteers — all women but one, from 22 to 50 — are generally unemployed which guarantees their availability. If the lock jams at 2 p.m. or 2 a.m., the mother has someone to call for help instead of panicking and punching the baby.

But the volunteer must be available for the right reasons.

Says founder Nancy Fisher, "Applicants are carefully screened because we don't want people who want to solve their own problems by controlling someone else or taking their anger out on that person."

The volunteer must be patient, reliable, self-assured, committed, understanding — a ministering angel who can withstand onslaughts of frustration.

Like Paula Lidsky, mother of two, who volunteered in March '78 when she first heard about the program. "I'd always wanted to do something about child abuse, although it frightened me," she says.

So she underwent the interviews and the three days' training, which includes frightening films on child abuse and workshops with a city hospital pediatrician and other experts on the subject.

Then she was assigned to a black mother, 28, whose infant son had suffered three mysterious concussions.

But it took weeks to make contact. "I'd write letters and I'd call and she'd say, 'I don't need any help. I need my privacy.'"

Finally, they met. "She has scratches and scars all over," Mrs. Lidsky says. "She was severely neglected as a child. Her mother is an alcoholic and she wasn't fed or clothed."

So "child development" and "motherhood" were just words to her. "She had no concept of either. She thought of her baby as a grown-up and she couldn't understand why he made demands on her time."

"And she hardly touched him," she says. "If I pick him up, he'll be a sissy, she'd say. She'd only feed him if he was lying in an infant's seat."

When she fed him, that is. "I had to constantly remind her. She didn't even understand he needed to be fed three times a day."

Three times a week, though, Mrs. Lidsky showed up to take mother and child for medical appointments; to help them get on welfare; trying not to lose patience as the conversation kept drifting from nutrition to "Charlie's Angels."

And, because the woman was a mother in name only, showing her how one behaves.

"I'd pick up the baby and hug him and say, 'It feels so good to him to be loved. If he can rely on you, he'll grow up strong and healthy. It's okay to love your baby.'"

Gradually, she says, there were changes. "First, the mother began to rub his hand a little when she fed him and that grew into a caress. Now, she actually holds him and kisses him. And she smiles. It's incredible."

He's eating regularly, too, and, what's more, she says, "I think she's less fearful of people in general now."

Nevertheless, she says, "She still doesn't trust me completely and I have ap-

Special kids need equal education

By REV. L.B. HALL
During this Year of The Child we have begun to take stock of our local and national situations. We see a number of areas where we have accomplished some really great things, but we also see that we have much to do.

In the past few years we have celebrated 200 years of United States history and we point with pride to the many achievements and the contributions we have made to science, world order, medicine and so on. We need also to be reminded occasionally that one of the dreams of our founding fathers and mothers was a dream of a free, equal and public education for all.

The 1970s finds our country deeply involved in a struggle to make this a reality for a large segment of our population. There are several million children with special needs, many of whom have historically been excluded or short changed from the education process. Our program for lifting up the child reminds us that we still have a long way to go!

Two years ago I spent several months working in a Chaplain's program at a large center for the retarded in a major state. As I look back on that experience I realize two things. First, I went to this experience thinking I had to do everything! Those persons I would come into contact with were unable to do anything. They had to be taken care of to the ultimate degree. This attitude put a very heavy burden on me and I soon developed guilt feelings because I could not "fix" all of those persons.

The second thing I learned is I was wrong! My attitude had come to me from a number of sources — personal, family and community — but those sources were wrong. The simple fact is that only a very small percentage of the handicapped and mentally disturbed children in America are absolutely dependent on others. The great majority, with proper care, training, love and education, are able to accomplish many things for themselves and others. A lot of people would be surprised to learn how many of the company's in America hire these persons precisely because of their power of concentration and stick-to-itiveness.

We have arrived at the issue of this article. Are we doing all we can to guarantee the handicapped and the mentally retarded a free, equal and public education? I shall not attempt to answer this question in detail. Sometimes an issue is more forceful left as a question to haunt our senses. But, I will list up a couple of observations. Free, equal and public education means just that — too often children with special needs have to be educated at home or in private schools at the parents expense.

This means that most cannot afford to be educated. Second, handicapped and mentally retarded children are not frightening, they are like you and me — children of God. They are special and need love and care.

What can we do? Perhaps on the local level this suggestion is possible. The city and county government, the school board, the churches and the Chamber of Commerce could come together, form a committee to study and implement PL 94-142. That's Public Law 94-142 which is titled "Education for All Handicapped Children Act." As we begin the process of working in this area other opportunities for service will rise and we may all be richly blessed by our efforts.

a little BIG NOW

We all get a thrill out of seeing our children put on our hats or shoes. Obviously they don't fit now, but some day he, or she will grow to fit them. At the same time imagine that they are trying on our lives. Would they fit? ... or do you live the type of life that you would want them to grow to. Live a life of worship of the Lord.

"Thou wilt shew me the path of life; in thy presence is fulness of joy; at thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore."

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding, in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Farmers have made stunning recovery

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although many farmers will disagree, new government figures show that as a national group they made a stunning financial recovery last year.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said Wednesday that net farm income soared 40 per cent in 1978 to $28.1 billion from $20.1 billion in 1977.

Prices of commodities at the farm, led by cattle, rose sharply in 1978 and averaged 22 percent higher at the end of the year.

Bergland included the income figures and some other statistics in testimony for the Senate Agriculture Committee.

The Agriculture Department, until then, had been saying farmers' net income last year would be about $26 billion, up 29.3 percent from 1977.

The revised estimate puts farm income at the second highest level on record, behind the $29.9 billion farmers realized in 1973 when it jumped from $17.8 billion the previous year.

Bergland also said total U.S. farm assets — the book value of land and other holdings — rose more last year than had been indicated a few months ago, largely because of land prices going up faster than had been anticipated.

The improved income figures do not mean that all farmers shared equally in the gains last year. There are always those who are hard-pressed even in the best of times, and those who prosper in the worst.

But as a measure of agricultural finances, the indicators — income, assets, debts for instance — do serve in comparing changes from one year to another.

"In virtually every respect, 1978 was a good year for the American farmer (and) 1979 looks like it will be another," Bergland said.

In addition, farmers earned $34.4 billion from off-farm jobs, a 10 percent increase.

Many farmers still have financial problems, Bergland said, but most farmers in most regions "shared in the improved prosperity."

Most of that was due to sharply higher livestock prices, for which the government can take no credit, he said, but the rest came "because of new programs established under legislation proposed by the administration and passed by Congress" the last two years.

Sen. Jesse A. Helms, R-N.C., said, "Farmers don't agree with your statistics on how well they're doing. ... Are you playing around with statistics?"

"Yes, sir, we are," Bergland replied. "They are misleading. We have to deal with averages."

Carson D. Evans of the department's Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service, at the request of a reporter, provided some further information on the "balance sheet" of agriculture as of Jan. 1 and for the year ahead.

Some of the changes from a year ago, included:

—Total physical assets of farmers were valued at $752.3 billion, including $588.9 billion in real estate. A year ago, those totaled $672.1 billion, including real estate at $525.8 billion.

—Including other holdings such as bank deposits and investments, the grand total of farmers' assets on Jan. 1 was $790.1 billion, up 11.5 percent from $708.3 billion a year earlier.

—Farm debt on Jan. 1 rose further to $135.9 billion, up 14.3 percent from $118.9 billion at the start of 1978.

Carter discovers pitfalls to getting appointees out

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the strange case of Jay Solomon, President Carter has discovered once again the pitfalls in moving a presidential appointee out of a job.

Last Friday — only a week after the abrupt firing of Bella Abzug as chairman of a presidential advisory commission on women — Carter ran into a new personnel problem with the head of the General Services Administration, which manages the government's buildings and is the central purchasing house for government supplies.

The problem surfaced publicly last weekend when a reporter asked Solomon, a Carter appointee who helped launch the current investigation into allegations of GSA corruption, about reports that top White House aides were seeking his replacement.

Caught off-guard, Solomon said he had no intention of leaving his post and that he had not known that a successor was being sought.

Despite a flurry of statements about Solomon's status during the next several days, doubt remained at midweek as to whether Solomon was — or was not — leaving. And the White House was facing potential public relations difficulties.

The Solomon affair fueled renewed criticism of the Carter administration's handling of personnel matters and even prompted speculation that the White House might be trying to gain more direct control of the GSA corruption investigation.

Although conceding they have no firm evidence, some officials close to the GSA investigation speculated that the corruption probe may have touched a politically sensitive area that has worried some people in power.

Others suggested that administration officials were concerned about how GSA general counsel Irwin Borowski would act if he were named inspector general and given subpoena power under a new law enacted last October — as Solomon wants. One source said Borowski had talked of issuing dozens of subpoenas if he became inspector general.

Borowski is Solomon's first choice to become inspector general and some sources say the GSA chief's insistence that the former Securities and Exchange Commission lawyer be appointed led to his own job difficulties.

Borowski was reportedly considered "too aggressive" by some elements of the administration, and the position of inspector general has not yet been filled.

The administration denies that concern about the GSA investigation was a factor in the decision to seek a new GSA head.

Instead, the White House has depicted the replacement of Solomon as an innocent attempt to meet the GSA chief's expressed wish to leave his post early this year.

Presidential press secretary Jody Powell said the search resulted from Solomon telling the president last fall that he wanted to leave the GSA job early in the new year.

The confusion over Solomon's job status prompted a 45-minute meeting between the GSA administrator and President Carter on Monday. However, that meeting, apparently designed to clear the air, led to a series of conflicting statements that left Solomon's job plans in even greater doubt.

After the meeting, Powell told reporters that the president had expressed confidence in Solomon's handling of the GSA investigation, but added that Solomon still planned to leave sometime in the first half of the year.

However, Solomon then issued a statement saying that he intended to "see through" the investigation which will clearly not be completed in the next few months. Solomon's statement was later revised to say that the GSA head would stay until the probe is on a "firm footing" and that he would leave in a few months.

In an interview, Borowski said the apparent decision to replace Solomon would make it more difficult to gain cooperation from GSA employees who have long suspected that the anti-corruption drive would be short-lived.

Restraint taking hold as new fiscal fashion

NEW YORK (AP) — The new fiscal fashion is restraint, as illustrated by tax revolts, limitations on state spending and the tenor if not substance of President Carter's budget proposals. It's the style.

As with other styles, in clothing, cars and modes of living, fashion begets reaction. And those who are paid to assess the future, such as financial analysts, say they see at least one inevitable reaction.

It will come from state and local governments, they say, from units of government expected to provide services despite slower revenue growth and less aid from Washington. It's the flip side of the tax coin.

That other side, say the bond men on Wall Street, has never been fully evaluated, appreciated or anticipated by the advocates of restraint.

Over the years, it is explained, state and local governments have enlarged the scope of their services. With revenue growth lagging and a recession threatening, those services may have to be ended.

As some municipal finance analysts see it, the problems that got the cities into serious financial trouble have never been resolved, the biggest of them being the loss of population and jobs.

The cities hardest hit in the last recession, large and medium-sized cities in the Northeast, remain financially weak, says Merrill Lynch Economics, Inc. In a recession, it concludes, they'd be hurt again.

"However," it continues, "they are likely to be joined this time by some Midwestern and Southern cities in bearing the fiscal brunt of a recession. These vulnerable cities are characterized by a long-term underlying imbalance between their revenue base and service needs."

Many cities, it observes, approach the new environment (possible inflation and less aid from Washington) in quite poor shape.

Much to your delight you'll be able this coming year to function in a more independent manner. Many restrictions of the past are lifting, and an easier road is ahead.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't talk about your friends today unless you have something flattering to say about them. They'll have a way of finding out everything you said.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Although you will be most anxious for socializing, you may have trouble feeling in synch with what others are doing today. Don't collect guilt from it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Persons important to your cause may not be as easy to win over as you thought. When you present your case, be sure it is believable.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Strive to be more philosophical than materialistic today. If you place too much emphasis on materialism you are going to wind up disappointed.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be prepared to make some concession today where you share something of value. A give-and-take attitude is needed in order for either party to gain.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Too much fun and games today could cause your work to suffer. Unfortunately, it will then have to be done at a far less convenient time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your priorities tend to be out-of-order today. You are likely to place more attention on that which is easy, causing your responsibilities to pile up.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If at all possible, try not to bring problems home that have nothing to do with the family. You'll get everyone all stirred up for no reason.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You might be better off to forego any business deals today. Although it might first appear like you're getting a deal, you'll be the one who is taken.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It's a very fine thing to be helpful, but today take care you aren't drawn into something only to find yourself left holding the bag.

All of Pampa's high school sports teams are in action tonight, as the boys and girls basketball teams take a break from District 3-AAAA competition and the Harvester swimmers travel to Amarillo for their final dual meet of the year.

The girls cagers, who are in the midst of a three-game losing streak, will have their hands full when they host the powerful Plainview Dogettes. Plainview carries a 21-1 record into the game, slated for 7:45 at Harvester Field House, and already owns a victory over Pampa this season.

Plainview stopped the Harvester girls 66-46 at Plainview Dec. 5. Pampa took an early lead in that game but was outscored 22-8 in the final quarter to give the Dogettes the win.

Plainview features Gay Hemphill, a 5-11 sophomore whose scoring average is well into double figures. She hit 29 in the first game with Pampa to beat Kellye Richardson for scoring honors. Richardson had 25.

The boys, meanwhile, will travel to Plainview with hopes of keeping their two-game winning streak alive.

"It's a key game," Coach Gary Abercrombie said Thursday. "We've got to win it for confidence reasons, and we're fighting for a winning season. It would be the first time we've been over .500 this season."

With wins over Palo Duro and Amarillo High in their last two outings, the Harvesters boast a 12-12 record and a second-place (3-1) finish in the first half of District 3-AAAA play.

The Bulldogs, who have been bolstered by the addition of some football players since they lost a 72-49 decision at Pampa Dec. 5, carry a 2-1 District 4-AAAA record — and 6-18 mark overall — into tonight's match.

"It's the same for them," Abercrombie said of the game's importance. "Between districts, a team can usually relax a bit and that generally helps the home team. They're fighting for respectability on their season."

"It's a game we need to win if we hope to have a winning season," he concluded.

Mike Eckhart and his swimmers are facing a different sort of task when they take on Palo Duro and Caprock in Amarillo.

The double dual, which was scheduled for 4 p.m. at the Maverick Boys Club in Amarillo, pits the Harvester tankers against some unknown competition.

"I don't know what to expect,"

Eckhart said Thursday. "They really haven't had enough swimmers for a team before this. I'm sure they'll have somebody, or the athletic directors wouldn't have organized it."

Eckhart will take five girls and 13 boys to the meet, which will be Pampa's last dual of the season. The Harvesters will be in Amarillo next weekend for that city's invitational meet and then begin preparations for the District Meet in Amarillo Feb. 13.

"I'm not going to predict anything," Eckhart said, "but if we can win a meet this year, this will be it. It depends on what they (Caprock and Palo Duro) do."

"I feel good about it overall," he continued. "It'll be a good meet and give us an idea of what to expect in districts."

Yanks expected to offer package deal for Carew

BOSTON (AP) — Minnesota Twins owner Calvin Griffith awaited the New York Yankees' expected multiplayer offer today for batting star Rod Carew, who does not want to return to the Twins.

Although Yankees owner George Steinbrenner denied a deal was in the works, Yankees President Al Rosen confirmed on Thursday that the World Series champions have all but settled on a package for the seven-time American League batting champion.

"We have a pretty good idea of what we will offer," said

Rosen at the Boston Baseball Writers 40th annual dinner, "but it hasn't been formalized yet."

Griffith, in Orlando, Fla., said the Twins have given the Yankees a list of several players — believed to include first baseman Chris Chambliss and outfielder Juan Beniquez — that the Twins want for Carew. The Twins owner said he would deal the batting star either to New York or the California Angels by spring training.

"Right now, I'm just waiting for an offer from the Yankees," Griffith said. "George Steinbrenner and Al Rosen promised they'd call me no later than Friday morning with their proposal."

Meanwhile, Carew, who thought he had negotiated a contract with the Angels, set a Feb. 10 deadline for escaping Minnesota and added that if no deal is made by then he would resign himself to playing another season for Griffith.

The perennial AL batting leader is not a free agent, but he has insisted he wants out of Minnesota because of contract and other disputes with Griffith. He could become a free agent after the 1979 season.

Carew was interviewed at halftime of the Minnesota-Purdue basketball game Thursday night, at which time he set his Feb. 10 deadline.

He also was asked if he preferred the Angels to the Yankees.

Boxers to host Russian team

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — This country's top amateur boxers face their Russian counterparts in a series of bouts described as the best experience possible for another strong U.S. showing in the 1980 Olympics.

The three-round fights, with bouts in each of the 11 Olympic weight divisions, will be held Saturday at the Las Vegas Hilton Hotel. ABC will tape the fights for telecast the following day.

Landers, Nelson pace Blues

BORGER — Charles Nelson and Harold Landers pumped in 17 points apiece here Thursday to lead the ninth grade Boys Blue basketball team to a 67-47 win over the Borger Whites.

Grady Norris added 12 points for the Blues in their last road game before their District Tournament in Borger Feb. 9-10. They'll host Plainview's Red team Monday in Pampa.

Sam Jackson led the Borger team with 22 points, while teammate Larry Melany added 10. The victory gave the Blues a 9-3 mark on the year and 7-2 record in district games. In the eighth grade game, 10 points by Mike Nelson and six from Paul Prentice weren't enough to keep Pampa from absorbing a 34-22 loss. The eighth grade Blues will also play Plainview Monday for their next action.

Berardi takes narrow lead at Grand Prairie

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas (AP) — Joe Berardi, Pearl River, N.Y., held a slim lead Thursday night after the fourth round of the $100,000 Professional Bowlers Association open tournament here.

Berardi, a consistent money winner in six years on the PBA tour but still looking for his first title, held a five pin lead over 15-time titlist Dave Soutar after the first eight games of match play.

Berardi, 24, won four of his eight matches while spilling 1,669 pins — a 208 average — to bring his total pins for the tournament to 5,690.

Soutar, Kansas City, Mo., moved from 16th place to second in the fourth round by posting a 6-2 match play record while knocking down 1,784 pins for the session.

Optimists to host girls cage tourney

Basketball action will be hot and heavy at the Pampa Optimist Club next week, when the Optimists will sponsor their First Invitational Girls Basketball Tournament.

Optimist Gary Epperson said the tournament, which the club hopes will become an annual event, will feature four out of town teams, as well as the six fifth and sixth grade girls teams from Pampa already in the Optimist program.

It's the first time the club has invited girls teams from outside of Pampa to play in such an event, according to Epperson. Teams from White Deer, Skellytown, Panhandle and St. John's School in Borger will be represented in the semi-round robin format.

Trophies will be awarded to the first, second and third place finishers, as well as the consolation champion. Games are scheduled for 5, 6:30 and 8 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday and Friday and Saturday. Epperson said. Two games are scheduled Thursday night.

Monday night's matchups will feature the No. 6 team from Pampa vs. Panhandle at 5, Pampa No. 5 vs. Skellytown at 6:30 and Pampa No. 2 vs. White Deer at 8. All games will be played at the Optimist Club gym, 601 E. Craven.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Public Broadcasting Service will televise six hours of country music live from the Grand Ole Opry on March 3, according to the local PBS outlet, WDCN-TV.

Order appealed by leukemia victim

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — A court order prohibiting 3-year-old leukemia victim Chad Green from taking Laetrile has been appealed by a lawyer for the child's parents, Diana and Gerald Green.

Attorney George Donovan requested a hearing before the state Appeals Court and said he would ask today for a stay of the lower court order. If necessary, Donovan said, the case will be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court. The parents have been ordered to stop giving Chad Laetrile and massive doses of vitamins. He still lives with his parents, but was made a legal ward of the state six months ago after the couple refused to give him chemotherapy to treat his cancer.

FOCUS

The Pope Goes to Mexico

Pope John Paul II travels to Mexico tomorrow, to attend the Third Latin American Bishop's Conference, and perhaps to try to improve relations between the Mexican government and the Roman Catholic Church. Between 90 and 95 percent of Mexico's citizens are Catholics, but many of them belong to the church in name only. Priests came to Mexico with the first Spanish explorers in 1519. But Mexican governments later opposed the church, because of the great wealth it accumulated, and because the Vatican supported Spain when Mexico tried to gain its independence. Today Mexico remains the only Latin American country which does not maintain official ties with Vatican City.

Jimmy's White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — When President Carter enters a room, everyone stands as a mark of respect for his office. There is one exception, however. When Carter strode into a hotel banquet room here for last week's National Prayer Breakfast, a white-haired lady in the crowd of 3,000 remained resolutely in her seat as others jumped to their feet. It was "Miss Lillian," the president's mother. While in town for a periodic visit to the White House, the elder Mrs. Carter appeared as guest of honor and speaker at an affair sponsored by the Washington Press Club.

She expressed some misgivings about admitting the delegation from the magazine, explaining that she "misses things" after a television film crew or group of Cabinet officers have been in the house. "They don't mean to steal," she added. "They just want souvenirs." The president's mother has been known to gamble occasionally. For example, the appointment with the Washingtonian folks was delayed 24 hours because they were told by the White House, their star model had to keep a previously scheduled luncheon engagement. She later confided this was a ruse and that she had been at a regular poker game with friends. Another example: the president lost a $5 bet with his mother on professional football's Super Bowl game this week. Carter bet on the losing Dallas Cowboys, but he really had no choice. His mother announced to him that her money would be on the favored Pittsburgh Steelers.

GRAHAM'S FURNITURE PRESENTS...

After the Civil War, this country began the great task of rebuilding. The daylight hours were filled with hard work and the night was left for dreams. As candles and oil lamps were extinguished, glowing hearth embers cast their light on furniture that had been lovingly crafted... furniture that reflected both the aspirations and practicality of the age. River Road is an authentic representation of that time. The amber tones of an oak finish enhances oak solids and veneers, and all pieces have "wheat stock" embossing - it has been etched on the wing mirror. Enjoy the heavy drawer moldings and brass hardware on the armoire, night chest and dresser. The massive bed is the backbone of this collection... as strong and spirited as the pioneers who first conceived its styling. River Road by Burlington House Furniture... it's already a part of your heritage... now make it a part of your life.
