Airplane hijacking reported

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A United Airlines pilot reported Saturday that he was being hijacked by three persons during a flight from Los Angeles to New York, and that he had been given a note saying that there was nitroglycerin aboard, officials said.

United spokeswoman Mary Stringfellow said the pilot of the Boeing 747 said the note also demanded that network television be preempted so one of three famous entertainers could read a message allegedly left in a telephone booth at Los Angeles International Airport.

She said she did not know whether the message had been retrieved or what it might contain.

Local realty board wins award

The Pampa Board of Realtors, who drew praise from Lady Bird Johnson for their community betterment efforts, walked off with another award during a recent three day meeting of the Texas Association of Realtors (TAR) in Austin, the board was among 11 of TAR's 123 local boards to win recognition in the Super Board Contest of 1978.

Judi Edwards, Pampa Realtor Board President was on hand to receive the plaque. The 11 winners amassed the greatest number of points in categories of realtor education, meeting attendance and participation in community projects in competition with boards of similar size.

Is it any wonder that government intervention (read force) creates undesired consequences? Hardly. In fact, to argue that the free market is the only road to peace, prosperity and freedom ought to be a recognized truism.

Rockefeller dies; widely mourned

NEW YORK (AP) — Nelson A. Rockefeller, the dominant member of a family whose name is synonymous with power and wealth, died without attaining the prize he most cherished, the presidency of the United States.

Rockefeller, 70, suffered a heart attack while working on an art book in a private office on West 54th Street in mid-Manhattan, family spokesman Hugh Morrow said Saturday afternoon. Morrow had told reporters that Rockefeller died in his office in the RCA

Building in Rockefeller Center. Morrow issued the corrected statement after reporters learned that an ambulance had gone to the West 54th Street address. Morrow said he was told the attack occurred at Rockefeller's office, and that "led to an incorrect assumption by me" that it happened in the Rockefeller Center office.

About five hours earlier, Rockefeller had accompanied his wife and two young sons to hear a lecture by former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, a longtime friend.

At his death, Rockefeller was preparing a book on his personal art collection, worth an estimated $33 million. He was to announce on Saturday plans to open a new retail store to sell reproductions of works he owned.

Rockefeller's body is to be cremated and buried Monday in private services at the Rockefeller family cemetery at the family estate in Westchester County. The family has said a memorial service for family and guests would be held Friday at the Riverside Church on Manhattan's Upper West Side. Rockefeller, former governor of New York and vice president under Gerald R. Ford, had devoted himself to his art collection after leaving active politics in 1977.

Three times in eight years, he campaigned for a presidential nomination, his failures being ascribed variously to a divorce, a tarnished liberal image and poor timing.

Nelson Aldrich Rockefeller was born July 8, 1908, in Bar Harbor, Maine, the third oldest child of John D. Jr. and Abby

Rockefeller. He was the oldest surviving member of a family that included five sons and one daughter.

His eldest brother, John D. 3rd, died last July at the age of 72 in a car wreck on the family estate, Poncautic, in Westchester County. Another brother, Winthrop, was 61 when he died in 1973 after serving two terms as governor of Arkansas.

Two other brothers, Laurance and David, survive. The family fortune was founded in the late 1800s by John D. Rockefeller, the oil magnate who invested $4,000 in a small Cleveland oil firm and parlayed it into a fortune now estimated at more than $1 billion.

Of the third-generation members of the Rockefeller dynasty it was Nelson who gained the highest degree of national and international attention.

Meanwhile, from Colonial Williamsburg to New York City, from the presidential villa in Egypt and a small coastal town in Maine, friends and adversaries alike mourned Rockefeller's death.

President Carter, vacationing at Camp David, Md., said "Nelson Rockefeller was born to privilege and accepted his privilege as an obligation to serve his state and nation. He sought the highest service, but willingly and ably performed whatever tasks were asked of him by his country."

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., who defeated Rockefeller for the Republican presidential nomination in 1964, said: "Although we had our policy differences, I came to understand that very few Americans were as dedicated to the welfare of their country as was Nelson Rockefeller."

Rockefeller served as vice president under former President Gerald Ford after Richard Nixon resigned in 1974.

There was no immediate comment on Rockefeller's death from San Clemente, Calif., where Nixon now lives.

Ford, in Amman, Jordan, on a non-official Middle East tour, said: "I have lost one of my closest friends, both personally and politically."

Texas labor opposes increased interest rates

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Increasing home loan interest rates would be bad state policy in an era of anti-inflation guidelines from Washington, the president of the Texas AFL-CIO says.

Harry Hubbard, head of the labor federation, joined Jim Boyle, executive director of the Texas Consumer Association, in opposing a bill raising the ceiling on mortgage rates from 10 to 12 percent.

They said at a news conference Friday that both their groups would fight the bill (SB134) by Sen. Bill Meier, D-Euless, a savings and loan stockholder.

"We must hold the line somewhere. We cannot have wage-price guidelines, yet just turn loose and increase interest rates," Hubbard said.

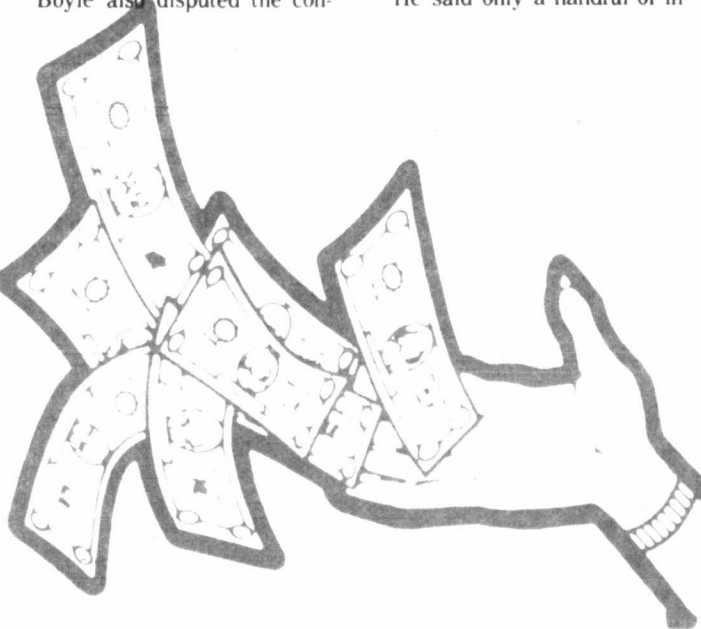

The Texas Savings and Loan League claims the increase would assure a ready supply of mortgage money and prevent funds from flowing from Texas to other states.

Boyle said monthly payments on a 30-year $50,000 mortgage at 12 percent would be $75.52 higher than on a 10 percent note.

Over the life of the loan, total interest payments would increase by $27,000, he added.

Boyle also disputed the convention that mortgage money and savings will leave Texas if rates aren't increased.

"I called two or three savings and loan presidents and asked them if they were going to put their money into California or Kansas. They said, 'Definitely not. We are going to keep our money here locally,'" Boyle said.

He said only a handful of investors can afford the new "money market certificates" on which savings institutions pay close to 10 percent interest. Savings and loans are doing well by paying 5 1/2 percent on passbook savings and 4- to 8 percent on certificates of deposit, while collecting 9 1/2 percent on home loans, Boyle said.

Money market certificates generally are sold in units of $10,000 or more, he said.

"Not too many can buy money market certificates. This bill would subsidize the rich at the expense of lower and middle income home purchasers," Boyle said.

Rep. Jerry "Nub" Donaldson, D-Gatesville, House sponsor of the bill, replied in a statement that it was the federal government's fault — not lending institutions — that interest rates were rising.

"The legislation I am sponsoring would afford young consumers in Texas the opportunity to purchase a home, whereas if lending institutions cannot obtain funds from national markets there won't be any money available for them to borrow. The National Mortgage Corporation is only forwarding money to states where the interest ceiling exceeds 10 percent (63 percent of the state)," Donaldson said.

Bar has few strangers

By DAN LACKEY
Pampa News Staff

At first glance, A. J. Hindman's Ozark Bar on Cuyler Street might strike one of the rare strangers who happens to step inside as a turn-of-the-century saloon, many of which were bare except for a liquor shelf, a stand-up bar, and a pot bellied stove. At second glance, it strikes one as nothing more than a dank green alley of a room with a concrete floor and cracked plaster walls. But there's a little more to the Ozark than first meets the eye.

Once the stranger has made the acquaintance of Mr. Hindman ("A. J." to regulars), who at 77 is the primmest bartender in town, the place doesn't seem so much like a temporary watering hole set up in the wake of a tornado.

A short man, Mr. Hindman is neatly dressed for his 12 hour day in coat and tie, maroon slacks and red shirt. He wears wire rimmed glasses and the only break in his deacon-like demeanor is a periodic spit stream of Days O' Work tobacco, discreetly leaked into a can behind the cash register.

"Thirty-five years, I'll have been here 35 years come July first," he tells the stranger, serving up a 25 cent Coke.

"The biggest change? The biggest change has been the price of beer. Thirteen cents for a mug in 1944, 20 cents a bottle. Of course the price was fixed by the government because of the war."

A. J. keeps change on the shelf behind the bar, neat groups of pennies, nickels, dimes, and quarters, which he sorts as carefully as a kid with a freshly busted coin bank.

"I got in the habit of that during the war," he says. "When I was always so busy. It saves me a trip to the cash register. But if you hand me a ten, then I have to walk."

A. J. walks to the shelf behind the bar and returns with a bottle of muddy yellow liquid.

"This bottle of beer is 20 years old, Corona, old Mexico beer. I'll probably give it to a museum some day." He returns it to its place alongside bottles of Fisher Beer (1955, from a Salt Lake City Brewery), Primo Hawaiian beer (1976), Trophy Beer ("30 or 40 years old"), and Bermeister ("I think I've had this one since I began").

Included among these bottles of vintage brew is a pack of Lucky Strikes, minus one smoke, dated Oct. 21, 1952, the day A. J. swore off nicotine.

And the cigarettes he sells at the bar (limited to Marlboros, Camels, Kools, and Winstons, to suit the clientele) are kept at 60 cents a pack.

"I don't make much but I sure have a good time," he says. "I'm not here for the money anyway, don't need it. Should have retired myself but I can't stand sitting at home."

"No, don't usually see a stranger come in. Most of them I see everyday. Lot of them are retired."

A. J. points to a group of four at the front of the bar, seated along a loose seat from one of the booths, discussing the turn of events in Tehran and the guilt or innocence of Cullen Davis.

"That one there's a painter, and that guy does some carpenter work, and that ole boy in the overalls is retired. He comes in every morning about 7:15, drinks two or three beers, takes home a six pack. Then he'll be back about one o'clock. But he never gets drunk, he's German."

A. J. says the Ozark has been in business since sale of alcohol resumed in 1933. He took over in 1944 after abandoning his Courthouse Bar downtown.

Just beer at the Ozark, wine and liquor licenses wouldn't pay, says A. J. He keeps his crusty clients happy with an equal distribution of Coors, Schlitz, and Budweiser, kept cool in three gas run refrigerators. And he serves each man with the diffidence of an Oriental waiter.

A. J.'s favorite beer is none of them. "I don't like the stuff myself," he says. "I've tried it but I don't like it, it kills my appetite."

But A. J.'s abstention leads to no moral reservations about his line of work. "I'm a member of the First Baptist Church and no one has ever said anything to me. I'm selling by the law of the land, not committing any sin... Oh sometimes a woman will call me at home saying, 'Don't you sell my husband any more beer,' and I say, 'Lady, I have a permit hanging on my wall which legally entitles me to sell that beer, and if I don't sell that beer to your husband, somebody else will. I never got a man drunk. I don't pour that beer down his throat. And I always say: it's the first drink that gets you drunk, not the last."

Identity crisis

Some of the major philanthropic foundations in America have been admitting to an identity crisis. Traditionally, they have seen their role as doing what government doesn't do in such fields as education, scientific research, health care and social welfare.

The Russell Sage Foundation recently published an essay surveying how extensively the government has moved into these fields and asking: "What's left?"

Not much, it would seem, although foundations bearing such names as Sage, Ford and Rockefeller continue to parcel out grants and find no lack of prospective takers. What is missing is a clear sense of direction for these private activities in an age when so many public, tax-supported efforts are being made in pursuit of the same goals.

The problem for the foundations may resolve itself, at least partially, in an unexpected way. If the president and Congress follow through on their pledge to make the federal budget less of an inflationary force, some government programs now duplicating or overlapping the activities of private philanthropies and charities may be among the casualties.

This is most likely in areas of research where there is no case to be made for government sponsorship of a project. How often is an obscure scientific study held up as a waste of the taxpayer's money even if the scientific community can make a plausible case for its ultimate importance. Scientists ought to make that case to a foundation board, not to the government.

The debate over what the government should do and what it shouldn't do will go on as long as there are "liberals" and "conservatives."

The Russell Sage essayists suggest that a fruitful field for foundations would be to study why government fails so often in what it undertakes to do, and to explore and experiment with alternatives that might serve the public better. Foundations have enough independence from political pressures to accomplish something in that direction.

We note with satisfaction that philanthropic foundations and charitable organizations remain a healthy element in our society. Bequests and endowments, contributions large and small, continue to flow to them in spite of the high visibility of government programs and the burden which taxes and inflation places on our pocketbooks.

This suggests that no matter what government tries to do in the name of all of us, there is an abiding need in the American people to express as individuals their commitment to making the world they leave better than the one they found.

It takes a lot of gall

The Soviet Union, after it shot down a South Korean airliner which strayed into its territory last April, has billed the Koreans for medical attention and other costs of taking care of the plane's survivors.

The tab, totaling $100,000 was sent to Pan American World Airways, a go-between, since Moscow doesn't recognize South Korea. Commented a Western diplomat: "They probably included the cost of the gas for the fighters and the machine-gun bullets, too."

Brass on the beach

Rep. Sam Stratton of New York is looking into a matter that should give the G. I. who served in Vietnam a brass attack.

Stratton is chairman of a House Armed Services subcommittee investigating the luxurious Hale Koa Hotel on Waikiki Beach.

And now the Hale Koa serves as a spa mostly for retired officers instead of war-weary G. I.'s — and it costs the taxpayer $1 million a year to keep it in operation.

Furthermore, the retired brass are paying about 60 percent less for rooms and services than at private hotels in Waikiki.

Stratton and a fellow subcommittee member, Rep. Dan Daniel of Virginia, say they will make some changes, perhaps even trying to close the hotel.

A lot of Vietnam vets and taxpayers would say, "Hear, hear."

Producers and regulators

By BERNARD H. SIEGAN

In an address before a Republican group last September, California Sen. S.I. Hayakawa reverted to his former occupation of professor and presented some libertarian observations about the role and function of government in our economy. He views elections as basically a struggle over this issue between two small classes, each representing no more than 5 percent of the population, fighting for the loyal ties of the other 90 percent.

The senator refers to these classes as the production and knowledge elites. The production elite believes that "The business of America is business." And the road to riches, wealth and good life lies in manufacturing, mining, farming and above all "producing, producing and producing." Greater production will lower prices and enable more people to acquire some or additional, goods and services.

The production elite relies on natural forces to improve the human condition, and the knowledge elite rejects nature in favor of government regulation. "There is a tendency," says Hayakawa, "on the part of people with Ph.D.'s in the humanities and social sciences — I shall call them the software disciplines — to believe they know better than other people how to run other people's lives."

"That is, there is a whole mass of uneducated, unwashed, or illiterate people in bowling alleys and other low places who don't have the moral sensitivity and the intellectual acuity of us who have Ph.D.'s and therefore they don't know how to run their lives and they need to be regulated. They need to be ordered around."

Hayakawa's knowledge of elite contains, in addition to Ph.D.'s, lawyers and a majority of college professors in the social sciences and humanities. It includes, says the senator, an enormous number of news people who obtained a liberal arts education or majored in political science, economics or history, and went into news broadcasting and reporting.

"When the business people complain about liberalism of the networks, the liberalism of The New York Times and The Washington Post, they're just talking about a very, very fundamental class difference. The knowledge elite people are trying very hard to be fair-minded in their stories in The Washington Post, but they see the world through different eyes than the point of view of the production elite."

Until the Depression of the 1930s, the country relied on the production elite for leadership. During that period, America was a land of great opportunity and millions flocked here to obtain economic advantages denied them elsewhere. The producers were to an extent delegitimized by the Depression, and gradually replaced in much of their power by the knowledge elite.

The senator reminds us that when Charles Wilson, a member of the Eisenhower cabinet, stated that what's good for General Motors is good for America, the former G.M. president was hooded and derided for being morally insensitive, stupid and concerned only with profit. Opinion on this subject is far different in Japan. There, observed the senator, "they take it for granted that what's good for Toyota Motors, what's good for Matsushita Electric, is good for Japan. They just take it for granted; they don't argue about it. Maybe that's why they get along so well."

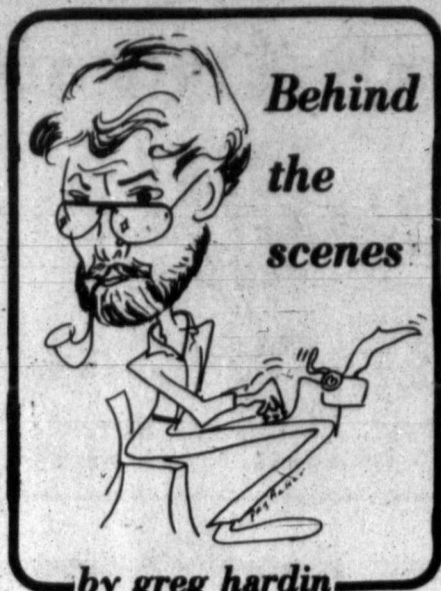

The two elites differ on abundance, according to Hayakawa. The producers believe abundance to be the key to improving the human condition, whereas the knowledge elite does not prefer abundance — if there is enough to go around there is nothing to regulate. This group delights in scarcity and likes to argue that it exists, regardless of the facts.

The alleged energy crisis illustrates the point. The production elite maintains that if government stops interfering, energy can be obtained and supplied to the people. But the knowledge elite insists that there is a desperate shortage of oil, and that therefore the only solution is conservation.

The government has an odd approach to conserving. The Department of Energy now has 20,000 employees and something like 35 classifications of natural gas, "so that the deserving will get natural gas and the undeserving will not — and they'll decide who's deserving and undeserving. It's an absolute paradise for regulators."

The senator went on to discuss the adverse effects of regulation on the poorer portions of the population. He notes that as a result of taxi regulation, the cost of buying a license to operate a cab is now $50,000 in New York, and $28,000 in San Francisco. Were regulation eliminated, the cost would drop to zero, and a lot of people who are now excluded would be able to enter the business.

Hayakawa's message is to open up the doors of opportunity by limiting government and thereby removing these impediments to self-fulfillment. He wants to see America again become an open society encouraging the poor of today to become the aristocracy of tomorrow.

by greg hardin

Thomas Jefferson once wrote "Sometimes it is said that man cannot be trusted with the government of himself. Can he then be trusted with the government of others?"

It is fairly obvious that the government that surrounds us in our day to day lives cannot be trusted. Bribery, fraud and corruption flourish in the federal government.

One of the most blatant cases of the government trying to govern the lives of Americans is in the social, as in socialist, welfare system.

Since we have allowed the government to establish the current welfare system we have ruined a generation of Americans. The government has turned once productive people into free-loading bums.

The Preamble to the Constitution includes the phrase "promote the general welfare", and believe me we have done a great job of promotion when it comes to the welfare system in this country.

Americans have opened their mouths and swallowed the biggest bunch of bull ever thrown in their direction.

We, and I mean all of us, have allowed this organization to grow at a rate that is only matched by our own stupidity.

We are all consumers from the day we are born, but the government welfare system has decreased the number of producers by unbelievable proportions. By giving our money to people that the government judges to be welfare cases, a generation of Americans has been spawned that have not and will not produce anything in their entire lives. They have become parasites, living off what you and I make by long hours of hard work.

Before our government got into the act I wonder what happened to all these unfortunate people who must now depend on welfare?

They worked, that's what happened to them!

If they were unable to work, then private groups or institutions helped them through the charity of others.

During the worst years in our country's history many people went hungry. Men were too proud to accept charity even when it meant they would not eat.

Men would offer to do odd jobs for people in order to get a meal but now forget the odd jobs. It is expected that we have to support our fellow man. It is no longer our choice but a demand.

Many people wouldn't mind giving their money to help others but it should be their choice. I prefer to keep my money and put it where I think it will do the most good, not where the government thinks it will do the most good.

The bureaucrats made sure that there was something in it for them when they created the system of giving our money to other people. The bureaucrats, administrators, and employees that make up the welfare system siphon off more than 50 percent of the money in the form of paychecks.

Put on a national scale more people live off tax dollars than off of free enterprise funds. I am very tired of the government taking my money that I need to support my family and giving it to someone else to support theirs. It just doesn't make sense to me.

It is time that we did away with this socialistic policy that our sweet government calls a welfare system and give the option of giving back to the people where it belongs.

It is an injustice to deprive the recipients of these government handouts the experience gained by working to support themselves and their families. Soon the parasites will take full control of the body and suck it dry of all of its resources.

If we do not stop this stupidity of letting a few men dictate how and for what our money is spent we will surely in time fall prey to the parasites that cling to our way of life.

These men, women and children know of no other life than the one we have created for them. They are born into the welfare system and they die in it.

Let each man be free to make his own way in life, depending on no other for his livelihood. This is all that I ask.

Somewhere fat is beautiful

by paul harvey

Everywhere Americans are running from overweight.

Chasing one another along jogging trails, sitting in steam baths, eating diet foods, purchasing any book, supplement or device which promises to make them slim.

So many Americans are opting for digestive bypass surgery in an effort to lose weight that the National Institutes of Health have had to warn against such operations.

But hear this: There is a place where FAT IS BEAUTIFUL. And I'm going to tell you how to get there.

There are some flyspeck Polynesian islands in the South Pacific called "Tonga."

At one time a British protectorate, these 169 mostly uninhabited islands were purchased in 1845 by a local family that loved to eat. And each generation since a member of that family has proclaimed himself "King" and has decreed that "fat is beautiful."

The present monarch, His Majesty King Taufa'ahu Tupou IV, is a massive 440 pounds.

The king keeps himself and his subjects happy by concentrating on one thing: food.

His 10,000 subjects grow bananas and sweet potatoes and taro — all those good, fattening things.

For a visit by Queen Elizabeth during her jubilee tour they served crawfish and suckling pig and such.

But as soon as she was gone they went back to their preferred diet of everything fattening.

Wall Street Journal reporter Barry Newman reported from his stopover that the people, though fat, were healthy.

In this land where women should be shaped like barrels and men like beach balls they still get enough exercise — or something — so that Tongans enjoy a normal life span.

They don't call it fat in Tonga.

By royal decree the philosophy is called "sino le le." Roughly, that translates "healthy fullness."

The men look like sumo wrestlers.

In Tonga the well-shaped woman must have thick arms and a short neck; her bust, hips and thighs must be colossal. A woman thus proportioned is considered "elegant."

And, the islanders assure skinny visitors, "Good eating will do it for you."

A Tongan anthropologist explains, "We don't like thin people."

Now, let me say that if you are contemplating emigrating you should know this much more.

On trading ships, junk food has found its way to Tonga. Krunchi Krisps, salted nuts, Big Cheese Cheesums and Flovie's Bubble Gum.

And some greasy mutton.

Even His Royal Highness is said to have discovered Coca-Cola.

And, for the first time, there is evidence of some of civilization's diseases among Tongans: heart disease, high blood pressure and diabetes.

But when a Tongan attended a New Zealand medical seminar last year and was told that people can drop dead at 65 from obesity, he replied, "Is there a better way?"

Abuses in Texas agency charged Official asked to resign

By SUSAN STOLER
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Burt Risley sat in his office at the Texas Commission for the Blind Friday morning and visited with three members of the commission.

One hour later, the commissioners — all legally blind — called for Risley's resignation at a news conference.

Aud Risley says the events left him "perplexed."

"I just don't understand the timing of this press release," he said. "They came by today but they didn't leave any press release with me."

Commissioners Sam Millsap Sr. of San Antonio, John Turner of Dallas and Walter Musler of San Antonio accused Risley of concealing information, usurping board authority and possibly allowing misuse of agency vehicles and credit cards.

Risley supervises daily operations of the agency, with a $16.5 million annual budget and 600 employees.

The commissioners said they have met twice with representatives of the Travis County district attorney's special crimes unit to discuss allegations against the commission.

They declined further comment on the district attorney's investigation, but said it would be complete within 30 days.

The internal criticism follows outside blasts about commission accounting by State Auditor George McNeil. He said his audit showed balances were not reconciled, financial transactions were documented inadequately and disbursement vouchers were not issued until after the money was spent.

"Through rapid growth in the agency, we had some problems in accounting practices," Risley said. "But I have been advised that there are a lot of things that have been cured."

McNeil's office says things are on the right track, the director added.

But the commissioners said their sources indicated future audits could be worse.

"If they have known of that, they certainly have not shared such information with me," Risley said.

Commissioners accused Risley of concealing an attorney general's opinion on dual agency employment. The director said that commission Chairman Charles Sapp has always known about it.

The chairman is a lawyer and the only lawyer on the board. I don't have an attorney in my office," Risley said. "Anytime anything of a legal matter comes in I refer it to Charles Sapp. If there is anything like this, he may advise the board."

But the commissioners say they are not satisfied for just Sapp to know what goes on. They criticized the chairman for cancelling a meeting scheduled for Friday, when they wanted to bring up Risley's annual appointment.

In a letter dated Jan. 19, Sapp told commission members he wanted to postpone all meetings until Millsap's eligibility to serve on the commission is determined.

Millsap, in his second year on the commission, operates a cafeteria and vending business. A Texas law prohibits board members from "selling or furnishing goods or services of the type" the commission provides in its 181 concession stands operated by blind persons.

Sapp wrote he thought there was no "urgent business" before the commission that could not wait until Millsap's eligibility was decided.

"To suggest that there is no urgent business at a time when members of the commission's staff are being investigated by the district attorney is scandalous," the three commissioners said.

City and State news

Permits decrease

CANADIAN — Building permits were down here last year but the figures are misleading, according to one city official.

Pearl Teague, city secretary, said much of the new construction in 1978 took place outside the city limits in areas which are expected to be annexed within the year.

Permits for new construction and remodeling totaled $917,000 in 1977, while figures released for last year totaled $697,600.

Permits for construction in 1978 included a $225,000 grain storage building at Canadian Grain Co-op, seven housing units at $343,000, an industrial building for $28,000, residential garages and carports at $17,700, residential housing at $70,100, non-residential buildings at $8,800, a self-service gas pump at $4,000, and other structures totaling $1,100.

Much of the new construction not now within city limits was residential housing on the outskirts of town near Hemphill County Hospital.

State sheriff accused of misconduct

BOERNE, Texas (AP) — Lee D'Spain, sheriff of Kendall County for 16 years, has been indicted by a county grand jury on seven charges alleging official misconduct and felony theft.

The indictments were returned Friday night in this Hill Country town.

All but two of the indictments concerned alleged misapplication or theft of more than $1,270 obtained on sales of abandoned vehicles. Another misapplication charge involved $186 allegedly obtained in December 1977 for an unclaimed cow sold in nearby San Antonio.

One official misconduct charge involved a personal trip to Houston D'Spain allegedly made in December 1977 in a county-owned vehicle.

D'Spain was free on a total of $7,000 in personal recognizance bonds.

D'Spain and four other witnesses, including former deputy Bill Staudt, testified before the grand jury. The sheriff testified more than an hour and half Friday afternoon.

Iran's head to 'seek advice'

By ROBERT H. REID
 Associated Press Writer
TEHRAN, Iran (AP) - Prime Minister Shapur Bakhtiar said Saturday he would fly to Paris within 48 hours to meet with Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and "seek advice" from him on Iran's future.
 Khomeini's camp hailed the decision as a favorable gesture toward the Moslem holy man, leader of the anti-shah movement.
 The surprise announcement by Bakhtiar, who for weeks had alternately defied and cajoled

Khomeini, further confused this country's fast-changing political situation.
 It came after hundreds of thousands of Khomeini supporters marched in Iranian cities Saturday - and eight reportedly were shot dead by troops - demanding that the Bakhtiar government allow their leader to return from exile in France.
 But Bakhtiar still refused, at least publicly to say when he might open Iran's doors to Khomeini.
 Khomeini, head of Iran's dominant Shiite Moslem sect, has demanded abolition of Bakhtiar's government and the Iranian monarchy. But there were persistent reports in recent days of negotiations among the key parties in the Iranian crisis - apparently including the army - aimed at forging some kind of agreement on the political course the country will follow.
 Bakhtiar said Saturday he has been negotiating with Khomeini on arrangements for his return and other, unspecified matters.
 At Khomeini's headquarters-in-exile outside Paris, aide Ibrahim Yazdi said Khomeini had agreed to meet with Bakhtiar. Sources in the Moslem leader's entourage said the meeting might be as early as Sunday.

Contacted by telephone at the headquarters, Yazdi sounded jubilant. He said he was "happy" because Bakhtiar's move showed he might be "changing his policy."
 Bakhtiar has rejected Khomeini's demand that he and his Cabinet resign. But at the same time the prime minister has lauded Khomeini as a wise leader with a huge popular following.
 Bakhtiar's announcement came in a special radio address Saturday night.
 Except for the cities of Abadan, Gargon and Rasht, Saturday's marches were generally peaceful.
 Religious sources said seven persons were killed in clashes with security forces in Abadan, a southwestern oil city. The state radio reported one death and several injuries in violence in Gargon and other disturbances in Rasht. Both cities are on the Caspian Sea.

Carter gives preview of his policies

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
 Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Jimmy Carter began the second half of his presidency in seclusion eight days ago, but then, during a rapid-fire series of public appearances, he gave the nation a preview of where the administration is headed.
 By the end of the week Carter had been seen twice on live television, had delivered four messages to Congress, and was preparing for a second, highly visible week as host to Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping.
 If Carter had one overriding goal during the week in which he unveiled his new budget and delivered the State of the Union address, it was, in the words of one aide, "to state clearly where he stands on these issues, what he thinks needs to be done about them."
 Among the new things to emerge from the first week of the third year of the Carter presidency was a new slogan: "New Foundation."

 In the State of the Union address, Carter had said he wanted to provide a "new foundation" on which to build peace and economic stability in the coming years.
 As part of his effort to outline the state of the administration as well as the state of the union, Carter conferred several times with members of Congress.
 He met with a bipartisan delegation from the Senate that visited Moscow late last year, and heard their concerns about the new strategic arms limitation treaty still being negotiated with the Soviet Union. Immediately afterward, the president sat down with a frequent critic of U.S.-Soviet relations, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., to discuss a variety of domestic and foreign issues.

 In the nation's capital, one Carter aide said, there was a feeling the State of the Union speech did not say enough about specific programs nor did it inspire Congress.
 But this White House official, who asked not to be identified publicly, said, "Over the last week I couldn't be much happier about what people around the country saw of Jimmy Carter."

the conference.
 Vatican prelates said the pope may speak more specifically Sunday when he addresses the bishops at the conference site in nearby Puebla.
 The pontiff noted that more than 10 years have passed since the last Latin American bishops' conference.

Pope cheered in Mexico City

By DENIS REDMONT
 Associated Press Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) - Pope John Paul II, hailed by as many as 5 million Mexicans in a triumphant ride through the city, inaugurated a bishop's conference Saturday by saying the Roman Catholic Church is "looking for the ways" to fulfill more zealously its mission in Latin America.
 He warned against "contradictory" and "not always correct" interpretations of church policies.
 The pope's address appeared to be low-key, dampening expectations for a clear call to the clergy for an activist role in solving South America's political and social woes.
 People clustered in the hundreds on roofs and hung from lampposts. Many carried binoculars to get a glimpse of the first pope to visit Mexico. They pelted him with confetti, rose petals and flowers as his open car twisted through the crowds on its way to the shrine.
 The pope spoke at Mexico's national shrine, the basilica of the Virgin of Guadalupe, after the hours-long motorcade through the city. He spoke to a crowd of 200,000 assembled in and around the shrine for the opening of the conference.

 The pope's role in helping relieve major social and political problems in Latin America has been a hotly debated topic among churchmen and is expected to be a central issue at

Scouts prepare for cookie sale

ANITA MARLAR (above), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B.D. Marlar of 1904 Zimmers, is an Office Education Association club officer and is employed by Delbert Woodfe Insurance Co. as a secretary. Marlar is noted for being active in many areas of Pampa High School and says that her future plans include attending college. Theresa Hon (below) said that Distributive Education Cooperative Association has helped her to get the bookkeeping job she now has at Citizens Bank and Trust and that she is very happy with her position. Hon is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde E. Hon of 1329 E. Foster.

Each year, residents of Pampa, as well as people across the country, look forward to the Girl Scout Cookie sale. And it's cookie time again as Girl Scouts of Quivira Council prepare to begin their sale at 4 p.m. Friday, February 2.

Proceeds from the cookie sale are used to maintain the council's two camps, used by Girl Scouts throughout the council's jurisdiction. Camp Mel Davis, near Lefors, is used for troop camping, day camping and council-wide camping events. Camp Cibola, near Clarendon, is used for resident camp, troop camping, day camping and council-wide events.

Each troop uses its portion of the proceeds for troop activities and special events, as well as for troop and camp equipment.

The high quality, good-tasting cookies for a good cause quickly caught on with the public. Today, Quivira Girl Scout council, of which Pampa is a part, is carrying on that tradition with its annual cookie sale. Although several new cookies have joined the original vanilla trefoil, the sale is still the main fund raiser for implementing the outdoor program of one of America's finest youth groups, the Girl Scouts.

Four children die in blaze

JACKSONVILLE, Texas (AP) — Four children, ranging in age from 2 months to 5 years, died in a fire that destroyed their home.

*Jerline Davis, mother of three of the children and grandmother of the fourth, was burned on her hands, arms, face and back while trying to rescue the youngsters, said Jacksonville Fire Chief Howard Martin. Mrs. Davis, 36, was hospitalized in stable condition. She was able to rescue her son Shawn, Martin said.

Martin set the tentative cause of the fire as a wood-burning tin heater — the only source of heat in the house.

Teen-agers plead innocent

NEW YORK (AP) — Two Bronx teen-agers have pleaded innocent to charges they showed "a depraved indifference to human life" in the arson deaths of seven persons.

Rafael Torres and Hector Velez, both 14, were indicted on seven counts of murder, seven counts of felony murder-burglary, and seven counts of first-degree burglary stemming from a Nov. 8 fire in a Bronx house. The defendants say the fire was started accidentally. They are being tried as adults and could face life in prison.

Man 'guilty' of careless smoking

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — A man who survived fires started by his smoking in bed has pleaded guilty to charges of "careless smoking."

Lew Lieske, 52, received a six-month suspended sentence and was fined $250 plus court costs.

Government department creates

WASHINGTON (AP) — At least one option being considered by White House reorganization planners calls for the transfer of county offices of the Farmers Home Administration into a "delivery system" of a new Department of Development Assistance.

The possible transfer of the county offices was mentioned in a footnote in one proposed reorganization plan now under review.

A copy of the plan was made available to a reporter late Thursday.

According to sources who asked not to be identified, the plan was distributed to a number of public-interest groups earlier in the day by White House officials to get their reaction.

The Farmers Home Administration, or FmHA as it calls itself, currently is the largest rural development agency in the Agriculture Department.

It handles loans for low-income farmers and has a number of other programs for helping with community facilities, business and industry, water and sewer systems and industrial development.

Under the first of two options for setting up a Department of Development Assistance, the new agency would be constructed so it "would provide senior policy level officials for both rural and urban concerns."

Further, the paper said, the option "would transfer and increase use of the existing FmHA multi-county delivery system for small cities, towns and rural areas."

The paper said the new department also would draw development programs and agencies from the existing departments of Commerce and Housing and Urban Development and such additional agencies as the Community Services Administration and the Small Business Administration.

According to the plan, the new department would take over "non-farm" FmHA programs that are related to community development.

A footnote to the plan said FmHA housing programs, and county offices would remain in the Agriculture Department under the general option.

However, the footnote added that a suggestion from some rural groups to consider transferring FmHA housing programs and county offices to the new department "is under review."

"If they are included (in the new department) the entire FmHA delivery system — and not just district offices — would become the rural delivery system for the proposed department."

White House planners are calling for a new government agency

The paper said the current farm loan program in FmHA would remain with Agriculture and would be "delivered through the ASCS system."

That reference to ASCS involves the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, for many years the big agency in the Agriculture Department that administers crop acreage controls and price support operations for many commodities.

The ASCS also has a nationwide network of county offices for handling its current programs.

In early December, one of many studies circulated at the time included the possibility of closing some 1,800 county offices operated by FmHA. White House officials later denied this was a serious consideration.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fresh market vegetables as a group are expected to cost consumers about 10 percent more during the next few weeks than they did this time last year.

But experts say they can't be precise about lettuce. Agriculture Department economists said in a report Thursday that retail prices will "remain below the record set during the second quarter of last year."

The analysis did not mention or take into account the possible effects of a strike among workers in lettuce fields in parts of the southwest.

More than 2,000 workers went on strike last Friday against four southeastern California farms that produce nearly one-third of the nation's winter iceberg lettuce crop.

Department officials have predicted that a lengthy strike would create shortages that would force up prices to consumers.

Charles W. Porter, a department vegetable economist, said the strike aspect was omitted from the new report because of so many uncertainties, including how long it might last.

"It's not affected prices that much so far," Porter told a reporter. "In fact, prices have gone the other way."

Porter said lettuce prices this week have been running about $5 for a 24-head carton delivered to shipping points, down from $8 a carton a week ago.

"One could argue that if there was no strike the price might be $4 instead of $5," he said. "But it's difficult to tell."

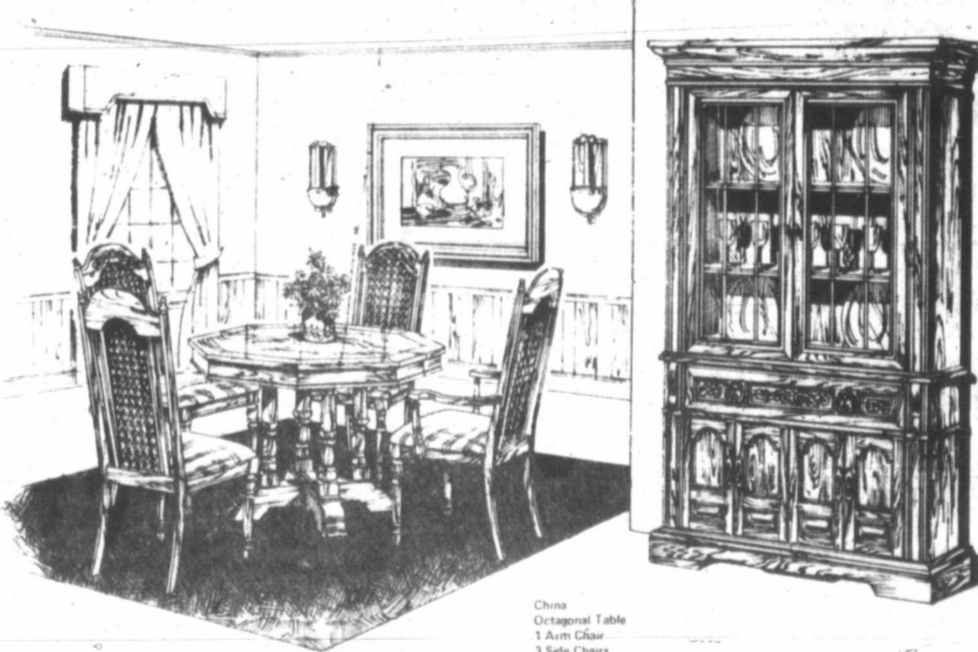

The report said the acreage of major fresh winter market vegetables is up 8 percent from a year ago and that if growers get average yields, total output would rise by the same margin.

But as of late January vegetables in Florida "had escaped any serious extensive damage" from weather, it said.

HOUSTON (AP) — Julius D. Heldman describes himself as an unabashed enthusiast of solar energy.

But the Shell Development Co. vice president says the difference between theoretical solar energy and practical solar energy is the difference between dream and reality.

Solar energy is here to stay, he says, but the costs have to be brought down to the level of other energy forms.

And, he adds, a crash program similar to the one that put men on the Moon will not get the job done.

Such a space program-type approach, Heldman said, can work when the task is assembling several fairly mature technologies into a whole.

"Unfortunately, development of practical solar energy will be step-by-step," he said.

"We're going to have to develop one process, and then use that technology as a base for developing the next. In a situation like that, you can effectively substitute money for time only to a very limited degree."

Heldman's responsibilities with Shell Development include patents and licensing and sponsorship of new ventures in emerging technologies.

Over the past six years, a good part of his professional life has been devoted to developing solar power. His view on future prospects appear in the winter edition of Ecobalium, the Shell Oil Co. quarterly publication devoted to scientific thought and achievement on energy and environment.

Heldman says he is as optimistic as ever about solar energy but is increasingly concerned by overly optimistic expectations of what solar can mean for this country and the world.

"Energy from the sun holds tremendous promise to a world painfully aware its traditional energy sources are both increasingly expensive and ultimately finite," he said.

"But we cannot allow enthusiasm for solar energy to blind us to the realities of what it will take to convert potential into reality. Overly optimistic expectations for solar will inevitably mean disappointment. They may even prove dangerous if they cause complacency and inaction by allowing us to overlook or minimize current energy sources."

He added, however, a great deal of the basic technology for solar has been developed.

"There are essentially two ways we can convert sunshine into active energy," he said.

"We can collect the sun's heat, and then put that heat to use in various ways. And, we can convert the sun's radiant energy directly to electricity, through the use of devices known as photovoltaic cells. Photovoltaic cells were the source of electric power on the Skylab space mission."

Heldman said virtually every basic solar energy technology is in place in a theoretical sense.

"We can do all these things in experiments," he said.

"The work that remains to be done might be called the second stage of the technology. To have practical solar energy, we must do two things. We must package these technologies for widespread application. And we must bring down the production costs so solar makes sense, on a dollar basis, to consumers."

Photovoltaic production of electricity, he said, is about 30 times more expensive than it would have to be to compete with electricity generation now available.

Heldman said, despite the work still to be done, it is reasonable to assume the nation may be deriving from solar devices perhaps as much as one-half of 1 percent of all its energy by 1990 and from 3 to 5 percent by the year 2000.

"And, as we move forward, I think solar may account for greater and greater shares of total energy used," he said.

TIME TO CONTROL CATTLE LICE

Lice cost U.S. cattlemen more than $50 million annually, so it's important to control them.

Lice begin to reproduce rapidly with the onset of cool weather, so peak populations on cattle occur in late winter and early spring. Uncontrolled lice can soon infest a whole herd because with cold weather, cattle tend to bunch up more so that the pests can move easily from one animal to another. Heavy hair coats on animals during cold weather also afford protection for the parasites and allow for increased reproduction.

Both types of lice — bloodsucking and biting — infest cattle. Sucking lice pierce the animal's skin and suck blood while biting lice feed on particles of hair, scale, scab and skin exudation.

Lice infestations irritate animals, causing itching, scratching and rubbing on fences or anything else available. This produces denuded areas, bruises and lacerations on the affected animal. Heavily infested animals will have an unthrifty appearance and will suffer weight reduction, decreased milk production, anemia or even death. Lice infested animals may also be more subject to infectious diseases. Heavy lice infestations often stunt calves.

Spraying or dipping infested animals with the proper insecticide is the most effective means of controlling lice. However, properly placed and maintained dust bags offer effective control and save time and labor. Position dust bags prior to lice buildup so that cattle can become accustomed to using the bags. A dust bag station should serve about 30 head. Depending on cattle size, place the bags so that they hang 18-24 inches above the ground. Forced use of dust bags, where they are placed so that cattle must pass under them to get feed or water, begin to control lice sooner than those used free-choice. By allowing a two- to three week adjustment period, free-choice bags can be about as effective as forced-use types.

In a spraying or dipping program an animal must receive a thorough soaking in each of two application 14-18 days apart to effectively control lice. The second spray or dip will kill any lice hatching from eggs that were laid prior to the first spraying. When spraying, use a high pressure (250 pounds per square inch) and thoroughly wet animals to the skin.

For a list of effective insecticides for controlling lice, obtain a copy of "Suggestions for Controlling External Parasites on Livestock and Poultry" at the County Extension Office.

Check the label on the insecticide container and pay particular attention to warnings, restrictions and waiting periods, especially if some of the cattle are being prepared for slaughter.

1978 YEARBOOK OF AGRICULTURE

"Living on a Few Acres," the 1978 Yearbook of Agriculture, describes both the pitfalls and satisfactions of living in the country.

The yearbook is intended as a practical guide to country living. It is mainly for those who do not intend to gain their principal income from the land but rather have a job in town or some other source of income.

The book's 48 chapters were written mainly by specialists from the U.S. Department of Agriculture and state land grant universities. The articles cover many aspects of part-time farming, including production for family use or supplemental income.

Five sections of the book include information on pluses and minuses, acquiring the right spot, improvements, how to make the most of the land, and selling the property.

Inmate shot

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A 29-year-old inmate who was shot while trying to escape remains in stable condition in the Huntsville unit hospital of the Texas Department of Corrections, according to spokesman Ron Taylor.

Taylor said Arthur Dean Ingle placed a ladder against the prison wall and had climbed over the top when a tower guard fired three warning shots into the air. The prisoner was shot once in the back of the head with a 12-gauge shotgun, Taylor said.

Prison officials are investigating how Ingle obtained the ladder, a straw workhat and jacket usually worn by correctional officers, and a file that had been sharpened into a 12-inch knife, Taylor said.

Pampa swimmers sweep Caprock, PD

AMARILLO — Braving bad weather and some unknown competition, the Pampa High swimming teams captured a pair of dual victories over Palo Duro and Caprock at the Maverick Boys Club pool here Friday afternoon.

The girls didn't lose a race as they topped Caprock 29-14 and PD 38-13, while the boys got new school records from Chris Alexander and Mark Lehnick as they whipped Caprock 51-24 and the Dons 50-20.

"They're just getting going with their programs," Pampa Coach Mike Eckhart said Saturday. "So we won everything in the girls meets. We had a good meet on them, and I was really happy with it."

"They wanted to perform and I think they wanted to win," he added. "It got us on the right track for the meet (the Amarillo Invitational) this next weekend."

The Pampa girls completely dominated their phase of the competition. Cindy Quattlebaum won the 50- and 100-yard freestyles in both meets. Lisa Raymond duplicated the effort in the 200 individual medley and 100 butterfly and Cindy Raymond completed the two-race sweep syndrome with victories in the 100 backstroke and 100 breast stroke.

Kris Douglass put the icing on the cake with two victories in the 200 freestyle, and the girls 400 freestyle relay feasted on yet another pair of wins.

While the boys weren't quite as awesome, they still won all but two events against both Amarillo teams. They also got new school records from Lehnick and Alexander.

Lehnick broke his own 100 butterfly record by one-tenth of a second with a 57.2 clocking.

Alexander snapped the school mark in the 100 freestyle with a 53.2-second performance. The old mark of 53.7 was set by Ted Brown in 1975.

Richard Steger joined Lehnick and Alexander as double winners in both meets. Steger took the 100 backstroke and 200 individual medley in both meets. Lehnick added wins in the 500 freestyle to his butterfly exploits and Alexander snared victories in the 100 breast stroke to go with his 100 freestyle triumph.

Pampa also won both of its 400 freestyle relays, and Mike Wheeler got the Harvesters another win against Caprock with a 2:36.9 clocking in the 200 freestyle.

Eckhart said the Amarillo Invitational, scheduled for Friday and Saturday, would be a good indicator of what to expect in the regional meet. Teams from El Paso, Lubbock and Odessa are expected to join the District 3-AAAA schools for that meet.

Groom's Crowell scores 32 in triumph

Connie Crowell continued her high-scoring ways at Lefors Friday night as she led the Groom-Tigerettes to a 70-36 romp over the Pirate girls.

Jonetta Dunn paced Lefors with 18 points in the contest that Groom sewed up by outscoring Lefors 39-8 in the third quarter. The Tigerettes finished the first half of District 3-B play with a 4-0 record.

Lefors' boys, meanwhile, also upped their first-half district mark to 4-0 with a 69-56 win over Groom as John Trabet scored 19 points. Neil Wieberg of Groom took game honors with 20.

Hedley swept a pair of games with McLean, taking to girls contest 46-34 and pasting the boys by a 73-39 count.

Sherrie Hill hit 22 points to lead the Hedley girls to their win, while Jeff Hill had 25 in the boys' victory. Tommy Eck (18) and Joy Rhine (12) were the scoring leaders for McLean.

At Gruver, All-Stater Debra Rankin was held to seven points as the Greyhound girls downed Phillips 40-29 to clinch the first-half crown in District 1-A. Callie Barkley connected for 16 points for Gruver, which shot 52.9 percent from the field, while holding Phillips to a 12-for-53 field goal mark.

Tammy Blakenship scored 10 points to lead the Phillips girls. In District 3-AAAA action in Amarillo Friday night, Amarillo High got 13 points from Marcey Dale on its way to a 42-27 win over Palo Duro in girls play. Amarillo High crushed Palo Duro 82-59 in boys action. Tascosa wrapped up the first-half District 3-AAAA boys crown with a 59-45 win over Caprock and Tascosa's girls slipped by Caprock 56-53.

Harvester games canceled

All of Friday night's Pampa-Plainview basketball games were canceled due to weather conditions and will not be made up.

Pampa High Athletic Director Ed Lehnick said the trips home for the Pampa boys and Plainview girls teams would have been over slick roads, and the schools agreed to cancel the games.

The Harvester teams will be back in District 3-AAAA action beginning Monday, when the girls will host Caprock. The boys, who were 3-1 in the first half of district play and are 12-12 overall, will begin their second half league campaign Tuesday night at Harvester Field House against the Longhorns, then will face first-half champion Tascosa Friday night at the Green Pit.

The girls, currently 10-12 and 0-2 in district play, will complete the first half of their district schedule against Tascosa Thursday night in Pampa. Game times for all four nights are 6 to 7 for the junior varsity and 7:45 for the varsity.

Spartans upset

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Rod Roberson scored 20 points and Northwestern never trailed en route to an 83-65 upset college basketball victory over fourth-ranked Michigan State Saturday.

The game was close through the first 12 minutes and was tied seven times, the last time at 14-14. Roberson then hit a layup to put the Wildcats in front to stay.

Terps top Irish

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Larry Gibson converted a three-point play with one second remaining, giving Maryland a 67-66 upset victory over first-ranked Notre Dame Saturday in a nationally televised game.

The Terps, 14-5, blew a 12-point lead in the second half, with Notre Dame taking the lead for the first time at 64-62 during a 9-0 streak.

The Irish upped their advantage to 66-62 with 1:39 remaining before Gibson, who scored 11 points, tallied Maryland's remaining points.

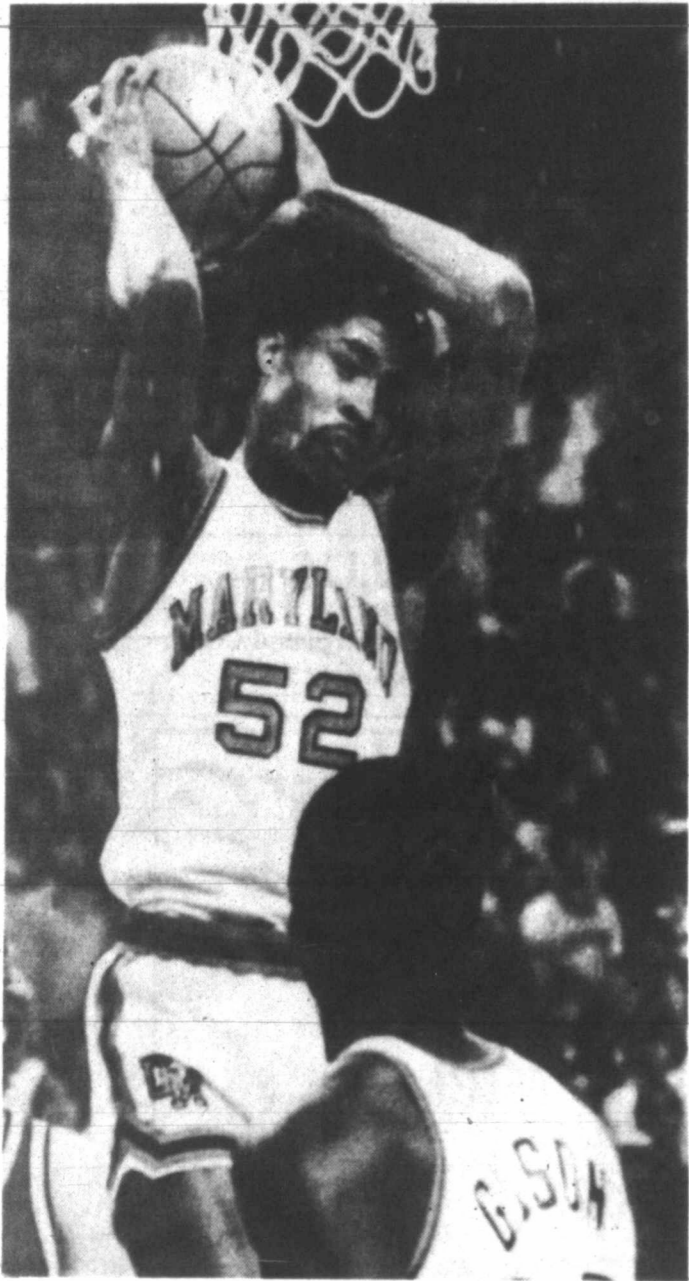

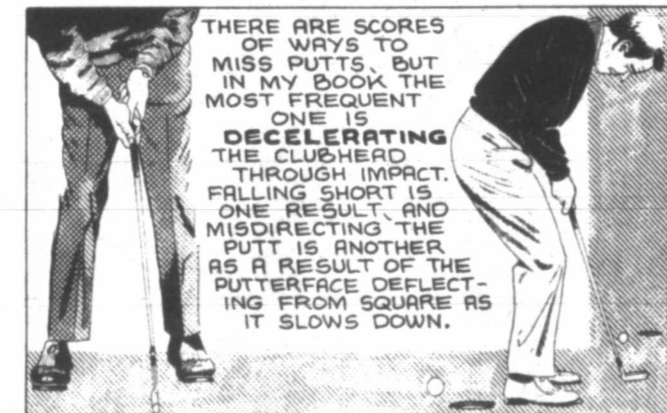

Two free throws by the senior center cut Notre Dame's margin to 66-64 with 1:26 left, and Notre Dame controlled the ball until Stan Wilcox was fouled with 15 seconds to play. But Wilcox, who converted a 1-and-1 foul situation for Notre Dame's final points, missed his first attempt this time and Buck Williams grabbed the rebound for Maryland.

After two time outs, the last with five seconds left, Greg Manning drove into the lane and fed Gibson who dropped in a bank shot while being fouled by Wilcox. Notre Dame, 12-2 after having seven-game winning streak snapped, called a couple of time outs to rattle Gibson, but he calmly sank the winning point.

Ernie Graham scored 28 points, many from long range, to lead Maryland, which lost to No. 2 North Carolina last Saturday by one point.

Aggies whip Rice

HOUSTON (AP) — The quick hands and long-range sharp-shooting of Tyrone Ladson, combined with the strong inside play of Rudy Woods, led Texas A&M past Rice 81-62 Saturday afternoon in a regionally televised Southwest Conference basketball game.

The victory lifted the Aggies to a 17-4 season record and a 6-2 mark record in the SWC. Rice fell to 6-12 and 3-5. A&M used a full-court press in the first half that forced the Owls into numerous turnovers. Ladson converted three first-half steals into baskets and finished the game with 18 points, 14 of them by intermission. Woods dominated the backboards and also finished with 18.

Elbert Darden hit 17 points and was the only Owl in double figures.

The Aggies led 54-40 at the half but scored the first 10 points of the second half to turn the game into a rout.

To Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame

Matson induction today

AMARILLO — Randy Matson, generally regarded as the greatest athlete in Texas Panhandle history, will be among four inductees to the Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame today.

The 21st edition of the installation ceremonies, scheduled for 2 p.m., will take place at the Amarillo College Gym.

A 1963 graduate of Pampa High School, Matson was the first man to hit the 70-foot mark in the shot put. His 70-7 1/4 heave on May 8, 1965, bettered the existing world record by almost three feet, and he improved his mark to 71-5 1/2 on April 22, 1967.

Matson went on to win the gold medal in his specialty at the 1968 Olympic Games in Mexico City with a 67-10 1/4 effort.

Besides winning state titles in the shot and discus while at Pampa, Matson captured NCAA championships while competing for Texas A&M.

He was the silver medalist in the 1964

Olympics while still a teen-ager and was in a class by himself in the middle to late 60s.

Already a member of the Texas Sports Hall of Fame and the Texas A&M Athletic Hall of Fame, Matson and his family live in College Station, where he works with the Texas A&M Association of Former Students.

The other inductees on Sunday's program include the late Harley True Burton, legendary football coach of Clarendon College in the 1920s, Clifford "Red" Keith, one of the best all-around athletes ever to compete at West Texas State and James Saunders, the first tennis player ever to be installed in the Hall of Fame.

Coaches of the Year to be honored include Eric Roanhaus of Clovis, N.M., in football, Bob Schneider of Canyon and Denton in basketball, James Lee Robinson of Borger in baseball, Mrs. Terry Miller of Borger in golf, David Kent of West Texas

State and Texas A&M in tennis and Bob Kitchens of WTSU in track.

Athletes of the Year to be recognized are Kenny King of Clarendon and Oklahoma University in football, Fred Mitchell of Amarillo and North Texas State in basketball, Bret Jordan of Amarillo in baseball, Teena Foxhall of Memphis in golf, Sonja Hutcherson of Memphis in tennis and Joseph Kernei of West Texas State in track.

The annual Dee Henry award, presented to the athlete who has shown the most courage and desire in coming back from an illness or injury to continue participating in sports, will go to David Trotter of Hale Center.

Special achievement awards for significant contributions to sports in their communities will be presented to J.I. Kimmons of Phillips and Bus Dorman of Wheeler. The ceremonies carry no admission charge and are open to the public.

Zoeller grabs two-shot lead at San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Fuzzy Zoeller came from 5 shots off the pace with a surging 67, swept past Jerry McGee and established a 2-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $250,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open Golf Tournament.

The hard-hitting Zoeller, winner of more than $100,000 last year but still seeking his first PGA Tour title, had a 54-hole total of 210, 6 shots under par on the 7,047-yard South course at the Torrey Pines Country Club.

"Winning is just a happening," said Zoeller. "It hasn't happened yet. Maybe this is the one. I'm gonna try my damndest."

He birdied four times in a stretch of five holes to take the lead, then stretched the advantage to 2 shots with a two-putt birdie 4 on the final hole.

McGee, the second-round leader, slipped to a 74 in the bright, sunny weather that bathed the cliffs and crags of the oceanside course. He takes a 212 total into Sunday's final round of the chase for a $45,000 first prize.

Billy Casper, a 47-year-old veteran, Gil Morgan and Bill Kratzert were another stroke back at 213. Casper shot a 69, Kratzert 71 and Morgan 72.

Seven more players, including Lee Trevino, were at 214. That left 12 men within 4 strokes of the top spot going into the final 18 holes.

Tom Watson, the Player of the Year the last two seasons, shot 72-216 in this, his first tournament of 1979.

JERRY MCGEE, the leader going into Saturday's round of the San Diego Open, struggles from a sand trap on the seventh hole during third round action. McGee, who started the day at 6-under-par, parred the hole and made the turn at 6-under. (AP Laserphoto)

Gold Sox hire mentor

AMARILLO — Glenn Ezell and Rusty Gerhardt, two of the most popular men ever to wear the Amarillo Gold Sox uniform, have been signed to serve as the team's manager and player-coach (respectively) for the 1979 season.

Ezell was at the helm in Amarillo last season when the Gold Sox finished at the bottom of the Texas League with a 44-89 record. However, the parent San Diego Padres obviously felt it was not an accurate reflection of Ezell's managerial abilities and chose to return him this year.

It will be his fifth year as a manager in professional baseball. Ezell was a catcher with several minor league teams from 1966 through 1974, including four years in the Triple A Pacific Coast League.

Gerhardt has been pitching with the Gold Sox, on and off, for the past few years. A graduate of Clemson University, he was an All-Atlantic Coast Conference selection for four straight years (1969-72).

Trinity netter in finals

HOUSTON (AP) — Top-seeded Erick Iskersky of Trinity and unheralded Richard Acuna of Northwestern Louisiana advanced Saturday to the finals of the Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches Association National Indoor Singles Championship.

Iskersky took his semi-final match with an easy 6-1, 6-4 win over Robert Van't Hof of Southern California, while Acuna beat Andy Kohlberg of Tennessee 6-4, 7-5 in the other semi-final.

The final of the tournament was set for Sunday afternoon at the Metropolitan Racquet Club.

Iskersky, usually a slow starter, was quick out of the blocks this time as he took the first five games of the opening set.

The match was almost a repeat of last year's final when Iskersky defeated Van't Hof for the title.

Acuna, who is from Chile, was a last-minute replacement for second-seeded Kevin Current of Texas when he was forced to withdraw because of illness.

Acuna trailed 3-0 in the first set, but came back to tie, and then win the set.

The players battled evenly in the second set until Acuna managed to break Kohlberg in the 12th game and hold on for the match.

Paterno voted Coach of Year

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Penn State's Joe Paterno has been voted the Coach of the Year in college football by the Football Writers Association of America.

In balloting announced Saturday, Paterno received 59 votes, narrowly outpointing Alabama's Bear Bryant's 53 point total. It was the closest vote in the 22-year history of the award.

Bryant was followed in the balloting by Southern California's John Robinson with 29 1-3, Georgia's Vince Dooley with 25, Michigan State's Darryl Rogers with 23, Navy's George Welsh with 20, Purdue's Jim Young with 17 1-3, and former Clemson Coach Charley Pell, who's since moved to Florida, with 11.

The 323 votes cast in the balloting were split among a total of 40 coaches.

Penn State was ranked No. 1 through much of the last college football season as it built an undefeated record, but it was ranked No. 4 in the final poll after losing to Alabama 14-7 in the Sugar Bowl.

Paterno's 13-year record at Penn State is 123-25, best among head coaches with at least 10 years experience.

State capitol has become one-room school house

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The pink granite state Capitol — site of record-breaking filibusters, fist fights and political intrigue — has become a one-room schoolhouse.

The pupils are 22 seventh and eighth-grade Senate pages, who attend class four hours daily and run errands at other times.

Their teacher is Marvey Maypon, who usually supervises two classes simultaneously.

"It's not the easiest job in the world," said the 30-year-old educator.

Maypon is "on loan" from the Austin Independent School District, where he teaches social studies at Porter Junior High School.

The Senate has employed student pages for many years. One former page is Sen. Lloyd Doggett, a 32-year-old Democrat from Austin.

But this is the first legislative session for pages to attend Capitol classes. During previous legislatures, pages had to keep up with course work on their own. Some fell behind, while others managed with tutors.

Doggett and the Austin ISD pressured the senate to revise the program this year.

Most of the 16 boys and six girls are from Austin, Dallas, Round Rock and San Marcos also are represented. They're paid $250 monthly.

School administrators recommended some pupils for the jobs. All are sponsored by a senator.

Maypon teaches math, English, history and reading to seventh graders and English, history, science and math or algebra to the eighth grade.

Dorothy Burr of the Senate staff answers the page telephone in the Senate chamber and dispatches the youngsters on Capitol errands. One-third of the pages must be on call at all times.

Classes usually meet in a Senate committee room, but everything is subject to change, Maypon said.

"We told them the first day they had to be flexible," he said. "We're always being interrupted by someone wanting to use the room or work on the microphones."

One afternoon, Maypon held class around the press table in the Senate chamber. Larger-than-life oil paintings of Lyndon B. Johnson, Albert Sidney Johnson, Jefferson Davis and Franklin Roosevelt hung nearby as he told eighth graders about separation of government powers.

At the table's other end, seventh graders were reading "Beowulf" silently.

Senators, their staffers and tourists strolled through the chamber. And Gov. Bill Clements even walked through the galleries, unseen by the pupils. It's not a normal classroom.

"In a regular classroom, I find I'm a very 'teacher-centered' teacher," he said. "In here, I can't do that. I have to get them to be a lot more independent. There's so much going on at once and I can't be there with them all the time."

Most pages are concerned with grades and keeping up, he said.

And he cannot afford to fall behind either.

"The only way I can handle it is to make out weekly assignment sheets. They can work ahead and if they're absent or get behind, they'll know where we are," Maypon explained during a break.

He sends progress reports to parents every three weeks. The Austin school district issues report cards every six weeks and forwards the grades to home schools.

Of course, the pages are not there just for school.

"They all want to understand what's happening on the Senate floor," he said. "Already they've picked out some of the personalities. They're always interested in Senator (A.R. 'Babe') Schwartz of Galveston. I overheard one of them saying, 'He's got an opinion about everything.'"

The pages say they expected things to be a little different from what they found.

"I always thought it (the Senate) was real organized," said Eric Anderson, an eighth-grader from San Marcos. "I was real surprised to see no one sitting down and nobody listening."

A common complaint among boys is their dress code.

"The boys have to go and buy three-piece suits and coats and ties, while the girls don't have to wear dresses," said Ricky Crowe, an Austin eighth-grader.

Girls can wear slacks but not jeans.

"My parents didn't complain about buying clothes because they're making me pay for it from the $250 a month," said Ted Davis of Austin.

They like Maypon but say classes are getting harder.

"There's only 22 people and he can concentrate on each one," Ricky said.

"At first we repeated a lot of stuff we've already had," said Denise Clayton, a Round Rock eighth grader. "But he's a good teacher."

Denise and several others harbor political ambitions. Her father, Rick Clayton, once lost a legislative race in Abilene.

"When he didn't get in, it felt like something I wanted to do," she said confidently. "I want to go into law or communications."

Getting lost or into trouble ranks as a page's worst problem, they agreed.

"In junior high, you're not required to go around in a suit and tie and be real good," said Ted.

"Yeah," Denise added. "Most of us are used to goofing off."

Gunfight brings friends together

By GREG THOMPSON

Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Texas

(AP) — Richard Jimenez

and Richard Lama grew up together near Hidalgo Street at a time when Mexican-

American street gangs ripped each other apart after night fell in the barrio.

Both knew the switch-blade life of San Antonio's rugged west side neighborhood. And each made a choice.

Jimenez ran with the

"Ghostowners," a youth

gang that ruled the territory around Hidalgo during the height of the vicious gang wars of the late 1950s and early 1960s. His destiny was prison — a 99-year sentence for murder by the time he was 21.

Lama always wanted to be a cop.

Nearly two decades later,

the attention of the old neighborhood was riveted on two of its own.

Patrolman Richard Lama,

34, of the San Antonio Police Department, answered a routine Thursday night

"domestic disturbance" call at a tiny frame house on

Hidalgo. As Lama got out of his car, Jimenez allegedly wheeled on the porch and cut down the officer with a flurry of gunfire before he recognized the target as his boyhood friend.

One bullet caught Lama in the knee, the other glanced off his belt, under his bullet-proof vest and into his back.

Jimenez, a paroled murderer who had the arrest record of a veteran before he was even 20, crashed through the front window of the mustard-yellow house and allegedly took Susie Guerrero, 28, and her three young children hostage.

Firing periodically with a 22-caliber rifle and a 38-caliber pistol, Jimenez coolly stymied a small army of heavily-armed police for a tense 22 hours. He gave up only after accidentally shooting himself in the leg when distracted Friday night by a low-flying police helicopter.

The hostages, including a 5-month-old girl, were unhurt. Hundreds of neighbors, many of whom knew both Lama and Jimenez, silently watched the drama through Thursday night and Friday.

Inspector Frank Hoyack said Friday night that Jimenez, 33, was being charged with capital murder and could face other charges. He was hospitalized, but his leg wound was not thought to be serious.

Lama was listed in "good" condition late Friday night.

Doctors said he was out of danger.

Throughout the siege, a specially-trained police team of negotiators conducted ticklish, nonstop negotiations by telephone and bullhorn in English and Spanish. At one point, Jimenez was told the identity of the wounded officer.

He said he was "very sorry." "He told us, 'If I knew it was Lama, I wouldn't have shot him,'" said Inspector Edward Foresman.

The wounded Lama, rescued under fire by ambulance attendants, told attendant J.J. Garcia en route to the hospital. "I can't believe it. I knew the guy. We went to school together."

"They grew up in the same neighborhood," Virginia Lama, 28, said of her husband and Jimenez. "He's a friend. Not a very close friend, but if they saw each other, I'm sure they'd know each other."

"My husband always wanted to be a policeman so he could help people," continued Mrs. Lama. "He grew up on the west side and knows how bad things are over there."

Lama worked seven years at a manufacturing job before getting his chance at the police academy when he was 31.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP)

— The little old man with sparse white hair is scarcely noticeable when he checks in at the airline ticket counter. It's the only flying he does now — a far cry from France in 1918, when he was the first American

Army Air Corps pilot in aerial combat.

It was April 12, 1918, and Arthur J. Coyle, then a sassy 20-year-old first lieutenant, was piloting a two-seat French Spad observation plane over German lines near Apremont.

A withering barrage of German anti-aircraft fire separated Coyle and his observer, Jay Bird, from their two escort fighters, exposing their unwieldy Spad to agile German pursuit fighters.

"I went inside the Boche lines alone to do my work and before I finished, three Boche Chasse planes surprised me and nearly brought me down before I knew it," Coyle wrote that evening in his tattered pocket diary.

"Two dived at me out of the broken clouds and one came out of the sun. They were within 75 yards before I saw them and tracer bullets were passing me in all directions. Old Jay Bird opened up on the two on our tail with his twin machine guns and I opened up on the one that came out of the sun and dived on him and could see my tracer bullets going through the plane."

"He went into a spinning nose dive, apparently out of control. I saw him fall about 3,000 feet and then I got to turn on the two machines that were on my tail. We fought about three minutes and then one Boche plane started home. Bird and I put a good burst through his wings. The other plane left with him. We returned and finished our work and then went home. Going to Toul to celebrate this evening."

Although American pilots had been fighting in the French and British armies long before the United States entered World War I, Coyle is credited with being the first American Army Air Corps pilot to engage in aerial combat.

He and Bird never applied for official credit for shooting down the "Boche" Fokker that day, but they did receive a citation from American Gen. John J. Pershing.

Coyle, commander of the 1st Aero Squadron, won several other medals and was credited with shooting down three German planes. He was shot down four times, however, and was slightly wounded once.

Coyle is now a spry 81 and works regularly at a San Antonio-based independent oil firm. It's been nearly six decades since he last flew a plane — a Curtiss Jenny biplane he crashed into a West Texas tree in 1921 while performing a barnstorming stunt.

"I'm 81 years old now and I couldn't even fly a kite today," said Coyle. "I think the last plane I flew is still up in a big oak tree in West Texas."

"The only flying I'm interested in today is getting from here to there — as a passenger," he added.

But in 1916, Coyle was the only member of the New Hampshire militia who would volunteer when a group of New York businessmen offered to train a pilot from each state.

"Only 14 states sent volunteers. No one else from New Hampshire would apply," said Coyle, then an 18-year-old infantryman.

The fledgling United States air force in 1917 consisted of only a few American-built planes not suitable for combat and a mere handful of pilots, trained only to fly pursuit planes.

When they reached France, however, the Americans learned they needed observation pilots, not fighter pilots. They were then retrained to fly French observation planes.

The brush with the German Fokkers on April 12, 1918 was actually not Coyle's first World War I battle. Although he had never fired a machine gun, Coyle volunteered three months earlier to fly as an observer on a French army bomber.

"I'd never been even close to a machine gun, but I didn't tell them that. I wanted to gain some combat experience," he recalled. "I didn't know how to change the ammunition drums, so I had to make those two drums last."

As they returned from their bombing run, Coyle and his pilot, an American in the French army, were attacked by three German fighters. After a brief fight, they managed to reach some clouds and evade the Germans.

"Their bullet-riddled bomber ran out of gas and was forced down outside a French village near the Swiss border."

"We went to the cafe in the village and the people hailed us as young heroes as we were the first Americans they had seen," Coyle wrote in his diary.

"We had a great time... I am coming back here again. We started back (the next day) and when we landed, the Frenchmen nearly fell with surprise as the formation had seen us going down in the fight and reported us missing in action."

"They gave us a lecture and told us to keep our formation next time."

Problem hurts area oil fields

Vandalism may cost millions

By JOHN PRICE

Pampa News Staff

Theft and vandalism in the oil fields are costing area oil producers and service companies thousands, if not millions, of dollars each year.

The problem is nothing new, but in these days of double-digit inflation it only adds to costs for both producers and consumers. And as prices rise, it could threaten the existence of the small, independent service companies.

Talks with local people in oil and oil-related businesses reveals that theft is by far the biggest problem. Vandalism has been aimed at certain producers, while others have escaped the destruction.

Mobil is one company that hasn't been vandalized in the fields, according to Harley Wright of Mobil's Pampa area office. Wright was echoed by a Mobil oil worker, who said "We haven't had any that I know of."

Gulf has had some of its signs shot at, but that's about it, said Carl Thomas of Gulf's local production department. Theft of things like used drill bits is more of a problem for the company, he added.

"Every once in a while you fire somebody and they go out and tear something up," Thomas said.

"About the worst thing we've experienced in the last couple of years is target practice at our meter houses," said Don Bradley, area superintendent for Kerr-McGee. "We lose a couple of meters a year."

"About a year ago we had a couple of transformers shot out," said John Barnes of the Cities Service production department. He said Cities Service doesn't really have a vandalism problem, but added "I've heard talk that some of these others have had bad problems with it."

"We don't have any problem right now," said Harold Crawford of the Amoco production company area office. "There has been some in past years. The biggest problem we'll have is when service companies come out and leave a rig on a lease. Tools are stolen worth thousands of dollars." Owners of several service companies confirmed that they have been plagued by theft. Joe Curtis of Curtis Well Servicing Co. estimated he loses $5-6,000 worth of equipment each year — not counting such expensive items as tanks, which cost $8,700 a pair, or power lifts that sell for $800.

"We have had a problem," Curtis admitted. "One night last year we had $30,000 of equipment stolen off of different leases."

"We have had a little bit of everything stolen from out in the field," said Skeet Wagner, co-owner of V.E. Wagner Well Service Inc. "We've had lots and lots of tools stolen — many, many thousands of dollars worth."

Curtis said the thefts seem to run in spurts, and occur mostly "right before the summertime, for some reason."

"It seems whenever we take a rig down to the Borger area it gets stripped clean," he said. "We'll have everything we need and then the next day it'll all be gone."

"It's almost an impossibility to carry the proper insurance to cover that sort of thing," Wagner said, calling the premiums "outrageously high." He said thieves prey upon small independent companies most, probably because larger companies have agents to investigate theft, while small companies don't.

To prevent theft, Wagner's company is following the lead of other local service businesses by taking tools and even large equipment to and from the job each day.

Traveling men depend on wives

By AP Newsfeatures
A handful of Connecticut businessmen whose jobs involve thousands of miles of international travel each year say their wives really aren't as glamorous as some may think. But the global commuters agree they wouldn't consider any other kind of job.

Jim Kennedy, vice president of international marketing for the commercial products division of Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Group, spends about 50 percent of his time traveling, he bulk of it abroad. In 1978 he logged more than 250,000 miles, he said.

He's done it for 20 years, so exchange rates and time changes come naturally to him. "These are things that you earn after a while," Kennedy said.

Stephen Ruffi, president of the machinery group of Emhart's USM division, estimates he's flown 50,000 miles to 16 countries since July 1978.

"My suitcase never gets in the closet," he said with a laugh.

Mastery of a foreign language isn't necessary, they say, but physical stamina, self-reliance and an iron stomach are. But that's only half the story. Their wives and children are the other part of the picture.

Many executives said they relied completely on their wives to run things at home.

Jim Carros of Harwinton, Conn., manager of licensing for Combustion Engineering's international group, confesses that he wouldn't even know how to call someone to clear their driveway of snow.

"The wife has to be extremely capable of running the house and taking care of the problems that arise with raising children," says Ruffi's wife, Audrey. But she insists, "It isn't as difficult as it sounds."

Rosemary Carros and Mrs. Ruffi agree that the wife of a traveling businessman must have interests of her own.

"I think you have to enjoy the independence thrust upon you," said Mrs. Carros, adding that she thoroughly enjoys running her home and working full time for the Planned Parenthood League of Connecticut.

The social life is unpredictable, but Mrs. Carros said that doesn't bother her.

"I have to make sure I have something to do so I don't feel cheated," she said. "If you're not a whole person, you could be unhappy."

The global commuters have their problems too. "I'll tell you, it's awfully lonely sometimes," Carros said.

Jan. 29 — W.C. Fields (1880-1946), the comic actor who played a drawing, nimble-fingered fraud in such films as "My Little Chickadee" and "The Bank Dick." His legendary off-screen eccentricities reputedly included a hatred for children and dogs, drinking two quarts of liquor a day and a monumental stinginess. He died on Christmas, a day he claimed to detest.

Jan. 30 — Gene Hackman (1930-), the actor who won an Academy Award as best actor in 1971 for "The French Connection." His other films include, "The Poseidon Adventure," "The Conversation" and "Superman."

Feb. 1 — Clark Gable (1901-1960), the actor known as the "king" of Hollywood for nearly three decades. In 1934, he won an Oscar for best actor for "It Happened One Night," but is best remembered as the roguish Rhett Butler in "Gone With the Wind."

Feb. 2 — James Joyce (1882-1941), the Irish author whose "Ulysses," a novel using the technique of interior monologue and exploring the stream of consciousness of a few Dubliners during a 24-hour period, is generally regarded as a masterpiece of world literature.

Feb. 3 — Horace Greeley (1811-1872), the journalist, reformer and political leader. He was founder and editor of the New York Tribune, and often advised, "Go West, young man, and grow with the country." He was defeated by Ulysses S. Grant in the 1872 presidential election.

Fading stars are no brighter in Atlantic City

By Dick Kleiner
ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (NEA) - It was a case of dilling two causes with one airplane.

Cause Number 1 - To call attention to Hollywood's 75th anniversary.

Cause Number 2 - To call attention to Atlantic City becoming a powerhouse in show business, since it began gambling.

Thus, a plane loaded with Hollywood celebrities flew to Atlantic City and poor Atlantic City got the short end of the deal.

The old resort with a new lease on life went all-out. They had buses at the airport, all decked out with banners and flags. They had a motorcycle escort to whisk the buses from the airport to the Resorts International Hotel (which used to have the much more dignified name, Chalfonte-Haddon). And there were hundreds of people at the hotel to greet the Hollywood stars.

The problem was that the organizers in Hollywood hadn't been able to get the cream of the star crop. There were a few of today's names - Janet Leigh is a perpetual name, and George Hamilton and Julie London are names and faces the people recognize, and maybe some TV fans know beautiful Jayne Kennedy.

But as for the others, Jack Carter (who was along) put his succinct finger on it when he said, "Most of the people on this trip are leasards."

As we got off the bus, the puzzled Atlantic Cityans kept searching the faces of the people getting off the bus, looking for the big stars. They expected the Fonz, or Laverne and Shirley, or, at the very least, the folks from "Gilligan's Island."

Instead - Rudy Vallee? Buddy Rogers? Jane Withers? Terry Moore? Rosanno Brazzi? Margaret O'Brien? Gloria DeHaven?

They had fun, fun, fun planned for the stars - tennis tournament (if you've never seen Rudy Vallee playing tennis with his huge, out-size racket, you really have never lived) and backgammon tournament and Monopoly tournament.

It was, for most of us westerners, interesting to see the way the East is taking to gambling, and to compare notes between our gambling resorts (Las Vegas, Reno, Lake Tahoe) and Atlantic City. And there are some important differences in the way some of the games are played.

A Resorts International spokesman told me that, today, the one casino operating in Atlantic City is the biggest money-maker of all the casinos in the world. I can believe it.

Where Vegas and Reno and Tahoe have empty seats at some of the blackjack tables, and plenty of $2 minimum tables, in Atlantic City the people are lined up to get seats and most of the tables require minimum bets of $25, with only a few for lesser stakes.

One thing Atlantic City has that Las Vegas-Reno-Lake Tahoe can never touch is the ocean. You can walk out the door of the hotel right to the famous boardwalk. It's pretty tacky on the land side but nobody can tacky-up the ocean itself.

And another thing Atlantic City has is charm and tradition, if they have the sense to keep it. Where the Nevada resorts are all virtually brand new, reeking of chrome, plastic and neon, some of the Atlantic City hotels still have the dignity and class of a bygone time. So far, Resorts International has sensibly kept a lot of that elegance, and some of the rooms are lovely.

In one cocktail area, there was even a girl playing the harp. In Vegas, the harp would have had neon trim and the girl would probably have been toppers.

Buddy Rogers said he remembered playing here, at the old Steel Pier, in the '30s. He said that, in his band then, he had Gene Krupa on drums and Johnnie Green on the piano.

Sammy Lee, the Resorts International Hotel pianist, saw me talking to Rogers and, later, asked me, "Is that the same Buddy Rogers who used to be married to Mary Pickford?" He seemed stunned when I told him that he still is.

One of the busboys in the restaurant said that he wasn't going to be a busboy much longer. He said he was going to dealer's school, to learn how to deal blackjack. He said dealers there made $125 a day, and that, pretty soon, there would be three or four other casinos opened and operating.

As you walk down the boardwalk, you see signs that he may be right. Several areas have been cleared, and huge new structures are going up fast. One, Caesar's World, run by the people who have Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas, will have a casino so large, my friend the busboy said, that they'll need 750 dealers.

There were still crowds outside the hotel as the Hollywood contingent scrambled back on the buses to begin the trip back to California.

The crowd was still disappointed. They kept looking for big names, and, as I climbed the steps into the bus, I heard one plaintive voice, asking, "Did you see anybody important yet?"

GEORGE HAMILTON, host of the Happy Birthday Hollywood party in Atlantic City, introduces Rosanno Brazzi and Janet Leigh.

At wits end

by erma bombeck

On top of my typewriter this morning, I found a note from my husband that read, "Walrunch Hunchinity. Sol Quea?????Jne 17."

"What's this mean?" I asked. "Can't you read my handwriting?" he snapped. "It says National Writing Week. Column idea????? I thought maybe there was something in the fact that one day is being set aside to improve the writing habits of Americans and you could do a column on it."

"I write humor."

"What's that supposed to mean?"

"It means if you had penned the Declaration of Independence, the United States today would stand for 'In, liverge, and the prsut, of hapines.'"

"That's a fine way for someone, to talk who makes her sevens look like ones."

"Says who?"

"Says the wrong number I got the other night from a phone message you left me."

"You try writing a phone message on a piece of waxed paper with a steak knife."

"I still think you could make a funny column about how you flunked ovals in the first grade and went on to give birth to children whose 8's look like 3's and who forget to close their G's."

"Don't forget they were sired by a man who loops his O's and who once wrote a check to the paper boy for $8,000!"

"At least I didn't write a note to the school when one of the kids was sick and have the nurse call to see what it was we had under control... his 'diarrhea' or his 'drain.'"

"You know it might be nice to have just one day when everyone took the time to write legibly... dotting their i's and crossing their T's. I bet millions of dollars are spent each year on people making mistakes and not saying what they really mean. I'm sorry I snapped at you. I'm going to file this idea until next June 14 and maybe get the country to observe a day when we could all read what one another is writing."

"What June 14?" asked my husband. "National Handwriting Day was Jan. 23. See? That's an A which you mistook for a U and the 4 is a 3 and, nowhere near what you thought it was and who would listen to a woman who can't even read English anyway?"

By ELAINE HOUSTON County Extension Agent MEAL ON WHEELS:

The Pampa Meal on Wheels, Inc. is delivering an average of 40-45 meals five days a week to older persons who are unable to prepare a balanced meal for themselves. This service enables many older people to maintain themselves in their own homes with improved nutrition and health. The social contact is very important too.

The Meal on Wheels program is constantly in need of volunteers to deliver the meals. It takes from 30-45 minutes to deliver a route. The food is packaged and ready to go when you get there (around 11:30 a.m.). When deliveries are complete, you return to the Meal on Wheels office to return the insulated chest and report if anyone did not answer the door. You can deliver a route once a week, monthly, or be a substitute. We need more volunteers.

We also need volunteers to work a few hours each week answering the telephone so that Meal on Wheels co-ordinator - Shirley Kucifer could do home visits for patrons wanting to receive the service. If you can volunteer to deliver, answer the phone or want to make a donation, contact Shirley Kucifer at 665-1461 or 665-2677.

The USDA reports potatoes are more plentiful than ever. Now is a good time for you to take advantage of the heavy supply. Here is a good, "standby" recipe for wintry day meals.

MEXICAN POTATO BALLS
1-1/2 cups hot mashed potatoes
2 eggs, beaten
1/4 teaspoon chili powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon powdered dry mustard

1 teaspoon grated onion
1 teaspoon milk
1/2 cup shredded cheese
1/2 cup dry bread crumbs

Combine potatoes, eggs, seasonings, and milk. Blend cheese and bread crumbs. Add one-half of the potato mixture. Shape into balls and roll in remaining cheese and bread crumbs. Fry in deep fat at 380 degrees F. until golden brown. Drain. Serves four.

WEIGHT CONTROL TOMORROW LETTER SERIES:

30 million Americans are overweight and 15 million Americans are obese to a degree that actually shortens their lives. There is significant correlation between obesity and ill health including cardiovascular disease, hypertension, diabetes and arthritis.

Nutrition Today - Weight Control Tomorrow is the title of an informative letter series to begin in February. The purpose of the series is to help people analyze their eating behavior; learn how to determine overweight, normal and underweight; learn how to plan nutritionally adequate meals with low calories; and learn why people overeat and how to change eating behavior to lose weight and maintain normal weight.

Too many people are turning to fad diets, pills and gadgets in an effort to take off unwanted pounds. These often lead to poor nutrition, economic loss and bad health. It takes a steady, balanced diet and regular exercise to take weight off and keep it off.

We are currently enrolling adults, 18 years of age and older, who are at least 10 percent overweight and who will agree to have a physical examination before dieting and exercise. Not everyone needs to participate in exercise, but it is encouraged.

Interested and qualified "overweights" will be enrolled. We expect many of the participants to be women, but hope to have some men, too. The registration deadline is February 9th.

Additional information about the Nutrition Today - Weight Control Tomorrow letter series may be obtained by contacting the County Extension Office at 669-7429.

"All in the family" to lose Edith Archie Bunker won't have Edith to kick around anymore. Jean Stapleton has announced she'll leave "All in the Family" this spring, signalling an end to the nine-year run of the highly rated TV series.

"Enough already," she said, "It's time for me to move on to other projects."

In the past life has been shaky in the "Family," with Carroll O'Connor, Rob Reiner and Sally Struthers seemingly taking turns with threats of quitting in contract battles. Finally, Reiner and Struthers did leave the show last season.

But Stapleton said money had nothing to do with her decision to stop playing the long-suffering wife of TV's favorite bigot.

"Playing Edith has been an absolute joy," she said. "I think I've managed to keep my identity pretty well separate from Edith's."

Dear Abby

by abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: I have just begun to baby-sit and it would be helpful if I had some rules to go by. Will you please write some "Do's and Don'ts" on baby-sitting?
BETSY B. IN BIRMINGHAM

DEAR BETSY: How's this:

WHEN YOU ARE ASKED TO BABY-SIT:

Be businesslike. State the days you will be available, the experience you've had, and the pay you consider fair. NEVER accept a job from a stranger. If you don't know the person calling, ask who recommended you, then call that person and check it out.

If you can't provide your own transportation to and from the job, ask what arrangements can be made.

Find out in advance the name, address, phone number, number of children, and how long you will be expected to stay. It's always a good idea to get acquainted with the family (and especially the child) before you go to baby-sit.

Always ask beforehand what your duties will be.

When you take a job, be sure your parents have the name, address and phone number of the people for whom you are sitting.

Before you are left in charge of a child, be sure you know where the parents can be reached.

Have the phone number of the family doctor, paramedics and a close relative or a trusted friend or neighbor handy in case of emergency.

Ask how you should handle incoming phone calls, and always keep a pencil and paper near the phone.

Get full information about locking doors and windows, lights to be left burning.

Ask what you should do if the doorbell rings.

Get special instructions (diapers, bottles, bedtime snacks, children's use of TV or radio, "lights out," etc.) and write them down if there are many.

If medications are to be given, have parents write down all pertinent information (name of medicine, amount, time, and child's name).

Accept escort to your home as planned unless the person who is to drive you home appears drunk. Then insist on phoning your own parents to make other arrangements.

WHEN YOU ARE LEFT IN CHARGE OF A CHILD:

Guard against strangers. Don't unlock the door for ANYONE! If you see a strange face in the window, or if someone tries to get in, call the police at once.

In case of fire, FIRST get the baby and other children out of the house or apartment, then call the fire department from a neighbor's phone.

Guard against accidents: Be alert to possible hazards such as medicines in bathroom, knives, scissors and other dangerous utensils in kitchen; poisons, cleaning fluids, etc. under sink within baby's reach.

Check frequently on a sleeping baby.

Remember, you are a guest: take food only if you have permission. Eat moderately and wash dishes you've used. Don't explore. Don't open closets or drawers, or read personal mail left open to view.

Don't allow friends to visit you while you are baby-sitting. Give your job your undivided attention. Avoid making personal phone calls. Keep line open for incoming calls from baby's parents.

I am indebted to Capt. H. C. Salter Jr., Police Department, West Columbia, S.C., for the above.

If you need help in writing letters of sympathy, congratulations or thank-you letters, get Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for all Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212 by lawrence lamb m.d.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Several months after the birth of my first child (seven years ago) my left ankle began to swell slightly. I thought it was due to changes during pregnancy and would soon become normal. However, the condition increased gradually and this occurs every day, not just during menstruation.

My doctor had me taking diuretic pills for two and one-half years which does help some.

I have read articles stating that ankle edema can be caused by excess estrogen and a vitamin B deficiency. I mentioned this to my doctor and he felt it would be safe for me to take the B complex pill. I have always taken a multiple vitamin pill daily. What do you think about this situation? I am 38 years old, 5 feet 8 and weigh 120 pounds. Should I take one 50 milligram B complex daily or two?

DEAR READER — It would help to know what is causing your swelling. I could probably say with relative certainty that it is not because of excess estrogen or vitamin B deficiency.

In the first place, if it were even true that these conditions cause the swelling of the legs, it would affect both legs, and not just one. You can't very well have vitamin B deficiency in the left leg without having it in the right leg. The same thing applies to the effects of excess estrogen.

Unilateral swelling — one leg only — is usually associated with some mechanical problem such as varicose veins in one leg only or an interruption in the lymph channels which drain the clear lymph fluid from one leg only. This condition is called lymphedema and it is helped by giving patients diuretics.

The other point you need to consider is the validity of those wild claims about vitamin B's relation to swelling of the feet. This only occurs in a patient with gross vitamin B deficiency. We call it Beri Beri disease.

If you've been taking a multiple vitamin pill daily on a regular basis for a long period of time, there is no way that you could have a Vitamin B complex deficiency that would cause swelling. Taking additional vitamin B, whether it is one 50 milligram tablet once a day or twice a day, won't help you at all if you already have enough vitamin B in your diet and from your daily multiple vitamin tablet.

I'd rather see you use some good suitable support hose to try to counteract the swelling. I am sending you The Health Letter number 11-6, Swelling: Causes and Management, so you can have a better idea of the different disorders that can cause swelling and what can be done to help prevent it.

Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I think it would be a good idea for you to wear some effective support hose when you are up and around or sitting. The support hose may exert enough external pressure to diminish or help prevent the swelling in your left leg. The next time you see your doctor, ask him if you have lymphedema on that side.

Mr. and Mrs. David Brown

Hopkins-Brown wedding

Debra Kay Hopkins of Miami became the bride of David Brown of Cordell, Okla., on Jan. 12 at the United Methodist Church in Miami.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Troy Hopkins of Miami. Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Brown of Cordell are parents of the groom.

The Rev. Tommy Ewing of Plainview performed the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with white gladioli and mums flanked by brass sevenbranch candelabra.

Mrs. Tom Henderson, organist, played traditional wedding music and Barbara Dodson sang "Twelfth of Never" and "The Wedding Prayer." The uniting candle was lit by the couple.

The bride, given in marriage by her father with her mother and I' avowal, wore a formal wedding gown of white bridal satin. The bodice was English net over white satin with a high neckline and sheer yolk covered with re-embroidered lace and clusters of seed pearls. The straight sheer sleeves also featured lace and seed pearls. The front skirt panel was scattered with lace and seed pearl clusters and the back fell into folds that ended in a chapel length train.

The chapel length veil was white English tulle completely encircled with scalloped and re-embroidered lace and seed pearls and attached to a cap of English net, lace and seed pearls.

The bride carried a bouquet of gardenias, white roses, and feathered white carnations. The honor attendants were her sisters, Vickie Hopkins of Borger and Charlotte Hopkins of Bartlesville, Okla. Bridesmaids were Leslie 'Sam' Hale, Fayetteville, Ark., and Patti Ewing of Canyon. They wore floor length gowns of crystalline over satin in peach, blue, green and yellow. They carried multicolor nosegays of carnations tied with matching streamers.

Serving the groom as best man was his father, Lowell Brown. Groomsmen were Joe Brown, brother of the groom of Cordell, and Rodney Brown and Curtis Gillim, both of Clinton, Okla.

Ushering the guests were Lee Simmons, Norman, Okla. and Lyndal Hamilton, Cordell. Douglas Talley of Miami was ring bearer and the flower girl was Ginny Brown of Cordell, sister of the groom. Registering guests were Carol Morgenstern of Miami, and Sheila Pankratz of Canadian.

The reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the church. The bride's table, covered with white bridal satin with an overlay of French lace, was centered with a silver epergne containing white mums, carnations and white candles. The white wedding cake was topped with a miniature bride and groom and rested on a platform above a miniature blue fountain. At each corner of the fountain were four heart-shaped cakes centered with sugar roses.

The cake was served by Sheila Pankratz and punch was served from a crystal punch bowl by Carol Morgenstern. The groom's table was covered with a brown cloth of Quinna with an insert of satin ribbons. Coffee was served from the silver service by Mrs. Ellis Locke. The groom's cake was topped with a miniature bride and groom beside the white gold get-away carriage which was drawn by two white horses down a "rocky-road ahead" path. The chocolate cake was served by Wanda Talley of Pampa.

Prior to the wedding the bridal couple was honored at a bridal shower in the home of Mrs. Ellis Locke. The hostesses were Mmes. Clyde Hodges, John Brogden, Donald Jenkins, Elmer McLaughlin, John Shearer, Lloyd Harvey, Ellis Locke, Willis Clark and Charles Clark.

The bride was honored with a luncheon at the Pampa Country Club with Miss Leslie 'Sam' Hale and Mrs. D.L. Hale as hostesses. Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Brown hosted a rehearsal dinner at the Fellowship Hall of the United Methodist Church.

Pampa

Post Script

by June Alexander

Jeffery Kopp and Van Baumgardner had a joint birthday party last week. They are one year old and were born a few hours apart on the same day. Among the guests were the boys' brother and sister, Jason Kopp and Tina Baumgardner, who are two years old and were born one day apart. The youngsters are the children of the Don Koppes and the Carl Baumgardners.

John Coleman, newscaster on Good Morning America, likes Pampa. While the wind howled on Tuesday, Coleman commented "... and now I'm going to talk about some of my favorite towns. One of them, Pampa, Texas, will have snow today ..."

Colorado is taking over a realm that once belonged exclusively to the Alps. In February the Earl and Countess of Suffolk, their son and their personal retinue, will arrive from England and spend two weeks in the home of Heidi and David Rouppe in Aspen. Heidi is Chris Campaigne's daughter.

Chuck and Babs White had their annual Super Sunday bash last week. They hung posters on the walls, installed bleachers around the TV and invited their friends to share the excitement.

Bill and Nancy Gabelmann, among others, also put out the hospitality mat during the big ball game. It's a toss up which was the star attraction — the ball game or Nancy's effervescence.

Pat Marcum teaches three classes of Vocational Office Education at Pampa High School. She considers it a good idea for her students to attend the monthly Chamber of Commerce meetings, not only to see how they are conducted but to give them some insight into the business world. So Pat's husband, J.L. Marcum foots the bill each month to take between 8 and 10 youngsters to the Chamber's breakfast or lunch. The Marcums have been in Pampa two years and are a welcome addition.

Bob Tate of KGRO is leaving Pampa for Carlsbad, N.M. where he will be manager of a radio station.

For young and old alike, disco is the "in" thing. For those who are inexperienced in this field help is on the way. One group is having a marvelous time cavorting to a record player in front of a mirror wherein the full truth is revealed. Together with the huffing and puffing, they're having lots of fun and exercise.

Heracitus, the Greek philosopher said it — "There is nothing permanent except change."

Ooohm! That one word sums up the exciting mood of nighttime dressing now. Here, some of the glamorous looks you'll be seeing — and wearing:

• The tuxedo look. The tucked-front shirt in a dressy jacket and trousers. The right accessories are black tie and spindly sandals.

• The disco look. Colorful shimmering jersey outfits with bare tops, slit-front or tulip-hemmed skirts to show off dancing legs. Camisoles, satiny blouses and narrowed trousers are another way to go. But these disco duds don't have to be saved for Saturday Night; they're a great look for any special evening.

• The Glamour Girl dress. Look for broadened shoulders, a defined waist, pared-down skirt fullness. The fabric will be soft and drapery to show off the body more.

• The Little Black Dress, making a big comeback.

• Sparkle Plenty. Rhinestones and pearls show up in necklaces, brooches, bracelets, hair combs — and in long drop earrings made to swing to the disco beat. There's additional shine in little lustrous bags that swing on long shoulder cords and lustrous strappy sandals that dance on high, high heels.

• Want to soften hard butter in a hurry? Try this little trick. Fill a bowl with very hot water and let sit for a few minutes. Drain and dry bowl, then invert over sticks of butter.

Sonny without Cher not sunny

Life wasn't so sunny for Sonny Bono after he and Cher stopped singing in harmony. "Cher shot up like a satellite," after their divorce, he says in the current US magazine.

Telly Savalas and David Niven.

"Me? I couldn't even get arrested ... people forgot that I had 11 years in the business. Suddenly, I was a joke. Bono the Bozo. The press made it look like I was feeding Cher star pills against her will. It was ridiculous — but they defied her anyway. I just had to take it."

Now, business is better for Bono, with a TV pilot on NBC and a movie, "Escape to Athena," also starring

Dear Sir:

As an English teacher at Kukje High School in Seoul, Korea, I write on behalf of my 3,300 students, ranging in age from 13 to 18 all of whom learned English in junior high school and practice it regularly.

I believe that correspondence between students of our two countries will contribute to friendship and better understanding regarding customs, traditions, hobbies, etc. I hope in their first letter that your students will tell us their name, address, age, hobbies, and whether they are a boy or girl. Our students will be good friends to any boy or girl who wants to share.

I hope you will print our ardent appeal in your esteemed paper. It will mean so much to the young hearts.

With best wishes to YOU ALL from Korea.

DECORATING TRENDS... by Charlie's

LEVEL LOOP CARPETS are very much "in" — from commercial installations in your favorite stores and supermarkets to the most luxurious homes.

What is a "level loop" carpet? Well, it can be any carpet with looped rather than cut pile...but wide usage today refers to the low, dense level-loop carpets created for especially hard wear as well as moisture and stain-resistance.

Such carpets are often called indoor-outdoor carpeting, with olefin fibers being most popular. The olefin fibers have the great virtue of being completely non-absorbent. Kitchen spills are easily wiped up...and outdoor moisture won't affect the carpet.

The versatility of these carpets shouldn't make you think they belong only outdoors or in special rooms like kitchens. There is probably a perfect place for a durable level-loop carpet in some room of almost every home, especially very active rooms like dens, family and recreation rooms.

You'll find these exciting carpet developments in our big display, in beautiful new prints as well as striking colors. It's our business to bring you the best of today's carpets...and we'll even bring samples right to your home. Call now!

SOUND COUNTRY

Bill Anderson will appear on a segment of the Mike Douglas Show which will air on nationwide television early this year. He will perform two songs from his forthcoming MCA album, "Ladies Choice," which was released in January. He chose "Double S" and "This is a Love Song" for this show.

Anderson was the first country artist to appear on the Mike Douglas Show in 1963, when it originated in Cleveland, Ohio, and was carried by only five stations. He has since appeared on the show numerous times, taping segments in Philadelphia, Nashville, and now from Los Angeles. The Legarde Twins, Australia's gift to the U.S., were doubly thrilled with their recent engagement at the Four Guys Harmony House. Not only did it mark their Nashville nightclub debut, but they were joined onstage opening night by the legendary Sheb Wooley and Buddy Landon. Wooley penned their current hit single on Australia's Fable Records and Landon produced the session. Incidentally, a gold record in Australia is 15,000 in sales.

Jazz artist turns to disco

By YARDENA ARAR
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The unsuspecting jazz buff who plops Herbie Hancock's new album on his turntable is in for a surprise. Instead of the funny keyboard creations which Hancock's most recent recordings would lead a listener to expect, the hapless fan is going to be hearing — shades of Saturday Night Fever! — disco.

The album, "Feets Don't Fail Me Now," is due for release this month, but you can almost hear the screams of the purists.

After all, this is the same man who's dazzled jazz lovers — particularly those of the electronic persuasion — with nearly two dozen albums of his own since 1961, not to mention well over a hundred as a sideman. The Herbie Hancock who's played in bands with such jazz artists as Donald Byrd, Freddie Hubbard and the legendary Miles Davis. The composer of "Watermelon Man" and "Maiden Voyage."

Well, it won't be the first time Hancock has changed his musical orientation to the wails of some unprepared fans — and to the delight of countless new ones.

His 1973 "Headhunters" album, in which he turned from his increasingly complex works of the '60s and early '70s to a more accessible jazz-rock sound, also prompted some complaints.

It also became the only one of his albums as lead artist to earn a gold record, and is credited with helping to establish jazz in the mass market.

"I originally established myself as a jazz musician, and unfortunately people are accustomed to pigeon-holing," says Hancock, well-prepared for questions on his various fields of musical endeavor.

"I wasn't the one that stuck me with the label 'jazz musician,' not that the label isn't applicable, but it may not always be applicable.

Actress skating to success

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Illinois-born Lynn-Holly Johnson skates like a dream in her first movie, and you might suppose she would be headed for a career like Sonja Henie's.

"I don't think a run of skating pictures would go over today," says Miss Johnson, who just turned 20. "Ice skating is much more popular today than it was in Sonja Henie's time, and it's no longer a novelty to see it on the screen."

On the blades or off, critics have predicted a promising career for the girl whose only previous acting was in a neighborhood play. She has a captivating naturalness as well as blonde beauty that is near perfection. Also a mind of her own.

"When they first showed me the script of 'Ice Castles,' it was aimed for an 'R' rating," she remarked. "I said I wasn't interested. Apparently they were in the process of changing the script, anyway, and it became a PG. Then I was interested."

Columbia Pictures is hoping that "Ice Castles" will be the first sleeper of 1979. The film was released in eight selected cities in December, with encouraging results. Receipts for the third week equaled the first, indicating that the film has staying power.

The movie is unabashedly sentimental. Lynn-Holly Johnson plays an ice skater who is being pushed toward Olympic competition by her widower father, Tom Skerritt. She is also influenced by her coach (Jennifer Warren) and a rink owner (Colleen Dewhurst) as well as a sportscaster (David Huffman). An accident leaves the girl almost blind, and help comes from a young hockey player, Robby Benson.

The saga of the athlete struck down in prime performance has become familiar on television. But "Ice Castles" is different, thanks in large part to the debut of Lynn-Holly Johnson.

She was born without the hypophysis (her roommate on an "Ice Capades" tour signed it that way, and Lynn adopted it) in Chicago and grew up in Glenview, Ill., daughter of a general contractor. A skating rink opened near the Johnson home, and Lynn watched her mother and older brother and sister skate, then joined them on ice at the age of 4. By 11 she decided to train seriously, and in 1974 she placed second in the national novice-free skating contest.

A broken leg ended her career as a competitor, and at 18 she joined "Ice Capades" as a feature skater.

"Ice Castles" was filmed mostly around Minneapolis-St. Paul, and Miss Johnson skated outdoors for the first time in her life. It is more difficult, she discovered, since the extreme cold makes the ice harder and tougher to skate.

"I was more scared of the skating than the acting in the movie," she said. "They expected a great deal of me as a skater. With the acting, I could only do my best. I think maybe that helped — not trying too hard."

Texas brothel reopens on Broadway

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Drama Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — In August 1973, a house of ill repute near Austin, Texas, was shut down amid much uproar after eight decades of distinguished service to mankind. It reopened last June on Broadway.

But as a hit musical, "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas." It evolved from a Playboy yarn Larry L. King wrote about the house and its demise after crusades against it by Houston TV reporter Marvin Zindler.

"I thank God every night for Marvin," King says with great fervor. "Were it not for him, I'd still be out hustling up a magazine assignment once a month."

But now Larry, a tall, old-shoe Texan with a Captain Ahab beard, is both a man of means and a new playwright. He co-authored the musical's book with actor Peter Masterson. The royalties are rolling in.

He even made his Broadway debut this month in the show. True, it was only a two-week run as a substitute Sheriff Ed Earl Dodd while Henderson Forsythe vacationed from the role.

Still, acting in a hot-ticket show you helped write is mighty heady for a high school dropout born 49 years ago in Putnam, Texas.

King, whose deep, resonant drawl sounds eerily like that of Rex Allen, the voice in those Walt Disney nature movies, always wanted to be a writer. But he never thought things would turn out as they did.

He came to Broadway via newspapers, Congress, magazines, four books and even guest-lecturing at Princeton before writing the one acticle that became a show and put him in a high tax bracket.

After the Army, he worked in Texas on papers in Midland and Odessa, during which time he had a fling at little-theater work and wrote his first and almost-last play at age 22.

"It was a sorry old play, naturally about the newspaper business. The thing must of had 300 characters in it because I didn't stop to think of economy and cost and all that. I was sorry as hell."

"I remember one of the great lines in it came when this reporter walks in and tells the editor: 'My name is Dorothy Cool and I play it that way.'"

He commenced laughing. So did his wife, Barbara, a pretty, auburn-haired Washington lawyer.

King left the newspaper business in 1954 to go to Washington, D.C., as an aide to Rep. J.T. Rutherford and, when Rutherford died, for another Texas Democrat, Rep. Jim Wright, still a close friend.

In 1959-60 he was loaned out to another Texan — then-Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson, working for him as a speechwriter and advance man during LBJ's abortive presidential primary run.

He went back to House work, but quit in 1964 to free-lance "because I'd gotten away from what I set out to do. I wanted to write I like politics, but I didn't mean to stay in it that long."

"Quite frankly, the assassination of President Kennedy was a very traumatic thing, made me re-examine my whole life. At least he'd done what he set out to do. I had it."

"So I just quit cold and started over."

He sold a novel he'd begun in his spare time, then a piece to Harper's on the frustrations of second-banana politics. More magazine assignments followed. And he wrote three more books. One, "Confessionals of a White Racist," got a National Book Award nomination in 1971.

The whorehouse article was read by actor Masterson, a fellow Texan. He convinced King it'd make a great musical.

Whereupon another Texan, Carol Hall, an established composer, was summoned to write music and lyrics. Work began. King had never written a musical.

"I just worried about dialogue and plot. It was like three people working on an assembly line. I'd put on my nuts and bolts and let them put on theirs."

It became a showcase production in 1977 at the Actor's Studio here, with playwright King essaying a minor role.

It got good word-of-mouth and famous folks started coming to see it.

Then Universal Pictures showed up with $400,000 to bankroll it for a more lavish production Off-Broadway last year.

Among other things, this allowed the hiring of yet another Texan, Tommy Tune, a Tony award-winner, to co-direct and stage musical numbers at "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas."

In three months, he adds, he and composer-lyricist Hall will again team up for work on a "basically political" musical. It's tentatively entitled, "Mah Fellow Murricians."

King grinned from here to Putnam when asked if one need inquire whether it's about a tall Texan we all used to know.

"Aw, don't ask," Lyndon B. Johnson's ex-speechwriter said with a perfectly straight face. "Let everybody guess."

Train 'stars' in series

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The last time television had a series about a train it was called "The Iron Horse."

Puffing billows of black smoke, the old steam locomotive of the Buffalo Pass, Scalplock and Defiance Rail Road chugged across the screens in 1966.

"Supertrain" is a super-sleek, super-fast, atomic-powered, double-decked streamliner with all the accoutrements — swimming pool, gym, disco, and medical center — of a luxury hotel.

The newest railroad series, on NBC, is called "Supertrain," and the train not only is from a different era but looks like it comes from a different world. Somebody ought to tell Amtrak about this.

NBC, in its publicity, refers to the train as the "star" of this anthology series featuring different guest stars each week. Grumbles executive producer Dan Curtis, "Put the train out with no scripts and no actors and see how long it lasts. The train is terrific, but it's only the ambience."

"Supertrain" premieres Wednesday with a two-hour movie, then returns the following Wednesday to begin its weekly run as a one-hour series. The pilot movie was still being edited and was not available for preview.

"They asked me to do a series about a big train with all kinds of fancy things," Curtis says. "It was to be a combination of suspense, mystery and comedy. That was it."

Curtis, who heads his own production company, said he sees it as a "middle ground between 'Silver Streak' and Alfred Hitchcock."

In all, Curtis estimates more than $9 million was sunk into the sets, miniatures and early shows. He says by comparison ABC's "Battlestar Galactica" is "Mickey Mouse."

TV's leading lady is a man

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Television's biggest leading lady stands 6-foot-1 and weighs 185 pounds. Her name is John Schuck.

"While I prefer being a leading man, I enjoy being a leading lady," says Schuck, who's about as feminine as a linebacker.

Schuck stars with Sharon Gless in the new NBC comedy "Turnabout," adapted from the tale by Thorne Smith about a husband and wife who trade bodies after buying a magic statue from a gypsy. He suddenly finds himself imprisoned in her body, and she in his. Sound confusing? That's what the comedy is all about — the confusion.

though she's a man. It's not a "Charlie's Aunt" where they go around in drag.

"The characters are so elusive at this point," says Schuck. "We're trying to avoid anything that might be offensive. Especially on my part we don't want any effeminacy or swishing."

"We take a cerebral approach. We have to find attitudes that illuminate the characters. I've been observing my wife and talking to her a great deal."

Schuck, 38, was married last April to TV director Susan Bay, who coincidentally directed parts of "All That Glitters," Norman Lear's comedy about role reversal.

Actor Richard Crenna directed the pilot episode, which was aired last Friday.

"He was fabulous," Schuck says. "We felt so awkward they let us rehearse for a week. One technique we used was Sharon and I switched parts and observed each other. We still do that, but Sharon's creating her own man and I'm creating my own woman."

"Turnabout" is symbolic of TV's inexorable retreat from the reality comedy of the early 1970s. The show, like ABC's "Mork and Mindy," is a return to fantasy and gimmick shows like "Bewitched" and "I Dream of Jeannie."

Anyone waking up after 15 years in suspended animation would feel at home with today's new shows. Except for one thing: Divorce has replaced widowhood as the excuse for single parents, and nearly all the new comedies have a liberal infusion of sex. That includes "Turnabout," although it tread lightly to avoid anything in bad taste.

"Turnabout" is also the linchpin in NBC's campaign to establish a comedy beachhead on Friday night. It's a device that works well for ABC on Tuesdays and in the past it allowed CBS to dominate Saturday night.

The night opens with "Diff'rent Strokes," which was the first program personally selected by newly appointed NBC president Fred Silverman in his assignment to pull the network out of third place in the ratings. Silverman tossed out all the new shows from the fall and replaced them with the type of comedy and escapism that helped him put ABC in first place.

"Brothers and Sisters," which follows, is a roughhouse gang comedy about a college fraternity. Next comes "Turnabout," then "Hello Larry," starring McLean Stevenson as a radio talk show host raising two daughters by himself after his divorce. The evening ends with the one-hour "Sweepstakes," which while not a comedy, is a wish-fulfillment show about the winners of state lotteries. In other words, a switch on "The Millionaire."

Director Robert Altman spotted Schuck in the American Conservatory Theater in San Francisco and signed him for the movie, "MASH." He played the dentist, Capt. Walter "Painless" Waldowski, the Pride of Hamtramck. After that, he was in three more Altman films, "Brewster McCLOUD," "McCabe and Mrs. Miller," and "Thieves Like Us."

His role as Sgt. Charles Enright in "McMillan and Wife" kept him out of "Nashville"

Oliver Reed in "The Four Musketeers."

Oliver Reed in "The Four Musketeers."

Reed reveals himself

Nude scenes by actors no longer get the attention they once did, but when Oliver Reed did one in the middle of a Toronto intersection it made headlines.

According to Variety, the brawny British actor's unscheduled strip occurred after he had a long lunch with some friends during which they downed five bottles of wine, among other alcoholic drinks. Reed then attempted to walk home with his pants off.

He crossed a busy street, stopping the late-afternoon rush-hour traffic, wearing only his shoes, shirt and necktie.

Two policemen on the opposite corner, stopped him, had a chuckle and packed him off safely to his hotel room.

Later, Reed, still feeling the effects of his drinking bout, said: "I have an amazing rapport with police all over the world and many of them have arrested me. The fact that a person can walk the streets of Toronto with his trousers off and not get arrested is amazing."

Asked why he did it, Reed answered: "My mother taught me as a child to make people smile."

FCC probes interference

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is asking owners of television sets and other equipment that pick up citizens band radio and other unwanted signals what it should do about such interference.

"Over the last three years, the (Federal Communications Commission) has received an average of 80,000 complaints a year from people who have experienced RF (Radio Frequency) interference," the FCC says.

The complaints often involve "snow" on TV screens or "hums" and outside voices over sound systems.

While much of the interference comes from CB radios, it can be caused by other equipment such as amateur (ham), land-mobile and broadcast transmitters and other electrical devices.

The FCC says interference is reported not only by TV viewers, but by owners of AM-FM radios, tape recorders, electric organs, telephones, stereo systems, video games and other home electronic entertainment equipment.

"Additionally," it says, "air navigation aids, heart pacemakers, EKG equipment, truck braking systems and explosive devices are other types of health and safety electronic equipment which might malfunction because of interference from transmitters or other radio frequency devices."

It notes that several bills were introduced in the last Congress aimed at giving the FCC authority to establish anti-interference standards for manufacturers.

Book is difficult

THE FLOUNDER. By Gunter Grass. Harcourt Brace Jovanovich. 547 Pages. $12.

The publisher's publicity says that for his 50th birthday, Gunter Grass promised to give himself a "major literary effort" and the result is "The Flounder."

"Effort?" Certainly. Result? Perhaps.

To try to pin a label on this book, or give a summary of its plot, or to say in a few words what Grass said in 547 pages is impossible.

But some things can be said about what "The Flounder" is NOT.

It is not a book to spend a few evenings with, sitting in an easy chair, going from page one to the last page with minimal involvement. There is too much symbolism. The book requires study.

It is not a book for the delicate. There are statements by some of the characters that will be offensive to some readers.

An open mind is a definite requirement for finding out what political, religious or other statement Grass is making.

The plot revolves around a flounder that talks to a man, both of whom have been around since the beginning of time, back when men were ruled by women. The man has had a succession of wives, all cooks and all quite unusual. Eventually, the flounder goes on trial before a women's liberation group tribunal. He is accused of being instrumental to the rise of male chauvinism.

Now, as you can see, this isn't the simplest of plots.

For readers who like Grass, any review is irrelevant because they will probably read "The Flounder" no matter what is written about it.

So, this is for those new to his style. Be advised that his writing is very entertaining but difficult to read.

Mars is diverse

By ROBERT LOCKE
AP Science Writer
PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Earth's most intense probe of another planet shows Mars to be a surprisingly diverse world of gigantic volcanoes, great channels and canyons, meteor craters, swirling red dust and polar ice fields.

For nearly 2½ years now, the planet has been probed and sampled and photographed and analyzed as the billion-dollar Viking mission — which began as two orbiting spacecraft and two landers — continued operations beyond even the most optimistic projections.

"Mars has come into much better focus, but the number of mysteries has also increased," said Bruce Murray, director of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here.

Murray was one of about 500 scientists at last week's Second International Colloquium on Mars whose scientific interest has long been shared by the public in its fascination with the planet.

Virtually everyone agreed with James R. Arnold of the University of California-San Diego that "Mars is an extremely diverse object and we have consistently underestimated that diversity. I feel certain there are many surprises still in store for us."

The planet's surface varies from gigantic, permanent ice caps to sprawling dusty plains, from thousand-mile canyons to immense volcanic cones that climb 15 miles from the surface.

From night to day, the always frigid temperatures vary 100 degrees or more. Temperatures dip to 238 below zero at Mars' north pole in winter. The polar ice caps grow and shrink with the seasons.

The scientists also agreed that — The channels and canyons that slice through the martian surface were cut eons ago by mammoth floods. "It has been generally agreed," Murray said, "that catastrophic flooding really did happen on Mars in a very large way." Where the water came from and where it went are open to debate.

—The ice that gives a permanent white cap to the north pole is almost certainly frozen water, although mostly covered with a layer of frozen carbon dioxide — or dry ice — in the winter. The south pole is also covered with ice, but its composition is less certain.

—The very thin martian atmosphere is about 96 percent carbon dioxide and contains less water vapor than Earth's driest deserts. Earth's atmosphere is mostly nitrogen and oxygen.

—There is no evidence of life, as we think of life, in the martian soil where the two Viking missions landed. The search for extraterrestrial life was easily the most exciting part of the mission after the landers settled on the planet in 1976.

The returns have been studied and restudied, but "it is clear... that there is no strong evidence for life on Mars at the present time," said J. William Schopf of UCLA.

Then, like most other scientists, he adds, "I don't think Viking has been able to tell us whether there is life on that planet or whether there is no life... It is impossible for the life problem to be resolved... without bringing rocks back from Mars."

That sentiment reflects another topic of the conference: What next?

"This is, of course, the Viking wake," said Richard M. Goody of Harvard. "We are burying a very large mission." Viking, with one of its orbiters and both landers still working, has lasted far beyond its contract lifetime of three months and its 2½ years of data will keep scientists busy long into the future.

Twenty of 39 crew members were missing after the Vietnam-bound freighter Badger State broke up in the mid-Pacific.
