'Texans should show hospitality'

By SUSAN STOLER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says he is considering giving Chinese Deputy Premier Teng Hsiao-ping a personal welcome to Texas when the foreign official arrives Friday in Houston.

"We're talking about that right now," Clements said Monday. "The State Department is asking if I would go to Houston and welcome him (Teng) that morning."

The governor told reporters he has no sympathy with planned protests of Teng's visit.

"He is our guest in Texas and our hospitality will be as usual," Clements said. "We will turn out in a normal show of Texas hospitality."

Some 1,500 attended a Sunday rally in Houston to support Taiwan and protest United States recognition of China. Rally speakers urged the crowd to demonstrate against Teng Friday and Saturday.

"Whether we agree with him politically, philosophically or whether we like chop suey or not is beside the point," the governor said.

Teng probably is interested in Texas-based petroleum technology, Clements said.

"It's in our interest, and certainly in China's interest, to develop petroleum reserves over there," said Clements, who established SEDCO, an international oil drilling corporation.

Additional oil supplies would create favorable market conditions and lower prices for gasoline and other petroleum products, he explained. Texas could benefit from recently discovered Chinese oil because of the state's concentration of petroleum technology, he added.

The governor talked about Teng's visit after signing documents recognizing the Future Farmers of America, industrial arts and proclaiming March 5-9 Texas Public School Week.

"That's the No. 1 proclamation," he said after signing "W.P. Clements Jr." on the school week document.

Onlookers crowded the governor's public reception room to watch the signings, and several posed for snapshots with Clements.

He also stopped to write a note to Senate page Robin Barker, 14, in her history notebook.

Meanwhile, President Carter and Teng concluded their formal talks today and Teng announced that the Chinese and American people have "broad prospects" for building a new relationship.

Carter and Teng left the White House Oval Office in late morning after a two-hour meeting, and the president described their talks with a rush of adjectives.

Minister's conduct questioned

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — An investigation into the ministry of a United Pentecostal minister in Sherman will continue through the week, the state director of the denomination says.

The Rev. E.L. Holley of Lufkin, Texas, who oversees the operations of the state's United Pentecostal churches, went to Sherman last Friday after receiving a formal complaint, signed by two other preachers.

The complaint criticized the Rev. Charles E. Glass, 46, of Sherman's First United Pentecostal Church for "conduct unbecoming a minister."

Holley said he will give Glass a chance to answer allegations that he and his wife have put exaggerated emphasis on demons and evil spirits.

He said he talked over the weekend in Sherman to between 20 and 25 persons, all of whom expressed dismay and disgust over the activities of Glass and his wife, Mary Jo.

The charges could lead to Glass' ministerial credentials being lifted.

More than 150 persons have left the church in the past four years.

Glass' critics, many of them former members who still have relatives in the congregation, say the minister and his wife have steered the Sherman church into a fanaticism that has torn families apart, driven some families out of town and veered into emotional terrorism and physical harassment.

Sherman Police Chief Johnny Burleson said "about four" complaints of harassment were filed in 1977 by former members against present church members. Lately, the activity has resumed, he said.

The allegations against Glass — carried in Sunday's Dallas Times Herald, whose reporters interviewed church members — were:

—that there is a fascination at the church with demons and evil spirits, an interest that extends far beyond even extreme Pentecostal practice.

—that those who leave the church are denounced from the pulpit and later intimidated with obscene telephone calls, large numbers of cars circling their houses, and other harassment.

—that the purported sexual behavior of members and former members is a frequent topic of discussion during meetings.

Glass calls the accusations "bald-faced lies. Hate and love are but a hair apart. If what they are saying is true, they ought to hang me at sun-up. But if God be for us, who can prevail against us?"

He characterized the dispute as a small church spat involving ill will among members of four families in Sherman.

Drive with care

The movie classic "Weekend" by Jean Luc Godard includes a scene of a automobile pileup at least ten miles long. It's a comment on modern times in which the automobile, as one writer once put it, has completely conquered public space.

Pampa last Friday might have reminded a few moviegoers of that scene from "Weekend." But it was a day when the automobile itself was temporarily conquered — by the weather.

Pampa Police Lieutenant J.J. Ryzman said Monday that more than 30 accidents were reported during an hour and a half period late Friday afternoon when city streets suddenly turned into one gigantic banana peel. At least 60 drivers found themselves in the unfortunate role of motor buffoon.

A nine-car pileup occurred on Cuyler Street next to Central Park when the lead motorist apparently could not make it up the incline.

Ryzman said that despite bad weather, motorists are still responsible for their cars and what they do in them.

But he offered advice on how to deal with the slippery streets.

First, slow down and leave a little bit early.

If you find your wheels spinning on ice, avoid the impulse to accelerate more. Let your car "idle through" and pick up traction as slowly as possible.

Slow to a near crawl well in advance of a stop sign. If you have an automatic transmission it's a good idea to shift into neutral as you come to a stop. And allow extra time for pulling into the intersection.

If you find your car sliding, don't slam on your brakes. It will probably cause your car to spin even further out of control.

If you do find yourself in a skid situation, stab your brakes slightly and turn the steering wheel in the direction of the skid.

The best general rule for driving on ice may be: Use common sense, be careful without being timid, and practice an often forgotten virtue in these days of instant travel — patience.

U.S. farm prices upset Hightower

American producers are not getting a fair price for agricultural goods, Rep. Jack Hightower (D-Pampa) told Congress Monday.

Termining the situation as a serious problem facing agricultural communities, Hightower said, "I am upset by the fact that in the major field of export agriculture we aren't getting the price for our products that we should."

"If we were getting a fair price for our agricultural products it would benefit the entire economy," Hightower told the Speaker of the House. "Some of the countries that we are selling our wheat to are raking off profits."

"The Japanese have recently decided to continue selling U.S. wheat to their flour mills at the rate of $9.11 per bushel," Hightower said. "This gives the Japanese government a profit of $5 per bushel on the wheat purchased from U.S. producers."

He also told Congress that several European countries are making a profit of $3.60 per bushel on wheat purchased from U.S. farmers.

"The American farmers are subsidizing the taxpayers of Japan and Europe," Hightower said. "These direct benefits are flowing out of the pockets of American farmers and into the treasuries of foreign governments."

He said he was concerned over the treatment that is being given to the farmers by their own government.

"It may be true that the average farm income rose by 25 percent last year but this only shows it was far too low to begin with," Hightower said. "Even this kind of increase has not been felt in many critical areas."

Wheat, feed grain and cotton farmers in Texas were still hurting, he added.

Hightower concluded his speech by saying that he hoped President Carter would show concern for American producers.

"In building a new foundation I hope we will build it on fair play for our own producers."

Caravan rolls on

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — Some 900 farmers and their families prepared to set out today for the next-to-last stop on their tractorcade to Washington they hope will attract the attention of Congress.

The tractorcade, one of three sponsored by the American Agriculture Movement that will rendezvous Feb. 5 in the nation's capital, heads for a stop tonight in Augusta County.

Another column of farm vehicles spent the weekend near Charlotte, N.C., and a third was in Indiana. An AAM spokesman said the farmers plan to demonstrate and lobby in Congress for a 90 percent parity ratio on prices for 17 commodities grown in the United States.

There are an estimated 400 vehicles, including about 200 tractors, in this caravan, which started in Amarillo, Texas. It arrived Friday in Virginia on Interstate 81 at Bristol and spent the weekend camped in Wytheville. The caravan spread over 10 miles on its way here.

The farmers in the caravan — from Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Tennessee, New Mexico, Oregon and Virginia — have been averaging more than 100 miles a day since leaving Amarillo Jan. 15. The Monday drive of 80 miles was a relatively short one.

Onlookers crowded overpasses along the route, waving and taking pictures. Virginia State Police troopers, who were supervising the orderly procession, paused occasionally to take pictures, too.

"We learned one thing last year. Congress doesn't act any more. It reacts," said Ralph Roming, a vegetable farmer from the Texas Panhandle community of Bovina.

Good afternoon

News in brief

CLEAR

The forecast for Pampa today calls for clear skies and slightly warmer temperatures. The high is supposed to reach 30 and temperatures tonight are expected to drop to 12. Winds should be 10-20 mph from the northwest this afternoon, becoming light and variable tonight. Wednesday's high, expected to be in the low 40s, will be accompanied by partly cloudy skies.

Fire calls to hospital 'not serious'

Firemen have been called to Highland General Hospital three times in the last five days but for no serious problems, according to Archie Henager, Director of Plant Operations and Security.

Firemen were called to the hospital last Thursday evening and again early this morning in response to reports of an overheated electric motor in one of the elevators. Henager said the motor controls the elevator brakes and that such overheating is "a fairly common thing." The malfunction apparently caused some smoke but no fire or damage.

Henager said a repair crew is scheduled to look at the motor today.

A fire call Saturday evening was listed as a false alarm. Henager said someone on an upper floor of the hospital mistook steam coming from the dishwasher in the cafeteria for smoke.

Two sheriff's cruisers collide

Six prisoners didn't quite make it to the Texas Department of Corrections Monday when two Gray County Sheriff's cruisers en route to Wichita Falls were involved in an accident at the intersection of Highway 70 and Interstate 40.

The lead cruiser, driven by Deputy Doug Davis, reportedly slipped on ice and struck a post at the side of the road. The second cruiser, driven by Deputy Kelly Rushing, collided with the lead cruiser, according to Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan.

Jordan reported heavy damage to the first cruiser but said there were no injuries. The prisoners were returned to Gray County Jail.

For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Taking the back seat

The United States is behind the Soviet Union in the production of gas from deep underground coal deposits. Charles Brandenburg, of the Laramie, Wyo., Energy Technology Center reveals that the Soviets have at least two large plants in operation and a third may be now under construction.

If our memory serves, the technology for this type of gas production has been under consideration here for quite some time. Private energy companies have been interested in this source for gas and are now spending millions of dollars to develop practical methods to bring the resource on stream.

But like the Faraday means of producing electricity by sending burned gases at high velocity through a magnetic field, we are playing second fiddle to Russia in putting the technology to work for us. Russian and U.S. scientists worked together in building a pilot plant to test the feasibility of the Faraday principle right here in the United States.

However, we have not followed up quickly and the Soviets have purchased American built giant magnets to implement a production facility in Moscow. The target date for a plant to produce all of Moscow's electric needs is 1985. The Soviets have one large plant in operation already.

In the production of gas from our deep coal resources the process does not require the coal to be mined. Oxygen, or in some cases air, is injected into a coal seam. The coal is then ignited to produce temperatures of about 2,500 degrees. Steam from water in the coal reacts with unburned coal to produce gas which is extracted from a well.

When air is used, a low-grade gas is produced which can be burned for electric power plant generation. If oxygen is used, a medium-grade gas would be produced which could be upgraded for pipeline use. Or the gas could be used in the production of alcohol.

It has been estimated that 1.8 trillion tons of non-mineable coal are available for this process. Adequate use of this method will give us four times the reserve coal capacity, for it makes deep underground sources available for use. And these are not available by known practical mining methods.

Low grade Western coal is especially suitable for the new method. In fact, it has been said, "The worse the coal, the better it works."

Present studies indicate that at least one commercial plant could be in operation by 1987.

The United States will still be behind Russia in this type development and the 1987 figure is predicted on feasible technology. At present no consideration is being given to political factors which might be interjected. Also it appears there would be no reasonable excuse for environmental activists to interfere.

We won't make the mistake of selling the activists short. They will have plenty of time to figure out an angle and since their main target has always been industry per se, not just ecology, they quite likely will be able to come up with a "cause."

There simply is no shortage of energy resources in this nation. There is also no shortage of vociferous minority groups who are able to influence government regulators. We are thankful for the first and hope that we can achieve a greater shortage in the second.

Or perhaps it would be more to the point to state that we hope for more aware Americans with true perception so they will become wary enough to stymie the regulators in the government and the small pressure groups who back them.

We now find ourselves in the back seat with some other Western nations in productivity. It is unthinkable for this great industrial nation to take second place with a nation in the Eastern bloc.

Sears strikes back

For more than a few years now businessmen have complained of the rising burdens of government, aggravated by bureaucrats who treat business with maddening contempt and regulations that are sometimes unintelligible.

But corporations, particularly the largest ones, have tended to go along, churning out the required paperwork and passing costs to their customers. This week, we are happy to see, one of the largest, Sears, Roebuck & Co., has rebelled. It has filed suit against just about the whole U.S. government for the mess that goes by the name of affirmative action hiring. The noted civil liberties lawyer Charles Morgan Jr. has prepared Sears' complaint.

Sears has a deserved reputation for progressive and generous employment practices and, as its complaint notes, also has tried to cooperate with government goals and standards. It followed the lead of Washington in giving hiring preference to veterans after World War II, just as it answered a more recent congressional call to hire Vietnam veterans. It has tried to follow the federal policy of encouraging part-time work and flexible work schedules. It has responded to the government's call to hire the handicapped, and answered national laws and concerns about discrimination against the elderly by removing mandatory retirement rules. The company also has pursued affirmative action for women and minorities.

Sears says that all these decades of cheerful compliance with shifting goals has on balance cut into the number of women and minorities who might otherwise be in the company. But the current affirmative action establishment in Washington has looked at the numbers and, not caring how they came about, moved to make Sears adopt yet another set of hiring policies. These new standards directly conflict with the older goals to which we are presumably still committed as a nation, and they are filled with internal and interagency contradictions. The upshot is that it is literally impossible for Sears to comply with all the rules.

Apart from this charge of willful and childlike absurdity, Sears says the government has prevented it from fulfilling its affirmative action obligations in other ways. The government's failures in fields such as integrated housing and education have hindered the development of a qualified work force; the inadequacies of federal statistics have prevented an accurate reading of how far Sears' affirmative action attempts have succeeded and how much farther the company may reasonably be expected to go; the government's lack of coordination has made compliance an administrative nightmare. All in all, the federal efforts have added up to a rather massive denial to Sears of due process of law.

It's a breath of fresh air to see the Sears suit — in the same way that it was nice to see not long ago that when the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration came up with yet another regulatory horror, the idea of setting different fuel economy standards for different auto manufacturers, Ford Motor Co. responded with an unapologetic attack on NHTSA's policy and the whole view of American society that it revealed. The Department of Transportation has now backed down on the differential standards. Perhaps Sears will get similar satisfaction from the courts. In any event, it's good to see the battle joined; certainly such efforts can't make things much worse than they are.

Wild life devotees running wild

By OSCAR COOLEY

Unmistakably, human beings are sinners, but are they so bad as to be below the lower animals? Wildlife enthusiasts imply this in their persistent efforts to have large acreages of land and water taken out of man's reach and set aside for the flora and fauna.

They have succeeded in getting President Carter to convert 121 million acres of Alaska into a wilderness area, that is, a preserve in which man shall not set his dirty foot.

Alaska can afford to be generous with her geography, but some Alaskans are upset because their president in far-off D.C. with a stroke of his pen, spirited away a tract of theirs equal to the eastern seaboard states from Maine to North Carolina. They sort of assumed they owned their own state.

They, they figured, included the freedom to cut timber, drill for oil and dig for minerals that might be there, as well as to hunt and fish. Why, they asked, should man's right to ferret out and utilize the economic resources of an area of the earth's surface be denied? Isn't that a human right, Mr. Carter?

But the Sierra clubmen carried the day. They pictured greedy exploiters — swarming over the Alaskan terrain, despoiling and profiting — who must be stopped. At least some of America must be preserved in its pristine state.

One forester expressed it: "Wilderness is a feeling. It means the people in Miami, Chicago and New York can know that somewhere in the country there is land untouched by man and his machines."

There you have it. Human beings are despoilers. Man is rotten. Being such a cad, he should call it quits and surrender the earth to the deer and wild turkeys.

Soon, I read, the Forest Service will ask Congress to designate 240 million acres of land in all 50 states as wilderness areas. And probably the lawmakers will assent, the sentimental appeal of the wildlife cult being that strong.

Did you know that already, as a result of legislation or administrative order, roughly one-fourth of the United States is off limits to oil and gas development? We mustn't be over-energized.

The wildlifers tug at your heart strings most strenuously with their appeals for "endangered species." For long the whooping crane was a prime object of their sympathy, and still is. Such is their influence in Washington that for a time they held up construction of the $1.6 billion Wheatland, Wyo., power plant on the ground that it endangered 75 whooping cranes.

The population of Arizona has tripled since 1950. This and increased demand for irrigation water in the Southwest inspired a water development project on the upper Colorado River.

Enter the champions of endangered species with the demand that the water project be halted. Why? Because it would endanger the ptychocheilus oregonense. That's Latin for squawfish, which is a sort of overgrown minnow — some grow to 80 pounds, it is said. To your wildlife worshipper protecting the habitat of ptychocheilus takes precedence over the water needs of 20 million people.

Everyone has a right to his own priorities, but has everyone a moral right to tax his neighbors to finance a refuge for his favorite species of beast, bird or fish?

If residents of Miami, New York or Chicago yearn to know that somewhere there is "land untouched by man and his machines," let them purchase land in Alaska or elsewhere, put up "no trespassing" signs, and let the native plants and animals take over the luxuriate to their heart's content. They are free to do so.

But let them not use government to appropriate such land and to tax everyone, regardless of his priorities, to pay the costs of setting aside and maintaining a wilderness area.

Conservationists know that the number of Americans who would seek to harvest the resources in that 121-million acre tract of Alaska is small compared to the vast number who, if they give the matter any thought, conclude it would be "nice" to have another park-like area somewhere, and so will not protest if their representatives in Washington indulge this bit of favoritism to the wildlife fraction.

To justify government getting in the act, they will say, "This is for the common good... in the public interest." Is it? Then the public must desire it and will bring it about privately. Why must force, the overwhelming power of government, be brought into play? This is the contradiction to which all socialists are blind.

Where religion and science pull together

by paul harvey

During the recent Christmas season there was the usual annual conjecture concerning the "Star of Bethlehem." Was it a confluence of planets? Was it a one-time only celestial happening?

A researcher in astrophysics at Los Alamos offered a computer analysis which shows that Halley's comet appeared in 11 B.C. 32 degrees north of the equator. That is about the latitude of Bethlehem.

And, says David Moore, changes in the calendar since would compensate for the time differential.

Also, the U.S. Naval Observatory in Washington confirms that Jupiter, Saturn and Mars were in conjunction in 6 B.C., which certainly would have made a bright light in the Bethlehem sky.

Some scholars are able to accept "the Bible story" on simple faith.

Others persist in looking for physical evidence of Noah's Ark or the Red Sea crossing or the Bethlehem Star or the origin of the Earth.

And then there is Robert Jastrow.

Robert Jastrow is director of NASA's Goddard Institute for Space Studies. He is a man of science, an astronomer, proclaims himself an agnostic on religious matters.

Yet, and I quote his words, "I am fascinated by some strange developments going on in astronomy — partly because of their religious implications and partly because of the peculiar reactions of my colleagues."

The essence of what he calls a "strange development" is evidence that "the universe had, in some sense, a beginning — that it began at a certain moment in time and under circumstances that seem to make it impossible — not just now, but ever — to find out what force or forces brought the world into being at that moment."

The astronomer goes on to explain that the formerly accepted "steady-state" theory of cosmology has now been abandoned in favor of the so-called "big-bang" theory.

I'm still quoting: "The astronomical evidence leads to a Biblical view of the origin of the universe. The details differ but the essential elements in the astronomical and Biblical accounts of Genesis are the same: The chain of events leading to man commenced suddenly and sharply at a definite moment in time, in a flash of light and energy."

"Let there be light... and there was light."

Jastrow is intrigued by the reaction of his fellow astronomers. He says many scientific minds appear closed to the new truths.

"Their reactions provide an interesting demonstration of the response of the scientific mind — supposedly a very objective mind — when evidence uncovered by science itself leads to a conflict with the articles of faith in our profession."

It turns out that the scientist behaves the way the rest of us do when our beliefs are in conflict with the evidence. We become irritated, we pretend the conflict does not exist or we paper it over with meaningless phrases.

Many of yesterday's accepted scientific theories concerning the origin of the earth have been discarded as recently as this last month, when our probes of our sister planet, Venus, rewrote the textbooks.

Significantly, our space research increasingly confirms the limits of our finite intellects and the veracity of Scripture.

As the Shah goes

By DONGRAFF

The departure of the shah raises questions as to the security of every other ruler in the Mideast, conservative monarch and fire-eating revolutionary alike.

The year-long revolution in Iran has already severely shaken the stability of the region where that commodity was in short supply to start with. And the shocks may not be over.

If the civilian government the shah left behind, or a successor, plus the army cannot reach an accommodation with the divine mastermind of the upheaval, a revolution by demonstration could turn into genuine civil war. A distinct possibility, since the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini from his French pulpit already has excommunicated the government and urged Iranians not to cooperate with it.

The anti-foreign "Islamic republic" — which with a suggested hand — amputating code of punishment sounds like shah-style repression only more so — the Ayatollah has in mind specifically for Iran may not be so significant in the long run as what he represents in the region. And that is the tenacious survival of traditional Islam, a faith that has been ideologically moribund for centuries but remains a potent cultural force.

Oil may have replaced camels milk and dates as the economic staple and mud-walled towns may have been transformed into high-rise cities, but the bulk of the Islamic world's population remains more at home in the 14th century than the 20th.

The shah once touched on the problem in justifying the harshness of his well-publicized modernization program: "Believe me, when three-quarters of a nation doesn't know how to read or write, you can provide reforms only by the strictest authoritarianism — otherwise you get nowhere."

The description fits not only Iran but virtually every Islamic country from Central Asia to Morocco's Atlantic coast. In all these very likely are Ayatollah counterparts capable, under the right combination of local circumstances, of rallying the faithful to throw out the blasphemous secular oppressors, their foreign supporters and the present.

The Arabian peninsula's Saudi rulers are themselves devoutly traditional Moslems; Libya's Qaddafi is both a religious and a revolutionary fanatic; Iraq and Syria are ruled by antagonistic branches of a party that styles itself socialist; Algeria is the preserve of a once-radical junta; Morocco and Jordan are led by cautiously astute kings. As different in political styles as these regimes are, they have one thing in common — a goal of coaxing or forcing their peoples into the modern world.

In doing so, all run the risk of at some point pressing too far or too fast or both, arousing Islam's latent resistance to change. Iran, where a shah exercising strictest authoritarianism ended up nowhere, demonstrates what a potent opponent that can be.

Elsewhere in the Mideast

Iran's turmoil has overshadowed of late the Mideast's longest-running crisis. What action there has been on the Arab-Israeli conflict has been largely talk and that has been largely in Washington with efforts to get the Egyptians and Israelis back to the negotiating table.

But Jordan's King Hussein recently contributed a few words to the subject, expressing himself in a brief interview in The New York Times as more doubtful than ever that direct Egyptian-Israeli contacts could produce a settlement. He called upon Egypt to return to the "family" so that all Arabs, including Palestinians, could negotiate with Israel from a position of solidarity.

It may be recalled that Arab solidarity had produced stalemate and a rising threat of renewed war before Egypt's President Sadat broke ranks with his mission to Jerusalem. The results of that initiative may be disappointing to date, but at least Sadat's courage in making it and Israeli Prime Minister Begin's in taking him up got things moving.

It is questionable that a return to Arab solidarity would mean anything but a return to the status quo ante. King Hussein is an outstanding realist among Arab leaders. It is difficult to see what advantage he or anyone else would see in such a development — other than Palestinian extremists who, if they can't get everything, will take violent stalemate.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, Jan. 30, the 30th day of 1979. There are 335 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1933, Adolf Hitler became chancellor of Germany in a major move toward dictatorship.

On this date:

In 1649, King Charles I of England was beheaded.

In 1835, a would-be assassin fired two shots at President Andrew Jackson at the Capitol Building in Washington, but missed.

In 1847, the California town of Yerba Buena got a new name — San Francisco.

In 1882, Franklin D. Roosevelt was born at Hyde Park, N.Y.

In 1948, Indian nationalist leader Mohandas Gandhi was assassinated in New Delhi.

In 1968, Communist guerrillas invaded the U.S. Embassy compound in Saigon, South Vietnam, and were killed in six hours of fighting.

Ten years ago, President Richard Nixon ordered the Pentagon to come up with a detailed plan to replace the military draft with an all-volunteer army.

Shoe Bar Ranch at Turkey; and the Shelton Ranch.

Thompson worked as a TSCRA brand inspector at Lubbock, and later at Giddings. His seven-year law enforcement career began with the Lee County Sheriff's Department. He has been county sheriff for the last two years. Thompson is a certified peace officer with an advanced certificate and is a member of the Sheriff's Association of Texas. He has also completed 46 hours of college credit in law enforcement at Austin Community College.

"Lucky Thompson has the three essentials necessary for doing our members a good job in District 6 — he's a ranch cowboy, a law enforcement officer and a professional brand inspector," King says.

Thompson and his wife Carol have one daughter, Michelle, 5.

Thompson succeeds John Topper, longtime TSCRA field inspector who died in Nov. in an Amarillo hospital after a long illness.

Communications director named

AMARILLO — Lynn Heinze, an agricultural journalist from Greeley, Colo., has been named communications director for the Texas Cattle Feeders Association here, according to Charles E. Ball, executive vice president.

Heinze has varied experience in agricultural communications and is uniquely qualified to serve the cattle feeders," Ball said in making the announcement.

Heinze, 33, moves to the position after nearly seven years as an agricultural writer, photographer, and most recently, a farm broadcaster in Weld County, Colo.

Heinze's responsibilities will include the editing of the weekly TCFA Newsletter, sent to more than 4,300 readers, editing the Cattle Feeders Annual and the development of communications systems within the association.

Heinze is married to Daria, Jeanne and has a son, Robert, 2.

The TCFA, headquartered in Amarillo, serves most of the cattle feeders in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico marketing more than 20 percent of the nation's fed cattle.

Tax bill action set for March

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Floor action on bills implementing the 1968 Tax Relief Amendment to the Texas Constitution is just over a month away, according to House Speaker Bill Clayton.

Clayton said Monday he and Rep. Bob Davis, R-Irving, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, had agreed that March 1 was a reasonable target date.

"If we are going to get school finance settled by the end of the session, we have got to get it out of the way," Clayton told reporters following a 22-minute session of the House.

School finance formulas are directly related to the Tax Relief Amendment because of changes it makes in local tax bases.

He said Davis told him March 1 seemed practical but "it wasn't any particular deadline. I just wanted a date we felt like could be met."

Davis announced to the House that his committee would begin hearings next week on legislation putting the Tax Relief Amendment into effect. The amendment was approved by the voters in November.

He said first on the agenda will be establishment of a formula to evaluate agricultural land according to its ability to generate income, not its value on the real estate market.

Next, Davis said, the committee will hold hearings on how to deal with intangible property such as bank accounts, stocks and bonds.

The amendment dropped the requirement that intangibles be taxed, but existing school finance law includes intangibles in determining each district's need for state aid, starting with 1979-80.

Rural areas want a generous agricultural value formula, while urban areas want intangibles dropped from the state school aid formula. If intangibles are counted, large urban districts would lose virtually all their state aid.

Clayton said no decision has been reached whether to deal with the tax relief legislation in one bill or a package of bills.

But, he said, "it would probably cause less suspicion" if both intangibles and agricultural values can be handled together.

Other features of the tax relief amendment that must be implemented by the Legislature include special homestead exemptions, up to $10,000, for the elderly and disabled and exemption of family autos from property taxation.

Davis also included in his timetable hearings on consolidation of all property tax appraisals in one office per county — a recommendation of Gov. Bill Clements.

In its brief floor session, the House adopted a memorial resolution honoring the late Nelson Rockefeller and a Senate resolution wishing actor John Wayne a speedy recovery from surgery that removed his cancerous stomach.

Senators passed and sent to the House a bill allowing prosecutors 60 days instead of the present 30 to bring traffic cases and Class C misdemeanors to trial. A class C misdemeanor is punishable by up to a $200 fine.

The first scheduled steam-powered passenger railway service in the U.S. began in 1830.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
Brisk northerly winds moved cold air into the Texas Panhandle and South Plains early today, but the National Weather Service said most of the precipitation, frozen or otherwise, had moved out of the state.

Some light snow fell during the night along the Red River in extreme North Texas and some light drizzle fell in South Central Texas.

Forecasts called for mostly cloudy skies over the eastern half of the state and for mostly clear skies, brisk winds and cold temperatures over the western half of the state.

Travelers advisories were in effect today for the Panhandle and extreme North Texas because of icy streets and highways. Some fog hampered traffic in South Central Texas.

Early morning temperatures ranged from six at Dalhart in the Panhandle to 54 at Brownsville in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Most of the state had readings in the 30s and 40s.

National

A West Texas frontal system today spread freezing drizzle across North Texas and Oklahoma and snow from Colorado to Western Missouri.

The heaviest snowfall was reported in Kansas and Missouri, with some areas reporting up to 9 inches of new snow Monday. Another four inches were expected today before the storm moves eastward tonight.

Authorities in North Texas and Oklahoma reported iceglazed highways and power lines. Forecasters said skies over the Southwest were clearing, but light snow lingered early today in the northeastern mountains of New Mexico.

Light snow was also reported throughout the lower Great Lakes Region and the Ohio Valley with more expected, and freezing drizzle was falling in Ohio and western New York.

Skies in the Southeast were clear early today, but rain showers were forecast for an area from the Florida Panhandle and Georgia to the Central Gulf Coast states, and Alabama residents expected up to 3 inches of new snow.

WEATHER FORECAST by the National Weather Service calls for showers for the southern Pacific Coast changing to snow flurries over the Rockies. Rain is expected for the Carolinas with snow flurries extending into the Great Lakes. Very cold temperatures are forecast from the Rockies to Mississippi with cold readings expected elsewhere.

U.S. trade deficit hits record high

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States finished 1978 with a record $28.45 billion deficit in its foreign trade, the government said today. The red ink in the nation's foreign trade accounts was a major cause in the decline of the dollar during the year.

The Commerce Department said the trade deficit was worst with Japan, which sold the United States $11.6 billion more in goods than it bought.

If there was any good news in the trade picture during the year, it was that imports of foreign oil declined 6.8 percent to a total of $39.5 billion. Oil imports in 1977 had totaled $42.4 billion.

The Commerce Department said the over-all trade deficit in December was $2.04 billion, an increase from $1.95 billion a month earlier. While the increase was small, it showed the nation probably will continue to face substantial problems in its trade accounts in the months ahead.

However, Carter administration officials have predicted that the overall trade deficit for 1979 will be reduced substantially, in part because of the decline in the dollar that has made U.S. goods cheaper abroad but also because the U.S. economy is expected to slow down and reduce demand for imports.

The total 1978 deficit of $28.45 billion compared with a 1977 deficit of $26.5 billion, which was the previous worst trade deficit on record.

Mass resignation sought

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The chairman of the Texas Commission for the Blind wants all six commissioners to resign because of internal conflicts among board members.

"All of us must agree that there now exists on the board such a divergence of views as to make the orderly handling of the board's business difficult, if not impossible," Charles Sapp of Houston wrote to other commissioners.

Boy dies

DALLAS (AP) — An 11-year-old boy, stabbed through the eye with a screwdriver two weeks ago, died in a Dallas hospital Monday just moments before his 8-year-old sister was rushed back to surgery.

Police investigators said they learned Clifford Cecil Gradi died as doctors at Baylor Medical Center began emergency surgery on his sister Aimee Gene Gray.

A spokesman at the Dallas hospital would not comment on the surgery early today, but said the girl was still listed in critical condition.

The children's mother, Kathleen Gradi, 32, is being held under $200,000 bond after being charged last week with attempted murder.

Assistant District Attorney Jim Burnham said Monday that amended charges will be presented to grand jurors today.

Dear Abby

by abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: My 6-year-old daughter received a doll for Christmas that is designed to develop diaper rash! The doll comes with a little kit of pills which, when mixed with water and fed to the doll, cause the doll to break out with diaper rash. There is another solution to feed the doll that will "cure" the rash.

Never have I seen anything so ridiculous in all my life. I think this doll should get the Christmas toy booby prize of the year, don't you?

PASCO, WASH.

DEAR PASCO: Well, let's just say the diaper rash doll is somewhere near the bottom.

DEAR ABBY: Count me as another wife who undresses in the closet, but not because I'm hung up about nudity or sex. Far from it. I am very uninhibited when the lights are out.

My husband drools over women with great figures. My figure used to be beautiful, but after four children, too much eating, and not enough exercise, I sag in some places and have bulges and rolls of fat in others. In other words, I'm ashamed of the way I look unclothed.

I also feel guilty because I'm just too lazy to do something about the shape I've let myself get into.

My husband doesn't notice the shape I'm in when I'm horizontal, but he would notice it if he were to see me standing up, undressing.

So I undress in the dark to spare his feelings as well as my own.

SPEAKING FOR MANY

DEAR SPEAKING: I'm sure you speak for many. The last thing you need from me is a lecture on the importance of diet and exercise, but hear this: She who does not take care of the equipment may soon find herself out of business.

DEAR ABBY: When I read your column on what to give and what not to give old folks for Christmas, I thought you should win the Woman of the Year award. Then I read the postscript and changed my mind.

You say, "To be alone at Christmas is sad beyond measure. Give the greatest gift of all to someone who faces the bleak prospect of being alone, an invitation to spend the holiday with you and your family."

You are so wrong, Abby! People who are accustomed to living alone would be driven to distraction by the confusion, noise, clutter and general turmoil of the average family Christmas.

Old people find it much easier to accept holiday greetings by mail or phone, or a short visit from grandchildren — not accompanied by noise-making toys or indigestible food.

Some parents find family festivities tiring, and we older folks are even shorter on patience and endurance. Being alone away from the commotion of holiday hubbub is far from "sad."

Dr. Lamb

by lawrence lamb m.d.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I read with a great deal of interest a column by you about gas. My doctor told me that my gas problem was probably caused by swallowing air. He didn't seem to have any suggestion as to how to relieve this problem.

Like the other person you wrote about, I tried leaving out different foods but it didn't help. I seem to have normal bowel function and don't take any medicines of any kind for that, so that's not my problem. But I do have gas 24 hours a day. How does one stop swallowing excess air?

DEAR READER: Most people who swallow excess air are unaware of it. It's rather difficult to stop a habit that you are unaware of.

The best training device I know of is to hold an eraser or some other safe object between your teeth. When you are doing this, it makes it difficult to swallow. Consequently, if you do swallow you will be aware of it. The awareness and the difficulty in swallowing helps one to train himself out of this nervous habit.

To give you more information about gas problems and what you can do about them, I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-S, Controlling Gasousness. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Many people do have problems with swallowing air that cause gas complaints. An analysis of the gas in the digestive system in many patients has shown that, in fact, it is swallowed air, not gas released from fermented food.

Of course, you can have both and many people do. If your basic gas problem is caused by swallowing air, altering your diet isn't going to help much. What you have to do is break the habit of air swallowing.

Polly's Pointers

by polly cramer

DEAR POLLY: — Is there any way I can change the color of the blue ceramic tile in my bathroom to a salmon color? I have lived for years with blue tile in an otherwise salmon-colored bathroom because I thought I could not change the tile color. You are my last hope. — ROXIE

DEAR ROXIE: — I have seen some bathroom tiles that had been painted with an epoxy paint — some were satisfactory and some were not. The directions (especially for the drying period) must be followed explicitly. Talk to your painter or your paint dealer and see what they have to say about any experiences they have had with this. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY: — Mrs. R.H. wrote that she could not find a thimble to fit on her swollen finger. I suggest that she buy a plastic finger protector at the drug store. These are sold for use when a finger is out of place, a nail lost, etc. They come in different sizes and I feel sure one would work when used as a thimble. At least it would be an inexpensive try. — MARY ANN

Partners make old fashioned toys

BALTIMORE (AP) — Children used to entertain themselves for hours spinning two buttons on a cord or whipping the string off a top and watching the toy twirl across the floor.

One day, Ms. Fitzgerald said, she would like to offer apprentice programs for the neighborhood boys and girls, "but that's probably not realistic." In addition, the shop lends its tools to neighborhood machin-aged shop everybody is their own boss.

"It's an important experiment — taking a workplace on a small scale. We're finding it's real hard — it's a lot easier to ask someone what to do,"

PERSONAL TOUCH — Carol Fitzgerald, 31-year-old former schoolteacher, works in her Baltimore toy store. She and Wade Wright, a one-time lay minister, opened the store two years ago and make all the toys by hand.

And there were wooden blocks to build houses with garages that held unsophisticated little cars carrying tiny people.

Then in marched the big toymakers who flooded the market with intricate toys, and games requiring college degrees to assemble and a set of batteries for power.

And with these new toys came higher and higher prices.

Carol Fitzgerald remembers the toys grandmothers talk about. And many of her East Baltimore customers also get nostalgic when they walk into her shop — the Marvelous Toy Store.

The 31-year-old former schoolteacher, and Wade Wright, a one-time lay minister, opened the store two years ago. They learned the skills of the trade, bought several large power tools and started making simple wooden toys.

"They're old folk-toys. We're bringing them back — trying to revive them," Ms. Fitzgerald said.

Their first toy was an old-fashioned milk truck, made of solid maple. The wheels are attached with dowels instead of nails, for durability and safety.

"We figure if we pound a dowel in, it's almost impossible to take apart," she said.

"There is really not much design," Ms. Fitzgerald said as she sat in the living room of the store-home-workshop building, converted from an old sheet-metal factory which had been vacant for 15 years. "We want to produce fast and make good quality toys at a fair price. This is a working-class neighborhood which can afford our toys."

Most of the tops, tugboats, sailboats, ferry boats, trains, trucks, games and other small items for young children cost between $1 and $10. The wagons, blocks, rocking horses, table and chair sets and doll houses range from $20 to $50.

When the shop opened, Ms. Fitzgerald said, about 50 items were produced. But business grew quickly, and now they stock about 200 toys. After the summer fairs are over, business slows down, which gives the toymakers time to build up their stock.

Most of the toys are plain wood, but the tugboat is painted by hand and the train carries small brightly colored people. "Kids love colors," she said, adding that the tub toys are made of pine so they will float.

For Ms. Fitzgerald, toymaking was the result of a dream and a need to work with her hands.

"I had a dream of being a cabinet maker. It sounded so romantic," she said. "Instead, we started toymaking."

"It was hard at first, but it's working real well. Anything working with my hands, I really get into. It's therapy for me."

Toymaking is definitely not an eight-hour-a-day job, Ms. Fitzgerald said. "While we're making toys, we can't keep the shop open, too, so we have very sporadic hours."

And when they are working, they have all sorts of help from the neighborhood:

"We're running a free day-care center. Mothers who go to the store send their children down here. I put them to work and they love it," she said.

"Lots and lots of kids come in. Some are friends of the shop and some help by coming to fairs with us. We feel we're an integral part of the neighborhood," she said.

In 1969, European industries and services were paralyzed by a major epidemic of influenza.

THEN: The earliest known doll dates back to Egypt of 1900 B.C., while the most expensive — a pair of William and Mary painted wooden dolls — sold at auction in 1974 for $36,800.

NOW: Dolls have come a long way. More realistic and lifelike than ever, a new one called Baby Wet 'N Care gets a rash on her bottom when she drinks a special juice, and clears up when a soothing lotion is applied. Made by Kenner, she follows last year's Baby Alive, which now has her own stroller rocker and nursery center to keep little girls busy and happy. Dolls that children do things for, like these and Baby Heartbeat — whose realistic-sounding heartbeat can be heard with a play stethoscope — often become constant companions and help bridge the gap between a child's world and that of a busy adult.

'Gay' plates refused

DAVENPORT, Iowa (AP) — A county treasurer from Iowa who said license plates with the letters GAY on them might be popular in California is not popular in California himself. "You have an irresponsible mouth," said one of many letters he received from the Golden State. Earlier this month, about 1,000 of Iowa's new license plates were issued with the three-letter prefix GAY. More than 130 vehicle owners refused them, apparently because the word "gay" is sometimes used to mean "homosexual." Scott County Treasurer William Cusack said then. "Out in California, I'm sure there is a waiting line for GAY plates. But not in Iowa."

Woman to be charged

GREELEY, Colo. (AP) — A woman who was used as a hostage by two state prison escapees has been arrested and will be charged with aiding their escape, police said. The two men kept officers at bay through Saturday afternoon and evening before surrendering. They said the two women with them were hostages. But Patricia Ann Butler, 18, of Denver, was arrested Sunday and police said she would be arraigned on charges of aiding and abetting an escape. Police said the other woman was believed to be a true hostage.

Art brings $1.3 million

NEW YORK (AP) — An auction of the Stewart Gregory collection of American folk art, expected to bring from $600,000 to $800,000, has realized a record-breaking $1.3 million. The sale at Sotheby Parke Bernet Saturday of the late collector's primitive paintings and other folk art broke not only the previous folk art record of $350,000 set in 1973 with the sale of the Edith Gregor Halpert collection, but also topped all previous records for single-owner collections.

Minibus service sets own rules

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Back and forth Back and forth along Pacific Avenue, parallel to the Boardwalk. The blue and gray jitney buses have been running the same four-mile route for 64 years. The drivers of the 160 minibuses work when they want to, keep all their fares, increase or decrease service depending on demand and run their own private traffic court — all without government help. The new gamblers in this resort town are learning what the conventioners, resident senior citizens and tourists have known for years — if this jitney is full, there's always one coming. The city sets the fares, now 40 cents, and establishes the route, but the Jitney-men's Association of Atlantic City handles everything else — from complaints by passengers about rude drivers to disputes between drivers. "The city doesn't want to be bothered and we do a good job of regulating ourselves," said Milt Greenberg, the crusty, white-haired association president. "If a man is caught stealing gasoline or being constantly nasty and belligerent to passengers, we just won't stand for it," the 64-year-old Philadelphia native said. For lesser offenses, such as running a stoplight to pass an other jitney or starting work before the assigned shift, the driver may be fined or suspended for a short period of time. "We're unique. We're the only transportation system in the nation that gets no subsidies and doesn't want any," said Kenneth Roden, 35, an owner-operator for the past two years. "And this is the only city in the country where a person waits less than five minutes to get a bus." There are 190 franchises, which change hands only when an owner-operator dies or decides to sell out. "Before casino gambling, licenses went for less than $2,000," said Greenberg, who has been in the jitney business for 35 years. "Now, a license goes for no less than $10,000 and it will be $15,000 or $20,000 soon." Jitney drivers come from all ethnic categories. "Puerto Ricans, Jews, Italians, blacks, Greeks. You name it, we've got it," Greenberg said. Except for women. There are no female jitney drivers and there never have been. Most jitneys have 10 seats and the maximum allowed by law is 13. "If we had more than 13 seats, the Public Utilities Commission would regulate us and we don't want that," Greenberg said.

Referendum in Rhodesia

For the past few weeks, Rhodesia's white citizens have been listening to words which many of them hoped they would never have to hear, from a man they never thought would say them. For the first time, Prime Minister Ian Smith has been openly admitting that white Rhodesians, who make up about four percent of the country's population, have no chance of winning their war against black guerrillas. "To think we can mount an operation and defeat terrorism is absolute moonshine," Smith said recently. Instead, Smith is urging Rhodesia's whites to approve a new constitution, which would turn over the government to black majority rule. A referendum on that document takes place in Rhodesia today.

Rental demand declining

NEW YORK (AP) — Where have they gone, those unmarried swingers who sought to maintain their freedom and mobility by renting apartments rather than buying houses? Some of them seem to have disappeared, and apartment house operators are concerned. They thought the swinging lifestyle of this under-35 group assured landlords of tenants. Now they aren't sure. "If you were under 35 and unmarried, you were twice as likely to be a renter as a family of the same age, and four times as likely as an older family," said Philip Kozloff, president of Citicorp Real Estate. That's the way it used to be. By a margin of nearly 6-1, the historic pattern of these young unmarried households was to rent rather than buy, he said. As recently as 1973, the rental market could expect the formation of about 540,000 new swinging households — that is, households of one. But in the past four years, said Kozloff, the annual rate fell to 240,000. And so, unlike some analysts who simply assume the rental market is still growing, Kozloff maintains "it is clear that there has been a sharp decline in rental demand since 1973."

The change, says the Citicorp official, is partly due to economics, or so it seems. That is, the swinger's noncommittal lifestyle seems to have succumbed to some pressing financial realities. Unable to afford high rents, and seeing soaring real estate prices make some of their friends relatively well off, some swingers apparently have been trading mobility and freedom for an inflation hedge.

The Equal Credit Opportunity Act of 1975 also had a lot to do with it, making purchase easier for single individuals who had sometimes been considered poor mortgage risks.

Feedlot business picks up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cattle feedlot business, encouraged by higher market prices the last year, has picked up appreciably but the number of enterprises engaged in cattle feeding has continued to decline.

However, an Agriculture Department analysis said today that recent figures show "some evidence, at least, that this trend, too, is ending." The report noted that for many years the number of feedlots has slipped as larger operations replaced smaller units. But with the break in the cattle market a few years ago, even the inventory of large feedlots declined.

A quarterly report by USDA on Jan. 19 showed that the total number of cattle in feedlots in the 23 major beef states at the first of this year was down slightly from Jan. 1, 1978.

But with the exception of a year earlier, the feedlot inventory this Jan. 1 was the largest in five years.

The report also included annual figures on the number of cattle feedlots according to their capacities.

In the analysis, included in a weekly edition of the Department's Farm Paper Letter, editor E.D. Curran noted that 127,425 feedlots operated in the 23 big cattle-feeding states last year.

That was a drop of 3.5 percent from 131,904 feedlots operating in 1977. Curran said it was a somewhat smaller decline overall, than occurred in some previous years. But the total 1978 feedlot count was down 45 percent from 1962, when there were many more small operations.

Looking at the feedlot number changes from 1977 to 1978, the report showed:

—Small feedlots, those with capacities of 1,000 head or fewer, dropped to 125,523 last year from 130,018 in 1977.

—Those with more than 1,000 head capacities increased slightly to 1,902 in 1978 from 1,886 in 1977.

Larger feedlots, those that can handle 1,000 to 1,999 head, increased to 845 last year from 824 in 1977. But that was still well below the 979 reported just seven years earlier.

Another category, feedlots with capacities of 2,000 to 3,999 head, also increased last year, to 412 from 401 in 1977, but still were fewer than their peak of 537 operating in 1971, the analysis said.

Feedlots in still-larger categories, ranging from capacities of 4,000 to 31,999 head, showed declines in numbers last year.

But the largest category of feedlots — those with capacities of 32,000 head or more at any one time — increased to 65 last year from 61 in 1977. In 1975, a peak of 66 was reported.

Cattle marketed through the 23-state feedlots totaled 26.6 million head, up from about 24.9 million in 1977.

Iowa continued as the top state in feedlot numbers with 33,000 units, unchanged from 1977. All but 289 of those had capacities of fewer than 1,000 head.

Texas, ranked 14th in the number of feedlots — 1,120 — led in total feedlot cattle marketings with 4.9 million head last year.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government should set up a new federal independent agency to help create a national transportation system in rural areas, says an advocacy group. Rural America.

The recommendation was included Sunday in a report, "Rural Transportation — A Modest Proposal," issued Sunday by the organization.

Its author, Joe Moore, calls for a national Rural Transportation Administration to be created as an independent agency "to assume responsibility for extending minimal transportation facilities to all eligible persons in rural areas and small towns" over the next five to seven years.

Moore said that "urban bias rules out" placing the proposed agency in the Department of Transportation and that it should not be in the Agriculture Department because it has a "single-minded fixation on product shipment."

"Transportation is much more than a mere handmaiden to agribusiness," the report said. "It is a human service, and a key part of the economic and social vitality of the local community."

Book brings up ethical problem

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sheila Rabb Weidenfeld can't understand what the flap over the book is all about.

Betty Ford called it a "betrayal."

Ron Nessen, former White House press secretary, called it "tasteless and trashy."

First lady Rosalynn Carter called it "unacceptable" for White House staffers to write about the private lives of first families.

Mrs. Weidenfeld did just that. And she finds herself the center of a storm over ethics.

As press secretary to former first lady Betty Ford, Mrs. Weidenfeld kept a diary about her experiences in the White House. Her subsequent, recently published book, "The First Lady's Lady," offers a glimpse of power struggles within the White House.

It also reveals details of the Ford family's private life. And these tidbits have kept tongues wagging for months.

"This accusation that I've written a kiss-and-tell book bewilders me," she said as she curled up on the chocolate-colored corduroy sofa in her Georgetown living room.

"Anecdotes taken in context show how life works. Taken out of context, it's gossip because they show no insight."

"I didn't understand it. I still don't understand it. Why has there been such commotion?"

The commotion — in columns, editorials, television news shows and cocktail party conversations — focuses on whether she betrayed confidences of the Ford family when she wrote that.

—Daughter Susan was dating a married man while she was living in the White House and that her mother knew it.

—Mrs. Weidenfeld learned that the Ford's son Jack planned to smoke marijuana and advised him to "get stoned" before he went to a rock concert rather than during the concert itself where he might be seen.

—Son Steve sneaked a date out of the Queen's Bedroom one morning as an ABC crew waited in the hall to begin a televised tour of the White House.

Q. Did you betray any confidences?

A. "No, not at all. It's a very complimentary book because it's a warm and loving look at the family."

As Mrs. Weidenfeld tells it, she has written a book about what happens to ordinary folks when they get in positions of power. "It helps you understand all administrations," she said. "And administrations aren't that different. There's a White House mentality. It's about how people grow and change... how they have to grow up on stage which is a very tough thing to do."

Asked why she chose to describe a tipsy Steve Ford taking a girl he met that night "on a weaving tour of the White House" before he and the young woman spent the rest of the night together in the Queen's Bedroom, Mrs. Weidenfeld said, "Now that's a telling story."

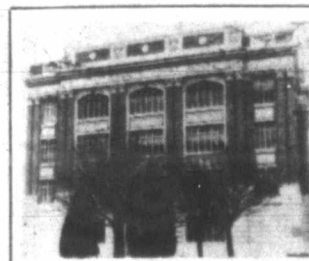

"We had lost the election. People in the White House were throwing caution to the wind. It was his home. Most people don't have a camera crew outside their bedroom door. What man at 21 wouldn't do the same thing?"

Mrs. Weidenfeld says the public has conflicting feelings about children who grow up in the White House. "They want them to be regular kids, but they don't want them to be. I portrayed them as real."

By all reports, Mrs. Ford hasn't exactly warmed to the portrayal.

"She called after the stories came out," Mrs. Weidenfeld said. "She hadn't read the book yet, but she wasn't very happy. I guess you could say our relationship is somewhat strained."

Publicly, Mrs. Ford has said the book "hurt the children terribly. They had a lot of confidence in her as a friend. They really felt they had confided in her, and it was a betrayal on her part."

The Gray County Courthouse is one of the community's most important buildings—even if you never enter it. In its vaults are stored the vital statistics of our community—the birth certificate containing the community's first recognition that a human life has joined the community; the marriage certificate stating the community's recognition that two people now live as one; the tax records, litigation records, and finally, the death certificate which is the recognition that a life has finally left the community. The funeral is also a public record—sort of a certificate given by the entire community that a person has lived, had worth and meaning, has loved and was loved, and now has died. At Duenkel-Smith Funeral Home, the funeral—the community's death certificate for an individual—is handled with care for the same reasons valuable records are placed in carefully protected vaults.

Caprock hocks Pampa girls in overtime

By JOE BLOBAUM
Pampa News Sports Editor
Caprock's Melanie Mixon sank a six-foot jump shot with six seconds to play in overtime Monday night at Harvester Field House, giving the Longhorns a 58-56 win over red-hot Kellye Richardson and the Pampa Harvesters.

Richardson came out firing from the start, scoring 10 points in the first quarter to help the Lady Harvesters to a 16-13 lead. But that was merely a prelude of things to come for the high-scoring junior. She wound up with 35 points, the biggest point total of the year for any Harvester.

Down 33-27 at halftime, Pampa rode Richardson's shooting and some good team defense to scratch its way back into the game. Richardson scored 16 of the Harvesters' 17 points in the third period — Becky Davis added a free throw — while Melissa Polson grabbed some big rebounds to cut Caprock's lead to 45-44 entering the fourth quarter. And the final period turned out to be a classic — if somewhat rough-and-tumble — one. Fittingly, Richardson scored on a driving layup to put Pampa ahead 50-49 with 3:40 to play. It was the first time Pampa had held the lead since midway through the second quarter, and the Harvesters didn't hold it for long. Debbie Ballew, one of three Longhorns to score in double figures, sank a pair of free throws with 1:59 on the clock to put her team back on top by one. Gara Satterfield added another charity toss for Caprock, but Richardson tied it up at 52 with another driving layup at 1:20. From there, the teams traded turnovers and mental errors to force the extra period. Caprock nearly forgot to take a final shot and had to settle for a 30-foot effort — which missed — by Becky Fiel as time ran out.

Davis and Richardson gave the Lady Harvesters a quick four-point lead in the opening minute of overtime. Unfortunately for Pampa, their baskets were all the scoring Pampa could muster in the three-minute period. Ballew sank two free throws with 1:51 to play. Satterfield hit a layup at 45 seconds after rebounding a teammate's missed shot, and the Longhorns promptly intercepted a Harvester pass to set up Mixon's heroics.

Caprock ran the clock down until 10 seconds remained. Mixon took a pass on the right side of the lane, turned around and fired in her game-winner with six seconds to play. Davis' mid-court shot was just wide as the buzzer sounded. "They were ready. They were fired up," Coach Mary Thomas said. "I think what hurt us was that second quarter when we got so cold."

Pampa was leading 25-20 in the second period before Caprock scored the game's next nine points — and 13 out of the next 15 — to take a lead it didn't relinquish until the fourth quarter. "They hustled well and moved the ball better and quicker," Thomas said. "We had a few too many turnovers, but I think each time they've played they've come back a little harder."

The loss was Pampa's fourth straight and left the Harvester girls with an 0-3 District 3-AAAA mark and 10-13 record overall. Caprock won its first league game against two losses and upped its season mark to 14-7.

Davis added nine points to Richardson's total, while Dwima Treadwell sank three long-range jumpers for six points. Theresa Cummins worked the boards for 17 points to pace the Horns. Fiel added 13 and Ballew 10 for Caprock.

Pampa's junior varsity led all the way to claim a 47-41 victory over Caprock. Joni Hale and Karen Ladd scored nine points apiece to lead Pampa, while Caprock's Rhonda Proctor led all scorers with 18. The Lady Harvesters will host Tascosa Thursday night to close the first half of their district season. Palo Duro downed the Rebel girls 65-51 Monday night in Amarillo, dropping Tascosa to 1-2 in league play.

Athletic budget slashed, Dietl fired

WT coaches in shock

CANYON, Texas (AP) — Regents say they must "live with" their means. But coaches at West Texas State University are shocked and dismayed at unexpectedly severe budget cuts, scholarship reductions and the firing of Athletic Director Dick Dietl.

There was speculation the regents would vote Monday to withdraw the university from the Missouri Valley Conference. But instead regents slashed the athletic department budget by $236,000, trimmed athletic scholarships from 121 to 73 and opted not to renew the contract of Dietl.

Dr. Myron Dees, 47, the head of the department of health, physical education and recreation since 1969, assumed Dietl's duties today. Dietl will remain with the university in a consultant's role.

"We have to live within our means. We cannot spend money we do not have," said T.L. Roach of Amarillo, the chairman of the board of regents.

"We don't have any choice," said Regent Jack Shelton of Amarillo. "It's past time to act."

But the decision drew sharp responses from the coaching staff.

"I've worked 11 years, took this program from nothing to where we can compete, and now you've pulled the rug out from under me," said Bob Kitchens, track WTSU track coach, reacting to a cut in the number of track scholarships from 11 to four.

"I cannot compete in the (Missouri Valley) Conference on four scholarships. You've made me the doormat of the conference. I've worked to build up the program and now you've pulled me back down," Kitchens told the regents.

"I expected the cut," said

Dietl, "but really not that deep. This is a (NCAA) division II football budget."

Available football scholarships were reduced from 85 to 43. However, the university currently has only 68 students with football scholarships.

The board also reduced the athletic department budget for salaries from $300,000 to $210,000. A move that prompted speculation of wholesale salary cuts or that coaches or staff members may be fired.

University President Max Sherman met with Dietl Monday afternoon and then announced Dees would become athletic director.

"President Sherman contacted me a week or so ago and asked if I would even consider the position," said Dees. "It obviously was not something I re-lished... But if the board and he (Sherman) felt that it would help in maintaining the athletic program, I certainly would work along that way.

"I anticipate this being not a killing of the sports program but a means of getting back to something we can live with and move on. A lot of people in the Panhandle are tired of paying bills on money we have already spent," said Dees.

Basketball and tennis were the least affected by the cuts.

Pugh retires

DALLAS (AP) — When Jethro Pugh was tabbed out of tiny Elizabeth City State University by the Dallas Cowboys in the 11th round of the 1965 draft, it gave Dallas writers and fans a new joke.

"What is a Jethro Pugh?" they asked. The 6-6, 255-pound defensive tackle ended his career Monday, his name a household word among Cowboy fans.

The lone survivor of the old Dallas Doomsday Defense, Pugh called it quits after 14 seasons, seven operations and more playoff appearances (23) than any other player in National Football League history.

"I like to think I've had a good, clean, honest career, but now it's time to do something else. I simply feel I've reached a point where I should discontinue football and pursue another career," Pugh said.

Pugh said he has no definite plans now, but is looking at several business opportunities.

Lefors squads fall to Groom Tigers

GROOM — Lefors Junior High's boys basketball team "just got outstuffed," according to Coach Don Parsons, as they dropped a 20-18 overtime decision to Groom here Monday night.

Cody Allison led-Lefors scorers with nine points, while Richard Kidwell added four, Billy West and Mike Jackson two apiece and Don Winegart one.

The Lefors girls missed 12 free throws and several layups while dropping a 28-4 game to Groom. Angela Stanley and Cindy Stubbs had two points apiece in a losing effort.

Lefors plays at McLean Thursday night for its next action. Game time is 6:30.

Douglass leads Dolphins at meet

AMARILLO — Clay Douglass recorded a 2:26.8 time in the 200-yard individual medley, which is an "A" time for his 13-14-year-old age group, to pace the Pampa Dolphin swimmers at an Amarillo Aquatic Club meet over the weekend.

The Dolphins placed third in the team competition behind the Amarillo Aquatic Club and the Odessa Aquatic Club. The Maverick Aquatic Club of Amarillo was a close fourth.

Dolphins participating in the meet included Douglass, Curtis Wormsbaker and Amy, Lisa and Cindy Raymond. Cindy Raymond won all but one of the seven events she entered. The events, times and places for the Pampa participants were as follows:

Sniper fire also wounds 8 kids Teen held in killing of 2

By NORM CLARKE
Associated Press Writer
SAN DIEGO (AP) — Brenda Spencer bragged to high school classmates last week that she was going to "do something big to get on TV."
Today, the 16-year-old is in police custody, held in a 15-minute burst of gunfire that left two persons dead and nine others, including eight children, wounded.
Police said Miss Spencer aimed a semi-automatic .22-caliber rifle she got for Christmas at the Cleveland Elementary School Monday morning, firing 30 rounds of ammunition.
School principal Burton Wragg, 53, was fatally wounded while trying to aid the injured children and custodian Michael Suchar, 56, died attempting to pull Wragg to safety.
Among the wounded was policeman Robert Robb, 28, shot through the neck. He was listed in stable condition.

Three of the children were released after being treated for minor wounds.
Authorities said the children still hospitalized included: Monica Selvig, 9, and Christy Buell, 9, in critical condition; Mary Clark, 8, serious condition; Cam Miller, 9, in fair condition, and Craig Verner, 8, good condition.
After firing the 30 rounds, police said the high school junior barricaded herself inside the family home across from the school for almost seven hours, warning police she was going to "come out shooting."
As members of the SWAT (Special Weapons and Tactics) force waited out the tense vigil, the girl finally agreed to surrender after hanging up her telephone on negotiators several times.
Earlier, she told the San Diego Tribune in a telephone conversation: "I don't like Mondays. This livens up the day." She added, "I have to go now. I shot a pig (policeman), I think, and I want to shoot more."

Wearing a black Navy watch cap, brown corduroy pants and a blue sweatshirt, the freckle-faced, red-haired girl was whisked to police headquarters for questioning after she surrendered.

She was being held at the San Diego City jail. Police said no charges have been filed in connection with the shootings.
Police said the girl had a history of petty theft and drug abuse.
SWAT Officer Mike Hendrickson said negotiators were told by family members that Miss Spencer "fantasized in the past about being a sniper."
"She knew a lot about our operation from watching 'SWAT' on TV," said Hendrickson, who helped pin the girl to the ground after she dropped her weapons on a driveway.
High school friends described the bespectacled Miss Spencer as an honor student, "really quiet... and unhappy that her mother wasn't around."

Boy gone for 5 years; goes home a lot wiser

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Wendell E. Marthers was 5-foot tall and weighed 95 pounds when he left home in December 1973, an 11-year-old fifth grader with fantasies of life on the road.
He's back with his parents now — 45 pounds heavier, 7 inches taller — and many more than five years wiser.
"When you're out there you have to worry about where you're going to sleep, whether you're going to get beat up," Marthers says. "It's not fun at all."
He disappeared Dec. 11, 1973, without any money or extra clothing, leaving a note telling his parents not to look for him.
This Jan. 5, he rejoined his parents, Helen and Charles Marthers, after telephoning from California to ask permission to return to their mobile home.

"My mind went blank for a couple of seconds when he called," said Mrs. Marthers. "His voice was much deeper. I wouldn't believe it until I had my arms around him."
Marthers, now 17, said he headed for Niagara Falls, N.Y., after leaving home, hoping to get into Canada, but he was turned back at the border and decided to go to California.
His five-year journey took him across the northern United States to Seattle, Wash., and from there down through Oregon to California, where he lived with a family for two months before flying home with borrowed money.

On the road, Marthers said, he slept wherever there was shelter — parked cars or the homes of people who would take him in. He stayed a few nights at drug rehabilitation centers, although he said he was never on drugs.
"There were a lot of times I'd be hungry," he said, adding that he sometimes ate leaves or grass as a last resort.
Marthers says he took odd jobs to support himself, but was sometimes forced to steal food. He said he was beaten up about six times — once over the length of his hair.
"I was scared just about every day I was gone, worrying about being arrested, about being killed or beaten up," he said.

"There are a few perverts," he said. "But you learn about them quick."
Marthers described himself as a spoiled brat thinking of "movie stars, glamour and beach boys" when he ran away. Instead, the youth said he found a world that was "pretty close to hell."
And he said he decided to come home after seeing the warm relationship shared by members of the California family that took him in. He declined to name the family, fearing they might run into legal difficulties for harboring a runaway.
"I was a bit of a shame when a person has to leave home for five years to learn he appreciates his own family."

Americans urged to leave Iran

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer
TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The U.S. Embassy today ordered the evacuation from Iran of all dependents of U.S. government employees, and again urged all non-essential American citizens to get out of the country following attacks on three Americans.
"The order was issued after a shooting attack on an U.S. Air Force major Sunday night in Tehran and the beating of U.S. Consul David C. McGaffey and an American employee of Bell Helicopter International in the central Iranian city of Isfahan on Monday afternoon."
U.S. Consulate sources in Isfahan said the trouble there began about 4 p.m. Monday with an altercation between the Bell Helicopter employee and an Iranian taxi driver near the city's Khoroush Hotel. The sources said a shot was fired during the dispute and the taxi driver had been hospitalized with a facial wound.

Details on the attack on McGaffey were not immediately available.
Iran's airports were scheduled to reopen today, clearing the way for Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini to return from exile, but he was not expected before Thursday.
A spokesman for the 78-year-old Shiite Moslem leader said he would not leave Paris Tuesday night because Air France, which will supply him a charter flight, wants to check the security arrangements at the Tehran Airport at least 24 hours after its reopening.
Meanwhile, hopeful passengers who had been unable to travel for six days hurried to the airport terminal, and a large group of demonstrators was reported near the airport gates.
Khomeini, leader of the year-long campaign to oust Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and make Iran an Islamic republic, had planned to return last Friday after 14 years in exile. But Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar's government closed the airports, touching off street battles between the patriarch's supporters in Tehran and the army and police in which at least 63 were reported killed and hundreds were wounded.

Bakhtiar, after Khomeini rebuffed his attempt to go to Paris and negotiate personally with him, said the ayatollah could come home as soon as his safety could be ensured. Khomeini replied: "We don't ask any security from Bakhtiar or anyone. God is the best protector of my safety."
Millions of Khomeini's followers are expected to throng Tehran for his return and to greet his arrival with the wildest enthusiasm. Local religious leaders and their aides are certain to make every effort to prevent the mobs turning violent, but there is always the possibility of an attack by militant partisans of the shah or of a spontaneous incident touching off a battle between the crowd and the security forces.

Khomeini is returning to give new impetus to the fight to replace Bakhtiar and his cabinet by a provisional government named by him which would then end the monarchy and set up a republic dedicated to the tenets of Islam.
Although he has not explained how he plans to accomplish this, one of his chief local aides said the nationwide strikes called by Khomeini, which are paralyzing the economy, would continue until the government quit.
Some people once believed that shooting arrows under a fruit tree would cause the fruit to fall off the tree just as the arrows fell.

Carter cuts Patty Hearst's jail term

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst will be free for her wedding, blessed by a presidential decree cutting short her 7-year prison term.
"I haven't made any plans right now. It came as such a surprise that it will take some time to adjust to it," the elated newspaper heiress said Monday after President Carter commuted her bank robbery conviction.
She is scheduled to leave the Federal Correctional Institution at Pleasanton on Thursday, four days before the fifth anniversary of her kidnapping by members of the Symbionese Liberation Army.
Among those expected to accompany Miss Hearst when she is released is her fiancé, Bernard Shaw, 30, a San Francisco police officer who once was her bodyguard.
The couple had planned a Valentine's Day wedding, but Sha said Monday they were postponing the wedding until they could be married in a church.

The Rev. Ted Dumke, who led the campaign for her clemency, said Monday the couple were now considering marrying on St. Patrick's Day.
Meanwhile, prison officials said Miss Hearst was transferred Monday to an isolated room, away from the 300 other women at the prison.
Duty officer Darell Hainline said she was moved "to be on the safe side," because of threats against her by other prisoners.
In granting the commutation, Carter agreed with a Justice Department recommendation that she has "been punished substantially," as a kidnap victim and during 22 months in prison. It said she needed no more rehabilitation nor punishment.
"She will be a law-abiding citizen," the department predicted.

"I'm really grateful that he was so courageous," Miss Hearst said of Carter's decision. "It would have been so simple for him to just leave everything the way it was... I thought I'd be spending another Feb. 4 in prison."
Miss Hearst, who will turn 25 in three weeks, said she was "grateful for all the support from so many people I'll never know and never meet," referring to the dozens of politicians, movie stars and newspaper editorial writers who called for her early release.
The commutation does not absolve her from guilt for participating with three SLA members in the April 15, 1974, armed robbery of a San Francisco bank. It simply cuts short her sentence, although she would have been eligible for parole in July.

Rhodesians vote today on new constitution

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Rhodesia's confused, fearful white minority vote today on a new constitution to give the black majority partial control of the government. Prime Minister Ian Smith warned the whites they court disaster if they reject it.
"I believe the consequences of a no vote would be quite disastrous," Smith said and the transition bi-racial government he heads said in a full-page newspaper advertisement. "If you vote no, Nkomo and Mugabe will dance in the streets of Moscow."
Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe are the communist-backed leaders of the Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance that has battled white rule for six years, resulting in 12,000 dead on both sides.
Smith said in a radio-television speech that a "yes" vote would pave the way for recognition from Britain and the United States of the next government to be elected next April 20.
The constitution which Smith and the three moderate black leaders in the 10-month-old transition government drafted insures a black majority in Parliament and the Cabinet. But it also ensures white domination of the civil service, the judiciary and the army and police for at least five years.

Some 94,700 of the 230,000 whites are registered to vote, but an estimated 15,000 of those registered have fled the country. Many are expected to boycott the referendum, but observers expect up to 70 percent of those who do vote to endorse the constitution reluctantly.
Rhodesia's black population totals about 6.8 million.
Smith in his broadcast reiterated the basic line of his three-week campaign on behalf of the constitution, that there is no alternative to black rule and no hope of a better deal for the whites, outnumbered more than 27-1 by blacks.
"He said Rhodesia's 'friends' in the United States, Britain and South Africa have sent a series of messages 'wishing us success in the referendum... so that we can go on working together in order to arrive at our final objective.'"
