One man killed in local stabbing

One man was killed, three others injured, and five charged with murder in connection with a knife fight at a local tavern Saturday night.

Roberto V. Lira, 25, of Pampa was pronounced dead on arrival shortly before midnight at Highland General Hospital. He died from stab wounds in the chest received during a fight in front of Frontier Lounge No. 2 at 117 Tyng St., police said.

Hipolito M. Montalvo, 33, and Mike Lee Durham, 25, both of Pampa, were treated for stab wounds and released at Highland General.

Rodrigo Vasquez, 29, was in stable condition under intensive care following surgery for serious abdominal injury.

Marcial Rodriguez, 35, Jose Rodriguez,

28, Victor Rodriguez, 29, Benito Rodriguez, 24, and Guadalupe Rodriguez, 26, were all charged with murder in connection with Lira's death, police said.

The five are being held in Gray County Jail under $50,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace Nat Lunsford.

Victor and Benito Rodriguez were reportedly arrested about six blocks from the scene by investigator R.B. Nichols. Nichols, driving an unmarked car, saw the Rodriguez car leaving the scene and a body laying on the lot in front of the lounge, according to police.

Marcial and Jose Rodriguez were arrested at a Highway 60 residence by police sheriff's deputies, after the two were reportedly identified by witnesses as having been involved in the stabbings.

Guadalupe Rodriguez was arrested and arraigned this morning.

Three others were questioned and released, according to police.

Nichols said this morning that police "were still working on investigation and had a few more statements to obtain."

Nichols gave no motive in the slaying but one police officer said the fight "might have started with an argument over a jukebox."

The four originally arrested were also detained for investigation of aggravated assault, although only murder charges have been filed so far. Marcial Rodriguez was also held on investigation of violation of felony probation.

The evacuation was ordered after the fire was considered to have toxic fumes in its

Washington remembered

Time is the severest judge of greatness. Though the debunking school of historians performs a useful service by cutting folk heroes down to human size occasionally, the men that a nation reverts for generation after generation are usually deserving of that honor.

It is 247 years since the birth of George Washington. In our kindergartens, walls are decorated with cutouts of hatchets and cherry trees, mythical symbols of Washington's uprightness and rectitude. Older students learn that he commanded the Continental Army during the War of Independence, that he later became first president of the United States.

American history majors in college may make more detailed study of his military campaigns, his contribution to the writing of the Constitution, the actual crises he faced as chief executive.

But for most of us, Washington was the man who won the Revolution, the wealthy but democratic aristocrat who lived at Mount Vernon and became the father of His Country, the man whose birthday is an excuse for a holiday. We are content to let it go at that.

If that is all there was to it, why then should Washington be so equally respected by professional students of history? Because his greatness holds up even under the most critical examination of his life and works.

There have been able generals in American history, more successful businessmen, more energetic and innovative presidents. The simple fact remains, however, that without Washington there would have been no Revolution, no Constitution, probably no United States as we know it today.

Washington's leadership alone virtually held together the tiny ragtag American army during the long years of the war. He was the only man respected enough by all factions to preside over the Constitutional Convention of 1787. He was the only man who towered above partisanship, the only possible choice for president of a new federal government that no one was at all sure could work.

We venerate him not only because of his place in history, however. His memory is a continuing inspiration to living men, who must face the crises and changes of their own times. Because of this, Americans 247 years from now will honor George Washington.

Invasion of Vietnam

No threat seen to U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials see no threat to the United States' immediate interests if the Soviet Union, which sharply criticized China's invasion of Vietnam, becomes involved in the Asian conflict.

It was felt that the fighting was not likely to develop into a major crisis beyond Asia, and a senior White House official said he had seen no evidence to indicate China planned to overrun its southern neighbor.

But, he said, "I don't think it is possible to predict how far the Chinese will go."

The official, who asked not to be named, described U.S. intelligence on the fighting as "quite good."

The United States, considering itself the only global power in a position to talk effectively with both Moscow and Peking, contacted the two capitals after the fighting began Saturday.

Other officials, who also asked not to be identified, said the United States used its new relationship with China to tell Peking in no uncertain terms that it disapproved of the move against Hanoi. The United States, these officials said, called on the Soviet Union privately, in addition to its public statements, not to try to counter the Chinese attack.

The White House official said that although Moscow and Hanoi had signed an agreement of "friendship and cooperation," the U.S. interpretation of the pact is that it commits the two only to consultations.

That official said, "The possibility of Russian action still does not lead you to a conclusion that a major escalation and confrontation that would threaten our immediate interests is likely."

President Carter kept in touch with the latest developments while spending a three-day weekend at Camp David, the presidential retreat in Maryland.

Meanwhile, Hanoi claimed today its forces stopped all of China's invasion columns, killed more than 3,500 Chinese troops and destroyed almost 80 tanks since the Chinese attacked Saturday. Western sources said China may have halted its drive after achieving its goals.

Vo Van Sung, Vietnam's ambassador to France, charged the invasion had the "tacit approval" and possibly the "complicity" of the United States. He linked it to the American visit of China's Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping and said at a Paris news conference

"an attitude of American encouragement" was clear.

With Asia's newest border war in its third day, Western intelligence sources in Bangkok said the Chinese have halted their offensive after driving no more than six miles into Vietnam and may be withdrawing some units. They said the Chinese objective was extremely limited, "to teach Vietnam a lesson."

The Vietnam News Agency reported the Vietnamese army inflicted "heavy losses" against the invaders Saturday and Sunday in Hoang Lien Son, Cao Bang and Lang Son provinces.

"Many columns of Chinese aggressor troops were intercepted and are being encircled and strongly attacked," the report said. It added that many Chinese soldiers had been captured.

After considering resignation

Mangold decides to stay

Gray County Justice of the Peace Otto Mangold considered resigning Friday because of health problems, but changed his mind over the weekend and was back to work today.

"I'm going to stay with the job," said Mangold this morning. "I've got things ironed out at the office."

Mangold has been justice of the peace, place two for only about seven weeks. He defeated former Justice of the Peace

Venora Cole in the general election in November.

Mangold reportedly announced his intention to resign after Friday's county commissioner's court meeting. Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy said the commissioners urged Mangold to reconsider, which he did over the weekend.

"We're real glad he decided to stay with us," Kennedy said.

Key Club flags stolen

If you're wondering why flags are not out on the streets today to celebrate George Washington's Birthday, there is a simple answer.

Mark Lehnick, Key Club president, said club members went to the group's hut on South Russell early this morning to gather the flags. However, when they got there all 40 flags were changing to partly cloudy tonight, and Tuesday. The high today should be near 60, with the low tonight in the mid-30s. Winds should be southwesterly at 15-20 mph and gusty today, decreasing to 10-15 mph tonight. The high Tuesday is predicted to be in the mid-50s.

discovered to be missing. Lehnick said the club is offering a $100 reward for the recovery of the flags, which are valued at $700.

But the club doesn't want to take any chances in the future. Lehnick said anyone who has ideas on another spot where the flags can be stored is asked to call the club.

Traffic light under repair

City employees were attempting this morning to repair the traffic light at the intersection of Cuyler and Highway 60, which malfunctioned during the weekend.

The electric supply to the light was shorted out after moisture apparently seeped into control cables underneath the street, said City Manager Mack Wofford.

"It should be fixed within an hour or so," Wofford said at 11 a.m. today.

State song needs fans

By DAN LACKEY
Pampa News Staff

A Pampa man, who is a descendant of the author of "The Star Spangled Banner" Francis Scott Key, is involved in striking up renewed interest in another patriotic song - one a little closer to home - the state song of Texas.

Tracy D. Cary, a musician and historian is not alone in carrying out this effort. There's a whole state association to help him out. Cary, president of the Pampa Genealogical and Historical Society, has been appointed as Texas - Panhandle Chairman on the advisory board of the Texas State Song Association by the State President, Mrs. Charles A. Stephens of Fort Worth.

Serving on the board with Cary are Chancellor James Moudy of Texas Christian University, Sen. Doyle Williams, Rep. Jim Wright, Charles Blanton, principal of Justin Kimball High School in Dallas, Dr. Gerald Ward, superintendent of Fort Worth public schools, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Thomas.

The board will be drumming up support for the song as part of the observance of the "Texas Our Texas" Golden Anniversary Year.

The state song, if to your understandable shame you might have forgotten, is "Texas Our Texas", written by William John Marsh. Marsh, who ironically counted Texas as his adopted home after moving here from his native England in 1904, first penned the melody for "Texas Our Texas" in 1917 as an entry in a contest sponsored by the Volland Co. in Chicago. The company offered a $2,000 prize for the best musical setting for Nesbitt's "Your Flag and My Flag." Marsh didn't win but Texas patriotism eventually did when the tune became the official state song on May 23, 1929.

One song was selected from over 1,000 entries. Sen. Margie Neal raised a prize of $1,000 by soliciting private subscriptions from 15 Texans.

Sen. Neal, who is Cary's cousin, also worked for the acceptance of "Texas Our Texas" in the two houses of the legislature.

Cary's decades of commitment to the state song probably began when he first heard the tune at school in the fifth grade. But his role as one of its principal caretakers grew out of his friendship with Marsh, under whom he studied music at Texas Christian University in the late forties.

Cary even had a small hand in helping write the song as it stands today.

"The credit for the lyrics to the song," says Cary, "goes to both Marsh and Gladys Yoakum Wright of Fort Worth. I don't think Mrs. Wright suggested more than a couple of lines but Mr. Marsh was very generous and insisted on sharing the credit for the words."

"I remember visiting Mr. Marsh shortly after Alaska became a state," Cary recalls. "He was sitting in his study in the midst of all these scraps of paper with different words written on them. And I said, 'Mr. Marsh, what are you doing?' And he said, 'I'm demoting Texas.'"

The third line of the song goes "largest and grandest, withstanding every test" and he had to have a word to replace "largest" since Alaska was now a state.

"So, Mr. Marsh said to me 'which word should I use?' and I picked, out of all these words he had written out on scraps of cardboard, 'boldest,'" says Cary.

Cary admits that a lot of Texans are under the mistaken impression that "Eyes of Texas", the school song of the University of Texas in Austin, is the official state song.

"I think because of the school being in Austin, and Austin being the capital, a lot of people tend to associate the school song with the official state song," he says. "But 'Texas Our Texas' is superior as an official state song. It has patriotism, mention of God and the Alamo."

As Cary is a promoter of "Texas Our Texas" as the state song, he's also a defender of "The Star Spangled Banner" as the national anthem.

"I know there's a lot of people who want to change the national anthem," he says. "They say it's not singable. But I say it is singable—according to the amount of patriotism they have!"

Defiance in Wyoming

Wyoming lawmakers seem determined to raise the speed limit in their state from 55 to 65 miles per hour. They realize that they may lose many millions in federal funds. Some of the legislation have expressed willingness to make up the loss within the state while others hope to sue the feds if the funds are withheld.

"It's time to start telling the feds where to go," said State Sen. Dick Sadler. "If this state has the guts to stand up to them, maybe other states will join us," he said.

The senator's statement was prophetic, for the stand taken threatens to touch off similar revolts in other Western states. In Oklahoma, which stands to lose $72 million, Rep. Jim Townsend said that he would introduce a bill to take his state's speed limit to 65 miles per hour. Townsend says, "I support Wyoming in their courageous move to come to grips with federal blackmail."

There are indications that Washington state, Montana, New Mexico, and Texas, who stands to lose $390 million, might sponsor similar legislation. Wyoming's chief proponent of the rebellion, Sen. Cal S. Taggart, says, "We have started a snowball that is gaining momentum every minute."

We are not too much concerned with the specific issue of speed limits. It is the larger implication in the matter which intrigues us. If this type of revolt goes deep enough it may soon appear that these states have really nothing to lose and much to gain in risking the "loss" of federal funds.

The whole idea of federal funding is based on the misconception that there are things that only federal government can handle. Most of these activities could be handled in a better manner and with less cost if they were kept as close as possible to the citizens who pay the bills.

It is the people who finally have to pay all tax bills. If the state takes on a job which local communities could do for themselves, the brokerage fees go up and the cost of each citizen will eventually be more as the state bureaucracy is maintained.

If the federal government takes on a chore which state or local communities could do for themselves a more insidious form of brokerage cost soon appear. In addition to maintaining a bloated bureaucracy, the federal government is broke and living on debt compounded, and in meeting its "obligations" it can employ the worst tax of all: the use of fiat money.

As the feds release more currency, the value of all our dollars hit the skids. Thus the nicely wrapped gift of federal funds can wind up costing taxpayers many times what it would have cost had they paid for the things wanted at the time and place they wanted them.

There is not complete recognition of these facts of economic life. However, there are plenty of signs that people are uneasy and are expressing great concern over arbitrary regulation and the attendant costs.

If the Wyoming revolt on speed limits tends to snowball and people begin to see the devastating total cost of government funding and regulation, the present storm kicked up in Wyoming, could have far greater ramifications than Proposition 13.

We hope the idea of a suit to recover funds withheld is dropped in favor of the basic idea that Wyoming and all other states can manage without the costly grants which are always tied to greater regulation. We like the flat statement, "It's time to start telling the feds where to go."

The federal bureaucracy may retaliate and withhold the funds, but over the long term it could become a plus instead of a minus for most Americans.

IRS alters rules

WASHINGTON - The Internal Revenue Service revised its proposed guidelines for determining whether certain private schools practice racial discrimination and hence should lose their tax-exempt status.

The revised guidelines, called revenue procedures, would offer a "more flexible, rather than a mechanical text" as in an earlier proposal, an IRS spokesman said. The guidelines are aimed at two categories of private elementary and secondary schools: those funded by a court or government agency to be racially discriminatory, and schools that were formed or expanded at a time when public schools in the community were being desegregated.

Under the proposals, the burden would be put on the schools to prove that they aren't discriminating. Currently, schools can maintain their tax-exempt status simply by stating that they don't discriminate when enrolling students.

The new proposed guidelines give greater weight than did earlier proposals made last August to each school's particular circumstances. The earlier guidelines said schools would have to show a "significant minority enrollment" or show they were undertaking specific actions to enroll minority students.

Under both sets of guidelines, a school is considered to have "significant minority enrollment" if its percentage of minority students is 20 percent or more of the percentage of the minority school-age population in the community. For example, if 50 percent of the school-age population in a community is minority then 20 percent of that percentage, or 10 percent, of the private school's enrollment should be minority students. Schools that meet this so-called "safe harbor" test wouldn't be subject to IRS review of their tax-exempt status.

Under the original proposal, schools that failed this test would have had to fulfill four of five other requirements to show they were making efforts to obtain minority enrollment. These included: providing minority scholarships, minority recruitment, hiring minority teachers, increasing minority enrollment, or otherwise giving evidence of good-faith efforts.

The new proposal, which the IRS has issued for public comment, retains the 20 percent test but eliminates the four of five requirements. Instead, the proposal says "consideration will be given to special circumstances which limit the school's ability to attract minority students." Further, the IRS would look at the community's school system, rather than the individual school, to determine whether racial discrimination is occurring.

The original proposal was criticized at stormy hearings held late last year by the IRS. A coalition of conservatives and religious groups saw the guidelines as a threat to religious freedom. Some of these groups claimed the proposal would result, for example, in Hebrew academies being denied tax-exempt status because they didn't have black or other minority students.

"Every child has a right to an education."

The speaker went on to name an amazing number of other "rights" which in his opinion the person just entering upon life today has: the right to a home, the right to a job, the right to travel, the right to choose his own friends, the right to be informed.

I have so many rights, I ought to feel right-rich, it seems. But are these really fundamental human rights, as implied?

A "right," according to my American College Dictionary, is "a just claim, or title, whether legal, prescriptive or moral."

When we say that X is one's right, we do not mean that X is merely an act or way of acting which is right—that is, moral—to follow, but rather that X represents a person's claim upon the world that is widely, if not universally, considered to be just and valid.

It is right and proper for everyone to get an education to the extent that he can, but he has no claim upon society to educate him, or to provide materials and facilities for his education, or to support him while he pursues an education. If "he" is a small child, the responsibility for providing these educational aids rests on his parents or guardian.

Most of us know less than we would like to know. We are less well educated than we would prefer, not because a right has been denied us, either wholly or in part, but because we have not learned as much or matured as fully as we would like.

Man and the universe are here for us all to observe and study. Rather than asserting one's "right to an education," it is far more meaningful to say that we all have an opportunity for an education.

Is my opportunity equal to that of my neighbor? Rather than worrying about the answer to that question, I'll do better to spend my energy in making the most of the opportunities I have.

The notion that every child "has a right to an education" is often expressed by school teachers and administrators. At the same time, they usually support the policy of compulsory school attendance. If every child has a right to an education, why must he be compelled to come and get it? To see education as an opportunity seems healthier than to describe it as a right.

The right to a home is on the same order. I have a right to occupy a dwelling and call it home only if I own, have rented, or otherwise have title to the dwelling. It is a purchased, or earned, right.

Most people earn income by doing work. With the income, they first purchase or rent a shelter in which they make a home. They also purchase clothing to protect and food to nourish themselves. They have no right to any of these things until they have purchased, or earned, or been given them.

Is the right to purchase what we consider the basic needs of life a fundamental right? It is conditional upon the willingness of other people to sell, which they are under no obligation to do. However, in common practice, thanks to free market custom, there is a human right to purchase wants because many have these things to sell, and so the transaction is assured. The freer the market that prevails at the point concerned, the more confidence we may have that the right to purchase can be exercised. However, it is not guaranteed by law, by social custom, or by any authority.

Your modern moralist who says "Everyone has a right to a job" is really saying that it is not the unemployed person's responsibility that he has no job. Somebody else, the employing class presumably, is at fault for not providing the job that this unfortunate lacks.

This is nonsense. An employer does not contract to hire him. A worker has no more right to a job than an employer has to the services of a worker. Their rights in this respect are equal.

What, then, if anything are our basic rights? They probably never have been better expressed than in the Bill of Rights of the U.S. Constitution.

Free speech and press are basic rights. Under the basic law of the American land, these must not be denied. We consider them essential to the business of informing ourselves—to getting educated. But the extent to which free speech and press are utilized by an individual person depends on that individual, not upon society. Their use cannot be forced.

Freedom of religion is another basic right, being the right to worship God as one pleases, or not to worship or even believe in God if he is so minded. In the time of the Inquisition, people were required to worship God whether they believed God existed or not, and in specific ways. They were not free, religiously.

The right to worship does not mean that society must provide a church for me to worship in, a minister to preach in the church, a Bible and hymnbook for each worshipper. In fact, if I am to be free, I must be allowed to choose the church I prefer whether I choose on the basis of its music. Churches do not make a practice of charging a fee for admission, but a church that did so would not be abridging the right of free worship in the slightest.

Be suspicious of anyone who enumerates man's rights at great length. Our rights are few. Like diamonds, they are precious—and for the same reason.

IN WASHINGTON

Education not the issue

by martha angle and robert walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Naive parents and altruistic teachers may define "education" as the process of intellectually preparing young people for their years of maturity—but the professionals know better.

"Education," boasts John Ryor, president of the Washington-based National Education Association (NEA), "is one of the nation's largest businesses."

"Education" also is a single-minded special interest group, worried about the loss of teaching jobs because of a declining school-age population and the threats to school financing from increasingly parsimonious taxpayers.

In this city, "education" is the tie that binds dozens of influential organizations and individuals affiliated with one of the country's most powerful lobbying operations.

"Education" has friends in the White House and on Capitol Hill—many of them recipients of the more than $5 million doled out by NEA in the 1974, 1976 and 1978 political campaigns.

Not entirely by coincidence, President Carter has proposed and Congress is likely to approve a scheme to give "education" its own cabinet-level federal department, with more jobs, money and political influence than ever before.

Carter, the first presidential candidate ever endorsed by NEA, agreed during the 1976 campaign to support that organization's efforts to gain independence for the educational functions within the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

Throughout the campaign year, the president's rationale for the change invariably focused on governmental efficiency. Virtually every time the education lobby pressed him for a renewed commitment, Carter referred to the change in the context of reducing from 1,900 to 200 the number of federal departments and agencies.

That approach made sense because educational functions now are widely scattered throughout the federal bureaucracy. Some examples: The Agriculture Department runs school lunch programs, the Interior Department provides schooling for Indians, the Defense Department coordinates the instruction of children of troops stationed overseas and the Labor Department runs programs to educate the children of migrant farm laborers.

In his Department of Education proposal sent to Congress last year, Carter called for consolidation of many of those programs. But that approach was scuttled because of widespread bureaucratic and political opposition.

As a result, this year's revised proposals involves little more than an upgrading of the HEW's Office of Education. Most of the approximately 200 additional educational programs administered by more than 40 other departments, agencies and bureaus will remain uncoordinated.

The reorganization plan also was widely touted as a means of reducing HEW's mission and budget, thus making that huge, unwieldy department more manageable and efficient.

But the "E" in "HEW" accounts for less than 8 percent of the department's $184 billion annual budget.

What will the change produce? Its principal result will be the creation of a massive new federal department with an annual budget of $13.5 billion, an amount larger than the current yearly budget of five existing departments—State, Justice, Commerce, Interior and Energy.

There also will be a staff of more than 16,000—more people than live in Windsor Locks, Conn.; Belle Glade, Fla.; Centralia, Ill.; Bluefield, W. Va., or Carson City, Nev.

That includes 15 new "executive level" positions created for a secretary, four assistant secretaries and 10 assorted other chiefs. The yearly salaries for "executive level" posts currently range from $47,500 to $66,000.

If the undistinguished performance of the Office of Education in recent years is a reliable indicator, there is one task the new department probably will not accomplish: Improving the education of the millions of young people who annually pass through the country's schools.

Food not so junky

Word comes from the annual meeting in Houston of the Association for the Advancement of Science that the American diet is not as bad as doomsayers describe. A survey recently of 2,000 families showed that "on the average the children had adequate intakes of all nutrients."

Even though many Americans are living on a higher fat diet, the incidence of heart disease has dropped dramatically in the last 25 years. Cancer deaths also have shown slight decline, if lung cancer is not counted.

Researchers point out that a whole series of diet-related diseases such as pellagra, goiter, rickets and scurvy have been eliminated over the years.

Advice on what to eat comes from all sides these days, but the strongest signal comes from the stomach. When it demands a treat, it's hard to say no.

So let's hope the most recent declaration by the "experts" is correct. Despite junk food, Americans are showing more intelligence about their diets and are not as unhealthy as some would like us to believe.

GOP draws blacks

The two-year campaign by GOP National Chairman Bill Brock to crack the traditional Democratic stranglehold on black voters paid handsome dividends in selected races this month and produced at least modest success nationally.

Surveys by the Associated Press and the New York Times indicated the GOP drew 15 percent of the black vote across the country—up from the 7.8 percent garnered by President Ford in 1976. A handful of moderate-to-liberal Republican candidates did far better, by their own calculations, at least.

Richard Thornburgh, for instance, claims to have captured 58 percent of the black vote statewide in winning the Pennsylvania governorship. Illinois Sen. Charles Percy polled just under 50 percent of the black vote in his state, while Illinois

Gov. James Thompson and Michigan Gov. William Milliken each drew about 30 percent of the black vote in their races.

Brock now plans to launch a similar campaign next year to garner Hispanic support for the GOP.

Berry's World

Tough policies sought

ARCHBOLD, Ohio (AP) — Former Texas Gov. John B. Connally has suggested that the U.S. adopt a get-tough economic policy toward Japan and the European Common Market.

Connally, who is seeking the 1980 Republican presidential nomination, told those attending a Lincoln Day dinner Saturday that imports of goods from those nations should be strictly limited until their restrictions on American agricultural products are lifted.

"We're going to have to penetrate that market," Connally said.

"It's not all that difficult. All we have to do is say to the premier of Japan, 'Look, friend, you've captured 35 percent of the automobile market on the West Coast... but unless we see more beef and more American agricultural commodities on the plates in Japan, you better be prepared to eat out of our cars, because there's going to be more of them over there.'"

Connally, a wealthy Texas attorney and rancher, told the crowd in rural northwest Ohio that he does not endorse price supports for farmers equaling 100 percent of parity, which is what the American Agricultural Movement is lobbying for in Washington.

But he commended farmers who paraded their tractors to the nation's capital for their courage. He said his plan to open foreign markets to all American agricultural goods, not just those selected by foreign governments, would satisfy the needs of American agriculture.

City and State news

Connally also suggested the U.S. should get tough toward Soviet aggression, which he said is threatening to grab control of 50 percent of the world's oil supply by controlling the entrances to the Red Sea and eventually the Mediterranean.

He said Russia's use of Cuban troops in South Yemen, Angola and Ethiopia should not be condoned, and added that he would stop pursuing an arms limitation agreement until those troops are withdrawn.

"I would build the B-1 bomber and build the neutron bomb" to ensure a strong bargaining position for the U.S. in world affairs, Connally said. He assailed President Carter's overall foreign policy, saying it has caused the loss of much of the prestige the nation has built up over the past 200 years.

Connally said inflation is obviously the most troublesome issue of the day. He said he would support a constitutional amendment that would force the government to balance the budget, but he added that he would hesitate to call for state constitutional conventions to deal with the proposal.

Delegation notes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas delegation notes: Sen. Lloyd Bentsen puts his intellect on the line later this week when he joins two other Democratic senators on a quiz show.

The three Democrats will try to beat a panel of three Republican senators and three reporters to the punch in answering questions on an "It's Academic Celebrity Special" to raise money for abused children.

Bentsen's team includes Sens. Daniel Patrick Moynihan of New York and Alan Cranston of California.

The Republican pride rides on Sens. S.I. Hayakawa of California, H.J. Heinz III of Pennsylvania and Lowell Weicker of Connecticut. The media will be represented by NBC's Jessica Savitch, columnist Art Buchwald and The Washington Post's David Broder.

The first team answering a question correctly receives points which will be converted to dollars by a food store chain will all money donated to the Child Abuse Fund. The program will be taped Thursday night for airing during the spring.

Rep. E. "Kika" de la Garza has been named by House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill to chair the United States delegation to the next meeting of the U.S.-Mexico Interparliamentary Conference tentatively set for May in Mexico. The Rio Grande Valley lawmaker served in the same capacity last year during the session held in Washington.

No roll-call votes have emerged from the new 96th Congress.

Rep. Charles Wilson has introduced legislation requiring a $2.28 billion slash in federal revenue-sharing funds.

"The people of East Texas are echoing the whole nation when they call for cutting federal spending and easing inflation," said Wilson.

"Not a single state is expected to have a deficit in fiscal 1980," added the Lufkin Democrat. "There is no reason for the federal government, which is deeply in debt, to give money to states which have more money than they can spend."

When Bentsen introduced similar legislation in the Senate two weeks ago, the National Governors' Association took exception.

"The fiscal problems of the federal government, with its $532 billion projected 1980 budget, have not been caused by the $2 billion state revenue-sharing program," said Vermont Gov. Richard Snelling.

The people's pharmacy

by Joe Graedon

The sniffle, sneeze and cough season is in full swing. Kids are coming home with runny noses, sore throats, and congested chests.

The urge to do something is strong, but watch out! Uniformed shopping for children's cold remedies in the local pharmacy can create serious problems. Some products could cause more harm than good.

Camphor is an ingredient in many chest rubs and some cold remedies and nose drops. According to the Committee on Drugs for the American Academy of Pediatrics, "Camphor has no established, therapeutic role in scientific medicine. Camphor has potent, serious toxicologic actions; the ingestion of relatively small amounts have proven fatal."

In 1976 an FDA panel of experts recommended that, if camphor is included as an ingredient in cold remedies, the label should include this warning: "For external use only. Do not take by mouth or place in nostrils."

One cold remedy that contains camphor, Save-the-Baby, not only doesn't include such a warning but actually recommends internal use and placement in nostrils. According to the manufacturer, Vetrex Products, Ltd., "Internal dosing may cause vomiting, but this should occasion no alarm as it helps to clear the phlegm and helps return to normal breathing." I find this statement absolutely incredible because vomiting may be the first sign of camphor poisoning.

Camphor is not the only ingredient to be wary of. Although there is real doubt that antihistamines have any value in treating the common cold, it is hard to find a product that does not contain them.

They often cause drowsiness in adults, but in children just the opposite may occur. Experts for the American Pharmaceutical Association have written that with antihistamines, "A paradoxical effect is frequently seen in children in which CNS (central nervous system) stimulation rather than depression predominates, causing insomnia, nervousness, and irritability."

"Shotgun" cold remedies designed to treat every possible symptom are something else to look out for. Many medical authorities decry the use of these products and a panel of experts for the Food and Drug Administration recommended over two years ago that pharmaceutical companies should limit to three the number of different drugs they put in any given product.

Even with this recommendation, Bristol-Myers recently introduced a new product called "Comtrex," billed as the "Multi-Symptom Cold Reliever." It's supposed to be good for 10 different symptoms. Since it has five active ingredients including an antihistamine and 40 proof alcohol, I personally would be reluctant to give such a remedy to my child.

Children's dosage information is often inadequate on drug labels, and Comtrex is a case in point. One half the adult dose for all children between 6 and 12 is recommended. In my opinion, that is just too general a recommendation for what could be great individual variation in body size and weight.

Cold remedies that come in yummy flavors and colors are also a potential problem since children may think of the medicine as candy or juice. "Contac Jr." is bright red and cherry flavored. It also contains Acetaminophen, an ingredient that can cause accidental poisoning if taken in large amounts.

So what should a concerned parent do for colds? Well, a good rule of thumb is to check in with your pediatrician or family doctor before even starting for the drug store. A phone call might save you a trip since the doctor may tell you to forget the drugs altogether. There is no symptomatic remedy that can cure or shorten the duration of a cold. A humidifier to keep air moist is often a wise investment. If you feel impelled to use something, make sure the doctor approves before giving the remedy to your child.

Slain diplomat home to stay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Clutching President Carter's arm, the widow of slain diplomat Adolph Dubs watched her husband's flag-draped casket carried from the plane that brought him home. A 19-gun salute boomed in the background.
Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance had warm praise for Dubs, the U.S. ambassador to Afghanistan, but cold condemnation for his killers Sunday in a brief ceremony at Andrews Air Force Base just outside Washington.
Dubs, 58, was shot to death last Wednesday as police in Kabul, Afghanistan, stormed a hotel room where he had been taken by four terrorists who kidnapped him on his way to the U.S. Embassy. He was the fifth U.S. ambassador killed overseas in just over a decade.
Standing by the U.S. Air Force plane he had sent for Dubs' body, Carter expressed "our outrage at the senseless terrorism of those who pay inadequate value to human life."
"We condemn those who would participate in such a despicable act of violence," Carter said.

Vance gave Mary Ann Dubs the Secretary's Award, the State Department's highest honor, in her husband's name and called the 30-year foreign service veteran "one of our very best."
Mrs. Dubs stepped to the microphone to thank him, but could only say "Mr. Secretary... before breaking into tears. In a voice inaudible to most of those present, she added, using her husband's nickname, "on behalf of Spike, thank you."
Carter put his arm around her and led her to a waiting car.
Dubs' body was taken to a chapel at Arlington National Cemetery, where he will be buried Tuesday.

Weather

Texas weather

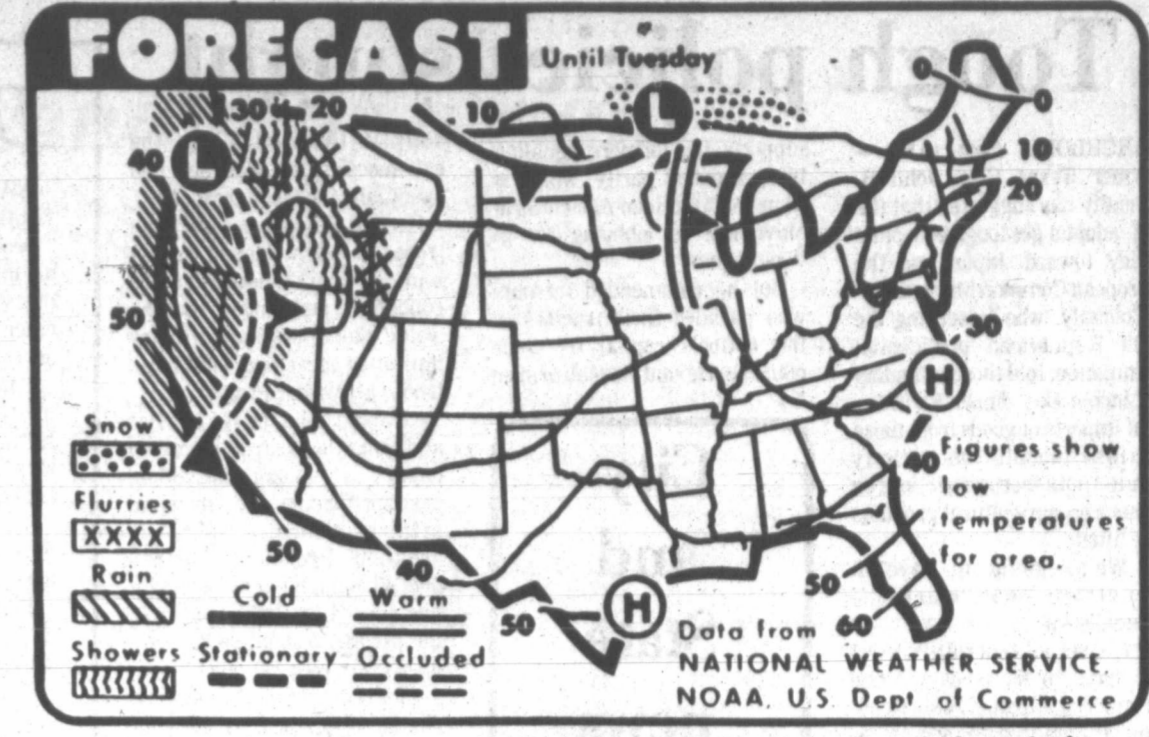

By The Associated Press
Winter was expected to loosen its icy grip on much of the state today as temperatures climb into the 50s across North Texas and as high as the mid 70s in the southwest.
Low clouds hung over much of the eastern third of the state this morning and fog reduced visibility in some areas. However, most of the rest of Texas reported fair skies.
Light showers fell in the lower Rio Grande Valley early today and forecasters predicted it would continue today.
Early morning temperatures ranged from 21 degrees at Junction to 39 at both Brownsville and El Paso.
Forecasters said it would be fair and warmer today in the west with highs ranging from the mid 50s in the north to the mid 70s in the south. Skies were expected to be fair and warm in North Texas after some early morning cloudiness.

National

Winter blasted the East with both barrels today, sending a storm sweeping in from the frozen Midwest and another howling up the coast from the South, which was stunned by up to 17 inches of snow.
At least 13 weather-related deaths were reported in six states, including six persons who froze to death in what is on record in some places as the coldest winter of the century.
Seven of the deaths came in southern states ill-prepared for the storm that hit Sunday.
Heavy snow was falling in New York City today, where 3-to-5 inches were predicted in the city's third snowstorm this month.

5,000 pounds of grass sought

COTULLA, Texas (AP) — Law officers riding horses, squad cars, helicopters and on foot fanned out across the brushy plains between here and the coast Sunday, hunting bales of high-grade marijuana dumped from an airplane piloted by accused smugglers.
An estimated 5,000 pounds of the Colombian weed are believed scattered along the 120-mile route across southern Texas.
"We just hope we get to it before too much of it gets away," said Sgt. Phil Altman of the Texas Department of Public Safety narcotics division, who said the search was ordered to continue today.
"Anybody caught with any of this marijuana had better be headed for the nearest law enforcement office," he said. Altman said two persons have already been caught trying to take some of the contraband and were jailed in George West County on trespassing charges.
He said 4,500 to 5,000 pounds of the marijuana have already been gathered since the Colombian-registered DC-4 flew at low altitudes from Corpus Christi to Cotulla, dropping burlap bags filled with from 50 to 80 pounds of marijuana each.
Ranchers and farmers checking their livestock after a cold front passed through the area Friday found most of the bundles.
"It's high grade stuff. Each burlap bag contains two Purina Feed Chow sacks full of marijuana," Altman said.

capitol comments
Ed Watson, state representative from Houston, recently introduced House Bill 484 which is a rerun of last year's House Bill 518 that was vetoed by Governor Dolph Briscoe. This was labeled the "Painless Speeding Ticket Bill" last year.
Generally speaking, any speeding tickets you received would not count against your driving record or cause your insurance to be increased so long as the speed was below the maximum limit as set prior to the reduction from 70 mph on major highways to 55 mph. This would, however, prohibit a fine for exceeding 55 mph but would apply to your insurance and driving record.
Last year, there were something like 90 co-signers to this bill in the House. I co-signed the recent House Bill 484 with Watson, the author, as have many others. Our panhandle highways were designed for 70 mph and were considered ultra-safe at this speed before the speed limit was dropped to 55 mph for fuel conservation. The number of speeding tickets has gone up tremendously.
The question arises, why should one fine be assessed to local city and county courts and another to the insurance company - double jeopardy. This might be justified if it could be proven the accident rate was higher among speeding offenders. It is highly doubtful this would be the case.
I am told several other pieces of legislation have been introduced that would prohibit the insurance companies from having access to the files of the Department of Public Safety.
This bill would not change the speed limit which would remain at 55 mph.
Thousands of riders and wagoners participate in Texas' best - known modern trail ride that begins in Brenham and winds 95 miles to Houston each February. The Salt Grass Trail Ride's conclusion marks the opening of the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo, the biggest in Texas. - Texas Highways Magazine

Dear Abby

by abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: I'm sitting here with a terrible headache and an upset stomach because I can't remember where I put my money, and a payment is due today at the bank!

I'm only 35, but my memory is so bad I'm ashamed of myself. Four years ago I hid some jewelry before going out one night. I still haven't found it.

I order things and forget to pick them up. I forget to make phone calls. I forget where I park my car. But I remember petty things like an argument I had with my husband 10 years ago. So why can't I remember everyday things?

Writing notes to myself doesn't help. I forget where I put the notes.

I've thought about going to the local mental health clinic, but I have a friend who works there and I'd just die if she found out how dumb I am.

Are there others like myself? What do they do about it?

FORGETFUL FRAN

DEAR FRAN: There are MANY like yourself. The wise ones get professional help, which is what you should do. Call your mental health clinic for an appointment. Your friend who works there will respect you for recognizing a problem and seeking a solution. That's smart—not dumb. Make that call now—before you forget. And good luck.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married 12 years and my biggest complaint is the same one I've had ever since I was a bride. My husband "surprises" me with unexpected dinner guests. He doesn't even call to give me a few minutes notice. He just walks in with a friend or two at mealtime, and says, "Don't go to any extra trouble, honey, they'll eat whatever we have." I could wring his neck!

Sometimes I have skimpy leftovers, only enough for our family.

Naturally, I'm stuck. I have to be a good scout, but I wish I knew how to cure him of his thoughtlessness. Any ideas?

HATES SURPRISES

DEAR HATES: If your husband has been "surprising" you with "unexpected" company for 12 years, it's time you expected it. Stop being a "good scout" and start being a "Girl Scout." (Be prepared!)

DEAR ABBY: There is a girl in one of my classes who is really neat, but she has one bad fault that turns me off. She uses dirty language. I'm no goody-goody, but she shocks me. She's great-looking and bright, too, but what a disappointment when she starts to talk!

When will girls learn? Guys sometimes use rough language among themselves, but no fellow likes to hear words like that coming out of a girl's mouth.

How about a few words of wisdom on the subject from you, Abby?

TURNED OFF IN ALTOONA

DEAR TURNED OFF: You've said it, and you've said it well.

Dr. Lamb

by lawrence lamb m.d.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Please tell me if vinegar is harmful to a person. I like to use a lot of it on my food and my husband has been told it isn't good for a person to use very much of it.

DEAR READER — If you listened long enough, you could hear everything. Some people write and tell me that vinegar is great for their health. The truth is, it's neither helpful nor harmful. The main ingredient in vinegar is acetic acid. This basic organic chemical is connected to an enzyme to form one of the major chemical compounds used in metabolism within the cell, so I wouldn't worry about vinegar.

Of course, vinegar is acid. If you happen to have an acid stomach or acidity problems, it might not be so good for you. The truth is, the amount of acid in vinegar is insignificant compared to the amount of acid produced by the normal stomach. Your stomach produces hydrochloric acid, which is a strong acid. Whereas acetic acid in vinegar is a very weak acid.

Then people seem to forget that there is such a thing as digestion. When we swallow something, it doesn't necessarily go into the bloodstream. If so, we'd have some mighty peculiar looking blood, filled with hamburger, mustard, vinegar, etc.

Regardless of the wide variety of the foods you eat, it is all broken down into a few basic compounds that pass through the intestinal wall and into the bloodstream. Foods don't get through the intestinal wall unless they have been digested down to the basic building blocks. Vinegar is digested. Its acidity is neutralized by the alkaline juices from the pancreas and the intestinal wall itself. So, let your taste tell you how much vinegar you want to use, if any.

To give you a better understanding of how all that food you eat is broken down before it even gets into your bloodstream, I am sending you The Health Letter number 12-4, Your Digestion: Processing Your Food. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Polly's Pointers

by polly cramer

DEAR POLLY — I hope you can tell me how to clean my gold-colored suede clutch purse. Also how can I sharpen serrated knives? I have several that are very dull. — HELEN

DEAR HELEN — Sprinkle your suede purse with talcum powder and then brush it well with a little wire suede brush. Any surface dirt should be removed. There is a spray suede cleaner sold at many shoe repair stores.

I recommend taking serrated knives to a professional knife sharpener. Do-it-yourself methods for sharpening might break the tiny points. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — After years of fighting to make neat cut-out cookies I found that if one dips the turner in the flour being used for the cookie cutter the cut-out cookie will slide right off the turner onto the baking sheet with no wrinkling or tearing. — LINDA B.

DEAR POLLY — I am answering Mrs. W.D. who has a navy knit dress that is covered with lint since it was washed with green towels. She should put the dress in her dryer with a sheet of fabric softener and run on the air fluff cycle. This will remove lint. The air fluff cycle is cool so there is no heat to hurt the polyester fabric. — MRS. A.B.

Polly will send you one of her signed thank-you newspaper-coupon clippers if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peavee or Problem in her column. Write POLLY'S POINTERS in care of this newspaper.

Mind is force in illness cure

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Cancer sufferers who go to Dr. Bernard Siegal for treatment can expect to have meditation prescribed along with chemotherapy, radiation and other more common conventional treatments.

Siegal is a cancer surgeon who believes that a patient's mind can be one of the potent forces in curing the body's maladies.

Although there isn't clear proof, Siegal says he is convinced that unrelieved mental stress breaks down the body's ability to combat the cancer cells forming inside all the time.

Ulcers are a good example of the body telling the mind that "it's going in the wrong direction," he said. The same may be true of cancer, he added.

Many of the cancer patients he has treated during his 15-year medical practice have changed their lifestyle or had a traumatic experience within 18 months of the cancer's appearance, he said.

"Western society uses illness like Eastern society uses meditation. When we need a vacation from work, we have to get sick to get time off. We also get sympathy, which we don't when we are healthy. We learn to be sick instead of learning to be well," he said.

"Meditation, whether it be transcendental meditation or just sitting in a room relaxing for a half-hour twice a day, gets people back in touch with themselves and their inner guide, who can tell them what it is they should be doing," he said.

Siegal, who is associated with several other surgeons in New Haven, encourages his cancer patients to attend his weekly group therapy sessions, believing that through mental therapy patients help in their own treatment.

"If it all comes from outside you, if you feel that healing is done to you, then it will be harder to cure your cancer."

If that thinking is carried to the extreme, a patient may be beyond saving.

"When I ask somebody 'What do you have to live for?' and the answer is 'Nothing,' it may be impossible to turn that patient around," he said.

"Some people are just looking for a way out of their problems and getting cancer is one awful solution."

Siegal feels he is supported by findings of scientists who in recent years have linked stress with cancer. They also view meditation as one way to reduce the stress.

But the surgeon admits he is in a minority when he tells people that cancer is a psychosomatic illness and that only the patient can heal himself.

"I know I don't talk like a doctor," he said. "But I think that doctors have failed their patients. We've used everything to treat people except the patients themselves."

OLD CASE
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Just because the murder suspect escaped by stagecoach in 1922 doesn't mean that the Unsolved Cases Squad of the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department has given up all hope of finding him.

"I just read through it (the case file) the other day to keep it fresh in my mind," says Sgt. Jack Peace. "It's still open until we're positive the suspect is dead or until it has been adjudicated."

"Of course, about all we can do now is wait for a phone call or tip."

The 1922 murder, the oldest of about 500 homicide cases still in the department's active file, involves the shooting death of a woman named Andrea Hassa de Pacheco.

A murder warrant was put out for her husband, Quirino Pacheco, after a witness to the incident reported that Pacheco subsequently "forced him at the point of his gun to take him to ... catch a stage."

Low birth-weight is the cause of the greatest number of deaths in the first year of life and the major cause of disability in childhood, according to the National Foundation-March of Dimes.

Beauty improvement plan

by josephine lowman

THE FINISHING TOUCHES
(This is the fourteenth in a series of 15 articles in which Josephine Lowman, author of "Why Grow Old" and leading authority on health and beauty, tells you exactly what to do to lose 20 pounds in eight weeks. You may want to save these menus and exercises to refer back to during the eight-week period.)

A week is such a tiny drop from the stream of life that is gone almost before we are aware of it. Tens of thousands of you have dedicated eight of these short weeks to self-improvement. To see how much more attractive you can be at the end of that time.

You are losing these extra pounds that make you look and feel so much older than you should. While doing so you also are improving your health, perhaps even saving your life, because overweight is hazardous to well being and longevity. Good for you!

I feel sure that your hair and complexion have benefited from your exercise and diet and weight loss, but today I want to help you put the finishing touches on that new, beautiful YOU.

Things you should know about your hair:

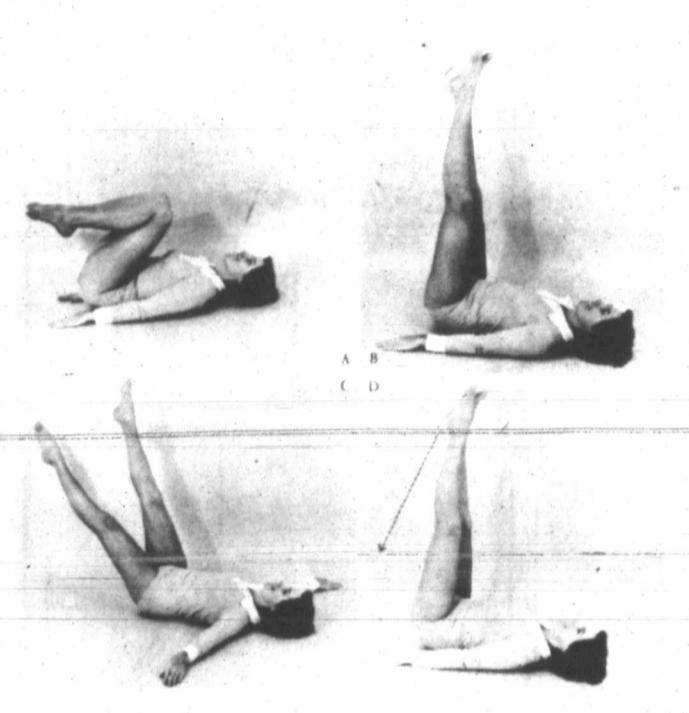

If you hair is oily you need not hesitate to shampoo it frequently, even every day. Today's shampoos are so mild that no damage is done. If you blow dry your hair or use hot rollers, you should use a conditioner occasionally. Also, do not have the blower too hot or hold it in one place. Move it about constantly. If your hair is limp, get a "body permanent" to give it body. If your hair is falling out do not brush it any more than necessary to keep it well groomed. Why not get a new hairdo to go with your new figure?

Things you should know about your complexion:

If you have an oily skin, cleanse it several times a day with soap and water, use astringents and masks formulated for oily complexions. For a dry complexion use a super fatted soap or a cleansing lotion formulated for dry skins. Do not use astringents. Moisturizers are an aid. An eye cream should be patted in gently around the eyes at night. Use a moisturizer on your face. Pat the creams and lotions in. There is danger of stretching the epidermis. Experiment with makeup. It can do wonders for you.

Protein is important to the health and beauty of both skin and hair. A protein deficiency will be reflected unhappily in both. Protein foods are meat, poultry, fish, cheese, eggs, milk, and seeds, nuts and beans. Protein needs vary with the size and age of the individual. According to nutritionists, no adult should have less than 50 grams daily.

Some dermatologists feel that the B complex vitamins improve the hair. Vitamin A has long been considered the friend of a beautiful complexion. Brewer's yeast, the dark green vegetables and liver are rich sources of the B's while vitamin A is plentiful

Four-part exercise

Today's exercise is corrective to several figure defects. It is an abdominal exercise and also firms the inner and outer thighlines. Lie on the floor on your back with your legs straight and your arms resting on the floor slightly away from your body. Bend your knees as you raise both legs up, straightening your legs to right angles to your body toward the ceiling. While in this position separate your legs. Bring them together. Lower them to the floor. Knees should be straight throughout except when raising them.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

February 20, 1979

Several things that you've been wanting for a long time could finally come your way this coming year. Your persistence and patience will turn the trick.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your interests might have to take a back seat to those of others today. It could seem like everyone has a better reason than you for demanding the attention. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in 1979 by sending for your copy of the all-new Astro-Graph Letter. Mail $1 for each and a long self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It would be best to avoid working with tools or machinery today. You are exceptionally careless and won't have your mind on your work.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't be influenced by friends or associates who would talk you into gambling or speculating today. Chances are you'll end up feeling victimized.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Bringing others into the picture concerning an important goal may be your downfall today. Not having all the facts, they'll create opposition for you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Organization and planning will be necessary to get your work done today. Otherwise, you'll find yourself skidding around corners.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You could find yourself brooding because you just can't seem to make ends meet today. A frivolous purchase to ease your feelings won't help matters.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't take things out on your family if you feel overpowered or out-manuevered today. They're on your side and want to help.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today is a bad day to attempt difficult chores. There are too many unforeseen complications that could arise to mess up the project.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Others might not have the necessary funds to go along with the social events of the day and your plans could get rained out. Smile and reschedule.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Something or someone could stand in the way of a long-sought goal today. Blowing up may make you feel better, but it will hurt your image.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There is a lot going on behind the scenes today. You aren't getting all the facts. It would be a big mistake to make commitments or put things in writing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Outside help you were depending on won't be forthcoming today. There's a possibility this could cost you in some manner.

2 men captured in cop's death

BOSSIER CITY, La. (AP) — Texas law officers were here today to bring back two men accused of shooting to death a policeman in a Fort Worth suburb six days ago.

The suspects were captured in this northwestern Louisiana city Sunday after they went to a friend's home for assistance, police said. They did not resist capture.

A police spokesman said Jimmy Loyd Mead, 36, and Donald Ray Cagle, 21, waived extradition back to Texas. Deputies from the Tarrant County sheriff's office left Sunday afternoon en route to Bossier City to take custody of the prisoners.

Bossier City officials said the Texas deputies would probably return to Fort Worth later today.

The two men were arrested on warrants accusing them of the shooting death of police officer James Michael Carpenter, 25, of Crowley, whose body was found Tuesday slumped in the front seat of his patrol car.

Officers said Carpenter was killed apparently after stopping the suspects in a residential neighborhood in the Fort Worth suburb. He had radioed in some information on the pair before he was shot, and his last radio call said one of the suspects was in the patrol car with him.

More than 100 officers pressed a manhunt for Mead and Cagle Tuesday, and authorities believed the pair resurfaced Thursday when a 52-year-old man was abducted from a church meeting and robbed. The victim's stolen car was seen later in Tyler, and the search focused in East Texas and Louisiana.

Bossier City police said the two suspects went to a subdivision where a friend of Cagle's lived, but the friend was not home and his mother recognized Cagle and called police. Neither offered resistance when captured about 11 a.m. near the home, the police spokesman said.

Andreotti's Difficult Job

It's possible that not many people outside Italy would even recognize Giulio Andreotti. But at 59, Andreotti is one of Europe's most experienced leaders. A member of his country's ruling Christian Democratic Party, Andreotti has held every Italian Cabinet post. Italy has had 40 different governments in the past 36 years, and Andreotti has served as prime minister of the two most recent ones. Recently Andreotti resigned as prime minister, when members of Italy's Communist Party, who had agreed to cooperate with the Christian Democrats, withdrew their support. Almost immediately, he had a new job: the difficult task of forming yet another government.

DO YOU KNOW — What well known Italian leader did terrorists kidnap and kill last year?

Fight erupts as Petty wins Daytona 500

By DAN SEWELL
AP Sports Writer
DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — As he headed into the final lap of the Daytona 500, slumping Richard Petty was thinking about third place, something of a morale victory for the aging stock car racing king.

But the fiery tempers of Cale Yarborough and Donnie Allison ignited into a battle that took both off the track — and cleared the way for Petty to roar to his sixth victory in the $600,000 classic Sunday.

It was Petty's first victory since the Firecracker 400 at Daytona International Speedway in July 1977. It wasn't one that he expected.

"When I saw the yellow flag, I called back on the radio to ask (crew Chief Dale Inman) who was in the wreck," Petty said.

He heard brother Maurice Petty yelling "Go, Go, Go!"

"I came around turn three and saw No. 1 (Allison) and No. 11 (Yarborough) sitting on the infield and here I am leading the race," Petty said.

As Yarborough and Allison, who banged into each other in their battle for first place and smashed themselves out of the race, began fighting, Petty held off second-place finisher Darrell Waltrip and third place A.J. Foyt for a memorable — if not entirely satisfying — victory.

Petty, advised by his doctor to lay off racing for three months after a December ulcer operation, raised his career winnings to $3,180,596 with the $73,500 first-place prize.

Petty began 13th after a mediocre week here, but as the cars circled the damp track under a caution flag for the first 15 laps, his Oldsmobile's performance gave him growing confidence.

Pole winner and favorite Buddy Baker was dogged by engine problems from the beginning, and finally had to stop after 38 laps. The early departure of Baker, who qualified at 196.049 miles per hour, probably helped the other drivers keep from overtaking their engines.

Petty won with an average speed of 143.977 mph. Seven caution flags totaling 57 laps slowed the race. Defending champion David Pearson was among five drivers forced out on the 53rd lap after a mass tangle-up on the fourth turn.

The periodic caution flags resulted in long drafts that didn't finally break up until the last 45 miles. Waltrip pulled into the lead, then xade the last of his 18 pit stops on the 175th lap, setting up the Allison-Yarborough battle.

When their last-lap dogfight and fistfight were finished, the two exchanged charge.

Yarborough, who said that Donnie's brother, Bobby Allison, slowed down to block him, claimed Donnie then knocked him into the grass.

"That's the worst thing I've ever seen in racing. I had the race won, no ifs, ands or buts," Yarborough fumed.

Both Allison denied the plot described by Yarborough. Donnie said Yarborough came up off the grass to knock him into the wall.

Donnie Allison finished fourth. Yarborough was fifth and rookie Tighe Scott, who overshot his pit on his last stop, wound up sixth.

Optimist basketball

The Lakers upped their Pampa Optimist Boys Basketball League mark to 4-0 Saturday morning with a 25-16 win over the Bullets. Rodney Young had 11 points for the winners, who also got six from Wiley Kennedy. Anthony Bolin had six and Todd Hardin five for the Bullets, who slipped to 2-2.

The Celtics placed eight men in the scoring column as they downed the 76ers 26-22. Mark Cochran led the Celtic scoring parade with 10, while Jay Baird and Mike Wheeler had six apiece in a losing effort. The Celtics are now 3-1, while the Sixers are winless in four starts.

Tuesday night's games will match the Spurs and Bucks at 5:45, the 76ers and Rockets at 7 and the Lakers and Celtics at 8:15.

PHS girls to close season

Pampa's Lady Harvesters will conclude their first District 3-AAAA basketball campaign Tuesday night to highlight a rather light sports schedule for Pampa High teams this week.

The week's main high school action will also come Tuesday night, when several bi-district varsity cage games will be held. Lefors will take on Samnorwood at Groom. Miami and Channing will tangle at Dumas and Perryton will battle Childress at Amarillo's Civic Center Coliseum.

Weather and course permitting, Deck Woldt's boys golf team will be at the Lubbock Invitational Friday and Saturday. The Harvesters season will also be in action Saturday, when they'll take on Amarillo High and Tascosa in Amarillo.

This week's schedule:

TUESDAY
Basketball — Pampa junior varsity and varsity girls vs. Tascosa, 6 and 7:45 p.m., Amarillo.

Yanks take sprint championships

INZELL, West Germany (AP) — Speedskaters Eric Heiden and Leah Poulos Mueller gave U.S. gold medal hopes a big boost for the 1980 Winter Olympic Games by sweeping the world sprint championships over the weekend.

Heiden, a 20-year-old pre-med student at the University of Wisconsin, grabbed his third consecutive sprint championship at the Inzell artificial track in the Bavarian Alps Sunday, outclassing rivals in all four races over 500 and 1,000 meters.

Mueller, 22, of Milwaukee, won both 500-meter races and placed fourth and seventh in the 1,000-meter events in winning the women's title in the greatest triumph of her career.

Beth Heiden, Eric's 19-year-old sister, won both women's 1,000-meter races and finished second overall. The Heidens had won the men's and women's world all-round championships earlier this month. Eric for the third consecutive year and Beth for the first time.

"Once again, the speed skating team proves to be the main U.S. medal hope for the upcoming Olympics," said U.S. trainer Peter Schotting. "Maybe this will convince someone to give us the necessary financial support to prepare the team for the Games."

Experts say Eric Heiden is so good that he could sweep all five men's speedskating gold medals at next year's Games at Lake Placid, N.Y., and single-handedly keep the U.S. Olympic team in contention with the Russians, East Germans and Scandinavians.

The Heidens are subsidized in year-round training by their father, a surgeon at Madison, Wis.

Other U.S. speedskaters get some financial support from the national association, but the funds are meager compared to what top European skaters receive.

"West German skaters get money from the federal government, but we have to rely on private donations," said Mueller, whose husband, Peter, won a gold medal in the 1,000-meter race at the 1976 Olympics.

"Maybe Peter and I will stay in Inzell if he gets a job coaching the German sprint skaters," she said.

Mueller showed he still was a strong Olympic medal candidate by finishing fourth in the men's events, behind Heiden, Canadian Gaetan Boucher of Canada and Fvrode Roenning of Norway.
