Prisoner's view

This is a prisoner's view of the stark reality of the Pampa City Jail. The four cells blocks are equipped with metal bunks which may or may not include mattresses and blankets. The cell block for intoxicated prisoners (below) includes two bunks which have been torn from the walls. Commodes in the jail have been clogged due to a plumbing problem now being repaired. Police Chief Richard Mills said Wednesday that the jail facilities, which have not changed substantially since 1929, were "not as modern as we would like." Plans for modernizing the jail include the addition of more lighting outside cells and a surveillance video camera in the jail's booking room.

City jail shows strains of time

By DAN LACKEY
Pampa News Staff

This is the 50th anniversary year for the Pampa City Jail but this corner in the basement of city hall seems to show little cause for celebration. Noting the anniversary, the Pampa News took a look at the jail.

The jail, which is equipped to hold about 20 prisoners in four separate cells including the drunk tank, seems to be showing the strains of time. Certainly, none of the 871 prisoners who have been incarcerated there this year have mistaken the place for a Holiday Inn. As the prisoner enters on his way to the booking room, the neatest part of the jail, he first sees a large steel cage known as the drunk tank. The lock to the tank is operated manually by two large levers. Inside, there are two cells about eight feet square containing three metal bunks each. Outside these two cells -- which are not locked -- is a rectangular walkway with a commode and a tiny tin sink. The commode in this cell is filthy, largely because of plumbing problems that the city is now beginning to fix. Two of the metal bunks have been kicked and torn from the walls. The damage was done by irate prisoners, according to Police Chief Richard Mills. Mills said that most intoxicated persons are not provided with either a mattress or blanket upon entering the drunk tank. "We've had too much of a problem with prisoners burning blankets or stuffing them down the toilet," he said. Two more cells -- one equipped for six prisoners and one equipped for two prisoners -- make up the rest of the jail reserved for male prisoners. The larger cell includes a narrow shower along with the open commode and sink. The shower is a recent addition to the jail, along with new lighting outside the cells and a phone booth size cage for prisoners to sit in while receiving visitors. The department has also received a federal grant for a surveillance video camera to be installed in the booking room. But the question remains: Are making improvements to the present jail like trying to sweep dirt off the ground? "Well, let's put it this way, it's not as modern as we would like," Mills said. A separate cell in the southwest corner of the jail is reserved for woman and juveniles. It is the cleanest of the cells and it holds four six by two foot metal bunks, a large sink, and the usual open commode. Mills said there's a space problem whenever a woman and a juvenile happened to be booked into jail at the same time. "We have to do some juggling then," he said. "Often we try to release the juvenile in the custody of his parents." By law a person cannot be sentenced to the city jail, unless it's for time served in lieu of paying a fine. However, the jail is the official juvenile holding center for Gray County. According to police records, 161 juveniles were detained in city jail last year, although Mills said only one or two youths were held last year for "any length of time." Mills said his three main areas of concern for the jail were "safety, security, and sanitation."

A stench often lingers in the jail but Mills said janitors try to clean it as regularly as possible. "It's not possible to clean when we have prisoners in the cells, of course," Mills said. As for safety, the chief said he would like to see a "kind of drunk tank" which would ensure that prisoners couldn't hurt themselves. He also said he was concerned for the safety of officers, especially with a system of manually operated cell doors. Many jails have electronically controlled doors which allow for safer transfer of potentially dangerous prisoners, he said. About the overall condition of the jail Mills commented expansively. "You have to remember people aren't put in jail for singing too loud in church. I can see a lot of little old ladies coming in and saying 'You put human beings in here!'" Mills said. "It's not the best system," Mills said of the jail facilities. "Unfortunately, it's the only system we have. I don't think the jail was designed for punishment, it wasn't designed, so much as it just evolved."

3 children injured in collision

CANADIAN— Three Canadian school children were treated and released Wednesday at Hemphill County Hospital for injuries sustained in a school bus-car collision at the intersection of 5th and Washita streets here. The driver of the car, Jason DeLeon, 18, of Canadian, reportedly failed to yield the right of way at the intersection, striking the back of the bus. The bus had just left Baker Grade School. Uninjured children were transferred to another bus, according to Department of Public Safety Officer Dale Nichols. DeLeon and the bus driver, Bobby Gene ("Pig") Cockrell of Canadian, were not injured.

Oil cuts coming

NEW YORK (AP) — Citing the cutoff of Iranian oil exports, several U.S. oil companies have announced cutbacks in production to conserve available crude oil, a move that could further reduce the flow of gasoline to neighborhood pumps. Shell Oil Co. said Wednesday the cutback will involve all refined products. Shell announced a 5 percent to 8 percent cutback in the amount of crude going into its refineries, beginning March 1.

Atlantic Richfield Co. said it would soon have to limit sales of some petroleum products. "It is more responsible to allocate now than wait for the summer driving season to spring the news. Spreading the limited supply around is the proper way to deal with a shortage," ARCO Vice Chairman W.F. Kieschnick said Wednesday. He gave no details on his company's allocation plans.

The Phillips Petroleum Co., which already has reduced gasoline deliveries to its dealers by 15 percent, announced that it would double that reduction to 30 percent, according to today's editions of the New York Times.

Texaco and Continental Oil Co. are among other companies already allocating gasoline. In addition, Exxon, Gulf and other large suppliers of crude oil also have cut sales to refineries in order to conserve the product.

Meanwhile, Libya raised its oil prices by 5 percent "across the board" Wednesday, a spokesman for Occidental Petroleum Corp. said.

The spokesman, who asked that his name not be used, said the increase was "around 68 cents per barrel across the board and that averages out to about 5 percent." Occidental is one of Libya's biggest customers of crude oil. Two other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, Abu Dhabi and Qatar, last week raised some of their prices by 7 percent.

There has been virtually no rise in consumer prices as a result of the special increases by OPEC members because not much oil is involved. But should OPEC decide the market will bear higher prices, it could speed up its graduated 14.5 percent general price rise scheduled for this year.

Saudi Arabia, OPEC's biggest producer, has stepped up its production by about 1 million barrels a day and has begun charging higher prices for the extra oil.

In Vienna, Austria, OPEC announced Wednesday it would meet March 26 to discuss supply shortages caused by Iran's political turmoil. Also to be discussed are the higher prices on the spot market, which OPEC blamed on "speculative traders."

While the spot market, where oil not sold under contract changes hands, is small, many oil companies use it to provide flexibility, for example. Supplies of some products such as jet fuel are tight because some companies rely on the spot market to meet demand.

Drug cases off

By EUGENE LAYCOCK
Pampa News Staff

Pampa High School has a drug problem but the number of cases has decreased since 1975, according to Pampa Police Chief Richard Mills. High school students are a part of the drug problem, Mills said. "But they are no worse than any other group." He was referring to persons aged 15-25. District Attorney Harold Comer, who has prosecuted many drug-related cases, said such incidents usually involve dropouts.

Few cases, he added, are of the more serious violation of profit-motivated sales. Such sales exclude selling to pay for one's own habit.

The drug problem at the high school is on a much smaller scale than those in larger cities, said Mills. Yet even one user is too many, he added.

The school drug problem, he said, has become easier to work out because of the favorable rapport between the police and school administrators. "We (administrators) try to work as closely as we possibly can with the police," Principal Paul Payne said. He said that if the schools feel that substantial evidence exists, it makes reports to Mill's force, who do all the investigating. The administration has reported three or four instances during the school year, Payne said, and they have involved either the discovery of marijuana in amounts no larger than a lid or the observed movement of possible dealing situations. We are more concerned with reports of dealing, he added. The students in 1974-75 caused disruptions because of their drug use, he said, but the school has had no serious outbreaks this year.

He said that the problem has probably decreased because drugs are not as popular with today's students. The top students seem to frown on drugs in the school, he added. Students also may have become more sophisticated, being more covert in their usage and exchanges, he said. Comer said he hopes that the cutdown in cases is because of the three large-scale police arrests made during the last two years and of stricter treatment by judges in profit-motivated cases. Some students smell like marijuana when they come to school, Payne said, but administrators are unable to lawfully deal with the student unless he seriously disrupts the daily routine. These possible troublemakers usually dropout before the school can become involved, he said. These people start with a drop in grades and progress to cutting an increasing number of classes. Payne said that the school will continue to do what it can because just one kid on drugs is a serious problem.

Budget criticism termed not bad

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements brushed off criticism of his "belt-tightening" budget proposal today, saying he was "well pleased" with the reception it received. "The whole thing will go up and down," he told a news conference, "but I feel very strongly we will have tax relief up to $1 billion." Clements' proposed budget ran into solid opposition Wednesday from Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and the chairmen of two major Senate committees. Clements said today he would be the "first to admit" that the response to his budget "could have been more enthusiastic but, considering, it wasn't too bad." Clements, Texas' first Republican governor in over a century, may have been referring to the fact that the 181-member Legislature is overwhelmingly Democratic. "I'm not swimming upstream on this budget," Clements said. He predicted "lots of negotiation between now and May," when the regular legislative session ends. Clements proposed reducing local school taxes by $1 billion, telling lawmakers he learned in campaign conversations with "tens of thousands" of Texans that is what they want. He asserted the state budget has grown by 235 percent in the past decade, with the growth rate of Texas' bureaucracy outstripping that of California and New York. "Taxpayers have no obligation to bear the cost of bloated bureaucracy, of wasteful and inefficient government spending, and of overlapping and redundant government services," Clements told a joint legislative session. To return $1 billion to Texans, he suggested repealing the 10-cent per $100 state property tax and providing an additional $900 million to school districts so they could reduce local taxes. Clements' 1980-81 budget would spend $13.76 billion from major state funds — excluding federal money and certain dedicated state taxes — which is $968.1 million less than the Legislative Budget Board's (LBB) proposal. An IRS report was distributed showing Texas ranks last in average state and local taxes in four of six income brackets, ranging from $10,000 to $100,000 a year. Asked what he considered the "most objectionable" feature of the Clements budget, Hobby said it was the proposal to reduce public school spending by 58 percent from the LBB budget. This includes the removal of cost-of-living salary increases for 160,000 teachers and other school employees.

No arrests in pot case

A federal law enforcement agent said Wednesday that no arrests have yet been made in connection with the seizure of 450 pounds of marijuana at Perry Lefors Field a month ago. "Right now we're still just investigating the case and putting the pieces together before we decide which way to go with it," said Mike Groseclose of the Drug Enforcement Agency (DEA) in Lubbock. "We have various suspects, but we want to put the case together first," he said. The bust, the largest in local history, occurred the night of Jan. 21. The marijuana was transported to Pampa from Mexico in a twin-engine airplane, which was tracked with radar and intercepted at the airport by federal and local officials. The pilot of the plane apparently fled the scene with the help of accomplices shortly before officials arrived. Three men found at the airport that night were questioned and released. Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan, who participated in the case, said he was told Wednesday afternoon that the escaped pilot and a lawyer may have been in contact with the DEA either Tuesday or Wednesday. "I don't think there's any doubt as to who the pilot is," Jordan said. "I think I knew the night it happened." One reason the case is taking longer to solve than originally anticipated, Jordan said, is because the U.S. prosecuting attorney is seeking more information. "It takes a long time to do anything," he added. "The government moves slowly." "I feel like it will all come out in the wash. There will be arrests made and prosecutions. When, I don't know."

Chavez returns to Texas

SAN JUAN, Texas (AP) — Cesar Chavez, the farm workers union organizer who some claim abandoned Texas four years ago, returns to the Rio Grande Valley this weekend for the state's first United Farm Workers convention.

The UFW president is among the featured speakers for Sunday's first Texas Organizing Convocation here. Harry Hubbard, president of the Texas AFL-CIO, is also scheduled to speak.

Rebecca Harrington, the local UFW director said some 2,000 farm workers are expected at the day-long convention. Ms. Harrington said the meeting will be used to spur membership drives and to establish priorities as migrant workers continue their decades old struggle for better living conditions.

Chavez' organization first came to Texas in 1966. He assigned Antonio Orendain, a former UFW secretary-treasurer, to lead the Texas effort.

But the two-split in 1975. And depending on which version of the story you believe, either Chavez cut off Orendain or Orendain left on his own to form the Texas Farm Workers Union.

The split came not long after pickets sent by Orendain allegedly stormed a melon field near Hidalgo. A melon grower responded with shotgun blasts. Several pickets suffered minor injuries.

"In 1975 the people got tired of waiting and decided to build their own union," Orendain recently said while on a march from West Texas to Austin.

Carlos Marantes, a TFWU official in Hidalgo, said Chavez had told Orendain to come back to California; that the UFW had decided to concentrate its efforts on the West Coast.

"But Orendain said, 'We came to the Valley and made a lot of promises. We have to continue working in the Valley,'" Marantes said.

But Ms. Harrington says that's not true.

"Orendain was sent here to do the work and he decided to split off. Cesar's always been interested in Texas. A lot of Texas people go to California to work," she said.

Marantes says there's no problem in having several groups representing factions of the migrant community.

"Our enemies are the growers," he said, denying that the UFW and TFWU are competitors.

But Ms. Harrington says the lack of unity does not help. "There's nothing progressive about splitting," she said.

The UFW officials don't expect many TFWU representatives at the Sunday session. Most of Orendain's people are with him on the Austin march—a walk aimed at bringing attention to two pieces of legislation being considered by state lawmakers.

Ms. Harrington said the two bills—one to grant collective bargaining rights to farm workers and one to provide workmen's compensation coverage for the workers—are sure to be talked about at the meeting.

Most Austin observers don't give the collective bargaining bill much hope of winning approval.

State Rep. Forrest Green, D-Corsicana, said that bill probably will not muster the support needed to bring it up for subcommittee review.

"Although I haven't polled the members, I dare say that they haven't got more than two or three votes," the chairman of the Agricultural and Livestock Subcommittee recently said.

Boy gets Laetrile in Mexico

HOUSTON (AP)—The father of Chad Green, a 3-year-old leukemia victim who was taken by his parents from their home in Scituate, Mass., to Mexico to escape a court order prohibiting the use of Laetrile, says he will go "around the world to give Chad a chance."

Gerald Green, along with his wife and little, blonde-haired Chad, appeared Wednesday on

The parents said they "never wanted a war but the judge left us no choice. When the government tells us what our son can and cannot eat, that is the last straw."

Superior Court Judge Guy Volterra ruled Jan. 23 that Chad must remain in the legal custody of the state and his parents must stop giving the boy Laetrile, enzyme enzymes or excess doses of vitamins.

The child was placed in the legal custody of the state.

Shortly after the order, the Greens flew to Tijuana and there have continued the Laetrile treatments. Green said his son "is in excellent health. The leukemia is now in remission."

Laetrile is a trademark for a substance derived from the chemical amygdalin, found naturally in the pits of apricots and peaches and in bitter almonds.

Advocates say it is an effective cancer treatment, but

One of Texas' most beautiful golf courses is a nine-hole layout amid scenic landscapes of the hill Country, overlooking Inks Lake in Inks Lake State Park. Texas Highways Magazine the medical establishment says there is no proof it is of any value in treating cancer.

The Greens said Laetrile and other vitamin supplements helped relieve the side-effects of chemotherapy.

The parents also said they were willing to continue chemotherapy if the doctors would permit vitamin supplements.

"We don't necessarily mean Laetrile," Mrs. Green said. "We are talking about vitamin supplements."

Asked if Chad would be examined at Houston's famed M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute, Mrs. Green said, "We won't be in Houston that long. I don't feel I'm safe here now."

Her husband said arrest warrants would be issued unless the family returned to Massachusetts by March 1.

Green also said the family flew to Tijuana on money "that was loaned and we have lived on donations. The Mexican government has helped us tremendously."

Doctors have said Chad must undergo one more year of chemotherapy and then he will have an 80 percent chance of complete recovery.

No protest given to curb spending

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Not a single voice and only one vote was raised in protest Wednesday to a bill that could increase state spending at church and other private colleges by nearly $50 million in 1980-81.

The Senate Education Committee approved the proposal, 8-1, with only committee chairman Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, opposing it.

The bill is sponsored by Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, who has several private schools in his 13-county district, including Baylor, Howard Payne, Hardin-Simmons, McMurry and Abilene Christian.

President Norman Hackerman of Rice University said the original concept was to provide tuition grants at private colleges that were approximately one-half the average appropriation for students at state-financed colleges.

In 1971, when the first tuition grant was made, the average state appropriation was $1,200, so the private grants were limited to $600. Hackerman said "largely because of inflation," the average state appropriation has risen to $2,475.

Jones' bill would raise the private tuition limit to 50 percent of the average state appropriation, whatever it might be. It would also make part-time students eligible for the financial aid.

"I would not try to kid you that costs will go down in the foreseeable future," said Hackerman.

As the spokesman for Independent Colleges and Universities of Texas — ICUT — Hackerman was the only witness on the proposal. Representatives of 18 other private schools showed up to support the bill, however, including Baylor President Abner McCall.

ICUT, which was formed in 1965, has 40 member schools.

A Loan for George

George Washington, born on this day in 1732, was one of our country's wealthiest presidents. When he died in 1799, he left behind an estate valued at more than a half million dollars. But most of Washington's wealth was tied up in livestock and land, and when he learned about his election as the country's first president, Washington had to borrow money to finance the trip to his own inauguration. Washington took the oath of office in New York. During his two terms, the federal government conducted its business in New York and Philadelphia. Washington was the only president who did not live in Washington, D.C.

Committee hedges on giving governors more power

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Senate committee has hedged about giving Texas governors more power to change state budgets once they clear the Legislature.

"I don't know whether I want to give up our powers (over state budgets) to the governor," said Sen. Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler.

McKnight and other members of Senate State Affairs Committee on Wednesday sent legislation written by Gov. Bill

Clements' aides to a subcommittee for further study.

Clements' fellow Republican, Sen. O.H. "Ike" Harris of Dallas, is sponsoring proposals to allow governors to reduce line items in the state budget and to transfer funds within and between state agencies.

Governors cannot alter specific appropriations, except to strike them completely.

If the constitutional amendment were approved in 1980, the law would take effect Sept. 1, 1981.

The powers would not apply to dedicated funds; money set out for the Legislature or judiciary; budgets of other elected officials; or salaries established by law or line item.

In other matters, the committee approved giving diesel car owners a slight break in vehicle license fees.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

February 23, 1979

Some of your hopes and dreams could be realized this coming year through a chain of very unusual events. A pleasure trip to a distant place might be one of them. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Important matters should be attended to early in the day because you're likely to assume a "manana" attitude as the clock ticks on, and postpone your duties. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in 1979 by sending for your copy of the all-new Astro-Graph Letter for 1979. Mail $1 for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign. ARIES (March 21-April 19) Focus your attention on serious matters and forget trying to keep up with the Joneses. You'll have something to show for your efforts. They won't. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) There may be too many chiefs and not enough Indians in your house today. Set the example. Show everyone how to pull together. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Supposedly confidential information could be passed on to you today. However, check its validity before you attempt to put it to work. CANCER (June 21-July 22) Give of yourself, your time and your advice to a friend who may have a problem, but don't try to solve it with a checkbook. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Stick close to home or visit those with whom you are always comfortable today. Above all, avoid the company of anyone whose aims differ considerably from yours. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Companionship will be important today - but don't put socializing above your more productive priorities. Keep up with your work. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) There could be a pleasant material surprise in store for you today, but it won't come through taking gambles or foolish risks. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In certain types of competitive situations you will fare very well today, but be wary of a mismatch where you seriously underestimate your opposition. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone who is fond of you may put you on to something good today. Don't blow your possibilities by prematurely discussing your potential windfall. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your enthusiasm could take precedence over your prudent judgment in gainful situations today. Be hopeful, but continue to be realistic. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Usually helpful allies could prove to be liabilities today. If you get warning signals, proceed on your own.
