Khomeini forces execute eight more officials

By PHILIP DOPOULOS
Associated Press Writer
TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Iran resumed oil exports today for the first time in three months, and Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolutionary regime executed eight more of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's former officials, including four generals and a former member of Parliament.

A spokesman for the National Iranian Oil Co. said the tanker World Ambassador started loading 110,000 tons of light crude and 140,000 tons of heavy crude for the Mitsui Trading Co. of Japan at the Kharg Island terminal in the Persian Gulf. It is the first shipment of crude oil for export since December, when the oil industry's 65,000 workers went on strike as part of Khomeini's campaign to bring down the Shah's regime.

Another tanker was scheduled to arrive at Kharg Island on Wednesday to load crude for Ashland Oil, an American company.

The new government has said it will not restore the previous export level of 5.4

million barrels a day because it wants to conserve the oil reserves for the future. The national oil company said production Sunday was 1.7 million barrels, and industry sources predict it will be increased to 3 million barrels a day, with about 2.4 million barrels being exported.

Meanwhile, a communique from Khomeini's Revolutionary Committee announced that seven more former officials died by firing squad at 5 a.m. today after one of the ayatollah's special Islamic courts found them guilty of killing or torturing opponents of the shah.

Tehran Radio announced the execution of a police officer today in Abadan.

This brought to 24 the number of former officials whose executions have been announced. Several others have been reported but not confirmed, and three men accused of shooting anti-Shah demonstrators were stabbed to death by a mob in the central Iranian town of Najafabad three days ago as they were being taken to prison to await trial.

The government announced Sunday that it had broken diplomatic relations with South Africa because of its racial policies and confirmed that it will allow no more Iranian oil to be shipped there.

Before the shutdown Iran supplied an estimated 90 percent of South Africa's oil. The South African government has stockpiled massive amounts of oil in recent years, and the international oil companies are expected to juggle their stocks so that deliveries to South Africa will not be curtailed.

Iran was also Israel's chief oil supplier before the revolution and has announced that the Jewish nation is now on its blacklist. The chief effect in Israel has been a 32-39 percent increase in the price of petroleum products to reduce consumption, with gasoline jumping from $1.70 to $2.35 a gallon.

The government also announced that in keeping with Islamic tradition it is abolishing the drafting of women for military service and is reducing the conscription period for men from two years to one. This was in line with the new regime's abandonment of the shah's ambition for Iran to be the "policeman of the Persian Gulf."

Surprise meeting uplifting

WASHINGTON (AP)—Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin had a surprise meeting today with President Carter and the White House said the Israeli government had "responded positively" to a new U.S. plan for breaking the Mideast peace deadlock.

White House press secretary Jody Powell emphasized, however, that "difficult issues remain." He said "the next step in the peace process is still under discussion."

Carter's secret proposals to salvage faltering peace hopes stirred interest in Israel and optimistic reports in that country's press.

Carter, holding a black umbrella aloft, walked from his Oval Office to greet Begin in a driveway. After a brief greeting, the president escorted the prime minister into his office.

Summoned to join the president for the brief mid-morning meeting were Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, presidential advisers Zbigniew Brzezinski and Hamilton Jordan and Powell.

"The Israeli government has responded positively to American suggestions on ways to help resolve some of the remaining differences" between Israel and Egypt, Powell said in a statement.

"However, it is important to understand that difficult issues remain. The next step in the peace process is still under discussion."

In Cairo, meanwhile, Egyptian officials said President Anwar Sadat spoke by telephone with Carter today and would decide within 48 hours whether to go to Washington.

The surprise development appeared to buoy the hopes of U.S. officials who had expressed no optimism Sunday in announcing the American move.

But even then they emphasized that the U.S. suggestions dealt with only some of the remaining obstacles to completion of the long-elusive peace treaty.

"I'm sure that it's going to contribute to the process of the negotiations," Deputy Prime Minister Yigael Yadin told reporters after the cabinet meeting in Jerusalem. He made clear he was referring to Begin's recommendations and not Carter's proposals.

Neither side would disclose details of Carter's plans for breaking the Egyptian-Israeli stalemate in negotiations on a peace treaty, nor what Begin had recommended to his cabinet. But one Israeli official described the Carter plan as "important and interesting."

Carter gave Begin the new suggestions at the White House Sunday, when their marathon talks appeared near collapse.

The Israeli press published markedly optimistic reports on the suggestions. Begin was quoted in one as saying the ideas "are important and are a change for the better."

An Israeli official, who requested anonymity, said Begin hoped to have a reaction from Jerusalem before his anticipated midweek departure from the United States.

The U.S. official emphasized, however, that Carter and Begin have no plans to meet again. He said Israel's reaction likely would come "through more routine means" — perhaps through the Israeli Embassy here.

This went far toward dispelling any speculation that a negotiating breakthrough was at hand.

He said the U.S. suggestions did not involve security measures and would not lead to a larger U.S. presence in the Middle East.

Carter, after meeting with Begin for the fourth time in as many days Sunday, talked briefly by telephone with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and met with a bipartisan congressional delegation.

Chinese troops withdraw

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—China announced today it has begun withdrawing its troops from Vietnam, 16 days after they struck across the border to teach a bloody military "lesson" to Hanoi.

Peking's official news agency said the invasion force was being pulled out "after achieving the goals assigned them." But Vietnam called the Chinese attack a failure. It reportedly cost the lives of thousands on both sides.

Kyodo, the Japanese news service, said in a dispatch from Peking that the government announced all Chinese troops were being withdrawn.

The announcement by China's Xinhua (Hsinhua) agency warned, however, that "the Chinese side reserves the right to strike back again in self-defense" if Vietnam resumes the border "provocations and incursions" that China said forced it to launch its "self-defense" invasion Feb. 17.

The announcement added: "The Chinese government proposes once again that the Chinese and Vietnamese sides speedily hold negotiations to discuss ways of ensuring peace and tranquility between the two countries and then proceed to settle the boundary and territorial disputes."

It also called on the rest of the world to "take measures to urge the Vietnamese authorities to stop promptly their aggression against Kampuchea (Cambodia) and withdraw all their forces of invasion."

A radio commentary by the Voice of Vietnam, broadcast at about the same time as the Chinese withdrawal statement, said Peking's leaders had "failed in their large-scale invasion to teach Vietnam a lesson and could not fulfill their expansionist aims."

A Hanoi summary of the two-week war said 10 percent of the Chinese invasion force was killed or wounded and half the tanks and armored vehicles were destroyed. It said the corpses of Chinese officers only were taken back to China from Vietnam, and it took hundreds of trucks to transport the bodies.

Vietnam's latest battle reports spoke of a "frantic attempt" by Chinese troops attacking from three directions Sunday to capture the Vietnamese provincial capital Lang Son.

Intelligence sources in Bangkok and elsewhere have said the Vietnamese lost Lang Son days ago. But analysts had predicted that Vietnam would proclaim a great victory once the Chinese withdrew.

"According to many sources, many Chinese divisions have been moved to the Chinese border area adjacent to Laos," said Hanoi's official Vietnam News Agency.

"The Peking leadership, while brazenly intensifying the aggressive war against Vietnam, is preparing to realize its scheme of invading the Lao People's Democratic Republic."

Vietnam reportedly has up to 40,000 troops in Laos helping the Communist government fight rebellious mountain tribesmen.

The news agency claimed China was using 60,000 men and hundreds of artillery pieces and tanks in attacks around the provincial capital of Lang Son, 11 miles from the border, which the Vietnamese abandoned some time last week. Hanoi reported "fierce battles" still going on in the area.

The Vietnamese claimed 42,000 Chinese killed and 259 tanks destroyed in the first 13 days of the war, up to last Friday. Western analysts considered this claim was probably highly inflated.

The Vietnamese government put its people on the alert for more fighting. The Communist Party Central Committee said "every village in Vietnam should be a defense post, every province a strong wall" against the Chinese.

Kyodo quoted Chinese Vice Premier Li Xiannian (Li Hsien-nien) as saying in Peking: "We have already decided to withdraw from Vietnam. Our purpose has been almost achieved."

Explorers rescued

Four killed in crash

GUYNON, OKLA.—Four members of a Turpin family were killed and a fifth critically injured early Sunday when their car exploded into flames after a head-on collision with a semi-trailer truck.

Kenneth Ray Scheurman, 35, the driver of the car, his wife, Sue, 20, and their daughters Angela, 7 months, and Leslie Dawn, 14, were found dead at the scene by the Oklahoma Highway Patrol office in Guymon about 1:30 a.m.

The accident occurred about two miles east of Guymon on U.S. 54 when Scheurman apparently tried to pass another car while driving east toward Turpin.

Voyager reaches Jupiter

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—With cameras clicking and computers humming, Voyager 1 makes its long-awaited rendezvous with Jupiter today, coming close enough to the distant planet to reveal never-before-seen details as small as five miles in diameter, scientists hope.

The spectacle was billed by National Aeronautics and Space Administration scientists as "one of the most memorable days in planetary exploration."

The unmanned spaceship's exotic itinerary put the closest approach to Jupiter at 4:42 a.m. PST as Voyager, sailing along at about 81,000 miles an hour, passes within 172,750 miles of the planet's swirling cloak of clouds.

The fly-by actually takes place half an hour earlier, but radio signals announcing the encounter need more than 37 minutes to travel the 420 million miles from Jupiter to Earth.

Jupiter, 1,200 times the size of Earth, appears to be mostly a fast-spinning ball of liquid hydrogen and helium with a rocky core and a surface coating of thick clouds. It has no solid surface.

The clouds, which displayed a dazzling array of colors in earlier Voyager photos, are formed into alternating dark and light belts.

After passing Jupiter, the ship, carrying 11 cameras and instruments, will inspect at least three of the planet's 13 moons and search for possible undiscovered satellites.

With the first leg of its one-way journey completed, Voyager 1 will head farther into space for a 20-month cruise to distant Saturn—a golden planet nestled inside brilliant rings.

A sistership is trailing Voyager 1. Voyager 2, some 50 million miles behind, is due at Jupiter in July and at Saturn in 1981. NASA says it may send Voyager 2 on to Uranus, a far-away world never visited by man's machines.

Both Voyagers will one day leave the solar system and drift endlessly through space. Each ship contains a phonograph of Earth sounds—from music and bird songs to a message from President Carter.

The Voyagers are following a trail blazed by two earlier American spacecraft, Pioneer 10 and 11 reconnoitered Jupiter in 1973 and 1974. Pioneer 11 will be Earth's first emissary to Saturn this September.

The spacecraft's closest approach to the distant and mysterious planet was taking it within 172,750 miles of the colorful cloud tops.

Black and white pictures of Jupiter, taken from less than 200,000 miles away, showed churning clouds and several dark ovals. The pictures, displayed on television monitors at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, looked like snowdrifts rippled and swirled by the wind.

Voyager images taken a few hours before the close encounter showed the spiraling clouds inside Jupiter's Great Red Spot—a centuries-old feature much like a gigantic hurricane.

Scientists had worried the Voyager might not be able to locate and photograph Amalthea, the closest of Jupiter's 13 moons.

The dim moon looked, in Voyager's picture, like a mishapen and peck-marked boulder.

At the moment of closest encounter, the Voyager was transmitting to the NASA tracking station in Canberra, Australia, delaying reception of the pictures and data at JPL.

While sailing closest to Jupiter, the 1,797-pound spacecraft was pointing its two television cameras—not at the planet, but at a dry, rocky moon called Io.

Io, about the size of earth's moon, is a major part of the Voyager exploration. Voyager pictures show what look like jagged canyons and craters on Io's surface.

Band to discuss Hawaiian trip

Two hula girls, an Hawaiian combo, and 30 door prizes in the form of fresh pineapples, will help kick off the first meeting tonight for the Pampa High School Marching Band's trip to the fabulous fiftieth state.

Information about the trip, including accommodations and prices, will be presented tonight at 8 p.m. at the Pampa Middle School auditorium. All Pampans who think they might like to follow the musicians west to the surf and sun are encouraged to attend, says Band Director Jeff Doughten.

The band received an invitation last January to compete in the 65th Kamehameha Day Celebration Parade in Hawaii in June 1981, during its trip to the Rose Bowl Parade in California. The annual 4.3 mile parade is a prestigious competition, with only eight or ten bands from around the world invited to compete. Prizes are awarded for first and second place.

Wayne K. Panoke, a travel advisor with Group and Convention Sales in Anaheim, Calif., will provide a complete rundown on the trip and answer questions.

Panoke will also present two short films on Hawaii. Each adult will be given a ticket at the door, with 30 tickets drawn for winners of the pineapples.

Doughten said he expects the meeting, which should mix entertainment with necessary information, to last about two hours.

A 747 has already been chartered for the June excursion but Doughten says it may require another plane to accommodate the 700 to 900 people he predicts will want to take the trip.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Let's tell inflation as it really is Inflation is not the increase of prices, it is the increase of money.

I have not heard of President Carter saying this, and I don't expect to, because the president and his appointees then would have to accept responsibility for the inflation since it is they who have increased the money through the government's monetary and fiscal policies.

This is well stated by Professor Percy Greaves in The Freeman: "In order to relieve themselves of the blame, the politicians and pressure groups who promote our inflationary processes have succeeded in changing the popular definition of inflation."

He cites tragic inflations of history, such as the one during the American Revolution caused by the flood of continental dollars and the one in Germany after World War I which obviously was manufactured by the printing presses. In those periods, people knew what inflation was; they could hear the clank of the presses and see the green stuff come peeling off.

But today, he points out, nothing is said about the over-production of dollars. Has Carter mentioned it? Has G. William Miller, chairman of the Federal Reserve? All we hear deplored is the "rise in prices."

"This shift in the popular definition of inflation," says Greaves, "tends to hide from most people the obvious way to end inflation." (The obvious way, he is saying, is to reduce creation of dollars.)

"When inflation is defined as 'higher prices,' most people conclude that it is businessmen who raise prices. Therefore, businessmen must be responsible for inflation."

And that is what Carter and Miller want them to think.

It may seem a mere quibble to call inflation a rise in prices rather than an increase in dollars. But it is not. Businessmen do raise prices (as well as lower them), but businessmen do not over-produce dollars. Government, through excessive borrowing by the U.S. Treasury and an easy-money policy of the Federal Reserve Board, over-produces dollars. Businessmen are not causing inflation; politicians are causing inflation.

It was easy for people to see this in the 1770s when money was created by the printing of continental dollars, and a century later when the "greenbacks" rolled off the presses, and even in 1923 when not only the German government press, but 100 private printing presses in that country were printing marks. It is not so easy today because our plethora of dollars is not printed on presses, but is created through lending by commercial banks.

When a bank lends $1,000 it simply credits the borrower's deposit account with $1,000 and he can now write checks for 1,000 more dollars than before. This is production of checkbook money, our chief kind.

When a bank buys a U.S. bond, it lends to the U.S. Treasury, draw now has more dollars more dollars to draw checks upon. Usually this is not mere production, but overproduction of money for the reason that the loan is not made for the purpose of producing real wealth. It is made to enable the Treasury to pay more dollars by check. It seldom finances more production; rather it finances consumption. It merely injects dollars into circulation. These new dollars bid up prices, and many are deceived into thinking that inflation is a rise in prices.

This illusion is nourished by the news that the price of hamburger has risen 20 percent in the last month or that hospital bills have gone up 25 percent or that raisins are up 50 percent or that heating oil is at an all-time high. "This awful inflation," we mutter.

It should not be difficult for us to see that these individual price rises are due to a different cause in each case — that hamburger beef is up because cattlemen have reduced their herds, that hospital bills are up because for many people these bills are shifted to Medicare, that raisins are up because of drought where they grow raisin grapes, that heating oil is high because of events abroad that have reduced production in Iran and elsewhere. Surely no one would attribute a rise in the price of General Motors stock on the stock exchange to inflation.

When the price of a certain good changes, supply and demand are usually responsible. If the price of a food rises sharply, it is usually due to a decrease in supply since demand for most foods is fairly constant.

Beef is scarcer because cattlemen are getting discouraged and cutting down their herds. Raisins are scarce because of the weather. Hospital prices are up because demand by the elderly, subsidized by Medicare, is keen. Oil is up because supply is down, the Iranians being on forced vacation. A stock rises when the bulls (demanders) outnumber the bears (suppliers).

Wood stoves, which before Arab oil embargo one could hardly give away, now command a land office price. Even Washington lacks the nerve to tell us that chunk stoves are brining $100 each because of inflation.

"High" interest rates

Somehow the myth persists in Congress that high interest rates are going to choke off demand and cause a recession. We hope the House Banking Committee was listening last week when Martin Feldstein, president of the National Bureau of Economic Research, told them no such thing is likely. Although nominally very high, the real interest rate is lower today than it was 15 years ago.

Consider a married couple with $20,000 of taxable income. As they face a marginal federal income tax rate of 28 percent, a 10 percent mortgage interest rate after the deductibility of interest expenses nets to only 7.2 percent. A borrower who anticipates a conservative 6 percent rate of inflation over the life of the mortgage is borrowing at a real interest rate of 1.2 percent. If he expects the present rate of inflation to persist or to accelerate, then he is paying a zero or negative rate of interest.

In contrast, 15 years ago the same couple was paying a 4.3 percent mortgage rate net of interest deductibility. With inflation running at less than 2 percent, the real interest rate then was about twice as high as today.

For corporate borrowers, the 46 percent income tax rate drops a 10 percent interest rate to a net - of - tax rate of 5.4 percent, which is below all short - term inflation forecasts and most intermediate range forecasts.

Oil, gas industry needs unshackling

Again we have an outstanding example of what oil and gas production means to Texas, and to Texans. And it is a good reason for our constantly pressing on to free oil and gas production from government regulation, for once unshackled there will be more production and thus more benefit to the region.

Personal income in each of the four states located wholly or partially in the Eleventh Federal Reserve District — Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas — grew more rapidly than elsewhere in the nation between 1969 and 1977, according to Mary G. Grandstaff, economist for the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas.

She wrote in a recent issue of the bank's monthly Voice that current dollar personal income increased at average annual rates of 11.8 percent in New Mexico, 11.6 percent in Texas, 10.9 percent in Oklahoma, and 10.7 percent in Louisiana. These gains compare with a 9.4 percent average rate of growth in the nation.

The economist said the increases in personal income reflect inflation and growth in economic activity. The rate of inflation in the four states about paralleled that for the nation, the economist said, but economic activity was considerably stronger in the Eleventh District states.

Because oil and gas production is an important segment of the four states' economies, the increased demand for energy in the 1970s, partially explains the higher level of economic activity experienced, Miss Grandstaff said. She added that employment gains in most other major industries in the district also outpaced the national growth.

The economist said per capita income also rose more rapidly in each of the four states, in spite of faster growth in population. As a result, each state made significant gains toward attaining per capita income as high as the national average. In 1969, per capita personal income in only two standard metropolitan statistical areas (SMSAs) in the four states was at least as high as the national average. Only two other SMSAs had as much as 90 percent of the U.S. average. But in 1976, four SMSAs had per capita income that equaled or exceeded the U.S. average, all in Texas. They are Midland, Houston, Dallas-Fort Worth and Galveston-Texas City. Recent reports from other sources indicate even greater gains by these and other SMSAs in Texas.

Previously we pointed out that the oil and gas industry carries the major tax burden in Texas and provides a whopping big slice of the state's total tax dollar. Now we have it made clear to us that oil and gas have been a key factor in the improvement of the lot of the average citizen not only of Texas but of the three adjoining states. It has done so under much oppressing regulation. It teases the imagination to think what wonders oil and gas production could do for the region were the regulations lifted.

How to jack up cost of federal building

When President Carter takes off his shoes at night and pushes everything else from his mind, he can always think of what to do with Davis-Bacon.

Now Davis-Bacon is not the kind you eat in the morning, and it is not the kind that has come under fire for having cancer-causing chemicals, but it is the kind that is accused of giving the country a certain amount of heartburn.

What Davis-Bacon is a Depression-era "emergency" law beloved by unions because it forces contractors on federally aided projects to pay higher wages than they might have to pay otherwise.

Lo, all these years that it has been in effect, it has continued to be outdated, unnecessary and inflationary.

Now, those are not our words. They are the words of the General Accounting Office, Congress' watchdog agency that points fingers at peons and presidents alike.

What it is telling the president now is that he will have to choose between living up to his anti-inflation rhetoric or face a fight with the leaders of organized labor.

The GAO has studied the Davis-Bacon Act and in a blockbuster report calls the 1931 measure those words that we used above. It costs the government (ye olde taxpayer) about $715 million a year in unneeded construction and administrative costs.

Originally, the law was supposed to make sure that workers on federal projects were paid the same wages as workers on private jobs in the same area. However, according to the GAO, the Labor Department has been unable to determine the prevailing wage rates which are needed to make the law work.

That doesn't speak too well of the Labor Department, does it? One begins to wonder about the need of a Labor Department if through 47 years of inertia, laziness, bias or incompetence it can't find out such elemental facts as what are the prevailing wage rates in an area.

The GAO charged that instead of learning what the area's general wage pattern is the Labor Department usually hounded in on union wage rates, and an unskilled laborer willing to accept $4.50 an hour would find the Labor Department assuring that he got $9.50 an hour.

The law, passed at the nadir of the Depression to protect local construction workers from outside competitors willing to slave for peanuts, simply is not working. What often happens, the GAO said, is that local contractors cannot pay the determined wages without undermining their normal wage structure. Consequently, they do not bid, and outside contractors get work that normally would be done by local workers.

And this is costing taxpayers money, said GAO. Since federal construction amounts to some $40 billion annually, Davis-Bacon has an inflationary impact on the construction industry, to say nothing of the national economy as a whole.

Mr. Carter has put into "his new foundations the stone designed to hold down inflation. It will be interesting to see whether Carter moves to rescind David-Bacon or sidesteps it in favor of organized labor which is bitterly opposed to the law's repeal.

And I quote

"Every living thing must struggle for existence, and human beings are no exception. Men and women survive on this Earth only because their energies constantly convert other forms of energy to satisfy human needs, and constantly attack the nonhuman energies that are dangerous to human existence. But — only an individual human being can generate human energy. And — only an individual human being can control the energy he generates. The failure to understand these two simple and basic truths has, for over 6,000 years, stagnated human progress and kept the vast majority of people underfed, poorly clothed, embroiled in wars, and dying from famine and pestilence."

- Henry Grandy Weaver

"Failure is, in a sense, the highway to success, inasmuch as every discovery of what is false leads us to seek earnestly after what is true, and every fresh experience points out some form of error which we shall afterward carefully avoid."

IN WASHINGTON

Carter's new complexity

martha angle and robert walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) - President Carter, in a scramble to recapture respect at home and abroad for his foreign policy leadership, has taken to preaching the virtues of reason and restraint in a complex and changing world.

It is not a message to stir the blood, and it is not what his critics are clamoring to hear, but the new Carter sermon contains the seeds of a long - overdue and badly needed clarification of the philosophic underpinnings and practical objectives of this administration's foreign policy.

Carter, as usual, has no one to blame but himself for the confusion which has led so many Americans, and perhaps foreign leaders as well, to question his grasp of world affairs and his capacity to cope with them.

In his two years as president, he has failed to articulate in a clear and comprehensible fashion exactly what he believes the United States can realistically expect to accomplish on the world stage today.

Carter does not try to use the White House as a "bully pulpit." Lacking eloquence, he simply abdicates his role as educator and opinion - shaper — creating a vacuum his critics hasten to fill. He thus pays a heavy price, as he is doing now, when the public fails to find the wisdom of his ways self - evident.

Twice in the last week — at Georgia Tech on Feb. 20 and here in Washington on Feb. 22 before a conference of editors and broadcasters — Carter finally started to explain his view of the U.S. role in world affairs.

He was driven to speak out by the rush of events in Iran, in Afghanistan, in Southeast Asia which appeared, on the surface, to embarrass and perhaps even threaten this country and its interests.

What he said at those gatherings made pretty good sense. Carter cautioned against oversimplification, a tendency to "see all change as inevitably against the interests of the United States, as a kind of loss for us or a victory for 'them.'"

Change and turmoil, he said, are the order of the day in much of the world — Africa, Asia and the Middle East, most particularly.

The United States, he insisted, remains "fully prepared to protect our vital interests wherever they may be challenged," but the key test is discerning "where our true interests lie."

So far, so good. The problem, however, arises at precisely this point: Even in last week's speeches, his clearest foreign policy pronouncements to date, Carter stopped short of defining what constitutes the "vital interests" of this country.

Exactly which countries are crucial to our own interests? How far are we prepared to go to influence internal political developments in those nations?

Under what circumstances is this president prepared to commit U.S. military power to the defense of our allies, and which allies? Thailand? Korea? Israel? Turkey?

Where, in other words, is the bottom line?

A generation ago, both the world and our own view of the U.S. role in it were simpler by far. Nobody had any doubts what John F. Kennedy was saying in his 1961 inaugural address: "Let every nation know, whether it wishes us well or ill, that we shall pay any price, bear any burden, meet any hardship, support any friend, oppose any foe to assure the survival and the success of liberty."

Vietnam has proven, however, that we as a people no longer will "pay any price" in the support of just "any friend." The "success of liberty" is of secondary importance in much of the world to the attainment of a decent standard of living, and we have been forced to acknowledge the right of other nations to so decide.

It is both appropriate and important for Carter to convey the new complexity of the world, and the distinctions between "vital" U.S. interests and peripheral ones. But he has barely begun the process of sharing his views on these matters and seeking a consensus in support of them.

Passing of a statesman

by don graff

The name has passed into the language as a synonym for terrorism.

Mau Mau.

It originated with the tribesmen who rose in Africa's first great post - World War II revolt against foreign rule. Largely Kikuyu, their ruthless guerrilla warfare undermined British control of Kenya and resulted in that nation's independence in 1963.

The leader of that rebellion, Jomo ("Burning Spear") Kenyatta, has now passed from the scene at 83, or possibly 87 or 88 - he was never sure himself of his correct age.

Independence very likely would have been achieved without him. Freedom for colonized Africa was an historical inevitability whose time had come. It was a product of the times rather than the personalities involved, although the latter played decisive roles in shaping its differing courses from one new country to another.

But Kenya would not have become what it is without him.

Kenyatta bought independence with blood - to the British, who imprisoned him for eight years, he was "a leader to darkness and death." But as the guiding force of a new nation, he was no Kwame Nkrumah, Idi Amin or Patrice Lumumba. The nation he brought into being and headed for 15 years did not degenerate into murderous xenophobia, fratricidal anarchy or self - destructive corruption.

Kenyatta became a statesman, and Kenya under Kenyatta became a stable, prospering, multiracial society that could serve as a model for the entire developing world.

He made friends with the former British overlords and encouraged their participation in economic development while retaining control firmly in African hands. He avoided the temptation to seek quick solutions to complex problems, preferring a gradual approach and moderate political and political policies.

He was a counterweight to and a living refutation of the extremism espoused by the mini - tyrants who rose to power elsewhere and have contributed so substantially to Africa's continuing turmoil, the primary victims of which are Africans themselves.

What is said of him cannot be said of most of his counterparts.

Kenyatta will be missed.

Poster winners

THE GRAY COUNTY SOIL AND WATER CONSERVATION DISTRICT recently sponsored a poster contest for 4th and 5th grade students in Pampa. The winners from Marlene Kyle's fifth grade class at Wilson School (right) are (left to right) Sherry Ray, first place; Shannon Churchman, second place; and Kathryn Peeler, third place. Sherry Ray also won first place overall in the district, and her poster will represent the county in Area I competition. At Austin School (below), the winners from Ann Tafur's 4th grade class are Sandra Brown, first; Sheila Tyler, second; and Lisa Chapman, second. Sandra Brown also took third place in the district. The winners from Darlene Birkes' 5th grade class at Lamar School (below right) are Beverly Payne, first (not pictured); Robby J. Ellison, second; and James Smith, third. Beverly Payne won second place in the district. Shown with Mrs. Birkes and the Lamar winners is Wallace Birkes (right), district chairman. (Pampa News photos)

Q. I am a tense person and have been taking Valium (Diazepam) off and on for a couple of years to calm my nerves. Recently, my husband and I have considered starting a family. I really like the idea of having kids, but I am a little anxious about becoming pregnant. Will there be any problem in taking Valium once I have conceived?

A. From what you say, you are a high-strung individual and are afraid that pregnancy may make you more so. Valium helps relieve your anxiety but it is considered potentially dangerous to the fetus.

The manufacturers of Valium include the following warning in their literature for doctors: "Use of minor tranquilizers during the first trimester should almost always be avoided because of increased risk of congenital malformations, as suggested in several studies. Consider possibility of pregnancy when instituting therapy; advise patients to discuss therapy if they intend to or do become pregnant."

Minor tranquilizers like Valium, Librium (Chlordiazepoxide) and Miltown (Meprobarbital) are not the only drugs a woman contemplating pregnancy should be careful of. Just about all medications should be avoided unless they are absolutely necessary and have been recommended by a doctor who is fully aware of potential complications. And that includes non-prescription agents as well, such as aspirin, alcohol and large doses of vitamins A and D. The fewer chemicals the fetus is exposed to the better.

As far as resolving your anxiety is concerned, there are some alternatives to drugs. It is sometimes helpful to try and establish contact with friends or groups that can give you lots of support.

If you have a religious affiliation you might want to start there. Seek a doctor or clinic that provides classes for women throughout the pregnancy. Nurse practitioners also provide excellent pre-natal teaching and excellent support.

Meeting regularly with other people in your situation can be very good for relieving some of the anxiety. There are also many books available that assist in learning how to reduce tension. One of the best is "The Relaxation Response" by Dr. Herbert Benson.

You may also want to consider professional counseling. With a little help you may make it through the pregnancy without the Valium.

Q. I tried to give my cold to Contac. A stiff nose and a sore throat had pretty much put me out of commission, but I didn't want to lose any time from work. I figured that the tiny time pills would keep me going. Unfortunately, they made me feel really drowsy and sluggish. I felt bad on the job and had trouble driving my car. Could it be the Contac?

A. It's too bad you didn't read the warning on the label of the Contac package. It says "Do not drive or operate machinery as this preparation may cause drowsiness."

The makers of the "tiny time pills" advertise "Relief all day while you work," all night while you sleep. The sleeping part is okay — you can't get into much trouble then. But I wonder how they expect people to get to their jobs if they aren't supposed to drive. Public transportation is not always convenient or available. And if they do make it in one piece, how are they supposed to work efficiently if the medicine causes drowsiness? As far as I am concerned, the advertising doesn't match the warning on the label.

Antihistamines are the real culprit in cold remedies. They're found in practically every cold product. According to the medical advisers of Consumer's Union, "Antihistamines have proved of no value against a common cold; furthermore, they produce in many users such side effects as drowsiness, dizziness, and headache."

The most respected pharmacology textbook in the United States states quite emphatically that "Despite early claims and persistent popular belief, antihistamines are of little value in combating the common cold." Nevertheless, most drug manufacturers insist upon adding the ingredient to their products.

Next time you come down with a cold you would probably be better off staying at home in bed. There's no cure for the common cold in the first place so you can't give it away, though you may spread it around if you go back to work.

Pampans get SSI

About 338 elderly, blind and disabled people in Gray County receive a total of $27,000 monthly in supplemental security income (SSI) payments, according to Howard L. Weatherly, manager of the Pampa social security branch.

SSI is a federally administered program that pays monthly checks to needy people who are 65 or older, and to people in need at any age who are blind or disabled.

The aim of SSI is to provide such people with a basic cash income — $189.40 a month for one person, and $284.10 for a couple. Not every person gets that much; some get less because they have other income.

Social security funds are not used for SSI checks, even though the SSI program is run by the Social Security Administration. The money for SSI checks comes from U.S. Treasury general funds, while social security benefits are paid from contributions of workers, employers and self-employed people.

About 270,200 beneficiaries in Texas received $314 million in SSI payments in 1978. Of that amount, $159.5 million was paid to elderly recipients, $6.3 million was paid to the blind, and $148.2 million to the disabled.

Nationwide, 4.2 million people are receiving SSI. Payments totalled $6.4 billion in 1978, including $4.9 billion in federal funds and $1.5 billion in state funds.

People who get social security checks can get SSI checks too, if they are eligible for both. A person does not have to be eligible for social security to get SSI.

For more information about SSI, call the local social security office at 669-3381.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A gasoline truck exploded inside a fuel storage terminal, lighting up the city's northwest sky. No injuries were reported.

The raging blaze Sunday night at the Marathon Oil Co. terminal forced brief evacuations of nearby residents. One man said he heard an explosion and looked outside to see flames leaping 300 feet into the air.

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — An investigation is planned to determine why a Navy amphibious transport collided in fog with a Greek merchant ship, injuring two Navy officers, one seriously.

Lt. John Alexander, a Navy spokesman, said the USS Francis Marion collided with the Starlight about 8:42 a.m. Sunday, two miles west-northwest of Cape Henry Light in the Chesapeake Bay.

Lt. Cmdr. Donald Miller, 35, of Virginia Beach, underwent surgery at Portsmouth Naval Hospital for leg injuries, the Navy said. Lt. Cmdr. Robert Leary, 39, of Virginia Beach, was reported under observation.

Burnett trial set to resume

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — The capital murder trial of housewife Linda May Burnett, 31, accused in the slayings last July of five members of a family from Winnie, Texas, resumes today after a three-day recess.

Mrs. Burnett is being tried for the shooting death of 3-year-old Jason Phillips, who died with his parents and grandparents July 1.

The victims were each shot in the head and their bodies were cast into a common grave not far from Winnie. The bodies were found July 10.

Prosecutors, who began presenting their case Feb. 23, showed the jury photographs of the empty grave Thursday before District Judge Larry Gist recessed the trial until Monday morning.

Bishop Phillips, his wife Ester; their son Elmer Phillips and his wife Mattha; and their young son, Jason, were the victims of the attack.

Mrs. Burnett and Ovide Joseph Dugas, 32, of Port Arthur, were both accused in the slayings. Dugas' trial has been moved to Corpus Christi on a change of venue.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press

A large high pressure system dominated Texas weather today, leaving the state basking in warm temperatures under a clear sky.

There was no mention of precipitation in state forecasts. Highs were to range from the 50s in North Texas to the 70s in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Highs were mostly in the 60s.

Early morning temperatures ranged from the middle 20s in the Panhandle to the lower 50s in the Valley. Extremes ranged from 26 at Amarillo and Dalhart to 53 at McAllen.

Some early morning readings included 31 at Wichita Falls, 33 at Texarkana, 32 at Dallas-Fort Worth, 38 at Austin, 31 at Lufkin, 37 at Houston, 49 at Corpus Christi, 40 at Del Rio, 30 at San Angelo and El Paso and 29 at Lubbock.

National

At least eight are dead following a furious two-fisted weekend storm that belted the Southeast with up to 15 inches of rain and stranded several hundred Midwesterners under a foot of blowing snow.

Hardest hit was Alabama, where four persons, including a 5-year-old girl, drowned Sunday. More than 200 families were forced to flee because of rising waters and tornadoes. Two drowned in Georgia and Missouri and two more died in Minnesota and Iowa.

Most of the fatalities occurred in their homes Sunday. However, some Alabama river dwellers were told to start filling sandbags in anticipation of rising waters through Tuesday.

In Washington state, weather officials issued avalanche warnings due to heavy rain and rising temperatures. Two mountain climbers died in an avalanche Sunday on 11,000-foot Mount Rainier.

Florida counted itself lucky. The storm dumped up to 14 inches of rain on some areas of the Panhandle around Pensacola. An estimated 5,000 persons had to be evacuated and damage was estimated in the millions, but there were no deaths.

A rescue team in northeastern Alabama watched helplessly as Kathy Todd, 26, was thrown into the seething water from atop her car, which had been stranded in a flooded field. Her body was found three hours later.

FORECAST

Until Tuesday

RAIN AND SHOWERS are expected for the East Coast and the Pacific Northwest while snow flurries are forecast for the upper Midwest and the Great Lakes.

Auto insurance rate system under attack

Associated Press Writer

The traditional system of basing auto insurance rates on factors like age and sex is under attack and the resulting changes are expected to mean lower premiums for some drivers and higher prices for others.

Several states, including Hawaii, North Carolina and Massachusetts, already have put into effect regulations barring the insurance companies from taking marital status, sex or age into account when setting rates.

A series of public hearings is scheduled in California this month and next to consider the fairness of using geographical territories in setting rates. Hearings on the use of age and sex as rating factors were held last month in Florida and South Carolina.

Most insurance companies oppose the changes. They argue that the traditional criteria are valid, based on the risks presented by various groups of drivers.

Opponents of the existing system contend it unfairly penalizes some groups of people. One problem with eliminating the old standards is finding new ones to use instead. The most frequent proposal calls for linking premiums to individual driving records and experience.

While a new system of setting rates would benefit some drivers — people under 25 would no longer pay higher prices just because of their age.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland's money problems were not caused by city politics or the accounting methods of past city administrations, a Library of Congress study says.

However, the study, which went back to 1972, said that from 1970 to 1976, short-term borrowing increased 40.6 percent, going from $61.6 million to $86.7 million just to meet the city's cash flow problems.

The examination said several factors contributed to the city's finance problems: a 25 percent decline in population, a decrease of 8.4 percent in the city's real property tax base since 1975, and slower than normal growth in the city's per-capita income.

In 1970, President Nixon signed a bill setting a six-year deadline for the auto industry to develop a near-pollution-free engine.

FOCUS

Zeroing in on Jupiter

Today the Voyager 1 spacecraft is expected to move within 174,000 miles of Jupiter, closer to our solar system's largest planet than any other spacecraft has ever come. Scientists hope photographs and other information which Voyager sends back will lead to new discoveries about the planet and its 13 or 14 moons. They also hope to learn more about Jupiter's mysterious "Red Spot," which is the size of four of Earth's diameters. Earlier space projects led scientists to conclude that Jupiter is a rapidly spinning ball of liquid hydrogen, with a small rocky core thousands of miles below its clouded atmosphere. A second spacecraft, Voyager 2, is scheduled to reach Jupiter in July.

DO YOU KNOW — Which of our solar system's planets is the smallest?

Around Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Museum of Natural History is opening an exhibit of about 185 masks that Aztec priests and warriors wore in battle, to ward off evil spirits and to bury their dead.

The masks are among the surviving traditional Mexican art forms from the old Mexican Indian way of life. They were recently acquired by the Smithsonian Institute, which operates the museum, from the collection of Donald and Dorothy Cordry of Cuernavaca, Mexico. Cordry, who died last year, devoted about 50 years to the study, preservation and collection of Mexican folk arts and crafts. The exhibit will run throughout the year.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government officials no longer keep track of returning draft evaders and deserters from the Vietnam war era.

Vern Jarvis, a spokesman for the Immigration and Naturalization Service, said the agency stopped keeping the records last June. President Carter granted amnesty to more than 2,000 draft evaders and deserters when he took office. Agency records show only 381 individuals returned to the United States from Jan. 21, 1977, when the amnesty took effect, until the record-keeping stopped.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has authorized the formation of a committee to start working for his re-election to the presidency, sources say.

A source close to the campaign said over the weekend that Evan S. Dohelle will step down as treasurer of the Democratic Party to coordinate the re-election drive. The source asked not to be identified. Papers setting up the committee are expected to be filed with the Federal Election Commission in the next week or two. FEC rules permit committees to be formed to raise and spend money for candidates even before the candidates officially announce plans to run. Carter has repeatedly refused to reveal his plans for 1980.

WASHINGTON (A) — Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau has been assured that the United States is committed to building the Alaska natural gas pipeline.

President Carter, who met with Trudeau at the White House Saturday, affirmed his support of the project in a joint communique issued after the meeting. The pipeline project, which will bring Alaska gas to the lower 48 states, is expected to provide more than $12 billion to Canada in jobs, investment and spending. After the meeting, Trudeau said he was "grateful for the understanding of the Canadian point of view."

Dear Abby

by abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: I have been corresponding with a man in an out-of-state prison for quite a number of months. We have never met. I started writing to him because a mutual friend asked me to. You might say I did it as an act of kindness.

He is serving time for armed robbery. From his letters, I am not convinced that he has learned his lesson. He has a lot of anger and hostility in him.

My problem is that he thinks he is falling in love with me. I do not feel the same. (We've exchanged pictures.) I care for him as a friend and would like to keep in touch, but not at the risk of endangering myself. He might get out in six months; I don't want a lovesick, rejected ex-con on my hands, if you know what I mean.

How do I go about letting him know I don't want a romantic relationship with him? I don't want to hurt his feelings, but I certainly don't want him for an enemy either. Please advise.

OKIE FROM MUSKOGEE

DEAR OKIE: Be honest. Write your pen pal and tell him you hope that he isn't falling in love with you because your feelings for him are strictly platonic.

DEAR ABBY: I work in the Department of Vital Statistics, but nobody listens to us. Maybe they will listen to Dear Abby.

If you anticipate a need for your birth certificate (in applying for a passport, Social Security, entering a new school, or for any other reason), DON'T wait until the last minute. Write to the Department of Vital Statistics in the city where you were born and request your birth certificate to have on hand in case you need it.

Don't wait until two weeks before you take a trip to a foreign country. It sometimes takes THREE MONTHS to get a birth certificate. (Everyone waits until May or June.) A letter stating that your birth is on file is NOT acceptable. You must produce the certificate itself (with the raised seal) in most instances.

If for any reason your birth is not recorded, this will give you plenty of time to file a delayed birth certificate before you need it.

Please, be wise and act accordingly.

by lawrence lamb m.d.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Some months ago I read your column about diverticulosis (pockets of the colon). I have read other articles about the use of fiber so I got some bran. My doctor didn't give me any encouragement to use it as I had been on a bland diet for years. I was afraid to try it but then I read The Health Letter on diverticulosis and decided I would give it a try. I do think it's important to point out that you get gas from eating cereals that contain lots of bran for the first three weeks and this is why some people don't continue it.

In a short time I noticed some improvement. I didn't expect miracles because I'd had the problem for 20 years. Now I have only slight discomfort and hardly any gas, and I'm eating solids every day, corn on the cob, peas and also strawberries.

Would you please explain to me the actual healing process and do the pockets actually disappear? I am still hesitant to eat seeds, nuts and tomatoes. Could you tell me about when it would be safe to eat these, if at all? Before when I ate these, I'd suffer for about a month with an attack.

DEAR READER — It sounds to me like you're getting along pretty well, so why take the chance? I'm sorry to say there are no really good studies to show what happens to the pockets of the colon, or diverticula, on a long term basis after a person started using bran or significantly increased bulk in his diet.

A lot of the symptoms of diverticulosis are related to underlying spastic colon. Some people think that's why the little pockets, or ruptures, develop in the first place. The symptoms are often improved when bulk is added to the diet.

You're absolutely right about having increased symptoms of gas for the first three weeks. This is why I sometimes suggest to people that they sneak up on the problem by adding a little bran at a time.

The pockets are really little ruptures, and I suspect that they will not really disappear. But many people have diverticulosis and don't have any symptoms. If your dietary regime causes improved bowel function so you don't have any symptoms, that in itself is considerable improvement.

Since the pockets persist, I think it might be a good idea to continue to avoid seeds and such material. With your improved bowel function, they might not cause trouble, but I'm not sure anyone could guarantee they wouldn't.

I'm glad you got some value from The Health Letter. Other readers who want the issue, number 5-6, Diverticulosis, can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Some readers may be confused about the different terms used. A diverticulum is one pocket. Two or more pockets are diverticula. The disease itself is diverticulosis. If one of those little diverticulum gets inflamed, it is diverticulitis.

DEAR POLLY - When I was unsuccessful in trying to open a jar of jelly I tried holding the jar top under the running hot water for a minute or so and then it opened immediately. Next I tried this method on a new bottle of oil and found it, too, opened right off. - MRS. W.W.

DEAR POLLY - When dusting under very low furniture or the refrigerator I use a thin car window brush that has a long handle and a scraper on one end. It is also handy for corners and any hard-to-get places. - GLADYS.

Women who knew Jesus

MARY: Fidelity and Faith

(Editor's note: Edith Deen is a Fort Worth author whose six inspirational books have sold more than 1 million copies. This is the first in a series of eight parts from her book 'Wisdom from Women in the Bible'. Reprinted by permission of Harper & Row.)

By Edith Deen

In mythological, Oriental, Jewish and Christian literature, an aura surrounds the mothers of special children. Mary, the mother of Jesus, is foremost among them.

Born in the image of the invisible God, Jesus arrived on the world scene as a mystery, a new power, a new creation, a gift from the holy spirit.

Mary, who gave birth to this divine son in such a wondrous manner, has been encircled from the beginning in a halo of light. Only a maiden with the fidelity and faith of Mary could have borne a child of such promise.

Throughout her pregnancy, Mary had the full support of her husband, Joseph. Although most of the time he seemed but a mere bystander, he had the tenderness and beauty of character to give her the protection she needed.

Mary was reborn when the angel Gabriel announced to her that she would give birth to the son of the most high. During her pregnancy and the birth of her son, she was sure that God had taken the initiative in her life.

She asked no questions but rushed to give God the full credit, for she had felt his presence from the moment of her son's conception until his birth. Not only was she assured that God could exalt the humble, but she knew that his mercy would be upon all who feared him.

It is often easier to believe the unseen possibility of God's power to transform the life in a humble young woman like Mary than it is to understand profound theological discussions.

Mary's simple faith lifted her into a great miracle, unexplainable but real nevertheless. Mary showed a quick understanding of the things of God, but she was also aware that her knowledge was finite at best. She perceived that through Christ many would come to understand better the infinite essence of God and what he meant us to be.

Mary's feminine-maternal wisdom was not a disinterested knowledge but a loving participation, for she nourished in her body a life of the spirit.

There is a mystical grandeur about Mary, who carried the wondrous light of God within her being. She was miraculously lifted to a higher plane, where her maternity and spirituality came together into an indefinable whole.

If there ever was a time when the mothers of children yet to be born needed to absorb Mary's lowly, believing attitude and her explicit faith in God's promises, it is now. She seems to tell us that it takes only a handful of believing mothers and fathers to change the world for the better.

Barry has no love of his own

Barry Manilow can't believe it. After seven platinum albums and 15 consecutive gold singles, the critics still call his music trash.

"I never thought I would be put down as the most commercial ... to ever hit the airwaves," he moans in US magazine.

"Critics, bah! What do they want me to do: take my pants off onstage? I like the romantic records I make and the people I make them for. I stand behind my stuff as strongly as Led Zeppelin stands behind its music."

In defense of unabashed marshmallow music, Manilow said, "There's nothing wrong with romantic music. The first time I made out there was a Johnny Mathis record playing."

But Manilow no longer practices what he preaches. He says, "I haven't been in love for a long while. Who has the time? I read somewhere it's either heart or art." Or, at least, gold records.

Take advantage of situations this coming year where you can make business contacts socially. Something very beneficial could develop from such an arrangement.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You will be adept at keeping the big expenses under control today, but the smaller outlays might damage your budget severely. Be pennywise, too. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in 1979 by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you are not sure of what you want to do or what your motives are, put off doing anything until tomorrow. You'll then have a more positive direction.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Getting your facts straight should be your No. 1 priority today. You have a strong tendency to jump to conclusions because of faulty information.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your head may not be all-together today, and you might have trouble trying to add two and two. Take special care with financial matters.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Important goals could slip through your fingers today because of your lack of attention. Negligence will take its toll.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) The ways and means to say what is on your mind may not be present today. Rather than talking in circles and making little or no sense, keep quiet.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Although sometimes we may be justified in telling others what we think of them it is rarely wise to do so. Turning the other cheek will get you farther in the long run.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Advice given by you or offered to you will fall on deaf ears today. Neither you nor the other parties are listening, so nothing can be resolved.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It won't be the big things that can give you fits today but bunches of incidental items. Don't spend more on them than they're worth.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Before making plans involving another, better check to see if this person will go along with you. You could get caught holding an expensive bag.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Touchy family issues could create unnecessary friction today, if you voice them without thinking of the consequences. Leave them at rest.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Before finding fault today, be double sure your own skirts are clean. You may start the critique, but someone else could end it.

Harvies have big week ahead

Another big week of sporting events is on tap for Pampa High School, including a Basketball Banquet Thursday night and the beginning of the junior high track season Friday and Saturday.

Saturday's cold and windy weather forced cancellation of a tennis dual between Pampa and Caprock and a baseball double-header between the 2-0 Harvesters and Borger. The Pampa-Borger double-header will be made up at 4 this afternoon at Optimist Park but as of sports deadline time Monday morning, no make-up dates had been set for the tennis match.

Coach David Martin's tennis squad will try to break its three-match string of bad luck with the weather when it travels to Dumas Tuesday afternoon. Steve Scott and the baseball Harvesters will also be on the road for a 4 p.m. game at Hereford.

Thursday night will be highlighted by the Pampa High School Basketball Banquet at M.K. Brown Auditorium. Tickets for the 7 p.m. affair honoring the boys and girls varsity and JV teams are available at the First National Bank, the PHS athletic offices and from the basketball coaches.

Junior high cindermen and women will get their first taste of competition Friday and Saturday at the Plainview Invitational. The girls varsity team, meanwhile, will be at the Amarillo Invitational Saturday and the boys will be idle.

The tennis team will play at the Hereford Tournament Friday and Saturday, the baseball team will play at Canyon Saturday afternoon and the boys and girls golf teams will be battling with Amarillo schools.

Deck Wold's boys team will be at the Amarillo Air Base course for matches with Palo Duro and Tascosa, while Beth Bowman's girls team will host Amarillo High and Tascosa at the Pampa Country Club.

This week's high school sports schedule:

MONDAY
Baseball — Pampa vs. Borger, double-header, 4 p.m. at Optimist Park.

TUESDAY
Tennis — Pampa at Dumas, 3 p.m.

Baseball — Pampa at Hereford, 4 p.m.

THURSDAY
Pampa High School Basketball Banquet, 7 p.m., M.K. Brown Auditorium.

FRIDAY
Tennis — Pampa at Hereford Tournament.

Track — Junior high teams at Plainview Invitational.

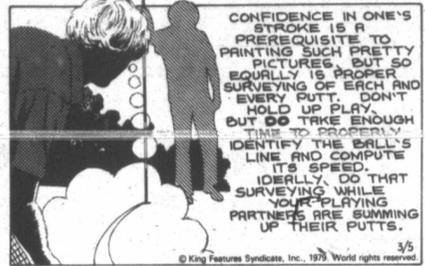

SATURDAY
Tennis — Pampa at Hereford Tournament.

Golf — PHS boys varsity vs. Palo Duro and Tascosa, Amarillo Air Base, 9:30 a.m.; PHS girls varsity vs. Amarillo High and Tascosa, Pampa Country Club, 9:30 a.m.

Baseball — Pampa at Canyon, 1 p.m.

Track — Boys varsity and junior varsity at West Texas Relays, Odessa; Girls varsity and junior varsity at Amarillo Invitational; Junior high teams at Plainview Invitational.

Cage benefit in White Deer set Tuesday night

WHITE DEER — A benefit basketball game featuring the White Deer seniors and members of the Pampa Basketball Officials Association will be held at 7:30 here Tuesday night at the high school gymnasium.

Proceeds from the game will go to help defray the medical expenses of seven-month-old Brant McCullough, who is suffering from a rare form of leukemia. He is the son of Bucks' basketball coach Frank McCullough.

The infant has been undergoing chemotherapy treatment at Children's Medical Center in Dallas. Special funds in Skellytown and White Deer have already been set up to help with the family's medical expenses.

Federal grand jury may use IRS information

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A federal grand jury investigating drug traffic and racketeering activities here may soon delve into information gathered by Internal Revenue Service agents.

The federal investigation, triggered by the shooting death of El Paso narcotics defense lawyer Lee Chagra, has reached into Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, Nevada, Washington and Florida.

Two Fort Bliss soldiers and a 55-year-old man were arrested during the weekend in connection with the Dec. 23 slaying of the flamboyant Chagra, FBI agents said Saturday.

That slaying, and the attempted assassination of assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr outside his San Antonio home last November, have been at the core of the grand jury investigation in this West Texas border city.

Pfc. Don White, 21, of Richmond, Calif., and Spec. 4 David Leo

Wallace, 20, of Compton, Calif., have been charged with capital murder. White was arrested Friday night in El Paso and Wallace was picked up Saturday in Compton.

FBI agents, working with police, arrested Fred Asper, 55, Saturday in Las Vegas on a federal warrant charging him with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for murder in the Chagra case, said Special Agent James Powers, chief of the Las Vegas FBI office.

El Paso Police Chief William Rodriguez said after the three arrests that there were no warrants outstanding in Chagra's death.

U.S. Attorney Jamie Boyd of El Paso said he has sought authorization to present IRS information to the grand jury. He said he expects to receive that authority in "10 days to two weeks."

Boyd indicated the IRS information could sharpen the focus of the grand jury's sweeping investigation into drug trafficking, prostitution and organized crime activities.

Chagra was gunned down in his fortress-like office near downtown El Paso. Reports that a large amount of money was taken from the office and whisked across state lines touched off the joint federal investigation by the grand jury and agents from the FBI, IRS and the Drug Enforcement Administration.

Federal agents have said information generated by the grand jury investigation led to the indictment of Chagra's brother, Jamiel Alexander "Jimmy" Chagra, on narcotics charges by another federal panel in Midland. He was arrested at his home in Las Vegas last week.

A bond reduction hearing is scheduled Tuesday for Jimmy Chagra, who is being held in the El Paso county jail under $1 million bond.

Legislature uncommonly quiet

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The 66th session of the Texas Legislature has been uncommonly quiet so far — too quiet for some.

Daily floor action has been perfunctory. Minor issues abound while issues of substance lie dormant.

"It's been a strange session, the strangest I've been in," says House Speaker Bill Clayton, who has been a legislator since 1963. "There's a wonderment about what is going to happen."

Zut there is a good chance the legislative tempo will quicken this week. A possible confrontation between Gov. Bill Clements and state agency heads, a resumed filibuster and House committee action on tax relief should heat up the session.

A sideshow that should interest the lawmakers occurs Tuesday afternoon when Gov. Bill Clements talks with state agency heads about his plan to reduce state employment by 25,000 jobs in four years.

"We expect a big crowd," said gubernatorial press aide Mark Heckman.

Sen. A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, will have the floor when the Senate returns Monday morning with his extended attack on a bill allowing truckers to get together in seeking rate adjustments from the Texas Railroad Commission. Under present law, such joint action would violate state anti-trust laws.

"This is price-fixing at its very worst. ... The truckers' lobby wants this because it will help them lie, cheat and steal," Schwartz said in Thursday's debate.

Sponsors said the alternative would be to enlarge the Railroad Commission staff to handle an overload of individual rate requests.

The House Ways and Means Committee meets Monday morning, hoping to finish work on a bill implementing the non-automatic portions of the 1978 Tax Relief Amendment. Clayton says the bill should be on next Monday's floor debate calendar.

Key provisions include a $10,000 homestead exemption from school taxes for the elderly, on top of a $5,000 mandatory exemption for all homeowners. Two cars per family would be exempt from property taxes starting in 1980. The bill includes a formula for taxing agricultural land on its productivity, and both family farmers and corporations would get the tax break.

The session also reaches a landmark on Friday, which is the last day bills can be introduced without suspending rules.

Accountant tries to link fortunes

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Accountant Stan Winters was asked by defense attorneys trying to link Cullen Davis' personal and business fortunes, to return to the stand today in the multimillion divorce trial of Davis and his estranged wife, Priscilla.

Winters testified for about five hours during Friday's session, telling about the companies owned by Kendavis Industries International, the conglomerate owned by Davis and his brother Kenneth Davis, Jr., of Tulsa, Okla.

Mrs. Davis' attorneys hope to use Winters' testimony to show the personal financial affairs of Davis are part of the business empire controlled by him and his brother and should be shared in a property settlement with Mrs. Davis.

Davis spent seven days on the witness stand after the trial began two weeks ago as Mrs. Davis' attorneys Jerry Loftin and Ronald Aultman grilled him about his finances.

Davis stepped down Thursday, and Mrs. Davis was the next witness. She testified

Questions On Nutrition
 BY: KATRINA BIGHAM

Q. My father suffers from indigestion and uses soda regularly for this problem. Didn't I read somewhere that this can be harmful?
A. You were probably reading Adelle Davis' "Let's Eat Right to Keep Fit." Good for you!

Yes, Miss Davis states that a person who suffers from indigestion is often a nervous type (probably due to an undersupply of calcium) who swallows air with his food and often becomes an enthusiastic user of soda or alkalizing preparations. She says that "besides fermenting enough carbon dioxide to force open the upper valve of the stomach and thereby allowing both air and gas to escape, these preparations neutralize the valuable hydrochloric acid in his stomach. Thus, any calcium he may have gotten from his food is made insoluble and cannot be absorbed into the blood. The swallowed air may pass into the intestine expanding as it is heated to body temperature possibly causing distention and pain. These symptoms, however, may be quickly relieved by providing adequate calcium.

Also, there are digestive enzymes available in tablet form that are an excellent aid for indigestion.
