News in brief

COLDER

The weather forecast for the local area today calls for cooler temperatures with fair skies through Wednesday. The high this evening should reach 60 while the low is expected to be near 30. The high Wednesday is predicted to drop to the mid-50s. This afternoon's winds should gust at 10-20 mph from the north while evening winds are expected to be from the northeast at 10-15 mph.

Cook to speak at API meeting

R.S. Cook, manager of the Woodward Iodine Operations, will be guest speaker at this month's meeting of the Panhandle chapter of the American Petroleum Institute. The meeting will be held at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at the Pampa Country Club.

The Woodward Iodine Operations is a joint venture between Amoco Production Co. and Pittsburg Plate Glass Industries, whereby salt water produced from nearby oil wells is processed through the plant and iodine is extracted. It is believed that the Woodward Plant is the only iodine extraction operation in the U.S. Color slides will be used to illustrate Cook's talk. Daco Inc. will furnish a door prize.

Head-on crash injures two

CANADIAN — A head-on collision here Saturday left a 35-year-old resident in stable, but critical condition at North West Texas Hospital in Amarillo.

Curtis Warren suffered a "depressed skull fracture," said hospital officials.

Warren was driving north on the 100 block of Main at 7:30 a.m. when his vehicle collided with the pick-up of 16-year-old Robert Ishmael.

Ishmael was treated and released at the Hemphill County Hospital.

County looks at voting machines

The Gray County Commissioners Court heard today a presentation by a representative of Computer Election Systems Inc. for a computer voting system to replace the paper balloting currently used by the county.

Dennis King told the court that the system could reduce by half the number of people needed to work in county elections and could "pay for itself over an eight to 10 year period" in funds saved the county by reduction of election expenses.

The county employed 158 workers in the 1978 general election and showed expenses of $4,702.

The system proposed by the company would cost the county $62,000 and would include a projected 102 voting devices distributed to the county's 14 voting precincts, a central computer costing $30,000, and 14 demonstration devices at $65 each.

An optional feature in the total system is an added computer memory bank which would be used for voter registration and is priced at $25,000 over the cost of the voting system.

Carter flying home today denied triumph of peace

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Carter said today he is confident he has "defined all of the main ingredients of a peace treaty between Egypt and Israel."

Reporting "substantial" progress toward a treaty before leaving Israel, Carter then flew to Cairo and conferred for more than two hours with Egypt's President Anwar Sadat.

Emerging from that meeting, Carter said he gave a full report to Sadat on his meetings with Prime Minister Menachem Begin and other Israeli officials in Jerusalem.

"The United States made proposals for resolving a number of outstanding issues," Carter said. "President Sadat has now accepted these proposals."

The president also said Begin had agreed to present the U.S. proposals to the Israeli Cabinet for consideration quickly.

Carter said he had informed Begin by telephone from Cairo of Sadat's decision to accept the U.S.-proposed compromise on the last treaty issues.

Carter was expected to return to Washington today from Cairo, ending his six-day Mideast peace mission without the peace treaty he had hoped for, but reporting progress that had seemed unlikely 24 hours earlier.

Carter said he and Begin had narrowed the remaining issues in a breakfast meeting today.

These issues were believed to be Israel's desire for Sinai oil, Egypt's desire for liaison officials to supervise Palestinian self-rule in the Gaza Strip and Israel's desire for a quick exchange of ambassadors with Egypt.

Carter gave no indication, either in Israel or in Egypt, of the shape of the U.S.-proposed compromises.

As he left Israel, Carter said "good progress was made" toward a treaty and vowed, "we will not fail."

Carter said progress was made Monday night in a meeting of U.S. and Israeli cabinet officials, and further progress was achieved this morning in a breakfast meeting between himself and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

Begin, also speaking at Ben Gurion airport, said Israel had now gone as far as it could go toward meeting Egypt's terms, and "Now of course, it's the turn of Egypt to reply."

Carter headed home without the treaty he had hoped to forge during his Mideast mission, and before his upbeat statement at Tel Aviv's Ben Gurion airport the mood of Carter's party was gloomy.

But at Ben Gurion Carter vowed that negotiations would continue and said, "There are fewer differences than when I first arrived. And those few differences which do remain have been substantially narrowed.

"Last night, there were further intensive discussions, on the two or three most difficult issues," Carter said.

"And this morning, building on those discussions, Prime Minister Begin and I were able to make substantial additional progress," Carter said.

Carter did not elaborate further on what he and Begin discussed.

Begin said "We made real progress in the peacemaking process. Now, of course, it's the turn of Egypt to reply."

"May I say respectfully, that you can leave this country with satisfaction," Begin said.

Tax to remain on gas, electric bills

By JOHN PRICE
Pampa News Staff

The city commission decided Monday to continue collecting a one percent local sales tax on electric and gas utility bills.

In October the Texas Legislature removed a four percent state tax on the utilities, and left retention of the one percent tax up to the individual cities. Each city keeping the tax is required to inform the state of its decision by May 1. Otherwise, the local tax will automatically be abolished.

The Pampa tax, which raises about $65,000 annually, is "the most equitable way to raise the money," said City Manager Mack Wofford.

Amarillo, Borger and Plainview are among the cities keeping the tax, he said.

"It's as painless as any," said Commissioner Coyle Ford. "If we didn't keep it, we'd have to raise the money some other way."

Roy Wall, owner of the Yellow Cab Co. at 820 E. Frederic, asked the commission to grant him a 14-percent rate hike, to offset a 20-percent increase in expenses. Commissioners responded favorably to the request and agreed to act on it at their next meeting March 27.

"In light of everything else going up, I don't think it's out of line at all," said Commissioner Linden Shepherd about the rate hike.

Wall said he is thinking about adding another cab to his fleet, and added that he plans to begin 24-hour service.

Johnny Sanders, who rents mobile home spaces in Pampa, asked the commission to consider eliminating the city's $50 fee for a mobile home moving permit. Sanders called the fee "totally unfair" and said it causes many mobile home owners to live outside of the city limits.

Wofford said the fee is included in the Southern Standard Building Code, which the city adopted about 18 months ago. The fee also helps compensate for the property taxes which some mobile home owners escape paying, he said.

"In some areas, the owner of the mobile home never pays any ad valorem (property) tax," Wofford said. "Because of the nature of his work, he may only stay a few months."

Wofford said Sanders' objection to the fee is the first he has heard. Mayor R.D. Wilkerson told Sanders the commission will study his request.

Upon a recommendation from Police Chief Richard Mills, the commission awarded the purchase of six police sedans to Culberson-Stowers Chevrolet Inc., which bid a total of $35,620.58 for the cars. The expenditure "just barely meets the city budget," Wofford said.

The commission also set April 10 as the date to receive bids for the purchase of three half-ton trucks for the park department, and two four-door sedans for the tax department.

As withdrawal continues

China welcomes home conquerors

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — China reported a joyous welcome home for the conquerors of Lang Son and Dong Dang, but the Soviet Union charged that "Chinese aggression continues" in northern Vietnam.

Intelligence officials in Bangkok said the slow Chinese withdrawal back across the border is still under way.

However, one highly placed source said Chinese officials in Bangkok told other diplomats Chinese troops would retain some of the border outposts from which the Vietnamese staged raids into China.

"At daybreak, a column of motorcycles rolled through the Friendship Pass, followed by military lorries carrying the heroic soldiers fresh from battle." China's Xinhua news agency said Monday in its report of the return of the troops from Lang Son and Dong Dang, at the southern end of the mountain pass across the border.

"All along the 12-kilometer road leading to Pinxiang, welcome waves, flowers and colorful bunting, played traditional musical instruments and danced joyously amid the explosions of firecrackers."

Lang Son, a provincial capital 80 miles northeast of Hanoi, and Dong Dang, seven miles to the northwest, were the most hotly contested positions over the war which began when Chinese troops crossed the border Feb. 17. The Vietnamese accused the Chinese of destroying Lang Son before they pulled out.

Xinhua did not say how many soldiers returned or report on movements of other units still believed to be in Vietnam. The reference has made reference to the border not being exactly where the Vietnamese claim it is, and sources in Peking have reported that the Chinese probably would put their own version of the line into effect. But only a few square miles in a few spots are believed to be involved. China said it was withdrawing from Vietnam March 5 after punishing the Vietnamese for attacks across the border. The Soviet news agency Tass said Monday this was a "farce" and a smokescreen for Chinese regroupment and consolidation of the invaders' positions. Tass demanded that the Chinese pull out to the last man.

Germany remembers

ULM, West Germany (AP) — They haven't put up a memorial yet at Albert Einstein's birthplace in Ulm, but it and other German cities are not neglecting the 100th anniversary of his birth. A major theme is remorse about Nazi persecution of Einstein and other Jews.

"For us it is a point of honor," said Lord Mayor Hans Lorenser of Ulm. "Einstein was born here. His family came from this region. We deeply regret that Einsteinstrasse was renamed by the Nazis."

Einstein, who would have been 100 this Wednesday, revolutionized physics with his Theory of Relativity decades before he fled the Nazis. Now he is being honored not only by Ulm, but by Munich, where he was educated, and in Berlin, where he was a professor.

West German President Walter Scheel, at ceremonies in West Berlin, noted that Einstein would not return to Germany after the war because "he didn't think the German people were able to live in freedom."

"We have proven the opposite," said Scheel. "This is a free country" — one he says is entitled to honor the late scientist.

East Germany, too, has commemorated Einstein's birth. Prime Minister Willi Stoph said Einstein was not a Marxist, but was "a great humanist whose work and personality served humanity and peace."

In Ulm, a 1,100-year old town of half-timbered homes and narrow, cobblestoned streets on the Danube River, Einstein is the most famous native. In 1929, he wrote to an Ulm townsman:

"The town of one's birth clings to one's life as something equally unique as the origin of one's own mother. We owe part of our being to our birthplace. Thus do I regard Ulm with thankfulness, because it combines noble artistic tradition with an unpretentious and healthy character."

Then came the Nazis. A decree issued here in 1934 stripped Einstein of his German citizenship, and Einsteinstrasse — a street that had been named in his honor after he won the 1921 Nobel Prize for physics — was renamed Fichtestrasse after a 19th-century German nationalist.

But that was minor compared with the destruction of Ulm's See Einstein page 4

Connally buoyed by campaign

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Republican presidential candidate John Connally, buoyed by a successful campaign swing last week through the East and Midwest, says he can draw "nearly" as much support in any part of the country as he can in his home state of Texas.

"I can run nearly as well in any part of the country as in Texas," the former Democratic governor of Texas said Monday night. "I don't give away any part of the country."

The former treasury secretary, who became a Republican in 1973, drew enthusiastic support during the campaign swing, which he admitted exceeded even his fondest expectations.

For the first time, Connally was favored over former California Gov. Ronald Reagan in the race for the 1980 nomination in a poll taken among delegates from 13 Midwest states at the Midwestern GOP Leadership Conference in Indianapolis.

The gathering last weekend had been billed as an early barometer of the 1980 campaign in the Midwest. Other early polls have shown Connally second only to Reagan among active Republican presidential possibilities.

The response, Connally said, was equally excellent in Rochester, N.Y., Arlington, Va., and in northwestern Ohio.

Connally, 62, did acknowledge that Reagan remains ahead of all other GOP candidates at this time, but still expressed confidence he can win the nomination and the general election.

The trip last week came after Connally opened active presidential campaigning with a week-long swing through his home state, which he served as governor from 1963-69.

Connally scoffed at those who feel he won't draw support from old-line Republicans because of his Democratic background.

"Old-line Republicans are just like new-line Republicans. They want someone who can reflect their views and who can win," he said.

Connally appearance Monday night before 1,100 at St. Mary's University's symposium on free enterprise was billed as non-political.

He used the opportunity, however, to vigorously defend the American free enterprise system and business, one of his primary campaign themes in his presidential bid.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coving Commendment.

Profits are right, just, moral

"Why should anyone want to sing the praises of the profit motive?" asks Professor Irving Kristol in the Wall Street Journal.

Kristol is one of those who favors the capitalist system, it seems, on the grounds of its expediency, not its moral rightness. It works. It is respectable but not moral. That was Adam Smith's view, according to Kristol.

For 200 years, Adam Smith's book, "The Wealth of Nations," has been the bible of the profit businessman. In it, the Scottish philosopher explained at length how the private entrepreneur, seeking to benefit himself, actually conferred benefit upon society as a whole.

Ever since, the businessman has reasoned, "Since making money for myself results, as Adam Smith says, in serving my fellowmen, it is a good thing to do. If serving Self - interest also serves the interest of society, it must be right. The profit system is a splendid thing."

But Kristol has only scorn for the businessman who sees the profit system as a splendid thing.

One might conclude Professor Kristol's essay with the impression that he has characterized the profit motive, or economic action based on self-interest, as practical but unmoral.

Why is it not moral? Because it moves the businessman to maximize his own particular good, not the good of society. But is it not moral - that is, right, not wrong - to serve one's self? What is nonmoral about it?

The businessman serves himself by selling his product or service for all it will bring in the market. Should he scale down his price? This would benefit the buyer, but it would hurt himself, the seller, so it is not true to say it would benefit "society."

Further, to lower the selling price unnecessarily would give the impression to the public that the good is more plentiful (cheapness spells plenty even to those who have not studied economics) than it actually is. This would stimulate people to buy and consume more of the product than the supply warranted, and the result would be a shortage. Would this benefit society?

It is widely assumed (though not by Kristol) that if a merchant makes a profit, he must have done so at the expense of the customer - in short, that he must have stolen it and thus that profit - seeking is evil.

This, of course, is an error. Assuming the transaction is voluntary on the part of both buyer and seller, profit business is not crooked. Even the most vehement socialists do not rest their case on capitalist dishonesty.

It is quite wrong to imply that Adam Smith did not see voluntary transactions between self-seeking individuals as right and moral. On the contrary, he distrusted businessmen who pretended to run their shops for the benefit of others. "I have never known much good done by those who affected to trade for the public good," he drily wrote. But he saw a vast amount done by those who faithfully minded their business.

His entire book is a paean of praise for freedom - freedom to own property, which he deemed a great blessing, freedom to buy and sell, to export and import, to borrow and lend. Demand and supply are equated in a market he repeated over and over, only when "there is perfect liberty. This seems to qualify him as patron saint of our modern libertarians.

Businessmen compete to sell goods and make profits. To compete is to offer alternatives to the buyer, each competition trying to persuade the buyer that his alternative is the best. The result has been that in our profit - motivated society a myriad of alternatives have become available to each individual.

Kristol is scornful of those who "worship the Sears-Roebuck catalogue and all the 'alternative lifestyles' that capitalist affluence permits the individual to choose from." But is it not moral and has it not improved the quality of life, generally speaking, that our area of choice has been broadened?

With liberty goes responsibility. It is the owner of property who is responsible for the use of that property. The one who makes buying and selling decisions is responsible for the results of those decisions. He makes a transaction only when he stands to gain from that transaction, but whether he gains or loses, it is his own gain or loss. Is not responsibility moral?

The relationship between borrower and lender, between the merchant, for example, and his banker - is looked upon as a crass, dollars and cents relationship, but is also highly personal and moral. It involves, first, an evaluation of the would-be borrower's "credit"; that is, the likelihood of his repaying the loan when due. Also there is the promise to repay, a moral commitment upon the fulfillment of which the entire relationship depends.

It is upon the moral factor in the credit relationship that money, that vital institution in the private-enterprise world, is based. Today's money is a slip of paper which acknowledges debt. It is a Federal Reserve note or coin, it is the debt of the United States government to the bearer. If it is a check, it is the debt of a private commercial bank to the depositor who has signed the check. In either case the money is good - that is, worth on its face what it claims to be - only if the debtor honors it, agrees that it represents moral obligation.

Morality pervades free, profit seeking enterprise. Profits are right, just, moral. No person engaged in profit business need fear that his lifework is not, by its nature, moral.

OPINION PAGE

Press restraint sign of tyranny

When Chief Justice Warren Burger was attending the recent national convention of the American Bar Association in Atlanta, he walked out of one meeting because a television reporter and camera crew were also in the room. Later he refused to permit television and radio coverage of his annual state of the judiciary speech to the assembled lawyers.

This was not just a case of a celebrity venting his impatience with the inquisitive news media. This was America's No. 1 jurist carrying into the quasi - public arena of the ABA convention an attitude toward government and the press already reflected in Supreme Court opinions and becoming known as the "Burger doctrine."

This doctrine holds that representatives of the press have no more right to access to government information than any other citizen, that reporters or photographers have no "special privilege" to enter public institutions to see what's going on.

A compelling warning about what that means to our society was delivered recently by Walter Cronkite, the veteran CBS reporter and anchorman.

Cronkite's words should be enlightening to readers who are puzzled by the number of times broadcasters, publishers, editors and reporters are being forced into battles in court to defend their status under the First Amendment. It may appear that the press is too defensive in these matters - that it is succumbing to a sense of self-importance in claiming certain rights. Cronkite put these cases in a chilling historical perspective.

The Oakland, Calif., Tribune and the East Bay Press Club in Oakland are challenging the power of judges to bar the public, including the press, from preliminary hearings on criminal complaints. This case and a similar one brought recently by the San Diego Union center on a recurring but unresolved constitutional issue: whether the public's right of access to a court hearing can be curtailed by a judge who thinks publicity would interfere with a defendant's right to a fair trial.

When press and public are barred from a criminal hearing and the judge orders the transcript of the proceedings sealed, is a reporter demanding a "special privilege" for the press when he asks to see the record? We don't think so. What concerns us, and should concern the public, is that judges and attorneys are demanding the privilege of administering justice in the name of the people while refusing to let the people observe what they're doing.

Cronkite points to a grim example of where the latter concept of privilege can lead. Many if not most, Germans did not know what their government was doing in its concentration camps 40 years ago because they had been willing, early in the Hitler regime, to let the government decide what should and shouldn't be reported and published in the newspapers.

"One of the first signs of tyranny's approach is the heavy footstep on the threshold of press freedom," says Cronkite.

There is good reason to be alarmed about the trend in court decisions limiting freedom of the press and rights of access to the news. When the chief justice of the United States thinks television and radio have no business covering his annual address to the American Bar, one wonders how far the Supreme Court intends to go with the Burger doctrine.

Tale of two Yemens

Wall Street Journal

In spite of Arab League attempts to arrange a cease-fire, fighting seems to be continuing in the perennial border war between North and South Yemen.

The flare-up poses serious dangers both to Saudi Arabia and our oil routes, fully justifying the U.S. decision to speed arms shipments to North Yemen.

Yet there is another facet to the clash of great interest to the U.S. Even though most Americans have trouble telling South Yemen from North Yemen, those neighbors present the clearest contrast in the Arab world of political economies and great-power alignments.

South Yemen has been called the Arab world's only real Marxist regime, and it is heavily dominated by the familiar pattern of Soviet, Cuban and East German advisers. North Yemen, a protégé of Saudi Arabia, has become increasingly pro-Western, some of its most important technocrats are American-educated, and it is making quite a success story of its laissez faire approach to development.

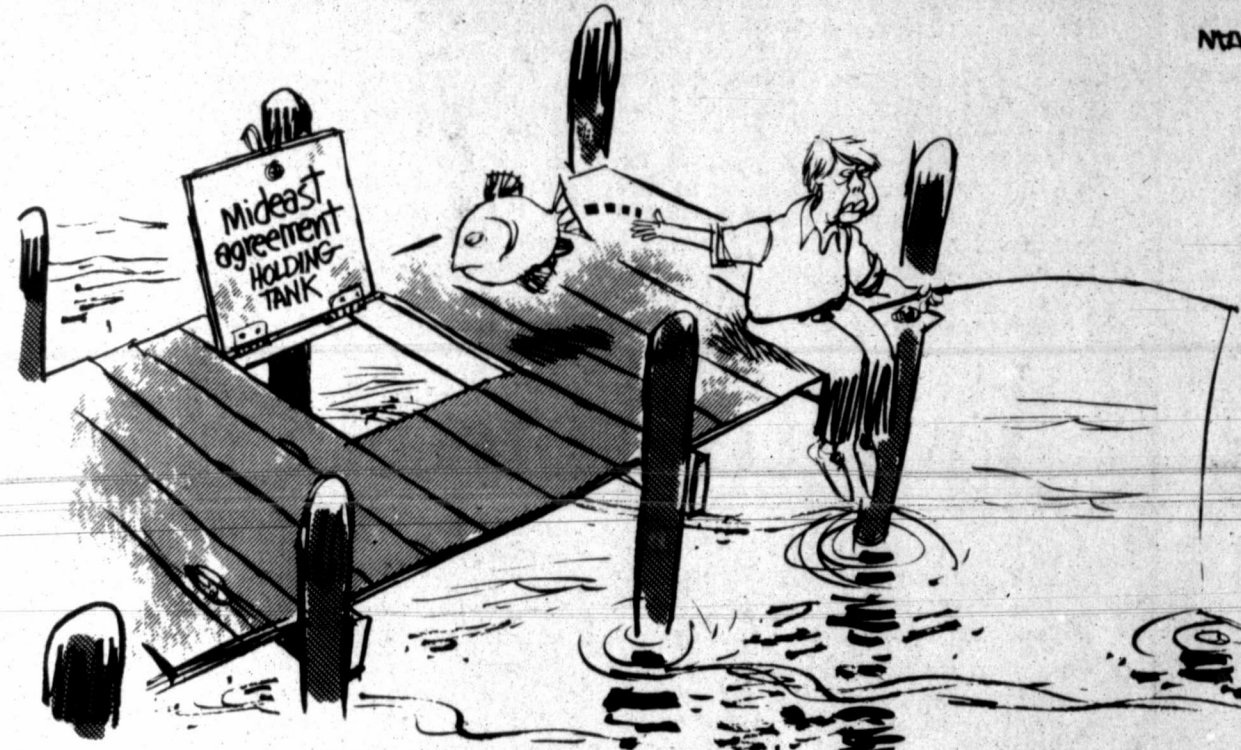

Of course, North Yemen, which has no oil, is starting from one of the lowest bases in the world, with only 8 percent literacy, 75 percent of the population in subsistence agriculture, a life expectancy in 1975 of 37 years, and per capita income at the beginning of the decade of $100. Some of the government's laissez faire policy have the bureaucratic infrastructure to do much else and doesn't even exercise much political control in tribal areas.

From these primitive beginnings, however, the country has progressed to the wealthier ranks of what development people call the "poor-poor" countries. It has impressive foreign currency reserves, some $2 billion at a recent count. The explanation of this paradox is that Yemen, with more than half the population in the Arabian Peninsula, supplies much of the foreign labor for Saudi Arabia. Its more than 600,000 emigrants there have been remitting funds at a rate of some $5 to $6 million a day. This money, plus government encouragement of free enterprise, has doubled the GNP in real terms in the past eight years and quadrupled per capita income.

By contrast, the Marxist-Leninist rulers of South Yemen have been running its once thriving economy into the ground. The formerly bustling duty-free port of Aden has lost one-third of its population.

Says a highly placed North Yemeni, about his neighbor, "one cannot imagine the dimensions of the economic tragedy. Aden could be another Bahrain or even a Singapore. Instead there are bread lines and fish lines." In fact, the North fears subversion from the Marxist South in part because its free enterprise success provides such an embarrassing contrast.

The U.S. fortunately has been willing to join Saudi Arabia in providing military aid to the North. If we couldn't find it in ourselves to help this would-be friend when it's threatened by Soviet and Marxist pressure, we would really be in bad shape.

From the tax man's point of view

by paul harvey

When the traffic cop who stops your car fails to smile it may be because the last motorist he stopped pulled a knife on him.

When you encounter the tax man, and he is looking at you from the other side of the desk, inevitably he is remembering the last guy he audited who tried to deduct from his taxable income the use keep of two mistresses.

In the Lee Marvin trial the legal question was whether a jilted mistress is entitled to the same property rights as a divorced wife.

But a second legal question arose when Marvin's agent testified that the actor had set up a record company with only one singer - his mistress - who received "advance royalties" on records, though no records were ever made.

Had the actor thus sought to make his monthly $1,000 payment to his ex-mistress tax-deductible?

If agents of the IRS become chronically cynical it may be because they can't forget the Madison, Wis., woman who added an indoor swimming pool to her home at a cost of $195,000, and tried to deduct that amount as a "medical" expense.

Then there is the California poker parlor which bankrolled shells to entice others to play and deducted their losses as "promotional expense."

And who of us would not develop a jaundiced eye after discovering the merchant who kept two sets of books because he was pushing narcotics in his health food store!

On rainy days during lunch break around any IRS office they may chuckle about the Washington, D.C., call girl who tried to depreciate her typewriter.

But some of the schemes calculated to conceal income are not amusing. And it is frustrating to anybody who works for a living and pays his dues to hear about "salesmen" on beer incomes living the champagne life in the Caribbean.

And the tax man meets or hears about many more such schemes that you and I do.

So they have to sort through a jillion receipts to see if the woman who claims her pet parrot as a dependent is similarly generous with herself in other aspects of her bookkeeping.

Then there is George Turner of Kansas City who filed false returns under the name Michael Rodent, listed members of the Mickey Mouse Club as dependents and collected some $50,000 in refunds before he went to prison.

It seems un-American to construe everybody guilty until proved innocent but the arduous dodgers leave the tax man no choice.

Arab unity and strength

You'd never know it from front - page headlines, but there's more going on in the Mideast these days than the Iranian revolution and escalating oil prices.

In a development of potentially equally great impact on the region and beyond, two key nations - Iraq and Syria - are talking seriously about becoming one. Following through on the signing last October of a declaration of intent to create a "single unified state," leaders are exchanging visits and discussing preliminary details of economic and military cooperation.

There are a number of interested - not to say concerned - observers, not the least Israel. Iraq has been a tough talker but a token participant in Arab - Israeli conflicts to date. The prospect that Iraq units might now be about to join the Syrians in force on the Golan Heights in their rear is one the Israelis could do without as they concentrate on their main - front diplomatic sparring with Egypt.

It is in fact mutual opposition to the Egyptian - Israeli negotiations that is a primary motivating factor in the Iraqi - Syrian move. Another is concern over the continuing turmoil in neighboring Iran.

Both countries are also ruled by branches of the socialist - oriented Baath (renaissance) Party, but in the convoluted context of Mideast politics that is an obstacle to be overcome rather than an advantage. The two factions have been feuding for years, on occasion resorting to terrorist bombings and assassinations, and it was not too many months ago that the Syrian press and radio routinely referred to the Iraqi president as a "murderer."

The Iraqi - Syrian rapprochement is the latest of a lengthy but not encouraging history of Arab unification attempts. Syria was linked with Egypt in the United Arab Republic from 1958 to 1961, a union notable chiefly for a bitter leadership power struggle. Egypt later talked merger with Libya, but they ended up shooting at each other. Libya also flirted briefly with its western neighbor, Tunisia, to no result. Jordan and Iraq toyed with union in the '50s, before the overthrow of the Iraqi monarchy.

The only effective merger has been that of the cluster of Persian Gulf sheikdoms which now compose the United Arab Emirates, and the basis of that is not political but economic - to maximize benefits of their recently developed oil resources.

Egypt is currently fostering low - key cooperation with its southern neighbor, Sudan, that is also essentially economic. The two have a mutual defense pact, aimed at countering Soviet infiltration of East Africa. But that is incidental, the emphasis is on expanding underpopulated but potentially productive Sudan's agricultural capacity to help feed overpopulated Egypt. The two countries have been working gradually for the past five years toward a goal of broad economic integration, stopping short of political union. It shows much more promise at this point of being achieved than do the ambitious plans of Syria and Iraq.

If their merger should overcome the many hard and historic obstacles to realization and take on real substance, it would significantly alter the Mideast power balance. The two countries could deploy, by Western military estimates, as many as 400,000 troops, 450 tanks and 700 warplanes on Israel's northern border.

That is the possibility. The probability is something else. Given their track record in making common cause, the Arabs should be showing more concern over this latest effort than the Israelis.

Or to put it another way, in unity there is strength does not translate well into Arabic.

Bikers tell committee helmets cause accidents

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Helmets that cook your brain and send sweat pouring down your face set motorcycle riders up for accidents, two veteran bikers told a Senate committee Monday.

Seven witnesses testified against a bill to require all motorcycle operators and passengers to wear helmets after Dec. 31.

The 1977 Legislature repealed the helmet law for persons over 18, but Sen. Jack Ogg is sponsoring a bill to enact it again.

The measure got support Monday from the Department of Public Safety and President Jerry Johns of Southwestern Insurance Information Service, Inc.

The state affairs committee left the bill pending without taking a vote.

Witnesses against the measure included T.E. Finch of San Antonio, who testified his sons were wearing helmets when one died and another was critically injured in motorcycle accidents.

Finch lost his 12-year-old son in an accident and he said the youth might have been able to avoid the driver who hit him from the rear if he had not been wearing a helmet.

His 14-year-old suffered a broken neck and has been hospitalized in intensive care since August. "He is dying," Finch said.

"Many accidents are caused by the lack of ability to see or hear," said Finch.

Finch displayed his sons' helmets at the committee table.

"You've been a very effective witness," Sen. Bill Moore, committee chairman, told Finch.

Wayne Agee and L.G. Eck of Austin told of the terrific heat generated inside a helmet.

"When I would head out to San Angelo, Pecos and the Big Bend, it would be 140 degrees inside the helmet and sweat was in my face. I'd be set up for an accident," said Agee. "I would want to take it (the helmet) off and let the wind blow across my face and through my hair — and sometimes I did."

The temperature gets as hot as 140 degrees, Eck said, when the outside temperature is 90. "You get sick at your stomach, dizzy and sweat is in your face. You're set up for an accident," he echoed.

Inspector Robert Hulien of the DPS testified, however, that fatal motorcycle accidents have increased 55.4 percent since the helmet law was repealed for those over 18.

"At DPS we believe motorcycle helmets are consequential in reducing fatalities and injuries," Hulien said.

Ogg claimed motorcycle injuries are a drain on the taxpayer because so many riders do not carry insurance and are unable to pay hospital costs.

Johns said bikers' accidents "increase insurance premiums for all of us."

Approximately 40 bearded bikers in decorated vests sat in the balcony and listened to James Jackson of the Bandidos testify. "Insurance companies, helmet companies — everybody wants helmets but motorcycle riders. We're the last ones anyone gets around to asking."

STUDENTS FROM THE PAMPA High School Drama Department received one of only two "Superior" ratings at the E.N.M.U. Drama Festival at Portales, N.M. over the weekend. The group performed Act III of "The Little Foxes" by Lillian Hellman, which will also be their entry in the UIL One-Act Play Contest on March 29. Glenna Wilkins (left rear) was awarded the "Superior" rating, while Lynn Pyle (right rear), Vietta Morgan and Ken Crossman received ratings of "Excellent." The production was directed by Rochelle Lacy. (Pampa News photo)

Dynamite stolen
ANDREWS, Texas (AP) — An inventory will be necessary to determine if 109 sticks of dynamite was all that was stolen from a storage building just outside the city limits, said Andrews County Sheriff Buck Gregory.

Gregory said Monday as many as 50 additional sticks of the explosive might be missing as a result of the theft.

Bullock's attorney questions Austin Grand Jury witnesses

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle says it's "innovative" that Comptroller Bob Bullock's private attorney has questioned grand jury witnesses testifying in a probe of Bullock's office.

"It's an assault on good judgment," Earle said Monday after the grand jury quizzed four former and present comptroller employees.

Austin attorney Roy Minton says he represents Bullock individually and also the comptroller's office "insofar as it relates to the investigation."

When a state-wide official is being investigated, the lawyer said it sometimes is difficult to distinguish from the individual and his office.

"The state's paying us nothing," Minton said outside the grand jury room that he has counseled Bullock against entering.

Minton said he has questioned the present and former employees, but not about how to deliver their testimony.

"We think of them in terms of people we were getting information from," he said.

Earle said he did not know if the grand jury would subpoena more witnesses or reissue its invitation to Bullock.

"I would doubt that it would continue" past the current grand jury term that ends this month, he said.

The current investigation follows a highly critical report released by a previous grand jury that examined Bullock's travel expenses, use of state airplanes and record-keeping.

The four testifying Monday were Ed White, head of manpower services; Paul Wehrle, research director of legal services; Leslie Vilas, Bullock's personal secretary; and Randall B. Wood, former chief clerk and now an Austin attorney.

Four others had appeared last week.

Some witnesses have been so "evasive as to make a mockery of the truth," Earle said, but the Monday witnesses were not among those. Others appeared to be well-coached on answering questions, he added.

Minton said the grand jury is investigating a 1976 Louisiana trip made by Bullock and several of his workers, and possibly other specific incidents that the lawyer declined to name.

"I bet you a chicken dinner and all the beer you can drink that they're at the point now that they're not doing anything but checking paper and expenses," Minton said.

"It's just as vanilla as hell," he said.

Police trial testimony admitted

HOUSTON (AP) — Grand jury testimony from two former Houston policemen charged in the death of Randall Alan Webster has been admitted into federal court.

Danny H. Mays told the federal panel he saw a pistol in Webster's hand before he shot him to death Feb. 8, 1977 at the conclusion of a high speed auto chase in southwest Houston.

Mays is accused of striking Webster on the head and shooting him when the Shreveport, La. teenager tried to surrender unarmed.

Two other former officers, Norval Wayne Holloway Jr. and Paul D. Dillon, are accused of joining Mays in planting a .22-caliber revolver on Webster's body to make it appear the youth was armed.

It was also revealed in Monday's session that Holloway told the panel he picked up the gun he said he saw Webster holding and stuck it in his belt after the shooting.

Holloway said he picked up the gun because Webster was still moving but put it back later "because the detectives holler if you move anything."

Cuevas retrial resumes

HOUSTON (AP) — Jury selection has resumed in the retrial of Ignacio Cuevas with defense attorney Will Gray apparently satisfied he'll receive payment for his court-appointed services.

Gray and prosecutors Bert Graham and Mark Ward interviewed and then excused six prospective jurors Monday.

Nine jurors have been selected so far in the trial of Cuevas, the lone survivor of an 11-day Huntsville prison siege in 1974 that resulted in the deaths of two inmates and two hostages.

Gray was awarded $32,000 for his successful appeal for a retrial of Cuevas' 1975 death penalty conviction.

Gray filed a motion last week saying he would not continue with the trial until he was paid.

State action became necessary when officials in Walker County, site of the unsuccessful escape attempt, said county funds were unavailable to pay the Cuevas costs.

Weather

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
Thundershowers are expected over southern portions of Texas late today, but Texans can expect clear to partly cloudy skies and springlike temperatures until then.

The mild temperatures ranged from 42 at Dalhart to 62 at Brownsville before dawn, then headed steadily upward.

The National Weather Service said winds would be mild, except for the Panhandle and South Plains.

Today's highs were expected to reach the upper 60s in the Panhandle, the 80s in the Big Bend and the 70s over most of the rest of Texas.

National

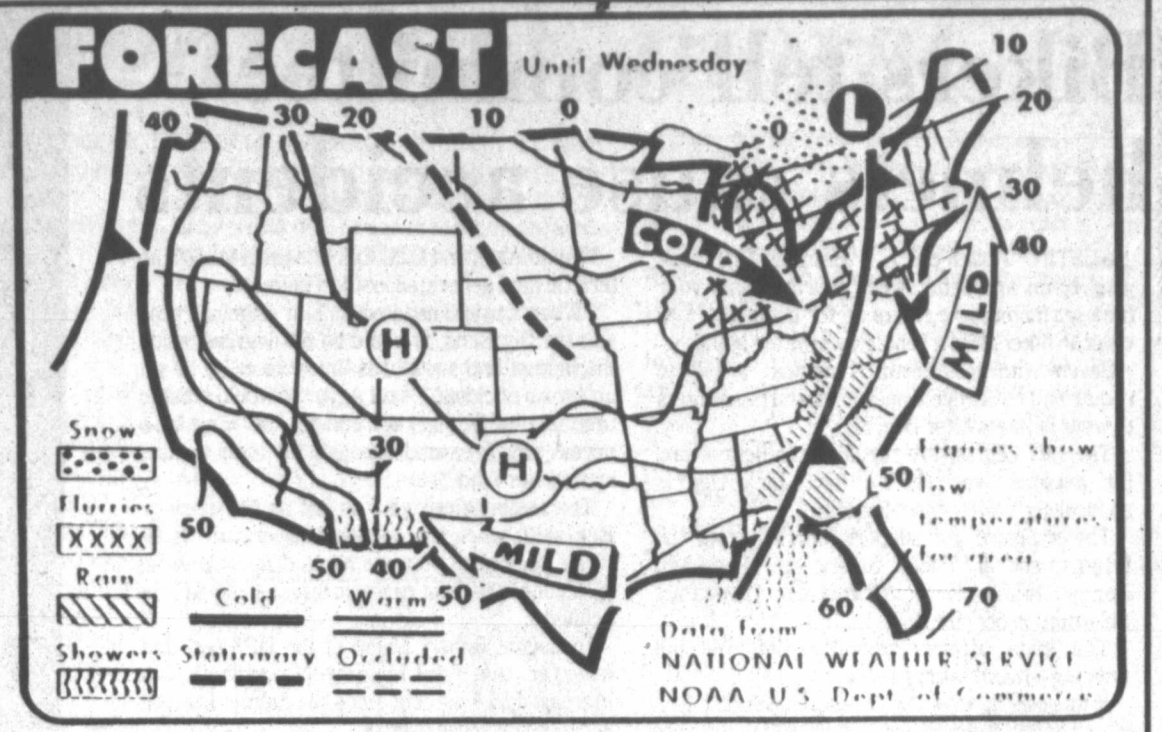

By The Associated Press
A cold front blanketed the northern Great Plains today, producing light snow over the Montana foothills, while winds gusting up to 50 miles per hour battered western North Dakota.

In Williston and Dickinson, N.D., blowing snow lowered visibilities to near zero.

The Illinois River at Peoria in central Illinois rose toward an expected crest today of 28 feet, 10 feet above flood stage, while two other rivers that ran out of their banks last week receded.

One Peoria business along the river's edge was closed Monday when the river reached a depth of 26.2 feet. Officials said a few other businesses and several parking lots near the river's edge also were threatened but still open.

In Rome, about 20 miles upstream from Peoria, several homes were evacuated. Some roads along the river between Rome and Peoria were closed because of flooding.

WEATHER FORECAST calls for rain in the eastern Gulf but most of the nation will have mild weather. (AP Laserphoto)

Relatives of Chagra ask for help

DALLAS (AP) — Relatives of slain defense attorney Lee Chagra of El Paso have appealed to Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts for help in investigating the shooting death and ensuing federal grand jury probes into racketeering.

The appeal came from former pro football player Roosevelt Grier, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said in a telephone interview that Grier called last week to ask the senator's help.

The spokesman said no decision has been made on whether to enter the case.

An FBI agent investigating the case said, "Seems to me they're trying to swat a fly with a baseball bat. I can't imagine why they'd want to drag Ted Kennedy into this."

Joe Chagra, an attorney and younger brother of Lee, said the family sought Kennedy's aid through Grier.

"Yeah, I think JoAnne (widow of Lee Chagra) is the one that got it started," Joe Chagra said. "Rosie was a good friend of Lee. Lee used to handle cases for him — poor black kids in California. Lee would represent these kids for free. I think he met Lee in Las Vegas."

"I think what happened is that she asked him (Grier) a long time ago, and he just now got around to it."

Grier is a friend of the Kennedy family and was particularly close to the late Robert Kennedy.

Authorities have arrested three men in connection with Chagra's slaying, but Grier's inquiry to Kennedy came several days after those arrests.

"We feel that there might be two or three other people involved who haven't come up yet," Joe Chagra said. "There's no proof or evidence — just a gut feeling."

Last week, a federal investigator said former New York City Mafia chieftain Joe Bonanno Sr. and reputed New England Mafia leader Raymond Patriarca were under scrutiny by grand juries in Texas and Nevada.

The Mafia angles were sparked at a bond reduction hearing for Jimmy Chagra, another brother, who is awaiting trial on narcotics charges.

Einstein

500-member Jewish community. The synagogue was burned in 1938 and at least 180 Jews, including four of Einstein's relatives, were dragged away to death camps.

An "Einstein and Ulm" exhibit opened Saturday, with 800 persons at the ceremony. The mayor announced a scholarship to go to a Jewish graduate student from a foreign country for study at Ulm University.

Although Einstein refused the city's offer of honorary citizenship after the war, Ulm officials say he reached a sort of reconciliation with his hometown. Archivist Hans Eugen Specker cites letters he wrote to Ulm in 1949 and 1954 thanking it for birthday greetings.

But Alfred Moos, Einstein's 65-year-old cousin who lives in Ulm, is skeptical. "He had very ambiguous feelings about Germany. He didn't want to insult anyone," Moos said. "I'm convinced Einstein himself would never have given his permission for this exhibit."

Moos said the tributes fail to mention that Einstein "was a pacifist and a Zionist who even helped Communists who were persecuted after World War I. He helped dozens of people immigrate to the United States (fleeing the Nazis) by writing immigration affidavits."

Einstein was born in Ulm on March 14, 1879, and spent only the first 15 months of his life here. His family moved to Munich when his father's business failed in Ulm.

Some of Einstein's most important work was done in Switzerland, where he lived early in the century. He became a Swiss citizen then, but resumed German citizenship after returning to Germany in 1914.

In 1934, he took a position at the Institute for Advanced Study in Princeton, N.J., and by 1940 had become an American citizen. He died in 1955 in Princeton, N.J., at age 76, never having returned to Germany.

One of the new city government's first acts after the war was to restore Einstein's name to Einsteinstrasse, and an adult education building was named Einsteinhaus in 1959. But not even a plaque marks the former site of the house where he was born on Bahnhofstrasse.

The house, a five-story apartment building near the railway depot, was destroyed in Allied bombings during World War II. Now the site is an empty corner of a shopping mall, flanked by a MacDonald's hamburger restaurant, a drug store and other new businesses.

Last month the city commissioned a Swiss sculptor to design a column for the site, but it won't be ready until next year.

Moos recalled his only meeting with Einstein — in Berlin while Moos was studying at the university there in the winter of 1931-32.

"I went to his flat and spoke to him for about half an hour. He knew I didn't know anything about his scientific work. He wanted to know about the state of affairs at Berlin University, especially in regards to Jewish students. The situation was very bad... a large number of the Jewish students were active National Socialists."

Authorities waiting for reaction to photo

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Authorities were waiting today for the reaction to a photo of a man being sought in connection with two Oklahoma mass murders and were expecting a visit from Indiana authorities seeking a tie between the man and a mass slaying in that state.

The photo released publicly late Monday was a print of a police mug shot taken in Jefferson County, Ky., of Roger Dale Stafford, a Decatur, Ala., man who is the subject of a massive manhunt.

The search for Stafford went into its second day Monday as authorities from Alabama to Illinois were on the lookout for the drifter sought by police.

One murder charge was filed against the 27-year-old Stafford and eight more first-degree murder charges were being prepared in connection with the slayings of six employees of a Sirlain Stockade steakhouse here last summer and of the Melvin Lorenz family from San Antonio, Texas, found dead earlier near Purcell.

Dancing on Ice

Long before international figure skating competition began in Austria in 1871, skaters enjoyed cutting patterns in the ice with their blades, and using skates to travel more easily in the winter. The first ice skates had blades made of bone, and skaters in England were gliding on them as early as the 12th century. In the 1860s, an American skater named Jackson Haines showed that ice skating could be combined with the graceful movements of dancing. Today's champion figure skaters combine jumps, spins, and other free movements with precise patterns, or figures, which they make as they move over the ice. This year's World Figure Skating Championships begin today in Vienna, Austria.

Dear Abby

by abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: I am writing in hopes of comforting the many wonderful, loving parents who live in shame because their child has chosen to live with his or her mate without marriage.

My girlfriend (18) and I (21) have lived together now for three years. We share all the responsibility equally—the bills, rent, laundry, dishes—everything.

We help each other, and are each other's best friend. We are together because we love each other, and are very happy.

My parents and hers love us and are quite proud of us. As a matter of fact, they are overjoyed to see us so happy and fulfilled. Now, does that sound so bad?

RICH IN LOVE

DEAR RICH: No, it sounds almost too good to be true. A little quick arithmetic shows that you were 18 and your girlfriend was 15 when you started living together. I can understand parents being overjoyed to see their adult children "happy and fulfilled"—but I'll bet they weren't all that overjoyed three years ago.

DEAR ABBY: My father makes a good living and Mom has never had to work. She has lots of friends and is always doing something for our church.

Now for my problem: Mom shoplifts. I've known it for a long time, but she doesn't know that I know. I've seen her take small cans of stuff in the supermarket, dress patterns, cosmetics—anything she can slip into her purse or pockets. We're not poor, Abby. Mom can buy just about anything she wants. She even steals things she has no use for.

What gets me is how Mom is always lecturing me to be honest and truthful.

What should I do? I'm afraid Mom will get caught and sent to jail and the reputation of our whole family will be ruined. Should I tell my father?

I can't take a chance of getting a letter from you at home, so please answer in the paper, but leave out my city. Thank you.

A DAUGHTER (12)

DEAR DAUGHTER: Your mother could be a kleptomaniac—a person who has an uncontrollable urge to steal. Kleptomaniacs can be cured with treatment.

Tell your mother you know about her problem, and urge her to get professional help. If she refuses, and continues stealing, tell your father... not as a tattletale, but as a loving daughter.

DEAR ABBY: In response to FEELING GUILTY: Her story sounds like a carbon copy of my life.

I'm 27, and when I was younger I had an abortion. It was the only thing to do at the time, but I am a good Catholic and I was scared to go to confession.

After seven years of great anxiety, I finally went. The priest never said a word. I'm sure he has heard the same story many times. I was not excommunicated (he didn't even know who I was) but granted absolution.

I wish I had gone sooner.

I am glad you told FEELING GUILTY to go to a priest and confess. If she follows your advice, she will feel like a new person.

Dr. Lamb

by lawrence lamb m.d.

DEAR DR. LAMB — On several examinations I had a low white count around 3,300. I saw a specialist in hematology and had all kinds of tests done including a test of my liver, spleen and my bone marrow. These were all normal and my bone marrow showed plenty of cells. My last white count was normal.

The doctor said he felt that it was probably normal for me to fluctuate but I should probably be checked every two or three months.

Since a year and a half elapsed between my first test and the second low test, I wonder if it is really necessary for me to have tests that often. I was scared at the time I asked the doctor about it. Also, is it necessary for me to see a specialist in hematology or could my own internist manage the problem?

DEAR READER — Low white cell counts are rather interesting. The blood test that is commonly done on everybody to determine their white count is similar to looking at the tip of the iceberg. There are 20 times as many white cells inside the bone marrow that are fully matured and ready to be released when needed. Not only that, a large number of white cells ooze out of the circulation into the tissue spaces. There are probably 20 times as many white cells outside your blood vessel in between your various cells as there are inside the circulating blood.

You really can't assess whether a person has a diseased number of white cells or not on the basis of the average blood test. That's why it was necessary to study your bone marrow.

Your more recent normal white count and your perfectly normal production of white cells by your bone marrow suggests that you don't have a significant problem. More likely, you had a minor variation in distribution of your white cells so that there was a disproportionate ratio of white cells inside your circulation as compared to those that had already passed out into your tissues.

I suspect you have nothing at all to be concerned about but since you were asked to do so, it seems to me that it would be wise for you to check with your family doctor or internist in about three months to see what he would like to do about following your case.

If you do have repeated episodes of low white count, the most important thing to do would be to protect you against infections. A low white count itself really doesn't present symptoms. It just decreases the body's resistance to infections. Then, if you get an infection, that is what causes the symptoms.

There are a variety of reasons for transitory lowering of white blood cell counts, but since you don't have a history of repeated infections and because you have normal marrow, it's most unlikely it would be a serious matter in your case.

Women who knew Jesus

ANNA: not surprising that she opened a door

(Editor's note: Edith Deen is a Fort Worth author of six inspirational books which have sold more than one million copies. This is the second in a series of eight parts from her book 'Wisdom from Women in the Bible'. Reprinted by permission of Harper & Row.)

By Edith Deen

The aged Anna was one of the saints in the Jerusalem Temple. She was familiar no doubt with Isaiah's prophecy that the redeemer of Israel would come, that his life would be regarded as a tragic failure but that his death would be seen by God as a glorious success.

From the moment the child Jesus was brought into the Temple by his parents, Anna recognized him as the redeemer of whom Isaiah had spoken.

The devout Anna was prepared for her exalting role, for she fasted night and day and gave thanks to God for sending this child.

Anna, who lived for others, typified the Jerusalem

Temple woman at her noblest. She was one of those rare beings who finds her main reason for existence in praising God.

Anna probably lived in the Temple after she became a widow. If she did not live there, she spent more time there than anywhere else. She hid there in times of trouble, sang to God there in times of joy.

It is not surprising that Anna was the first to declare Christ as the long-awaited redeemer of her people. She had opened a door for Christ's New Testament church to come.

Anna makes us certain that devout women have a heritage in religion "to regain, develop and carry forward," as stated so well by Margaret Brackenbury Crook in her 1964 book, "Women and Religion."

Mrs. Crook, who has taught Old Testament studies at universities in the United States and abroad, is well prepared to speak on women's innate life-conserving capacities and intuitive insights to meet the needs of religion today.

She tells us: "The Universe has outrun our computations. We are being invited to move to new experiences and new attempts at definition of God's part and our own. We stand at the opening of a new era in religion.

"We have to win our emancipation from bondage to ancient concepts without losing our sense of being at home in the universe. ... This, too, is part of our heritage. Although our predecessors were naive about it, they were wholeheartedly at home in the universe as they knew it.

"God has not changed since the early Temple experience of Anna, but we have changed. And we must be willing to share in molding the spiritual life of our time, for women and men bear the same responsibility.

"Our service may seem infinitesimal, like the ripple of a tiny rock thrown into a deep sea, but that ripple can reach a wave and wash into a breaker."

MAKING PLANS for the Pampa High School Concert Choir to travel to Oklahoma City on April 6 to sing at the 18th annual Western Heritage Awards program, are Marsi Thompson, director of public relations for the National Cowboy Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center, and John Woickowski, choir director. The Western Heritage awards program was begun in 1961 to honor outstanding quality in film, television, literature and music, and to encourage the creating and telling of stories of the American West with authenticity and quality. Among the many celebrities who will be present are Gregory Peck and Hoot Gibson, who will be inducted to the Great Western Motion Pictures Hall of Fame. Awards in the television fictional category will be made to 'Centennial' and 'Stubby Pringle's Christmas'. This will be an all expense paid trip for the concert choir, who were recommended to the board of directors by Nona Payne. (Pampa News Photo by June Alexander)

Computer test helps detect infant hearing problems

VISALIA, Calif. (AP) — A computer built by volunteers tests sleeping infants here to insure they won't spend a life isolated by deafness.

Dr. Philip Peltzman, the program's creator, hopes it will help in early diagnosis of deafness since an infant's auditory system is almost fully developed at birth. It is believed a language code is developed between 8 and 12 months after birth.

"Deafness is the most devastating of all handicaps," says Dan Patterson of Atlanta, national director of the Infant Hearing Assessment Program.

"Hearing is a basic sensory learning tool. If a baby cannot hear, it has probably missed the opportunity to acquire language instinctively," Patterson said after studying the system at Visalia's Kaweah-Delta hospital, one of just three pilot programs in the nation. The others are at hospitals in Southern California and the San Francisco Bay Area.

"Nationwide, we have just been letting deaf children slip through our fingers," says Peltzman, a researcher at the University of California, San Francisco.

Peltzman's "minicomputer" was designed by a Pacific Telephone Co. engineer, refined by Bell Laboratories' volunteers and built by the Telephone Pioneers, a club of retired telephone-company employees.

Kaweah-Delta was chosen for one of the tests because of its neonatal-care unit, its rural population in Central California, high birth rate and enthusiasm of the local Sierra-Pacific Telephone Pioneers.

The testing process begins when babies leave the hospital. Their parents are given questionnaires pertaining to family history of deafness or hearing impairment, infant responses to certain audio stimuli, whether the mother underwent long hours of labor or had to be assisted in delivering the child or had German measles while pregnant.

The cards are returned to the hospital every four months until the baby is 1 year old.

Trained volunteers assess the questionnaires, and the family physician is notified if any indicate a baby may have a tendency toward a hearing impairment.

This coming year, conditions could arise to force you to weed out those things in your life which are nonproductive. You'll establish new goals that will have more value.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be extra careful who you allow to get into your pocketbook today. Someone looking out only for his own interest is eyeing you. Getting along with other signs is one of the sections you'll enjoy in your new Astro-Graph Letter. Get yours by mailing $1 for each to Astro-Graph, P. O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Again today a give-and-take attitude must be adopted in order to get along with others. Those you encounter might have many contrary views.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You run the risk of making errors at work today because your mind is not on what you're doing. Pay extra attention to things you deem important.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) What you hear concerning a friend today may not be the truth. Someone could be trying to manipulate your thinking. Check the facts.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be sure you're right and can prove it when dealing with authority figures today. You won't get away with excuses, alibis or rationalizations.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your brain power is operating on low voltage today so before signing anything, have someone else interpret what you're signing.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Examine all merchandise carefully before you buy and recheck the figures to make certain they add up correctly. You're prone to making financial mistakes today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Normally you always try to see another's point of view and attempt to adjust to it, but this may not be true of you today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Disagreeable co-workers could make things uncomfortable for you today. Don't fight them out of pride; be the bigger person and walk away.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Gossiping is beneath you. Put a stop to the scuttlebutt, no matter how juicy it seems. Remember, there are two sides to every story.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Consider the source before you allow others to undermine your accomplishments or what you are attempting to do. Determine if they're qualified to criticize.

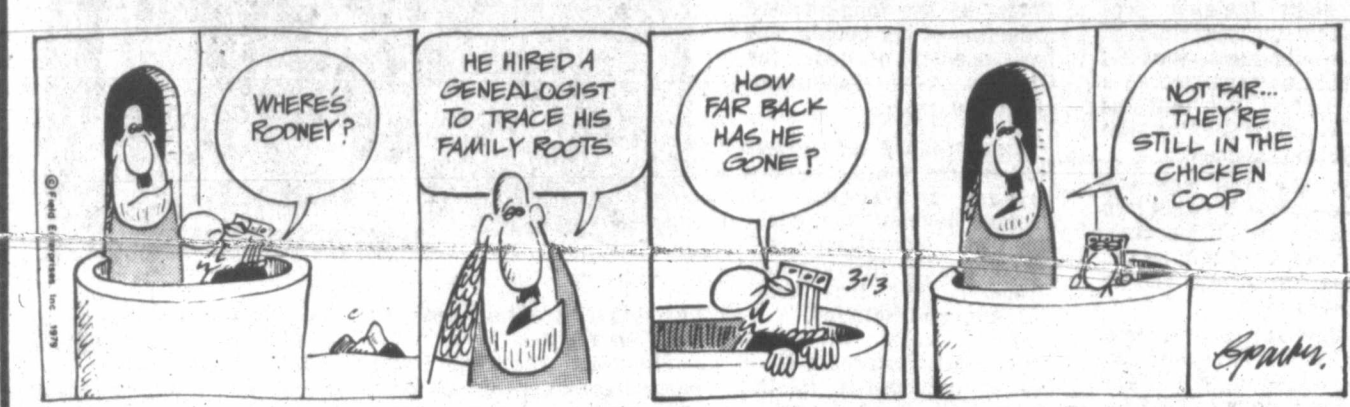

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Some valuable information will go over your head today if you do more talking than listening. Be attentive.

Bulldog rally passes Harvesters, 4-3

By JOE BLOBAUM
Pampa News Sports Editor
BORGES — Wayne Wheeler helped dig Borges into a 3-1 hole here Monday afternoon, but the Bulldog second baseman came back with two key hits to bury the Pampa Harvesters for the first time this season, 4-3.

A pair of Wheeler errors in the third inning allowed the Harvesters their third — and last — run of the game. He made up for it in the fifth and sixth with a pair of bases-loaded singles to produce the Bulldogs' lying and winning tallies.

Tim Sessions, meanwhile, stymied the Harvester bats after the second frame on a steady diet of curveballs. Keeping the ball down in the strike zone, he gave coach Steve Scott's hitters a lesson in control pitching and forced Pampa into ground outs and pop flies after the Harvesters started like gangbusters.

McDougall scored when Borges third baseman Gordon Laverty committed the first of five Bulldog errors on Rick Dougherty's grounder. Mark Jennings tallied Pampa's final run of the afternoon on Wheeler's two third-inning miscues, but that was it for the Pampa bats. Only three singles followed Pampa's two extra-base hits in the first inning, and Sessions didn't walk a batter.

Sessions retired 11 consecutive Harvesters from the end of the fourth to the beginning of the seventh inning. He didn't do it with an overpowering fastball, either.

"Tim doesn't throw real hard, but he throws strikes," according to Borges coach Ray Murphee. And you can be pretty tough in high school ball if you can do that."

While errors led to two of Pampa's runs, it was a pair of Harvester miscues in the fifth and sixth that led to the Bulldogs' victory.

Mark Jennings mishandled

junior crashing into the wall. But the error bug hadn't left the Harvesters. With two out and Mike Engel on base with a single, Greg Quarles threw an easy out on Brett Foster's grounder just over the glove of first baseman Mickey Bynum.

Keener walked to load the bases and Wheeler shot a sharp grounder between third and shortstop. Joe Jeffers made a diving effort to cut the ball off, but had nowhere to throw it once he snared it.

"The errors late in the game

hurt us," Scott said. "They were both routine plays, and you have to make that kind."

Pampa came up with a mild threat in the seventh as pinch-hitter Keenan Henderson singled and McDougall reached base on an error. But Jennings became Sessions' fourth strikeout victim to end the game.

"I was real disappointed," Scott noted after the game. "We weren't mentally ready to play. We need things like that to happen to us to wake us up."

"We did a poor job of getting mentally ready to play. But we will. We'll get a few days practice under us and get Henderson and Wuest back in the lineup (both have been out with injuries) and we'll be all right."

Now 5-1 on the year, Pampa will take that mark to the Hereford Tournament Thursday afternoon, when they'll play Levelland in the first round.

Secretary of State George Strake commenting that Campbell has given Texans an "extra abundance" of pride.

Strake, a native of Houston who said he had suffered through poor Oiler seasons, represented Gov. Bill Clements, who was in Washington. Strake said Campbell had developed a "harmonious relationship" with his teammates and had united Houstonians and Texans.

Campbell, who was chosen as the player of the year in pro football, said he owes it not only to Tyler and Austin but to America to conduct himself "as a young man should."

Campbell was an all-state high school player at Tyler before becoming an All-American and Heisman winner at Texas.

Senators adopted a resolution congratulating Campbell "for his extraordinary achievements on the football field."

Aggies advance to NIT quarter-final

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer
While six teams waited to see which clubs would draw byes into the National Invitation Tournament semifinals, six other clubs said their goodbyes to college basketball for the season.

Tournament officials were to gather in New York this morning to decide the dates, locations and matchups of the four teams which will play quarter-final contests later this week.

Two squads from among Old Dominion, Alabama, Indiana, Ohio State, Purdue and Texas A&M, were to obtain byes into the semifinals.

Old Dominion dropped Clemson 61-59 in double overtime. Ohio State topped Maryland 79-72 and Alabama trimmed Virginia 90-88 in NIT action Monday. Meanwhile, Indiana beat Alcorn State 73-69 to hand the mini-power its first loss of the year. Purdue beat Dayton 84-70, and Texas A&M trimmed Nevada-Reno 67-64.

"I'm not going to say the ACC is better or that the Big Ten is better than us," said Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell after the Buckeyes got 23 points from Kelvin Ransey to finish the Terrapins.

"No matter what I say, they're going to continue to say they have the best league in the country and in the Big Ten will say we're the best," offered Ohio State Coach Eldon Miller.

Alcorn State, which had won 28 straight, fell to Indiana after staging a late rally. The Hoosiers got 19 points from forward Mike Woodson, but the Braves battled within two points with 20 seconds remaining before two free throws by Indiana's Randy Wittman insured the outcome.

"Despite the loss, we proved our point that we are a good basketball team," said Alcorn Coach

Dave Whitney. "We paid our dues this year to receive respect and recognition. We'll be better prepared to come back next year."

They don't have far to go, according to Hoosiers Coach Bobby Knight.

"We had a couple of chances to break it open and they wouldn't let us," said Knight. "You just don't beat a team like that very easily."

Larry Smith scored 18 points for Alcorn's Braves.

Clemson went scoreless for nearly the last 14 minutes of its double overtime loss to Old Dominion. The Tigers took the lead 59-53 with 3:49 left in regulation and controlled the ball for all but two seconds of overtime.

Then Clemson's Larry Nance fouled Bobby Hainthcock, the reserve forward made both his shots, and the Monarchs had their victory.

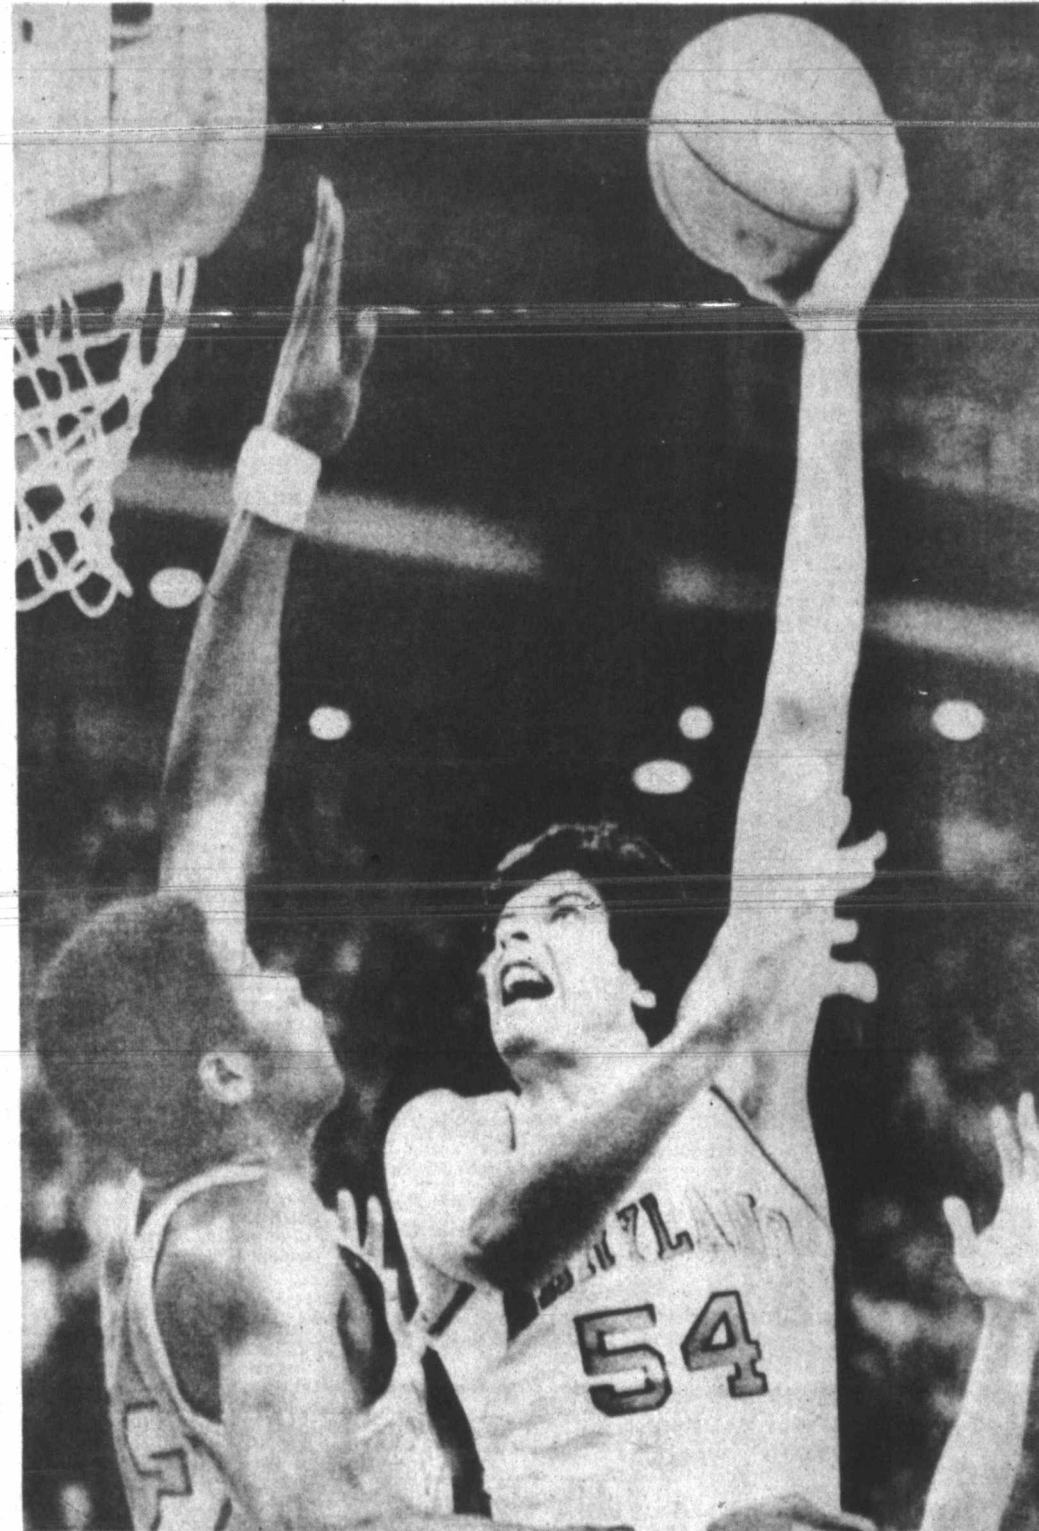

Tigers Coach Bill Foster, who ordered the slowdown offense which took just one shot in each overtime, was unavailable after the game.

Alabama's Reginald King ignored a stomach virus to score 43 points and grab 12 rebounds, powering the Crimson Tide past the Cavaliers.

"My head was spinning and hurting and I was having dizzy spells," said the 6-foot-6, 225-pound junior. "But when the first two shots fell, I forgot all about feeling bad."

"I'm going to find out what it was that was bothering him and get him to keep it," said Alabama Coach C.M. Newton.

Purdue's Boilermakers, with five players scoring in double figures, pulled in front of Dayton for good just 5:46 into the contest. Junior center Joe Barry Carroll scored 25 points for Purdue while Jim Paxson had 18 for the Flyers.

Texas lawmakers salute Tyler Rose

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The placing of two rose bushes on each senator's desk signaled the start of legislative ceremonies honoring Houston Oiler rookie running back Earl Campbell — the "Tyler Rose."

Monday was "Earl Campbell Day," and the former University of Texas Heisman Trophy winner, who became an instant star in pro football, made a brief appearance in the Senate.

But his mother stood in for him in the House. Rep. Bill Clark, D-Tyler, said he had a message that Campbell had been detained and would not speak.

An Austin legislator later said the shy football star simply did not want to make another speech after his appearance in the Senate.

Hundreds of Tyler residents, as well as legislators, paid tribute to Campbell, with

Stewart captures roping event

HEREFORD — Lena Stewart of Pampa took first place in breakaway roping competition at a Tri-State High School Rodeo Association event here over the weekend.

Stewart was timed in 3.007 seconds to take first place over Jana Thompson of Dumas, who had a 3.549-second clocking.

Stewart also grabbed a fifth place finish in goat tying with a 13.979-second performance. Jo Linda Lowrey, also of Pampa, took third in the event in 13.299 seconds.

Slim Couch of Dumas and Halee Reed of Spearman won the All-Around Cowboy and Cowgirl titles. The next Tri-State rodeo is set for March 17-18 in McLean.

This coming year, conditions could arise to force you to weed out those things in your life which are nonproductive. You'll establish new goals that will have more value.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be extra careful who you allow to get into your pocketbook today. Someone looking out only for his own interest is eyeing you. Getting along with other signs is one of the sections you'll enjoy in your new Astro-Graph Letter. Get yours by mailing $1 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Again today a give-and-take attitude must be adopted in order to get along with others. Those you encounter might have many contrary views.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You run the risk of making errors at work today because your mind is not on what you're doing. Pay extra attention to things you deem important.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) What you hear concerning a friend today may not be the truth. Someone could be trying to manipulate your thinking. Check the facts.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be sure you're right and can prove it when dealing with authority figures today. You won't get away with excuses, alibis or rationalizations.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your brain power is operating at low voltage today so before signing anything, have someone else interpret what you're signing.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Examine all merchandise carefully before you buy and recheck the figures to make certain they add up correctly. You're prone to making financial mistakes today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Normally you always try to see another's point of view and attempt to adjust to it, but this may not be true of you today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Disagreeable co-workers could make things uncomfortable for you today. Don't fight them out of pride; be the bigger person and walk away.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Gossiping is beneath you. Put a stop to the scuttlebutt, no matter how juicy it seems. Remember, there are two sides to every story.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Consider the source before you allow others to undermine your accomplishments or what you are attempting to do. Determine if they're qualified to criticize.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Some valuable information will go over your head today if you do more talking than listening. Be attentive.

Bulldog rally passes Harvesters, 4-3

By JOE BLOBAUM
Pampa News Sports Editor
BORGES — Wayne Wheeler helped dig Borges into a 3-1 hole here Monday afternoon, but the Bulldog second baseman came back with two key hits to bury the Pampa Harvesters for the first time this season, 4-3.

A pair of Wheeler errors in the third inning allowed the Harvesters their third — and last — run of the game. He made up for it in the fifth and sixth with a pair of bases-loaded singles to produce the Bulldogs' tying and winning tallies.

Tim Sessions, meanwhile, stymied the Harvester bats after the second frame on a steady diet of curveballs. Keeping the ball down in the strike zone, he gave coach Steve Scott's hitters a lesson in control pitching and forced Pampa into ground outs and pop flies after the Harvesters started like gangbusters.

McDougall scored when Borges third baseman Gordon Laverty committed the first of five Bulldog errors on Rick Dougherty's grounder. Mark Jennings tallied Pampa's final run of the afternoon on Wheeler's two third-inning miscues, but that was it for the Pampa bats. Only three singles followed Pampa's two extra-base hits in the first inning, and Sessions didn't walk a batter.

Sessions retired 11 consecutive Harvesters from the end of the fourth to the beginning of the seventh inning. He didn't do it with an overpowering fastball, either.

"Tim doesn't throw real hard, but he throws strikes," according to Borges coach Ray Murphee. "And you can be pretty tough in high school ball if you can do that."

While errors led to two of Pampa's runs, it was a pair of Harvester miscues in the fifth and sixth that led to the Bulldogs' victory.

Mark Jennings mishandled

Mike Engel's ground ball to start the Bulldog ball rolling in the fifth. Brett Foster followed with a single, and designated hitter Lynn Keener laid down a perfect bunt to load the bases.

Enter Wheeler, who singled up the middle to tie the game. Pampa hurler Julian Clark, who absorbed the first loss on the Harvester pitching staff's record, escaped further damage thanks to a catch in deep left by Greg Koch and Brett Atchley's third-out effort in right field that wound up with the Harvester junior crashing into the wall. But the error bug hadn't left the Harvesters. With two out and Mike Engel on base with a single, Greg Quarles threw an easy out on Brett Foster's grounder just over the glove of first baseman Mickey Bynum.

Keener walked to load the bases and Wheeler shot a sharp grounder between third and shortstop. Joe Jeffers made a diving effort to cut the ball off, but had nowhere to throw it once he snared it.

"The errors late in the game

hurt us," Scott said. "They were both routine plays, and you have to make that kind."

Pampa came up with a mild threat in the seventh as pinch-hitter Keenan Henderson singled and McDougall reached base on an error. But Jennings became Sessions' fourth strikeout victim to end the game.

"I was real disappointed," Scott noted after the game. "We weren't mentally ready to play. We need things like that to happen to us to wake us up."

"We did a poor job of getting mentally ready to play. But we will. We'll get a few days practice under us and get Henderson and West back in the lineup (both have been out with injuries) and we'll be all right."

"Shoot, you can't expect to go through the season without getting beat," he added.

Now 5-1 on the year, Pampa will take that mark to the Hereford Tournament Thursday afternoon, when they'll play Levelland in the first round.

Aggies advance to NIT quarter-final

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer
While six teams waited to see which clubs would draw byes into the National Invitation Tournament semifinals, six other clubs said their goodbyes to college basketball for the season.

Tournament officials were to gather in New York this morning to decide the dates, locations and matchups of the four teams which will play quarter-final contests later this week.

Two squads from among Old Dominion, Alabama, Indiana, Ohio State, Purdue and Texas A&M, were to obtain byes into the semifinals.

Old Dominion dropped Clemson 61-59 in double overtime. Ohio State topped Maryland 79-72 and Alabama trimmed Virginia 90-88 in NIT action Monday. Meanwhile, Indiana beat Alcorn State 73-69 to hand the mini-power its first loss of the year. Purdue beat Dayton 84-70, and Texas A&M trimmed Nevada-Reno 67-64.

"I'm not going to say the ACC is better or that the Big Ten is better than us," said Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell after the Buckeyes got 23 points from Kelvin Ransey to finish the Terrapins.

"No matter what I say, they're going to continue to say they have the best league in the country and we in the Big Ten will say we're the best," offered Ohio State Coach Eldon Miller.

Alcorn State, which had won 28 straight, fell to Indiana after staging a late rally. The Hoosiers got 19 points from forward Mike Woodson, but the Braves battled within two points with 20 seconds remaining before two free throws by Indiana's Randy Wittman insured the outcome.

"Despite the loss, we proved our point that we are a good basketball team," said Alcorn Coach

Dave Whitney. "We paid our dues this year to receive respect and recognition. We'll be better prepared to come back next year."

They don't have far to go, according to Hoosiers Coach Bobby Knight.

"We had a couple of chances to break it open and they wouldn't let us," said Knight. "You just don't beat a team like that very easily."

Larry Smith scored 18 points for Alcorn's Braves.

Clemson went scoreless for nearly the last 14 minutes of its double overtime loss to Old Dominion. The Tigers took the lead 59-53 with 3:49 left in regulation and controlled the ball for all but two seconds of overtime.

Then Clemson's Larry Nance fouled Bobby Halthcock, the reserve forward made both his shots, and the Monarchs had their victory.

Tigers Coach Bill Foster, who ordered the slowdown offense which took just one shot in each overtime, was unavailable after the game.

Alabama's Reginald King ignored a stomach virus to score 43 points and grab 12 rebounds, powering the Crimson Tide past the Cavaliers.

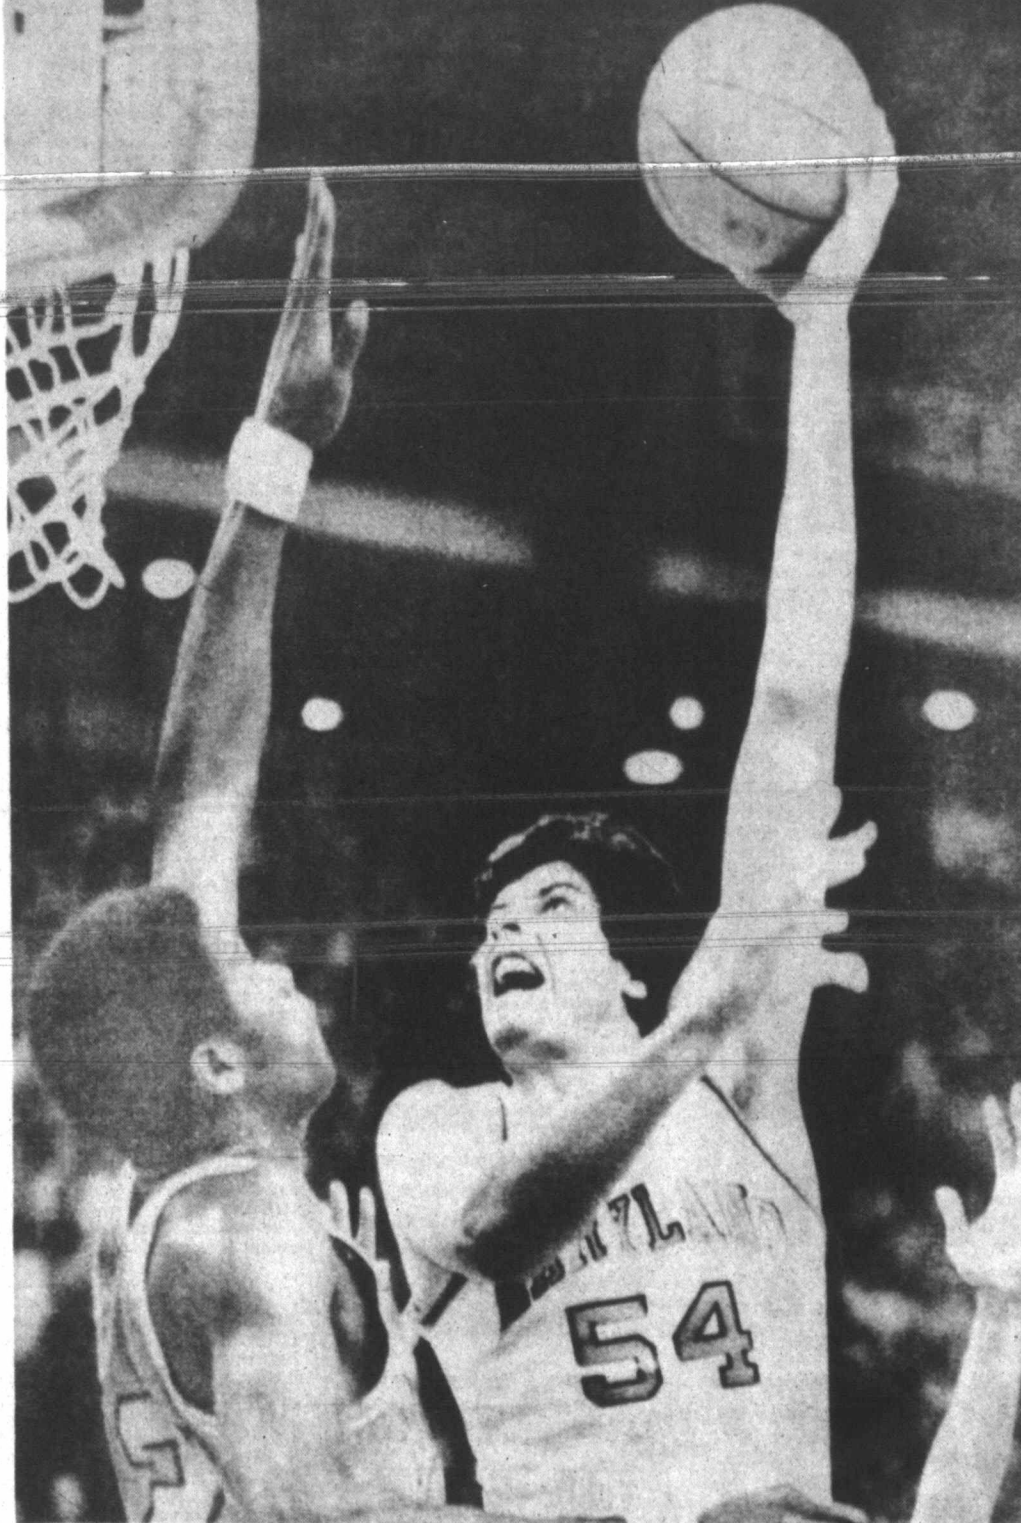

"My head was spinning and hurting and I was having dizzy spells," said the 6-foot-6, 225-pound junior. "But when the first two shots fell, I forgot all about feeling bad."

"I'm going to find out what it was that was bothering him and get him to keep it," said Alabama Coach C.M. Newton.

Purdue's Boilermakers, with five players scoring in double figures, pulled in front of Dayton for good just 5:46 into the contest. Junior center Joe Barry Carroll scored 25 points for Purdue while Jim Paxson had 18 for the Flyers.

Texas lawmakers salute Tyler Rose

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The placing of two rose bushes on each senator's desk signaled the start of legislative ceremonies honoring Houston Oiler rookie running back Earl Campbell — the "Tyler Rose."

Monday was "Earl Campbell Day," and the former University of Texas Heisman Trophy winner, who became an instant star in pro football, made a brief appearance in the Senate.

But his mother stood in for him in the House. Rep. Bill Clark, D-Tyler, said he had a message that Campbell had been detained and would not speak.

An Austin legislator later said the shy football star simply did not want to make another speech after his appearance in the Senate.

Hundreds of Tyler residents, as well as legislators, paid tribute to Campbell, with Secretary of State George Strake commenting that Campbell has given Texans an "extra abundance" of pride.

Strake, a native of Houston who said he had suffered through poor Oiler seasons, represented Gov. Bill Clements, who was in Washington. Strake said Campbell had developed a "harmonious relationship" with his teammates and had united Houstonians and Texans.

Campbell, who was chosen as the player of the year in pro football, said he owes it not only to Tyler and Austin but to America to conduct himself "as a young man should."

Campbell was an all-state high school player at Tyler before becoming an All-American and Heisman winner at Texas.

Senators adopted a resolution congratulating Campbell "for his extraordinary achievements on the football field."

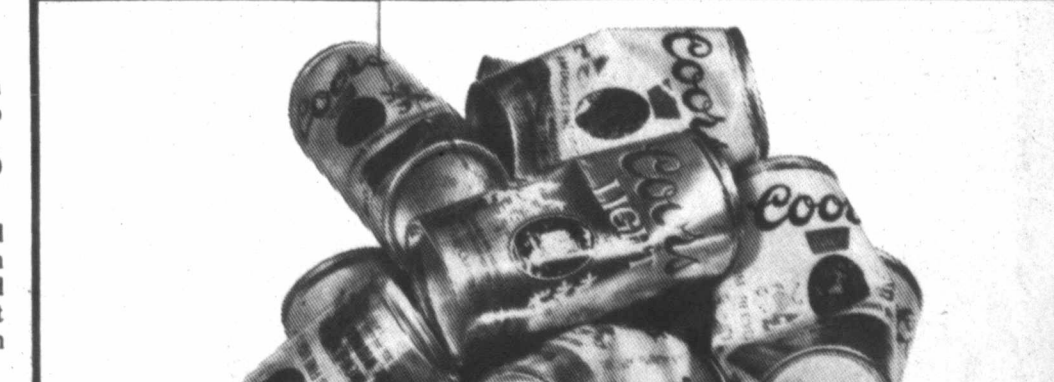

Stewart captures roping event

HEREFORD — Lena Stewart of Pampa took first place in breakaway roping competition at a Tri-State High School Rodeo Association event here over the weekend.

Stewart was timed in 3.007 seconds to take first place over Jana Thompson of Dumas, who had a 3.549-second clocking.

Stewart also grabbed a fifth place finish in goat tying with a 13.979-second performance. Jo Linda Lowrey, also of Pampa, took third in the event in 13.299 seconds.

Slim Couch of Dumas and Halee Reed of Spearman won the All-Around Cowboy and Cowgirl titles. The next Tri-State rodeo is set for March 17-18 in McLean.
