Treaty approved

By ARTHUR MAX
Associated Press Writer
JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel's Parliament gave its landslide endorsement to the peace treaty with Egypt early today, clearing the way for Prime Minister Menachem Begin and President Anwar Sadat to sign the historic pact on Monday in Washington.

Capping an often-chaotic 28-hour debate, the 120-member Knesset voted 95-18 in favor of the treaty that will end the 30-year state of war with Egypt. Israel's most populous Arab foe, return the Sinai Peninsula, captured from Egypt in 1967, and pave the way for limited Palestinian autonomy on the West Bank of the Jordan River and in the Gaza Strip.

Most of those voting against the treaty were nationalists, many from Begin's own Likud Party, who oppose the return of the Sinai and the creation of a Palestinian council to govern the West Bank and Gaza. The tiny pro-Soviet Communist Party also opposed the pact, claiming it did not go far enough toward Palestinian independence.

Two deputies abstained, three others voted "present," and two were absent. Begin, grinning, told reporters the vote was "the largest majority the Knesset has ever given on a political issue."

President Carter sent congratulations saying, "Israel's Knesset spoke with a voice heard around the world — a voice for peace."

A few hours after the vote, Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan left for Washington to wrap up negotiations on a memorandum of understanding between Israel and the United States.

"The question is, would the U.S. assume the responsibility and take measures in case of the parties would not honor the agreement," Dayan told reporters as he left.

He said Defense Minister Ezer Weizman would follow him on Friday to negotiate the remaining dispute between Israel and Egypt — a timetable for giving up the offshore oil wells the Israelis developed in the Gulf of Suez off the Sinai coast.

Israeli officials have repeatedly said the oil issue is unlikely to hold up the treaty signing, but the Jerusalem Post reported the issue is proving difficult. It said Israel wants to keep pumping oil from the wells until it begins its pullout from Sinai nine months after the treaty is signed. Egypt wants the pumps stopped immediately and has asked Israel to hand over the field in six months, the Post said.

Begin stepped to the Knesset's rosewood rostrum shortly before 4 a.m. — 9 p.m. EST — to deliver a speech concluding the emotional debate.

"There is joy that we have reached this day," he said. "There is worry for the future. There is trembling in our hearts — it is perfectly natural."

"With all this, there is recognition that we have reached a certain turning point. All of us together want to achieve that goal, there is none more simple or more humanitarian. Shalom — Peace."

Begin proposed that he and Sadat shuttle between Cairo and Jerusalem on Monday, April 2 to sign Hebrew and Arabic treaty texts. Asked why he chose that day, Begin quipped, "Because Sunday is April Fool's Day." He said he would take up his proposal with Sadat in Washington.

Hunting rabbits now Davis judge resigns

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Enraged by what he called "arbitrary actions" of a "wet-eared fool prosecutor," the presiding judge in the long and bitter Cullen Davis divorce case has called it quits and gone home to hunt rabbits.

District Judge John Barron said Wednesday he would withdraw from the case and declare a mistrial after five weeks of tedious testimony. Barron left Fort Worth this morning to return to his home in Bryan, but there were no official court actions filed concerning the divorce trial.

Barron could not be reached for comment this morning. Prosecutors Jack Strickland and John Bankston appeared in Barron's chambers Wednesday about 1 p.m. with a grand jury subpoena for all the records of the divorce trial. The records were to have been presented to a special session of the Tarrant County grand jury Wednesday afternoon and returned this morning.

"I've never been treated as a judge in this way before by an arrogant DA, which Strickland is in the purest sense of the word," said Barron in an interview with KDFW-TV in Dallas.

"I'm withdrawing from the case and will declare a mistrial after five weeks of trial due to the calumny and arrogance and arbitrary actions in embarrassing me and my court by a wet-eared fool prosecutor having no respect for anyone," said Barron.

"I'm not going to put up with this. I'll go back to Bryan and hunt rabbits."

The judge said Strickland "insulted everyone connected with his court including Mr. Cecil Munn, Mr. (Donni) Fullenweider, Mr. (Ronald) Aultman and myself."

Munn and Fullenweider are Davis' lawyers, and Aultman is Mrs. Davis' attorney.

The judge said lawyers for both Davis and his estranged wife, Priscilla, objected to turning over evidence.

"He could have handled it with some dignity, but he didn't do it. He could have worked it out with me real well. That after I'd made a decision in the case I'd have given him the full record. He comes up here and kicks us around just like we're a bunch of dogs," said Barron.

Strickland said he did not believe he acted illegally or unethically in securing the documents. "In my opinion, I certainly treated the judge will all due respect," said Strickland.

"Fortunately, the proceedings this afternoon were all taken down by the court reporter and another representative of the district attorney's office was there. I think the transcript will speak for itself."

Strickland also said he was shocked at the way Barron chose to air his differences. He said he has no interest in engaging in name-calling or finger-pointing with the judge.

Judge Barron said it was unprecedented for prosecutors to subpoena all records of an on-going divorce trial.

"It's the first time in my life, in the history of the judicial system that I've ever seen anything like this," said Barron.

Good afternoon

News in brief

Today's forecast calls for mostly fair weather through Friday. Highs today will be in the upper 50s, with the low tonight in the mid 30s. Winds will be out of the west and northwest this afternoon at 15 to 25 mph, becoming gusty tonight. Wind warnings are in effect on area lakes.

Commissioners to meet Friday

The Gray County Commissioners Court will meet in special session 9:30 a.m. Friday to review payment of bills for Highland General Hospital as approved by the county auditor. The court will also consider a hospital request for payment and approval of indigent care provided at Highland General.

The court will also discuss a proposed bill which would provide for a state water import authority to negotiate with surrounding states for the importation of water into West Texas.

Bike rider struck by car

A Pampa boy riding a bicycle was involved in a hit-and-run incident Wednesday evening.

Tom Ed Johnson, 11, was crossing the street in the 300 block of S. Cuyler on his bicycle at about 5:30 p.m. Wednesday when he was struck by a southbound car. Tom was reportedly knocked to the ground, and his left arm was injured. The car didn't stop.

The incident was reported to police by the boy's grandmother, Joyce Maynard of 1100 Neel Road.

Marine on way home

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A Marine who was captured by the Viet Cong in 1965 and stayed in Vietnam for more than 13 years after his release was flown to Thailand today en route to the United States.

Pfc. Robert Russell Garwood, 33, of Greensburg, Ind., refused to talk to reporters on arrival at Bangkok airport on a regularly scheduled Air France flight from Ho Chi Minh City, formerly Saigon.

Garwood, thin and about six feet tall, wore a pair of sunglasses and had a flower in the buttonhole of his casual sports shirt.

Smith running to finish work

A member of the school board's Long Range Planning Committee will run again in hopes of completing his work in the curriculum.

Alfred J. Smith has been on the school board 3 years, holding Place 4, and has served on the committee since it began.

The committee researches the needs of the community and sets up a priority list, which the board uses to decide where taxpayers' money should be spent.

The committee, he said, has adopted the doctrine of teaching the basics, emphasizing math, reading and the sciences.

He said that the expansion of the program for advanced students tries to insure that they can develop themselves fully.

He said that he wants to finish the overall review of the curriculum, started by the committee.

The committee has started to repair and remodel the facilities in the district. Repair of the windows and bathrooms at the schools has been a major concern.

A preventative maintenance program is being reviewed by the committee, he said.

The program would try to avoid major renovation jobs by keeping facilities maintained, he said.

The board is now reviewing a renovation project of the high school auditorium and art room, which were given low priority ratings by the committee.

Smith said the low interest in the drama program substantiates the rating. The board will choose to continue the drama program, renovate the auditorium, rent the facilities of M.K. Brown or use the Middle School Auditorium - options left by the committee.

Not many of the men on the board are in business for themselves, he said. Smith is the Manager of the Engineering Division of Cabot.

"School is a business in a sense," he said, and it seems "would need knowledgeable men in the area."

He said that the board has to deal with legal ramifications and the business of educating the children.

Smith will be challenged by Carolyn Winningham, a music and motor development teacher at St. Matthews Day Care Center. Curt Beck, the incumbent of Place 5, will run uncontested.

Carter won't set target for corporation profits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration's concern over a big jump in corporate profits in the final three months of 1978 will not prompt it to set an overall target for corporate earnings, a spokesman says.

Jody Powell, the White House press secretary, said Wednesday the administration is worried that a 26.4 percent rise in corporate profits in the fourth quarter of 1977, compared with the fourth quarter of 1977, will undermine support for President Carter's wage and price guideline program.

But he said the administration does not want to try to tell corporations what level of earnings would be appropriate.

Powell appeared to be turning aside a suggestion from AFL-CIO President George Meany that the government tax "excessive profits" of businesses to help keep prices under control. The union chief said the fourth quarter increase in profits was "the grossest demonstration of profit-gouging since the opening days of the Korean War."

"Unless there are effective and enforceable controls on prices and profits, workers cannot be expected to seek wage increases that do not catch up with lost buying power and maintain their families' standard of living," Meany said in a statement.

The Associated Press erroneously reported Tuesday that overall profits for 1978 were up by 26.4 percent during 1978. The actual increase for the year was 16.2 percent.

The increase of 26.4 percent was the difference between the pre-tax fourth quarter profits in 1978 of $225.3 billion, computed at an annual rate, and fourth quarter profits in 1977 of $178.3 billion, also expressed as a projected annual rate.

An annual rate is the figure that would result if the profits during the fourth quarter continued at the same level for an entire year.

Actual 1978 profits, taking into account all four quarters of the year, were $202.1 billion, an increase of 16.2 percent over 1977 profits of $173.9 billion.

Profits in the fourth quarter of 1978 were up 9.6 percent from the third quarter.

In other developments Wednesday — The trucking industry offered the Teamsters union a wage increase that would fall within Carter's 7 percent guidelines but is about half the union demand. The offer brought a muted public reaction from Teamsters President Frank E. Fitzsimmons, but privately union bargainers were said to be angry.

Preaching cook sees culinary decline

By JOHN PRICE
Pampa News Staff

To the Rev. Paul Slater, cooking means more than just preparing food.

"When I talk about food and old-fashioned cooking, I'm talking about an old-fashioned philosophy," Slater says. It is a philosophy he is trying to impart to a generation raised on fast food and t.v. dinners.

Slater, an evangelist from Mt. Pleasant, Penn., has won more than 5,000 awards in cooking and canning since he began helping his grandmother cook at the age of seven. He has appeared on radio and television, and writes a syndicated column.

Slater is in Pampa to lead nightly revivals through Sunday at the Bethel Assembly of God. He stopped by the News office Tuesday afternoon to discuss his old-fashioned philosophy.

The Pentecostal minister believes the decline of culinary skills in the U.S. is representative of an overall decline in the American way of life.

"I think our moral fiber in America has been degenerating for years," Slater said. "We've let promiscuous topics take over a lot of our society."

"I also think the wife and the job of being a mother has diminished. We've gone away from the old-fashioned family-type meal, with discussions around the dinner table, to fast foods. That's unhealthy, not only to our diets."

"Women need to be educated on their role as a wives and mothers."

Slater concedes that not all women want to be housewives. "There are career people. But I've found career people are often more interested in cooking than the family people, who have it as their responsibility!"

"More people are finding cooking and housework as a drudgery, instead of a joy. And it should be a joy."

His cooking experience, Slater said, has also been old-fashioned — "no gimmicks." He recalls that when the first electric oven came out, "we weren't too happy about it."

Likewise, he said, a few years ago he dismissed microwave ovens as a fad. But when eating dinner one night with a preacher and the preacher's wife, he complimented her on her tasty roast. She told him it had been cooked in a microwave.

"I nearly fell out of my chair," he said. "I got hooked on it and bought one for my trailer. As a preacher, I appreciate the microwave because it gives people more time to pray and be with their families."

Slater, his wife and two teenage daughters live and travel 48 weeks a year in their trailer home. They came to Pampa after two weeks in Friona, where, in addition to a revival, Slater conducted a cooking seminar and gave cooking demonstrations to high school home economics classes.

"Young people don't even have any enthusiasm for cooking these days," he said. "But I showed them how to make Texas chili in a microwave oven in 14 minutes."

That wowed the high school students so much, Slater said, that they all went home and raved to their mothers about it. The mothers then flocked to his seminar.

The old-fashioned cook said he often "catches flak" for his views on health food.

"We need health food because we have not taken the time to prepare our food with wisdom," Slater said. "If we would eat a balanced diet, we wouldn't need health food. There's no reason to go out and buy a bunch of supplements. They're the next best thing, but we certainly don't need them."

"I don't use them. My faith is the best pep pill I've found."

Slater became a "born-again" Christian in 1953 in Houston. He went on to help start 19 Southern Baptist churches.

"I'm really a born-again Texan," he said.

Numerous cases of miraculous healing, verified by ordained ministers, have been reported from revivals conducted by Slater. He says the healings are authentic but refuses to take credit for them.

"I don't heal anybody," he said. "I never have. Jesus does all the healing."

Told that his interviewer is a skeptic, Slater nodded his head and said "I used to be a skeptic too. I was anti-Pentecostal. If you'd told me about someone being healed, I'd have said it was a phony." But, he said, his skepticism was erased by tragedy.

"I lost three children in a fire in 1961, when I was a Baptist preacher," he said. "They burned before my eyes and I heard their screams."

"I had a nervous breakdown. Everything I had done had failed. I tried to commit suicide and was even a failure at that.

The gun went off and didn't blow a hole in my head. It blew a hole in the ceiling."

Then one night he prayed and was "filled with the light of God." He spoke in different tongues, Slater said, and "experienced everything I had preached against." That set him on his present course.

Slater said he approves of any religion that makes people happy, but added "I'm not for the cults. They're trying to take people away from their homes and away from their families. I don't believe God does that."

When Gerald Ford was President, he often used football terminology when talking about politics, Slater, even when discussing religion, winds up sounding like a chef.

"There's a recipe for life, and it involves everything," he said. "And it's up to us to mix the right ingredients. I encourage young people today to use the right ingredients."

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

OPINION PAGE

Energy answers are up to us

The Iranians are resuming oil exports, but at greatly increased prices.

What a barrel of oil is worth depends on what someone is willing to pay for it. Kuwait has announced a 9 percent increase on its export price, tacking $1.25 on to the official OPEC price of about $14 a barrel. Kuwait, Iran and some other OPEC partners obviously are pricing their oil at whatever the market will bear.

But what will the market bear? Only the consumers can answer that, and the American people, who stand at the head of the line among the world's energy consumers, need to make some decisions.

We can continue to rely on the Middle East and pay whatever it takes. We were importing 900,000 barrels of Iranian oil per day before the fall of the shah. If we were to replace that oil with imports at $20 a barrel, it would add $6 million a day to our overseas oil bill - an extra $2 billion in a year's time.

Or we can tell the Iranians and others their price is too high. The way to tell them is to reduce demand for oil to the point that there aren't enough buyers for the amount of oil they want to sell. Why aren't we telling them?

The American Gas Association says there is natural gas available to reduce our industrial demand for oil by 700,000 barrels a day - three-fourths of the Iranian imports. But the federal government's pricing policy has made oil - to - gas conversion unprofitable.

Our vaunted coal reserves are remaining mostly underground due to environmental constraints on the mining and use of coal. Controversy over nuclear power has brought growth of that industry almost to a standstill, even though our 65 operating nuclear plants in one month save the equivalent of an entire year's imports of oil from Iran.

Five years after the stark warning of the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo, what we heard from the Energy Department recently was a warning that the Iranian crisis might lead to a need for gasoline rationing or other mandatory fuel - conservation measures. In other words, after five years of fumbling over energy policy we are back where we started.

Americans are profligate energy - users and may need the warning of possible rationing to heighten their awareness of the need to conserve fuel. Perhaps the 10 - cents a gallon increase in gasoline prices expected before the end of the year will help us make the distinction between necessary and superfluous driving.

But our country is also uncommonly rich in energy resources. Given our coal and natural gas, our considerable domestic oil reserves, our nuclear technology and all the other avenues open for harnessing alternative energy sources it is incredible that we are looking at a $20 price tag on barrels of oil that went for $2.50 in 1973 - and we are told we have no choice but to dig into our pockets and pay it.

Joy of pulsating

Not everything that gleams in the night is a distant moon or planetary ring. Back here on earth it could be a jogger.

A brief business item informs that a New Jersey firm is marketing a illuminated body belt. To be strapped over chest and back, it is fitted with battery powered miniature colored lights.

Thus decked out in pulsating lights, joggers out for evening runs are clearly and safely visible in the traffic flow not to mention possible traffic stoppers. The glow belts are also suggested as useful accessories for cyclists, hikers, skaters and disco dancers.

In other words, anyone interested in being literally light on the feet.

Nation's Press

The budget tango

Washington is so nervous about the grass roots pressures for a balanced budget that we can expect to see all sorts of political maneuvers in coming months. Indeed, the maneuvering is well under way.

As we've recorded earlier, congressional leaders have been trying to beat back the state house movement for a constitutional balanced-budget amendment, the states are being threatened with a federal aid cut-off if they persist in this madness.

Then last week, the movement spread to the House of Representatives, in the midst of another in the long-running series of anguished debates over whether the debt ceiling should be raised. (Since there is little choice, it always is.) A group of House insurgents defied the leadership and attempted to insert a resolution in the debt ceiling bill that would attempt to force a balancing of the 1981 budget, or else a two-thirds vote for a deficit, or else no more increases in the debt ceiling.

The resolution probably would have been ruled out of order if it had passed, even though less germane riders to bills have been known to survive. But it would have nonetheless been embarrassing to the leadership. Speaker O'Neill, with some fancy gavel work, managed to get a vote before the measure had a full head of steam. It failed by only two votes.

After this narrow escape, the beleaguered congressional leaders were badly in need of help from somewhere. They got help, of a sort, from the White House.

There was timely announcement from Pennsylvania Avenue that the budget is moving closer to balance on its own, a clear suggestion that congressional resolutions or constitutional amendments are not needed. It seems that while federal spending is rising faster than expected, revenues are too, even faster than spending. Hence, the fiscal 1979 deficit will be only a mere $33 billion rather than the $37 billion predicted earlier.

Why is this happening? Well, the principal reason is inflation. When you have double digit inflation, you raise income tax rates rapidly by moving people into higher brackets and by over-taxing business. So we are marching towards a balanced budget, albeit very slowly, by raising federal taxes at a faster rate.

We're not sure how much help that news will be to Tip O'Neill and company. The taxpayers would quite possibly prefer a different route to fiscal responsibility.

By BERNARD SIEGAN
As cities and towns age, certain areas succumb to blight and decay. The usual remedy has involved heavy doses of government spending and regulation. In the current political environment, such solutions find less acceptance. Government intervention is not very popular, and people are reluctant to sacrifice their hard-earned dollars to advance social programs. Experience has also shown that government attacks on blight have been far from successful.

These conditions need not terminate efforts at urban renewal. Another vehicle for city revitalization is the purely private sector which in Western society remains the primary source of growth and development. If, however, the private solution is to operate at maximum effectiveness, those government rules and regulations that interfere with production and development must be eliminated.

With this in mind, some prominent

Free enterprise zones

British citizens are advocating the suspension in blighted areas of virtually all laws affecting investment and property use and development. This, they contend, will attract private capital to rejuvenate these sectors. A recent issue of Heritage Foundation's international briefing reports contains a paper by British economist Stuart Butler, discussing proposals to this effect presented by conservative Sir Geoffrey Howe and socialist Prof. Peter Hall. The former, the conservative party's spokesman on economic affairs, is widely expected to be chief economics minister should his party win the next general election. Hall is a well known socialist academic with a special interest in urban affairs.

As an experiment, Howe would initially designate four or five depressed inner city areas within which controls would be minimized. The objective is to create the most desirable investment climate so that business would undertake projects that official British agencies have not been able to pursue. Within these zones, a city would be required to sell at auction the land it owned. Howe would eliminate almost all planning controls. If the building use were legal, only basic standards of pollution, health and structural safety would have to be met.

Entrepreneurs moving into a zone might be granted a reduction in their property taxes - even given an exemption for a specified period. The government would guarantee investors that for certain periods, existing tax laws, such as those affecting gains and depreciation, would not be changed to their disadvantage. Ceilings on prices, wages, and rents would be removed. At the same time, no business entering the zone would be eligible for any subsidy, grant or any other form of government assistance. These conditions would remain in effect for a substantial number of years.

Professor Hall's proposal is referred to as the Freeport Solution. Under it, small, selected areas would be freed from national exchange and customs control. All goods could be imported and sold free of duty, and exported, also duty free (perhaps after reprocessing and assembly). Such freeports already exist at the Shannon airport in Ireland and the Canary Islands.

Hall declares these areas "would be based on fairly shameless free enterprise." They could be free of taxes, social services, and industrial and other regulation. Trade Unions would be allowed, but the closed shop would be banned. The professor views the Freeport solution as an "extremely drastic, last ditch solution to urban problems" which should be adopted only on a small - scale in those "inner city areas that are largely abandoned and denied of people, or alternatively areas of very grave social and economic problems."

Supporters of the free zones believe present governmental approaches to urban problems drive off the very people who are most likely to revive depressed areas - the entrepreneurs. This position has raised the fear that the success of such zones would encourage other parts of the country to clamor for similar status, and as a result, government planning would be seriously limited. To this, the Daily Telegraph observed in an editorial, that "whereas competition for development area status means competing for more subsidy and more bureaucratic manipulation, competition for an 'enterprise zone' status would mean competing for the enjoyment of less of both, making freedom infectious. What could be wrong with that?"

These ideas are highly relevant to our own country. The closest approximation to enterprise areas occurs in the non-zoned cities, the largest of which is Houston, Texas. That city undergoes constant development and redevelopment to an extent impossible under zoning restraints. Houston's experience suggests that the enterprise zone concept can be extended to entire municipal areas with benefit; there is no need to confine it to the most severely depressed sections of a city.

Restrictions on land use and development impede the production of housing, commercial and industrial development to the detriment of the average consumer. Allowing the creativity and restraints of freedom and competition to control land use would serve society far better.

Dirty air indoors

by paul harvey

Government and industry have spent $67.4 billion on pollution control in eight years - and it did help.

The EPA announces measurable progress.

Air and water pollution, most everywhere that they're measured, are measurably less.

Sulfur dioxide down 17 percent; carbon dioxide down 20 percent; particulates down 8 percent.

But the government's pollution measuring is all done outdoors.

Indeed, on "high ozone" days health officials have urged you to stay indoors.

Now we are learning that breathing may be more hazardous to your health indoors.

When the Clean Air Act was passed by Congress in 1970, it was hoped that everybody would meet strict government standards by 1975.

Not everybody did. In fact, the EPA now has decided that its antimog objectives were unnecessarily rigid. This year the legally acceptable safe level of particulate pollution has been relaxed by 50 percent.

Now we are told that, 12 parts per million is adequate to protect the public health.

Fewer than 10 percent of the counties in the United States still have smog levels higher than that.

But while our government enforcers were congratulating themselves, evidence was being prepared for the publication, Technology Review, that the air we breathe may be less safe indoors.

Understand, there is no such thing as an "average" person or an "average" house or an "average" anything. Averages are a mathematical fiction. The average American family, for example, consists of a husband and wife and 1.8 children and there is no such family.

But what these researchers have found is that in many or most homes the air inside is less fit to breathe than outside.

Particulate pollution in the atmosphere is less apparent, across the room than across the street - but it is there. It comes from stoves, furnaces and tobacco smoking, face powder, kitchen cleanser.

There is likely a measurable quantity of radioactive radon gas in your home inevitably created by the decay of radium present in rock, soil and building materials.

A single gas stove pilot light can accumulate in your kitchen enough carbon monoxide and nitrogen dioxide to exceed government standards.

The gas burner will thus create enough "pollution," plus other oxides of nitrogen and respirable aerosol to exceed government air - quality standards in less than one hour!

Not only is the air inside many houses and commercial establishments worse than outside, but in our determination to save energy many of us have been very effectively sealing the dirty air in.

So next we can expect a government "indoor air quality index" plus series of federal, state and local ventilation codes.

And a whole new industry to sell you air filters for indoors.

But hold the phone - here is a new study by the Institute for Environmental Sciences at Louisiana State University saying that there may be such a thing as "air that is too clean or water that is too pure."

That murky water and dusty air may be good for you!

Yemen: where and why

There's trouble in Yemen, and it is serious enough to invite limited American participation.

But before we get into that, there's a question which may need answering for anyone to whom this development comes as news: Where's Yemen?

Yemen is actually two countries - a north and a south. (Is this formula for conflict beginning to sound familiar?) Both are located in the barren southwest corner of the Arabian peninsula.

The north, or Yemen proper, is thought to have been home for the biblical Queen of Sheba. Southern Yemen is a considerably more recent arrival in recorded history, but is today the more strategically significant because it controls the narrow straits linking the Red and Arabian seas.

The two Yemens are essentially one people separated by different colonial pasts. The north owed allegiance to Turkey until 1918. Southern Yemen was the British colony of Aden from 1839 until 1967, when it gained a Marxist - oriented independence.

And that essentially explains the current trouble in Yemen. Southern Yemen, supported and supplied militarily by the Soviet Union, is backing a campaign against the conservative government of the north, which is supported and supplied by Saudi Arabia.

And this explains where the United States comes in. With Iran still sending out revolutionary shock waves, Washington is concerned about the possible effects on the Saudis and neighboring Arab states still more or less pro - Western. Southern Yemen is seen as the possible spearhead of a Soviet campaign to undermine conservative regimes throughout the area.

Consequently, the Defense Department has decided to send U.S. personnel to assist the northerners in utilizing U.S. arms, which are already en route. Around the Pentagon, please do not describe the American team as "advisers," a term with uncomfortable connotations of the Vietnamese experience. They are military instructors and the stated intention is to bring them home within less than a year.

It might be sooner if regional efforts to end the conflict succeed. The Arab League has stepped in as mediator, setting up a timetable for disengagement and arranging a meeting in Kuwait March 28 between leaders of north and south to negotiate a cease - fire. On the other hand, if Lebanon is any example of Arab effectiveness in settling Arab quarrels, it could be considerably later.

This isn't the first time in recent years that this parched corner of the world has been a battleground. Gamal Nasser's Egypt waged a lengthy field campaign in the 1960s in support of a leftist effort to overthrow Yemen's royal regime, backed by Saudi Arabia. A compromise ended that costly no - win conflict, the Egyptians withdrew and are today more or less lined up with the Saudis. Several coups and attempts at such followed, with at least two assassinations of northern leaders being attributed to Southern Yemeni agents.

Fighting along the north - south border broke out in February. It quickly drew Washington's attention, concerned comment from Defense Secretary Harold Brown on his Mideast morale - boosting tour and presidential authorization of some $383 million in arms aid for the north. Now the instructors, of whom it is planned to station less than 100 in Yemen itself. Up to twice as many, however, will be just across the border, helping the Saudis train Yemenis in the maintenance of a dozen F-5 fighter planes consigned to Yemen.

The Pentagon has absolutely no (repeat no) intention of allowing the Americans to become involved in actual combat. "These are not guys who will lead a charge up a hill," a spokesman emphasized, "they're not the Green Berets."

Now, about those advisers in Vietnam...

Usury bill expected to pass House

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A bill that would make it less costly for a bank or savings and loan association to get "caught charging a usurious interest rate has won preliminary approval in the House, 89-40.

Final passage, which would send the measure to the Senate, was expected today. Rep. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington, the sponsor, said in Wednesday's debate his bill "removes the present law's fangs and replaces them with teeth." But Rep. Bob Bush, D-Sherman, called it a "relief act for usurious lenders." The bill would allow a debtor to recover three times the amount by which interest exceeded the legal limit of 10 percent, plus refund of interest already paid and forgiveness of future interest. Minimum penalty would be $2,000.

"This should be sufficient safeguard against usurious loans," McFarland said. Present law, passed in 1892, imposes a penalty of twice the total amount of interest contracted for, plus forgiveness of future interest and refund past interest. The bill would apply the new penalties to usury cases pending in court when the bill becomes law if it passes both houses and is signed by Gov. Bill Clements. McFarland said this was necessary because some pending court cases might change the definition of interest to include such things as "points" on real estate loans. "If we are going to water down a 90-year old usury statute, surely we shouldn't do so retroactively," said Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas.

McFarland contended a $90 overcharge on a $330,000 commercial loan had led to a court decision entitling a borrower to penalties totaling $406,000.

But Bryant, D-Dallas, said the Texas Supreme Court has yet to decide that case.

Water bill being readied

A rough draft of a bill which would create a state Water Import Authority, having the power to negotiate with surrounding states for the importation of water into West Texas, is being considered in open discussions with landowners in the region.

The proposed bill, drafted by Amarillo attorney E.T. Manning, calls for the creation of a master water district including all Texas counties which have land resting above the Ogallala Aquifer water table.

The proposed legislation will be discussed at an open meeting at the Chamber of Commerce building in Plainview on Saturday at 10 a.m. A spokesman for Water Inc., a non-profit corporation with 1600 members in the state, said Monday that since the bill will be introduced as regional legislation the purpose of the meetings is "to get people together so that they can work out any differences locally."

According to Manning, the tentative legislation is being developed in response to the "urgent problems posed by depletion of the Ogallala Aquifer." Manning said that the central idea of a water importation bill would be "to have some vehicle started for negotiations with other states (for water)."

The bill calls for the creation of a water authority to be divided into nine precincts. The authority would be governed by a board represented by an elected member of each precinct. The proposed water authority, however, would have to be approved by the Texas Water Commission, passed by the legislature, and endorsed in a general election by voters in areas under the authority's jurisdiction.

Representative Bob Simpson (District 65) is considering introducing the bill in the legislature, pending outcome of the open discussions.

John Spearman, a member of the Board of Directors for Water Inc., representing Gray and Wheeler counties, said Wednesday that West Texas could be "very deficient in water" in 30 to 50 years. Spearman emphasized that the proposed bill was "still in the planning stage."

Turnout heavy at PHS Career Clinic Wednesday

The turnout was heavy and spread out among sessions at the Pampa High School Career Clinic Wednesday morning when students examined possible future occupations.

Mary Wilson, general chairman of this year's clinic, said that about 1,350 students attended.

Garry D. Kinder of Kinder Brothers & Associates, a Dallas-based marketing and management consulting firm, lead off the events with a pep talk on "being somebody" at a general assembly.

Wilson said that he began the clinic on the proper note. The two following sessions were well attended, she added.

Consultants, who were chosen because of expertise in their field, outlined careers to enable the students to prepare for the future.

Most of the consultants, who volunteer their services, were recruited from Pampa, Amarillo, Canyon and Lubbock. The Flight Attendant session received the assistance of Karen Kleiboecker of Richmond, Va. while Forestry was discussed by Stan Samuels of Eagle Nest, N.M. A nuclear physicist, Dr.

Richard D. Worley of Pantex, informed students on his field.

Sessions were only held for careers, which had an enrollment of at least 10 students.

Students showed more interest in the vocational careers, which were among some 80 choices narrowed from an original list of 125, said Wilson.

Welding enrolled 96 while fashion career had a 136 students in two sessions. Diesel Mechanics had 52 interested students; Motorcycle Mechanics had 52 and Auto Mechanics had 74. Cosmetology had two sessions with a total of 67.

The Park Ranger and Technician session was full with 107 hopefuls while photography, a new offering, had a good first group with 51. Music enrolled 75 in two classes.

Petroleum, Mechanical, and electrical engineering averaged 20 students.

Some other sessions were: Secretary Receptionist, 40; Physical Education, 30; Chemical Engineering, 11; Homemaker, 25; Journalism, 14; Mortician, 11; Religion, 12; T.V. and radio, 12; Fast Food, 12; Business Management, 26.

Some interest was shown in these areas: Flight Attendant with 63, Armed Forces with 35; Legal Secretary Work with 37; Computer with 36 and Professional Dancing with 30.

The consultants, said Wilson, praised the clinic's good organization and students were very attentive in their sessions.

The next career clinic will be held in two years. Wilson said that some consultants suggested that three 35-minute sessions might be a possible change from the present format.

Alcohol abuse up, House told

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Alcohol abuse is increasing while treatment and prevention programs shut down for lack of funds, the House Committee on Health Affairs has been told.

"Most of our time is spent just trying to scratch up enough money to keep what we already have," Fain Williams, executive director of the East Texas Council on Alcoholism and Drug Abuse, said Wednesday.

She spoke in favor of a proposal to designate up to 20 percent of the state's income from the mixed drink tax to help fund regional alcoholism programs.

"Certainly not every Texan who pays a 10 percent tax on his bourbon and brandy water is an alcoholic, but certainly many of them are," she said.

Mrs. Williams said a detoxification center closed last year in Abilene and a program at Rusk State Hospital might shut down later this year.

The bill sponsored by Rep. Ben Z. Grant, D-Marshall, was sent to a subcommittee for further study.

Grant said the mixed drink tax brought in $65 million to the state treasury last year. His bill would put a $10 million limit on state aid to the regional alcoholism programs.

Senator blasts State Bar of Texas

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A senator who practices law for a living blasted his professional organization — the State Bar of Texas — for what he said was its refusal to let the public see what it does.

No state agency, except the bar, protested Sen. Lloyd

Doggett "has come to the Legislature and said, 'We're too big, we're too professional, too secretive ... to accept changes.'"

The Austin senator got help from Sen. Carlos Truan, a Corpus Christi life insurance agent, in stalling for four hours a bill extending the bar's life as a state agency.

Spectators were surprised at Truan testing his stamina in that he had a heart attack earlier this session.

Their delaying tactics were partially successful as the bill sponsor, Sen. Bill Meier, D-Eules, accepted an amendment placing six non-lawyers on the bar's 36-member board of directors.

Then the Senate sent the bill to the House on a 27-4 vote, with four senator-lawyers — Oscar Mauzy of Dallas, A.R. Schwartz of Galveston, Walter Mengden of Houston and Doggett — voting against it.

Doggett described the bar, to which he must belong to practice law in Texas, as a "sacred cow plodding through the halls of the Legislature" and "the only closed-shop in the state of Texas without public participation."

He referred to the controversial $8 million bar headquarters as the "Taj Mahal."

His feet cushioned in white tennis shoes, Doggett arose at 11:55 a.m. to begin the filibuster. "We are trying to jar the complacency of the legal mind," said Doggett. "The legal mind that refused to acknowledge the Sunset process until the process was nearly complete."

The bar was one of 25 state agencies reviewed by the Sunset Advisory Commission prior to the legislative session.

"You would think that a profession that relies so much on the public — on lay persons — in the jury process would respect public input," said Truan.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Meier, Doggett and Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, huddled about 3 p.m., and Farabee offered the amendment placing six non-lawyers on the board of directors.

Doggett had sought nine non-lawyer directors but described the amendment as a "meaningful compromise with significant benefits."

Tricky flying awaits shuttle craft

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The American space shuttle Columbia, waiting out Mother Nature in El Paso the last two days, is scheduled to take off from San Antonio today. But one official admits it will take some tricky flying to make the refueling stop before flying on to Florida.

"We're going to do some seat-of-the-pants flying tomorrow (Thursday)," said Jim Kukowski, public affairs officer for NASA. "We've still got some stormy weather ahead of us. We don't know where we are going to be tomorrow; we're restricted to dry skies. We've been stuck between two storm centers. Hopefully, we'll make it to San Antonio tomorrow."

The trouble-plagued flight of the orbiter, strapped onto a Boeing 747, started Tuesday afternoon at Edwards Air Force Base in California. The first leg of the trip was delayed from March 9 because of troubles with the shuttle itself.

Tuesday, the hump-backed craft was supposed to fly direct to Kelly Air Force Base in San Antonio, but the weather forced an overnight stay in El Paso.

Kukowski said the piggy-back creation is scheduled to take off from Biggs Army Air Field (part of the Fort Bliss compound) at 8 a.m. for a refueling stop.

"After we get to San Antonio, we'll take a thorough inspection of the spacecraft, refuel and see what our options are," he said.

The 75-ton shuttle is half plane and half rocket and is designed to make 100 roundtrips into space, leaving earth like a rocket and gliding back like an airplane.

Columbia will be based at Cape Canaveral in Florida.

One official said the San Antonio stopover was now a matter of public relations as much as anything.

"People have been gathering at Kelly Air Force base each time an announcement is made saying the shuttle will arrive there."

Each time they have been disappointed by a delay, and Wednesday was no exception. Hundreds had assembled to catch a glimpse of the ungainly aircraft combination.

Ambassador killed by pair of gunmen

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — The British ambassador to the Netherlands, Sir Richard Sykes, and his Dutch valet were killed today by two unidentified gunmen who escaped in morning rush hour traffic.

Police said Sykes, 57, and the 19-year-old valet were fatally wounded about 9 a.m. outside the ambassador's residence as the envoy was about to get into his Rolls Royce for the 10-minute drive to the British Embassy.

The valet was holding the door open for him.

Police said three shots were fired, the ambassador was hit at least once, and one bullet struck the valet.

The two wounded men were rushed to a hospital and died there. The two gunmen made their escape through a nearby alley and disappeared into the traffic. Eye witnesses said they were between 35 and 40 years old and were dressed in dark suits.

There was no immediate indication of the motive for the attack.

"We have not received any threats, and there have been no claims since the shooting," a spokesman at the British Embassy said.

However, officials in London considered Sykes an expert on security for British diplomats abroad, and in 1976 the government sent him to Dublin to investigate the killing of Ambassador Christopher Ewart-Biggs by a land mine at the entrance to the grounds of the embassy residence.

Sykes became Britain's ambassador to Holland in June 1977 after filling diplomatic posts in Washington, Havana, Athens, Peking and Santiago. He and his wife had three children, two sons and a daughter all in their 20s and studying in Britain.

The embassy residence is a large, historic mansion in a well-to-do residential area of The Hague.

Dear Abby
by abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: My parents fought all the time. When they finally got a divorce, I was sent to live with my grandparents. Well, they fought worse than my parents, but it was better than an orphanage.

I had a pretty rough life as a kid, but it didn't do me any harm.

I had a paper route when I was 10. I had to get up at 4 a.m. daily. Nobody drove me; I went alone in the pitch dark when it was sometimes 20 below zero.

They say kids learn from example, but that's not always true. My father was an alcoholic. After seeing what it did to him and our family, you couldn't pay me to take a drink. My grandfather smoked like a chimney and his breath smelled so bad I vowed I'd never smoke. And I never have.

Sometimes the bad examples kids see will work in reverse. Instead of imitating those bad habits, kids will try all the harder to do the opposite.

What do you say, Abby?

RED IN BURLINGTON, IOWA

DEAR RED: I say you could be right, but I still believe that when kids have GOOD examples to follow, their chances for turning out good are a lot better.

DEAR ABBY: You told a woman whose husband looked at other women, "Let him look. When he's through looking, he's through."

Did you mean he is through with sex, or dead?

FLO IN FLORIDA

DEAR FLO: I meant "through with sex." But some men aren't through with sex until they're dead.

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 and eight months pregnant. I am not married, and have no plans to be.

I made a very important decision a few weeks ago. I decided to give my baby up for adoption. Abby, I love this baby very, very much. That is why I'm giving it up. Some people think I'm wrong. They say I am cruel and heartless and even selfish for wanting to give away my child, but I think it would be much more selfish of me to keep the baby and make it suffer for my mistakes. Every child should have a home with a mother and father who want it and can give it everything a child deserves.

For months I was undecided about what I should do. Now I'm sure. I am thinking of the baby first. That's why I'm giving it up.

I have always respected your opinion, Abby. Do you think I made the right choice?

EXPECTING THE BEST IN TEXAS

by lawrence lamb m.d.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read your column about pancreatitis and what causes it, other than alcohol. I am a person who hasn't had a drink in a couple of years and I still have had attacks of it. I'd only been an occasional drinker in the past. Is it possible that worry and a nervous condition could bring on pancreatitis? What type of diet do you recommend and how long should I be on that diet until I can eat all types of food?

DEAR READER — As you know from my previous column, the pancreas is the source of many of your digestive enzymes. Many people don't know what the pancreas is, but the pancreas from animals is commonly used for sweetbreads.

An acute inflammation of the pancreas causes severe abdominal pain and other problems. Some people have recurrent attacks thereafter, regardless of what caused the first attack.

Anyone who has had pancreatitis for any reason should scrupulously avoid all alcohol. For readers who missed the first column, I'd like to point out that a large number of people who have pancreatitis develop it because of complications of gall stones and many others have undetermined causes, so you don't have to be an alcoholic or drink lots of alcohol to develop pancreatitis in the first place.

If the pancreas has been damaged sufficiently that it doesn't produce enough enzymes, it will affect your digestion. You won't have the enzymes to split fat, so you won't absorb fats very well. This may lead to large, foul-smelling stools. Decreased ability to absorb fat may also lead to decreased ability to absorb important vitamins, particularly the fat-soluble vitamins, as well as some minerals. The poor digestion can result in weight loss.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 11-4, The Pancreas: Your Enzyme Organ. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. This issue will give you more detailed information about the nature of acute attacks of pancreatitis and the chronic form.

To help prevent future attacks and other problems, you'd be wise to avoid fats. If you're overweight, you need to eliminate your obesity. Overeating can precipitate attacks. That also means you want to eat small meals or meals of moderate size and avoid eating huge meals as some people do on holidays or special occasions.

DEAR DR. LAMB — When I was in my teens I had very bad problems with acne. My face is now clear but I have the deep scars left by it. I have heard about dermabrasion treatments which plane the top layer of skin and improve the appearance. I would like to know how effective and safe these treatments are or if you could suggest something else.

DEAR READER — Yes, such procedures are done and, in some instances, they are indicated. You need to have a consultation with a plastic surgeon who does cosmetic surgery. He can give you a realistic appraisal of what you could expect in your own individual case. Such procedures are not for everyone. If you tend to be dark complexioned, this may affect the pigment in the skin. So, find out what's best for you.

Polly's Pointers
by polly cramer

DEAR POLLY — It took me 15 years of pancake making to find out why one side was beautifully browned and the other side would not brown except around the edges. For some reason after I flipped them I would squash them down with the spatula, probably getting this habit from frying hamburgers and trying to get the grease out. I was pushing all the air out of the pancakes. Quite by accident I discovered that if this is not done and they are allowed to rise the bottoms will be the same golden brown as the tops.

Friends and relatives are invited to attend. The couple has lived eight miles southwest of Lefors for 36 years and been residents of Gray County for 44 years.

At First United Methodist Church

Lou Ann Wise to preach

On Sunday morning Lou Ann Wise will preach at the First United Methodist Church, Pampa. Her sermon will be part of the requirements of the Board of Ordained Ministry for candidates preparing for ordination. Ms. Wise plans to be ordained a deacon May 29 - 30 in Amarillo at the meeting of the Northwest Texas Conference of the United Methodist Church.

Ms. Wise is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Wise, formerly of Pampa now living in Dangerfield. She graduated from Pampa High School in 1973 and from Texas Tech University in 1977. She is now completing her studies for the ministry at Perkins School of Theology, Southern Methodist University.

Ms. Wise plans to spend a year at Presbyterian Hospital, Oklahoma City, Okla., where she will intern in clinical pastoral education.

Ms. Wise says that "... seminary has been a very good experience," and adds that it has helped her clarify vocational goals and commitments. She would like to serve in hospital chaplaincy and counseling.

Actress comes to Pampa to visit with her grandparents

By JUNE ALEXANDER
Pampa News Staff

Margaret Avery, a movie and television actress living in Hollywood, Calif., has been in Pampa visiting her grandparents, Miles and Allene Colbert, 1076 Prairie Dr.

Miss Avery is working in Dallas where 'Lath of Heaven,' a segment of the TV show 'Visions,' is being filmed. The segment will be shown in the near future in two 60 minute segments.

Some of her recent work includes the film 'The Fish that Saved Pittsburg' which will be released this summer and which stars basketball star Julius Irving, known as Dr. J.

Miss Avery's future plans include working in a New York play and concentrating on her real estate business in Los Angeles. She points out how difficult it is to find realistically priced housing in the Los Angeles area, and comments "... a cracker - box will bring $80,000 and recently a 600 square foot house on my block sold for $95,500. It just doesn't make sense not to be in the real estate business out there."

One of the things about the Panhandle which impressed Miss Avery most was that you could see so much land. "You don't see land anywhere in the Los Angeles area," she said. "It's all so built - up you forget that there are wide open spaces elsewhere."

Miss Avery left Pampa yesterday to return to Dallas, where it will take three weeks to complete her filming schedule. She hopes to visit Pampa and her grandparents again before too long.

Mexico's human rights violations down

By GORDON D. MOTT
Associated Press Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) — An amnesty law and electoral reform enacted by President Jose Lopez Portillo's administration has sharply reduced human rights violations in Mexico, according to human-rights watchdogs.

"The last report I got of missing persons was in September when two boys were kidnapped in Puebla," said Rosario Ibarra de Piedra, 52, head of a watchdog group called the National Committee for the Defense of Political Prisoners, Fugitives, Exiles and Disappeared Persons.

"But just because things have gotten better that's no excuse to forget the past," she added. Mrs. Ibarra de Piedra, whose son Jesus disappeared in a shootout with police five years ago, has been a leading critic of alleged human rights violations in Mexico.

A Communist Party official, Eduardo Montes, said there have been positive changes in Mexico's political climate as well and the government now respects the rights of opposition parties.

He added that the real test will come in the congressional elections July 1. He said that if any of the handful of tiny leftist parties achieve any significant victories that would be evidence of improvement.

A spokesman for the Popular

Socialist Party said he agrees with this view. The membership of both parties is not accurately known. The Communist Party was illegal in Mexico for decades.

The amnesty law has permitted the release of 559 persons from prison or had their criminal records wiped clean since Congress enacted it Sept. 28, 1978, according to government records.

Spokesman Rigoberto Galindo of the Department of Government — the ministry in charge of Mexican internal security — claims that all persons listed as political prisoners have been freed.

"There are still some who consider themselves political prisoners but they are charged with things not covered under the amnesty law — like murder and bank robbery," he said.

Mrs. Ibarra de Piedra said she disagrees, adding that her National Committee's records show that about 300 political prisoners were passed over by the amnesty bill and are still in jail.

She claimed that she herself — a resident of the northern city of Monterrey — is under constant surveillance and that often two or three men sit in a car without registration plates outside her home.

"The internal politics of the country are very different from the face it presents to the world," she said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press. She claimed many of the prisoners are in Military Camp No. 1 on the outskirts of Mexico City.

A recently released International League of Human Rights report dated last May listed 301 persons missing in Mexico and accused the government of condoning illegal arrests, torture, secret jails, the existence of secret police forces and the harassment of families of political prisoners.

Attorney General Oscar Flores Sanchez refuted the accusations at a recent news conference and said of the 314 persons listed as missing since 1971, an investigation by his office showed 154 had died in shootouts with military troops or police, 89 were fugitives, 26 had no criminal record and the rest were either in jail or died from other causes.

"Tortures are crazy and don't accomplish anything," he said. "Just like anywhere else, there are bad policemen..."

"The government doesn't have to assassinate anyone or send them to secret jails. The government is very strong."

A senior government official who asked not to be identified admitted excesses were committed by security forces during a 1970-74 anti-terrorist campaign against leftist urban guerrilla groups but added: "We were fighting terrorists. What did you expect us to do?"

Dissident groups not officially approved of have been harassed, their power broken and their leaders jailed or persecuted in the half a century the Institutional Revolutionary Party or PRI has been in power in Mexico.

This was especially true in the 1930s and 1940s when at different times prominent Communist Party members David Alfaro Siqueiros, Jose Clemente Orozco and Diego Rivera were jailed for long periods or exiled.

On top of the persecution, parties not officially approved of could only run write-in candidates in elections but had no chance of winning. Their petitions for official certification repeatedly went ignored.

The political reform bill passed by Congress almost at the same time as the amnesty law broke the PRI's power monopoly. Beginning with the House elections July 1, parties by law can obtain official registration and field their own candidates provided they have a certified membership of 60,000 in each of the country's 32 electoral districts.

Congress' Chamber of Deputies has been enlarged from 237 to 400 seats — with 100 seats to be apportioned to minority groups through proportional representation. The PRI currently holds 195 of the 237 seats in the Chamber and all but one of 64 in the Senate, which is renewed every six years.

An official who requested anonymity but who is close to Lopez Portillo said the purpose of the two laws is to provide a legal outlet for dissidents in Mexico and take the wind out of the sails of elements who would otherwise be prone to violence.

"We have reduced anti-social pressures. We have definitely reduced the possibility of violence in the future," the official added.

Kahn, Bergland calm farmers fears

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an attempt to calm fears and indecision among farmers, the administration is assuring them that they will not be sacrificed in a scramble to dampen food price increases and curb inflation.

Alfred Kahn, the president's chief inflation adviser, says he is cooperating with the Agriculture Department in what he called "very intensive monitoring activity" on food prices to determine what is making them go higher.

"We have no quarrel with the American farmer," he said. "The anti-inflation program depends heavily on American farmers having ample incentives to expand production."

Kahn, appearing Wednesday at a news conference with Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, discounted rumors that the administration might be ready to set price controls on beef and other agricultural commodities.

"We are not preying to the illusion that we can solve the problems of inflation in food prices... by imposing price controls, which are surely counterproductive, or by creating uncertainties in the minds of farmers," Kahn said.

Bergland, also attempting to clear away some rumors that have persisted about farm programs, outlined how he and Kahn are working together to "trace the increases in farm commodity prices from the farm gate to the grocery store" and to identify where unjustifiable increases occur.

Asked what effect consumers might expect from his and Bergland's efforts, Kahn replied, "I'm not in the business of promising miracles."

The sharp price increases in recent months for beef, fish, fruits and vegetables, for example, "are of a nature that nobody can do anything about, except harm, by trying to meddle," he said.

"We intend to take a balanced approach to examining ways in which we can reduce the high inflation rates in food prices," Kahn said.

Bergland said many rumors have been generated in the food and agriculture sector as a result of talks between his and other agencies on the food inflation problem.

Thus, he said, the following declarations are in order: —Wheat, corn and other feed grains from the 1978 harvest will not be permitted to enter the government's grain reserve program under which farmers hold the grain for up to three years or until prices go up enough to trigger their release.

—Soybeans will not be allowed to be grown this year on cropland set-aside from production under wheat and feed grain programs.

—The administration "will not accept any increases in commodity price supports or target prices" as some have suggested to bolster government crop guarantees to farmers.

—No further changes will be made in the set-aside programs already announced for wheat and feed grains.

Kahn said he had asked Bergland to consider whether it might be wise to let farmers plant soybeans on set-aside acres this year. But after conferring with Bergland, "We agreed that it would not be a desirable thing to do," he said.

The two officials also were quizzed about reports the administration might seek additional meat imports to help offset rising consumer beef prices.

Kahn said reports that he favored opening the door to more foreign beef were "erroneous" and that the possibility of doing so was just one of many topics that have been discussed.

Bergland said he thought there is "a world beef shortage," and that opening the door to more imports would not help.

High on the hog — More hogs are on the nation's farms now than at any time in the last eight years, meaning producers and consumers can expect prices to ease somewhat in the coming months, says the Agriculture Department.

But the meat-price updraft caused by soaring cattle prices the last year is so strong that department officials say they are uncertain about the overall effects of the larger pork supply. It appears likely, however, that retail pork prices soon will be declining at least slightly while beef prices continue up or at least hold near their current record levels.

"We may want to eat porkburgers instead of hamburgers once in a while," one official said.

As of March 1, hogs and pigs on farms in 14 key states that produce about 85 percent of the nation's pork, had inventories totaling 50.5 million head, a 13 percent increase from a year ago, the report said. That was the largest March 1 total since 1971.

More significantly for producers and consumers, were figures that showed the "pig crop" born during the winter — from Dec. 1 through Feb. 28 — totaled 18.3 million head, up 17 percent from a year earlier.

That was about on target with surveys of producer intentions last fall, but some experts have said the crop actually may turn out to be only 8 percent to 10 percent larger.

Howard Hjort, the department's chief economist, called the report "rather surprising" in view of past forecasts and the rough winter producers have gone through.

As the report showed, more pigs were born last winter than had been counted on, and those will begin arriving at slaughter plants this spring.

Further, the report said producers intend to keep up the expansion by having 3.55 million sows give birth to pigs in the March-May quarter, up 24 percent from a year ago.

Richard Crom, a livestock and meat economist in USDA's Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service, said many experts traditionally have said pork doesn't have much effect on beef prices but that beef does affect pork.

Pack 409 has banquet
Cub Scout Pack 409, sponsored by the Pampa Moose Lodge No. 1385, held its annual Blue and Gold Banquet Tuesday night at the Moose Lodge.

Highlights of the program included Cub Scout advancements and a special program honoring the boys who received the Arrow of Light, which will be worn as they enter Boy Scouts.

There was a special treat for all as the Friends of the Lovett Memorial Library brought their puppet show and presented a skit on scouting.

The staff of Pack 409 expressed their thanks to all the parents, boys and leaders who made the banquet a success and to the library friends and Moose Lodge for their contributions.

Pampa choirs achieve success
The eighth grade girls choir from Pampa Middle School received the only Division 1 ratings in their class at the Region I UIL Choir Contest in Canyon earlier this week.

Director Elena Donald said the girls received the top ratings in both concert performance and sight reading. They were the only Class C entry to receive the Division 1 rating.

The seventh grade girls choir received a Division 2 rating in concert and a 3 in sight reading, the same marks achieved by the junior high boys choir.

Firestone recalls tires

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. said Wednesday it is voluntarily recalling about 117,000 steel-belted radial 500 tires manufactured in Sweden prior to May 1, 1976 for use in the United States.

The Swedish-made 500s were made to different manufacturing specifications and differed in construction from previously recalled 500s made in the United States and Canada.

The Swedish 500s were primarily used as original equipment on Volvo automobiles imported into the United States from Sweden in 1975 and 1976.

The voluntary recall is the result of negotiations with the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, Firestone said.

Firestone said it will provide free replacements for any Swedish 500s manufactured before May 1, 1976 and purchased in the United States after Sept. 1, 1975.

Firestone said it will send recall notices to owners of Volvos with the affected tires, and to registered purchasers of replacement Swedish-made 500s.

Purchasers of the tires who already have received adjustments and who now are eligible for free replacements can receive refunds, the company said.

Owners of Swedish 500s bought before Sept. 1, 1975 are eligible to buy replacements at half prices until Aug. 1, 1979. The replacements will be the steel-belted radial 721 or comparable Firestone tires.

Wagoner suing Dolly Parton

By RICHARD LOWE
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The feud between buxom blonde Dolly Parton and rhinestone-studded country music singer Porter Wagoner may be bearing its most bitter fruit. He sued her today for millions.

In a copy of the Chancery Court suit shown to a reporter Tuesday night, Wagoner says Miss Parton owes him management fees and royalties under an agreement he says was signed by the entertainers in 1970. Wagoner also requests the return of about 130 songs and song contracts he says were taken from the office of Owepar Publishing Company by "an agent of Dolly Parton Dean." Miss Parton, majority stockholder of Owepar, has recorded several of the songs, he said.

Wagoner wants 15 percent of Miss Parton's net income from June 1974 through June 1979. Under the agreement, he said, he was to be Miss Parton's manager for five years after she left the show and receive 15 percent of her net income. He offered no estimate of what the 15 percent demand would bring, but he says that if that demand is denied she should pay him at least $3 million.

The statuesque Miss Parton, selected in October the Country Music Association's entertainer of the year, worked with Wagoner from 1968 until 1974, when she left the Porter Wagoner Show and reports of quarreling and squabbling.

Since swapping her country-flavored warble for the more financially fruitful pop sound, Miss Parton's career has skyrocketed with such hits as "Here You Come Again."

"For almost two years after leaving the show, she tried her own thing and went out on her own," Wagoner said in an interview Tuesday night. "I was on the sidelines and was willing to step in and help at any time."

Beverly Magid, director of the music department of Solters & Roskin Inc., Miss Parton's public relation's firm, said in a telephone interview from Los Angeles that the firm had no comment on the suit.

PORTER WAGONER has filed a multi-million dollar suit against his former singing partner, Dolly Parton.

Movie a plus for CBS

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — A curious species, the TV network executive. Capable of issuing forth vacuous tripe, and then sensitive, warm drama without breaking stride.

Consider CBS and some of its made-for-TV movies this year. The CBS movie man, William Self, took a liking to trucks and the ladies that drive them, offering two lady trucker movies (dumb ones, too) in a month.

And yet, Self is the guy who gave us "And Your Name is Jonah" and "Silent Victory: The Kitty O'Neil Story," two thoughtful, entertaining stories dealing with deafness.

Self goes one up in the plus column this weekend with his choice of "No Other Love" for the CBS Saturday Night Movie.

It is the story of a marginally retarded couple who fall in love and try to get married, a human conflict yarn that manages to be sentimental and touching without getting too gooey.

The stars are CBS alumni, Julie Kavner, late of "Rhoda," and Richard Thomas, who used to roam Walton's Mountain as John-Boy. They're good.

Ms. Kavner plays Janet Michaels, 22, retarded, addicted to television and living under the overprotective blanket of her guilt-laden mother (Elizabeth Allred).

Her father (Robert Loggia), a well-to-do builder, wants to put Janet in a high-class sanitarium; her mother wants her at home. Enter brother Bruce (Scott Jacoby). He realizes his sister is capable of life on her own, and takes her to a pleasant hostel for young adults who, like Janet, are marginally retarded.

There she falls in love with Richard Thomas, the spirited, clever Andrew Madison. Andrew, too, is retarded.

Ms. Kavner and Thomas both do a remarkable job of making their characters people first, handicapped people second.

They are childlike in their relationship (his come-on line: "Excuse me, are you retarded?"), and you can't help smiling at their honesty.

Andrew thinks Janet's looks might be improved with a new pair of glasses. No waster of words, he "Do you always wear those glasses?" he asks. "Yeah," says she. "That's too bad. They're ugly. They make you look funny."

Andrew and Janet don't play games; they know they're retarded. But they don't think of themselves as freaks, either.

When they fall in love, they want to be married. But her parents, normal adults that they are, try to wreck their plans.

They underestimate the young lovers, as they've underestimated their daughter all of her life.

"No Other Love," Saturday on CBS. Cheers to Mr. Self for this one. I hope this doesn't mean we're due for another trucker flick.

Burglars get eight years

Two men charged with the Feb. 15 burglary of the Harvester Lanes Bowling Alley in Pampa pleaded guilty in 31st District Court Tuesday and were sentenced to eight years each in the Texas Department of Corrections by Judge Grainger McIlhenny.

Steven Timothy Wallen and Michael Dean Whissenhunt, both 18, broke in through the roof of the Harvester Lanes building and robbed vending machines of $375 in quarters. They were apprehended by police in Borger shortly after the incident when they attempted to cash in the change.

Both men have previous burglary convictions.

Carter's trip caused nightmares

By FRANK COMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's action-packed Middle East mission gave some people nightmares. Literally.

These people were not anti-treaty Arab rejectionists, either, although the rejectionists were far from pleased at Carter's success.

The nightmares, alas, afflicted several hard-working members of Carter's White House staff.

A prime example is Gael Doar, administrative assistant to Greg Schneiders, who in turn is deputy to Gerald M. Rafshoon, Carter's assistant for communications.

Ms. Doar, a young veteran of the president's 1976 campaign, was responsible for getting White House press corps "pools" to and from various events in Jerusalem. These designated pools represent the entire corps when space or transport limitations preclude what is called "open coverage" by everyone.

On her second night back in Washington, Ms. Doar was telephoned at 11 p.m. by a friend who asked, "Are you busy?"

"I'm trying to get some sleep," she replied. "I've got to take an early morning pool to the King David" — the name of the Jerusalem hotel where Carter had stayed.

The next night, another caller wanted to set up a tennis game with Ms. Doar. Again she mumbled something about having to get to the King David, and hung up.

On Saturday, Ms. Doar went to bed at 1 p.m. and slept until 6 a.m. Sunday.

That put a stop to her nightmares about the King David.

Ms. Doar and a lot of others surely were pleased to learn that Carter would not be returning to the Middle East to sign the prospective Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty.

Such journeys not only induce mind-numbing fatigue but sometimes pose physical hazards, real or potential.

Take the case of the Egyptian air force C-130 transport that hauled members of the traveling press corps from Alexandria, Egypt, to Cairo.

One of the plane's four engines failed during a critical moment in its takeoff.

Ed Hodges of the Durham (N.C.) Morning Herald, a retired U.S. Air Force command pilot, immediately headed for the cockpit to assure himself that the craft was not in imminent danger of plunging to earth.

An inspection of the cockpit gauges put Hodges at ease — until the Egyptian crew broke out an English-language operator's manual and turned to the chapter on how to cope with mechanical emergencies.

Happily, the pilot made a perfect three-engine landing in Cairo.

FOCUS

Superman's Creators

For three months now, moviegoers have been standing in line at theaters around the country to see the motion picture "Superman." The film, which cost $40 million to produce, may eventually become one of the biggest money-making movies of all time. Writer Jerry Siegel and cartoon artist Joe Shuster dreamed up the Man of Steel in the early 1930s. They devised Superman's physical appearance, including his famous caped costume, in a single afternoon. They worked on the "Superman" comic strip for years. But the current "Superman" movie isn't making any money for Shuster and Siegel. They sold all the rights to their creation for $138 in 1938.

DO YOU KNOW — Who plays the title role in the movie "Superman"?

WEDNESDAY'S ANSWER — Brock Adams is the secretary of the Department of Transportation.

You'll be in a fortunate cycle this coming year where things could get very active for you, physically and mentally. Don't fret. You won't want it any other way.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll enjoy hobnobbing with new people today. Being around fresh thinkers will offer you a different approach to an enigma that has been on your mind. Find out more about yourself by sending for your new Astro-Graph Letter Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Do things your own way and in your own time today. With your quiet, undemonstrative manner you can thus achieve much more.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You need to be around many different kinds of people today to satisfy your curiosity. Avoid the dullards. Seek out the intellectuals.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You know how to take what other people have to offer and effectively put it to work today. Because of this you're held in high esteem.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Open up and be frank today when discussing issues important to you. Things can work out quite beneficially if you don't pull any punches.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Tackle any job or project requiring concentration and brainpower today. You're more than up to the task, and won't even be winded by it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Living up to your sun sign is easy for you today. You turn all dealings into congenial, fun affairs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Family matters will take top priority with you today. You won't mind doing little chores that you know will please. Your efforts will be rewarded.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll enjoy friends dropping in on you, or doing a little table-hopping yourself today. You are both sociable and restless.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A fine day to shop for all those little items for the home you've been wanting. You may find just the right articles at bargain prices.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The chances of this being a productive day are quite excellent. You know how to think "win" today, even if you suffer a temporary setback.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you think you're onto something today, follow through. Your hunches or insights are working and could lead to a gain.

Harvesters prepare for busy weekend

By JERRY GUNTER
Pampa News Sports Editor
Friday and Saturday will be busy days for Pampa athletic teams as track, baseball, golf and tennis are on the schedule. In addition to the locals in action, there will be a junior high and high school track meet at Lefors beginning Friday morning. The tennis team will be involved in tournament action in Borge both Friday and Saturday, while the girls golf team will be in Amarillo for their first round of the District 3 - A A A A tournament. Meanwhile, the boys golfers will be also be in Amarillo on Saturday for action against Amarillo High and Caprock. Also, the baseball team will be at home to play host to Altus, Okla. in a doubleheader. Finally, there will be a junior high girls track meet here on Saturday. In the Top of Texas track meet at Lefors, high school entries include Lefors, McLean, Groom, Miami, Lakeview, Wheeler, Adrian, Follett, Shamrock, Higgins, Claude, Clarendon, Wellington, Briscoe and Hartley.

Junior high teams competing are the same as the varsity with the addition of Memphis, Skellytown and Kelton. Shamrock will have both its seventh and eighth grade teams entered. The field events will start at 8:30 a.m. with the running preliminaries to begin at 10 a.m. All finals start at 2:30 p.m. The tennis team had a good outing last weekend in Lubbock and coach David Martin is hoping for more good fortunes at the meet in Borge. Kris Douglas led the way for the Harvesters as she advanced to the semifinals before losing. In addition to host Borge and Pampa, teams entered are Snyder, Vernon, Hereford, Lubbock Estacado, Lubbock Dunbar and Memphis. Douglas has been seeded number two for the tournament. Coach Steve Scott's baseballers will attempt to play their first game of the week after having a game with Dumas rained out two days in a row. The Harvesters last outing came last Saturday as they rolled over the Borge Bulldogs to win the consolation title in tournament action at Hereford.

Providing the opposition Friday will be Altus, while Saturday Canyon comes to town for a single game. Friday's twinbill starts at 1 p.m., while Saturday's action also begins at 1 p.m. In the Pampa Junior High girls Invitational track meet here Saturday, teams will come from Amarillo (nine of them) along with Canyon, Hereford, Borge, Dumas and Pampa. Field events start at 9:30 a.m. with the preliminaries at 10 a.m. The running finals get underway at 2:30 p.m.

Both the boys and girls high school track teams will be in Borge Saturday for the Bulldog Relays. There will be both a varsity and junior varsity division for both the boys and the girls. Teams entered include Pampa, Borge, Dumas, Tascosa, Caprock, Canyon, Hereford, Plainview, Woodward, Okla. and Yarbrough, Okla. Field events at 10 a.m. will open the meet, while the finals are staged to begin at 2 p.m. Last week at Hereford, the Harvesters failed to gain any first place finishes in the boys varsity division. The highest finishes came by Kyle Bradford in the high jump (fourth place at 6-0) along with Mike Wheeler who got fourth in the mile with a time of 4:47.0. However, the Harvesters have high hopes for 120-yard high hurdler Mark Hutchinson, who is among the area's leaders in that event with a clocking of 15.0. The varsity girls finished fifth in last week's competition at Hereford. Getting the top finish for the varsity in that meet was Jana Vaughn in the mile. She came through with a clocking of 6:03.5 for second place. In addition, Becky Davis took third in the 80 hurdles with an 11.3, while the 800 relay team was fourth at 1:52.3. Several Harvester girls are among the area's top leaders. Davis has the fifth best time in the 80 hurdles at 11.3, while teammate Kellye Richardson is not far behind with a best of 11.7. Vaughn ranks fourth in the mile with a 5:58.6, while the 800 relay (1:52.3) is among the top. Carmela Cardwell is among the best in the shot put with a best throw of 6-7 1/2.

Indiana wins NIT title

By BILL BARNARD
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The Indiana Hoosiers wanted to stop Joe Barry Carroll and they succeeded, but that isn't what gave them the championship of the National Invitation Tournament. Carroll was held to 14 points after scoring 42 in Purdue's semifinal victory over Alabama. But while the Boilermakers' all-Big Ten center was held in check, Indiana's own all-conference performer, Mike Woodson, got only 10 points on 5-of-16 shooting. Obviously, since the two teams had already played each other twice before Wednesday night, they knew exactly what to do to stop the other. So in the end, one Indiana shot that went in and one Boilermaker shot that didn't determined the outcome. Butch Carter hit a 20-foot jumper with six seconds left to give Indiana a 53-52 victory, a triumph not clinched until senior Jerry Sichting's baseline shot bounced off the back of the rim at the buzzer.

They concentrated on Woodson and we obviously concentrated hard on Carroll, and it showed (in the statistics)," said Indiana Coach Bobby Knight, who won the NIT in his seventh try, twice as coach at Indiana and five times at Army, dating back to 1964. Woodson, whom Knight called "the best player ever who didn't even get honorable mention All-America," was supposed to get the final shot for the Hoosiers, although Knight said Carter and Randy Wittman were alternate choices if Woodson was covered. That was the case, so Carter, who scored 12 points along with fellow Most Valuable Player Ray Tolbert, launched the game-winner. A little more than a minute earlier and with Purdue ahead 52-51, Carter had climaxed a 3 1/2-minute stall by Indiana that ran the clock from 4:30 to 1:10 by throwing an interception. But he insisted he wasn't thinking of the error in the closing seconds. "I was taught that if you make a bad play you don't think about it or you'll make another bad play," said Carter. "So I wasn't about to redeem myself with that shot. If you think about a bad play you might make a bad foul or another bad pass." But Knight said of his 6-foot-5 junior guard, "I think he was really upset after the interception, but he came back and made two good plays — the foul on Carroll and the shot." The 7-foot-1 Carroll, who hit only two of eight free throws, was fouled by Carter near midcourt after Carter's bad pass. But with a chance to salt the game away for the Boilermakers, Carroll missed the first of a 1-and-1 free throw opportunity and Indiana got the rebound. Knight said of the unorthodox stall, "I've never held the ball like that when I was behind. But with one point down I was content to hold the ball and reduce it to a 20-second game instead of 4 1/2 minutes." After Carter put Indiana ahead, four seconds were on the clock when Purdue called timeout near midcourt. An inbound pass hit Sichting at the corner, but his shot missed. After the game, Knight walked over to the Purdue bench and spoke to the disconsolate 6-1 senior guard. Later he told newsmen he had told Sichting "that he had been a great player against us for four years and the fact that he missed the last shot should not detract in any way from his great career." "It's amazing what a free throw can do to change the strategy of the whole game," said Purdue Coach Lee Rose of his team's 6-of-13 performance from the charity line. Rose, who lost an NIT final once before while at North Carolina-Charlotte in 1976, was asked if he thought Carroll's subpar performance had cost Purdue the game. "If we hit a few free throws and Sichting hits the last shot, then I'm not asked that kind of question."

Purdue finished the season at 27-8, while Indiana was 22-12. In the third-place game, Alabama's Reggie King scored 21 points and set an NIT scoring record of 132 points in the Crimson Tide's 96-86 victory over Ohio State. The old mark of 129 by Bob Lloyd of Rutgers in 1967 was set in four games, while King played in five this year in the tournament's expanded format.

Hayes returns to court

DALLAS (AP) — Former Olympic and pro football star "Bullet" Bob Hayes returned to a state district courtroom today, hoping to avoid a prison term for his guilty plea on three charges of delivering narcotics to a undercover officer one year ago. Judge Richard Mays accepted Hayes' pleas last week, but delayed sentencing until today. He had the option of granting Hayes probation on each of the charges or sentencing him to up to life in prison. A parade of character witnesses, including Cowboy officials, was expected in Hayes' behalf at today's hearing. Attorneys for Hayes, an all-pro wide receiver for the Dallas Cowboys, said he chose a trial before a judge because the Olympic gold medalist would have been ineligible for parole by a jury.

Under Texas law, a jury cannot grant probation to a person convicted of a previous felony. Hayes was convicted of armed robbery during his collegiate days at Florida A&M, but later received a presidential pardon. The 35-year-old Hayes was arrested last April 6 after a 3-month investigation into drug trafficking. He was accused of one count of Quaalude delivery and two counts of cocaine delivery. An undercover officer for the suburban Addison Police Department said he and a friend dined with Hayes and his wife at a Dallas restaurant, and that the subject turned to narcotics. As the acquaintance developed, Hayes offered to make various types of narcotics available to him, the officer said. Hayes, once billed as the "world's fastest human," is alleged to have told the undercover officer he began taking narcotics while he was with the Cowboys and had used them since. Attorneys for Hayes said, faced with having to plead guilty or innocent, "we felt the best thing we could do, based upon the evidence, was plead guilty and go to the judge for punishment."

Swimming lessons offered

The Pampa Youth and Community Center will offer swimming lessons beginning April 2-18 for polywogs and beginners. Polywogs will meet from 4-4:30 and 4:30-5 p.m. These are children who are 4-6 years of age, not in the first grade, and who measure 3 inches tall to the chin. The beginners class will meet from 5-6 p.m. These children are those who are six years of age and older. Parents who are interested in enrolling their child in these series of lessons should go by the Youth Center after 4 p.m. If not able to go then, call 665-2622 for more information. Classes will meet on Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. There will be 10 meeting dates during the course.

Brownbuilder Charles Gallett: working in Pampa, building Texas

Charles Gallett, from White Deer, is one of more than 35,000 Texas Brownbuilders — men and women of Brown & Root — currently at work across the state. Charles signed on with Brown & Root in 1977 as a Carpenter. Now he's a Carpenter Foreman working on a major new power project here. Texas Brownbuilders like Charles are proud of the part they are playing in our state's industrial and economic growth. Brownbuilders are also a source of great pride to us. Their loyalty and dedication are our most important assets. Brown & Root's operations are worldwide in scope. A significant factor in our growth has been a long-standing policy of recognizing supervisory and management capabilities from within the ranks of Brownbuilders, offering each individual the opportunity to advance according to his or her ability and merit.

Ken Reitz homered for the losers, who got consecutive homers Tuesday from Terry Kennedy, Roger Freed and Reitz in beating the Blue Jays. The Seattle Mariners mauled Cleveland's David Clyde for 12 runs in 11-3 innings and outlasted the Indians 14-11. Jorge Orta hit his third home run of the spring in the 11th inning to give the Chicago White Sox a 7-5 triumph over the Kansas City Royals. Rusty Torres and Chet Lemon also homered for the Sox. Ozzie Smith, who has hit safely in all of San Diego's 13 spring games, tripled to start the eighth inning and scored on a single by Mike Hargrove as the Padres edged the Chicago Cubs 4-3. Rookie Kirk Gibson blasted a two-run homer and Steve Kemp hit a solo shot while Milt Wilcox pitched seven strong innings as the Detroit Tigers defeated the Boston Red Sox 5-1.

Injury bug bites Philadelphia

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
 The Philadelphia Phillies haven't been able to find the pitcher they want but they sure know how to lose the ones they've got.
 The Phillies seem to have everything a baseball team could want - except a sound and deep pitching rotation. Steve Carlton had shoulder problems a year ago. Dick Ruthven has had a touch of bursitis in his elbow this spring and, of course, there was Larry Christenson's broken collarbone in a bicycle mishap.
 While Christenson's collarbone snapped and Carlton and Ruthven have had some shoulder-and-elbow cracking, the ulna bone in rookie Jim Wright's pitching arm went "pop!" during an exhibition game Wednesday between the

'B' squads of the Phillies' and the St. Louis Cardinals.
 The 6-foot-6, 24-year-old righthander, one of the best prospects in the Phils' system and a candidate for a starting job, suffered a broken bone in his arm and Dr. Phillip J. Marone, the club physician, said he would not be able to pitch this year.
 The Phillies have been attempting to trade infielder Richie Hebner for a starting pitcher. They may have to try harder.
 However, the Phillies may have enough pitching to repeat as National League East champs if their hitters keep bombing. The 'A' squad hammered the Texas Rangers 10-4 Wednesday. Ruthven pitched three scoreless innings and Mike Schmidt hit two home runs. Greg Luzinski delivered two singles and a triple. Hebner drove in two runs with a single and double and rookie John Poff homered. Pete Rose, 2-for-26 this spring, collected his first RBI with a fifth-inning single.

 Elsewhere, Don Sutton, who was fired earlier in the day by Manager Tom Lasorda, allowed two runs over the final six innings as the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the New York Mets 7-5. Lasorda fined Sutton an undisclosed amount because the pitcher did not accompany the team from Vero Beach to St. Petersburg, Fla., and arrived late. Steve Garvey and Dusty Baker homered for the Dodgers. Sheldon Mallory's three-run homer and consecutive eighth-inning blasts by Roy I. Jwell, John Mayberry and Otto Velez helped the Toronto Blue Jays defeat the St. Louis Cardinals 7-3. Ted Simmons and

Mother speaks for bill to allow organ transplant

By SOLL SUSSMAN
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Margaret Little, a mother fresh from a long legal battle to allow her mentally retarded daughter to donate a kidney and save her son's life, took time out to speak for a bill that might ease the pain for other families.

Fourteen-year-old Steve Little, victim of a congenital kidney disease, and 15-year-old Anne Little are at home in Seguin awaiting the medical go-ahead for the transplant.

"I'm the mother of Anne and Steve Little," the grey-haired, stocky woman told the House Judiciary Committee on Wednesday night.

"Where would you like me to begin?" she asked in a businesslike but soft voice that wavered only rarely. "I can begin when Steve was born or when Anne was born."

Her husband Thomas was present at the hearing but did not testify.

A bill sponsored by Rep. Bennie Bock II, D-New Braunfels, would set a legal procedure to allow mentally retarded minors to donate kidneys under certain safeguards.

A civil appeals court decision to allow the transplant for the Little family was handed down Feb. 7.

Bock said he had introduced the bill in case of a court ruling to the contrary. The Little's then would have needed emergency help from the Legislature.

"They don't need it now but somebody else might, and that's why the Little's were here," he said.

Steve, who lost one kidney when he was four, had been admitted to the hospital in deteriorating condition Feb. 5, two days before the appeals court decision.

His remaining kidney was removed Feb. 15.

The youth is receiving dialysis treatments five hours a day and three days a week until the transplant takes place.

Mrs. Little said Anne understood some of the implications of the kidney transplant, and wanted to give her brother the kidney.

The court-appointed guardian for Anne's interests contested it because there was no Texas law on the subject.

The court ruled that the transplant should proceed because Anne would receive benefits.

The court said she faced the loss of a loved brother without the transplant and would receive from it self esteem and increased status in the family.

The people's pharmacy

by Joe Graedon

That column on hemorrhoids a while back has been filling up the mailbox. Most readers have been sending in favorite home remedies for this common problem.

I've gotten so many letters that I want to share some of them with you. While we don't guarantee any of these remedies and still recommend proper bathroom habits and a diet high in fiber, it seems only fair to pass along these well-intentioned suggestions.

One reader, Mr. W.F. from Holiday, Fla., had this to say: "Having had hemorrhoids for years and having used all the junk on the market which is greasy and does nothing for the users, please spread the word that just plain witch hazel does the trick. An old time doctor told me to use the witch hazel for the pain and itching after each visit to the 'john' and in no time at all the matter cleared up. I am taking the time to pass the word on because of the lies the preparation makers claim on TV that are sickening beyond words. Try witch hazel yourself for itching and after shaving."

Another reader, Mrs. C.C. from Garibaldi, Ore., disagreed with what we had to say about the leading preparation for hemorrhoids: "I have been reading your articles with interest and although I have never written to endorse a product before I cannot remain silent about Preparation H. I don't know chemistry, but I know it works for me."

Mrs. H.M. from Pinellas Park, Fla. says that her doctor recommended "whole berry cranberry sauce — eat plenty of it. I had been having enough (hemorrhoids) to be very uncomfortable and ready to try most anything, even if I didn't see how it would help. Well, I had no more trouble since. I used a whole can with a slice of bread for a start. I also added a couple of handfuls of bran to my dry cereal every morning and follow up with prunes. I rarely have any trouble with constipation and never have bought a laxative."

From Columbus, Ohio, Mrs.

O.L. wrote to say: "I have a sure-fire remedy of an old-fashioned kind which I would like to share with everyone. Mix equal parts of witch hazel, cider vinegar and water in a jar. Soak tissue or cotton with the mixture and gently apply it to painful hemorrhoids after each bowel movement at least once or twice a day."

These are just a few of the home remedies that readers offered.

We can't promise that any of these remedies will work, but it's worth pointing out that the dietary recommendations go along with our suggestion to add fiber and roughage in order to prevent constipation.

Witch hazel is an old-fashioned astringent. It is probably as good a cleansing agent as any of the expensive commercial preparations now being promoted for hemorrhoids.

But if you've got a severe pile problem we still recommend that you seek expert medical advice.

Student loan program proposed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — John Ackley of the U.S. Office of Education says, for the first time, the federal government is admitting Texas and other states can do something better than it can.

Ackley rotated a proposal Wednesday that would establish a public non-profit corporation to guarantee college student loans from private lenders.

The Senate Education Committee approved the bill, 9-0, and sent it to the full Senate. Committee chairman Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, offered the measure. He said it had been recommended by a special committee set up by the 1977 Legislature.

Texas already has a state-financed loan program for students who are unable to obtain money from private lenders.

Pullman stopping production

CHICAGO (AP) — Pullman Inc. is ending production of railroad passenger cars, including the sleepers associated for more than a century with long-range rail travel.

The firm's passenger car division will close after 1980 because of foreign competition and the fact that the division has turned a profit in only four of its last 25 years, vice president John S. Burr said. The decision was made Wednesday by the company's board of directors.

"What we can't figure out is how these foreign companies can produce the cars, have them shipped here and pay duties on them and still have prices 25 to 30 percent lower than ours," Burr said.

The passenger division will close after two major contracts — an order for 60 cars from Boston and 284 cars from Amtrak — are completed in 1980. Burr said. He said the division lost $23 million after taxes during the last four years.

The decision to close the passenger division does not affect the profitable freight and truck trailer divisions, he said. The firm's engineering and construction operation also will continue.

Pullman is the latest corporate casualty in the railroad passenger car manufacturing business. Besides General Electric, Burr said the only other major manufacturer in the United States is Budd Corp.
