Prices rise sharply

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sharply higher prices for food, housing and gasoline pushed consumer prices up 1.2 percent in February, the biggest monthly increase in inflation in 4½ years, the government said today.

Food prices rose 1.6 percent during the month, and were up 12.7 percent for the 12-month period ended in February. The government said meat prices rose another 4.9 percent and were up 26.4 percent for the February-to-February period.

Overall consumer prices for the 12 months ended in February were up by 9.9 percent.

The sharp one-month rise in the Consumer Price Index was more disappointing news for the Carter administration's already badly battered anti-inflation program. President Carter is known to be considering additional measures to try to hold down the surge in prices which is now about double what he has predicted for the year.

The 1.2 percent rise in the price index in February compared with a 0.9 percent rise in January and was the highest since a 1.2 percent rise in September 1974, a year in which inflation was at a postwar high of 12.2 percent.

If continued for a full year, the February rise in prices would mean a total inflation of 15 percent, double the administration's 1979 target of a 7.4 percent inflation rate.

The Labor Department also reported that workers' spendable income declined 0.8 percent during February, largely the result of inflation, and was down 1.2 percent for the 12-month period. The decline in spendable earnings could erode support among labor unions for Carter's wage guidelines, since it shows them losing additional ground to price increases.

The Consumer Price Index in February stood at 207.1 of the 1967 average of 100, meaning that goods priced at $100 in 1967 had risen in cost to $207.10 last month. The monthly price changes are adjusted for seasonal price variations.

The Labor Department gathers information for the price index by checking prices of food, clothing and other goods in 85 urban areas. Specific price information is obtained from 24,000 establishments, including grocery and department stores, hospitals and gasoline stations.

In most cases, the price information is obtained on the scene by trained representatives of the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics. In addition, it obtains information on housing and housing costs from over 18,000 tenants and for 18,000 housing units.

The Labor Department gave the following breakdown for various categories of price increases in February:

- Food and beverages 1.6 percent, up from 1.4 percent in January.
- Apparel and upkeep 0.3 percent, up from 0.2 percent.
- Transportation 1.1 percent, the same as January.
- Medical care 0.6 percent, down from 1.1 percent.
- Entertainment 0.4 percent, down from 0.8 percent.
- Other goods and services 0.7 percent, the same as January.

The 1.3 percent rise in housing costs was primarily due to a sharp 3.1 percent increase in mortgage interest costs, a 1.3 percent rise in housing prices and a 1.5 percent jump in property insurance, the Labor Department said.

Hospital receives accreditation

By DAN LACKEY
Pampa News Staff

Highland General Hospital has been awarded a two-year accreditation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals. Highland administrator Guy Hazlett announced yesterday.

The accreditation commission had originally cited the correction of all but 12 of a 108 listed hospital deficiencies at the hospital. Two years is the maximum accreditation time allotted state hospitals. Highland had previously been accredited for one year.

The announcement came in a luncheon meeting Thursday of the Gray County Hospital Board.

Speaking of the two-year accreditation, Hazlett said, "The public needs to rest assured that we are dispensing high quality care."

The hospital was last accredited for one year in November 1976. Since the commission did not conduct a survey at the close of 1977, continued accreditation had been assumed.

Both McLean and Highland General hospitals will come under the management of Hospital Corporation of America, a Nashville-based firm, in early April, pending completion of a contract currently being worked out with the county.

In what will probably be its final meeting as a governmental body, the hospital board approved expenditures up to $21,000 for the creation of a separate pediatric ward in Highland General.

The proposal was approved by the medical staff last week and was presented to the board by Dr. Edward Williams.

Williams said that hospital census figures had shown from five to 17 children in the hospital at one time and that pediatric cases were currently being scattered throughout the hospital. He said that a separate ward for children and babies would allow more concentrated care and facilities for "more adequately training pediatric nurses. Children could receive more nursing care than they are getting right now."

The proposed renovation would involve setting aside four rooms exclusively for children and babies and the renovation of another room into a pediatrics examining room. Williams said it was now necessary to conduct pediatric examinations in the hospital's emergency room.

A fifth room would be renovated into a parent waiting area, he said, allowing parents to spend more time with children in the hospital.

Williams said it was not now necessary to establish a separate pediatric surgical facility.

He said the new facilities should include special pumps for the intravenous feeding of babies.

In other business, the board formally approved a rough total of $170,945 in overdue accounts as delinquent so that collection of the money could be turned over to a collection agency.

Both county hospitals are showing a profit to date through February. According to hospital operating revenue figures, Highland General has a $123,773 profit. McLean Hospital showed a profit of $377.

Davis judge back

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The on-again-off-again divorce trial of Fort Worth millionaire Cullen Davis appears to be on again, but the presiding judge is still not sure where.

State District Judge John Barron said the trial will resume "whenever I get ready. But I'm going to be reasonable about it. I'm not going to play cry baby. I'll listen to reason. I feel like even if I'm embarrassed by going back to Fort Worth, I'll just have to do it."

Barron, a visiting judge from Bryan, threatened Wednesday to withdraw from the case and declare a mistrial after assistant District Attorney Jack Strickland presented him with a subpoena and seized the divorce trial records for presentation to a grand jury.

However, the judge reconsidered Thursday after reflecting in the comfort of his home in Bryan.

"They (the attorneys for both sides) have asked me to come back," Barron told the Associated Press Thursday. "I think I will. We will resume Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday of next week. I've got to go rabbit hunting you know."

"I'd rather have it here in Bryan. I wouldn't want to subject myself to that district attorney again."

Tarrant County District Attorney Tim Curry said Thursday he would seek a review by the Judicial Conduct Commission of what he termed "inappropriate conduct" by Barron, who accused one of Curry's assistants of disrupting the lengthy Cullen Davis divorce trial.

"Why Judge Barron chose to make those allegations is beyond me," Curry told KRLD radio in Dallas. "I don't propose to let it rest at this point. I intend to take the matter up with the Judicial Conduct Commission in Austin."

Curry's statement drew another double-barreled response from the fiery, rabbit-hunting jurist, still fuming over the actions of what he called a "wet-eared fool prosecutor."

"I'd be glad for him to do that," Barron retorted. "He hasn't got an ounce of a leg to stand on. You let him try that and I'll show you how to tear down a DA."

"Who do you think will win, a district judge or a district attorney?" Barron quipped.

Exchange students enjoy Pampa visit

Some Pampans threw out welcome mats, put out clean towels and made the beds with fresh sheets for foreign visitors during this week, designated for American Field Service students.

The high school students traveled from their countries to stay with an American family to learn of the culture in the United States.

The amount of time spent here varies with the AFS program taken by the young person.

The winter program allows a student to visit about 12 months while the summer one is about a three-month stay.

The foreign exchange student, as the AFS student is often called, can take a week's vacation from the routine of his adopted home and see the sights in another area.

"We pay for this trip," said AFS student, Pekka Saavalainen of Vanta, Finland in an interview Wednesday afternoon. He is spending the week with the family of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Simmons.

He and eight other exchange students have chosen to spend time in the Panhandle and spent the week in Pampa homes.

John Beecher, an Australian, is living at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gabe Crossman. He said he and Saavalainen came to this area to see the plains with its ranches and feedlots.

Yes, this is the "real kicker life," said Saavalainen, a 17-year-old who will complete his 11-month stay August 22.

Beecher, whose home in Australia is near the ranching and farming environment, agreed that some of the people were "real cowboys" — what one should look like.

The 17-year-old Australian, who will stay 12 months, has been in America since July 16 in Castro, which is 20 miles west of San Antonio, while Saavalainen is a student at Highland Park in Dallas.

The other AFS student has attended Pampa High School since it started last fall and stays at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ekleberry. He too will visit a week at another place — Dallas.

Rafael Anjuaz is from Basque, which is located in northern Spain and southern France.

He said that some factions in his home want desperately to separate from Spain and become an independent country, resulting in terrorism and small-scale fighting.

He said in the United States "a student has time to form himself." Students have variety and can expand as he chooses while the Spanish have no real specialization.

Ajanquaz, also a 17-year-old, said not enough public schools exist for the young people in his country, so many must go to private ones.

Anjuaz explains that he has become just another person in Pampa. "They call me Ralph and treat me as if I had been here all my life."

Saavalainen and Beecher said they too had become very much a part of their environments and thought the week vacation was well spent.

The weekly visitors said they have enjoyed their stay in this part of Texas, where students and parents have treated them special like newcomers.

The other AFS students, staying in the Panhandle, include Maria de Lou of Brazil, hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Anderson and Harvisha Ishida of Japan, staying with Mr. and Mrs. Leonel Ford.

Others are Francis Aludwe of Kenya, Africa, hosted by Mr. and Mrs. John A. Wheeler; Henrick Hansen of Sweden, staying with Mr. and Mrs. Troy Dunn; Bruno Michault, living at the home of Mrs. Nancy Kotara.

Shuttle still stranded

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Violent spring weather trapped the space shuttle Columbia and its mother ship, in the state of Texas for a third day.

NASA officials said they hope the turbulent weather between East Texas and Florida would subside long enough for the problem-plagued shuttle to make its scheduled 1 p.m. departure from Kelly Air Force Base Friday.

"We'll just sit tight," former astronaut Deke Slayton, commander of the journey, said Thursday of the weather. "We're at the mercy of the weather. Nobody can control that.

"It's lousy."

The hump-backed craft was supposed to complete its trip to Cape Canaveral, Florida on March 10.

But mechanical problems and bad weather in California delayed departure until Tuesday. The piggy-back creature was hung up in El Paso for two days because of severe thunderstorms and high winds whipping through West and Central Texas.

The craft can't be exposed to rain because about a fourth of the 75-ton shuttle's heat-resistant outside tiles still must be installed.

Thursday morning, the ship took off from El Paso without incident and landed before an estimated 20,000 persons in sunny San Antonio.

Slayton, who was following the jumbo jet in one of two T-38 chase planes, said he was pleasantly surprised by the large crowd Thursday.

"I couldn't believe it when we flew over on the first pass. The ground was solid people," said the astronaut. Under his blue NASA flight suit, Slayton wore a pair of cowboy boots.

"It was the nicest leg we've had," said Fitzhugh Fulton Jr.,

Good afternoon

News in brief

The forecast for today calls for winds out of the northwest at 20 to 30 mph, gradually diminishing this afternoon and becoming light and variable tonight. It will be mostly fair tonight with warmer temperatures expected on Saturday. Highs today will be in the low 50s, with the lows tonight reaching the low 30s. Wind warnings are still in effect on area lakes today.

Ground broken for apartments

Groundbreaking ceremonies for PAM Apartments, a housing project being constructed for low-income elderly people in Pampa, were conducted at 11 a.m. today at Kentucky Avenue and Wells Street.

A luncheon was served afterward at the Pampa County Club. Among the guest speakers were U.S. Rep. Jack Hightower, D-Vernon. A report on the groundbreaking and luncheon will appear in Sunday's News.

Record price paid for steer

CONROE, Texas (AP) — A Conroe discount store owner paid a record $22,000 Thursday for the Montgomery County fair grand champion steer.

The price Fort Howard paid for the 1,243 lb. steer raised by Conroe 4-H Club member Brad Green exceeded the previous record, set last year, by $1,000.

Connally Texan of Year

NEW BRAUNFELS, Texas (AP) — John Connally, described as a "once in a lifetime man who stands above all others," has been honored as Texan of the year by the 13th annual Texas Legislative Conference.

In presenting the award Thursday night before a crowd of 500 persons, Joe Kilgore, chairman of the New Braunfels Chamber of Commerce advisory committee, said Connally has brought credit to Texas in every position he has served.

After receiving a standing ovation, Connally said, "There are two things Texans are noted for — modesty and humility. I accept this award with both."

Entering a more serious vein, Connally said "The people of the United States should not assume the days of glory in the U.S. are over. Our shortages are shortages of common sense in Washington. We don't have to have shortages."

Blood pressure test works

PARIS (AP) — Three French doctors say they have devised a test that helps predict whether a person will develop high blood pressure in time for the disease to be prevented.

The test, hailed as a breakthrough in France, depends on a new theory of what keeps some people's blood pressure abnormally high.

Doctors have called high blood pressure a "silent killer" because it underlies many fatal strokes and heart attacks. Its sufferers include 35 million Americans.

Hospital bills paid

The Gray County Commissioners' Court today approved the payment of bills for Highland and McLean County Hospitals totalling $244,905.87, including about $12,000 in refunds. The expenditures approved are part of the internal hospital operating budget and do not require money from the county's general operating fund.

But the Court held off on reimbursing the hospital for $10,247 in payment for indigent care — half the cost of the total cost of indigent care for 1978.

Judge Carl Kennedy said that the reimbursement would be unnecessary since the cost of indigent care could be placed under the hospital's receivable accounts. These accounts, Kennedy said, will be purchased by Hospital Corporation of America, upon completion of the contract for the leasing of the co-County hospitals.

Indigent care in the county hospitals was less than one-half of one percent of the hospitals' receivable accounts in 1978.

In other action, the Court approved the opening of bids this month for county owned oil and mineral rights in Gaines County. Funds received from the leasing of the rights totalled about $2,200 last year. Under the state constitution, the money is administered by the county to supplement the permanent school fund.

The county is presently leasing the mineral and oil rights to Texaco and Enserch Exploration Inc.

The Court also discussed a proposed bill for the creation of a Water Import Authority for West Texas. The bill, which would create a master water district for all West Texas counties with land above the Ogallala Aquifer water table, would give the Authority power to negotiate water importation with surrounding states.

The Court has expressed reservations about supporting the bill in its present form, saying that it could give the authority an import authority to purchase water from private landowners which they say could deplete local water resources.

Commissioner O.L. Presley said "Importation of water is not the same as drilling for water (on private land). We have to protect what we have now."

The bill is being developed by Amarillo attorney E.T. Manning and is still in the process of revision through public discussion with landowners in West Texas.

An open discussion on the proposed bill will be held at the Chamber of Commerce building in Plainview Saturday at 10 a.m.

HEW: Marriage breaker

Money has been a factor in many an alienation of affection suit, but the action is usually brought against another person. It took an agency of the federal government to become the exception. A news story reveals that a husband has threatened to bring suit against the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) unless they stop sending $630 a month to his wife.

The man, Eddie Lovato, of Denver, says that his wife, who has two children from a previous marriage, left him once she realized that the Denver Income Maintenance Experiment (DIME) would send her the money he once received. "She feels she doesn't need me anymore," he said.

Lovato says he earns nearly $10,000 a year from a bank mail clerk job and he doesn't need the money. He said he has been trying for eight months to get the payments stopped. He says the tax-free money has destroyed his marriage and interrupted his life.

Citing government regulations which prohibit the disclosure of information about clients, DIME officials refused to comment to a reporter on the Lovato case. Officials did state that this HEW program has cost taxpayers $37 million since it was started in 1972. They also said that 250 families still participate in the program. There were 3,000 families originally recruited nationwide for the program, an official said.

Lovato maintains that even though he and his wife are separated, he is legally the head of the family and he should have a say as to whether she should receive the federal money. "If it weren't for me, she would not even be eligible to get the money," he said. He expressed the belief that if his wife did not receive the money she would come back to him. "She's different person from the person I married. It's the free money that has changed her," he said.

Although alienation of affection suits are not prevalent among the sides of personal triangles at this time, the above situation seems to follow the former classic examples of successful "love balm suits."

There is one big difference. The man will not be suing the HEW agency if it stops sending the unwanted (by him) money. He does say that if he can't get the payments stopped he will be seeking $1 million in damages.

The multi-million dollar program was an experiment to study the effects of a guaranteed income on family stability and work incentive. The bureaucrats may have found out a little on family stability from the giveaway program, as this case attests.

Did we need a $37 million study to find out how "free" money affects incentives? We believe a few employers of large numbers of people could have anticipated the results attained without a large-scale study promulgated by federal spenders.

Taxpayers could ask, "Just what did we get from the squandering of all this 'study' money and why will it continue until 1994?"

We suggest there probably are many stupid federal studies which could be stopped.

We hope Lovato gets the federal money stopped and his wife back; provided she wants to return, that is. The bureaucracy as the alienation leg of a family triangle is an interesting story angle, but it is far too costly. Taxpayers can remember this when Washington talks again of austere budgets.

Regulating electric power

An additional twenty-five nuclear plants began producing commercial electric power last year, but only six of them were in the United States. The balance of the nuclear reactors were started outside the nation where atomic power was first harnessed.

The Atomic Industrial Forum reveals that December was a record production month. Improved plant performance and the addition of the six nuclear units to the nation's electric grid helped boost nuclear power output in 1978 by more than 11 percent over the previous year.

By comparison, outside the United States an increase was more than twice that which was achieved here. Nuclear power output increased on foreign soil by 24.7 percent in 1978 over 1977.

In December, while much of the nation was in the grip of a severe and disruptive winter, 41 of the 65 plants operating showed capacity factors of 80 percent or better for the month.

Total nuclear electric output in the nation was 27.3 billion gross kilowatt-hours. For all of 1978, nuclear plants produced 292.6 billion gross kilowatt hours of electric power. This is about the amount of electricity that 30-million typical households would consume in a year.

If it had been necessary to produce that same amount of electricity from oil instead of by nuclear power, 470 million barrels would have been used. This is about 100 million barrels more than the United States imported annually from Iran before the revolution there.

The question quickly arises, if the power industry had not been slowed during the last ten years and nearly brought to a complete halt last year, would increase nuclear availability bridged most of the gap as imports from Iran stopped?

Perhaps there would still be oil shortage problems, but with more nuclear power coming on stream in a progressive manner there would have been many alternate options available. It is not unreasonable to assume that with alternate options, there would be far less excuse for consideration of political action.

We have a bunch of regulators in Washington just itching for enough oil-shortage concern to be generated so that the people can be stampeded into some form of government rationing. And they well know that a ration plan will be only the beginning in reaching their primary goal of a nationalized petroleum industry.

Although they may be viewed as strange bedfellows, those who seek nationalization of industry (socialism) and those who are simply anti-industrial-progress complement each other's activities as they both throw every conceivable roadblock before all types of electric power production increase.

The sad part of it is that both groups make up only a minute part of the nation's people. What the lack in numbers is offset by the amount of disruption and noise they are able to generate. For the most part they are the people who have their own good life assured and lack for nothing in those benefits derived from resource use.

We sometimes wonder who would be the first in line to demonstrate if light, heat and creature comforts were denied?

Create goods, not jobs

Hardly a day goes by that one does not hear of a group of people losing their jobs because their employer has moved, lost a contract or gone out of business. This is seen as a disaster about which something should be done by the community.

When the Detroit city council proposed to substitute one-man trash trucks for the three-man vehicles now gathering the rubbish, the trash gatherers' union objected, saying that 140 men would lose their jobs. To the union it seemed the work was done not to keep the city clean but to keep the cleaners employed.

Sometime ago a steel mill in Youngstown, Ohio, closed, disemploying hundreds. The steel company was denounced for its act. Now, workers and community organizations, including churches, are moving to set up a sort of cooperative to take over and reopen the plant. If the veteran steel company could not make steel there profitably, one wonders why the Youngstown people assume they could do so.

The most strenuous opposition to Mexicans entering the southwest to look for work in the lettuce fields of California comes from American labor unions which protest on the ground that the Mexicans take jobs away from the union members, actual and potential. Because these happened to live on this side of the border, they had a prior right to the jobs. Apparently it did not matter that the employers could get their work done more cheaply by the Mexicans and so could provide more and cheaper lettuce to the consumers.

A couple of centuries ago, a man named Lud in England led workers in smashing the machines that had been newly introduced in the factories. The Luddites believed the machines were robbing them of their jobs. Two hundred years have passed, and evidently we still have not made up our minds whether men work to eat or eat to work.

When a person takes a job, the employer does not, as a rule, agree to employ him for the rest of his life or for any specific period, nor does the employee agree to work indefinitely. Either can sever their relationship at any time (unpss, as in the case of ball players, there is a signed contract for a specified number of years).

The wage worker would be up in arms if told that he could not quit at will, but the employer who drops a worker at will is execrated as a bad citizen.

A merchant buys an order of goods from a wholesaler. If the goods do not sell well, perhaps the merchant will buy no more of that line. The wholesaler's salesman is disappointed - he has lost a commission and his employer has lost a sale - but the community does not get upset about it, as it easily may when an employer ceases buying the labor of a number of employees. The salesman does not complain to his union, if any, but hustles to find another buyer.

For the economic system to work at all efficiently, people must be free to adjust to changes. Nothing remains the same for long, and it is impossible for anyone to see far ahead with accuracy.

Workers must be mobile, ready to move from one job to another and even from one place to another. And though every worker should have a specialty, a line of work in which he excels, he also should be somewhat versatile. He cannot be sure that demand for his specialty will not decline, leaving him unemployed unless he can adapt to another kind of work, often a more lowly kind. Lack of worker willingness to move his location and lack of adaptability are two frequent causes of unemployment.

If workers are to be free, they must accept responsibility for finding employment. The world owes nobody a living, nor are employers responsible for providing jobs. The employer's role, on the contrary, is to economize all costs of production, including labor, so that goods can be produced and sold to consumers at minimum prices.

The purpose of the economy is to create abundance, not to create jobs. All people are benefited by abundance but only a fraction by jobs, yet oddly enough government functionaries at all levels cater to people who want jobs, not those who want goods. The consumer is the forgotten man. For example, municipal or state government officials try to lure an employer to locate in the area of their jurisdiction. Then they can boast, "We created X number of jobs in this area."

Often a firm is bribed to come by offer of a tax advantage. Any firm that escapes taxes should be congratulated. However, the taxpayers as a whole gain nothing when a firm is lured to move from one location to another. Firms should locate where their own business interests are best served, without regard to the bait that may be offered.

At the point where imported goods are taxed, the consumer again gets short-changed. The politicians of every country, this one included, think they must "protect" domestic producers against foreigners who might undersell them. Domestic consumers would enjoy those lower prices being quoted by the foreigners, but not, they must pay and pay. American consumers, not foreign producers, pay the cost of American protective tariffs. Nothing is protected but inefficiency.

The joker in all this is, of course, that the producers are all consumers too. I the consumers got maximum abundance at minimum cost, demand would be maximized and this would result in a abundance of jobs at good wages.

Such a deal

by martha angle and robert walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) - If ever an industry should welcome a chance to clean up its image, it's the used car dealers so universally identified in the public's view with sleazy sales practices, unreliable products and fast-buck artistry.

But with typical shortsightedness, used car dealers are strenuously resisting proposed government regulation that could significantly enhance consumer confidence in their industry and possibly increase their sales as well.

The Federal Trade Commission, pursuant to a 1974 mandate from Congress, is nearing the end of a lengthy rule-making process that promises to give consumers their first real protection in buying a used car from a dealer.

And this is one proposed regulation that should save car buyers money in the long run, despite dealer claims to the contrary. It would do so by giving consumers an accurate assessment of a car's mechanical condition before purchase, sparing the buyer nasty post-sale surprises and repair bills.

Simply described, the proposed FTC rule would require dealers to inspect all used cars offered for sale and to check off, on a window sticker, "OK" or "NOT OK" for more than a dozen items ranging from "engine" and "electrical system" to

"accessories" and "tires." The back of the form would carry a more detailed description of what constitutes "OK."

The form would also show the correct mileage of each car, its past uses (private owner, rental car, taxi, etc.) and whether it had even been declared a total loss for insurance purposes.

Dealers wouldn't have to fix "Not OK" items before selling a car - just identify them, so the buyer knows what he's getting, and list the approximate cost for repairs. But if a buyer found an item that had been checked "OK" actually wasn't, the dealer would have to fix it free of charge.

The FTC staff, in its multi-year investigation of the used car business, found an enormous imbalance in the information available to consumers and dealers about the true quality of a car.

Dealers routinely inspect cars before they acquire them for resale, but they seldom pass on what they know about the car's mechanical condition to prospective buyers.

Instead, they spruce up the car's appearance, knowing most consumers will believe that good looks can be equated with good mechanical condition - which is far from true.

Few consumers can afford the time or expense to obtain an independent mechanical inspection of a car before purchase, and even fewer are competent to assess quality themselves.

Dealers claim the sort of inspection the FTC plans to require could add anywhere from $100 to $600 to the cost of a typical used car, but the experience in Wisconsin - the only state which already has such a program - refutes these claims. Dealers there report an average inspection cost of only $15.

What many dealers really fear is that consumers will be reluctant to buy used cars with major items "Not OK," and that dealer pre-sale repair costs will consequently increase.

That, it would seem, is not only possible but probably desirable. Why should car buyers get stuck with huge, unexpected repair bills after purchasing an auto when the dealer could have fixed it before sale at a far lower cost?

Indeed, most car buyers would undoubtedly be willing to pay a higher initial price for a good-quality car, knowing they were getting what they paid for. But who wants to pay cream-puff prices and wind up with a lemon? All too often, that is what happens today.

The government can't shield consumers from all risks in the marketplace, and shouldn't try to do so. But the proposed FTC rule would at least insure that used car buyers have the information they need to make an intelligent assessment of the risks involved in their purchase.

Whats a billion?

Those who have not filed their tax returns for 1978 have 23 days remaining before the April 15 deadline.

While we are counting our dollars and dimes in anticipation of April 15, it is difficult to think in terms of billions of dollars. But President Carter has plans for the federal government to spend $532 billion during the federal fiscal year beginning October 1.

Editorial writers, like their readers, have difficulty grasping the size of a billion. So when someone working for the magazine U.S. News & World Report put his calculator in high gear, we thought you would be interested in the results.

To give you an idea of the size of the government's budget:

- Laid end-to-end and side-by-side, 532 billion $1 bills would pave a strip three quarters of a mile wide from New York to Los Angeles, or cover an area the size of Delaware.

- At February, 1979 prices, $532 billion would buy 41.7 billion barrels of oil, as much as the U.S. imports in 14.3 years at 1978 levels.

- The printing of 532 billion $1 bills would take the government's printing bureau 121 years if it worked seven days a week.

- In new Susan B. Anthony $1 coins, $532 billion would weight 9,975,000,000 pounds.

- And finally, if you had been given $532 billion, how long do you think it would take you to spend it if you could manage to spend $100,000 per minute? The answer is that you would have a full-time job spending money, day and night, for slightly more than 10 years.

Well, back to the 1040.

Money may not be there for city employee raises

When the city commission prepared the current city budget last summer, it approved a pay plan that gave a 10 percent raise to all city employees on Oct. 1, 1978. Further adjustments were to have been made by April 1, 1979 on the salaries of some employees still not in line with the plan.

Now the city manager's staff is deciding which employees will get additional raises, a process City Manager Mack Wofford describes as difficult. And Wofford and his staff don't know yet if money for the raises will be available in April.

Any new pay increases have to be limited to funds already budgeted for salaries, Wofford said. That money may be tied up for other purposes at the moment, he said. If so, employees will just have to wait.

because no new sources will be used to fund the increases.

"If the money is not available in April, we may have to push adjustments back to the end of July," Wofford said. "If it's not there, then we just can't do it."

Wofford said the salary adjustments "will only affect a very small minority of employees." Percentages of adjustment will vary widely, he said. Some employees may receive an eight percent increase, while others will get nothing.

The city's pay plan, developed by the Public Administration Service, establishes a class code for each employee activity, based on education and skill requirements. A scale lists a suggested salary spread among the employee classes.

"With employees, it's difficult to evaluate the skills and qualities that determine what we pay a person," Wofford said. "I feel the pay plan is a good, workable plan for the city to reduce turnover and increase productivity."

Wofford said he and Personnel Director David Callison have worked "quite a bit" lately trying to determine which employees will receive the new increases, should the money be available next month.

"It appears at this moment that it's going to be about April 1 before we make an announcement concerning it," Wofford said. "During the next week we'll get very close to putting it together."

Oilman offers $100,000 for answers to problems

HOUSTON (AP)—Houston oilman George Mitchell says if you take the presidents of the top 1,000 corporations in the United States and "told them to start searching for answers to some of the world's problems, they wouldn't know what you are talking about."

Mitchell, son of Greek immigrants and now a Texas multimillionaire, said in a recent interview. "Even some of my friends want to know what the hell I'm doing in this alternatives to growth program and if I have lost my marbles."

The oilman is one of the sponsors of a biennial conference on the problems of global growth, ranging from energy shortages to the population explosion. And, from his own pocket, he is offering $100,000 in cash to those who present the best answers.

A 58-year-old balding bundle of energy and ideas, Mitchell said he offered the prizes to stimulate interest in the conference and "to get the message to my counterparts that what happens in other parts of the world will have an impact on our nation."

"If officials of just the top 200 companies would use their skills, all the troubles facing us in the future could be erased," he said.

Mitchell has drilled more than 3,000 wells, discovered 100 oil fields and 125 gas fields and, with a grant from the federal government, built a complete new city called The Woodlands on 20,000 acres about 30 miles north of downtown Houston.

The third of the limit to growth seminars is scheduled at The Woodlands Oct. 28-31. At that time Mitchell will present the $10,000 first place award, eight other prizes of $5,000 each and another $50,000 to specially prepared papers on the growth problems to be discussed during the conference.

Mitchell said, "some inroads have been made in solving growth problems, but it may be another five to 10 years before we see solid answers."

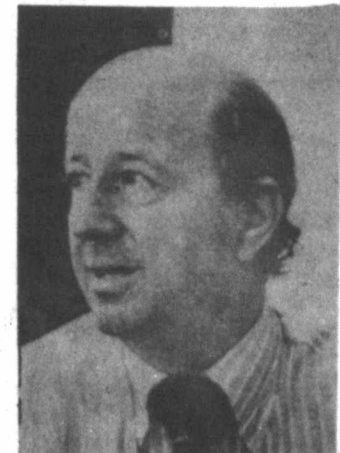

"We must remember that one-fourth of the world's population only makes $100 a year. We are dreaming if we think these millions of persons will always be passive."

"We must find answers to the population growth, to the demands of new energy, to depleting resources, to the deterioration of farm land, the delivery of health care and other social services."

Mitchell predicted one of the major problems will be in Mexico where population control is running out of control. New oil discoveries won't help them, he said, in that area.

"There must be a solution to the population growth or there could be an upheaval there in the next 10 years," Mitchell said.

"When there is trouble in Mexico, it will have an impact on the United States and that is what the people must understand. Once they realize this, efforts can be made to find solutions and perhaps even the government will get involved," he said.

Bell to give investigator free hand

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Griffin B. Bell is laying down rules today giving "a good deal of independence, fairly broad power" to the investigator he appointed to look into finances of President Carter's family peanut business, a spokesman says.

Release of a charter spelling out powers and job protection of the new "special counsel" comes amid continuing complaints about Bell's refusal to appoint a "special prosecutor" instead.

police notes

Charles Davis of 1233 Williston reported the theft of 22 caliber Browning automatic pistol and carrying case, valued at $129.

Travis Lively Jr. of the Pampa Hardware Store at 120 N. Cuyler reported the theft of four pairs of Converse and one pair of Adidas tennis shoes, valued at $30 a pair, from the store. A description of suspects was given to the police.

Jo Dean Wisdom, 402 S. Finley, reported the theft of $100 from her purse at her residence.

Weather Texas weather

By The Associated Press
Winds gusted to near 50 mph in North Texas today, prompting the National Weather Service to warn persons driving compact cars and high profile vehicles to exercise caution.

Forecasters said northerly and northwesterly winds of 30 mph with gusts to near 50 mph were being reported throughout North Texas.

Winds gusted to near 50 mph in the Dallas-Fort Worth area and at Amarillo Thursday night as a cold front moved rapidly through the state.

Forecasters called for mostly clear skies, cooler temperatures and high winds today. The wind was to diminish by night.

No precipitation was reported around the state today after several days of heavy rain and severe thunderstorms around many sections of the state. Forecasts for the weekend made no mention of precipitation.

National

Heavy rain pushed slowly across the nation's midsection today, causing some flooding in Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota.

Showers drenched eastern Kansas, much of the Mississippi Valley and the upper Great Lakes region with some heavier precipitation spreading into the Ohio Valley.

Thunderstorms reached the central Gulf Coast region through western Kentucky and eastern Missouri while to the northwest snow spread from western Kansas and eastern Nebraska into northern Minnesota.

Major flooding has occurred along several rivers in west-central and northwestern Iowa with several roads and highways in the area closed due to high water.

FORECAST

SHOWERS AND RAIN are expected for most of the Atlantic coast states through Saturday morning. Rain and snow are expected for the Midwest and Great Lakes. Colder weather is forecast for the central plains, but most of the country will be mild.

Edwards two votes shy

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The question marks turned into exclamation points against W.B. "Monk" Edwards on Thursday as the Senate rejected his appointment as a Houston district judge.

Edwards, a former Gulf Oil lawyer who once characterized himself as a "whipping boy" for the huge corporation, was the first appointee of Gov. Bill Clements to fall in the Senate.

Needing 21 votes for confirmation, Edwards was two short, 19-12.

Another major Clements appointee, Dallas bank executive William Daves Jr., was confirmed as a member of the State Insurance Board, 29-0.

"I thought that we might win it," Clements said of Edwards. "We counted noses, and there were some question marks, and it turned out they fell out on the wrong side, and I am disappointed."

"It was awfully close," Clements told reporters. "It was unfortunate."

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, said the governor's office had placed "unbelievable pressure" on senators to confirm Edwards, 58. "Please help me defeat this sorry appointment," Brooks said.

Clements was asked about implied political and financial threats, and he responded, "I think that is nothing more than political baloney. I know of no such threats, and I think that is nothing more than political rhetoric."

Clements said he had talked with a few senators, but the conversations were "friendly. There was an honest difference of opinion. We were in every instance agreeable. I didn't have any bad conversations with anybody."

Clements said the senators felt it was "not good" that Edwards had no court experience, that he was not a trial lawyer.

"No pressure was applied," Clements said, but he added, "We were letting everybody know we were standing behind our nominee."

Controversy over Edwards' appointment surfaced at a hearing of the Senate Nominations Committee earlier this month.

Edwards testified he had delivered a sealed envelope years ago from Gulf's Washington lobbyist, Claude Wild Jr., to former Gov. Preston Smith, and he said he assumed the envelope contained cash.

He said, however, he was unaware that the money came from an illegal company slush fund or that such a fund existed.

The fund, Gulf acknowledged, existed from about 1959 to 1973.

Edwards took early retirement from Gulf in 1976, after the fund had been widely publicized.

Asked in subcommittee by Sen. Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler, if he thought Gulf had used him and Wild as a "whipping boy," Edwards replied: "I don't think that statement can be restricted to just me and Claude Wild."

In public debate Thursday, following a closed-door session that lasted nearly an hour, Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston, said Edwards had not asked if the envelope reportedly given to Smith contained corporate funds.

"In retrospect, I'm sure he's thought 1,000 times that he should have asked that question," Ogg said.

Ogg said he had not heard any testimony nor received any letters or calls saying "they did not think this man was qualified, except what one person said in executive session."

Ogg said Edwards "has been endorsed openly by the Houston Bar Association and by his peers."

Although 15 of the 19 votes Edwards got were from Democrats, Ogg said the appointment "may be contrary to some of our political parties — that's what it all about." All four Republicans supported Edwards.

"He (Edwards) has integrity. He is qualified," said Ogg.

minor accidents

A 1978 Yamaha motorcycle driven by Donald Joe Williams of 2129 N. Zimmers was eastbound on East Harvester when the throttle on the motorcycle became stuck. Williams reportedly lost control of the cycle while attempting to disengage the throttle and was thrown off, suffering a broken right arm. He was taken to Highland General Hospital by private vehicle.

A 1976 Chevrolet driven by Stephen McDougall of 1920 Holly and a 1972 Buick driven by James Crouch of 416 Jupiter were in collision at the intersection of 18th and Evergreen. McDougall was cited for improper passing and Crouch was cited for an improper turn.

A 1971 Chevrolet driven by Debra Jean Blue of 908 Fisher was westbound on Brown and turned onto South Cuyler, striking a brick building 20 feet east of Cuyler. Blue was arrested and charged with driving while intoxicated.

A 1968 Buick LeSabre struck a properly parked vehicle at 516 S. Barnes and left the scene. The unoccupied Buick was located in the 500 block of S. Cuyler and was impounded as evidence by police.

Police located the drivers Thursday of two vehicles involved in hit-and-run accidents earlier in the week. Charles Clifford Walser of 1901 N. Christy was identified as the driver of a car which Tuesday struck an unattended vehicle belonging to Tammy Robinson at the intersection of Huff and Crawford. Walser was cited for failure to stop and leave information at the scene of an accident, and unsafe lane change.

Billy Ferguson of 416 N. Ballard was located as the driver Wednesday of a vehicle that struck 11-year-old Tom Ed Johnson as he was crossing South Cuyler Street on his bicycle. According to police, the incident is being investigated to determine what charges should be brought against Ferguson.

Dear Abby

by abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: I've been divorced three years and have a 15-year-old son who lives with me. For the last eight months I have been dating a man I care a great deal for, but we are not engaged. (I'll call him Bob.)

When my son visits his father, which is nearly every weekend, Bob sleeps over, but I never let him sleep with me when my son is home.

This has caused some serious arguments between us. Bob insists that it wouldn't make any difference to my son if we slept together while he was home. I think it would, and I'm not about to ask him.

Do you think I'm being "deceitful and phony" to stick to my decision? My friend says I am.

How do other women in my position handle this?
NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: I think your behavior can be more appropriately described as "discreet" than deceitful and phony.

Stick to your decision.

DEAR ABBY: I'm sure you've heard of Peeping Toms, but I'll bet you've never heard of Peeping Tina.

Tina is my wife, and she's got this thing about looking at naked men.

We have a view of a large apartment building from our bedroom window, and Tina gets a kick out of looking at men in various stages of undress. While I'm watching TV she stands in the dark bedroom hoping to get a glimpse of a naked guy. She knows what time certain neighbors undress for bed and who pulls down the shades and who doesn't, and that's her entertainment.

Now I'm not a prude, and I've never denied Tina a good look at me in my birthday suit, so I can't understand why she's so fascinated with naked men. Is something wrong with her? She's 35 and I'm 37.

PUZZLED IN MANHATTAN

DEAR PUZZLED: If Tina's preoccupation with naked men is sudden, maybe something is wrong with her. Such curiosity is considered normal in adolescent children, but at 35 your wife should have outgrown it. She's too young to be considered a dirty old lady, but don't laugh it off. Talk it out. It's obviously sexual. Maybe Tina's missing something.

DEAR ABBY: I know a widow in her 70s who is quite remarkable. (I'll call her Aunt Libby.) Circumstances are such that this lady has had to make her home with her daughter for the last 12 years. Aunt Libby is active, cheerful and a joy to be with. Best of all, she knows how to keep from being in the way.

Aunt Libby makes herself available to stay in the homes of parents who want a responsible adult there for a weekend or longer.

She does this not so much for the money (which she can use, of course) but she likes to get out of her daughter's home for a while. I have even known her to spend her own money to go to a motel for a few days—saying she needs HER privacy, when it is really her wish to give her daughter's family THEIR privacy.

What do you think of a woman like that?
IDAHO READER

DEAR READER: I think she deserves to be nominated for mother of the year.

Dr. Lamb

by lawrence lamb m.d.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My husband is 57 years old. He has become very depressed and his personality has changed. He takes Aldomet, Dalmane and Diazide and some other medicines. He takes all of these except the Dalmane on an empty stomach.

He drinks whiskey and beer with his medicine. I am so worried. Please tell me if all these can be mixed. What will this do to him?

DEAR READER: I presume that your husband has a problem with high blood pressure or he wouldn't be getting Aldomet and Diazide. Both are good medicines and are commonly used in the treatment of high blood pressure.

The Dalmane is a sleeping pill and like all other sleeping pills is not recommended to be used regularly on a continuous basis, although it can be prescribed intermittently for individuals who have problems sleeping.

Any of the sedatives are depressors of the brain and nerve function. That's how they work. Alcohol is also a depressant. People who use sedatives should not be drinking alcohol. Also, alcohol is never a help to a person who has a problem with a depression. It's common for people who have a depression to have difficulty sleeping.

Why is your husband depressed? Is it because he has high blood pressure and is concerned about his health? Is it because he is in his middle years and is going through certain adjustments that are fairly common at that stage of life?

If he is having enough difficulty to be using whiskey and beer to cope with his life situations, I think he definitely should seek some professional help. By that I mean a psychiatrist. An evaluation of his basic problem could lead to his being able to resolve the difficulties. It could mean that he might need less medicine.

It is important to realize that almost all serious illnesses represent two disorders, not just one. First there is the serious illness, such as heart disease or high blood pressure. The second disorder is the psychological reaction to the original disease.

The normal reaction to finding out that you have a disease that cannot be quickly and easily cured is to be anxious about it. Depending upon the nature of the illness it can cause you to be depressed. Both problems must be treated to provide real relief for the patient.

The Antique Show

comes to town

PART OF THE busy scene yesterday in the Heritage Room, M.K. Brown Auditorium, as the dealers unpack their antiques in readiness for the crowd expected to attend this year's Antique Show.

By JUNE ALEXANDER
Pampa News Staff

It's antique show time again.

Each year for the past 17 years, Twentieth Century Cotillion Club has brought an array of antiques to Pampa from all over the state as well as from Kansas and Oklahoma.

The antique show came into being when members of the Twentieth Century Cotillion Club decided to adopt a project for the entire Panhandle area as well as the local projects they were supporting.

One of the members heard Milton Morris speak of the Opportunity Plan, Inc. which is a student loan program enabling a student to borrow money, interest free, to use for college or tradeschool. The money is then repayable at any time within two years after the student leaves school.

The money has been used by 66 students from Panhandle towns. As it was repaid, it was loaned again.

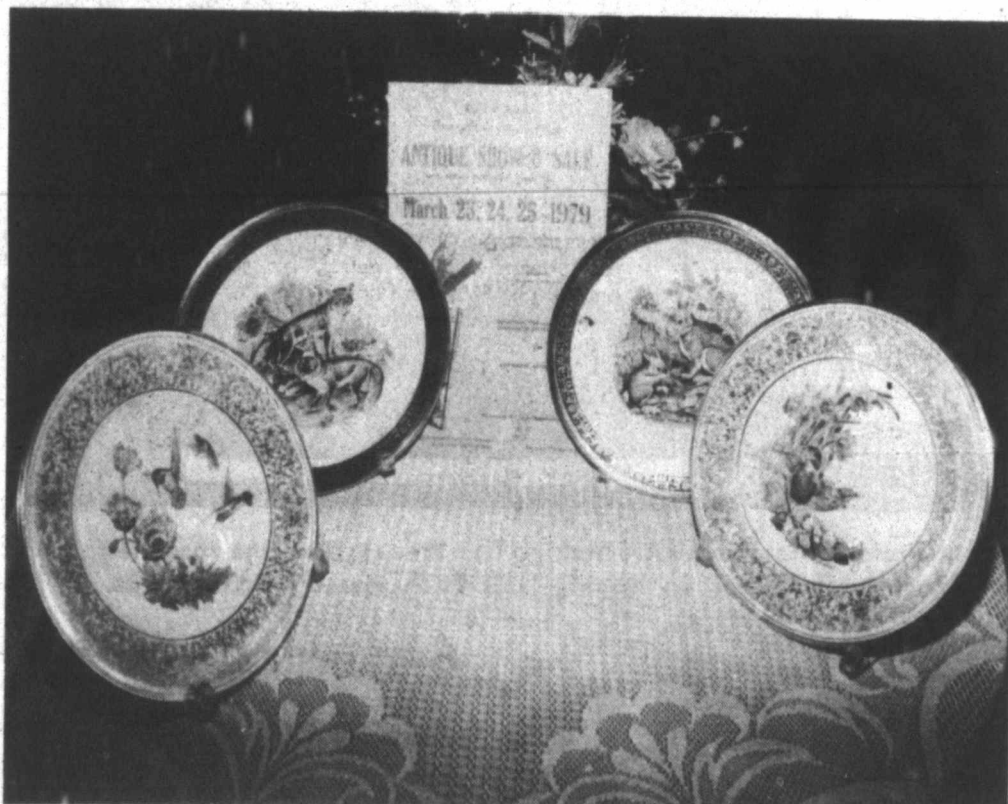

Most of the students in the program are not necessarily honor students, student leaders, or those qualifying for scholarships. Many times they are in the lower half of their high school class - kids with whom no other group would take a chance. But they are anxious to further their education and, without the Opportunity Plan, it might not be possible for them to do so.

This year's antique show and sale opened today at the M.K. Brown Auditorium. The hours are 10:30 a.m. - 9 p.m. Friday - Saturday, and 1 p.m. - 6 p.m. Sunday. There are 17 dealers showing their wares and it promises to be a great show.

Jones to lead music at revival

Theiss Jones, Minister of Music for the First Baptist Church in Temple, will be leading the music for the Spring revival at the Central Baptist Church. The revival will begin April 1 and continue through April 8 with the theme "Alive in Christ."

Mr. Jones has served at the Temple church since 1971 and has previously served at churches in Miami, Florida; and Dallas, Ft. Worth, Electra, Waco, and others.

Currently Mr. Jones is a member of The Centurymen, a one hundred voice male choir made up of Southern Baptist Ministers of Music from across the nation. This singing group is sponsored by the Southern Baptist Convention radio and Television Commission.

Mr. Jones did both undergraduate and graduate work at Baylor University. While in college he was a member of several choirs and served as a student director. He has served as soloist for numerous programs and has directed music for revivals in Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, and Florida.

Court: Church can be sued as denomination

SAN DIEGO (AP)—A court's ruling that the United Methodist Church as a denomination can be sued in a multimillion-dollar class action suit is unprecedented, and could affect all major churches, an attorney for the church says.

The ruling by a California Court of Appeals held that the denomination as a whole is subject to suit in an action charging fraud in sale of bonds in connection with the bankrupt Pacific Homes, retirement facilities run by the church's West Coast branch.

The decision reversed an earlier lower-court ruling, dismissing the denomination as a whole from the litigation.

Attorney Samuel W. Witwer Sr. of Chicago, chief counsel for the sponsoring church units, called the decision a "landmark" that if allowed to stand would affect "all other religious, fraternal and social organizations using a common name."

He said the opinion is "the first published ruling in 200 years of American history in which a church is held to be responsible for the actions of a localized unit"—that it was like the Vatican being made subject to claims against a local parish.

NEW YORK (AP)—Thomas A. Murphy, chairman of General Motors, has been named national chairman of the 1979 interfaith National Bible Week. He succeeds Donald E. Procknow, president of Western Electric, who headed the 1978 observance.

Church celebrates anniversary

The Grace Baptist Church, 824 S. Barnes, will celebrate its second anniversary Sunday morning with a special service of singing and worship.

The Singing Wills Family will be on hand to celebrate the church's second birthday. Four young preachers — Tommy Parks, Rick Korsmo, David Watkins and Danny Regen — will speak at the service, which will begin at 10.

The public is invited to attend the services, which will be followed by a dinner in the church fellowship hall.

Dr. Hope here Sunday night

Dr. Dan Hope, a versatile evangelist and the president of World Bible Way Fellowship, Inc. will be speaking at Lamar Full Gospel Assembly on 1200 S. Sumner Sunday night at 7. Dr. Hope believes and preaches the Bible: the Blood and the Blessed Hope. Following, there will be a special ordination ceremony for Steve Rogers, associate minister.

Spring sing set for Saturday

The "Spring Sing" will be held Saturday night at 7:30 at the Foursquare Gospel Church, 712 Lefors St.

The evening of music will feature Philip Elsheimer, Dennis and Norma Godwin, as well as other local talent. We will enjoy some old fashioned congregational singing and refreshments afterward. The public is cordially invited.

"Thou wilt shew me the path of life: in thy presence is fulness of Joy..."
PSALM 16-11

HERE IS THE PATH

Eternal Vigil...

Salt air, the beating of heavy waves, and rains... these are just a few of the elements that a ship must face constantly. With all of these things, it is little wonder that the crew must be alert, looking for rust and other damage. New paint to protect the ship must be applied regularly.

An individual faces many things in this world, that would rust and corrupt his life, therefore it is good to begin each week with a renewing of spirit, that can be obtained only through worship in the Lord's house.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Russian priest fights authorities

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia's most charismatic religious figure has come under renewed pressure from authorities in a move against what some Christians say is a revival of faith among the young.

Supporters of the Rev. Dmitri Dudko say uniformed and plainclothes policemen have intimidated worshippers at his small Russian Orthodox church outside Moscow, standing about inside during the services and roughing up two people outside.

Dudko, who has said "it won't do any good to threaten me, I'm ready for anything," is an officially ordained priest who has become a popular underground figure among young Christians who pass his unofficial writings from hand to hand.

The priest, 57, small and balding with a fringe of long, white hair, has been interrogated and harassed, and in recent years was moved to a small parish after holding a series of unusual question-and-answer sessions for believers in the normally sedate Russian Orthodox Church.

His attempts to connect religion with everyday life have been seen as a challenge to Soviet authorities, who allow the church to survive only in severely restricted form.

Most priests conform, confining their activities to church ritual, and Russia's leading church figures regularly receive Communist Party awards for speaking out on behalf of Kremlin foreign policy.

About 50 million people in the nation of 260 million are said to be Russian Orthodox believers. About 7,500 churches remain open, less than one-tenth the number before the Bolshevik revolution in 1917.

Members of a group of dissident priests who admire Dudko say he appeals particularly to a new generation of young people trying to fill "an emptiness in their lives." These priests claim church attendance around the country by the young has been increasing.

"I have decided to be daring," Dudko said after initiating his "discussions" with his congregation. "The priest cannot worry about what might happen... If he must suffer, then that will be the greatest joy and the most convincing answer to all questions."

His first 11 discussions in 1973, published in the West as a book called "Our Hope," led to a series of police interrogations that Dudko has described in detail in underground writings.

He was moved to a small church in Kabanova, 53 miles outside the city, and later to the small church where he now serves in Grebnovo, also just outside the radius in which foreigners are allowed to travel. But he has continued his discussions at Grebnovo, conducting some three dozen in 1977.

The "discussions" deal with basic questions, "the meaning of Scripture, as well as with social problems that also concern the Soviet press — drunkenness, divorce, 'hooliganism.'"

Priest beaten at border crossing

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Federal customs officials have opened an inquiry into allegations of a 39-year-old Roman Catholic priest that U.S. Customs called him "just another Mexican S.O.B." and beat him during a border crossing inspection Tuesday.

About 50 parishioners marched in a silent demonstration Wednesday outside El Paso's largest Catholic church, Our Lady of Light, to protest the actions of government agents at the border. The priest has been serving the church for 11 years.

Bitterness over immigration officials' actions about two weeks ago led to other demonstrations, with swarming mad Juarez residents blocking traffic on the bridges over the Rio Grande that link Texas and Mexico.

The Rev. Jessie Munoz said he was beaten as he re-entered the United States.

"I was thrown against the wall five times inside an office they have for questioning," Munoz said.

"I was stripped of my clothes. They slapped me down when I tried to say anything. As I was about to say I was Father Munoz, one said, 'Oh, you're just another Mexican S.O.B.'"

Charles Conroy, public information officer for the Houston Customs region, said federal law requires they inspect people coming across the border. He said they try to do it as courteously as possible, "but a federal inspection process is not savory to some people."

"We are in the process of interviewing all the people involved, including Father Munoz and the customs inspectors. We are getting written statements from the inspectors," said Conroy, who predicted the investigation would be completed by Monday or Tuesday.

Chief inspector Andy Towndrow added:

"We have initiated an investigation and until all the facts are gathered we cannot comment."

Vince Moore, a U.S. Customs internal affairs officer, said no one ordered the investigation.

"When an incident of this nature occurs it is automatic that we conduct an investigation," said Moore.

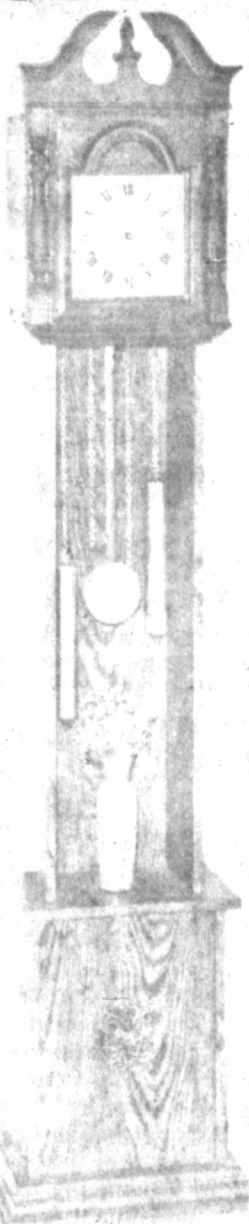

Munoz said he had went to neighboring Juarez to help a Colorado couple trying to return to El Paso after a fight on the town.

He said it was not the first time he had noticed animosity on the part of U.S. officials at the bridges, but "physical assault is new."

Carter's popularity at lowest level since 1976

BY EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — After the Camp David Mideast summit last year, Americans' opinion of President Carter soared. But his successful Middle East shuttle diplomacy this month didn't raise his standing in the eyes of the public, an Associated Press-NBC News poll found.

Americans do approve of Carter's efforts to get Egypt and Israel to sign a peace treaty, the poll taken Monday and Tuesday shows.

What they don't like is the way the president has dealt with energy and the economy — two issues nearer to Americans' everyday cares than foreign affairs.

The public's ratings of Carter's work on economic and energy problems are at the lowest levels ever found for the Democratic chief executive in these specific areas.

In sum, these changes add up to essentially no change in the public's opinion of Carter's work overall.

Twenty-nine percent of those interviewed rated Carter's performance excellent or good. That is not significantly higher than the 28 percent finding in last month's AP-NBC News poll.

On the other side, 18 percent gave him poor marks.

Fifty percent said Carter's work was only fair and three percent were not sure.

This poll was conducted after Carter had succeeded in his shuttle diplomacy to bring Egypt and Israel to the point of signing a peace treaty.

In a poll conducted right after the Camp David summit last September — when Carter brought Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat together for 13 days of talks — Carter's overall job rating improved 16 points.

The president's recent success in the Middle East did boost the public's opinion of his handling of foreign policy matters.

Forty-four percent gave his handling of international affairs good or excellent marks, up 9 points from last month's survey finding.

Eighteen percent rated his foreign policy work poor, while 34 percent gave it only fair marks.

Four percent of the 1,600 adults nationwide interviewed by telephone were not sure.

Specifically on the Middle East, 64 percent rated Carter's efforts as excellent or good. Only 7 percent rated his work poor and 25 percent said it was only fair.

But the twin problems of the continuing rise in prices and the specter of oil shortages have pushed the public's perception of Carter's work in those areas to the lowest points of his administration.

Forty-seven percent rated Carter's work in handling energy problems as poor. That is the most negative performance rating ever found by the AP-NBC News poll for Carter in any area and is up 14 points from the February survey.

Only 13 percent of the public gave his response to energy problems a good or excellent rating.

'Wizard of Oz' on TV tonight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — This is a good weekend to be a kid with a TV set.

Tonight, CBS pays for whatever programming sins it may have committed in the past year with its annual presentation of "The Wizard of Oz," that extravagant celebration of imagination and nifty movie-making.

How, I wonder, could a kid really believe it's spring without hearing that jovial trio sing: "The Wiz he is a whiz of a wiz, if ever a wizard there was..." Or without seeing Dorothy and those swell red disco shoes. Toto the dog, the wicked witch and those flying monkeys of hers?

It must be spring.

The other networks kick in too, with kid-fare the folks won't have to worry about.

Sunday, where the Osmonds used to be, ABC offers the first hour of a five-week series for kids called "Friends." It's a kids-are-people-too show, but, thank goodness, it doesn't forget that kids are kids, too.

Its stars are Charles Aiken, Jill Whelan and Jarod Johnson as three pals who are growing up together, sharing some bumps and bruises along the way.

In the opening episode, cool Randy (Johnson) has discovered girls. His pal Pete (Aiken) liked it better when Randy just collected baseball cards, but Pete's ready for new things. Randy teaches him to walk cool, talk cool, and then talks him into a double date.

Health Fair set for Saturday

A Health Fair will be held Saturday, from 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. in Clarendon Junior College's Pampa location. This is a free educational activity for all ages.

Exhibits, films and health information will be included in the day's activities. There will be free screening for blood pressure, diabetes, tuberculosis and adult immunizations.

The following organizations will have exhibits: March of Dimes, Texas Rehabilitation Commission, Epilepsy, Heart Association, Cancer Society, Mental Health and Retardation, Drug Abuse, Diabetes, Health Careers, Child Abuse, Muscular Dystrophy, Lions Club Eye Bank, Muscular Sclerosis, Shriner's Burn Center, Red Cross, Planned Parenthood, Family Services, Dental Health, Venereal Disease, Emergency

Jackson: South should lead way

AUSTIN, Texas — President Carter duplicated Franklin D. Roosevelt's fireside chats to the nation but did not learn that the message was in the fire and not the chair, the Rev. Jesse Jackson told Texas legislators Thursday.

The black leader brought an overflow Capitol crowd to its feet with his evangelical call to strive for higher ground.

"I am somebody," they chanted after applause brought Jackson back to the House microphone after a 45-minute speech.

"Respect me; protect me; never neglect me," he exhorted them to repeat. "My mind is a pearl. I can learn anything in the world."

Jackson, founder of a "Push for Excellence" education program, told the joint session of the Legislature he was happy to be in the spot where the late President Lyndon B. Johnson received his training.

"Lyndon B. Johnson was one of the great visionaries of the 20th century, perhaps one of the greatest visionaries of our times," Jackson said. "He rose above the trees to see the forest."

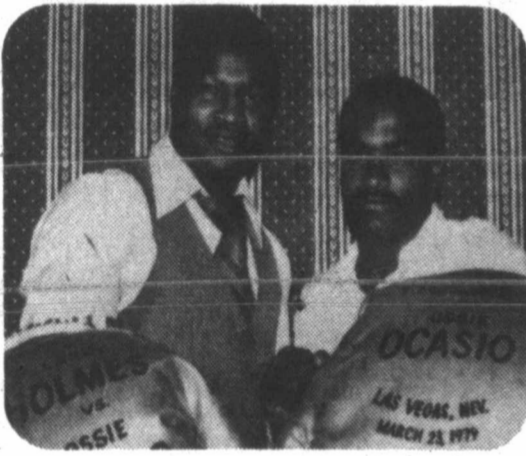

Carter started as a social visionary but Jackson quipped. "It appears at this point that cataracts have set in."

The South should rise again "in the spirit of redemption in the community to lift this nation out of its social morass," he said.

"We must solve these great problems of this day not only with a legal mind, a technical mind, but with a compassionate heart," he said. "As our hearts lock up, so do our minds."

He said social programs are not causing an increasing burden for the individual taxpayer, nor are affirmative action programs the cause of lost jobs.

FOCUS

Holmes Meets "Jaws"

The question of who should be considered the world heavyweight boxing champion may confuse most sports fans, but it's all perfectly clear to Larry Holmes. "I'm the No. 1 man," says Holmes, and the World Boxing Council (WBC), which recognizes him as the champion, thinks so too. But the World Boxing Association (WBA) considers Muhammad Ali the champion, and that leaves Holmes with only half the title. Holmes, left, defends the WBC version of the heavyweight title against Ossie "Jaws" Ocasio tonight in Las Vegas. Both fighters are undefeated, but that doesn't bother Holmes. "I'm the best fighter in the world," he says, "and I'll win."

DO YOU KNOW — Whom did Larry Holmes defeat to win the WBC title?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — Christopher Reeve plays the title role in the movie "Superman."

Your circle of acquaintances will be expanded considerably this coming year. Although you will develop many new contacts, it's also likely you'll make one beneficial alliance that will stand out above all the rest.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Instead of trying to revamp unproductive procedures, start from scratch today with new methods. You'll find the challenge stimulating and rewarding. Discover which signs you are most compatible with by sending for you copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Keep your objective in mind at all times today, or you may be caught off-guard by the unexpected. If your eye is on the target, nothing will ruffle you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Plans you've formulated should not be altered at the last minute today. Departing from your agenda could cause you unnecessary complications.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Joint ventures hold profitable promise for you today, provided they do not contain elements of risk. Enterprises which are too chancy could backfire.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Normally you're a take-charge person, but today the control of something important may be in the hands of another. Bite the bullet. Let him call the shots.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your first ideas will be your best ones today. They should be put to use, especially if they deal with business.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) During the early hours today you'll manage your resources with considerable skill, but toward evening your talents could suddenly desert you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Impatience could be your worst enemy today, tempting you to tamper with something which is running smoothly. You might regret it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) One of your most admirable qualities is your forthright manner, but today there may be a person you won't quite level with.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your prospects for acquisition are exceptionally promising today though it's not likely you'll add to your resources through arrangements with friends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Friends will find you a pleasant companion today because they sense you have a sincere interest in them. They'll be grateful even if they don't say it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Subtle measures will prove more effective today than bold, brash strokes. Guide others in ways that won't appear domineering.

Zarley leads TPC golf

KERMIT ZARLEY of Friendswood waves to a cheering crowd on the 18th green Thursday after he finished the first round with the lead in the Tournament Players Championship. Zarley finished with a 66, which is six under par. The tournament is being played at Sawgrass Country Club in Jacksonville, Fla.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — It was with a definite sense of relief that Jack Nicklaus said: "That's got to help. I don't know what I'll do tomorrow, but that's got to help a lot."

Golf's greatest performer, off to probably the slowest start of his unmatched career, had just fired a 5-under-par 67 — his best round of the year and his first under-par effort in three weeks.

"I knew it would happen. I just didn't know when. I was getting sick and tired of explaining why I was playing poorly," said the obviously pleased Nicklaus, the defending champion in the $440,000 Tournament Players Championship. "I'm delighted to be back."

He was tied for second behind Kermit Zarley, who took advantage of ideal playing conditions to rip tough Sawgrass with a course-record matching 66 and establish the first-round lead Thursday.

Sharing second with Nicklaus at 67 were U.S. Open champ Andy North and Lanny Wadkins, winner of the Los Angeles Open earlier this year.

Gil Morgan, Ron Streck, Canadian Jim Nelford and veteran Don January were at 68. And there were a dozen players at 69 — in sharp contrast to the scores usually yielded by the Sawgrass links, which often are raked by gale-force winds. Last year, for example, there were only 25 subpar rounds in the entire 72-hole tournament and only one score under 70. On this day alone, there were 20 scores under 70 and 53 under par.

"This golf course will get it back," said Wadkins. "The weather was perfect today. You have to take advantage of it when you can."

Tom Watson and Lee Trevino each shot 70 in the almost-windless weather and Arnold Palmer, the oldest man in the tournament at 49, matched par 72.

South African Gary Player, the Masters champion, opened his American campaign with a 73 and must improve if he is to qualify for the final two rounds. Hubert Green also had a 73 and Ben Crenshaw 74. Seve Ballesteros of Spain registered a fat 76, including 43 on his back nine.

Zarley, 37, winner of three titles in his 16 years on the tour, had what he called "one of the best putting rounds I've had in a long time." He holed five times from the 15-18 foot range and got his other birdie from about 10 feet. He missed only two greens, but saved par with six-footers on each and made his round with a string of three consecutive birdies beginning on the 10th.

"I worked pretty hard on my putting last winter," he said. "It looks like it's starting to pay off."

Nicklaus, fighting his way out of a season-long slump, birdied three of the par-3 holes and salvaged his score with a remarkable save on the 17th. His drive came within inches of the marsh and he had to stand with both feet in the water to hit his second shot. He reached the green in three and dropped a seven-foot par putt.

"That really helped me hold the round together," he said.

Holmes defends title tonight

LAS VEGAS (AP) — "Good luck," said Ossie Ocasio. "You need it," replied Larry Holmes. "Me no Jimmy Young."

Most people agree with Holmes, who is an overwhelming favorite to successfully defend his World Boxing Council heavyweight championship tonight against Ocasio, who will be trying for the big prize in only his 14th fight. His last two fights, decision victories over the highly regarded Young, earned Ocasio the WBC's No. 3 ranking and his title shot.

The Puerto Rican's big chance will take place at the Las Vegas Hilton Pavilion, the site of Leon Spinks' stunning upset of Muhammad Ali Feb. 15, 1978.

Spinks won the title in only his eighth pro fight, but he had many amateur bouts and won an Olympic gold medal. The 23-year-old Ocasio had only three or four amateur fights.

Before Holmes makes his second defense of the title he won on a split decision from Ken Norton here last June 9, Norton will meet Earnie Shavers in a 12-round bout, with the winner to fight Holmes in September should Holmes "break Jaws" as he promises. Ocasio's nickname is "Jaws."

Both fights will be televised live by ABC, with the Norton-Shavers bout to begin at approximately 5:45 p.m. PST. The officials will be appointed by the Nevada Athletic Commission, with the blessing of the WBC. A dispute between the Nevada commission and the World Boxing Association prevented a light heavyweight title fight between Mike Rossman and Victor Galindez from taking place last Feb. 24. That fight is scheduled to be held April 14 in New Orleans.

Holmes has a big physical advantage over Ocasio. He weighed in Thursday at 214 pounds, giving him a seven-pound advantage over the challenger, and at 6-foot-3 he has a 3 1/2-inch height advantage and an important four-inch edge in reach.

But the biggest advantage the 29-year-old Holmes enjoys is in experience. A pro since 1973, he has won all 29 of his fights, 20 by knockout. He has been 15 rounds before, against Norton, and he's been in with good hitters like Norton and Shavers. Holmes earned his title shot against Norton with a one-sided 12-round decision over Shavers last March 25.

Ocasio, who is 13-0 with nine knockouts, has been as far as 10 rounds only three times — his last three fights. Besides Young, a clever fighter but certainly no puncher, the best opponent Ocasio has faced is journeyman Kevin Isaac. He outpointed Isaac over 10 rounds last year.

Ocasio is getting $250,000 while Holmes is earning $1.2 million.

Norton, 33, is getting $750,000 and the 34-year-old Shavers $250,000 for what could their last shot at getting another title chance.

Norton is rated a 2-1 favorite to win the fight, which most observers felt would not go the distance.

NCAA tourney nears

By DOUG TUCKER
AP Sports Writer
SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Tourism officials are hailing the NCAA basketball championship tournament as "the biggest sports event ever staged in Utah," and out-of-towners scrambling for rooms, transportation and alcoholic refreshment are in no mood to argue.

The 6,000-odd followers of DePaul, Penn. Indiana State and Michigan State pouring into town to watch their heroes do battle in Saturday's semifinals are finding a friendly city surrounded by picturesque mountains. But it's a hard place to get to and when they do finally arrive, they're met by friendly locals offering to help skirt the restrictive liquor laws in this Mormon-dominated state.

"Quite frankly, it's bad timing and a bad location," the Rev. Robert Gielow, DePaul athletic director, told The Salt Lake Tribune. "Salt Lake City doesn't have the access it should to have a tournament like this."

Rob Nordin, a spokesman for the Utah Travel Council, admitted basketball fans are having trouble getting to town and finding rooms.

"A few people didn't get rooms where they wanted," Nordin said. "But evidently they've not been to many NCAA tournaments before. Look, we're not a Chicago, we're not a New York City and we don't have those kind of accommodations. I'm sure a lot of people will feel they've been put out, but in the long run we're sure they'll enjoy their stay here more than they would in another city."

Many fans wound up in Provo and Ogden, about 40 miles away. The biggest problem seems to be vacationing college students flocking to the area ski slopes.

The Rev. Mr. Gielow said about 500 DePaul boosters will end up sharing 100 rooms in Provo.

"That's the best we could do," he said. "I don't know what the rest of them are going to do... fend for themselves."

Utah has no law against ticket-scalping and some ticket holders are asking as much as $250 for their treasures. But the law does prohibit soliciting on state property, so the scalpers will probably do business across the street from the 15,000-seat Special Events Center on the University of Utah campus.

But the biggest adjustment facing seasoned tournament goers are the Utah liquor laws. Liquor-by-the-drink can be served only to members in good standing of private clubs. Guest memberships to tourists are not allowed. A new member must be sponsored by an existing member, and the law says there must be a "prior acquaintance" between the new member and his sponsor.

Don Beck, executive director of the Utah Licensed Club Association, said reporters, athletic directors and coaches were being briefed on how to get a drink in Utah. And members of some of Salt Lake's 79 private clubs were showing up at the briefings to sign membership applications.

Many club members are carrying applications in their pockets and are on the lookout for thirsty visitors who might enjoy a mixed drink at a private club, Beck said.

Seattle trims Celtics

SEATTLE (AP) — How do you overcome a shooting disadvantage of 51 to 43 percent from the field?

The answer for Seattle was rebounding as the SuperSonics dominated the boards 59-41, survived a late fourth-quarter scare and hung on to defeat the Boston Celtics 112-100 in a National Basketball Association game.

"Seattle's offensive rebounding especially hurt us in the first half," said Bob McKinnon, Boston assistant coach. "Seattle works very hard at rebounding, and they take a great deal of pride in it. They also have one of the best offensive rebounding players in Paul Silas."

"This is a dominance on the backboards that we have not seen by any team this year."

In the only other NBA game, the Indiana Pacers, led by Johnny Davis' 22 points, edged Cleveland 108-106, handing the Cavaliers their seventh straight setback.

Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens admitted the Sonics "relaxed a bit" down the stretch but added, "What is important is that we won."

Seattle's fourth consecutive victory put the Sonics 2 1/2 games in front of Phoenix in the Pacific Division. It was Boston's third straight loss and seventh in a row on the road.

Jack Sikma, Silas and John Johnson helped keep Seattle in control of the boards through the first three periods.

Trailing by 12 points opening the period, Boston cut the gap to 106-105 with 1:05 left as Bob McAdoo sank two free throws to give him a game-high 31 points.

With time running out on the shot clock, John Johnson put up a desperate 20-footer. Silas got the rebound, and Sikma then sank a 15-foot jumper. Four free throws by John Johnson and Dennis Johnson in the final 20 seconds clinched the victory.

Sikma led Seattle with 24 points and 15 rebounds. Cedric Maxwell, pacing the Celtic rally with 13 points in the final quarter, finished with 26.

"In the first half we went to the boards well. We wanted to concentrate on blocking them out," Wilkens said. "I didn't think we maintained the concentration as well as we should have."

"What hurt us throughout the game was Seattle's rebounding and their fast-break opportunities," said McKinnon, filling in for Dave Cowens who remained in Boston with a sprained ankle. "I think we contained Seattle fairly well when they had to come down and set up."

Ricky Sobers had 17 points for the Pacers and Alex English and James Edwards had 16 apiece. Austin Carr was high for Cleveland with 23.

"I have no trouble motivating my players even though we're out of the playoffs," said Indiana Coach Bobby Leonard. "It's easy to cop out at this point, but the guys are still enjoying the game and playing hard."

"We're still playing for pride," said Davis. "We're trying to finish up the season as respectable as possible. It gives us something positive to come back for next year."

Hayes sentenced to prison

DALLAS (AP) — Bob Hayes, once at the top of amateur and professional sports in America, is a financially and spiritually broken man today at 36 with his imprisonment just days away because he trafficked in narcotics.

"The Bullet" and "The World's Fastest Human" — as sportswriters dubbed Hayes after he won two gold medals in the 1964 Olympics — was sentenced to five years' in prison Thursday by State District Judge Richard Mays on a guilty plea of selling drugs to an undercover agent.

Hayes received two 5-year terms, to be served concurrently, on charges of selling cocaine to an undercover agent in March, 1978. Hayes was assessed seven years deferred probation for selling methaqualone. He could get out in less than a year on good behavior.

The former wide receiver for the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League was free on $30,000 bond until formal sentencing, expected next week. Taking the stand in a desperate defense effort for probation, Hayes said, "I'm guilty. I was wrong. I've paid the price in image and my respect. People see me as Bob Hayes — the dope dealer — not Bob Hayes — the citizen. It hurts."

"I have hit rock bottom financially. I'm broke," Hayes added.

He said the narcotics trafficking cost him lucrative commercials with a beer company and a credit card company. His wife now works to help support the family.

Such character witnesses as Cowboy Coach Tom Landry, Club President Tex Schramm and quarterback Roger Staubach were called before Judge Mays.

"I only saw the sunny side of Bob Hayes," Staubach said.

After hearing a tape conversation between Hayes and the undercover narcotics agent, Staubach said, "That's not the man I know. If this was a trial I wouldn't have anything to do with it, but I see the potential in Bob as a human being. This tears my guts out."

Assistant District Attorney Richard Zidina tore into Hayes in the final arguments after admitting: "To be candid, I haven't enjoyed prosecuting a former Cowboy. I watched him on the football field and saw films of the Olympics. I was a fan of Bob Hayes."

Hayes could have received a maximum sentence of life on the cocaine charges.

Pete Rose mad at Kuhn

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Pete Rose is mad at Bowie Kuhn and the only way baseball's commissioner can mend his bridges with the Philadelphia Phillies star is to take another look at the directive issued recently regarding exhibition game lineups.

Kuhn said major league clubs have an obligation to present "representative teams" for exhibition games and Rose said the ruling was one reason for his slow start with the Phillies this spring.

"You know spring training is different now than it was 10 years ago," said Rose. "It used to be that all you had to worry about down here was getting in shape. But now, with the commissioner's ruling, you got to play and there's no time to take extra hitting. I just came back from a road trip to Miami and Pompano. Hey, if I had stayed behind, I could've taken an hour or two of extra batting practice. You can't do that on the road."

Rose said his 2-for-26 spring start doesn't upset him particularly. "I'm not worried," said the $3.2 million free agent. "I'm not trying to make the team."

Another reason Rose said he has had a slow spring is the time he has put in learning to play first base, a new position for him.

"I've been devoting so much time to defense that I haven't paid much attention to hitting," he said. "I'm working an hour every day after practice at first base, learning the cutoff positions, the throws, how to hold the runner... all that stuff."

Rose said he was enjoying the transfer from third base. "It's a lot easier than the other switches I've made — from second to the outfield and from the outfield to third base."

The other aspect of his new job that Rose is enjoying is the increased traffic around first base and the chance to visit with other players. "More guys hit singles than triples, you know," he said.

Rose hits both, as evidenced by the career numbers that earned him his record free agent contract last winter. Among the 1978 accomplishments were his 3,000th career hit and a 44-game streak that set a modern National League record.

"The thing I remember most about the streak is the reactions of the crowds and the way they were on my side," said Rose. "It was amazing. You know, it's hard not to get a hit when you're in a gray (visiting) uniform and 40,000 people are yelling your name."

Rose's streak would have been worth $44,000 under terms of a new award that will carry a $1,000 per game payoff to the player with the longest batting streak every season. The cup that will be awarded along with the money was displayed Thursday and Rose had only one complaint with it.

"I think," he said, "it ought to be retroactive."

The award will be sponsored by Aqua Velva, for whom Rose does television commercials.

Hockey talks continue

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — After taking a small step towards settling their differences, officials of the National Hockey League and World Hockey Association were locked in stalemated negotiations well into this morning.

Nearly 14 hours after the NHL Board of Governors voted 14-3 in favor of offering membership to four WHA franchises, heated debate on issues including player rights prevented further progress from being made by the weary group.

The major stumbling block appeared to be the NHL's insistence the incoming clubs — the New England Whalers, Edmonton Oilers, Quebec Nordiques and Winnipeg Jets — be permitted to protect only two skaters and two goaltenders from the draft that would stock their "expansion" franchises.

Members of the WHA contended they should be allowed to exempt at least four skaters and two goaltenders from the pool which would take place after the conclusion of the current season.

According to the proposal, WHA players who have been drafted by NHL teams would become property of those NHL teams if not among the four players protected by each incoming team. The NHL clubs then would protect 15 skaters and two goalies, with all other players eligible for selection in the expansion draft at a reported $125,000 per choice.

The incoming clubs then would fill out their rosters to a depth of 15 skaters and two goaltenders. The other 17 teams would have the pick of the rest.

Added to that was the money factor, which would have each incoming club pay a $6 million entry fee and contribute toward the $6 million more needed to cover the costs of putting the Birmingham Bulls and Cincinnati Stingers out of business as major league teams.

Officials of the Bulls and Stingers expressed hope their clubs would be involved in hockey "at the highest level possible" next season when their four former partners join the NHL. But a possibility remained early Friday the WHA still would compete as a separate entity next season.

The reason, of course, was the fact that though the NHL offered membership, the WHA was under no obligation to accept it — nullifying the efforts the NHL had put into approving the issue after voting against it three times in the last two years.

"The people I work for were able to come together on some extremely complicated and extremely contentious issues and make some real sacrifices," NHL President John Ziegler had said in announcing the favorable NHL vote on expansion.
