

Twisters leave death, destruction

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — National Guard troops patrolled the debris-strewn streets of this North Texas city of 96,000 today in the wake of several killer tornadoes which wreaked havoc here and in two other Texas towns. At least 46 died in Texas.

Gov. Bill Clements and his staff were to tour the areas this morning.

Vernon, a town of 11,500 about 75 miles to the northwest, had at least 12 persons killed when the first major twister tore a quarter-mile-wide path through the southern part of the city.

Two hours later, Wichita Falls was hit, with two shopping malls bearing the brunt of the attack. The path of destruction was eight miles long and ranged in width from a half mile to a mile and a half.

More than 700 persons were injured, and an unknown number were buried under the rubble of demolished homes and stores.

Ironically, some of those injured in Vernon were taken to Wichita Falls hospitals.

"We were taking injured in from Vernon when this one hit here."

said Dr. James Lee, medical coordinator for the Red Cross in Wichita Falls.

Another tornado later struck Harrold, a small town nine miles west of Vernon, killing one person.

Across the Red River in Oklahoma, a twister killed four persons in Lawton, north of Wichita Falls and northeast of Vernon.

Other tornadoes were reported about the same time in outlying areas of Texas but authorities could not say how many touched down.

There was damage at Lockett, six miles southwest of Vernon, and one touched down without damage or injury in a rural area near Seymour, due south of Vernon.

Early today funnel clouds were sighted near Sadler, Sherman, Bridgeport, Bowie and near Tioga, all in large North Central Texas area east-southeast of Wichita Falls and north of the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

The damage in Wichita Falls and Vernon was devastating.

"There are literally thousands of people homeless," said

Record-News reporter Rocky Scott, who watched the tornado from the Wichita County courthouse.

"As the storm started you could see the clouds being sucked into the center of the storm — the debris and huge pieces of house roofs, and tree limbs. All of a sudden there was a tremendous roar, and the storm appeared to move very quickly. It seemed like it lasted about five or six minutes and it looked like a huge snow cone," Scott said.

The injured and homeless were taken to school gymnasiums and other makeshift emergency centers.

One woman, asked not to be identified, sat and rubbed her feet and reflected on her luck, if one would call it that.

"The only thing left of my house is the closet I was lying in," she said. "I got so scared I just laid there and prayed. I've been through five hurricanes, but hurricanes are nothing compared to this."

"Take me back to hurricanes."

Bob Draper, county disaster chairman for the Red Cross, said 33 were known dead in Wichita Falls. The toll could run much higher when workers get into many neighborhoods previously inaccessible, he said.

Lee, medical coordinator for civil defense in Wichita Falls, said 500 persons — 300 at Wichita General Hospital and 200 at Bethenia Hospital — had major injuries requiring surgery, hospitalization or extended doctor's care.

The injured were being admitted as fast as others could be dismissed, said Peggy Horn, nursing supervisor at Wichita General Hospital.

"I think we are going to have one horror after another when they clear the rubble," she said.

Most of the seriously injured are in the recovery room, the intensive care unit and the coronary care unit because those three have lights.

However, an extra generator was being brought in from Fort Sill, Okla., approximately 50 miles to the north.

Teamsters getting ready to roll again

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Teamsters union and trucking companies are getting ready to roll again, ending a nationwide shutdown after reaching a tentative contract agreement that reportedly meets President Carter's anti-inflation guidelines.

"The strike and defensive shutdown (by the industry) are being terminated," chief federal mediator Wayne L. Horvitz said shortly before midnight Tuesday as he announced a settlement in the 10-day work stoppage.

"Procedures for return to work will be made within 24 hours," he said.

(AP Laserphoto)

The new package would provide increases in wages, cost-of-living and fringe benefits estimated at 26 to 30 percent over three years.

Union President Frank Fitzsimmons said he would recommend ratification by the 300,000-member rank and file covered by the pact. "I'm sure they'll be satisfied with this agreement, at least I hope so," he said.

The union said it would take four to six weeks to complete the ratification vote.

The two sides reached their agreement under the prodding of federal mediators in a final marathon round of bargaining that stretched over two days.

The settlement spelled an end to the longest industrywide shutdown in history, a dispute that forced mass layoffs in the auto industry but otherwise caused little damage to the nation's economy.

The dispute began at midnight March 31, when the two sides failed to meet a deadline for agreeing to a new contract. The Teamsters launched strikes against 73 companies, and Trucking Management Inc., the industry bargaining arm that represents about 500 firms, responded with a lockout that prevented union members from working at any of their companies.

Sources, who asked not to be identified, say the tentative settlement gives Teamsters wage increases of $1.50 an hour over three years, plus semi-annual cost-of-living adjustments. Increased fringe benefits are worth another 75 cents an hour, the sources said.

Teamsters now average $9.75 an hour in pay. Fringe benefits bring total hourly compensation to $12.65.

Fitzsimmons declined to say whether the agreement meets Carter's voluntary anti-inflation guideline. Horvitz also sidestepped the subject, saying, "That matter must await the decision of the ratification process."

But J. Curtis Counts, chief industry bargainer, told reporters he believed the settlement falls within the president's guideline. And several administration officials being kept abreast of the talks concurred that the agreement complied with the guideline.

Vote set on changes

Recommended changes in the city charter, discussed by the city commission at Tuesday's meeting, will be put up for voter approval "at the earliest opportunity," City Manager Mack Wofford said today.

Seven recommendations, most of which would alter city election procedures, were forwarded to the commission by a five-man committee appointed in December to study the charter, which hasn't been amended since 1964.

At the top of the list of suggestions is a change in the boundary lines of city wards, designed to create a more equal distribution of voters. In the last two city elections, Wards One and Two polled about 80 percent of the vote.

The charter study committee recommended enlarging Wards Three and Four by adding the southern sections of the first two wards. A second recommendation would give the commission the power to make future changes in ward boundaries without voter approval.

The committee also recommended dropping the election requirement that commissioners reside in a specified ward. Instead, commissioners would be elected at large in a place system.

A substitute recommendation would allow a commissioner moving out of the ward he was elected in, but remaining in the city, to finish his term of office. Presently special elections must be held to replace commissioners who move from their wards.

Another recommendation eliminating the need for a special election would arrange for any vacancy in the office of mayor to be filled by commission appointment. Commission vacancies would be filled by an appointment by the mayor and other commissioners.

In addition, the study committee suggested raising the minimum amount of city purchases requiring sealed bids from $1,000 to $2,500, and recommended granting the commission the power to determine which employers shall be bonded and in what amounts.

The commission will decide which changes to pass on to the voters, and will announce its decisions at a future meeting, Wofford said.

When discussing the recommendations Tuesday, the commission seemed united in opposing elimination of the ward system. Commissioners indicated approval of the other amendments, but agreed to give careful consideration to the proposed change in filling mayoral vacancies, which City Attorney Don Lane warned could have "political implications."

Gasohol passes committee vote

AUSTIN — Gasohol development bills drafted by State Sen. Bob Price, R-Pampa, passed the Senate Natural Resources Committee in less than half an hour Tuesday night.

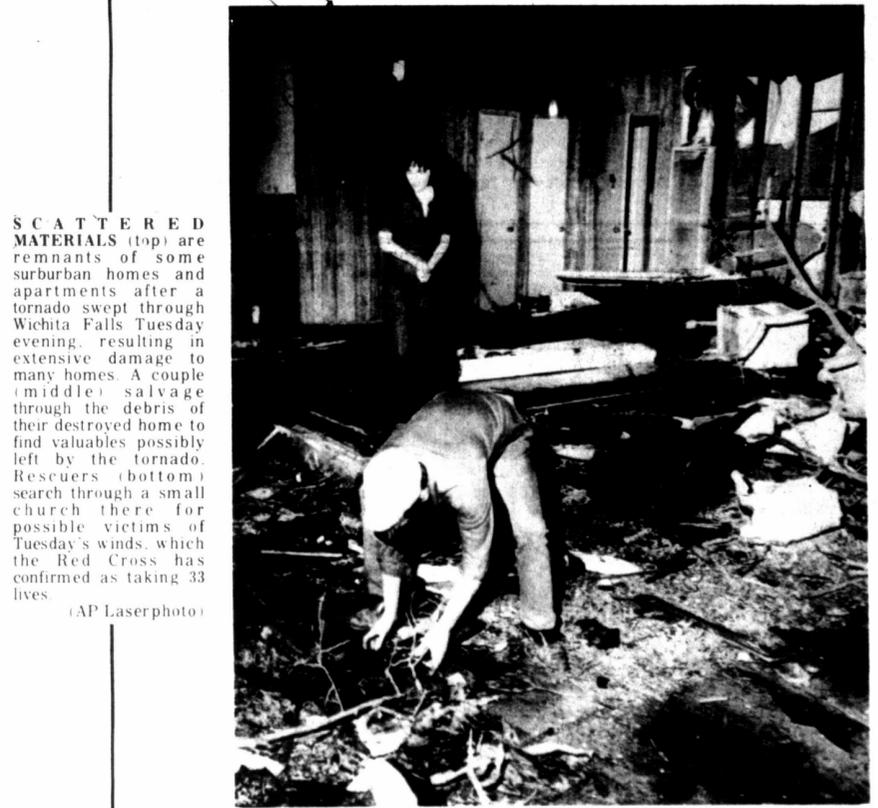

The bills would provide for construction of a plant to convert agricultural products into grain alcohol blended fuels, and authorize state funds for the construction of other plants for the commercial production of gasohol. According to Price, the bills may go before the full Senate next week.

Another Price bill exempting gasohol from the state motor vehicles tax was passed by the Senate April 4.

Supporters of Price's bills, led by agricultural groups, say gasohol production would ease dependence on imported oil and help eliminate agricultural surpluses. Area agricultural associations are predicting that the Panhandle, with its abundant grain supplies, will be the home of the first gasohol plant in the state.

Figures determined by Price's staff show it would cost about 75 cents to produce a gallon of gasohol. The fuel is expected to get 5.3 percent more miles to a gallon than gasoline.

Who pays for Social Security

The following is an editorial written by one of our sister papers on Nov. 2, 1936. History shows that their predictions were a little timid.

This question will become one that the man who works for pay for any individual or business establishment will become more and more interested in as the costs go up eventually to 9.3 per cent of the total payrolls.

The Social Security Board has printed and distributed a little folder and put it in hands of the workers at government expense just before election time. When one reads the folder, it is easy to detect the purpose of the folder is to try to make the worker believe that he is going to be greatly benefited at someone else's expense. It is an attempt, at government expense, to secure votes for the present administration which passed the law.

The Social Security Act will take 6 per cent and the federal unemployment insurance act will eventually take 3.3 per cent of the total payrolls, making a total deduction of 9.3 per cent from the total payrolls.

Every worker and every economist knows that the worker must produce his own wages and in addition to producing his own wages he must produce enough to pay any direct tax the employer is obliged to pay because he has made payment in wages. It is evident then that if the employer is obliged to pay 6 per cent to the government he will not be able to pay his workers as much by 6 per cent as he would be able to pay them if he were not obliged to turn over 6 per cent to the federal government plus the 3 per cent that is DIRECTLY deducted from the worker's pay.

Every economist knows the employer cannot make this payment out of thin air but must have production from his employees, which he does not turn over to those employees, in order to pay this tax on payrolls.

It will therefore, become the law of the land that every worker must become a partner with the politicians and eventually have 9 per cent of his production turned over to the politicians to spend, invest or waste as they see fit.

Congress and the president are in reality telling the workers that they do not have sense enough to handle the money they get in their pay envelopes; that they are obliged by law to become partners with these self-appointed wise men of Congress.

This tax on payrolls, it is estimated will amount to more than $40,000,000,000. If anyone believes that the politicians who have access to $40,000,000,000 will be economical with it, they must have more faith in politicians than we do. Some of the things the present administration has done with the billions turned over to them was to attempt to harness the moon through the tides of the Maine coast. It has attempted to raise farm products economically on land three feet above ice in Alaska. These are only a few of the thousands of ways the politicians waste the money they get in their hands in order to create jobs and perpetuate their fat salaries.

In the past, this country has been made a great country because individual workers were willing to accept responsibility. They wanted the right to use their intelligence and judgment either to succeed or make mistakes. They did not want to be coerced. They wanted the right to take their saving and enjoy it when they got it or to sacrifice and save with the idea of having greater enjoyment later. Under the new laws, every worker will be obliged, by force, to have his employer turn over 9 per cent of what he produces and over which he has no control.

If the politicians are so wasteful that they make the dollars of little value, the workers will be obliged to take back any kind of a dollar the government see fit to give them, whether it will purchase a fourth, a half or a thousandth part as much as the dollar the politicians take from them by law.

The law is so out of harmony with all economic principles that the worker who desires to serve humanity and his fellowman by continuing to produce wealth that will benefit all mankind must cease service to humanity at a certain age in order to get any benefit whatever of this six per cent taken from his production. The makers of the law were so ignorant and are still so ignorant that they believe we can live better by producing less. This is evident from the fact that if an employe continues to work - to serve society - he will receive nothing from the deductions made from his envelope.

The political influence of the move is already evidenced from the fact that in their conclusions, the government agency contends that "What you get from the government plan will always be more than you have paid in taxes and usually more than you can get for yourself by putting away the same amount of money each week in some other way."

This is undoubtedly an untruth. If the government so manages its money that the purchasing power gradually decreases, the worker will not get more in actual comforts of life than he has paid in. It is untruthful advertising at government expense. It is bureaucracy in the worst form.

The folder tries to make the worker believe that he is going to get twice as much as he pays in. Of course, the men who work for the government invariably do not know that wages come from production in the long run; they have been working for the government so long and getting their pay without producing anything of value that they actually think that private enterprise can be run like the government and the employes can be paid without producing. Private enterprise has no government to fall back on. The worker must produce what they are paid or they eventually have no jobs.

The workers will pay all of this insurance and there is no possible way that it can be otherwise. It will not come out of the air or from the politicians.

Do the channel 2 investigations serve the public

By BUTLER D. SHAFFER

If one were to judge by the presentation of news by CBS television's station in Los Angeles, the American business community must, indeed, be up to its corporate board rooms in miserly, slave-driving, anti-social, Scrooge-like fiends who would do literally anything — even cheat customers, abuse employees, and destroy nature — in order to make an extra dollar. In just one hour of viewing of its evening news show, we were informed:

(a) that the garment industry in California was riddled with members of organized crime, and that firms in this industry used "slave labor," with employees being "black-jacked" into working in "sub-standard" (i.e., being paid below the minimum wage) working conditions. This story was part of a week-long expose of the California garment industry, and followed up a prior expose of alleged dishonesty in the automobile retailing business in southern California.

(b) CBS later did an expose of other alleged, "slave labor" practices in the citrus industry in California. As with the prior news story, the particulars as to how this system of so-called "slavery" was enforced was not clear. There was no evidence of whips, leg-irons and chains, or branding of employees. Oh, yes, there was mention of the fact that the citrus company did not provide its employees with a place to sleep (they had to sleep out-of-doors).

(c) Then CBS told us about how Philip Morris (the cigarette people) wanted to build a 20,000-home development in Orange County. The news cameras panned the beautiful rolling green hills as the news reporter told us how all this would be gone if Philip Morris were allowed to build there. Then there were interviews of local residents who were incensed at the idea of turning their pastoral setting into a major urban area. Again, forget about the fact that these residents could have guaranteed themselves a permanent country atmosphere by buying up the surrounding land themselves; forget the fact that, in trying to get the local government to deny Philip Morris the right to build, these residents are trying to get a benefit without paying for it, and are trying to impose the costs of keeping this land undeveloped upon their neighboring property-owners.

(d) After listening to Jimmy Carter's "inflation advisor," Alfred Kahn, babble mindlessly about how a 14 percent wage increase being sought by the Teamsters Union was an act of "aggression" against the American people, CBS's otherwise fine commentator, Bill Stout, came on to berate the business community for having enjoyed a 14 percent increase in profits over the preceding year, suggesting that this was an unethical thing to do in light of the problems of inflation. Given the fact that we had also listened to the noted economist, George Meany, expressing himself on the subject — followed by a CBS interview with "rank-and-file" employees who had settled for a 7 percent wage increase — Stout's commentary left us with a pretty bleak impression of the moral and ethical stature of businessmen. As if we needed one of those chuckleheaded slogans with which to titillate our audiences at the local barbershop, Stout went on to suggest that American business may well be guilty of "profit-gouging."

Well, then, I guess that makes me a "slave" as well, since my employer does not provide me with a place to sleep, either.

(e) After listening to Jimmy Carter's "inflation advisor," Alfred Kahn, babble mindlessly about how a 14 percent wage increase being sought by the Teamsters Union was an act of "aggression" against the American people, CBS's otherwise fine commentator, Bill Stout, came on to berate the business community for having enjoyed a 14 percent increase in profits over the preceding year, suggesting that this was an unethical thing to do in light of the problems of inflation. As if we needed one of those chuckleheaded slogans with which to titillate our audiences at the local barbershop, Stout went on to suggest that American business may well be guilty of "profit-gouging."

This is, indeed, a very dismal picture and since CBS — itself a very influential member of the business community — seems bent on correcting this condition, it seems to me that their future course of action is clear. In order to set a better example, CBS should publicly renounce the pursuit of profits and begin operating as a charitable organization. CBS might even be so bold as to renounce its government-conferred monopoly status which, along with other broadcasters, provides them with protection from unrestricted entry of competitors. By thus devoting itself to the public good, CBS would also be in a position to pay its newscasters and commentators a wage more in line with federally-mandated standards of "fairness" (i.e., $2.90 per hour.) After all, it might be considered somewhat elitist for such persons to demand more than what they expect for citrus pickers and garment workers. Besides, with a salary of just over $6,000 per year, some of these newscasters and commentators would almost have enough money to pay their annual real estate taxes.

IN WASHINGTON Lesson: be prepared by martha angle and robert walters

HARRISBURG, Pa. (NEA) - In the tense days following the nation's worst accident involving a commercial nuclear reactor, none of the institutions responsible for providing guidance to a worried citizenry covered themselves with glory.

Both federal and state officials, the news media and the utility corporation that operates the trouble-plagued generating station on Three Mile Island all failed to properly serve the public during that unprecedented crisis.

By far the most irresponsible was the General Public Utilities Corp., whose subsidiary power companies own the sprawling plant on the Susquehanna River 10 miles southeast of this state capital.

In the early days of the crisis, the company regularly issued deceptive, misleading and inaccurate statements, apparently designed to minimize both the excessive damage done earlier and the potential for far more profound disaster in the future.

As a result, the utility firm was publicly rebuked and repeatedly contradicted by senior officials of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) dispatched from Washington to bring the runaway plant under control.

According to state officials here, direct pressure from the White House was necessary to force the company to cease proclaiming unwarranted optimism.

The NRC hardly distinguished itself, providing often conflicting information from at least four scattered locations - two different sites in Washington, the generating here and a regional office in King of Prussia, Pa., a Philadelphia suburb.

Spokesmen for the federal regulatory agency variously a) offered technical data without providing any context enabling laymen to understand it, b) calmed they lacked basic information, and c) were unavailable when critical explanations were most needed.

State officials, including Pennsylvania Gov. Richard Thornburgh, clearly lacked the expertise necessary to deal with the exceptionally complex problems encountered within the troubled nuclear facility.

At one point, Thornburgh told residents living within a 10-mile radius of the generating station that they could minimize the effect of radiation exposure by remaining inside their homes or offices with all windows and doors closed. But he withdrew that advice only one day later, without offering any further explanation.

The governor never acknowledged that his initial suggestion had been worthless because the xenon and krypton nucleides released into the atmosphere emit beta and gamma rays, both of which can readily penetrate virtually all conventional construction materials.

Finally, too many of the hundreds of journalists who descended on central Pennsylvania lacked even the minimal technical background necessary to understand the fact-paced events.

A noisy minority displayed little interest in learning, preferring instead to constantly reach for "worst case" scare stories about core meltdowns, atmospheric explosion and assorted other calamities.

One normally reliable press association transmitted an erroneous story proclaiming that "the gas bubble inside the crippled nuclear reactor ... is showing signs of becoming potentially explosive." The fact is that the bubble was being bled to prevent a volatile build-up.

Two television networks interrupted their programs to transmit that terrifying but inaccurate information, producing several hours of barely controlled panic in this city and its suburbs.

None of the individuals involved in the cases cited here can be accused of malice. Almost all were well-intentioned people who worked terribly long hours under extraordinary pressure.

But if there is any lesson to be learned from the events at Three Mile Island, it is that the nation must be far better prepared for nuclear "incidents" in the future.

Whose victory

By DONGRAFF

All we know about Indochina at the moment is what we read in the papers, and as a consequence we're not at all sure who's winning the current game there or even who may still be in it.

The Chinese, reports from Peking inform, have announced that they are withdrawing from Vietnam.

"But dispatches from Hanoi say it isn't so. The Chinese are still in occupation of border areas and Vietnamese forces continue to do battle with them.

That does not, however, prevent Hanoi's Soviet allies from preferring the Chinese prospects of events, playing up the reported withdrawal as a victory for themselves.

The confusion and apparent cross-purposes are par for the course of a conflict that, as it has developed to date, is one of the strangest of the postwar period, one of pulled punches on the parts of all parties involved.

If the Chinese really are withdrawing, they would appear to be doing something along the line of what was once suggested as an American option in the next most recent Vietnamese conflict - simply to declare victory unilaterally and pull out. While that might have gotten U.S. troops home, it would have left the field and all of Vietnam to Communist forces, merely somewhat earlier than was eventually to be the case anyway.

The Chinese now seem to be in a somewhat similar position. They may have slapped down the cheeky Vietnamese and thereby made a point concerning the period of talking back to a major power. But they have had not discernible effect upon the Vietnamese occupation of Cambodia, the major event in the chain of provocations leading to their own invasion. The Vietnamese may be having their own troubles as invaders and occupiers, but these are not of Chinese arranging and there are no signs that Hanoi is contemplating a withdrawal from Cambodia soon, if ever.

This in itself may be sufficient justification for the Soviet declaration of victory from the Moscow point of view. The status is again almost quo and the Soviets have had to commit only supplies, not troops, in fulfillment of their treaty ties with the Vietnamese.

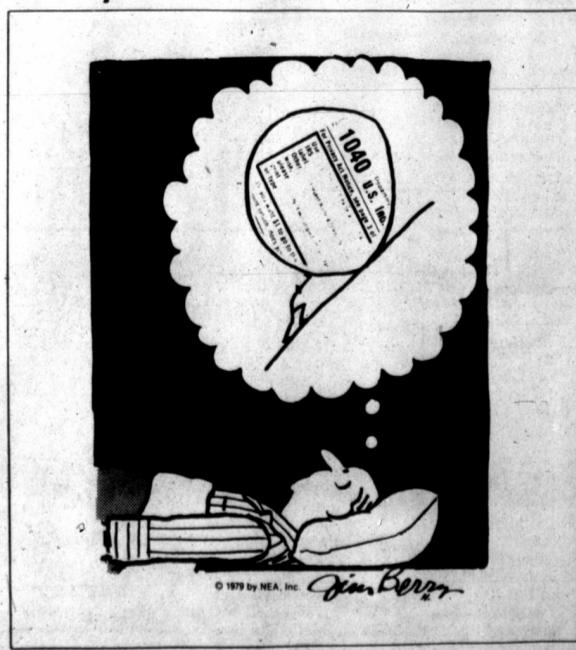

The Soviets stand to gain in another respect. The prospects for a Carter-Brezhnev summit, in which the Kremlin is very much interested, are considerably improved to the extent that prospects of active Soviet involvement in the Chinese - Vietnamese quarrel are lessened. Washington, seeking a balance in its relationships with Moscow and Peking and already embarrassed by the Chinese-Vietnamese conflict following so rapidly upon Teng Hsiao-ping's highly publicized American visit, would have little enthusiasm for a summit if Soviet troops were in action or likely imminently to be so.

The Indochinese game is far from over. A period of continuing tension in the area - it has been a long time since it has known anything else - is to be expected. There may be further Chinese - Vietnamese clashes and a direct Chinese - Soviet confrontation is not yet precluded. At the very least, the Soviets will carry on the propaganda war, picturing China as an expansionist power threatening all its neighbors.

Under the confusing and uncertain circumstances, figuring out the score is, as a king of neighboring Siam was found of saying, a puzzlement.

But there is at least one thing we can be perfectly sure about. The United States has not been actively involved this time around. That may disqualify it from joining in the claims of victory, but it is certainly worth points.

Clements visits schools

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — The church and the state got together for a while here as Gov. Bill Clements took a guided look at the 500 acres where evangelist Lester Roloff houses 178 girls.

"We've longed and looked for this day," Roloff, who has long opposed state licensing of his youth homes, said Tuesday in welcoming Clements and Attorney General Mark White.

"I'm much impressed with him," Clements said after the tour. "I'm much impressed with his work."

The visit by the state officials came amid a pair of controversies at the Roloff homes — the lingering legal battle about state licensing and a recently reported violent episode at the Rebekah Home for Girls here.

While White and Clements made little mention of the July incident, in which five girls reportedly stabbed a sixth resident, Roloff took the offensive.

With his booming voice filling his People's Church, the evangelist talked about the incident and why he chose not to report it to law enforcement officials.

"They said we didn't report it, but that little girl reported it," Roloff said. "She said, 'God, help me.' And she was not killed. She's batting 100 percent today. All of those girls have been saved."

Roloff also said he is disappointed at public reaction to the incident.

Students win honors in VICA program

The Texas laurel wreath was placed on the head of Janette Taylor, 17, at the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America Skill Olympics at Houston where she was recently designated state president.

Taylor, a junior working for Dr. Jim Alexander, is the first Pampa High School student to ever receive this office. She competed against students, representing some 34,500 Texas members.

Her election has given her eligibility to take part as a national vice president at the VICA U.S. Skill Olympics from July 23-28 in Atlanta, Ga. Vincent Hillman, 18, can also follow the red carpet to the national intersection of the VICA circles to compete in the last leg of the Prepared Speech Contest.

His entry in this event has won top honors at the local and state levels and will be the first Pampa success to be ranked among contestants across the United States.

Todd Cummings placed first in the Auto Parts Technical Contest, with which he was also given an $100 bond from Texas Parts and Supply.

Greg Haddock, who is employed by D & S Suzuki, won first place in Technical Motorcycle Repair Contest with his project — a rebuilt motorcycle engine.

A small engine was built by Larry Ledbetter who was named a first — place winner for his project while Mark Kennedy took second place in another event with his project of rebuilding a four — speed transmission.

An exhibition of a hair style brought Linda Maglaughlin, a 17 — year — old senior, a blue ribbon in a Cosmetology event.

Drinking age may change

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Eighteen-year-olds would have to wait for one more birthday to sip beer or liquor under a bill that is halfway through the Legislature.

Senators voted 25-5 Tuesday for Sen. Walter Mengden's proposal raising the state drinking age from 18 to 19. Opponents said it was unconstitutional and would make 18-year-olds "second-class citizens."

The measure goes to the House.

Senators balked at approving the bill last week because they thought it might prevent 18-year-olds from handling beer or liquor as waiters or employees of groceries.

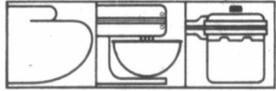

An amendment was adopted Tuesday, however, which Mengden, R-Houston, said solved that problem.

Nevertheless, Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, protested, "We are treating citizens 18 to 19-years-old differently in one aspect than citizens over 18... We are committed as a nation and a state not to have second-class citizens for any purpose."

Rescue workers shift wreckage

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — A full moon bathed the destruction in an eerie glow as rescue workers shifted through the rubble for victims buried along a trail of death left by a tornado that cut through this North Texas city Tuesday evening.

"It sounded like a runaway freight train running right over you," said Joe Ezell, a Wichita Falls restaurant manager.

Survivors jammed the Red Cross office and the police command post at Wichita General Hospital. Tears of hysteria gave way to bleary-eyed stares on chain-smoking faces waiting for a word of missing loved ones.

Leaking gas hissed from ruptured lines and downed power lines snaked across almost every street in the storm-ravaged southwest part of the city.

A street sign was driven through the back of a Pinto. This is "much worse. I'd say three times worse than the last tornado to hit Wichita Falls," said Jan Beall.

That April 3, 1964 storm killed seven and injured 111. The twister that slammed into the city Tuesday killed at least 33 and injured more than 700. Twelve others were confirmed dead in the path of a tornado Tuesday afternoon that swept through Vernon, 45 miles northwest of Wichita Falls. Another twister killed one person in Harrold, 15 miles east of Vernon.

"We were taking injured in from Vernon when this one hit here," said Dr. James Lee, the Red Cross medical director in Wichita Falls. Sheppard Air Force base paramedic Glen Brien, dressed in his blood-and-mud-soaked coveralls, watched as Air Force volunteers unloaded three more ambulances.

"We are just trying to clean them up, stretch them up and get them along. We are doing the best we can," said Brien.

Despite continuous patrols, looters ravaged many of the damaged structures, shattered windows downtown and scopped up the merchandise.

Red Cross workers said they encountered residents armed with rifles in front of their damaged homes.

"There is always tornadoes here this time of year," said Norma Lumpkin, "but they always follow the (Red) river."

"You could say it was right on our tail end all the way," said Morris Lumpkin, who pulled to the side of the road to avoid flying debris from a demolished trailer park.

Board to work on safety

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal nuclear regulators say they'll "take whatever steps are necessary" to make the nation's reactor safety program as close to foolproof as possible, aiming to avoid a repeat of the Three Mile Island nuclear accident.

"We cannot tolerate accidents of this kind and we must take whatever steps are necessary to prevent them," NRC Chairman Joseph M. Hendrie told a Senate hearing Tuesday.

Meanwhile, continued U.S. use of nuclear energy was termed inevitable by President Carter in his nationally broadcast news conference Tuesday.

"There is no way for us to abandon the nuclear supply of energy in our country for the foreseeable future," Carter said.

He said he would act soon to name members of his proposed presidential commission to investigate the Three Mile Island accident near Harrisburg, Pa.

Weather Texas weather

By The Associated Press

Severe weather pounded North Central and Northeast Texas as thunderstorms continued to march eastward across the state.

Numerous tornadoes were reported or indicated by radar across this area late Tuesday and early today. Baseball size hail was reported in Decatur shortly after midnight.

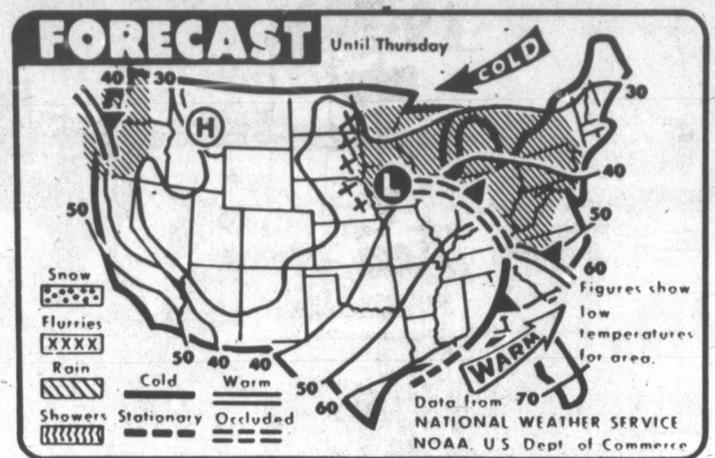

Across South Texas, strong southerly wind and a blanket of low cloudiness prevailed overnight. Fair skies and brisk westerly wind were the rule across West Texas.

Pre-dawn temperatures ranged from the mid 30s in the northwestern Panhandle and southwestern mountains to the mid 70s along the Texas coast.

The National Weather Service said thunderstorms, a few possibly severe, would occur again later today. Dust storms were likely this afternoon for the South Plains.

North Texas — Partly cloudy and cool through Sunday with lowest daily temperatures ranging from upper 30s to upper 40s and highs ranging from mid 50s to upper 60s.

West Texas — Quite cold Friday with moderating temperatures over the weekend. No significant threat of precipitation during the period. Highs 50s and 60s Friday warming to 60s north to near 80 extreme southwest by Sunday. Lows 20s north to 30s south Friday rising to 30s and 40s by Sunday.

RAIN IS expected in the forecast period, Wednesday until Thursday morning, from the northern Plains into the Great Lakes and Midwest, the northeast and south into the mid-Atlantic region. Rain is also forecast for the Pacific Northwest. Warm weather is forecast in the Southeast but most of the country will be cold.

Pupco in midst of major expansion

Pupco Inc., a local service company for oilfield pumping units, is in the midst of a million-dollar expansion and relocation to the Borger Highway, three-fourths of a mile west of Price Road.

"We're hoping to do some more as soon as we get this completed," said Shorty Hudson, president of Pupco, as he gazed at the 60-by-400-foot building being constructed for the company. Construction began in December.

"Eventually our entire operation will be here," Hudson said. The new building will house Pupco's machine shop and parts department, which are now located at 704 and 850 S. Cuyler St. In addition, the structure will contain rebuilding facilities.

Pupco's offices, located at 805 S. Cuyler, will also be moved out to the new site, as will a general supply store.

Completion of the building is scheduled for around June 1, Hudson said. The company plans to have open houses for oil industry people and the general public after construction is finished, he added.

The expansion "has been in the planning stages" since Pupco went into business seven years ago, Hudson said. He and two partners founded the company, buying the manufacturing rights to Cabot Co. pumping parts and pieces.

Around the nation...

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Five million gallons of liquid propane stored underground in a Utah salt cavern — enough to provide fuel to 3,000 homes for a year — have leaked away without a trace, says the Williams Energy Corp., a propane sales company based in Tulsa, Okla.

"It just leaked out," company President Brian Billings said Tuesday. "The hole was empty when we thought we still had 5 million gallons left."

He said the million-dollar loss was insured under a "mysterious disappearance" clause in the company's insurance policy.

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States has much to learn from the way China treats its older people, says the founder of the Gray Panthers, an organization that fights for the rights of the elderly.

Maggie Kuhn, 73, cited a guaranteed income, free health care and burial benefits and active roles for the elderly in community life in China.

"If one has to be old — and we all have to grow old, and I am old and proud of it — China is a good place to be old," Ms. Kuhn, who has visited China twice, said at a news conference Tuesday.

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Arbitration Association says it handled a record number of 48,390 arbitrations last year — its 53rd year of operation.

The organization also reported at its annual meeting Tuesday that grievance arbitration clauses are now written into 95 percent of collective bargaining contracts across the nation and modern arbitration laws have become part of the nationwide pattern.

United Fund to allocate funds

The United Fund will be opening its hand of generosity at its next budget meeting April 30 when allocations for the 1979-80 year will be designated.

All interested agencies should have their yearly budget prepared before the meeting.

The fund made quarterly payments of $41,444 to its 12 member agencies during April.

Pampa given Shrine honor

A former Pampan continues to grin, as he was named second vice president of the Texas Shrine Clowns Association at the annual state convention at Fort Worth March 9-11.

Marion Moore now of Amarillo was named to this honor and will be elected president of the Texas Shrine Clowns Association in 1981, if the Shrine tradition for the vice president is followed.

Moore, better known as "Blackie," had worked for Joe Burrow's Tire Co. and served voluntarily as a fireman in Pampa. He was later employed by Cabot Texas El Carbon Plant.

After becoming president of the Khiva Klowns in 1971, he was elected as a life member in 1977 for his support and devotion to the organization and its philanthropic philosophy, said a Khiva spokesman.

He is the brother of Pampa's Mrs. Clyde Jonas and Mrs. Cecil McCarrell.

Trustees to consider contract

The Lefors Independent School District Board of Trustees will consider a contract with Thomas Y. Pickett & Co. Inc. for computer tax roll at a meeting 7 p.m. Thursday.

The board will canvass the election and re-elect new officers, as well as vote on the current bills for payment.

A new policy on employee dismissal and student suspension will be presented to the board while the physical education requirements will be discussed to set standards equivalent to those of the State.

Dear Abby

by abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: Would you please say something in your column about girls who get involved with married men? My 23-year-old daughter has entered into such a relationship. The man is handsome, successful and charming, but can offer her nothing but a sleazy after-hours office romance. (The same old story: his marriage is "empty and loveless" but he can't give up his children.)

My daughter is pretty, intelligent and completely devoted to this man. (She works for him.) It hurts me to see her waste her best years in a hopeless relationship.

Since my information about this affair is confidential, I can't approach my daughter with warnings and "motherly" advice.

Perhaps a word from you might help. She reads your column faithfully and believes in you.

DEPENDING ON YOU

DEAR DEPENDING: A "word" from me isn't likely to help much. What your daughter needs is a word from someone who has been down that road and found that it usually leads to heartbreak alley. If she has read me "faithfully," she will have seen many such letters.

An involvement with a married man is painful, degrading and hopeless at best. But some women have to learn the hard way.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think girls who wear glasses come on as sexy as girls who don't?

G. IN PERRY, IOWA

DEAR G.: It depends on their frames.

DEAR ABBY: After many years of marriage my husband began to get careless about his personal hygiene. He'd forget to use a deodorant, or his toothbrush, work hard all day, then join me in bed without showering. He was physically very unattractive.

I didn't nag or scold him. Instead I became the aggressor. I'd slip a cute little poem to him which read something like this:

"Brush your teeth and take a shower
And meet me in the bedroom in half an hour!"
Or, after dinner, I'd lay out his good pajamas and tell him I just HAD to have him, and he'd better hurry up and shower and get to bed before I got out of the mood!

Let me tell you, it worked!
If only women would realize how much more they can accomplish with a little humor and sweet words. Also, men like to be pursued for a change.

My little game has made a big difference in our marriage, Abby. Now sometimes he even writes ME a note. Pass this along.

"TIGER WOMAN" (his name for me)

DEAR ABBY: Like many others, I never thought I would have to write to you, but something so offended my sensitivities that I felt compelled to write for your opinion.

What do you think of a 4-year-old child who chews tobacco? His parents think it's cute. The little boy always carries a plug of tobacco and chews and spits just like a little old man.

When I told his parents that it could damage the child's health, they laughed and said, "He doesn't smoke it, so it's not harmful."

Can your experts come up with any facts about the possible dangers of chewing tobacco? Especially to a 4-year-old? Maybe they will listen to you.

A FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: The American Cancer Society informs me that there is evidence that chewing tobacco can cause cancer of the lips, tongue, mouth or throat. The parents of that child should be hauled into court for child abuse!

Dr. Lamb

by lawrence lamb m.d.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am worried about my husband. He is a constant beer drinker. He drinks it like it was water. He smokes two packs of cigarettes daily. He used to drink coffee upon rising in the morning and now it's only one cup of coffee and right away he switches to beer. It's between 8 to 12 cans a day. Never less than six and sometimes many more.

In the morning when he drives to work, he starts in coughing real hard and ends up vomiting a whole lot of liquid. He won't see a doctor. I've begged him to go to one but he won't. He says it's from his sinus drainage into his throat. Do you think all of that beer is good for him? Do you think he is an alcoholic? What should I do?

DEAR READER — If your description is even halfway correct, your husband is an alcoholic. One of the awful aspects about alcoholism is that a number of them have to hit rock bottom and have severe medical complications or total complete financial collapse before they're willing to do anything for themselves. The picture is complicated by the point that many people with alcohol problems have complete denial of illness. They think there's nothing wrong with them when, in fact, they're getting worse every day.

In our free society, it's difficult to make people do things against their will, even when it's for their own good. The alcohol and cigarette habit are two outstanding examples. The combination of these two habits represents an enormous financial load to our society.

It's sometimes said that we get a lot of taxes from these habits and they help to support our society. That's totally false. The combined habits create medical expenses which far exceed any taxes that are obtained from these products. Society as a whole has to pay for it in the form of increased insurance costs as well as providing direct medical support for those who can no longer afford it.

Well, what can you do about it? I'm sending you The Health Letter number 1-4, Alcohol, Whiskey, Gin, Vodka, Rum, Wine, Beer to give you more information on what alcohol does to the body. It might help you some in coping with your husband's problem. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

In addition to being informed you've got to enlist the help of whatever agencies are available to you locally to see if you can get your husband to do something for himself.

Look in the yellow pages of your telephone directory under alcoholism and see what centers and services are available to your community. If there are none because of the size of your community, get a telephone directory from the nearest large city that you might be able to utilize. These run the gambit from Alcoholics Anonymous to mental health clinics. Someone in one of these groups will be able to give you some pretty good advice as to what's possible to be achieved in your husband's case.

Sometimes a spouse has to be very firm and at some point just refuse to have to live with such a problem when the other individual refuses to do anything about it. That's tough to do with a loved one but sometimes it's the only solution that's left. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Lynn Anderson has expectations

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

When her daughter was born eight years ago, Lynn Anderson recalls, somebody woke her up in the hospital and told her she had a little girl and the No. 1 record on the pop charts. The child was Lisa. The record was "I Never Promised You a Rose Garden." Miss Anderson has great expectations again. She's expecting her second baby and her Columbia Records LP, "Outlaw Is Just a State of Mind," is No. 52 and her single from it, "Isn't It Always Love?," is No. 30 on the country charts. Both are climbing. Miss Anderson hopes that by the time the baby is born, the records will be high on the pop charts.

Miss Anderson is married to her second husband, Spook Stream, who has an interest in several progressive rock and album-oriented rock radio stations. She has made a breakthrough for country music, at least her own, on those stations.

"They didn't play my music until recently," she says. "I kept giving him a bad time. I was heard there only when I did commercials for a soft drink company and the company would pay for the minute."

The blonde singer never did wear square-dance dresses for performing. "If I'm dressing up and trying to look nice, which is what I do when I go on stage, I watch what fashions are doing. I go a little bit with what is current in fashion, rather than being locked into a country outfit."

"Of course, boots and a cowboy hat are a different thing. If somebody comes to my house, I'm in cowboy boots or bare feet."

Miss Anderson has shown horses since she was 7. "I think I've had six California state championships and six national championships. They're judged events, some on the riders, some on the way the horse performs, some are beauty contests for horses where you lead them in.

"I've had two national championships with reining horses, the last in 1978. They have a set pattern like a figure skater does and they're judged on how precisely and how perfectly they execute the patterns. They do spins and circles and change directions."

"Mostly the agility events are done by quarter horses. I raise quarter horses. We also have cutting horses. I have a world champion cutting horse. They go into a herd of cattle and separate one. They can do it without a bridle. It's a lot of fun."

"I was entered in the Houston Livestock Show a month ago. I went to work my horse a couple of days before it and realized my balance was shot. He'd be turning left and I'd still be going right. I realized my days of that were over until after the baby comes."

"The horse does all the work; all you have to do is hang on. A lot of dipping and dodging goes on."

"That much interest and time spent on a hobby is unusual for a musical artist. 'A lot of entertainers get so involved in being a star they forget how to be a person,'" Miss Anderson says. "I have a lot more fun than they do."

"It is frightening to me to see a lot of people who don't do anything else but music," she goes on. "I wonder what they will do when the time comes when people don't buy our records any more. I've tried to be realistic and prepare for that day. The day will come for each and every one of us when we fail to sell records and tickets."

"I better not have forgotten my shorthand at that point," Miss Anderson's band members tell her she could open a restaurant, since cooking also is an avocation.

Miss Anderson's mother, Liz Anderson, is a writer of country songs. Miss Anderson has

Alison Hightower becomes Texas' Cherry Blossom Princess

(Washington, D.C.) Texas' Cherry Blossom Princess Alison Hightower, daughter of Congressman and Mrs. Jack Hightower of Vernon, joined her parents in Washington for the week long Cherry Blossom Festival activities which began with the lighting of the ancient Japanese Lantern at the Tidal Basin Monday evening and ended Saturday night with the 1979 National Cherry Blossom Ball.

The Japanese cherry trees, 3,000 of them donated to this country in 1912, were in full bloom for the opening ceremony and the presentation of Princesses, representing the 50 state Societies which have organizations in the nation's Capitol.

The first night ceremonies were followed by a reception for Princesses and their families at the Japanese Embassy. During other mid-week activities there was a congressional reception, a luncheon fashion show, and a private tour of the White House.

Miss Hightower, a Baylor University freshman, was honored Thursday night at a reception on Capitol Hill hosted by her parents. About 125 friends were served Cherry Blossom Cheese Cakes made from the following recipe:

Senate votes to change consumer protection law

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Senate has voted to change — one senator said destroy — a consumer protection law that purportedly was once hailed as a model for the other 49 states.

Sen. Bill Meier's proposed changes in the 1973 law cleared the Senate, 23-8, on Tuesday, after surviving two filibusters a week apart.

The final vote climaxed a bitter debate that appeared on the verge of turning into a personal confrontation between Meier and Sen. A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston.

"The Consumer Destruction Act of 1979," was Sen. Lloyd Doggett's epithet for Meier's proposal, which now goes to the House.

Doggett, D-Austin, led a group of senators who stalled for a total of 24 hours in an attempt to arouse enough public support against the measure.

The Senate bill would require proof that a merchant's alleged deception amounted to a deliberate "unconscionable act" before the customer could collect triple damages, which are viewed by some as a deterrent to business fraud.

Doggett also objected the list of deceptive trade practices was shortened, and only the attorney general would be able to bring class-action suits.

"If you just steal a little from a lot of folks, nothing will happen," Doggett protested.

"A ridiculously bad bill... awful," shouted Schwartz, "the worst bill of the session."

He accused Meier of "perpetuating a fraud on the people of Texas" and said of his bill, "Nobody wants it, except the auto dealers and the real estate lobby."

Meier, D-Eules, insisted his proposed changes would "restore the balance to the market place area of the deceptive trade practice act."

"If God himself came out here today and asked you to vote against the lobby on this bill, you wouldn't do it," said Schwartz.

Since the consumer protection act became effective, businesses have done "backflips to satisfy consumers because they know gross penalties await them if they do not," said Sen. Ron Clower, D-Garland.

Clower said as a result of proposed changes by Meier, the only person who could cover triple damages for fraud or deceit would be a "senile old lady who had been completely taken advantage of, one who had been sold a car and doesn't have a driver's license."

The Senate repeatedly rejected proposed amendments that sponsors said would restore consumers' rights. A Clower amendment that was rejected 16-13 would have made it an offense for a person to fail to "disclose a past or existing fact known to him."

Doggett said this means a seller would not be liable for damage even if he sold a customer a termite-infested house and knew it had termites.

Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, tried to add a provision that would enable a car buyer, for example, to "revoke acceptance" of the vehicle if repeated attempts to repair it were unsuccessful. His amendment failed, however, 11-17.

Mauzy, the Senate sponsor of the original 1973 consumer protection law, said several years ago the nation's attorney general had voted it a "model act" and recommended it to other 49 states.

Soviets launch Soyuz 33

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union launched a Bulgarian into space Tuesday as half of a two-man cosmonaut team, the fourth such mission in its "Interkosmos" program of international space exploration, Moscow Radio reported.

The Soyuz 33 mission appeared to represent another "first" as well. Its commander, Nikolai Rukavishnikov, 46, is believed to be the first three-time Soviet space traveler, having flown into orbit previously aboard Soyuz 10, in 1971 and Soyuz 16 in 1974.

Three U.S. astronauts have made three trips into space — John Young, Jim Lovell and Tom Stafford.

The 38-year-old Bulgarian, Georgi Ivanov, and Rukavishnikov will link up with two Soviet cosmonauts already in space — flight commander Vladimir Lyakhov and flight engineer Valery Ryumin aboard the orbiting Salyut 6 space station.

In an interview with the Soviet news agency Tass prior to the flight, Ivanov said: "Every citizen of my country realizes well that it is only due to friendship with the Soviet Union that Bulgaria could appear in space orbit... The realization that I shall have to work with such experienced comrades... infuses me with confidence in the success of the important expedition."

A new direct television link between the ground and the space station enabled Lyakhov and Ryumin to watch the launch as it occurred.

"To watch the launching of a spaceship is an impressive event, but to watch while in outer space is something exceptional," Ryumin was quoted as saying on Soviet television Tuesday night.

In the three earlier Interkosmos flights, a Czechoslovakian, a Pole and an East German went aloft, all with Soviet spaceship commanders.

The United States has not launched any foreign astronauts, though some West Europeans are in training.

Davis retrial to move

HOUSTON (AP) — Prosecutors say Fort Worth millionaire Cullen Davis can get an impartial jury in Harris County for his retrial on charges that he hired someone to kill the original presiding judge in his divorce case.

District Judge Wallace "Pete" Moore — who presided over the first murder-for-hire trial — disagrees, however, and has made up his mind to give the retrial to another judge in another part of the state.

Jack Strickland, an assistant district attorney for Tarrant County, said he would demand a court hearing today to present witnesses who believe Davis can receive a fair trial here.

The judge said Tuesday he had decided to grant a defense request for a change of venue from Harris County, where three months of trial ended in January with the jury deadlocked at 8-4.

Moore said he has already contacted several judges — whose names or locations he declined to reveal — to determine "if they can absorb this case."

Davis' first trial was moved from Fort Worth to Houston at the request of the prosecution, which convinced the judge the millionaire could not receive a fair trial in his home county.

Defense attorney Mike Gibson said he plans to continue efforts to have the trial moved because the inordinate amount of publicity it received makes it impossible to empanel an impartial jury here.

Moore said he expected to hear from the judges he has contacted by today.

Idi Amin's capital falls

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Kampala, President Idi Amin's capital, fell to an invasion force of Tanzanians and Ugandan exiles early today, and by morning only scattered pockets of Ugandan troops were resisting in the city.

Amin was reported to have left Kampala Tuesday for his new headquarters in Jinja, 50 miles to the east. It was not known yet whether the invaders would pursue him.

"The fascist dictator is finished," loudspeakers told Ugandan troops still holding out. They were urged to surrender.

The invaders started into Kampala Tuesday afternoon from the north and south after a night-long artillery bombardment, followed by a fierce rocket, artillery and jet fighter attack in the morning and early afternoon. Despite the heavy bombardment, there was little visible damage to homes and commercial buildings.

The Tanzanian column from the south was commanded by spear-brandishing Lt. Col. Ben Msekwa, who ran ahead of his troops to lead them whenever resistance was encountered. Heavy automatic weapons fire was poured into pockets of Ugandan holdouts, silencing them.

The Tanzanians and their Ugandan allies completed their penetration of the city during the night, charging isolated groups of Amin's troops in attacks launched by bugle calls.

Msekwa was reported to have had morning tea with the North Korean ambassador.

Kampalans greeted the invaders as they moved in from the south, swarming over three Tanzanian tanks and decorating them with flowers.

Looting Ugandans were seen at work in the city in the morning, and there were bodies of Ugandan troops who apparently had been beaten to death. Some of the looters tried to share their booty with the Tanzanians, but the invaders told them to return the goods.

The Tanzanians estimated that 25 to 30 Ugandan soldiers were killed during their advance into the center of the city. They said the invasion force suffered virtually no casualties.

Bodies of two whites, a man and a woman, lay alongside a car that had been hit by gunfire.

Fighting increases

SAN ISIDRO, Nicaragua (AP) — Fighting was reported in half a dozen cities in northern Nicaragua as the Sandinista guerrillas stepped up their war against President Anastasio Somoza.

Among the cities were Esteli, El Sauce, Leon and Condega, but the national guard, had its cannon could be heard firing.

A Red Cross spokesman also said the government agreed to allow a Red Cross supply convoy into Esteli early today and that the Red Cross would try to evacuate all residents who want to leave.

Refugees from the fighting said the guerrillas were better armed and organized than during the two-week September uprising in which an estimated 1,500 persons were killed before four northern cities were recaptured by the guard.

"It's starting out just like it did in September. We left a war behind," said Ruben Blandon, who fled Esteli along with several hundred other persons for this village. As he spoke, gunfire and occasional heavy explosions could be heard in the mountains toward Esteli.

The refugees said snipers were firing from three locations along the 18 miles of highway that separate Esteli and San Isidro but added that the national guard was patrolling the highway as far as the Esteli garrison.

There'll be certain responsibilities that may not be to your liking that you'll have to face up to. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You tend to be careless today with the company you keep, and could be drawn into a compromising situation. Better to shun shady acquaintances. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be honest with yourself as to what your motives are when doing things that could affect others. Only virtuous intentions will stand up under today's aspects. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There could be more talk than muscle in evidence today, and a job that might be important to you won't get done. LEGS BEING SO IMPORTANT IN THE GOLF ACTION, PEOPLE WHO GET LITTLE ACTIVITY ALL WEEK AND THEN RIDE A CART ALL WEEKEND REALLY DON'T GIVE THEMSELVES MUCH CHANCE OF PLAYING DECENTLY.

THE OLDER I'VE GOTTEN, THE MORE FREQUENTLY AND STRENUOUSLY I'VE EXERCISED - ESPECIALLY MY LEGS. IT SO HAPPENS THAT I'M ABLE TO KEEP IN GOOD SHAPE BY PLAYING OTHER SPORTS, BUT IF I COULDN'T DO THAT I'D FIND ANOTHER METHOD, SUCH AS JOGGING OR BICYCLING - OR SIMPLY WALKING AT EVERY OPPORTUNITY. Denver, Phoenix claim playoff win

By The Associated Press
So who needs George McGinnis? Apparently not the Denver Nuggets. Center Dan Issel outplayed Los Angeles' mighty Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Tom Boswell contributed 19 points as a starter in place of the injured McGinnis as the Nuggets defeated the Lakers 110-105 Wednesday night in the opening game of their National Basketball Association playoff mini-series.

Denver can wrap up its best-of-three first-round series with a victory at Los Angeles Friday night.

In Wednesday night's other playoff game, the Phoenix Suns beat the Portland Trail Blazers 107-103. The second game of that series will be played in Portland Friday night.

The two Eastern Conference series get underway tonight, with the New Jersey Nets at Philadelphia Flyers and Atlanta Flames at Houston Rockets.

Issel led the Nuggets with a season-high 30 points, including a three-point play that gave Denver its biggest lead at 85-67 with 4:52 left in the third period.

Los Angeles got its fast break going outscored the Nuggets 23-8 to close within 10 but could come no closer as David Thompson, a free throw and Issel and Charlie O'Connell contributed baskets to push the lead back to eight.

Harvesters visiting Liberal today

Hoping to keep their skills fine-tuned for further district competition, the Pampa Harvester baseball team traveled to Liberal, Kan., today for a pair of double-headers.

Coach Steve Scott said twin bills had been arranged for Pampa's varsity and junior varsity squads, giving Pampa a total of four games in Kansas this afternoon.

Pampa already owns victories over Liberal's varsity and JV squads. The Hitting Harvesters held off a late Liberal rally for a 9-6 varsity win March 29 at Optimist Park.

The junior varsity team, meanwhile, was probably eager to face more Redskin pitching. The Pampa reserves rapped out 16 hits and stomped Liberal 21-4 when the Kansas team visited in March.

Statistics on the Harvesters show Leroy Kuhn (1-for-2) leading the team with a .500 batting average. Among the more regular players, Greg Koch's .413 mark leads the way. Mark Jennings is next on the list with a .388 mark, while Richard Wuest is hitting a healthy .385. Rick Dougherty leads the team in home runs (5), runs batted in (16) and has raised his batting mark to .333. Steve McDougall (.353) and Steve Stout (.313) are the other Harvesters over the .300 mark.

Koch has 15 RBIs, while Jeff Copeland is the only other Harvester with more than one homer. He has two.

Pampa's team batting average is .299, while the team earned run average is a scant 2.43. Stout's 0.25 ERA tops the list, but Dougherty has one more victory at 5-0. Stout is 4-0, but has allowed just one earned run all season. He's also allowed just 12 hits in over 27 innings.

Dougherty is the strikeout leader with 36 in 35 innings. Stout has 22 whiffs to his credit.

The Harvesters will return to District 3-AAAA action Tuesday, when they'll travel to Palo Duro for a 4 p.m. matchup. Pampa is 12-3 on the year and 2-0 through the first half of district play.

Watson among favorites

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Tom Watson, relaxing in the locker room at the Augusta National Golf Club, was careful to preface his remarks with a disclaimer.

"I don't place too much importance in favorites, or who's picked as the favorite."

"If Jimmy the Greek had to make a living betting on golf, he'd be broke yesterday."

But, Watson said, looking ahead to the Thursday start of the 42nd Masters golf tournament, "there are certain categories of players."

And he began ticking off some of the more likely to succeed to the green jacket that will be draped around the shoulders of the winner of this annual spring rite.

"Raymond (Floyd) obviously is playing very well right now," Watson said. "He's at a peak."

"Gary (Player) had a strong second place finish last week. He's got his act together."

"Jack (Nicklaus), well, he's played this course so many times — and experience is so important here — and he's such a smart player, he could play just mediocre and win."

And Watson, of course, the heir apparent to Nicklaus as golf's premier performer, didn't discount his own chances in the tournament he won in 1977 and in which he was a runnerup last season.

"I'm playing well enough to be there," said Watson, a runaway winner of the prestigious Heritage Classic in his last start.

"I'm swinging reasonably well. I'm a little fast with my rhythm, but that's something I fight all the time."

"I'm just going to try to minimize my mistakes. I'm going to try not to make any big mistakes and make any big numbers. I'm going to try not to make any mistakes at all. There's a lot of places out there on Augusta National where a mistake can cost you a lot of strokes."

Watson, currently heading the money-winning list and Player of the Year the last two seasons, said the famed golf course "is in the best condition I've ever seen it. The greens are much faster, much slicker than last year. Given the same weather conditions as last year, the scores will be higher."

Pitch, hit and run

Pampa's future Pete Roses should start honing their baseball skills for major league baseball's Pitch, Hit and Run competition, scheduled for May 12 at Optimist Park.

Boys and girls nine to 12 years of age can pick up entry blanks now at Burger King and the Optimist Club, 601 E. Craven. Age of contestants as of July 17, 1979, determines the age bracket in which they'll compete.

Each youngster competes in three categories: pitching at a target, hitting for distance and running the base paths. Winners from the Pampa trials will go on to district competition.

National finals for the event will be held at the All-Star Game at Seattle's Kingdome on July 17. The Pampa competition is scheduled to begin at 1 p.m., with a rainout date of May 26 scheduled if the weather doesn't cooperate. Deadline for entries is April 30.

Race set Saturday

A five-mile run and a special two-mile event for contestants 12 and under are the April Club Races for the West Texas Running Club.

The races are scheduled to begin at 10 Saturday morning at Wallace Boulevard in Amarillo, which is one mile north of I-40 and Coulter Road, near the High Plains Baptist Hospital.

Trophies will go to at least the top three finishers in each of seven divisions for the five-mile event and to the top three places in the 12 and under two-mile run. All running will be on asphalt roads.

Entry fees are $2 for non-club members and $1 for club members. Bob Dunbar, 6526 Fulton in Amarillo, is the Race Director.

Pittsburgh, Toronto snare wins

By The Associated Press
The Buffalo Sabres still can't beat the Pittsburgh Penguins, and the Atlanta Flames still can't beat anybody — not in the playoffs, anyway.

Three third-period goals carried the Penguins to a 4-3 triumph Tuesday night as the National Hockey League's best-of-three preliminary playoff rounds got under way. The triumph extended to 15 games Pittsburgh's unbeaten streak against the Sabres.

"I don't think there's a hex," said the Penguins' Rick Kehoe. "I think (Pittsburgh goalie) Denis Herron kept us in the game."

Regardless, the Penguins have won seven and tied the other eight of their meetings with the Sabres.

Meanwhile, the Toronto Maple Leafs trimmed the Flames 2-1, leaving Atlanta with 11 losses in the 12 games of their playoff history.

The brawl-marred contest, which saw nine players ejected after a bench-clearing second-period melee, left the Flames in a familiar position: one loss away from elimination.

"We had our chances but we were not as strong offensively as I would have liked," said Atlanta Coach Fred Creighton, who looked to Thursday night's second game of the series — one the Flames have to win to stay alive. "With our backs to the wall, we may not be able to be as aggressive Thursday night. You don't have much choice when you can be out of business in 60 minutes."

That's the way the Flames have ended up the last three seasons: into the playoffs and out in the best-of-three round. The only playoff victory of their history came against the Los Angeles Kings in the 1976-77 preliminary round.

Elsewhere, the Vancouver Canucks — the team few people gave a chance against Philadelphia — scored a stunning 3-2 triumph over the Flyers, and the New York Rangers blasted the Kings 7-1. The Canucks, who had the worst record of the 12 playoff teams, took a very practical approach to their series with the Flyers.

"We've been off since Friday, so we flew to Toronto to practice and to rest before coming here," said rookie Coach Harry Neale. "We got the travel out of our system. Philadelphia had only one day to prepare, and you can't do that in the playoffs."

Nine die in halfway house fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — A fire that apparently started in a sofa, then raced up the stairway of a halfway house for the mentally ill claimed the lives of nine patients early today, authorities said. Six persons were injured, one critically, in the fire. Neighbors on the normally quiet residential street in northwest Washington described a scene of terrified residents at the building's windows, outlined against a background of flames. Battalion fire chief Richard Hubscher said several residents apparently died of smoke inhalation — "they never got out of bed" — while others apparently died trying to escape the flames. Several scrambled to safety down fire ladders. One woman died when she jumped from the second floor of the three-story brick and stucco building.

From the first floor, Hubscher said, the blaze apparently spread quickly up the stairway in "a chimney effect." Richard Lambert, who lives next door to the home, said he "heard a lot of noise, shouts. I looked out and every window was in flames." He said many of the residents were "older women, and added to start with," but he and other neighbors said the patients were alert to the situation and tried desperately to escape the blaze. The injured were rushed to the Washington Hospital Center for treatment. One was listed in critical condition and another in serious, hospital officials said. Three were in satisfactory condition, and the sixth in fair condition, officials said. The home is run by the Volunteers of America for outpatients of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, a federal psychiatric facility for residents of the District of Columbia.

Authorities said 47 outpatients from St. Elizabeth's Hospital, many of them women ranging in age from their 40s to their 60s, lived at the home. 22 in the section hardest hit by the fire. The identities of the victims were not released immediately. Hubscher said the cause of the fire had not been precisely determined, but Deputy Police Chief Houston Bigelow said it apparently started in a sofa on the first floor.

"About 1 a.m. one of the patients cried out for help" when she noticed the fire, he said. Other residents were unable to stop the fire from spreading quickly to the rest of the house, he said.

Oil profits must find new fuel

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says he'll work with Congress or do the job himself as long as the results meet his demand: America's oil companies must use half of any new profits from decontrolled oil prices to search for more oil or gas.

Carter's signal that he might need congressional help to back up the demand he made in his energy speech last Thursday came during a Tuesday news conference in which he also apparently softened his standby gasoline rationing position to put it more in line with Senate wishes.

Congress has already given frosty receptions to Carter's request for a 50 percent tax on "windfall profits" expected to flow from the phased oil decontrol he's ordered to begin June 1 and to his standby federal gasoline rationing program calling for purchase coupons based in part on the number of cars a person owns.

Under Carter's decontrol plan, half of all "excess profits" would go into a special fund for development of alternate energy sources and for cushioning the blow of inevitably higher energy prices for poor people.

For the remaining profits, estimated at $6 billion over three years, Carter said, "The nation has a right to expect that all this new income will be used for exploration for new oil and gas, and not to buy timberlands and department stores."

He said he would support constraints imposed by either the executive branch or Congress on the oil companies' use of profits. But neither Carter nor other administration officials would say what actions he might take aside from proposing legislation to Congress.

As for gasoline rationing, Carter said that before the Energy Department imposed rationing requirements, "my own inclination is to let the states make the first effort to meet reduced consumption standards."

FOCUS

Early Bird

Today, the name Philip Crane may not mean very much to most Americans. But if Rep. Philip Crane, 48, has his way, he will be president of the United States by 1981. Crane, a conservative Republican, announced his candidacy eight months ago, earlier than any other candidate in his party. The former history professor and 10-year congressman has been making speeches, shaking hands and attending fundraising events ever since. Crane believes his early start could give him the winning edge in the race for the nomination, just as it helped Democrat Jimmy Carter in 1976. He's even made it into the a campaign slogan: "Crane The Early Bird."

DO YOU KNOW — Which state does Philip Crane represent in Congress?

TUESDAY'S ANSWER — Ernest Hemingway won the Pulitzer Prize for "The Old Man and the Sea."

Appeal may tie up construction

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Opponents of the $60 million Stacy Dam project say their planned appeal of a Texas Water Commission order approving the facility could tie up construction for three years.

"The permit becomes effective 60 days after the order, but I don't think they would do anything with the permit (if appealed in court)," Fred Werkenhain, lawyer for the Lower Colorado River Authority, said.

Werkenhain's comments came after the water commission unanimously approved an application from the Colorado River Municipal Water District to build the dam-reservoir on the Colorado River 26 miles southeast of Ballinger.

Cities served by the district include San Angelo, Midland, Stanton, Odessa, Big Spring and Snyder.

Chairman Felix McDonald and Commissioners Joe Carroll and Dorsey Hardeman met five minutes to approve the application. The decision ended 18 months of hearings in possibly the most expensive fight over water in Texas.

The LCRA and the city of Austin opposed the plans to divert more than 36 billion gallons of water a year from communities below the dam. The LCRA operates the Highland Lakes dam-reservoir system of Lakes Buchanan, Lyndon B. Johnson, Travis and Austin.

Critics say the project adversely will affect downstream water supplies and hydroelectric power generation.

Werkenhain said he would ask the commission to reconsider the order. If necessary, he said he would appeal to the Travis County district court, the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals in Austin and the Texas Supreme Court.

Frank Booth, attorney for the water district, said the project also needs a state water quality permit and approval from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Construction should take three to four years.

Under a water commission order, the water district will be allowed to divert 88,000 acre feet of water annually for municipal and domestic purposes and 25,000 acre feet annually power plant operations.

An acre foot is 325,851 gallons.

Water commissioners agreed with evidence that downstream lake levels will not be affected, Booth said.

"The lake levels in the Highland Lakes historically have been much lower (than necessary) because of release of water solely for production of hydroelectric power," he said. "And the LCRA said in the hearings that they would not do that in the future. The only impact of Stacy Dam will be some limitation on hydroelectric power."

Texas Utility Service Co., a subsidiary of Texas Utilities, will build the project. Some water from the facility will be used to cool a huge generating plant near Stacy Reservoir to serve Dallas Power & Light, Texas Power & Light and Texas Electric Service Co. — also subsidiaries of Texas Utilities.

Marvin play nearing close

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michelle Triola Marvin's lawyer tearfully urged a judge to give the former showgirl half of Lee Marvin's millions, crying out: "I implore this court to treat her fairly."

Marvin Mitchelson was the last lawyer to speak in final arguments as the Hollywood-style courtroom drama of love and money neared its crucial last act Tuesday.

His comments came at the end of nearly six hours of summations in which Marvin's chief attorney, A. David Kagon, said the actor never promised Miss Marvin a share of property and insisted that she is entitled to nothing.

"One of the reasons people don't get married," Kagon said, "is that they don't want the responsibilities and obligations."

The last words in the landmark case were left to Superior Court Judge Arthur Marshall, who said he will ponder some 8,000 pages of testimony before issuing a written ruling.

Marshall, who said he hopes to rule early next week, must decide whether Miss Marvin is entitled to half of the fortune Marvin made during the six years the actor and the former showgirl lived together as lovers. Miss Marvin's suit asks specifically for $1.8 million.

"He took both halves and we want our half back, or part of our half back," Mitchelson told the judge.

He stressed that Miss Marvin had loved the actor and was devoted to him during their affair.

At day's end, Miss Marvin, 46, quietly wept once more as Mitchelson recalled her former role as helpmate to the 55-year-old actor.

"Just think of how many times she comforted him, and I don't mean sexually," he said. "Think of how many times she held his head up, how many hangovers he had, how many times she got him off a barstool."

The white-haired Marvin stared glumly at Mitchelson as the attorney's voice rose to a crescendo in the crowded courtroom.

"Fairness is what this is about," Mitchelson said, his voice breaking. "I implore this court to treat her fairly. She gave something to this man. She helped him acquire this property. She deserves something."

Throughout the arguments, Marshall sharply questioned both lawyers on their interpretations of the California Supreme Court decision in Marvin vs. Marvin that gives unmarried cohabitants the right to sue for property.

Field work ahead of schedule

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although rain and melting snow stalled farmers in many areas last month, fieldwork for spring crops actually moved ahead of its pace a year ago, says the Agriculture Department.

Moreover, moisture in most winter wheat areas put the crop in "fair to mostly good" shape by April 1, the department's Crop Reporting Board said Tuesday.

"Frequent rainfall and melting snow kept soils saturated in many parts of the nation," it said. "Soggy fields slowed land preparation in low-lying fields."

A year ago, however, fieldwork was even farther behind because of a wet, late spring and farmers went on to harvest record crops of corn and soybeans.

Looking at last month's progress, the report said "crop planting in the extreme southern portions of the nation began slowly but kept pace with the gradually increasing soil temperatures," which were 2 degrees above normal in the South but 2 to 10 degrees below normal in the midwestern Corn Belt and in California.

The winter wheat crop benefited greatly in many areas from the moisture, with topsoil moisture "adequate in all major production areas" by April 1, the report said.

"On the Great Plains, winter wheat rated fair to mostly good with some excellent ratings in southern areas," it said. "Texas wheat showed good to excellent prospects, except scattered dry spots on the high plains."

"Oklahoma wheat grew vigorously, with 30 percent of the crop reaching the 'joint' stage, compared with 20 percent last year and the 45 percent average."

Wheat in Kansas, the leading producer, "improved, with earlier planted fields better than later-seeded stands," the report said. Nebraska wheat was reported in "fair to good" shape.

Livestock pastures and ranges also have benefited from the moisture and were rated in 77 percent condition as of April 1, six points above a year ago. Most of the improvement was reported in the eastern states.

"Conditions in many western states are below a year ago due to this year's cooler weather," the report said. "Soil moisture supplies are adequate and (grass) growth should improve when temperatures warm."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wool producers soon will be getting federal checks totaling about $36 million for wool they sold last year.

The Agriculture Department says payments, which are made to bridge the gap between the wool market price and "incentive" or target price, will be made through local offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Incentive payments were authorized by Congress in the Wool Act of 1954. They were the forerunner of target prices now used to compute payments for crops such as wheat, corn and cotton.

For some years, the wool incentive price was 72 cents a pound, meaning that if the market price was less payments would go to producers to make up the difference.

Congress, in the Food and Agriculture Act of 1977, ordered the incentive price to be adjusted annually, beginning with wool marketed that year. The incentive price for 1977 was raised to 99 cents a pound and payments totaled about $28 million.

The incentive price for wool marketed in 1978 is $1.08 a pound, and the average market price last year for shorn wool was 74.5 cents a pound. Thus, the difference is 33.5 cents.

Ray Fitzgerald, administrator of ASCS, said the payment rate for unshorn lambs sent to slaughter last year will be $1.34 per 100 pounds of live weight.

Also, he said, no incentive payments will be due on 1978 marketings of mohair because the market price — at $4.59 a pound — exceeded the support level of $1.65 a pound.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's stockpile of potatoes as of April 1 totaled 95.3 million 100-pound bags, up 7 percent from 89.2 million a year ago, says the Agriculture Department.

The inventory was a record for this time of year, reflecting the huge 1978 harvest, a record of 318.7 million hundredweight.

In a related report Tuesday, the department said production of spring-crop potatoes is forecast at 22 million hundredweight, up 23 percent from about 18 million produced last spring.
