Explosion injures two area workers

By EUGENE LAYCOCK
Pampa News Staff

The nuclear reactor incident in Harrisburg, Pa. has seemingly foreshadowed two accidents in the Pampa vicinity in the field of energy - the last one on a gas pipeline.

Two employees for Great Plains Construction Co. of Lubbock received second and third degree burns Friday shortly after 3 p.m. when an operating ditch digger struck a pipeline, igniting butane about four miles west of the city near Highway 152.

Andrew Bolin, 49, of Lubbock and G.E. Gore, 49, of Pampa were listed in satisfactory condition in the Burn Isolation Unit at St. Anthony's Hospital after being transferred from Northwest Texas Hospital.

The two men, working on pipeline, had suffered second and third degree burns on their backs and hips and were transported by Metropolitan Ambulance to Highland General and then to Amarillo.

Bolin reportedly had burns on 21 percent of his body, and Gore had 18 percent of his torso covered. Both men had to be sedated.

The first accident in the small chain was the Celanese incident, in which 11 people were burned two weeks ago from an energy band from a still undetermined problem at the construction sight east of the coal plant.

Four of the burned victims were transported to the Burn Center in Dallas and were last reported in serious condition. The two recent victims were consigned for the center, according to an ambulance spokesman, but remained in Amarillo.

The volatile gas at the recent occurrence formed a cone of fire, encircling over 30 square feet and remaining confined to an area west of Kerr-McGee Processing Plant.

The ruptured line of Diamond Shamrock was shut off on both sides to prevent the gaseous fire from spreading into all the lines. The men's knowledge of the gas line's existence is undetermined.

The flames reached into the sky like a tornado, and the black clouds of smoke could be seen outside for many miles.

The blaze went out later in the evening, as the fuel in the segment between the cut offs was expended by fire and evaporation.

In the meantime, the Department of Public Safety patrolled the area, advising possible spectators to go on because another explosion was feasible.

Other officers barricaded dirt road entrances to the blaze, which swirled above a toy ditch digger.

Gasoline price to rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's decision to phase out price controls on domestic oil will increase the cost of a gallon of gasoline 3.6 cents by 1981, according to a congressional study released Saturday.

The estimate, by the House Commerce subcommittee on energy, compares closely with administration projections that decontrol would push up gasoline prices 4 cents to 5 cents a gallon by September 1981. Other congressional estimates put the projected price impact at about twice that amount.

The subcommittee and administration estimates also do not include the effects of oil price increases that are expected from the oil exporting countries.

A DITCH DIGGER cut too deep and broke into a butane gas line west of the city near Highway 152, from where the resulting blaze could be seen. Two men were injured by the scorching

Panhandle residents dip have dipped into their hearts and their wallets since Tuesday to help those people that were involved in the disaster at Vernon and Wichita Falls and many emergency aid programs are just beginning.

Red Cross workers, church officials and members of the Salvation Army have formed collection centers in Panhandle communities for food and clothing and many area banks have set up special accounts for donations to the stricken areas.

In Canadian residents have been collecting food and clothing since Wednesday and have already sent one truckload of items to Wichita Falls and are planning only sending another truckload of clothing and household items Monday.

"We just figure it is the least we could do to help those people out," Art Haliburton, director of the disaster effort said. "We know that if it happened to us we would want all the help we could get."

Haliburton said the disaster fund had received "very favorable support" from the residents of Canadian.

"They know what they would expect if we needed the help so they opened up their pockets," Haliburton said.

Haliburton said that flashlights or lanterns and food were the items needed most by the Wichita Falls victims.

"We have the truck parked right here in front of City Hall so people can bring anything they want down," the director said.

Shamrock officials began their collection program Friday but said there was already some clothing on hand.

"We are getting a late start on a collection program but we are planning on taking several items down to the area (Wichita Falls) on Monday," Berten said.

The official said that Red Cross Chairman Sam Paken was coordinating the Shamrock effort and those wishing to donate items should contact the chairman.

In Wheeler the First Baptist Church was coordinating the relief effort.

"We just got started," Rev. Jerry Hogan said. "We are collecting canned goods and clothing right now at the church."

Hogan said the church was also taking money for the relief victims.

Gov. Bill Clements announced that all national guard armories in the state will be converted into distribution centers for the tornado victims. The local National Guard Armory, located on Highway 60 next to the rodeo grounds on the eastern edge of town, was open from 8 a.m. - 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday to receive donated clothes, food, etc. According to Staff Sgt. J.L. Larkin, the armory will be open from 12 - 5 p.m. Easter Sunday if enough people can be found to work there. The armory will also be open from 8 a.m. - 5 p.m. daily next week. Public response to the relief effort has been good so far, Larkin said.

Sue Holder of Pampa, a food stamp worker with the Texas Dept. of Human Resources, left Thursday for Wichita Falls. She volunteered to help the department staff in that area issue emergency financial assistance and food stamps to tornado victims. Her effort is part of a statewide disaster assistance program, according to Melinda Walker, public information director for the department.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

OPINION PAGE

Encouraging thrift

Because of inflation perhaps, the American people have become profligate in their spending. They are aware that the virtue of thrift has been obscured by the plummeting value of the dollar.

In recent years a person's potential wealth could be measured more by the amount of money he owned - providing it was invested in marketable assets of lasting value - than by the amount of money he had saved.

Traditionally the government has encouraged the urge to spend in order to achieve so-called full employment, which helps explain why only 6.5 percent of disposable income in America is earmarked for savings. In Japan, the figure is 25 percent; in West Germany 15 percent; in Britain 13 percent. The U.S. savings rate is lower than the rates in most other major nations.

No wonder. Appliances bought on the installment plan, money borrowed for items with high price tags, anything acquired through credit - all are tied to government subsidy. Interest paid is regarded as "deductible" by federal and state tax collectors.

But the interest received on savings deposits is taxable income. Some tentative steps have been taken to encourage thrift.

Some IRA and Keough accounts established to provide individual retirement programs enjoy favored tax treatment. Some corporate dividends are excluded from tax liability.

But, generally, government policies are designed to promote spending - not saving.

Congress could start to reverse the trend by giving favorable consideration to one of the 22 separate bills introduced this year to give tax aid to savers.

The United States League of Savings Associations has endorsed a flat $500 exclusion of interest earned on deposits.

Even the Most sweeping of the plans advanced thus far would result in a loss of less than 1 percent of federal revenue. That is a drop in the bucket compared to the potential benefit to the overall economic structure of the nation.

Does modern Capitalism have a future?

The Key Was Capitalism

But following World War II, growth was resumed on an even more impressive scale. In the 1950s, for instance, the 12 leading capitalist economies cited before had an average annual growth of 4.2 percent. In Germany, it was as high as an average of 7.6 percent. In all the West European economies, the rate of investment in the 1950s was half as high again as it had ever been on a sustained basis. In several such countries it was over 20 percent of the GNP; in Germany and the Netherlands it was 25 percent; in Norway even higher. Moreover, this high capital formation took place not at the cost of private consumption, but during a rapid and sustained rise in living standards, particularly of industrial workers. These tendencies were prolonged throughout the 1960s and into the 1970s. So far as the mature economies were concerned, the second industrial revolution, 1945-70, was entirely painless - largely so even in Japan, where even higher investment and growth rates were sought, and obtained, to catch up with the United States and Europe.

In short, after nearly five recorded millennia of floundering about, in relative or absolute poverty, humanity suddenly in the 1780s began to hit on the right formula: industrial capitalism. Consider the magnitude of the change over the last 200 years or less. We all know the wealth of present-day West Germany; all of us (I am sure) have seen it for ourselves. In the year 1800, in the whole of Germany there were less than 1,000 people with annual incomes $1,000 a year or more. Or again, take France. France now has more automobiles per capita even than Germany, and more second homes per family than any other country in Europe. In the 1780s, four-fifths of French families spent 90 percent of their incomes simply on buying bread - only bread - to stay alive.

Now I have said enough (I could say much more) to demonstrate that industrial capitalism, judged simply by its capacity to create wealth, and to distribute it, is a phenomenon unique in world history. It could be argued that it is the greatest single blessing ever bestowed on humanity. Why, then, am I giving a talk, not in any spirit of paradox either, called HAS CAPITALISM A FUTURE?

You may well ask. But I think we know the answer. I am giving it because capitalism is threatened, and we feel it to be threatened. The question is not academic. But before we go any further, I would like to clear up one important point. The idea has got around, and it is widely believed, especially among young people - and above all, alas, among young people who like to think they are well educated

- that industrial capitalism is unpopular, and always has been. That is the work of a tiny, interested minority who has thrust it upon the reluctant mass of mankind.

They Voted With Their Feet

Nothing, in fact, could be further from the truth. The storage economies of remote antiquity were often hideously unpopular. So was the slave-based economy, combined with corporatism, of the classical world. Agricultural feudalism was certainly unpopular; and mercantilism had to be enforced, in practice, by authoritarian states.

But capitalism, industrial capitalism - no! From the very start it received the demonstrable approbation of the masses. They could not vote in the ballot box, but they voted in a far more positive and impressive manner, with their feet. And this for a simple reason. The poorest member of society values political freedom as much as the richest and the well educated - that is my belief. But the freedom he values most of all, the freedom which means most to him, is the freedom to sell his labor and skills in the open market. It was precisely this that industrial capitalism gave to men for the first time in history. Hence it is a profound error of fact, in my view, to see what Blake called the "dark, satanic mills" of the industrial revolution, as the enslavement of man.

The factory system, however harsh it may have been, was the road to freedom for millions of agricultural workers. Not only did it offer them an escape from rural poverty, which was deeper and more degrading than anything experienced in the cities, but it allowed them to move from status to contract, from a stationary place in a static society, with tired cottages and semiconscript labor, to a mobile place in a dynamic one. That was why the common man voted for industrial capitalism with his feet, by tramping from the countryside to the towns, in enormous numbers, first in Britain, then throughout Europe. And tens of millions of European peasants, decade after decade, moved relentlessly across the Atlantic in pursuit of that same freedom, from semi-feudal estates and small holdings in Russia, Poland, Germany, Austria-Hungary, Italy, Ireland, Scandinavia, to the mines and factories and workshops of New York, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit. It was the first time in history that really large numbers of ordinary people were given the chance to exercise a choice about their livelihood and destiny, and to move, not as a member of a tribe or a conscript soldier, but as free individuals, selling their labor in the open market.

Legend of the dogwood tree

So far as I know this story is not fact, but it may be the oldest legend of the Christian era.

I have sought to back-track this story to its source. It's no use.

Don't look for it in the Bible; it is not there.

Of all those who have retold it, none ever signed his name to it. When you re-tell it, please do not credit me.

Generations have kept this story alive only because it seemed deserving of living. That does not make it "immortal," but interesting.

It is the legend of the Dogwood Tree.

Visiting the Holy Land this week I discovered the legend is told here much the same as I first heard it half a world away.

And that is strange. There are so many possibilities for expanding and elaborating on - for exaggerating - this yarn. I was quite surprised to hear it repeated simply and unadorned.

By some it is repeated as fact.

By others it is told to babies at bedtime, more as American mothers tell fairy tales. Yet, Disney gave dignity to those - even credibility.

And so generations of repetition have lent credibility to the legend of the Dogwood Tree.

It is said that at the time of the Crucifixion of Christ the Dogwood was a very large tree, big as an oak.

The Dogwood was so even - textured, firm and strong that it was chosen as the timber for the Cross.

Thus to be used for such a cruel purpose greatly distressed the tree. Jesus sensed this.

He, who noted even the sparrow's fall whose last compassion was for a repentant thief - similarly forgave the repentant Dogwood Tree for its unfortunate fate.

As he was nailed upon it, he sensed the painful remorse of the tree.

In gentle pity for all the sorrow and suffering of every living thing, he said to the tree: "Because of your share of My suffering, never again shall the Dogwood Tree grow large enough and strong enough to be put to such a purpose as this."

He said, "Henceforth, the Dogwood shall be slender and bent and twisted, that it might forever remain unmolested by the tools of cruel men.

"And the blossoms shall be in the form of a cross...

"Two long petals and two short...

"And in the center of each petal there will be nail prints...

"Brown with rust and stained with red...

"And in the center of the flower will be a crown-of-thorns.

"And all who pass and see the Dogwood tree...

"Will remember me..."

"And so it came to pass."

The people of Pampa have been faced with tragedy three times within the past two weeks but have remained calm in all three cases.

First, the Celanese plant fire affected many Pampa residents as family or friends were injured by the giant arc of electricity.

Second, a killer tornado strikes Vernon and Wichita Falls killing or injuring friends and relatives of Pampa residents.

Third, a gasoline explosion sends two men to the hospital with severe burns and clouds of smoke into the sky.

I would say that we have had more than our fair share of tragedy recently but I think that the people here should be proud of the way our town has responded in each emergency situation.

We have the people to handle any situation that might arise and I feel a little more secure knowing the kind of people that will make any tragedy a little easier.

I went to Wichita Falls this week and the disaster there is beyond belief but as I drove through the streets of Vernon I saw several Pampans there.

They were not there to see the effects of the twister but they were there to help.

One Department of Public Safety trooper was helping a man pick through the remains of his house while another handed out drinks and food at a disaster relief center.

Pampans have responded to this tragedy as they did when 11 people were injured at Celanese. The first thing they say is "what can I do to help."

These people don't get paid for the help they offer unless you call sleepless nights and hard work payment.

I just want to take time out to say again - thank you.

Importing coal

After a year of strikes - both wildcat and formal - the coal industry currently is quiescent.

"Quiescent" is the correct word in more ways than one. The walkouts have been ended, but few are back at work.

Only a year ago, with President Carter urging more coal production to offset the high price of imported oil, golden opportunities for coal miners and operators appeared to be multiplying. Then came the strikes recently settled with new contracts.

No need to worry about labor-management relations now. No need to, if the strikes hadn't been settled. As an unidentified industry spokesman said: "...there's no need to worry about labor-management relations when no one is working."

But why not? Why aren't coal mines gearing up to capacity production? Oil is more scarce and more expensive than it was when Carter urged greater reliance on coal.

That's all true. But so has the price of coal gone up. So high that it can't be sold for the necessary price, largely because of the high cost of labor.

In Wichita Falls Easter will

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — The folks who live along the Texas-Oklahoma border strip known as "Tornado Alley" live with the knowledge that it could happen at any given moment. It happened Tuesday night in Wichita Falls.

Many of the city's 96,000 residents were just sitting down to dinner, discussing the twister that killed 11 persons 50 miles up the road at Vernon earlier in the day, when a hulking cloud formed over Lake Wichita.

Witnesses said at least two tornadoes melted into one fat, churning twister that aimed at Memorial Stadium on the southwestern side of town.

The savage cloud touched ground about two miles south of town and gathered speed before it slammed into the heavily populated subdivisions. High-voltage towers built to withstand winds up to 400 miles per hour sprang in submission at the feet of the black tornado.

Granting no quarter, the storm chewed up 6,400 homes and spat the splintered lumber across the countryside before rolling north for 65 miles. One room of a mobile home, a full coffee can driven through a wall, was dumped beside U.S. 287 20 miles from Wichita Falls.

In 15 minutes it was over. At least 44 died in the eight-mile path of devastation that runs the entire length of the city's south side. Preliminary damage estimates for insured items was more

Tax service 'whips out forms'

DALLAS (AP) — Francis Winn looked amazingly calm for a man who was responsible for completing 10,000 tax returns in less than 72 hours. But, he mused, "any company that can whip out an error-free tax return 20 miles long in 4 days can do just about anything."

Winn is founder and board chairman of the nation's second largest company processing computerized income tax returns, and he relies on the federal government to keep Fast Tax, Inc. in business.

"The biggest crunch comes between March 1st and April 12th, when we process about 10,000 returns every day," he said recently in an interview in his Dallas office. "After the April 15th deadline, a lot of time will be spent making changes in order to perfect our system."

More than 1,000 persons work around the clock, seven days a week in the company's main office key punching information collected by accounting firms which have contracted Fast Tax to process, check and recheck data, print and finally mail returns to their clients throughout the United States, Canada, Europe, South America and the Orient.

There also are smaller branch offices, each employing about 40 persons in Chicago, Detroit and Los Angeles. To tackle such a task, Winn has purchased some of the most advanced equipment IBM and Amdahl manufacture.

The 61-year-old former chemical engineer became interested in computers "back in the early days" and built the company from scratch in 1964.

Today, 15 years later, Fast Tax computes an average of 500,000 individual, corporate and fiduciary returns for trusts administered by banks or law firms and grosses about $24 million every year. Winn estimates the company's annual rate of growth at about 25 percent.

"Several years ago, I designed a computer language called Cleartran which I decided to market," he said. "I went to one of the 'big eight' accounting firms in Dallas only to find they had already contracted the services of Computax (the nation's largest computer processing company which is owned by Commerce Clearing House in Chicago).

"But Computax had been running into production problems and was sometimes taking a number of weeks to get tax returns back to accountants," he continued. "So I suggested the firm give me one return to do, which they did. I returned it perfectly filled out at 8 o'clock the next morning."

Winn, who runs the family-owned business with his 32-year-old son, Stephen, firmly believes his computer language gave him a tremendous technological advantage over his competitors.

When a customer's tax information is received by the plant, it is classified into one of three categories. A return classified super expedite is mailed back to the customer within 24 hours, expedite within 48 hours and regular within 3 to 6 days.

Since speed is crucial, Fast Tax relies heavily on the services of air express and courier delivery.

Legislators may have special session

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Legislators probably will return for a special session this summer, but the big question is how long it will last, says Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin.

Gov. Bill Clements would be waging an uphill battle to call legislators into special session over something they overwhelmingly oppose, he said.

"If the Legislature, by a large margin, favors any given approach on a measure, there's a good possibility that a sine die resolution will be signed before it (the special session) gets underway," Doggett said on remarks taped for Sunday's State Capitol Dateline radio program.

A sine die resolution signals final adjournment of the Legislature until it is called back into either a special or regular session.

Gov. Bill Clements has emphasized he would not hesitate to summon legislators back to work if they fail to pass an initiative and referendum proposal.

"I'll be ready to go," Doggett said. "There is a good chance we'll be back here discussing appropriations with Gov. Clements in the summer months."

The youngest senator also predicted more Senate filibusters against what he called "an endless supply of incredibly bad bills" by Sen. Bill Meier, D-Eules.

Doggett led delaying tactics against Meier's proposed change in the Consumer Protection Act and against a bill allowing auto dealers to charge car buyers $35 for paperwork.

A sure filibuster target is the proposed split presidential primary.

"Our little discussion on the Consumer Protection Act will be a dwarf, compared to the extended debate we'll have on the presidential primary bill," Doggett said.

Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston, is sponsoring a bill to hold a March presidential primary separate from May party primary elections. Doggett and other opponents claim the plan would favor former Texas Gov. John Connally in his bid for the Republican presidential nomination.

Conservative Democrats could vote for Connally and then vote for incumbent Democratic legislators several months later.

Doggett said his filibuster against Meier's bill resulted in modest improvements. The Senate passed the measure to the House.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

OPINION PAGE

Encouraging thrift

Because of inflation perhaps, the American people have become profligate in their spending. They are aware that the virtue of thrift has been obscured by the plummeting value of the dollar.

In recent years a person's potential wealth could be measured more by the amount of money he owned - providing it was invested in marketable assets of lasting value - than by the amount of money he had saved.

Traditionally the government has encouraged the urge to spend in order to achieve so-called full employment, which helps explain why only 6.5 percent of disposable income in America is earmarked for savings. In Japan, the figure is 25 percent; in West Germany 15 percent; in Britain 13 percent. The U.S. savings rate is lower than the rates in most other major nations.

No wonder. Appliances bought on the installment plan, money borrowed for items with high price tags, anything acquired through credit - all are tied to government subsidy. Interest paid is regarded as "deductible" by federal and state tax collectors.

But the interest received on savings deposits is taxable income. Some tentative steps have been taken to encourage thrift.

Some IRA and Keogh accounts established to provide individual retirement programs enjoy favored tax treatment. Some corporate dividends are excluded from tax liability.

But, generally, government policies are designed to promote spending - not saving.

Congress could start to reverse the trend by giving favorable consideration to one of the 22 separate bills introduced this year to give tax aid to savers.

The United States League of Savings Associations has endorsed a flat $500 exclusion of interest earned on deposits.

Even the most sweeping of the plans advanced thus far would result in a loss of less than 1 percent of federal revenue. That is a drop in the bucket compared to the potential benefit to the overall economic structure of the nation.

Does modern Capitalism have a future?

The Key Was Capitalism

But following World War II, growth was resumed on an even more impressive scale. In the 1950s, for instance, the 12 leading capitalist economies cited before had an average annual growth of 4.2 percent. In Germany, it was as high as an average of 7.6 percent. In all the West European economies, the rate of investment in the 1950s was half as high again as it had ever been on a sustained basis. In several such countries it was over 20 percent of the GNP; in Germany and the Netherlands it was 25 percent, in Norway even higher. Moreover, this high capital formation took place not at the cost of private consumption, but during a rapid and sustained rise in living standards, particularly of industrial workers. These tendencies were prolonged throughout the 1960s and into the 1970s. So far as the mature economies were concerned, the second industrial revolution, 1945-70, was entirely painless - largely so even in Japan, where even higher investment and growth rates were sought, and obtained, to catch up with the United States and Europe.

In short, after nearly five recorded millennia of floundering about, in relative or absolute poverty, humanity suddenly in the 1780s began to hit on the right formula: industrial capitalism. Consider the magnitude of the change over the last 200 years or less. We all know the wealth of present-day West Germany: all of us (I am sure) have seen it for ourselves. In the year 1800, in the whole of Germany there were less than 1,000 people with annual incomes $1,000 a year or more. Or again, take France. France now has more automobiles per capita even than Germany, and more second homes per family than any other country in Europe. In the 1780s, four-fifths of French families spent 90 percent of their incomes simply on buying bread - only bread - to stay alive.

Now I have said enough (I could say much more) to demonstrate that industrial capitalism, judged simply by its capacity to create wealth, and to distribute it, is a phenomenon unique in world history. It could be argued that it is the greatest single blessing ever bestowed on humanity. Why, then, am I giving a talk, not in any spirit of paradox either, called HAS CAPITALISM A FUTURE?

You may well ask. But I think we know the answer. I am giving it because capitalism is threatened, and we feel it to be threatened. The question is not academic. But before we go any further, I would like to clear up one important point. The idea has got around, and it is widely believed, especially among young people - and above all, alas, among young people who like to think they are well educated

- that industrial capitalism is unpopular, and always has been. That is the work of a tiny, interested minority who has thrust it upon the reluctant mass of mankind.

They Voted With Their Feet

Nothing, in fact, could be further from the truth. The storage economies of remote antiquity were often hideously unpopular. So was the slave-based economy, combined with corporatism, of the classical world. Agricultural feudalism was certainly unpopular; and mercantilism had to be enforced, in practice, by authoritarian states.

But capitalism, industrial capitalism - no! From the very start it received the demonstrable approbation of the masses. They could not vote in the ballot box, but they voted in a far more positive and impressive manner, with their feet. And this for a simple reason. The poorest member of society values political freedom as much as the richest and the well educated - that is my belief. But the freedom he values most of all, the freedom which means most to him, is the freedom to sell his labor and skills in the open market. It was precisely this that industrial capitalism gave to men for the first time in history. Hence it is a profound error of fact, in my view, to see what Blake called the "dark, satanic mills" of the industrial revolution, as the enslavement of man.

The factory system, however harsh it may have been, was the road to freedom for millions of agricultural workers. Not only did it offer them an escape from rural poverty, which was deeper and more degrading than anything experienced in the cities, but it allowed them to move from status to contract, from a stationary place in a static society, with tired cottages and semiconscript labor, to a mobile place in a dynamic one. That was why the common man voted for industrial capitalism with his feet, by tramping from the countryside to the towns, in enormous numbers, first in Britain, then throughout Europe. And tens of millions of European peasants, decade after decade, moved relentlessly across the Atlantic in pursuit of that same freedom, from semi-feudal estates and small holdings in Russia, Poland, Germany, Austria-Hungary, Italy, Ireland, Scandinavia, to the mines and factories and workshops of New York, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit. It was the first time in history that really large numbers of ordinary people were given the chance to exercise a choice about their livelihood and destiny, and to move, not as a member of a tribe or a conscript soldier, but as free individuals, selling their labor in the open market.

Legend of the dogwood tree

So far as I know this story is not fact, but it may be the oldest legend of the Christian era.

I have sought to back-track this story to its source. It's no use.

Don't look for it in the Bible: it is not there.

Of all those who have retold it, none ever signed his name to it. When you re-tell it, please do not credit me.

Generations have kept this story alive only because it seemed deserving of living. That does not make it "immortal," but interesting.

It is the legend of the Dogwood Tree. Visiting the Holy Land this week I discovered the legend is told here much the same as I first heard it half a world away.

And that is strange. There are so many possibilities for expanding and elaborating on - for exaggerating - this yarn. I was quite surprised to hear it repeated simply and unadorned.

By some it is repeated as fact.

By others it is told to babies at bedtime, more as American mothers tell fairy tales.

Yet, Disney gave dignity to those - even credibility.

And so generations of repetition have lent credibility to the legend of the Dogwood Tree.

It is said that at the time of the Crucifixion of Christ the Dogwood was a very large tree, big as an oak.

The Dogwood was so even - textured, firm and strong that it was chosen as the timber for the Cross.

Thus to be used for such a cruel purpose greatly distressed the tree. Jesus sensed this.

He, who noted even the sparrow's fall whose last compassion was for a repentant thief - similarly forgave the repentant Dogwood Tree for its unfortunate fate.

As he was nailed upon it, he sensed the painful remorse of the tree.

In gentle pity for all the sorrow and suffering of every living thing, he said to the tree: "Because of your share of My suffering, never again shall the Dogwood Tree grow large enough and strong enough to be put to such a purpose as this."

He said, "Henceforth, the Dogwood shall be slender and bent and twisted, that it might forever remain unmolested by the tools of cruel men.

"And the blossoms shall be in the form of a cross..."

"Two long petals and two short..."

"And in the center of each petal there will be nail prints..."

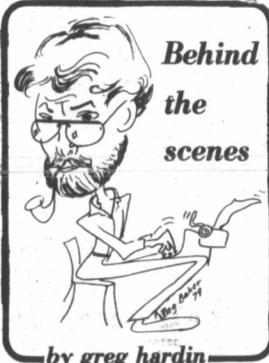

"Brown with rust and stained with red."

"And in the center of the flower will be a crown of thorns."

"And all who pass and see the Dogwood tree..."

"Will remember me."

"And so it came to pass."

Behind the scenes

by greg hardin

The people of Pampa have been faced with tragedy three times within the past two weeks but have remained calm in all three cases.

First, the Celanese plant fire affected many Pampa residents as family or friends were injured by the giant arc of electricity.

Second, a killer tornado strikes Vernon and Wichita Falls killing or injuring friends and relatives of Pampa residents.

Third, a gasoline explosion sends two men to the hospital with severe burns and clouds of smoke into the sky.

I would say that we have had more than our fair share of tragedy recently but I think that the people here should be proud of the way our town has responded in each emergency situation.

We have the people to handle any situation that might arise and I feel a little more secure knowing the kind of people that will make any tragedy a little easier.

I went to Wichita Falls this week and the disaster there is beyond belief but as I drove through the streets of Vernon I saw several Pampans there.

They were not there to see the affects of the twister but they were there to help.

One Department of Public Safety trooper was helping a man pick through the remains of his house while another handed out drinks and food at a disaster relief center.

Pampans have responded to this tragedy as they did when 11 people were injured at Celanese. The first thing they say is "what can I do to help."

These people don't get paid for the help they offer unless you call sleepless nights and hard work payment.

I just want to take time out to say again - thank you.

Importing coal

After a year of strikes - both wildcat and formal - the coal industry currently is quiescent.

"Quiescent" is the correct word in more ways than one. The walkouts have been ended, but few are back at work.

Only a year ago, with President Carter urging more coal production to offset the high price of imported oil, golden opportunities for coal miners and operators appeared to be multiplying. Then came the strikes recently settled with new contracts.

No need to worry about labor-management relations now. No need to, if the strikes hadn't been settled. As an unidentified industry spokesman said: "...there's no need to worry about labor-management relations when no one is working."

But why not? Why aren't coal mines gearing up to capacity production? Oil is more scarce and more expensive than it was when Carter urged greater reliance on coal.

That's all true. But so has the price of coal gone up. So high that it can't be sold for the necessary price, largely because of the high cost of labor.

Today in history

Today is Sunday, April 15, the 105th day of 1979. There are 260 days left in the year. This is Easter Sunday.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1865, President Abraham Lincoln died in a Washington boarding house across the street from Ford's Theater, where he had been shot the night before by John Wilkes Booth.

On this date:

In 1638, English settlers arrived at what is now New Haven, Conn.

In 1850, San Francisco was incorporated as a city.

In 1861, President Lincoln called out militia to suppress the Southern Confederacy.

In 1940, during World War II, British and French troops landed on the Norwegian coast.

In 1959, Cuban President Fidel Castro arrived in Washington to begin a goodwill tour of the United States.

In 1967, thousands of demonstrators turned out in New York and San Francisco to protest the Vietnam war, with draft card burnings, marches and speeches.

Ten years ago: A U.S. Navy reconnaissance plane was shot down by North Korea over the Sea of Japan, with a loss of 31 lives.

Five years ago: In the West African country of Niger, the government of President Hamani Diori was overthrown in a military coup.

In Wichita Falls

Easter will be solemn

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — The folks who live along the Texas-Oklahoma border strip known as "Tornado Alley" live with the knowledge that it could happen at any given moment. It happened Tuesday night in Wichita Falls.

Many of the city's 96,000 residents were just sitting down to dinner, discussing the twister that killed 11 persons 50 miles up the road at Vernon earlier in the day, when a hulking cloud formed over Lake Wichita.

Witnesses said at least two tornadoes melted into one fat, churning twister that aimed at Memorial Stadium on the southwestern side of town.

The savage cloud touched ground about two miles south of town and gathered speed before it slammed into the heavily populated subdivisions. High-voltage towers built to withstand winds up to 400 miles per hour sprawled in submission at the feet of the black tornado.

Granting no quarter, the storm chewed up 6,400 homes and spat the splintered lumber across the countryside before rolling north for 65 miles. One room of a mobile home, a full coffee can driven through a wall, was dumped beside U.S. 287 20 miles from Wichita Falls.

In 15 minutes it was over. At least 44 died in the eight-mile path of devastation that runs the entire length of the city's south side. Preliminary damage estimates for insured items was more than $204 million. But figures don't reflect problems of the hundreds injured and the more than 20,000 stripped of their homes.

Without power, water and communications, the search for the injured — who would number well over 600 — began in the dark and the rain.

The city's hearses were pressed into service as life-saving ambulances. People dug through the rubble of their neighbors' homes looking for survivors. Separated families began a frantic, sometimes hopeless, search for loved ones.

"I think it's made everyone stronger," said Delbert Gandy, a director at Hamilton-Vaughan Funeral Home. "I don't mean just families of the dead. Everybody's had to face things and everybody's stronger."

Easter Sunday was to be solemn, with neighboring churches absorbing congregations from the 10 churches flattened by the tornado.

"You know you see these things in the movies and hear about them and think 'No, it won't happen to me.' But that's a fantasy," said Renetta Halberson. "I think some people are being so helpful to show how much they can give."

"I think others are doing it to keep from thinking about their own losses."

Tax service 'whips out forms'

DALLAS (AP) — Francis Winn looked amazingly calm for a man who was responsible for completing 10,000 tax returns in less than 72 hours. But, he mused, "any company that can whip out an error-free tax return 20 miles long in 4 days can do just about anything."

Winn is founder and board chairman of the nation's second largest company processing computerized income tax returns, and he relies on the federal government to keep Fast Tax, Inc. in business.

"The biggest crunch comes between March 1st and April 15th, when we process about 10,000 returns every day," he said recently in an interview in his Dallas office. "After the April 15th deadline, a lot of time will be spent making changes in order to perfect our system."

More than 1,000 persons work around the clock, seven days a week in the company's main office key punching information collected by accounting firms which have contracted Fast Tax to process, check and recheck data, print and finally mail returns to their clients throughout the United States, Canada, Europe, South America and the Orient.

There also are smaller branch offices, each employing about 40 persons in Chicago, Detroit and Los Angeles. To tackle such a task, Winn has purchased some of the most advanced equipment IBM and Amdahl manufacture.

The 61-year-old former chemical engineer became interested in computers "back in the early days" and built the company from scratch in 1964.

Today, 15 years later, Fast Tax computes an average of 500,000 individual, corporate and fiduciary returns for trusts administered by banks or law firms and grosses about $24 million every year. Winn estimates the company's annual rate of growth at about 25 percent.

"Several years ago, I designed a computer language called Cleartran which I decided to market," he said. "I went to one of the 'big eight' accounting firms in Dallas only to find they had already contracted the services of Computax (the nation's largest computer processing company which is owned by Commerce Clearing House in Chicago).

"But Computax had been running into production problems and was sometimes taking a number of weeks to get tax returns back to accountants," he continued. "So I suggested the firm give me one return to do, which they did. I returned it perfectly filled out at 8 o'clock the next morning."

Winn, who runs the family-owned business with his 32-year-old son, Stephen, firmly believes his computer language gave him a tremendous technological advantage over his competitors.

When a customer's tax information is received by the plant, it is classified into one of three categories. A return classified super expedite is mailed back to the customer within 24 hours, expedite within 48 hours and regular within 3 to 6 days.

Since speed is crucial, Fast Tax relies heavily on the services of air express and courier delivery.

Legislators may have special session

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Legislators probably will return for a special session this summer, but the big question is how long it will last, says Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin.

Gov. Bill Clements would be waging an uphill battle to call legislators into special session over something they overwhelmingly oppose, he said.

"If the Legislature, by a large margin, favors any given approach on a measure, there's a good possibility that a sine die resolution will be signed before it (the special session) gets underway," Doggett said on remarks taped for Sunday's State Capitol Dateline radio program.

A sine die resolution signals final adjournment of the Legislature until it is called back into either a special or regular session.

Gov. Bill Clements has emphasized he would not hesitate to summon legislators back to work if they fail to pass an initiative and referendum proposal.

"I'll be ready to go," Doggett said. "There is a good chance we'll be back here discussing appropriations with Gov. Clements in the summer months."

The youngest senator also predicted more Senate filibusters against what he called "an endless supply of incredibly bad bills" by Sen. Bill Meier, D-Eules.

Doggett led delaying tactics against Meier's proposed change in the Consumer Protection Act and against a bill allowing auto dealers to charge car buyers $35 for paperwork.

A sure filibuster target is the proposed split presidential primary. "Our little discussion on the Consumer Protection Act will be a dwarf compared to the extended debate we'll have on the presidential primary bill," Doggett said.

Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston, is sponsoring a bill to hold a March presidential primary separate from May party primary elections. Doggett and other opponents claim the plan would favor former Texas Gov. John Connally in his bid for the Republican presidential nomination.

Conservative Democrats could vote for Connally and then vote for incumbent Democratic legislators several months later.

Doggett said his filibuster against Meier's bill resulted in modest improvements. The Senate passed the measure to the House.

OPINION PAGE

Encouraging thrift

Because of inflation perhaps, the American people have become profligate in their spending. They are aware that the virtue of thrift has been obscured by the plummeting value of the dollar.

In recent years a person's potential wealth could be measured more by the amount of money he owned - providing it was invested in marketable assets of lasting value - than by the amount of money he had saved.

Traditionally the government has encouraged the urge to spend in order to achieve so-called full employment, which helps explain why only 6.5 percent of disposable income in America is earmarked for savings. In Japan, the figure is 25 percent; in West Germany 15 percent; in Britain 13 percent. The U.S. savings rate is lower than the rates in most other major nations.

No wonder. Appliances bought on the installment plan, money borrowed for items with high price tags, anything acquired through credit - all are tied to government subsidy. Interest paid is regarded as "deductible" by federal and state tax collectors.

But the interest received on savings deposits is taxable income. Some tentative steps have been taken to encourage thrift.

Some IRA and Keogh accounts established to provide individual retirement programs enjoy favored tax treatment. Some corporate dividends are excluded from tax liability.

But, generally, government policies are designed to promote spending - not saving.

Congress could start to reverse the trend by giving favorable consideration to one of the 22 separate bills introduced this year to give tax aid to savers.

The United States League of Savings Associations has endorsed a flat $500 exclusion of interest earned on deposits.

Even the most sweeping of the plans advanced thus far would result in a loss of less than 1 percent of federal revenue. That is a drop in the bucket compared to the potential benefit to the overall economic structure of the nation.

Berry's World

"Read me that part of your 'nightmare scenario' again, where the Sino-Soviet border war involves nuclear exchanges."

Does modern Capitalism have a future?

The Key Was Capitalism

But following World War II, growth was resumed on an even more impressive scale. In the 1950s, for instance, the 12 leading capitalist economies cited before had an average annual growth of 4.2 percent. In Germany, it was as high as an average of 7.6 percent. In all the West European economies, the rate of investment in the 1950s was half as high again as it had ever been on a sustained basis. In several such countries it was over 20 percent of the GNP; in Germany and the Netherlands it was 25 percent, in Norway even higher. Moreover, this high capital formation took place not at the cost of private consumption, but during a rapid and sustained rise in living standards, particularly of industrial workers. These tendencies were prolonged throughout the 1960s and into the 1970s. So far as the mature economies were concerned, the second industrial revolution, 1945-70, was entirely painless - largely so even in Japan, where even higher investment and growth rates were sought, and obtained, to catch up with the United States and Europe.

In short, after nearly five recorded millennia of floundering about, in relative or absolute poverty, humanity suddenly in the 1780s began to hit on the right formula: industrial capitalism. Consider the magnitude of the change over the last 200 years or less. We all know the wealth of present-day West Germany: all of us (I am sure) have seen it for ourselves. In the year 1800, in the whole of Germany there were less than 1,000 people with annual incomes $1,000 a year or more. Or again, take France. France now has more automobiles per capita even than Germany, and more second homes per family than any other country in Europe. In the 1780s, four-fifths of French families spent 90 percent of their incomes simply on buying bread - only bread - to stay alive.

Now I have said enough (I could say much more) to demonstrate that industrial capitalism, judged simply by its capacity to create wealth, and to distribute it, is a phenomenon unique in world history. It could be argued that it is the greatest single blessing ever bestowed on humanity. Why, then, am I giving a talk, not in any spirit of paradox either, called HAS CAPITALISM A FUTURE?

You may well ask. But I think we know the answer. I am giving it because capitalism is threatened, and we feel it to be threatened. The question is not academic. But before we go any further, I would like to clear up one important point. The idea has got around, and it is widely believed, especially among young people - and above all, alas, among young people who like to think they are well educated

- that industrial capitalism is unpopular, and always has been. That is the work of a tiny, interested minority who has thrust it upon the reluctant mass of mankind.

They Voted With Their Feet

Nothing, in fact, could be further from the truth. The storage economies of remote antiquity were often hideously unpopular. So was the slave-based economy, combined with corporatism, of the classical world. Agricultural feudalism was certainly unpopular; and mercantilism had to be enforced, in practice, by authoritarian states.

But capitalism, industrial capitalism - no! From the very start it received the demonstrable approbation of the masses. They could not vote in the ballot box, but they voted in a far more positive and impressive manner, with their feet. And this for a simple reason. The poorest member of society values political freedom as much as the richest and the well educated - that is my belief. But the freedom he values most of all, the freedom which means most to him, is the freedom to sell his labor and skills in the open market. It was precisely this that industrial capitalism gave to men for the first time in history. Hence it is a profound error of fact, in my view, to see what Blake called the "dark, satanic mills" of the industrial revolution, as the enslavement of man.

The factory system, however harsh it may have been, was the road to freedom for millions of agricultural workers. Not only did it offer them an escape from rural poverty, which was deeper and more degrading than anything experienced in the cities, but it allowed them to move from status to contract, from a stationary place in a static society, with tired cottages and semiconscript labor, to a mobile place in a dynamic one. That was why the common man voted for industrial capitalism with his feet, by tramping from the countryside to the towns, in enormous numbers, first in Britain, then throughout Europe. And tens of millions of European peasants, decade after decade, moved relentlessly across the Atlantic in pursuit of that same freedom, from semi-feudal estates and small holdings in Russia, Poland, Germany, Austria-Hungary, Italy, Ireland, Scandinavia, to the mines and factories and workshops of New York, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit. It was the first time in history that really large numbers of ordinary people were given the chance to exercise a choice about their livelihood and destiny, and to move, not as a member of a tribe or a conscript soldier, but as free individuals, selling their labor in the open market.

Legend of the dogwood tree

So far as I know this story is not fact, but it may be the oldest legend of the Christian era.

I have sought to back-track this story to its source. It's no use. Don't look for it in the Bible; it is not there.

Of all those who have retold it, none ever signed his name to it. When you re-tell it, please do not credit me.

Generations have kept this story alive only because it seemed deserving of living. That does not make it "immortal," but interesting.

It is the legend of the Dogwood Tree. Visiting the Holy Land this week I discovered the legend is told here much the same as I first heard it half a world away.

And that is strange. There are so many possibilities for expanding and elaborating on - for exaggerating - this yarn. I was quite surprised to hear it repeated simply and unadorned.

By some it is repeated as fact.

By others it is told to babies at bedtime, more as American mothers tell fairy tales.

Yet, Disney gave dignity to those - even crudity. And so generations of repetition have lent credibility to the legend of the Dogwood Tree.

It is said that at the time of the Crucifixion of Christ the Dogwood was a very large tree, big as an oak.

The Dogwood was so even - textured, firm and strong that it was chosen as the timber for the Cross.

Thus to be used for such a cruel purpose greatly distressed the tree. Jesus sensed this.

He, who noted even the sparrow's fall whose last compassion was for a repentant thief - similarly forgave the repentant Dogwood Tree for its unfortunate fate.

As he was nailed upon it, he sensed the painful remorse of the tree.

In gentle pity for all the sorrow and suffering of every living thing, he said to the tree: "Because of your share of My suffering, never again shall the Dogwood Tree grow large enough and strong enough to be put to such a purpose as this."

He said, "Henceforth, the Dogwood shall be slender and bent and twisted, that it might forever remain unmolested by the tools of cruel men.

"And the blossoms shall be in the form of a cross.

"Two long petals and two short...

"And in the center of each petal there will be nail prints...

"Brown with rust and stained with red.

"And in the center of the flower will be a crown-of-thorns.

"And all who pass and see the Dogwood tree...

"Will remember me."

"And so it came to pass.

The people of Pampa have been faced with tragedy three times within the past two weeks but have remained calm in all three cases.

First, the Celanese plant fire affected many Pampa residents as family or friends were injured by the giant arc of electricity.

Second, a killer tornado strikes Vernon and Wichita Falls killing or injuring friends and relatives of Pampa residents.

Third, a gasoline explosion sends two men to the hospital with severe burns and clouds of smoke into the sky.

I would say that we have had more than our fair share of tragedy recently but I think that the people here should be proud of the way our town has responded in each emergency situation.

We have the people to handle any situation that might arise and I feel a little more secure knowing the kind of people that will make any tragedy a little easier.

I went to Wichita Falls this week and the disaster there is beyond belief but as I drove through the streets of Vernon I saw several Pampans there.

They were not there to see the affects of the twister but they were there to help.

One Department of Public Safety trooper was helping a man pick through the remains of his house while another handed out drinks and food at a disaster relief center.

Pampans have responded to this tragedy as they did when 11 people were injured at Celanese. The first thing they say is "what can I do to help."

These people don't get paid for the help they offer unless you call sleepless nights and hard work payment.

I just want to take time out to say again - thank you.

Importing coal

After a year of strikes - both wildcat and formal - the coal industry currently is quiescent.

"Quiescent" is the correct word in more ways than one. The walkouts have been ended, but few are back at work.

Only a year ago, with President Carter urging more coal production to offset the high price of imported oil, golden opportunities for coal miners and operators appeared to be multiplying. Then came the strikes recently settled with new contracts.

No need to worry about labor-management relations now. No need to, if the strikes hadn't been settled. As an unidentified industry spokesman said: "...there's no need to worry about labor-management relations when no one is working."

But why not? Why aren't coal mines gearing up to capacity production? Oil is more scarce and more expensive than it was when Carter urged greater reliance on coal.

That's all true. But so has the price of coal gone up. So high that it can't be sold for the necessary price, largely because of the high cost of labor.

In Wichita Falls

Easter will be solemn

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — The folks who live along the Texas-Oklahoma border strip known as "Tornado Alley" live with the knowledge that it could happen at any given moment. It happened Tuesday night in Wichita Falls.

Many of the city's 96,000 residents were just sitting down to dinner, discussing the twister that killed 11 persons 50 miles up the road at Vernon earlier in the day, when a hulking cloud formed over Lake Wichita.

Witnesses said at least two tornadoes melted into one fat, churning twister that aimed at Memorial Stadium on the southwestern side of town.

The savage cloud touched ground about two miles south of town and gathered speed before it slammed into the heavily populated subdivisions. High-voltage towers built to withstand winds up to 400 miles per hour sprang in submission at the feet of the black tornado.

Granting no quarter, the storm chewed up 6,400 homes and spat the splintered lumber across the countryside before rolling north for 65 miles. One room of a mobile home, a full coffee can driven through a wall, was dumped beside U.S. 287 20 miles from Wichita Falls.

In 15 minutes it was over. At least 44 died in the eight-mile path of devastation that runs the entire length of the city's south side. Preliminary damage estimates for insured items was more $204 million. But figures don't reflect problems of the hundreds injured and the more than 20,000 stripped of their homes.

Without power, water and communications, the search for the injured — which would number well over 600 — began in the dark and the rain.

The city's hearts were pressed into service as life-saving ambulances. People sifting through the rubble of their neighbors' homes looking for survivors. Separated families began a frantic, sometimes hopeless, search for loved ones.

"I think it's made everyone stronger," said Delbert Gandy, a director at Hamilton-Vaughan Funeral Home. "I don't mean just families of the dead. Everybody's had a face things and everybody's stronger."

Easter Sunday was to be solemn, with neighboring churches absorbing congregations from the 10 churches flattened by the tornado.

"You know you see these things in the movies and hear about them and think 'No, it won't happen to me.' But that's a fantasy," said Renetta Halberson. "I think some people are being so helpful to show how much they can give."

"I think others are doing it to keep from thinking about their own losses."

Legislators may have special session

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Legislators probably will return for a special session this summer, but the big question is how long it will last, says Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin.

Gov. Bill Clements would be waging an uphill battle to call legislators into special session over something they overwhelmingly oppose, he said.

"If the Legislature, by a large margin, favors any given approach on a measure, there's a good possibility that a sine die resolution will be signed before it (the special session) gets underway," Doggett said on remarks taped for Sunday's State Capitol Dateline radio program.

A sine die resolution signals final adjournment of the Legislature until it is called back into either a special or regular session.

Gov. Bill Clements has emphasized he would not hesitate to summon legislators back to work if they fail to pass an initiative and referendum proposal.

"I'll be ready to go," Doggett said. "There is a good chance we'll be back here discussing appropriations with Gov. Clements in the summer months."

The youngest senator also predicted more Senate filibusters against what he called "an endless supply of incredibly bad bills" by Sen. Bill Meier, D-Eules.

Doggett led delaying tactics against Meier's proposed change in the Consumer Protection Act and against a bill allowing auto dealers to charge car buyers $35 for paperwork.

A sure filibuster target is the proposed split presidential primary.

"Our little discussion on the Consumer Protection Act will be a dwarf compared to the extended debate we'll have on the presidential primary bill," Doggett said.

Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston, is sponsoring a bill to hold a March presidential primary separate from May party primary elections. Doggett and other opponents claim the plan would favor former Texas Gov. John Connally in his bid for the Republican presidential nomination.

Conservative Democrats could vote for Connally and then vote for incumbent Democratic legislators several months later.

Doggett said his filibuster against Meier's bill resulted in modest improvements. The Senate passed the measure to the House.

Tax service 'whips out forms'

DALLAS (AP) — Francis Winn looked amazingly calm for a man who was responsible for completing 10,000 tax returns in less than 72 hours. But, he mused, "any company that can whip out an error-free tax return 20 miles long in 4 days can do just about anything."

Winn is founder and board chairman of the nation's second largest company processing computerized income tax returns, and he relies on the federal government to keep Fast Tax, Inc. in business.

"The biggest crunch comes between March 1st and April 12th, when we process about 10,000 returns every day," he said recently in an interview in his Dallas office. "After the April 15th deadline, a lot of time will be spent making changes in order to perfect our system."

More than 1,000 persons work around the clock, seven days a week in the company's main office key punching information collected by accounting firms which have contracted Fast Tax to process, check and recheck data, print and finally mail returns to their clients throughout the United States, Canada, Europe, South America and the Orient.

There also are smaller branch offices, each employing about 40 persons in Chicago, Detroit and Los Angeles. To tackle such a task, Winn has purchased some of the most advanced equipment IBM and Amdahl manufacture.

The 61-year-old former chemical engineer became interested in computers "back in the early days" and built the company from scratch in 1964.

Today, 15 years later, Fast Tax computes an average of 500,000 individual, corporate and fiduciary returns for trusts administered by banks or law firms and grosses about $24 million every year. Winn estimates the company's annual rate of growth at about 25 percent.

"Several years ago, I designed a computer language called Cleartran which I decided to market," he said. "I went to one of the 'big eight' accounting firms in Dallas only to find they had already contracted the services of Computax (the nation's largest computer processing company which is owned by Commerce Clearing House in Chicago).

"But Computax had been running into production problems and was sometimes taking a number of weeks to get tax returns back to accountants," he continued. "So I suggested the firm give me one return to do, which they did. I returned it perfectly filled out at 8 o'clock the next morning."

Winn, who runs the family-owned business with his 32-year-old son, Stephen, firmly believes his computer language gave his a tremendous technological advantage over his competitors.

When a customer's tax information is received by the plant, it is classified into one of three categories. A return classified super expedite is mailed back to the customer within 24 hours, expedite within 48 hours and regular within 3 to 6 days.

Since speed is crucial, Fast Tax relies heavily on the services of air express and courier delivery.

minor accidents

No minor accidents were reported in the 24 hour period ending at seven Saturday morning.

police report

Don Goin Abney of 901 Varnon Drive reported the theft of a revolver from his pickup while the vehicle was parked at his residence.
 Charles Cooley reported that one of his tenants at 114 E. 27th St. had broken out walls and the ceiling of an apartment. Damage was estimated at $900.
 Officers were called to 2507 Mary Ellen St. where W.B. Tallbert reported that an unknown person or persons had knocked a row of decorative bricks off the top of a wall fence.
 Beverly Conley of 1065 Prairie Drive reported that run through her belongings, and took two clock radios.

'Gung-ho' marine back home again

ADAMS, Ind. (AP) — Sixteen years ago Robert Rust Russell Garwood dropped out of high school and enlisted in the Marines, ready "to step out into the world." Now he is home again, his youth gone and his dreams shattered by allegations that he helped the enemy.
 Garwood, called "Bobby" by his family and friends, spent almost 14 of those years in the hands of the Vietnamese. But when he returned to this rural, southeastern Indiana community on a 30-day convalescent leave, there was no hero's welcome.

Cancer week begins

Donations will be sought by the Cancer Society, as it begins a week designated to its purpose of informing people how to protect themselves and their families from the disease and to raise funds to fight it.
 The emphasis of this week will be on "what you do or don't do" to protect the body against cancer.
 The society volunteers, called Crusaders, will seek to interact with residents by encouraging them to read the available information on cancer.
 The society provides programs, films and literature about the disease.
 The society suggests that contact can be made with a doctor for more information.
 The contributions will be used to detect, treat and cure many types of cancer.

People...

SEATTLE (AP) — Many of the world's monarchs have done away with conspicuous consumption and ostentatious ornaments. But not the king of Saudi Arabia.
 His Majesty Khalid ibn Abdul Aziz is preparing to take delivery of a $50 million jumbo jet, complete with wood-paneled interior, thrones, paintings and a small medical clinic wired for instant satellite communications, according to the Seattle Times. The Boeing Commercial Airplane Co. will soon roll out the flying palace for the king, who seven years ago underwent open-heart surgery in a Cleveland hospital. The jet's clinic presumably is wired to the same hospital, the newspaper said.
 A Boeing spokesman had no official comment other than, "The plane has become a legend before its time."
 CANDLEMASS, N.H. (AP) — A New Hampshire gas station owner is trying to scare away customers with gas prices of 99.9 cents a gallon — at least according to his sign.
 Norman Simano's gasoline really sells for under 80 cents a gallon, he said Friday, but he posted the inflated prices to drive away

Flash floods spawned by rains

By The Associated Press
 Flash floods spawned by two days of hard-driving spring rains forced at least 5,000 people from their homes in Mississippi and Alabama on Saturday and overflowed rivers and streams across the Southeast.
 At least nine deaths — four each in Mississippi and Alabama and one in Georgia — were blamed on the flooding. The unusually heavy rains began Wednesday night and ended Friday afternoon.
 In Alabama, the Red Cross said 1,000 families were staying in special shelters Saturday, and disaster crews were sent to Tuscaloosa, Birmingham and Wetumpka, north of Montgomery.
 In Tuscaloosa, where the downtown area reported more than 10 inches of rain, County Commissioner Bobby Miller said damage countywide would "go into the millions of dollars."

The Tombigbee and Loxapallila rivers overflowed their banks in Columbus in northeastern Mississippi, dividing the city and driving 2,000 people from their homes, said Lowndes County Civil Defense Director Ray Gildea.
 The flooding in Columbus cut off direct access between the east and west parts of the city, forcing motorists to detour 65 miles through Alabama. The Lowndes County Jail and emergency center was surrounded by the floodwaters, officials said.
 In Jackson, Miss., authorities said 500 families were evacuated when the Pearl River rose to 38.8 feet by noon Saturday. Workers struggled to build a 2-mile-long wooden barricade to keep the river from swamping the city's waste water treatment plant.
 Backwaters from the swollen Mississippi River forced hundreds from their homes at Vicksburg, officials said.
 Some flooding also was reported in Missouri, mainly along the Missouri and Mississippi rivers, and in Illinois, where authorities

Weather

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
 Fair skies and warm temperatures ruled Texas Saturday, with some high, thin clouds over South Texas the only exceptions.
 Temperatures ranged from 70 at Amarillo to 83 at Victoria.
 Forecasts called for continued sunny skies and warm readings.

National weather

By The Associated Press
 Skies cleared over the Southeast Saturday, but flooding caused by two days of heavy spring rains caused the evacuation of at least 5,000 people in Mississippi and Alabama.
 Some flooding also was reported along rivers in Illinois, North Dakota and Missouri.
 The storm system that left behind record rainfalls in the Southeast moved up the Atlantic Coast, with heavy rains falling over an area from New Jersey to southern New England.
 In other parts of the country, rain showers were widely scattered from southern Minnesota into northern Missouri. Snow flurries were reported in western Montana.
 Temperatures around the country at 2 p.m. EST ranged from 34 in Worcester and Westfield, Mass., to 91 in Melbourne, Fla.

RAIN is forecast Sunday for parts of New England and New York state according to the National Weather Service. Most of the nation will have mild weather. (AP Laserphoto)

Texas forecast

By The Associated Press
 NORTH TEXAS—Fair with mild nights and warm days through Monday, lows Sunday night 53 to 61. Highs Sunday and Monday 82 to 86.

Lefor's student speaks in Austin

A Lefors High School student spoke in a scholarship speech contest at the Joe C. Thompson Conference Center in Austin Saturday.

Sally Youngblood, a junior, delivered a speech on "Free Enterprise in American Agriculture" at the conference sponsored by the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs and the Studies in Enterprise Education Research, The Institute for Constructive Capitalism of the University of Texas.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Youngblood, Sally will represent the Lefors Art and Civic Club and the Top of Texas District, Texas Federation of Women's Clubs.

Youngblood, a member of the Gray County 4-H, gave her district speech at a convention in Dumas.

Youngblood, who is active in basketball, track, FHA, annual staff, drill team, pep squad and choir, will also participate in the District Method Demonstrations April 28 in the public speaking contest.

Free enterprise courses offered

Interaction of government and free enterprise will be taught at West Texas State University this summer in two three-week courses through the Texas Bureau for Economic Understanding Summer Scholarship program.

Dr. Roy E. Thoman will instruct the courses - "Political Systems and Capitalism" and "American Government and the Free Enterprise System."

The 6-hour graduate level courses are designed mainly for junior and senior high school social studies teachers, and will be offered the second summer term.

Recipients of the 30 awarded scholarships must pay a deposit to help prevent "no-shows." The money will be returned in full after the twelfth day of class.

Those awarded 6-hour scholarships will be required to send $30 while the recipient of a 3-hour one calls for a $20 deposit.

Local college adds a few steps

Five short courses will be added to the curriculum of Clarendon College - Pampa Center, as the school draws near the end of its first spring semester at the 900 N. Frost location.

For the lively music fan, basic square dancing will meet Wednesday from 7-9 p.m. from April 18 to June 16 while disco fever will release sweat from dancers on Tuesdays between 7:30 and 9:30 p.m., beginning May 1 and ending June 5.

The female health nut can use her volatile energies in Slimnastics for Women on Mondays from 7 to 9 p.m. from May 21 to August 6.

Amateur photographers can gain knowledge of how to use their camera more effectively in a Thursday course from 7 to 10 p.m. from April 26 to May 31.

The beginning dexterous artist can learn to tile or rub-out paint with oils in a decorative painting class offered on Mondays from 7 to 10 p.m. for six weeks to begin April 30.

STUDENT OF THE WEEK
LISA SCHAUB says that she does a little bit of everything at the downtown Anthony's store. The junior is a Distributive Education Co-Operative student. Susan Mitchell is a senior Vocational Office Education student, employed by Pupco, Inc., as a clerk-typist. She says she enjoys her job and wants to continue working.

Cup of tea begins class reunion

The Clarendon College classes of 1929 and 1954 will have a noon tea after registration begins their reunion activities at 10 a.m. April 21. The brew will be set up at the home of Mrs. Ruby Bromley for an afternoon chat to be followed by a banquet at the college cafeteria.

A special church service will be held Sunday, after which a lunch will be served in the cafeteria to end the festivities for the ex-students.

The college has been the alma mater for many students since its establishment in 1893 - nine years before Oklahoma became a state.

Its students have been a part of the oldest Panhandle school, preceding the inception of West Texas State Normal of Canyon and Wayland College of Plainview.

One went to market

The public is welcome to come to the April 8 swine auction, sponsored by the Hooker Future Farmers of America Booster Association, to buy or watch the show and enjoy the refreshments, as judges choose the best curly-tails.

Bad readers get comfort

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) - Today's problem reader won't necessarily be tomorrow's illiterate. In fact, says Anabel Newman, an Indiana University education professor, today's low achievers in grade school can be tomorrow's college graduates.

"I worked with a boy in fifth grade who not only could not read, he would not read," she says. "He has now finished his master's in fine arts; he has had paintings displayed in the Metropolitan (Museum of Art), and he is reading voluminously in the areas he's interested in."

The young man's struggle against the odds of being pigeon-holed as a functional illiterate along with some 20 million other Americans is chronicled in a long-range study begun by Mrs. Newman in 1964 in Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

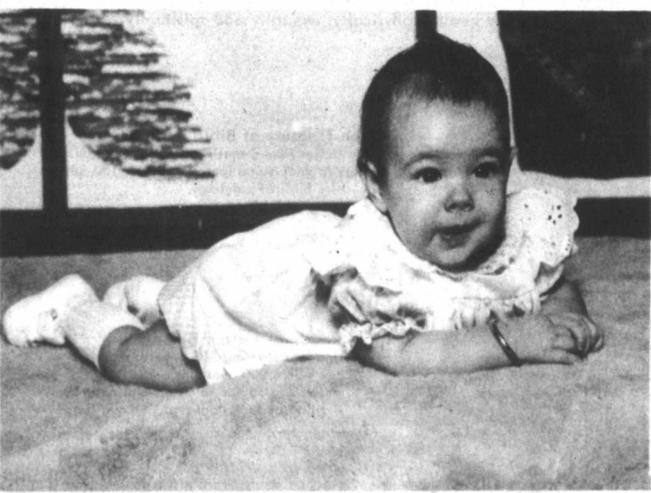

Of the 400 first-graders pegged as low achievers, 310 remained in the study at the end of the first year. Of those, 135 were located when they reached 11th grade. Based on tests and interviews with them, she concluded that 89 were no longer low achievers but were at or above average.

Jerry Gunter

sports editor

With football season still several months away, baseball is the main topic of sports enthusiasts and probably one of the most talked about topics around town is the play of the red-hot Pampa Harvesters.

The Harvesters have been playing exceptional baseball all year long and currently are supporting an awesome record of 14-3. And before anyone starts to think that the impressive ledger was achieved because of poor competition—please think again.

The three losses have been to Levelland, Canyon and Borger. Though all three are Class AAA schools, don't laugh because each of them should be contenders for the District 1-AAA crown. Borger won the title a year ago and then went on to shock a powerful Pecos team in the bi-district round. Canyon has won the conference championship several times over the past few years and Levelland appears to have an excellent chance of finishing high this spring.

With district competition already in full swing, the Harvesters have been nothing short of exceptional. The Green and Gold stand at the top of the District 3-AAAA standings with a perfect 2-0 mark. Pampa was picked as low as third in several pre-season polls, but is just two wins away from winning all of its games in the first-half race.

The Harvesters started off the race with a hard-fought 1-0 victory over highly regarded Caprock. Then they went to Amarillo and disposed of Tascosa by a count of 9-0.

After a week off from the district race, the Harvesters will return to action Tuesday as they take on the Palo Duro Dons in Amarillo. Then on Friday, the Harvesters come home to battle defending champion Amarillo High.

While there is no doubt that the schedule will be against the Harvesters in round two of the competition, don't count 'em out as they have played nearly as well on the road as they have at home.

The Harvesters have a record of 7-1 at home and then they have a very respectable 7-2 ledger on the road. Pampa has lost only to Canyon at home, while the setbacks on the road have come to Levelland (in the Hereford tournament) and at Borger.

In the second-half race of District 3-AAAA, road games for Pampa will be the first one on April 24 at Caprock along with the last one (only for the regular season we hope) at Amarillo High on May 7.

Should the Harvesters be fortunate enough to survive the district schedule and go on to playoff competition, most likely the bi-district opponent will be Lubbock Coronado (of District 4-AAAA). The Mustangs have had their problems over the past few years in district play because of the always consistent playing of cross-town rival Monterey. But this time around, the Ponies seem to have the horses it takes to win the crown.

Over the past few years, the winner from this district has not had very much luck when it came around time for playoff action to begin. A couple of years ago, the Sandies somehow miraculously defeated Lubbock Monterey. But other than that, 4-AAAA has pretty well dominated the action.

Being a former sports writer in Lubbock, one of my fellow scribes once told me that 3-AAAA was at a disadvantage as far as the playoffs go because of its schedule. What he meant was that in 4-AAAA, they play doubleheaders in district competition instead of single games as is done in 3-AAAA. That way a team needs at least two good pitchers if they want a chance to sweep the twinbill.

But pitching does not seem to be a problem with the Harvesters as they have two outstanding ones in the likes of Steve Stout and Rick Dougherty. Both incidentally are undefeated.

However, talk about post-season action is beside the point at this time as the Harvesters still need to capture their next six games left on the schedule. Regardless of the outcome, the race the rest of the way through should be interesting.

Ranger released

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Texas Ranger outfielder Billy Sample, who suffered a concussion in a collision during Friday night's Texas-Detroit American League game, was released from Arlington Memorial Hospital Saturday.

Sample was in street clothes for the second game of the series Saturday night.

Rangers officials said Sample will probably accompany the team to Cleveland on Monday after he receives repairs to three teeth damaged in the collision with shortstop Nelson Norman.

Pitcher Jim Kern, who was hit on the wrist by a line drive, got good news when he received negative X-rays. It had been feared Kern suffered a fracture. Kern, who still had swelling, will return to action later.

Ranger outfielder Richie Zisk, who missed four games with a strep throat, was back at the ball park but was not in the starting lineup.

Montreal wins, 2-0

MONTREAL (AP) — Andre Dawson triggered a two-run sixth with a leadoff homer and Ross Grimsley and Elias Sosa teamed up on a six-hitter as the Montreal Expos defeated the Chicago Cubs 2-0 in their home baseball opener Saturday. Grimsley, 1-0, was locked in a pitching battle with Cubs starter Rich Reuschel, 0-2, when Dawson slammed his second home run of the year over the wall in left field.

CRAIG STADLER of LaJolla, California coaxes hit putt on number nine during action in the Masters golf tournament. Stadler earlier in the tournament had been in a tie for the lead, but Norm Sneed now is in control. (AP Laserphoto)

Sneed leads Masters

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Ed Sneed, calm and composed under the greatest stress of his golfing life, strode through bright southern sunshine to a 3-under-par 69 and established a commanding 5-shot lead Saturday in the 43rd Masters.

Sneed, a journeyman pro who has won three times in 11 years on the tour, watched in something approaching detached interest as his challengers either failed to make a major move or fell victim to the subtle tests of the famed Augusta National Golf Club.

While Tom Watson, the man deemed most likely to win this event, had his adventures on the back-side par 5s; while mighty Jack Nicklaus failed to get it going; while Craig Stadler went from bogey to bogey to watery double bogey, Sneed quietly put together a 54-hole total of 204, a distant 12 shots under par and took control.

"What it amounts to," said Nicklaus, "if Ed plays well tomorrow, I can't catch him. Neither can anyone else. If he plays well, he wins. It's that simple."

"Ed's a good player. He hasn't won a lot and he hasn't won in the majors, but if he can keep this up, he'll run away from everyone else."

But, he said, that isn't necessarily so.

"If he should slip, well, I'm only 3 shots out of second place," Nicklaus said. "If I shoot 65 I could go past everybody."

Watson agreed. "For me to win, I'd have to have an exceptional round and he'd have to play poorly," Tom said.

Penguins win

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — George Ferguson scored 47 seconds into a sudden-death overtime period Saturday as the Pittsburgh Penguins beat the Buffalo Sabres 4-3 in the third and deciding game of their National Hockey League playoff series.

Ferguson, with assists from Gregg Sheppard and Colin Campbell, skated down the side of the rink, circled a Buffalo defender and fired in his second goal of the game past Buffalo goaltender Bob Sauve.

The victory sent Pittsburgh into the quarter-finals of the Stanley Cup playoffs.

Gil Perreault, Craig Ramsay and Jerry Korab each scored goals for Buffalo.

"He's swinging the club very well, playing very well. I don't expect him to collapse."

Watson, shaken a bit after a shot hit a woman spectator in the mouth, managed a 70 and was tied for second with the chunky Stadler at 209. Stadler had to rally for a 74 after hitting his second shot in the water on No. 11.

Fuzzy Zoeller, a hard-hitting first-timer in the Masters, and Bruce Lietzke, the first-round leader, were next at 210. Lietzke, who blew to a 75 in the rain and storms that delayed Friday's second round, shot a 68 and Zoeller powered his way to a 69.

"It just confirms that I'm a fair-weather player," said Lietzke, who had a 67 in the sunshine of the first round. "I've always known it. All my good rounds have been in good weather and I've had a lot of bad ones in bad weather."

Tom Kite, Australian Jack Newton, Ray Floyd, Leonard Thompson and Miller Barber were at 211. Thompson and Floyd shot a 73, Kite 68 and Newton 69.

Barber was one of 12 players stranded by darkness on the course Friday night after play had been interrupted two hours by a violent thunderstorm and a tornado warning.

He had three holes to go to finish his second round, and finished it off in 64, matching the record on the 7,040-yard Augusta National Golf Club course. After a brief break, the old pro went out again for the third round and was at 2 under par a couple of times, then bogeyed the last two holes for a score of par 72.

Angels triumph

OAKLAND (AP) — Right-hander Dave Frost, facing the Oakland A's for the first time in his career, pitched a five-hitter and Bobby Grich knocked in four runs with two homers as the California Angels coasted to a 9-3 victory Saturday.

The triumph was the fourth in a row for the Angels, equalling their longest winning streak of 1978. The hapless A's lost for the eighth time in nine games.

Frost, 1-0, allowed only two infield singles until the A's ruined his shutout in the eighth on a walk by Jim Essian and Mike Edwards' triple.

Grich, who now has four homers, belted a solo shot in the fifth and capped a five-run rally in the eighth inning with a three-run homer.

THE SUPER BUBBLE

A Revolutionary New Storm Shelter System Designed For Year Around Protection Plus A Multitude Of Applications The Entire Family Will Enjoy.

Unlike conventional units, the Super Bubble is constructed of fiberglass. Yet, because of its shape, it maintains greater structural strength than storm shelters made of 5" thick reinforced concrete. Fiberglass construction also provided the flexibility necessary for the Super Bubble to withstand the sudden shifts and constant settling of the earth. Also, because it is fiberglass, the Super Bubble is guaranteed not to leak.

It features molded seating and is designed to accommodate 8 to 10 adults. Walls and ceilings are sanitary white. They are specially treated with a non-toxic, lead-free, Gel-Coat finish which is not harmful to children or pets. This is the same finish used on the exterior surface of fiberglass boats. It protects knees and elbows from the scrapes and scratches caused by the rough textured surface of conventional storm shelters. A damp cloth is all that's necessary for cleaning.

The Super Bubble is 7'10" in diameter with a 6'10" ceiling. It is installed below ground level and weighs less than 700 pounds.

The Bubble is ideally suited for those on the move because the light weight unit is portable and can be easily transported from one location to another.

KRIS DOUGLASS of the Pampa High tennis team goes through final practice warmups as she prepares for next weekend's regional tournament in Lubbock. She is the first Pampa representative in 46 years.

Kris Douglass confident

By JERRY GUNTER
Pampa News Sports Editor
Next weekend will be a special one for Pampa High School tennis enthusiasts as the Harvesters have qualified a representative for the upcoming Region I-AAAA tournament for the first time in 46 years.

Tennis sensation Kris Douglass will have the honor of carrying the Gold and Green colors to the Hub City in Lubbock Friday and Saturday as she seeks the regional title in competition at the Coronado High School courts.

Miss Douglass qualified for the tournament on behalf of her runner-up spot recently in the District 3-AAAA meet. She bowed in the finals to Amarillo High's Kim Clark, 6-3, 6-2.

For Douglass, a chance to compete in regional is a big thrill as she noted, "I have always wanted to qualify for regional since I've been in high school. And the tournament will be a good one as I know that the state runner-up from last year will be there along with the two best players from El Paso."

Just like Douglass, Pampa High coach David Martin is anxious to see what will happen in the meet at Lubbock.

"All along she has been one of our top leaders," pointed out Martin. "All of the others have looked up to her. It is a real credit to her to be the first Pampa player to be in regional in the last 46 years."

Douglass is confident that she can compete well in the meet as he said, "I will have to play good. It will be tough in that I will have to play one of the first seeds in the first round. "I will have to get the shots that I need. Yes, I feel playing in regional for the first time will affect me, but I hope that it's for the good. I hope that it will help me to play even better," added the talented tennis star.

When asked his feelings about Miss Douglass in her first appearance ever in regional competition, Martin said, "She is unrated and unknown and it would be easy for people to take her lightly, since they have never seen her play before. I think that she has an excellent chance."

Douglass is quick to give all of the credit of her success to Martin, who is in his first year as head coach of the Harvesters. "I give him all of the credit," pointed out Douglass. "I was nothing at the first of the year. In one year, he has brought me from nothing to the regionals. He is quite a coach as he will come up with you at 7:30 in the morning and stay until midnight if you want him to. He has helped me with everything and he has made me into a solid player," summed up Douglass.

Martin talked about meeting Kris for the first time last summer when he said, "Her ground strokes were pretty bad, but she has worked real hard. She has really come around and Kris has developed into a real fine tennis player."

With the regional competition just a few days away now, Douglass knows that she must work hard as she makes an attempt to come out on top in the prestigious meet.

Spurs prepare for NBA playoffs

By GREG THOMPSON
AP Sports Writer
SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs, who have lost 10 straight pro basketball playoff series since winning their first in 1968, went through a final tuneup Saturday for Sunday's opening here of a best-of-seven, second-round playoff with Philadelphia.

And it was no surprise that the man most on their minds was Philadelphia's All-Star forward Julius Erving, a clutch playoff performer many of the Spurs remember from their American Basketball Association days.

"We're going to stay on Julius until he gets rid of the ball, double-team him until he gives it up. We can't let him get inside. We have to make him take the outside shot or give up the ball," said James Silas, captain of the National Basketball Association's Central Division champions.

"Let somebody else beat us if we're going to get beat, not let him do the things we know he can do to a playoff," added

Silas, who played against Erving in the ABA. "He's really unbelievable in the money games."

The 76ers, playing without injured star guard Doug Collins, made their way into the second round by sweeping a best-of-three series from New Jersey. They won Wednesday night and Friday night, while the Spurs, who drew a bye, haven't played since last Sunday.

"Doctor J will be a stronger player with Collins out," said Spurs Coach Doug Moe. "He'll have to do it. When he has to do it, he does more. Just like he did three years ago with the Nets."

Erving led the Nets to the ABA title in 1976, eliminating the Spurs in the first round. Moe said the Sixers were definitely crippled by the loss of Collins, their second-leading scorer who has missed much of the season with an ankle injury. But he added that Erving, centers Darryl Dawkins and Caldwell Jones and guard Henry Bibby would probably play harder to take up the slack. Jones got 24 points and Dawkins had 19 in Philadelphia's 111-101 victory Friday night.

"They're still a helluva team. They miss him a lot. But guys like Dawkins can come to the forefront. I think people who look at the series objectively will rate it a toss-up. It would surprise me if we were made favorites," he added.

The talent-laden Sixers were a disappointment to Philadelphia in the past two playoffs, sailing through the regular seasons before stumbling in the playoffs.

They had a mediocre 47-35 season this year, however, and without Collins, they weren't expected to have much success in the playoffs. That, Erving said, might work to their advantage. "Judging by the attention we're getting, people don't expect us to do well. We might be able to sneak up on them and come up with a few surprises, that would be nice. We've taken a lot of heat all year."

The Spurs, who were in Dallas for their first six seasons, have been in either the ABA or NBA playoffs for 11 of their 12 seasons, but won their only playoff series in 1968. They lost in the second round that year.

Top tennis names pass over WCT

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — First there were contracts that guaranteed the presence of top tennis players at pro tournaments. Then came the big bucks, the mushrooming purses that attracted the top players like a magnet.

But now that the world class players have become so affluent that they can pass up $400,000 tournaments without a second thought, how do tournaments attract players like Jimmy Connors, Vitas Gerulaitis or John McEnroe?

Try a little friendliness, says Al Hill Jr., Director of World Championship Tennis. "Today the extra ingredient is a close personal relationship with the players," said Hill. "They'll do things out of personal friendship and that's something that money can't buy. That is a more effective way than the promise of a big payday."

Contracts, money or even friendship, however, couldn't get any of the top five players on the WCT tour to this week's $175,000 WCT tournament beginning Monday at River Oaks Country Club, where a $30,200 check awaits the singles champion.

McEnroe, Connors, Bjorn Borg, Gerulaitis and Arthur Ashe all decided to pass up the tournament.

The River Oaks tournament is a victim of the age of the independently wealthy tennis stars who can pick and choose their tournaments for reasons other than money.

"Three years ago I could have told you why a player didn't come to a tournament," Hill said. "Now it's hard to explain what they do. They can pick and choose but you'd think they would pick the logical tournaments."

"Look at the Masters, a $400,000, eight-man tournament and Guillermo Vilas, Borg and Gerulaitis turned it down."

Hill, who has seen the problem escalate during the last few years, says the unpredictability of tournament lineups is causing some sponsors to reevaluate their advertising revenue.

"There have been some big sponsors who decided to rethink their priorities," Hill said. "Here they put up a lot of money for a tournament and then no one shows up."

Hill said many of the younger players take too much credit for the tennis boom.

"Some of the younger guys today weren't around to see tennis like it used to be and they think they are solely responsible for the tennis boom," Hill said. "They have no appreciation for sponsors. That's not true of all of them."

Boston Marathon set for Monday

HOPKINTON, Mass. (AP) — Population in this mecca of road running will more than double Monday for one of the world's most venerable amateur athletic events.

Defending champion and two-time winner Bill Rodgers, 31, from nearby Melrose, Mass., is favored to win the 83rd Boston Marathon, which has outgrown the bucolic starting point west of Boston.

More than 7,800 qualified entrants, all of whom have run the 26-mile, 385-yard race in 3½ hours or less, will clog Hopkinton's streets for the noon start. The winner is expected in Boston before 2:15 p.m.

Hundreds of unofficial hopefuls, many denied an entry number because they're just joggers, will help create additional chaos until the pack spreads out heading towards Framingham, Mass.

Already there is talk of cutting the field in the future. Despite qualifying standards — three hours for men, 3½ hours for women and men over 40 — the number of official runners in the 1979 event is a 75 percent increase over last year's record. Female entrants have doubled to more than 500.

As usual, the winner's reward is a laurel wreath and a gold sunburst medal. But every finisher earns a bowl of beef stew, if they can first recover from the rigors of the run from the countryside, through suburbia to the city.

Among the pre-race contenders are 95 men who have completed a marathon in two hours, 20 minutes, or less. They include 1972 Olympic champion Frank Shorter, Japan's No. 1 marathoner Toshihiko Seko and

Strike affects game

DALLAS (AP) — The Seattle Sounders and Dallas Tornado vowed to play their North American Soccer League game Saturday night, but a strike by the players' association made the lineup anybody's guess.

Tornado union members Steve Pecher, George Ley, Glenn Myernick, Jim Ryan, Kevin Kewley, Ken Cooper and Chris Collins refused to tell anyone Friday whether they would strike Saturday.

All but six of the Sounders have said they would go on strike and skip the game.

Tornado Coach Al Miller said he believes his players will not strike. "I'd faint if they did," Miller said. "You get to know your players as people, and ours have their feet on the ground." Pecher said the union members would have no comment. "It's our business," he said.

The union is merely seeking recognition by the league and has asked striking players to conduct informational picket lines, identical to those manned by striking major league baseball umpires.

Yankees stop Chicago, 8-5

CHICAGO (AP) — Pinch-hitter Jay Johnstone's grand slam home run in the eighth inning lifted the New York Yankees to an 8-5 victory over the Chicago White Sox Saturday.

Dick Tidrow, the third pitcher used by the Yankees, picked up his first victory of the year but left the game after the White Sox put two men on base with one out in the ninth. Ron Guidry, last year's Cy Young Award winner, made his first relief appearance in two seasons and got Jorge Orta to hit into a game-ending double play to earn the save.

With one out in the Yankees' eighth and Chicago leading 5-4, pinch batter Jim Spencer drew a walk off loser Dewey Robinson and Reggie Jackson followed with a double. Graig Nettles, who earlier in the game had homered, was given an intentional walk to load the bases and Lerrin LaGrow came on in relief of Robinson.

Johnstone greeted LaGrow with his first home run of the season over the wall in right-center.

Blue Jays grab win

TORONTO (AP) — Rick Cerone's bases-loaded single with one out in the eighth inning broke a 6-6 tie and helped the Toronto Blue Jays to an 8-6 victory over the Kansas City Royals Saturday.

It was the fourth straight victory for the Blue Jays, who lost their first three starts. The Royals lost for the second day in a row and fell to 4-3.

John Mayberry drew a walk off loser Dennis Leonard.

Pageant something special

LAWTON, Okla. (AP) — Every Easter Sunday for the last 54 years thousands have gathered at a beautiful spot known as the Holy City in the Wichita Mountains north of this southwestern Oklahoma city for hours of pre-dawn religious reflection.

It is a time to rekindle the spirit ... a time for Christians to renew a commitment to their faith ... a time of hope.

For many residents of tornado-stricken Lawton, the four-hour Easter pageant at a quarter-mile natural amphitheater at the base of two mountains takes on extra meaning this year.

For them, hope for the future is about all they have left as result of a killer tornado that struck Tuesday afternoon, leaving them homeless and emotionally scarred.

The last of the three victims of the vicious storm were to be buried Saturday. They have a common bond in death, although in life their paths probably never crossed.

Life was just beginning for 20-month-old Stephanie Ann Parker, a great-grandchild of Quanah Parker, the famous Comanche Indian chief.

She died when the twister picked up the compact car being driven by her mother, Carol Miller, and spun it around wildly before slamming it into a field. Ms. Miller was among the 68 persons hospitalized.

Garland Newsom was a 48-year-old automobile mechanic who was a well known stock car race driver. Friends say he had gained new reverence for life in recent years because of a bout with cancer.

Newsom died when a building rafter crushed him as the storm shredded the auto service shop of a friend.

Beatrice Ruth "Bertie" Kading was 78. Acquaintances say she was an independent sort who was active in church and got much enjoyment out of life.

She was alone in her small frame home that was jerked cleanly from its foundation by the tornado and rolled for several blocks.

Most of the residents of the 17-block area of south Lawton that was ravaged by the storm are not people of financial means.

The bulk of the debris from hundreds of destroyed and damaged homes was cleared by heavy equipment at week's end, and major recovery efforts this week will be geared to hand-picking remnants of the residents' possessions.

Comanche County and four surrounding counties have been declared a national disaster area by President Carter, making property owners eligible for federal loans, temporary housing assistance and other aid.

Board wrestles problems

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The State Board of Education tried Saturday to quell recurrent controversies over textbooks for a high school elective on "Free Enterprise" and again wrestled with bilingual problems.

It also appointed a 15-member State Textbook Committee and a 15 member advisory council on migrant education dominated by parents of migrant students.

Board members approved guidelines for textbooks in the "Fundamentals of the Free Enterprise System" elective that all high schools are required by law to offer.

Conservatives have protested most books offered so far, saying they emphasize the free enterprise system's blemishes instead of its benefits.

In 1977, the State Textbook Committee recommended four books but the board eliminated two of them. The two books were readopted in March for two more years.

The bill will issue its next call for "Free Enterprise" texts in March 1981 and adopt books that November for use beginning Sept. 1, 1982.

Guidelines were issued early to give publishers plenty of time to develop new texts, said Education Commissioner M.L. Brockette.

The guidelines require the books to cover the "history and characteristics of a free market economy," how a free market economy determines prices and allocates resources, the profit motive, competition, private vs. state decision making and "advantages and disadvantages of government intervention (sic) in the free market economy."

"The content of the textbooks shall be objective in nature and impartial in the interpretations of the American free enterprise system," the guidelines say.

Board members also adopted an adult education rule requiring programs to address "special needs of undereducated adults" and permit bilingual instruction of those "who do not function satisfactorily in English."

W.H. Fetter of LaMarque objected to the bilingual aspect.

"This is not K through 3 (kindergarten through third grade)," Fetter said. Adults, he added, "are here to learn English and that will be their livelihood." He said the refinery where he is an executive will not hire anyone who can't speak or read English because it is essential for their safety that they be able to understand signs posted at the plant.

"They need flexibility so that when they find students who need this additional help, there can be some communication and success in the program ... In my area, I assure you, 85 percent of the adults in adult education programs are having difficulty in communicating in English," replied Ruben Hinojosa of Mercedes.

Deputy Commissioner Harlan Ford settled the issue by reading a state law allowing bilingual instruction in adult education programs.

"I'll withdraw my motion (to eliminate bilingual training of adults) and hush," Fetter said.

Board member James Whiteside of Lubbock later protested terminology in a proposal to add "English as a Second Language" to the list of high school credit courses.

"It downgrades the importance of excellence in English," Whiteside grumbled.

ALANREED COMMUNITY IMPROVEMENT:

The Alanreed Community will be host to the district I, Texas Community Improvement Program judging committee on April 19th at 9 a.m.

Everyone interested in seeing and hearing about the improvement programs and activities around Alanreed during the past year are invited and encouraged to come out next Thursday morning to the Alanreed School.

HOME GARDEN FERTILIZATION:

Proper fertilizer management for home vegetable gardens is absolutely essential for success. Soils of the area are inherently well supplied with most of the essential plant food elements with the exception of nitrogen and phosphorus. Nitrogen is nearly always lacking in soils that have not been recently fertilized because this element is utilized in largest amount and because it is easily lost from the sandier soils through leaching. Phosphorus is used in lesser amounts and is not lost through leaching, therefore, lesser rates are desirable over a long time period after initial requirements have been met.

Home gardeners are encouraged to have their soils tested by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service Soil Testing Laboratory in Lubbock for evaluation of conditions before spring soil preparation. The County Extension Agent can supply information on sample collection and mailing. There is a $2 charge for the analysis on which fertilizer-use suggestions are based.

If your soil is already high in all plant nutrients except nitrogen (frequently the case in old garden sites), the application of 1/2 pound (1 cup) of ammonium nitrate sufficient as a pre-plant application. If both nitrogen and phosphorus are needed, work these materials into the soil head of planting. When plants are established and growing, additional nitrogen will likely be required. For tomatoes, peppers, summer squash, and okra, sidedress and additional cup of ammonium nitrate per 100 square feet of area when fruit begins to set by placing in shallow trench 6 to 8 inches on either side of drill. Cover with soil and irrigate. A similar rate can be sidedressed to cucumbers, winter squash and pumpkin when vines begin to run. Application to cabbage, corn, and broccoli should be made about 4 weeks after the setting of plants or corn emergence. Do not sidedress additional nitrogen to peas or beans.

PROPER FRUIT TREE PRUNING A NECESSITY:

Most people are horrified at the thought of pruning their fruit trees and vines. However, pruning is important for a number of reasons.

First, pruning promotes large, well-flavored fruit. A plant has a certain capacity for production. Through proper pruning techniques, it can concentrate all available nutrients into fewer fruit, yielding large and juicy products.

Another advantage of pruning is to enable a plant to develop a proper framework which can support more evenly distributed fruit. This will prevent tree breakage when fruit matures.

The most overlooked, and possibly most important, aspect of pruning is the modification of growth conditions. If a tree is allowed to overproduce, a smaller amount of shoot growth and nutrient storage occurs the next year.

Prune when winter is almost over, but before spring arrives. In most areas of Texas, this is during March and April. Gardeners should not prune in the winter since frozen wood is brittle. Late spring pruning may cause sap bleeding or weeping, but it is best to prune late than not at all.

Prune peach trees using an open center system. To do this, select three limbs radiating in 120 degree angles from the uppermost part of the trunk as primary scaffold branches. The lowest scaffold branch should be 18 inches from ground level and pointing southwest to shade the trunk from intense sunlight.

Leave enough trunk space so there are 8 to 12 inches from their juncture with the trunk. After secondary branching is formed, light pruning will cause new growth which will bear most of the fruit.

Once the main branch system is established, subsequent pruning includes cutting back tall shoots, keeping the tree's center open, and removing suckers, waterspouts, dead or diseased branches, and rubbing or shading branches. Do not allow the tree to grow higher than 8 feet.

Remember, no new growth equals no fruit, and pruning stimulates new growth.

ADULT LEADERS ASSOCIATION MEETING:

All 4-H parents and leaders are invited to attend the Gray County Adult Leaders Association meeting at the Courthouse Annex in Pampa on Monday, April 16th at 7:30 p.m.

Martha Couch, Area 4-H Specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service will coordinate a short Leadership training session.

A business meeting will follow the training session. Business will include election of officers, appointing committees to begin preparations for the 4-H rodeo to be held in August, setting guidelines for distributing County Camp Scholarships, and a 4-H fund and budget report. This is where parents need to get involved, so make plans to attend.

Senior citizens menu

Monday - Roast beef or smothered liver, baked potatoes, blackeyed peas, carrots, coleslaw or cherry jello salad, apple crisp or lemon tarts, hot rolls.

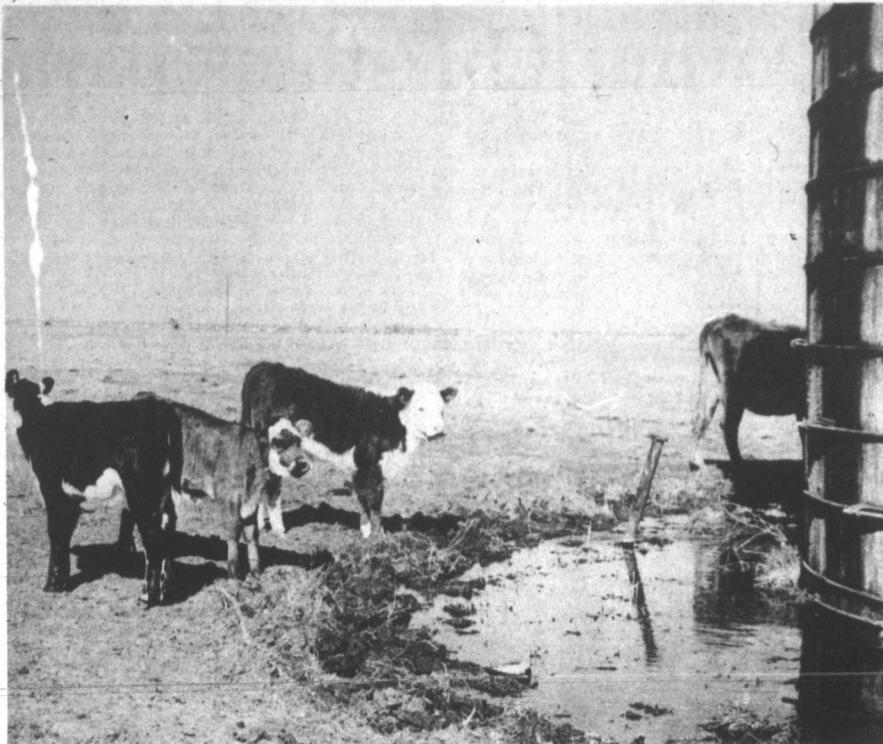

Tuesday - Chicken fried steak or ham salad, mashed potatoes, green peas, broccoli, toss salad or carrot and raisin salad, peach cobbler or strawberry shortcake, hot rolls.

Wednesday - Pork roast or chicken enchiladas, candied yams, green beans, turnip greens, lettuce and tomato or peach and cheese salad, coconut pie or fruit, hot rolls.

Thursday - fried chicken or wieners and kraut, mashed potatoes, green limas, squash, coleslaw or lemon fruit salad, prune spice cake or pudding, hot rolls.

Friday - Barbeque beef or fish, parsley potatoes, pinto beans, spinach, toss salad or pear and cheese, cherry cream pie or fruit, hot rolls.

DWINDLING HERDS and higher feed prices are forcing beef prices upward. Local ranchers feel that hamburger may soon reach $2.50 per pound but say "we aren't the ones that are making the profit." (Staff photo)

Pampa realtors observe Private Property Week

The word "preservation" has come into vogue in the past few years, with political leaders and the general public observing the country's need to preserve our natural resources and landmarks.

But the Pampa Board of Realtors is emphasizing two other forms of preservation—preservation of property and property rights—during its annual observance of Private Property Week April 15-21.

The week is designed to encourage homeowners to preserve their property and to stand up for their rights to private ownership.

The thrust of local activities will highlight the need for "community service," said Irvine Mitchell, chairperson of the Private Property Week activities.

The activities begin Monday at 11 a.m. when the realtors will PLACE phone number stickers for a child runaway "hotline" called "Operation Peace of Mind."

On Thursday board members will plant trees at the Leisure Lodge Nursing Home and Pampa Nursing Center during a 2 p.m. ceremony.

Friday, beginning at 11 a.m. at Leisure Lodge, the realtors will take responsibility for a day for the Meals on Wheels program.

Members are expected to cover 150 to 300 phone booths and other public locations throughout the city.

Tuesday at 9 a.m. the Pampa board will have a coffee in the Hospitality Room of the Citizen's Bank for Pampa business people.

Wednesday the realtors will host the Chamber of Commerce Breakfast at 6:45 a.m. at the Pampa Country Club.

Witness of faith at Easter

By MRS. L. V. GRACE

During my childhood, I grew up attending the local church and became a member at the age of 12. I had sisters and brothers and we would play church and I was always the preacher and the rest were my congregation.

We find in 1 Peter 2:7a "Unto you therefore which believe He is precious: I have always believed an He has always been precious to me regardless of the circumstances I am in.

I was married when I was 23 and we were blessed with one son, but God saw fit to call him home at the age of 10 with polio. As bad as I hated to give him up, I knew that God had something better for him, as he was a dedicated christian boy at that early age. Being human, I would find myself asking, why? But, being a christian we know that God's will must be fulfilled instead of our selfish motives.

My husband and I moved to Pampa, Texas and I put in a religious book and supply store. Due to my dedication to Gods Holy word and the books I was able to help many people that were seeking help, by recommending certain books as I had read them and knew what was in them. The first thing I knew I was being asked to fill the pulpit for different churches, so I thought I needed a letter of recommendation from some one for you know the first thing people want to know, is on what authority do you speak. "they do not realize God gives you the authority an power" so I went to my district Superintendent for a letter of recommendation and he said, I want you to come before the Board of your church, The First United Methodist Church of Pampa, an I will give you a Local License to preach the gospel.

This was in 1959 and in 1961 my husband who is the Rev. L. V. Grace, received his license to preach and was ordained Elder in Kansas May 18, 1966.

I continued my preaching to help where ever I could and in our ministry of teaching how to become an effective worker for Christ. We were sent to several charges during our early ministry, and loved every one of them and the good people that made them.

In 1970 we were assigned to the Mobeetie charge, which was Mobeetie, Briscoe and Gageby. I was able to be of a great deal of help for my husband as he was preaching four sermons two Sundays an three the other two Sundays.

I had continued my studies to become an ordained minister, but, bad health prevented me from continuing, and on January 12, 1972, I was stricken with a hemorrhage at the base of my skull and fell and broke my right hip. Well knowing that God is a good God and bigger than a hemorrhage or a broken hip, after 29 days in the hospital under the care of a good doctor, but giving God the glory, I was able to get up an walk with help, without any surgery, just prayer from Gods children.

I did real well until June 28, 1973 and my world closed in on me, I was rushed to the hospital and they found that the place where I had hemorrhaged the year before was closing up with scar tissue and where it is located, it is too close to repair. After 16 days not knowing if I would be here or the Lord would call me home, I was raised up again, because the Lord was not through with me, I had more work to do, and I was able to serve my fellowman again for about a year.

My husband took his retirement in June 1974, to take care of me for I was growing worse from the effects of the hemorrhage and again after two years, I was better and able to witness to people of what our God is able to do. My husband was asked to return to our charge at Mobeetie to serve the people on a retired basis and we came back in 1976 and I was able to help and witness for my Lord, I was able to deliver the sermon at Mobeetie and Ageby for Easter on Simon of Cirene, but on April 9th, I was thrown for another fall and broke the left hip, again I was not able to have any surgery on my hip and through the mercy of God I came home in 12 days but have had to spend most of my time in bed and the wheel chair. God has not seen fit to restore my strength and it seems to be dwindling each day, but I can say with Job, "For I know that my redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth; And though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God." Job 19: 25-26.

Although we do not understand all things, we know that God is in control and we can serve Him from the bed, or the wheel chair. We have a young man that is a member of the Mobeetie church that has been in a iron lung since he was 14 years old. He has nothing but praise for his Master, how could I do otherwise. He is 38 now.

I thank God daily for the ministry that he has given me, and by the Grace He gives me I will serve Him, regardless of the circumstances I find myself in.

I thank God for all things - most of all for His greatest gift, Jesus Christ!

This contribution, sent in by Mrs. L. V. Grace, a member of The 1st. United Methodist Church, Mobeetie, Texas (Northwest Texas Annual Conference).

P. S. Mrs. Grace is growing weaker day by day and is in the Edward Abraham Memorial Home, Canadian, Texas 79014. Please pray for us.

With Love Rev. L. V. Grace

Around the nation

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A federal judge has sentenced a former city council member and ex-banker to three years in prison and fined him $20,000 for failing to report a loan to a drug dealer.

"I don't think you need rehabilitation. I think you need punishment," U.S. District Judge Eldon Mahon told George Thompson III at the sentencing Friday.

Thompson, 53, was the board chairman of Ridgela Bank here. A jury last month found him guilty of authorizing a $45,000 loan, after testimony alleged Thompson knew the money would be used to buy drugs. Banks must report to the federal government any loan over $10,000.

PITTSBURG, Kan. (AP) — A downtown apartment building fire that killed three men may have been started when one of the men fell asleep with a lighted cigarette, police said Saturday.

The victims of the Friday night blaze were identified as George Riley, 62, Carl Randall, 31, and Frank McGhee, 42.

Police investigator Al Locke said it appeared all three men were asleep when the fire spread through the top floor of the two-story structure. Fire Capt. Galen Berry termed damage extensive. He said no definite cause for the fire had been determined.

Devout Christians parade to tomb

JERUSALEM (AP) — Devout Christians, commemorating a day of mourning before the resurrection, paraded solemnly from Calvary to the tomb of Christ on Holy Saturday.

The litanies of the Roman Catholic, Armenian, Coptic and Greek Orthodox churches mingled in a babble of prayer inside the Church of the Holy Sepulchre as Easter Week approached its climax.

Catholics conclude Easter celebrations soon after sunrise Sunday with a recital of the High Mass of the Resurrection, conducted by the Latin Patriarch of Jerusalem, Monsignor Giacomo Guiseppe Beltritti.

Protestant services were scheduled for Sunday in eight different languages, starting before sunrise and lasting until afternoon at the Garden Tomb, outside the Old City walls.

The Garden Tomb is revered by Protestants as the actual tomb of Christ. Catholics recognize the Church of the Holy Sepulchre as the burial site.

In a tightly crowded schedule, the churches followed one another in separate processions from the scull-shaped hill of the crucifixion to the stone of uncton, where tradition says Jesus' body was anointed and wrapped in a shroud, to the mausoleum-enclosed tomb.

Thousands of pilgrims filtered through the church all day for devotions. An estimated 60,000 Christian visitors came to the Holy Land in the last month, but there was no estimate of how many were in Jerusalem for Easter Week.

Israeli troops patrolled the streets to guard against Arab terrorism. There were no reports of incidents.

Although Greek Orthodox Christians do not celebrate Easter until next Sunday, the church was crowded with black-clad worshippers from nearby Greece and Cyprus attending a regular Saturday Mass.

Many Orthodox pilgrims knelt to kiss the stone of uncton and to wipe a pungent balsam from its marble surface to cross their foreheads in devotion. Bishop Hanna Kaldany, the vicar of Nazareth, led the Catholic procession down the steep staircase from Golgotha.

The strains of Bachorgan music echoed through the rotunda. Brown-robed Franciscan friars reciting hymns cleared a wide path through a throng of pilgrims.

"This really brings the gospels home to me. Easter will mean so much more now," said one New Zealand woman. Most of the pilgrims appeared to be from Scandinavia and Germany. A few were Americans.

The Catholic procession was preceded by Armenian rites conducted by black-hooded monks. A clamor of church bells and the voices of choir boys rang through the vast halls of the 800-year-old church as the procession ended.

The Armenian liturgy could still be heard from a chapel in an upper story of the church as the tiny Coptic community, a Christian sect based in Egypt,

Gasohol to get test

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Legislators have been hearing a lot about gasohol — gasoline diluted with grain alcohol. Now they and elected state officials will get a chance to try it.

If they drive to a filling station in South Austin on Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday and say "fill'er up," each will receive up to 20 gallons.

The "Gasohol Test Project" is sponsored by the Texas Department of Agriculture and the Texas Oil Marketers Association.

Several gasohol bills are pending before the Legislature, including measures to reduce motor fuel taxes on gasohol and to encourage construction of alcohol plants that would use Texas farm products.

Polio, diphtheria gone

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas had no reported cases of polio or diphtheria in 1978, and gonorrhea was almost as common as the flu, the State Health Department reported Saturday.

It was the first year without a diphtheria case since the department began maintaining communicable disease records in 1920.

Other diseases whose incidence declined in 1978 included brucellosis in humans, chicken pox, encephalitis, red measles, Rocky Mountain spotted fever, German measles, tetanus and tuberculosis.

The department said there was a higher incidence in 1978 than in 1977 of meningitis, botulism, flu, mumps, persussis, rheumatic fever, typhoid, syphilis and gonorrhea.

Gonorrhea showed as only slightly less common than flu and flu-like illnesses, with 715.35 cases per 100,000 population, compared with 763.75 for flu, the department said.

The incidence of gonorrhea represented an 8 percent rise over 1977's 660.87 cases per 100,000 population.

Bar owners crying in their beer

BOSTON (AP) — The legal drinking age will be raised from 18 to 20 in America's No. 1 college town Monday, and some owners of bars that cater to the city's 250,000 students are crying in their beer.

A weekly newspaper called "Real Paper" lists 118 bars and discotheques in Boston, ranging from beer joints that serve teen-agers to trendy exposed-brick haunts for the 30-and-over crowd.

Harry Steadman, manager of The Rathskeller, who said half his clientele are under 20, fears that after 2 a.m. Monday — when the new drinking law goes into effect — his business will go flatter than day-old beer.

"It's bound to hurt, especially at the beginning, when we'll want fool-proof IDs," said Steadman, as he opened a bottle of beer.

"Maybe with these young kids gone, I'll pick up some of the older crowd who'll spend a little more," he said. "I've been in business 15 years. I'll survive."

First-term Gov. Edward J. King, who promised during his campaign to raise the legal drinking age, signed the measure into law on March 8. The legal drinking age was lowered in many states during the early 1970s after the federal voting age was changed from 21 to 18.

Since then, however, five states other than Massachusetts have raised the drinking age in the belief that such a move would reduce traffic accidents and vandalism among youth. Michigan raised the age limit to 21, Maine to 20 and Minnesota, Montana and Iowa all settled on 19.

Massachusetts first lowered its drinking age from 21 in 1973, and many of the bars that have opened since then are the ones that foresee an uncertain future.

Among these is Sweet Virginia, a dating bar in the basement of a Boston University dorm.

"Everybody's going to have to go after a smaller number of customers," said manager Jack Hague. "Competition will be tougher."

Some rock bands in the Boston area also are expected to revise their repertoires to suit a more mature audience.

"Now we'll hire bands that will draw an older crowd," said John Courtney, manager of The Club in Cambridge. "It'll hurt the 19- and 20-year-old punk rock and new wave bands. We just won't book them."

Board upholds dismissal

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The State Board of Education upheld Saturday the dismissal of a Crystal City teacher accused of calling junior high students names such as "animal" and striking at least one of them on the shoulder.

In another appeal, the board overturned the suspension of a Lamarque Junior High School student for allegedly possessing drugs.

Eugene T. Richardson lost the Crystal City appeal. Richardson was fired Nov. 30, 1977, after a hearing before the local school board.

His principal, Juan Orona, said that during Richardson's three months at the school he was repeatedly accused of using improper disciplinary measures.

No competent evidence was introduced to prove that petitioner (Eidelbach) possessed narcotics or other dangerous drugs not prescribed by a licensed physician," Brockette found.

API sets Thursday meeting

The Pampa chapter of the American Petroleum Institute (API) will meet at the Pampa Country Club at 6:30 p.m. Thursday.

Lone Star Steel Company's Billy R. Patterson will present an audio-visual tour of the mill near Longview and a speech on "Proper Field Care and Handling of Tubular Goods."

Patterson, manager of Technical Services of Lone Star Steel Company, has had 25 years of experience in oil field materials, equipment and tubular goods and is a Registered Professional Engineer.

The API Handicap Golf Tournament is scheduled for May 26-27 at the Huber Golf Course.

Persons selling 1979 memberships are requested to turn in the names of new members to make possible an update of the tournament roster.

'Very good -- very disciplined'

Pampa High School Concert Choir members mingled with movie stars and delivered top-notch performances recently when they traveled to Oklahoma City to sing at the National Cowboy Hall of Fame Western Heritage Awards.

The three-day trip was the result of an invitation extended at the beginning of the year to choir director John Woickowski. The choir was recommended by Nona Payne of Pampa, a life member of the Hall of Fame board of directors.

Arriving in Oklahoma City by bus, choir members followed a busy schedule that included three performances, two rehearsals, a tour of the Hall of Fame, a party and a breakfast hosted by "Aunt Nona," the only honorary choir member. The choir sang at a dinner April 6 for Hall of Fame board members, at a groundbreaking April 8 and at the awards banquet itself on April 7.

Accompanied by the Texas Little Symphony from Fort Worth, the choir received an enthusiastic ovation when it opened the awards ceremony with "America the Beautiful" and "Battle Hymn of the Republic." Celebrities on hand for the awards included Robert Conrad, Slim Pickens, Gene Autrey, Marty Robbins, Katherine Ross, Sam Elliott, Beau Bridges and Ben Johnson.

Several of the persons participating in the awards praised the Pampa High students for their talent and professionalism.

"I liked it very much," said Slim Pickens, after hearing the choir perform at the board of directors dinner. "I love 'Shenandoah.' That's one of my favorite songs. They really did a good job on it."

"I haven't heard a choir in a long time, since high school," said Eloy Phil Casados, an actor who was awarded for his portrayal of an Indian in the television special "Ishi, the Last of His Tribe." "I thought they were very good -- very disciplined."

After three days of activity and excitement, the weary Pampa group was ready to pack up their autographs and return home for a week-long Easter vacation. The Oklahoma City trip was judged a success by everyone involved.

THE "GOLDEN VOICES" CONCERT CHOIR entertained hundreds of people recently at the National Cowboy Hall of Fame in Oklahoma City. by abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: Is adultery always wrong? I have a married friend I'll call Jim who has a girlfriend I'll call Joyce. When Jim and Joyce are together it is obvious that they are madly in love.

Jim was trapped into marriage by a girl who got herself pregnant so Jim would have to marry her.

A few years ago, when Jim fell in love with Joyce, he was all set to leave his wife and marry Joyce, but his wife deliberately got herself pregnant, and Jim was trapped again.

The only reason Jim is staying with his wife is because of his two children. Joyce understands the situation and accepts it, so she doesn't pressure Jim for a divorce.

Jim's wife knows nothing about Joyce, so she's not getting hurt by his affair.

So what's wrong with Jim grabbing whatever happiness he can? Isn't this affair better than breaking up a family?
A FRIEND OF BOTH

DEAR FRIEND: Even if Jim and Joyce were never caught in this adulterous affair it would still be wrong. When a man really loves a woman he wants her by his side publicly instead of sneaking around back alleys. Divorce is legal, respectable and dignified. Adultery is cheap, shoddy and deceitful.

And as for Jim's wife "deliberately getting herself pregnant" — that's not possible. She had to have Jim's deliberate cooperation.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 16-year-old girl who was grounded for three weeks. I couldn't even have my friends over. I was very, very angry, but my parents really did me a favor, and I'd like to tell other kids about it, and maybe it will help them.

The first week I was really mad. I wouldn't speak to my parents. The nicer they were to me, the nastier I was — slamming doors, turning the radio way up just to bug them, etc.

Then I had a talk with my favorite teacher. She advised me to use the time constructively, so I cleaned my room from top to bottom — rearranged all my clothes and sorted them out. I gave the stuff I'd outgrown to the Goodwill, sewed on buttons that had been off a long time, etc.

I got way ahead in my history, science and English. I also read two good books and caught up on letter writing I'd put off for a long time.

I was still mad at my parents when I was around them, but inside I felt a lot better about myself.

Hope you think it's worth passing along.
UNGROUNDED AT LAST

DEAR UNGROUNDED: You bet it's worth passing along. You didn't say why you were grounded, but I'll bet you'll never do it again.

DEAR ABBY: I cheated a little on my income tax and haven't been able to sleep very well lately. Any suggestions?
TOSsing AND TURNING

DEAR T and T: Yes. Send the IRS $500. And if you still can't sleep, send them the balance.

Dr. Lamb

by lawrence lamb m.d.

DEAR DR. LAMB: — Is it normal for an entire family to have very low blood pressure? Mine has always been low. I have no health problems and I have lots of energy. I was very surprised to learn that my 17 year old and 19 year old both have low blood pressure.

DEAR READER: — One of the statements of an early professor has always stuck with me. It was his advice about what to do when you see a patient who has low blood pressure. He said, "Tell your patient to go home, get down on his knees and thank God he's got it." What he meant was that healthy people with low blood pressure tend to live lots longer and continue to be healthier than individuals who have higher blood pressure.

We've seen this in a variety of population studies. The Navajo Indians are less likely to have fatty-cholesterol deposits in their arteries even when they eat high-fat diets because they have an inherited characteristic of low blood pressure. In general, if you're healthy and feel good and are without health problems, the lower your blood pressure is, the better your health will continue to be.

Let me give you a little illustration that happens in your own body. We hear about heart attacks and strokes and similar problems of the circulation all the time. These are caused by fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries. That part of the arterial system in your body is the high pressure circulation. Commonly the pressure is around 120 over 75. That's perfectly normal. Of course, it can be higher. This entire arterial system is susceptible to fatty-cholesterol deposits and that's what causes all the problems.

In the same person you will find little, if any, fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries that go from the heart to the lungs. Now keep in mind that since both artery systems are in the same body, they both are subjected to the same inherited characteristics, dietary habits, living patterns and whatever.

The chief difference between these two major artery systems in the body is that the arteries to the lungs are under very low pressure. The arteries to the lungs normally have a pressure considerably less than 40. It's that low pressure that protects the arteries to the lungs. That's an object lesson about the importance of low pressure in preventing circulatory problems.

It also means that it's important that all of us maintain a normal or low normal blood pressure. You can achieve that by preventing obesity, maintaining physical activity and avoiding an excess use of salt in your diet. Even with these measures, there will still be people who have pressure that's relatively high. In these instances where the pressure is persistently elevated to an abnormal level, medicines can be used to lower the pressure.

Hats on to season's variety of shapes and styles

HAT TRICK PERFORMS fashion magic for the spring and summer season with an exciting array of new, easy-to-wear looks. Big hats, small hats and in-between hats, all offer sophisticated glamour for day or evening wear. Rakish snap-brim fedoras, French sailor shapes, pillboxes, tiny caps and vari-size crown boater and pagoda shapes are among the offerings. From left, sleek eyeliner flattery is shown by Frank Olive in a front-tilt rolled-brim 'muffin' beret of straw, trimmed with veiling from the crown; flowers do tell a new fashion story with a smaller treatment, and the sleeker look is emphasized by Albrizio in a two-tiered cap version of flower sprigs, accented with a delicate nose veil; the emphatic look of spring fashion is reflected in a sweeping side-tilt brim shape of natural panama, trimmed at the crown with spring flowers; the 'little' look comes into its own with tiny forward-thrust pillbox shapes, accented with nose veil, such as this version by Makins, especially chic with an off-the-face hairdo; a new angle to fashion is created by Frank Owen with an accented brim treatment for his flat-crown, smooth-straw fedora.

Home living space affects psyche

By BARBARA BASLER

AP Newsfeatures
Social scientists say that just as we need food and exercise for a healthy life, we also need space—pure physical space for moving and living.

And after we have the proper amount of space, we need the proper kind of space, or everything from our peace of mind to our pocketbook can suffer.

Researchers today are just beginning to explore the ways in which physical places—the spaces in which we work and play and live—help shape our attitudes and actions. This study of man and his immediate physical surroundings—proxemics—is opening some fascinating new doors. And one door leads straight into the home.

"We know that each of us has a personal need for a special space, and these needs can vary, just as our physical and emotional needs vary," says Bryna Eill.

Ms. Eill teaches a course in the physical environment and social behavior at the New School for Social Research in New York. And she says the home "space" can have a real effect on the psyche.

Some people, for example, feel safe, secure and comfortable only in closed rooms with small windows or no windows at all.

"Other people need a room with a view, and if they have a home or apartment without a view, all the plants and posters and fine furniture won't compensate," she explains.

Generally, personal space needs seem to be shaped by childhood experiences. "This is an extreme example," Ms. Eill says, "but it illustrates the point. I have a friend who grew up in a house on a tree-nursery lot, and she is about to marry the head of a botanical garden and live there, on the garden grounds."

For the man or woman raised in a rural or suburban setting, even a spacious city apartment can seem oppressive.

And for the couple raised in a city apartment, where a varied social and cultural life flourishes right outside the door, even a five-bedroom suburban house can seem prison-like.

money alone cannot provide it, but personal knowledge can."

We have to know and understand what we need to feel at home in our homes, and then work to shape our living space.

AREA RUGS are no longer simple "cover ups" for problem areas, heavy traffic lanes where you want to preserve the regular carpet, or to give you a warm spot to step on over cold floors

Today's colorful area rugs are one of the most exciting developments in decorating. They actually function as "floor paintings," introducing living colors and designs to your floors just as paintings do to your walls.

Today's area rug designs are created by artists who have been given free rein to design imaginative patterns, use textures in exciting new ways, and especially to go as far as they like in using bright colors and color combinations, in keeping with the colorful look of today's homes.

Look over your rooms, especially the floors. Can the room use a splash of color? A striking design? A "floor painting" to key your decorative scheme? Area rugs offer imaginative ways to go.

Come in and look over the striking designs and colors in our area rug displays. There are sizes and patterns to fit every need...and every budget, too. Come in... for all your carpet needs.

At wit's end

Did you know that for $12.50 you can buy a realistic-looking, inflatable, plastic torso of a person to place in a passenger seat when driving alone or in a chair when not a home?

I've seen several of these "silent partners" that are being sold for "protection for women living alone."

Save your money. For a few bucks more you can get a full-sized model that you can prop up at the breakfast table, watch TV with, or use to fill in at a dinner party. They're called husbands.

Granted, they're not as believable as the inflatable models, but they come in a variety of sizes, stay pressurized, and are self-cleaning.

I don't mean to imply that the inflatable-men manufacturers aren't on the right track. Frankly, there is still a need for a male presence. I have found that in making a major purchase like a car or furniture, salesmen will not pay any attention to you unless a man is along. (This in spite of the fact that my husband releases the hood every time he thinks he is releasing the emergency brake.)

Single people going out to dinner will be assured of getting a table away from the wall with a male figure along. And you don't have to listen to his whining about how dancing is a fad like the hula hoop and mood rings and will eventually go out of style.

They'd be wonderful to play bridge with or sit on the beach with (they wouldn't burn), and on a vacation they would fold to envelope size in your luggage right next to your plastic raincoat.

You could toss 'em into a playpen and give the children a feeling of warmth and security that they have a Daddy who plays with them, use them for throw pillows for lonely wives who can curl up with them on a winter evening by the fire (not too close to the fire), and send one to his mother on Mother's Day to show her you care.

A friend of mine, being practical, decided to buy an inflatable plastic torso and put it on the passenger side of the car so it would look like a licensed driver while her teenager was learning how to drive.

At the end of an hour, the poor inflatable was reduced to a flat piece of rubber with a slow leak.

Maybe they're more realistic than we think.

Going beyond Sesame Street

Until recently, the name and face of Alaina Reed has been relatively unknown outside the realm of TV's "Sesame Street."

Even when she landed a part in the Broadway musical hit, "Eubie," and her audience grew beyond the pre-school set, it was limited to New York.

But now, the world knows Alaina Reed as the performer who brought the house down at President Carter's recent entertainment for China's vice premier Teng Shao Ping at the Kennedy Center. When she sang "Roll, Jordan," both national and worldwide TV registered the applause.

And the cameras also proved her children's televi-

The other day and for no reason at all, I was looking back to some remarkable yesterdays. I'm sure you do the same every now and then.

For example, if you come across old photographs or find old love letters (carefully hidden), or diaries (written in what year?), these are pleasant memories. Well, at least some of them are happy, aren't they?

My looking back was something else. I recalled a house-warming I was to bake for. The events of the day were unbelievable, and that's an understatement. I won't go over all of them. It hurts too much.

My assignment was to bake cookies. I chose to make orange cookies that are truly delicate and light. Get set. Here's a couple of things that happened.

I decided that for once in my life I would be frugal and cash in on some of those coupons for the staple items I needed. Every coupon had expired last week. Frustrating, but no matter. I went ahead and shopped.

I got home and rolled up my sleeves and proceeded to prepare the orange cookies.

Let me tell you, that was not my day. My kitchen ceiling at that point was white. It is now orange and white. When I began to squeeze the oranges, the juice defied all laws of gravity and took a mysterious flight to the ceiling. It's interesting to note that some of my guests have commented on the "innovative" orange-and-white ceiling. I keep quiet about the trouble and smiled sort painfully. I ask myself, "Who but a critic is going to comment on your ceiling?" It's not worth thinking about.

So, in hopes that your day has been kind to you, and you don't buy any funny oranges, here is a really good recipe for about 5 dozen ORANGE DROP (?) COOKIES.

HAVE ON HAND
¾ C. Crisco
¼ C. butter (Use the real kind, please. It does make a difference!)

1¼ C. Brown sugar
2 beaten eggs
¼ C. fresh orange juice. (Keep your poise while squeezing!)

1 Tbsp. grated orange rind
1 tsp. vanilla extract
1 C. sour milk
¾ C. flour
¼ tsp. salt
2 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. soda

NOW DO THIS
Grease a cookie sheet. Use a light hand when you do the greasing. Start the oven to 350 degrees. Get your reliable mixer out. Sift the dry ingredients. Squeeze the orange. Cream the shortening, butter, and sugar. Add the eggs, orange juice, grated rind, vanilla, and sour milk. Mix all that carefully.

Add the dry ingredients, and again mix well.

Drop by teaspoons onto the cookie sheet and bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes.

Changes seen in speech patterns

HOUSTON, (AP) — Ask a Texan to count "eight, nine, ten," but don't correct his pronunciation when he says, "eight, nahn, tin," advises John W. Black.

Black, a retired member of Ohio State University's communication faculty, is a visiting professor of speech at Texas Southern University.

"Most of us hear with our mouths. In other words, we subconsciously match what we hear with what we would say if we had done the talking," he says.

"In fact, to criticize a person's habitual pronunciation is often taken as an affront because a person's pronunciation is so much a part of himself."

Pointing out that no one is immune to language conditioning, Black, a native of Veedersburg, Ind., recalled that "many of us who were reared near the Wabash River have trouble saying the diphthong of 'owl.'"

"While speaking in class recently I stopped after saying the word 'vowel' and asked if the class noticed anything odd," he says. "One girl snickered that I said 'vol.'"

"But it turned out that same girl had picked the word 'since' on a pronunciation test as sounding like 'fence.'"

Black, past president of the Speech Association of America and other professional societies, explained how the American language had been changing ever since the colonists settled here in the 1700s.

To examine some of this change, Black recently repeated a student pronunciation test he first gave some 40 years ago and compared the results.

He found not only evidence of change, but also that most Americans are more tolerant of variations in pronunciation than they were a few decades back.

"Pronunciation trends are hard to pin down," he says, "but if there is anything you can say, it's that the discrepancy between the heard version and the written version of the language has been increasing and will continue to increase."

Characteristic of this divergence between the heard and written expression of language, says Black, is a tendency toward overcorrection — called "hyperurbanism."

He points out that a common example of hyperurbanism is the pronunciation of the "t" in "often."

"This inclination has led us toward pronunciation as spelled and the insertion of a great many silent letters into our speech," he said.

"Take that word 'toward' which I just used. It used to rhyme with gourd, but the tendency today is to say 'to-ward.'"

Black said our tolerance of variable pronunciations was apparent all around, both among educated and uneducated people.

All attempts at simplified spelling — to bring the written and heard language closer together — have failed since the time Noah Webster tried it, he said.

"Furthermore, had later proponents of simplified spelling been as influential as Webster, the gap between the English and American languages could be much wider."

Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary notes that not all educated speakers pronounce words the same way and that a second-place variant is not to be regarded as less acceptable than the pronunciation given first, Black pointed out.

He advises that should a contemporary dictionary record the variant pronunciations of educated speakers, "students — guided by teachers — should monitor their own usages, checking them against listed variants."

Making rings to order - a lengthy process

OWATONNA, Minn. (AP) — Bronko Nagurski holds one record even his most avid fans may not know about — his size 19 1/2 ring finger is the largest ever recorded by Josten's Inc. Nagurski, a football star for the University of Minnesota and the Chicago Bears, was fitted for a ring by Josten's in 1967 when he was named a charter member of the football Hall of Fame.

The average size for a man's ring is 10. Josten's makes more than 1 million rings a year. Most of them are school class rings in keeping with a tradition begun in 1835 by the West Point class of that year.

While most of the rings are stock models with name and date added, others — like Nagurski's — are custom-designed and include an incredible amount of detail. It's "like trying to record a history text on a thumbnail," says John Hansen, Josten's resident manager.

It takes about 100 steps to transform a rough sketch into a finished ring, Hansen says.

For example, take the Super Bowl ring. Josten's has made rings for eight of the first 12 Super Bowl champions. The first one, 12 years ago, was for the Green Bay Packers.

"Drawing up rough sketches with customer input can take anywhere from one to three weeks," says Hansen. "But coach (Vince) Lombardi was in a hurry."

So Josten's designer Ken Westerlund took the team's suggestions and worked all night to make revisions. Then began the transformation of an idea into an heirloom.

A rough drawing was made of the design so die cutters could transfer it to a metal mold. Wax rings were then formed in the molds and they, in turn, were encased in plaster which was put through a hardening process.

The design takes shape when molten metal is poured into the plaster molds. But the finished product doesn't emerge until after a series of 30 to 40 polishings. The most drastic change since the first Super Bowl ring was designed is in cleanup procedures. The price of gold has risen in that period from $32 an ounce to about $250.

So waste materials are no longer just dumped out with the trash.

Work areas are vacuumed. Polishers and grinders have minute vacuums attached to capture tiny particles. Workers' clothing is cleaned daily.

Even waste water from wash basins is collected and "paned" for gold.

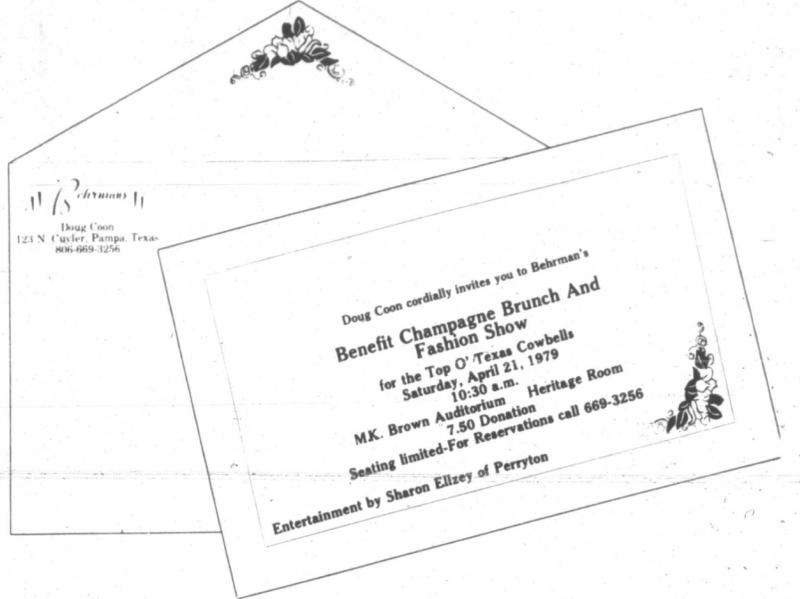

During the 1960s, the popularity of class rings declined.

"Today," said Hansen, "former students, either those who made it through college on peanut-butter sandwiches and day-old bakery, or those who protested against the establishment a decade ago, are calling at the campus bookstores looking for back-dated class rings."

"When an innovation is very difficult to establish, it is unnecessary."

CULTURAL ARTS WORKSHOP

The Gray County Extension Homemakers Council Cultural Arts Committee will sponsor a workshop, April 17th at 9:30 a.m. in the Courthouse Annex meeting room. Mrs. Lil Hall from the Hobby Shop will conduct the workshop. She will teach how to make-Quilt and Tuck ornaments and a Ribbon Towel rack. Cost will be approximately 75 cents - $3, depending on how many you make. Participants should bring a steak knife, stapler and scissors. All Extension Homemaker Club members should plan to come. Visitors are welcome to participate.

ALANREED - COMMUNITY IMPROVEMENT

The Alanreed Community will be participating in the Texas Community Improvement Judging Tour, April 19th from 9 a.m. - 11 a.m. in Alanreed. Residents of Alanreed have been working hard the past year cleaning their community, conducting social and recreational activities, and better farming practices to improve the community and family life. There are six communities in the Panhandle entered in the Texas Community Improvement Judging Contest. GET EQUIPMENT, SUPPLIES READY FOR CANNING.

Get canning equipment and supplies ready - harvest and preservation season for garden fresh fruits and vegetables is just around the corner. Canning is one of the oldest methods of preserving food. Proper canning insures safe food by processing food with high heat and protecting it with an air tight seal. Heat destroys harmful bacteria and other microorganisms that cause food spoilage. Also, heat inactivates enzymes that could cause undesirable changes in flavor, color and texture.

Two processing methods to use in home canning are water bath and steam pressure. The acidity of the food is the chief factor in determining which method to use. For low acid foods such as meat, poultry, fish and vegetables, use a steam pressure canner - a heavy pan with a rack and cover which can be clamped down to make it tight. The cover is fitted with a safety valve which will blow out if the pressure gets too great, a petcock to drive air out and a pressure gauge. Keep all these parts of the pressure canner clean and in working order. Use directions for testing gauges once a year. In Gray County, food needs 12 pounds of pressure for processing to insure that food reaches the recommended temperature. If your pressure canner has not been tested in the last few years, plan to bring it to the County Extension Office so we can test it. This is a free service. If the rubber gasket becomes hard, soak it in boiling water and stretch it to keep steam from escaping.

For high acid foods such as tomatoes, fruits and pickled vegetables, the appropriate equipment is a water bath canner. This could be any large pan with straight sides, a cover and a rack to keep jars from resting on the bottom of the pan, thus allowing water to move freely around the jars. Use a pan that is deep enough to allow the jar tops to be covered one to two inches and have space to gently boil. Large soup kettles could serve as water bath canners.

No matter what method of canning, use only standard, mason jars made especially for canning. These usually have the name of the manufacturer on the side and are heat tempered to withstand steam pressure during processing and vacuum after cooking. Also, they are mechanically shock resistant. Never use jars with nicks or cracks.

There are a number of lids on the market. The most common type is the two piece flat metal lid edged with sealing compound and held in place by a metal screw band.

Other equipment to have on hand ready for the canning seasons:

- Jar lifter that can grip the container will help when handling the hot jars.

- Tongs for removing lid and screw bands from the hot water are helpful.

- A saucepan is needed for heating the lids. The size will depend on the number of jars.

- A wide mouthed funnel and a cup - like ladle for pouring liquids and filling jars will help keep the jars clean and facilitate the filling process.

- If the top of the jar is unclean, then the jars will not seal properly. This equipment is essential to proper food canning. For further home canning information, contact me at the County Extension Office for the Home Canning Bulletin B-194.

An inside look at a modern cowboy

By W.A. Taylor

MOLINE, Kan. (NEA) - The morning is pitch dark and cold. "I made my own way since I was 7 years old," Darby says. He attended country school "for about six or seven grades."

But at 5 a.m. - just as he does every Tuesday - Oliver Darby gets out of bed, tends to chores about his place, feeds and loads one of his horses into a trailer, and drives the 50 miles to his job at the Winfield Livestock Auction.

He is on the job by 9 a.m., ready for a day of sorting and herding cattle that will keep him away from home for 11 or 12 hours. And if the run of cattle is especially heavy, it may be 11 p.m. before he gets home for supper.

It would be a hard day for any man. But for Darby to maintain this pace is amazing. He's 80 years old.

He doesn't stop there. On Thursdays and Fridays, he performs the same chores at other cattle sales. On Mondays and Wednesdays, he works for area ranchers.

"On Saturdays and Sundays, I rest," Darby admits. "I take care of my two horses and then spend most of the weekend resting in my old easy chair."

He has two horses so that each may get a day's rest between days of work - a luxury he doesn't share.

"As long as I can make a hand, I'm going to work," he explains. "Horses and cattle is all I know."

Darby was born in 1898 near Gentry, Mo., but soon moved with his family to Woodward County, Okla.

"I made my own way since I was 7 years old," Darby says. He attended country school "for about six or seven grades."

He lived in a bunkhouse at the Oklahoma-based ranch where he was to work for 40 years. Two or three cowhands were kept there as a steady complement, with more hands brought in when work was heavy.

Cowboys' pay was slim then. He recalls starting one job at 50 cents a day plus room and board.

Every ranch had a string of horses in those days; 50 or 75 was not an unusual number.

"We broke our own horses," Darby says. "I never got one that I couldn't manage to ride, and we had all kinds."

"I've been bucked off a lot, but never hurt bad. Any man who ever rode much got bucked off."

Roping cattle was dangerous but necessary to doctor the stock. If the lariat broke while roping a stubborn animal, you'd often wind up on the ground, he adds.

Darby's only serious injury happened around 1935 when he was stretching fence wire. The stretcher broke, twisting and fracturing his ankle.

He called to his wife, who was within hearing distance. She brought a car and took him to the doctor. "He put a cast on it and I rested for three days, then rode the rest of the summer with my foot out of the stirrup," says Darby.

What about the dangers of his work at auctions, where up to 2,000 cattle may be worked each sale day?

"We get some fighting cattle," he responds. "Some are just mean. When a bull gets excited, he wants to fight."

"About two years ago, a big Brahma bull got his head between my horse's hind legs and turned him onto his head, with only his front feet on the ground. I got out of that when the bull stopped."

Although he has been drawing Social Security for several years, the veteran cowboy can still read a brand on a steer from astride his horse. He wears glasses only to read fine print.

"I'm awful lucky, as I feel pretty good all of the time," he says.

Darby lives with his third wife, Rilla. He fathered four children with his second wife, who died seven years ago. His two daughters have given him five grandchildren.

But the memory of his sons brings a note of sadness to his soft voice, as he says, "My two boys were both killed in action in World War II with the Marines - George at Guadalcanal and Howard at Tarawa. ... A man never really gets over something like that."

So, Darby lives the life he has always led - working with horses and cattle. In addition to his several jobs, he buys green horses, breaks and sells them for as much as $1,200.

In his leisure hours, Darby enjoys television - "especially Western shows."

"Western music is still my kind of music," he adds. "I used to sing a lot myself. I still sing to my horse - he can't help himself."

by bernice bede osol

A busier year than usual is the offering. You might even take several small pleasure trips which could pop up quite suddenly. Keep a suitcase handy.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Find a few choice friends to spend the day with. You are in a communicative mood and will grow quite restless if you don't have an outlet. Learn more about yourself by sending for your new copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail $1 for each of Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) This could be a lazy, quiet Sunday for you. You might enjoy spending your time developing a money-saving project, or just shopping by yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your peer group will recognize you are a leader today. They'll be looking to you to plan and organize the events of the day.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Factors that might not be granted to others will be given to you today. Chances are they'll be offered without your asking.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Things will work out to your satisfaction today if you put to work your keen imagination. Don't be afraid to test bold, new ideas.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your standing is extremely high today because of the good deeds you are always spreading around. A few pats on the back will come your way.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A situation that was discordant will be brought back into harmony by you today. The end result will please all concerned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Expend your efforts to help out where needed today. People will welcome your help and make certain you receive due recognition and praise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This should be a day much to your liking. You'll be able to share it with several close friends who know how have good time.

Fierce struggle may begin over oil supplies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saudi Arabia's oil production will fall far short of worldwide demand by the late 1980s, touching off the potential for "a fierce political and economic struggle" among consuming nations, a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee said Saturday.

The subcommittee's report said that while Saudi Arabia has more oil reserves than any other nation, previous optimistic forecasts of its ability and willingness to produce as much oil as is needed should be discarded.

Unless the United States and other industrialized importers of oil sharply revise their energy policies, there will be "adverse implications for the lives of people everywhere," the report said.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, said the report's findings demonstrate that "it would be imprudent for the United States to rely on Saudi Arabia to increase its oil production capacity ... to bail us out of our long-term energy dilemma."

Church said the study was not intended to influence how much oil the Saudi Arabian government sells to the United States, despite the report's generally gloomy findings.

Nonetheless, the report said, there is risk of major international conflict unless demand for oil is somehow reduced.

By 1990, it said, "The consuming nations could begin a fierce political and economic struggle for scarce supplies, straining relations between Western allies and between richer and poorer nations."

The report estimated current Saudi oil reserves at 177.6 billion barrels, one-quarter of the world's total.

Several years ago, the Saudi Arabian government believed it could produce 20 million barrels daily through the end of the century, the report noted.

As late as 1977, it was estimated that production could be sustained at 16 million barrels daily, it said.

Now, the report concluded, the Saudis probably will limit production to about 12 million barrels daily starting in the early 1980s.

Even at that rate, reserves would begin to run out in 15 years to 20 years, it said. At the 16 million-barrel daily rate, the Saudis will begin to run out of oil in about seven years, the report said.

It said Saudi Arabian officials have clamped tight limits on how much oil they will permit Aramco to take from the fields.

Currently, production is running at 9.5 million barrels daily. And although the level of Saudi Arabian production is still rising, demand for oil in the United States, Europe and Japan is going up at a faster rate, the study said.

And it noted that the CIA has estimated worldwide demand for Saudi oil by 1985 will run between 19 million and 23 million barrels daily.

Amin continues to elude pursuing Tanzanian troops

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Rotting corpses and papers from secret files littered the grounds of Idi Amin's terror chambers at the State Research Bureau Saturday. Victorious soldiers helped Kampala residents loot shops and raid state warehouses.

Amin continued to elude pursuing Tanzanian and Ugandan exile troops.

Inside the Research Bureau, where Amin held together his brutal eight-year-reign with torture and murders, invaders found rotting bodies, prisoners shot this week by Amin's fleeing security agents.

Records of forced confessions and lists of inmates to be paid off fluttered across the parking lot of the three-story, pink stucco building that stands among flowering trees, stately buildings and tranquil streets on Nakasero Hill. Amin's lodge is next door.

Hussein Mayambala, a 30-year-old technician, was one of the few who survived a stay in the Research Bureau's basement cells.

"I was taken in August 1976 and accused of plotting against Amin," he said. "They were right, but they never could make me talk."

"I spent two months seven feet underground in a cell without light or toilet. I was tied up and fed a piece of potato and a half glass of water every day."

"They forced me to sit naked

Silkwood case may be in limbo

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Lawyers for the Karen Silkwood estate may have to wait a month before getting a ruling on their attempt to up the ante significantly in the $11.5 million Silkwood plutonium negligence case.

In an oral motion Friday before U.S. District Judge Frank G. Theis of Wichita, Kan., Silkwood lawyer Gerry Spence said he believes the Kerr-McGee Corp. lied to its nuclear fuel plant employees about the cancer risks of plutonium radiation. He asked Theis to increase the total damages being sought in the case to $71.5 million.

The judge said he probably won't rule until just before the case goes to the jury late this month or early in May. Kerr-McGee said it will oppose the motion.

On Tuesday, Silkwood lawyers filed an appeal brief with the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in an attempt to get two dismissed civil rights counts of their lawsuit reinstated. The counts named more than 20 Kerr-McGee officers and employees, four FBI agents, and a Nashville, Tenn., journalist as defendants. The Silkwood estate claims the defendants conspired to violate Miss Silkwood's constitutional rights.

Jurors in the negligence portion of the case didn't hear any witnesses Friday. The judge and lawyers spent most of their time in chambers in an evidentiary hearing concerning the upcoming testimony of the Commission investigator Gerald Phillip.

Silkwood attorneys hope to limit the scope of Phillip's testimony to the facts in the then-Atomic Energy Commission report of the contamination of Miss Silkwood and her Edmond, Okla., apartment.

This took the matter under advisement and is to meet with the lawyers for both sides before the trial resumes Monday morning.

Kerr-McGee finished with its first defense witness Monday, and presented two more before the close of testimony Thursday afternoon.

A certified health physicist formerly employed by the company, Al Valentine, 39, of Los Alamos, N.M., testified he wrote a health training manual he believes adequately informed the workers of plutonium's dangers.

He also said the defense's first witness, Wayne Norwood, 51, of Oklahoma City, is one of the most competent health and safety workers in the nuclear industry. Norwood is stand-by manager of Kerr-McGee's nuclear fuel plant and was its health and safety manager when Miss Silkwood was killed in a 1974 auto crash a week after becoming contaminated with plutonium.

One of the designers of the plant, William Utnege, 50, of Oklahoma City, testified the facility isn't tornado-proof, but its storage vault is. He also said if 110 pounds of plutonium was picked up in a tornado funnel and carried to 99,000 feet it would be so widely dispersed in the atmosphere it wouldn't cause significant danger to the public.

We're unveiling the first Chevy of the '80s on April 19TH

Citation. It's a whole new kind of car. The first Chevy with front-wheel drive and transverse-mounted engine. Contemporary styling in a sporty package that takes up less than 3/4 of a parking space, yet carries five adults in comfort. It's the most thoroughly tested new car in Chevy history. And it'll be here for you to see and test drive April 19th.

TYPICAL JOB DUTIES ARE: ASSISTING WITH OVERHAULS OF LARGE INTERNAL COMBUSTION GAS COMPRESSOR ENGINES, MAINTENANCE OF VESSELS AND TOWERS, ALL PHASES OF PIPELINE REPAIR, AND SOME ROTATING SHIFT WORK RELIEVING REGULAR OPERATING CREW DURING VACATIONS OR ILLNESS, ETC.

NORTHERN NATURAL GAS COMPANY IS A MAJOR DIVERSIFIED ENERGY COMPANY OFFERING AN ATTRACTIVE SALARY AND AN EXCELLENT EMPLOYEE BENEFIT PROGRAM.

EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER M-F

HOW MAINTENANCE PERSONNEL CAN MAKE UP TO 40% MORE MONEY.

Read how maintenance engineers and craftsmen can cash in on their much-needed technical skills.

You need a B.S. degree in engineering. Depending on the amount of responsibility involved, the minimum requirement of related experience is 2 years.

Turbine Maintenance Engineers.
Heavy experience is needed in the major maintenance of large industrial gas turbines and their controls. You will mechanically evaluate turbine components during overhauls and forecast components required in future overhauls. You should be able to evaluate engine performance and estimate the timing and extent of future overhauls. You need a B.S. degree in engineering with a minimum of 5 years' experience on large industrial gas turbines (over 20,000 HP) and either generator or mechanical drive engines.

Rotating Equipment Specialists.
You will provide consultation services on general rotating equipment problems with emphasis on large electric motors, steam and gas expansion turbines and process pumps. You will advise on equipment specifications and selections and prepare and maintain engineering standards on rotating machinery and ancillary equipment. You will give job direction to craft personnel. A B.S. in engineering with a minimum of 5 years' experience is required.

Mechanist Technician.
You will maintain a wide variety of U.S., European, and Japanese manufactured mechanical equipment, such as pumps, through valves, suction and blower systems, compressors, turbines, hoists, seals and bearings. You will also install, troubleshoot, repair and modify all such equipment and assume complete responsibility for maintenance of all mechanical equipment in a geographic area. Jobs are performed with a minimum of supervision. A high school education is required, plus completion of a trade school course in machinery maintenance. Also a minimum of 5 years' experience in the maintenance and repair of mechanical equipment is required.

Electrical Technician.
This job covers all the company's electrical equipment, motors, and systems and control devices located in Saudi Arabia, plus installation, troubleshooting, repair and modification of this equipment. You will maintain all electrical equipment in a geographic area and work with a minimum of supervision. A high school education or its equivalent is required, plus completion of a trade school course in electrical maintenance. You must have at least 5 years' experience in electrical construction and maintenance, part of which should have been troubleshooting and repairing power systems and control circuits.

Electronic Instrument Technicians.
You will maintain all electronic equipment in the company's operations except for that maintained by the Communications Division. This includes systems used for indicating, recording, controlling and telemetering such process variables as temperature, pressure, flow, level, conductivity and pH. Examples are Varc Tank gauging systems, on-stream gas analyzers, in-line automatic product blenders, electronic shutdown devices, boiler control systems, plus a variety of Medical, Marine, and Inspection Department equipment ranging from electrocardiographs to depth recorders and bearing analyzers. You will also use and maintain electronic test equipment. You will often work independently in remote areas with minimum supervision. A high school education is required, with at least an additional 3 years' technical school training in specialized electronic equipment. You need a minimum of 5 years' experience in the maintenance and repair of a variety of electronic equipment.

Call us toll free.
If you would like to know more about what we can offer you, call toll free, 1-800-231-7577, ext. 4177. In Texas, call collect, 713-651-4177. If you prefer, send your resume in confidence to Dept. PN0415A, 1100 Milam Building, Houston, Texas 77002. No obligation, of course.

FOR THE SELLER
It's easier and quicker.
As soon as your home is listed with one firm, facts are distributed to each of the participating MLS firms.

Then ALL of the firms work to sell your home or property instead of just one.
This means you have over 100 Sales-people working to sell your home or property.

FOR THE HOME BUYER
You save Time & Energy by stopping at only one firm to find the home you want...

We have an up-to-date file on all the homes listed by the MLS Realtor Member Firms, with complete information, number of rooms, size of lot, price, etc.

You save Time because within minutes you can find the homes you'd like to see.

And, you save money because your MLS Representative can help you arrange the very best financing.

Auditors to examine books from NTSU

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State auditors will examine records turned over to a House investigating committee in a probe of alleged funds mishandling at North Texas State University, says Speaker Bill Clayton.

"We'll really have to have an auditor look at it before we can go much farther," Clayton said of a House General Investigating Committee probe.

The committee is looking into allegations that checks made out to the university were altered and deposited into accounts of the NTSU Education Foundation Inc.

C.C. "Jitter" Nolen resigned Thursday as university president, just hours before testifying to the committee in closed session.

James A. Reid, foundation executive director, also appeared and brought records previously denied to state auditors.

Reid has said the checks were altered with the donors' permission. However, university acting president John Carter disputes that.

In a 9½-hour closed session, the committee heard from Nolen, Reid, Jane G. Smith, university vice president for student affairs; and Regent E.E. Stuessy of Austin.

"They found from the testimony that they'll want to talk to several more people," Clayton said.

Chairman Richard Slack, D-Pecos, did not set another committee meeting date before members went home for Easter weekend.

Easter reminder of past mistakes

The bells ring out. The organs roll. Bright robes adorn the processions. And the glad news resounds, "Christ is risen!" That's the exultant note of Easter this Sunday morning, the fanfare of joy and confidence heralded by Christians around the world.

It was a public affair, back when it first began, too. "This thing was not done in a corner," the apostle Paul declares in Acts 26:26.

It happened in the midst of high-level and official concern, and even the authorities knew of it after a shaken squad of soldiers assigned by the governor, Pilate, to guard the tomb reported it empty.

Bewildered, unable to explain it, they "told the chief priests all that had taken place." Matthew 28:11 relates, and also cites the agitated official collusion to try to cover up the occurrence.

None of those directly involved had expected it to happen, not even the closest friends of Jesus, and they doubted it for some time even after it happened, the records say.

"It seemed to them an idle tale," Luke 24:11 says of the apostles when the women brought word of the empty tomb. The apostles "did not believe them."

It seemed too incredible, wild, impossible to those hard-headed realists, just as it often seems today. They hadn't counted on it, hadn't put themselves in a psychic mood to imagine it. They wouldn't accept it — not until confronted by the resurrected Jesus himself.

The evidence of the event "is just as reliable as that we possess about any other important ancient event," says the Rev. Dr. Carl F. H. Henry of Arlington, Va., and in many ways more so.

It "comes from qualified witnesses who did not expect Jesus' resurrection and whose lives and mission were completely changed" because of it, he says in a sermon for a sunrise service on the mall in Fredericksburg, Va.

The testimony comes also from Jesus' enemies — from the Sanhedrin, for example, that put a round-the-clock military guard at the burial place, only to have to confess that the tomb was indeed empty.

"It comes too from Saul of Tarsus, the officially appointed investigator and death-dealing persecutor of Christians."

Original Recipe

IT'S STILL A SECRET

It took the Colonel many years to perfect his secret recipe for Kentucky Fried Chicken. And it's still a secret!

But there are some clues. The Colonel uses only fresh, Grade A Chicken. He seasons it with his special blend of eleven herbs and spices and then pressure fries it to seal in all the flavor.

The result, "finger lickin' good" Kentucky Fried Chicken Original Recipe. That's no secret.

It's nice to feel so good about a meal.
