

Floods cripple southern Texas

By The Associated Press

Floodwaters from torrential rains struck the Houston and Beaumont areas late Thursday, forcing some evacuations stranding motorists and flooding many homes and businesses.

Harris County Civil Defense officials predicted more flooding — and more evacuations — through the weekend, especially along the rain-swollen San Jacinto River east of Houston.

"We evacuated 111 persons from Bella Woods and about 100 persons from Banana Bend and Highland Shores Drive," said Harris County Civil Defense Director John Caswell. He predicted homes of more than 1,000 residents will have to be evacuated in Harris County before the week is over.

Some evacuations were under way Thursday in the Beaumont area near the Pine Island Bayou and Sour Lake and other areas near swollen river tributaries, the National Weather Service reported.

Both cities received six or more inches of rain Thursday, and Bevil Oaks north of Beaumont recorded 1.5 inches.

"All stores and businesses in downtown Beaumont were being flooded by running water up to two feet," the NWS reported just before midnight Thursday. The Red Cross set up seven shelters in Beaumont for flood refugees.

The NWS said 75 to 100 persons were stranded by deep water at Beaumont's Parkdale Mall. They were rescued early today.

The new rainstorms came one day after 800 to 1,000 residents in Conroe, 35 miles north of Houston, were evacuated from their homes after a nine-hour downpour filled streets and homes with water.

Caswell said current flooding in the Houston area would exceed that of 1973 when a record 49.8 feet of water crested the Lake Houston spillway.

"That was about five feet higher than the spillway," Caswell said. "This is going to be about six feet higher than the spillway and the extra 12 inches of water is going to affect a much larger area."

Russ Luedke, a visitor from Neesh, Wis., was en route to see a play in Houston when the car he was riding in flooded out.

"We were just sitting there and a guy in a canoe came along and gave us a ride" to a nearby church, Luedke said. "I don't know if I'll ever come back to Texas again."

At Eggs and Issues breakfast

Gasohol extolled, legislature blasted

State Sen. Bob Price, speaking at a breakfast at the Pampa Country Club, advocated longer state legislative sessions and promoted the production and consumption of "gasohol" in Texas.

The Pampa Republican said he has not yet decided his position on a separate state presidential primary, and said he has "mixed feelings" about a national constitutional convention.

Price was to have shared a program with Rep. Foster Whaley at the "Eggs and Issues" breakfast, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, but Whaley was unable to attend. Price spoke about key issues facing the legislature and then fielded questions from the audience.

"I've never seen a place that spews out so much bad legislation in such a short time," Price said of the state capital. "Quite frankly, I think it's a disgrace to the state of Texas." Calling for "full sessions" and better pay for legislators, Price said legislators don't have enough time to adequately study the bills they vote on. He said the U.S. Senate, in which he served for eight years, is more deliberate in passing legislation.

Gasohol, a fuel blended from gasoline and grain alcohol, was praised by Price as a partial solution to the energy shortage. Price has introduced three bills that would facilitate production of gasohol in Texas.

Price said experiments have shown gasohol to pollute less and get from five to seven miles more to a gallon than gasoline. Noting that alcohol can be made from corn, wheat, milo stalks and sugar cane, he said he thinks production of gasohol will cause "an agricultural revolution."

"We're idling 44 million acres that could be put into production to provide material for gasohol," Price said. Tax returns will far exceed the estimated $20 million cost to the state of investing in gasohol production, he added.

Price said he thinks a special session of the legislature will be called before the end of the year, but the timing of the session will be "related to what is passed before May" when the regular session ends.

The state blue law, which prohibits merchants from selling certain items on Sunday, is "a very bad law" and "should be done away with," Price said.

He predicted the defeat of an attempt to raise the mortgage interest rate of savings and loan institutions from 10 to 12 percent. Price said "there's not much feeling" in the Senate for the increase because of record profits earned by savings and loans during the last five years, and because the increase is considered inflationary.

Carter changes stand on shah

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration has changed its stand on the Shah of Iran settling in the United States, and is now saying privately that he can live here when U.S. relations with Iran are more stable.

But it was learned that the administration is not putting any time estimate on when Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi would be able to come to the United States.

The Shah, his wife and children have been living in the Bahamas since March 30, but Bahamian officials said at the time of his arrival that they considered his stay a "brief visit."

Since being forced from Iran on Jan. 22, the shah and an entourage that includes 30 aides, have been living in exile, stopping briefly in Egypt and Morocco before going to the Bahamas.

While the shah was in Egypt, President Carter said at a Jan. 17 press conference that it was expected he would come to the United States.

But when the forces of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini took power in Iran a few weeks later, administration officials said they were worried about mob violence against Americans living in Iran if the shah was allowed to enter the United States. They also voiced concerns about providing security for the shah.

The New York Times reported in today's editions that the Carter administration dispatched an unidentified American — a private citizen — to Morocco in late March to tell the shah he was not welcome in the United States for the time being because of the delicacy of Iranian-American relations.

Before getting the private citizen to carry the message, the newspaper said, the administration asked both former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and banker David Rockefeller to carry the same message. Both men, who are friends of the shah, angrily refused. The Times said.

A State Department spokesman refused to confirm The Times' report on Kissinger and Rockefeller.

Family letters heirloom

By EUGENE LAYCOCK
Pampa News Staff

An heirloom of family letters has left Irma Lee Sanders of 2108 N. Christy with a handful of historical tidbits to be passed on to the next generation.

Old style cursive writing on several yellow-tinted envelopes show the names of Ezra and Katherine Hayden, and the town of Sedan, Kan., below a two-cent stamp and an 1890s postage mark.

Ezra Hayden, Sanders' great-grandfather, had lived in Kansas all his life as a farmer. Mrs. Sanders taught fourth and sixth grade at Travis Elementary and is now retired.

The letters of her great-grandfather and mother, as well as a great-granduncle, have been handed down in my family, she said.

Some of the letters were sent to Ezra from the Oddfellow Lodge, of which he was a member, and dated back to 1890.

Two post office orders for 1890 and 1897 to remind someone to pick up a package or to take care of some other mail business are on top of the stack of ancient correspondence.

After rummaging through her collection, Sanders pulled out a January 1891 revised edition of the Constitution of the State and Subordinate Order Anti-Horse Thief Association. Her great-grandfather belonged to the association.

Horses were used for transportation then, she said, and stealing a horse was worse than taking a car. "They'd string you up," she added.

The vigilante business probably was not cheap then since a 1907 postcard listed the price of a hundred feet of 1 1/4-inch thick drill rope as $840 and the cost of a hundred feet of 1 1/2-inch thick as $1575.

An April 5, 1900 copy of "The Sedan

Lance," Ezra's hometown newspaper, revealed in a wedding announcement the mischief of a groom who misled his friends with several facetious dates for his betrothal.

Much of the paper is gossip and advertising, Sanders said.

The four pages of the newspaper are on one sheet of paper, folded into quarters to make four pages or eight when counting front and back. It had to be opened up like a Christmas card.

Sanders also has two receipts of city, school and township taxes for 200 acres of land.

An 1883 receipt showed a payment of $34.74 for the year, another payment for six months of 1904 was $12.82 or $25.64 for a year.

The vouchers were written in decorative cursive, instead of being typed uniformly by a computer.

So sorry

The Pampa News obviously was late today. The computer system has broken down, reversing the tide of time to the old days when journalists sat in front of the typewriter to put out stories.

Stories had to be typed out and those kept in the memory of the computer had to be re-written.

The News regrets this delay in servicing the people of Pampa and is sorry for any inconveniences it might have caused.

$3 million awarded Davis

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A state district judge awarded Priscilla Davis $3,340,818 today in a settlement of her almost five-year-old divorce spat with industrialist Cullen Davis, but ruled she must surrender the couple's $6 million mansion.

Judge Clyde Ashworth, the third presiding judge in the high-stakes divorce, ruled Mrs. Davis could keep her luxury car, horse and personal belongings but must move out of the mansion within a month.

Division of property was the only issue in the bitter proceeding delayed by Davis' 1977 Amarillo murder trial and his Houston murder-solicitation trial.

"I'm just happy to get it over with... I thought it was a fair decision," said Davis. "I am not pleased she got so much money... I didn't want to give her anything."

Ashworth said the majority of Davis' fortune was made before the couple married. He said Davis made only about $7 million during the couple's stormy 10-year marriage and ruled Mrs. Davis would receive about half of that amount.

Mrs. Davis' lawyers had argued Davis amassed about $100 million during the marriage and contended she was due $50 million, the mansion, her personal belongings and her car in any settlement.

Attorneys for Davis said she should receive $400,000 and her personal belongings. And they argued her attorneys should receive $100,000.

However, Ashworth awarded Mrs. Davis' lawyers $1.25 million.

Hospital bills paid

The Gray County Commissioners Court Friday approved payment of bills for Highland and McLean hospitals totaling $110,000.

The court met in special session to consider expenses which are still coming in from hospital bills accrued prior to the April 1 lease-purchase of the two county hospitals to Hospital Corporation of America.

The county is responsible for hospital expenses accrued through March and for payroll expenses for pay periods which straddle the lease-purchase date.

Hospital estimates show the county has about $134,000 left on general expenses prior to the leasing.

County Auditor A.C. Malone said it would probably be six months or more before all back expenses from the hospitals are collected and approved for payment. Malone said some of the statements had not been accompanied by invoices.

The commissioners court will consider approval of payroll expenditures at in regular session on May 1.

Cancer drive in progress

Local women will be scattered throughout the city to collect funds for the American Cancer Society during April, the month designated for the fight against cancer.

The American Cancer Society consists of 2 1/2 million people organized to educate Americans on how to prevent and treat cancer.

The donations collected by the local women will be used for programs of education, service, rehabilitation and research.

Some volunteers provide home care to cancer victims when they are neither financially or psychologically prepared to stay a long time in a hospital or nursing home.

The door-to-door volunteers will provide information on the seven warning signals.

1. Change in bowel or bladder habits.

2. A sore that does not heal.
3. Unusual bleeding or discharge.
4. Thickening or lump in breast or elsewhere.
5. Indigestion difficulty in swallowing.
6. Obvious change in wart or mole.
7. Naggng cough or hoarseness.

Regular checkups are also recommended as a safeguard against the disease.

The society suggests that doctors are an important source of information. Films, programs and literature will be made available to interested persons by the Cancer Society.

Cancer was the second highest cause of death in 1976. Although it is considered an adult disease the disease kills more children between the ages of 3 and 14 than any other kind of illness.

CRUSADERS, such as this woman, will visit Pampa residents to accept donations for the American Cancer Society. The drive for donations will continue to the end of April. (Pampa News Photo)

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Who's legitimate

Even the Washington crimebusters are beginning to admit that the thing we've been conditioned to fear as "organized crime" may not be all that organized - or criminal - at all.

Don't expect any slices in mega-million dollar budgets, but officials in increasing numbers are saying the hey day of stereotyped hoodlums and Main Street shoot 'em ups is at an end.

Instead, "the mob" (if one chooses to apply that label) is becoming more fragmented and turning its attention to other things, including pouring profits from illegal activities into so-called "legitimate" businesses.

Edwin Sharp, chief of the FBI's organized crime section, says you can't even recognize a Mafioso these days; he wears a nice suit, combs his hair, belongs to the country club, etc.

If you believe certain reports, there even are a few of these fellows right here in Orange County.

Organized crime always has been a product of government anyway. It arose and swelled as our "protectors" decided there were more and more things we shouldn't do.

Like gambling. It's wrong to gamble, isn't it? Unless you're in Las Vegas or Lake Tahoe or Atlantic City. Morality apparently changes as one crosses state lines. The "criminals" found out long ago that people who want to gamble will do so regardless of government decree; regardless even of inflation and other economic pressures.

And prostitution. Far from the most admirable profession, but still the oldest. Does anybody really think sex-for-pay will be eliminated? Somebody does, because they're dipping into your paycheck and using the money to arrest and try prostitutes. They even hire undercover cops to test the merchandise first...

Don't forget drugs. This still is one of the mob's major "illegitimate" businesses, and a thriving one too.

We don't choose here to debate the wisdom, of messing with your brain and body. That's up to the individual to decide. But suffice it to say a spectacularly huge number of individuals already have made their choice, providing a healthy market for various illicit substances.

Now for a real laugh: Bribery of public officials. Most taxpayers would be stunned at the amount of money the government spends to keep its own workers from being bribed.

The basic point is this: Organized criminals work for the most part to provide goods and services to people that otherwise would be denied them. The individual has the inalienable right not to partake of these goods and services, but it's wrong to use coercion to keep them from others.

In a recent interview with the Associated Press, FBI agent Sharp almost sounded like he was lamenting the changes in the "criminal" world.

We would all be so much better off (especially on payday) if Mr. Sharp would concede that the forcible removal of money from our wallets to help make us good little boys and girls is one of the least "legitimate" things imaginable.

Operation Rathole

A Justice Department official dubs a new program to encourage companies to confess their part in alleged price-fixing conspiracies "Operation Rat." Most government programs amount to "Operation Rathole."

Screaming contest

You be the judge.
Who yells the loudest?
A) Those who can't afford to buy a home and demand that the government do something to provide "low cost" housing.
B) People whose apartments are turned into condominiums.
It's probably too close to pick a winner. Both groups are sufficiently loud to garner a lot of newspaper ink and bend the ears of city councils, board of supervisors and such.

And both groups have a point. The price of new homes is terrifying and out of reach of virtually all but the affluent. (This is due mostly, we must add, to silly bureaucratic requirements and restrictive zoning, the same evils that contribute to shortages of rental units in some areas.)
We also sympathize with apartment dwellers who suddenly find themselves without a place to live.

The problem lies in the fact that the fights over apartment "conversions" are often so counterproductive.

Our hats off to government officials who are trying to make conversion a viable option to owners of apartment buildings. Here's a rare example of the bureaucrats actually doing something to maximize property rights. In some cases, though, one set of screamers wins out and a conversion request is denied.

Apartment residents often forget they're living on borrowed time in the first place, paying the rightful owner of the property for the temporary use of it.

We firmly believe that if landowners were not at all restricted as to what use they could make of their land, the free market would provide a place for everybody to live, and an affordable one too.

Behind the panic

Here we go again. A gasoline crunch looming, albeit not quite as great as the 1973 Arab embargo, and already the public opinion polls have it that Americans believe it is all a conspiracy on the part of the oil companies "to raise prices."

The masses, evidently, must have their devils, their "sinister forces," their scapegoats.

Three points to remember:
1. The oil companies consist of thousands and thousands of employees, each of whom, from the drillers to the executives, must live in the same marketplace and pay the same daily prices as everyone else. It is not in their self-interest to continue to "raise prices." Indeed, rather the reverse.
2. What has lifted prices to uncomfortable levels has been the onslaught of government controls - confused, inconsistent, punitive controls - which have had the double consequence of impeding domestic production and subsidizing the Arab cartel.

3. This week OPEC boosted its price per barrel by 9 percent. That development, partly anticipated by the oil companies, coupled with the Iranian oil cutoff, is behind the most recent upward fluctuation of pump prices. As Richard D. Erb writes in The Economist, a newsletter of the American Enterprise Institute: "While words like 'price gouging' and 'panic buying' make good headlines, it would be very unusual if the collapse of the second largest oil-exporting country in the world [Iran] did not result in higher prices."

Why exclude valid evidence

By STEVEN R. SCHLESINGER
Dr. Schlesinger is Assistant Professor of Politics at The Catholic University of America.

The police search an automobile and seize a sawed-off rifle and a box of rifle shells from the vehicle. Two passengers move to have these items excluded from their armed robbery trial because, it is claimed, they were illegally seized. The Supreme Court of the United States decides that the seizure was proper and, therefore, the items should not be excluded. This is Rakas v. Illinois, the latest (December, 1978) in a sixty-five year line of exclusionary rule cases.

What is this exclusionary rule and why have the public, lawyers, judges and even a majority of the Supreme Court been expressing increasing hostility toward it? Why have some prestigious commentators predicted that the Court will drastically modify or abolish the rule?

The Fourth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States provides a "right of the people to be secure...against unreasonable searches and seizures..." In an effort to apply and enforce that right, the Supreme Court of the United States has imposed the exclusionary rule upon federal courts since 1886 and upon state courts since 1961. The exclusionary rule is a rule of evidence which excludes, or renders inadmissible in a criminal proceeding, evidence that is illegally obtained by law enforcement officials.

It makes no difference whether the evidence was secured in a legally debatable search - one which produces close and split opinions in appellate courts - or in a blatant or willful violation of the law by the police. The fruits of all police procedures judged to be illegal by the courts or legislatures must be excluded.

Both common sense and available statistics suggest that a substantial number of otherwise guilty criminals escape likely conviction because of the application of the exclusionary rule.

Since 1965, the United States Supreme Court has held that the primary justification for the rule is its deterrent effect on police misbehavior, particularly the obtaining of evidence which, according to law, is inadmissible in a trial court. Yet all but one of the nine major studies of the rule's deterrent effectiveness concluded that the rule has little or no such effect; the author of the one study which conflicts with the others admits that he made "some errors" in his study. One of the many reasons this rule lacks deterrent effect is that police officers who commit illegal searches and seizures are rarely disciplined for their errors.

It is clear - and the proponents of the rule to some extent concede - that the rule has many costs and disadvantages not related to deterrence:

- the rule releases many otherwise guilty persons, some of whom are dangerous or violent;
- it diminishes public respect for the legal and judicial system;
- it fails to distinguish between more and less serious crimes or between willful, flagrant violations by an officer and "good-faith" errors committed in difficult circumstances;
- it often excludes the most credible kinds of evidence;
- it intensifies plea bargaining, since a questionable search may well be one of the bargaining points between prosecution and defense; and
- the rule tends to push the judiciary toward dangerously expanded notions of what is a legal search in order to admit evidence which judges are reluctant to suppress.

The possibility of deterrence, therefore, must be weighed against these costs.

If it is true that the rule lacks substantial justification, the most important practical problem is now to move away from the tyranny of the exclusionary rule as the only current remedy for any and all police search and seizure misconduct. If the rule were simply abandoned without some substitute, the police might infer, in Chief Justice Burger's phrase, that "open season" had been declared on all criminal suspects - that all constitutional restraints on search and seizure had been removed.

Successful alternatives to the rule probably would involve a combination of: police discipline imposed by an independent review board to which cases of police misconduct would be reported by victims, the general public or judges; and an improved civil court remedy for innocent victims of illegal searches and seizures.

What the Supreme Court should do is to make it clear that those states which develop acceptable substitutes will no longer be saddled with the exclusionary rule. For their part, state legislatures and Congress should enact alternative schemes along the lines I have suggested and test them in the appellate courts through cases reviewing criminal convictions. The fundamental standard for judging the acceptability of such substitutes would be the promise they offer for accomplishing the two objectives of disciplining police officers who engage in improper searches and seizures and of compensating the innocent victims of police misconduct.

Such efforts may move us closer to an effective law enforcement system and away from the irrational, capricious and sometimes downright dangerous results of the exclusionary rule. The prospect of state and federal alternatives to suppression of evidence renders the future uncertain, but such uncertainty seems to be the only way to move us away from the tyranny of the exclusionary rule.

Chinese Walls

In Peking, a wall is just a wall again. After a heady half year, the authorities have had enough of plain speaking in public. They have declared Democracy Wall off limits to the amazingly candid wall posters through which Chinese everymen let each other and a fascinated world know what they thought of the current state of affairs.

The surprising thing is not the curbing of the phenomenon, but that it was allowed to continue as long as it did. Given the opportunity of free expression, a generation reared under socialism seized it to speak out strongly for even more freedom. The shock to the leadership must have been great.

The posters clearly did serve a purpose. They provided an outlet for widespread public discontent and an opportunity for a pragmatic leadership to redress some grievances. And by establishing communication between Chinese and world public opinion, they facilitated China's rapid re-entry into the mainstream of world affairs.

The reimposition of controls on expression is regrettable, but nowhere near so regressive as the suppression of the "hundred flowers" movement in the late 1950s. Peking's Democracy Wall is expected to continue as a visible symbol of public expression, but with access to it carefully controlled.

Less easily controlled, however, will be the attitudes of millions of Chinese toward the development of their society and the performance of its leaders. The habit of critical thought, once encouraged, is not so easily turned off - or walled in.

Vouching for education

martha angle and robert walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) - In California, the birthplace of so many social and political trends, a new popular initiative is gestating which could develop into the Proposition 13 of the 1980 election.

The issue this time is not taxes but education, a subject which is becoming a sore point for growing numbers of families not just in California but all over the nation.

Sponsors of the initiative, which is still in the drafting stage, are seeking to put on the ballot a new and sophisticated version of an old idea - a school voucher system.

Under such a plan, which amounts to a GI Bill for elementary and secondary education, parents would be given a voucher by the state which they could then use to "purchase" an education for their children at the school of their choice - public, private and religious.

Although the voucher concept is simple enough, the mechanics of such a system are quite complex. No school district in the country has ever actually tried such a system although there have been several abortive attempts.

The prime movers behind the California initiative drive are John Coons and Stephen Sugarman, two law professors at the University of California at Berkeley and co-authors of a 1978 book entitled "Education by Choice: The Case for Family Control."

Unlike some earlier proponents of the voucher concept, Coons and Sugarman are by no means associated with right-wing political philosophy. Indeed, one critic of their plan calls them "liberal liberals."

Their basic argument is that parents can and should be trusted with the primary control of their children's education, and that they should be given the wherewithal necessary to choose the type of school their youngsters attend.

Coons, in a recent telephone interview, noted that California over the past few years has experienced a sizeable exodus from the public schools to private and parochial schools - a trend which is evident in other states as well.

"This is an ominous development," he said. "It means the rich are fleeing, leaving behind those who cannot afford to opt out of the public schools."

With a voucher plan, low and middle-income families would have the same opportunity as the wealthy to choose a private school instead of a public one, although private schools participating in the system would have to meet certain conditions.

Among these, Coons said, would be an open admissions policy - no child could be turned away, and if applicants conduct a lottery to fill its enrollment quota.

The California Teachers Association, a affiliate of the powerful National Education Association, is adamantly opposed to the Coons - Sugarman proposal and is gearing up to fight the initiative drive that will get under way this summer.

"We consider it a very serious threat, even though nothing's moving yet," said OTA executive secretary Ralph Flynn. "All the ingredients are there for real trouble. Attitudes are so volatile right now that every alienated group in the state might latch onto the this thing."

"Coons is convinced the public schools system is a failure, and he wants to destroy it to 'save' it," said Flynn. "I'm disturbed about the schools too, but there's a baby in that bathtub."

There are a number of arguments that can be raised against any voucher system, including cost and the constitutionality of any scheme that results, however indirectly, in public subsidies for parochial schools.

But given the climate of the times, and the widespread dissatisfaction with the public school system as it now operates, the Coons - Sugarman initiative seems virtually certain to turn into a fiercely debated political issue in the months ahead. And once again, California may be a bellwether for the nation.

An angry child

By WILLIAM STEFF

"In childhood," says the little pamphlet, "anger and sadness are very close to one another and it is important to remember that much of what an adult experiences as sadness is expressed by a child as anger."

The pamphlet, entitled "Dealing with the Angry Child," is part of the Plain Talk series published by the National Institute of Mental Health. In simple language it sums up a lot of the wisdom that psychologists, psychiatrists and especially parents have been learning, sometimes painfully, for decades.

The pamphlet is no panacea for beleaguered parents. All of us know there are no panaceas. But this edition of Plain Talk does something few publications especially federal publications, do. It gives reasonable explanations for children's anger, and, solid, specific advice on how to "manage" their child's outbursts.

First it tells us something about adults, about ourselves. It says we were led to believe, as children, that to be angry was to be bad.

Get rid of this notion, the pamphlet advises. "Our goal is not to repress or destroy angry feelings in children - or in ourselves - but to accept the feelings and to help channel and direct them to constructive ends."

Next, says the experts, parents and teachers must allow children to feel ALL their feelings. Adults should show children acceptable ways to express feelings. Adults need ideas about what may have triggered an outburst in a child. Is the anger a defense to avoid painful feelings? Is it associated with failure, low self-esteem, feeling of isolation? Is it anxiety about situations over which the child has no control?

The adult must distinguish between anger and aggression: "Anger is a temporary emotional state caused by frustration; aggression is often an attempt to hurt a person or to destroy property." So the experts address adults: "Our actions should be motivated by the need to protect and to teach, not by a desire to punish."

Plain Talk's editors, led by Hilda Fried pick up helpful ideas from two outside experts, Fritz Redl and David Wineman. Here are some of those ideas:

- Tell the child what behavior pleases you; "catch the child being good."
- Ignore inappropriate behavior that can be tolerated.
- Provide physical outlets and other alternatives at home and in school.
- Plan surroundings to make angry outbursts less likely to happen.
- Use closeness and touching. Your children are often calmed by having an adult nearby.
- Express GENUINE interest in the child's activities.
- Ease tension through humor, but don't use sarcasm or ridicule.
- Say "NO!" Explain limits clearly and enforce them.
- Build a positive self-image, so the child sees himself as a valued and valuable person.

For the parent who says his or her child is "driving me crazy," this rational pamphlet is worth reading and re-reading.

Court reporter for 31 years

Shorthand Bob Baker's forte

When Bob Baker signed up for a shorthand class at a Birmingham, Ala., high school in the early 1940s, he didn't realize he was laying the groundwork for a career as a court reporter which has spanned 31 years, including 29 in Gray County's 22rd and 31st District courts.

"I started taking shorthand in high school because, hah, there were more girls in the class," he reminisces. "I flunked it the first year. But I talked the teacher into letting me pass into the second year of her class and about the middle of the second year got interested in it."

Baker's proficiency at the ancient art set him up as court reporter for trials during his stint in the navy. After finishing his service, he took a job in the Birmingham Sheriff's Office, functioning as a deputy, bailiff, and occasional stenographer, and became interested in becoming a reporter after watching what was going on in the courtroom.

From there, he went to court reporting school in Plainview; then back to Birmingham for a short period as a court reporter.

Baker says he reported his first trial on October 1, 1948, and remembers it all too well.

"I dropped my notes," he recalls. "It was an arson case. I was writing on loose leaf paper. I was carrying the testimony over to the clerk's office and I scattered those shorthand notes all over the floor. The pages weren't numbered. I was hoping they wouldn't appeal so I wouldn't have to transcribe the notes but, sure enough, there was an appeal. Fortunately it was only 77 pages long."

While Baker recalls the incident with weary humor, he says "Every time you go into that courtroom, it's an ordeal. Nothing bad's happened to me yet, but it could any time."

Baker began as court reporter for 31st District Court in Gray County in 1961. And after 31 years of keeping courtroom drama safe for appeal and posterity, he says he wouldn't do it again — if he had it to do over. "There's just so much pressure," he says. "You have to get every word. When a news reporter is in the courtroom he's just looking for the context. I've got to get every word, because some fellow's life or liberty or thousands of dollars might be hanging on it."

They don't make court reporters like Baker anymore. The method of court reporting now taught is the stenographic typing machine, but Baker still uses shorthand, composed of about three-fourths of the Gregg system, and one-fourth of notations whose meaning is known only to Baker.

Parker pleases labor with tuition argument

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Pro-labor Sen. Carl Parker — perhaps trying to impress a gallery full of union workers — had this argument for higher tuition for foreign students.

In Houston service stations and other stores, "you can hardly buy anything if you can't speak Iranian."

Hundreds of workers applauded and cheered so loudly Gov. Bill Hobby pounded his gavel for order in the Senate gallery.

"It's fine to play to the galleries," said Sen. Tati Santiesteban, "but..."

"You don't recommend cutting out show business, do you?" quipped Parker, D-Port Arthur.

The Senate voted 23-2 to raise state college tuition for foreign students from $14 to $40 per semester hour, with Parker and other senators arguing Texas students should come first.

Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, said his bill would require foreign students to pay the same tuition as students from other states.

"I am not against foreign students but I am against subsidizing every foreign student who can get a visa to this country," said Sen. A.R. Schwartz.

Election bill spurs Senate debate

By ALAN SAYRE
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A controversial bill setting up a presidential primary in Texas elicited heated charges and countercharges Thursday between the chief supporter and opponent of the bill.

The validity of information dealing with primary dates in other states distributed by the bill's sponsor, Sen. Jack Ogg, came under fire from Sen. Ron Clower, D-Garland.

Ogg, D-Houston, countered the barrage, claiming Clower's contentions were inaccurate.

Each spoke at separate news conferences Thursday.

Clower called Ogg's information "desperation tactics" and "lies."

Ogg's measure calls for presidential primaries to be held in March 1980, the regular state primaries are in May.

Texans could vote for a Republican presidential candidate in March and participate in the regular Democratic primary in May — or vice versa.

Questioning the motives of the bill's supporters, Clower accused backers of distributing "outright falsehoods" after "earlier claims didn't hold water."

"The people are tired of being force-fed rigged election bills," he said.

Ogg termed Clower's contentions "a smokescreen" and accused the detractors of wanting "to force out those Democrats who have supported the concept of a strong all-embracing party in Texas."

Clower took aim at Ogg's claim that two-thirds of the states holding presidential primaries conduct them on different dates from their regular primaries.

Citing a Library of Congress study, Clower said 20 of 31 states conducting presidential primaries in 1980 will hold them on the same day.

But Ogg said Clower's claim was based on a 1976 study while his information was based on a recent Library of Congress study prepared for the 1980 elections.

Ogg's study also showed twice as many North Carolina voters participated in the 1976 general primary than in the state's presidential primary. Clower claimed the direct of elections in North Carolina said the turnout was lower.

A check with North Carolina election officials showed legislators "were so disappointed at the added cost and the turnout problems of the separate primaries that they voted in January 1977 to return to the same-day primary," Clower added.

He also said "self-styled independents are least likely to vote" and added that separate primaries would carry a total price tag of more than $4.7 million.

Ogg said support from Gov. Bill Clements will be the "bottom line" of the proposal's future. Ogg added he hoped to discuss the bill next week with Clements.

Saying he polls fellow senators daily, Clower claimed, "If the vote were taken today, 20 (of 31 senators) would have voted against suspending the rules (to have the bill considered)."

Ogg said the number of senators committed to approving the bill varied recently — from as few as "16 to 17" to as many as "22 to 23."

He could need as many as 21 votes to get the bill before the Senate.

ONE OF American artist Frederic Remington's most ambitious works, the bronze statue "Coming Through the Rye", which depicts a group of rowdy cowboys almost as if riding on a carousel, will be the focus of the evening when the Pampa Fine Arts Association holds its annual spring banquet Saturday night at the Pampa Country Club. The 28" statue will be reproduced as a life-size work to be exhibited at the Cowboy Hall of Fame in Oklahoma City.

Canadian man hurt in crash

CANADIAN — A Canadian man was listed in satisfactory condition Thursday morning at Hemphill County Hospital after sustaining injuries in a one-vehicle accident Wednesday night on a farm road at the edge of town.

Sam Virdon, 29, an employee of Southwestern Bell Telephone, was being held for observation of cuts and bruises sustained when his truck struck an embankment and turned over once.

Sheriff's deputies reported heavy damage to the truck.

The accident occurred about 8:30 p.m. when Virdon apparently lost control of the vehicle.

Computer service on energy offered

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service, in cooperation with the Governor's Office of Energy Resources, is offering a computer service which calculates potential savings to individual homeowners from specific home energy saving actions.

Termed the Home Energy Payback analysis, the service is offered free. The analysis estimates how different home energy conservation measures such as insulation, caulking, and storm windows will pay for themselves in lower home utility costs. Local climate, utility rates, and materials and labor costs are considered in the calculations.

Interested persons who want to receive a form for having an analysis of their homes made should call or stop by their county agricultural extension office.

The Gray County Agricultural Extension office is located in the Courthouse Annex on East Frederic Street. Phone: 665-7429.

A toll-free number is also available to help answer consumer questions on energy. The number is 1-800-252-9361.

Guerrillas kill election official
SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Black nationalist guerrillas killed an election official, burned a village and mined a truckload of voters, but nearly half of Rhodesia's black and white adults have voted in their first universal-suffrage election, and there are still two more days of balloting.
NEDERLAND, Texas (AP) — Coast Guard crews and local firefighters battled a blaze on an oil tanker today that exploded and sent crewmen jumping into the Neches River after it was struck by lightning.
 There were conflicting casualty reports. One man was presumed dead and as many as six others were reported missing by the Coast Guard. A nearby hospital treated 31 crew members for cuts and burns.
 The ship was leaking oil into the Neches River and was in danger of sinking, the Coast Guard said.
 Widespread street flooding caused by torrential rains in this upper Texas coastal port hampered rescue efforts. Lightning during a thunderstorm late Thursday touched off a series of explosions on the Sea Tiger and set the ship afire at a Sun Oil Co. dock.
 Coast Guard spokesman Dave Galgay said rescue units were searching for seven missing men, but he said surviving crewmen reported seeing one of them die in the explosions. No bodies were recovered.
 John Shaw, a Sun Oil vice president, said the lightning and explosion left most of the mid-section a mass of twisted and torn metal.
 Chief Petty Officer Robert Brown said it was not known how much of the 24,500 barrels of oil — more than 1 million gallons — still on board could be contained. Galgay said the ship's capacity is about 250,000 barrels.
 "It'll probably burn and explode right through and sink," said Galgay. "It doesn't look like it can be saved."
 Crews from five Coast Guard vessels pumped foam into a 30-foot hole on the ship's starboard side trying to contain the blaze.
 Galgay said the ship carried a Liberian register. Shaw said the ship was manned by an Italian crew and had been leased to Gulf Oil Co.
 Susan Welch, head of the intensive care unit at Park Hospital said 31 injured crew members were treated for burns and cuts. She said five remained in intensive care in stable condition, nine are in the hospital for observation and the remaining 17, including the ship's captain, had been released.
 Ambulance driver Pat Riley, one of the first to arrive on the scene, said, "I could see the men running down (the anchor rope). Some were running down and some were falling off. Men were just running off the ship."
 The Coast Guard said the first report of the explosions was received at 10:05 p.m. CST.

Dear Abby

by abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: I met this good-looking girl who waits on tables in a place near where I work. She came on like a sweet country kid who worked hard for a living and wouldn't let a guy get to first base with her, which I liked. Well, I took her home from work a couple of times, and all she'd give me was a goodnight kiss at her door. I asked her what she wanted for Easter and she gave me a list of clothes to buy and where to buy them. I went around and bought all the things she wanted, which set me back $400. After I gave her these gifts, I asked her how about driving to Palm Springs for the weekend. She said nothing doing — she wasn't "that kind" of a girl. She already wore the clothes I gave her, so what do I do now? After all, 400 bucks ain't hay.

DENNY IN PASADENA

DEAR DENNY: If it were, you'd have enough to eat all winter. Call it a $400 lesson.

DEAR ABBY: Greg and I have been married for seven years and have two children. I noticed he was rather nervous and jumpy lately, but I thought maybe he'd been putting in too much overtime at work. He finally broke down and confessed that he had been carrying on with a friend of mine. (She's also married.) I was in shock! He claims she threw herself at him and he was only human, so I should try to forgive and forget because it's all over now. I've honestly tried, but do you think I should be expected to socialize with this woman and her husband as though nothing had ever happened between her and my husband?

I told Greg I didn't care to socialize with this couple anymore and he became angry with me. In order to avoid arguments we've been going out as a foursome, but it bothers me to even look at her.

I know that Christians should forgive, and I have prayed to the Lord for my feelings to change, but I still feel the same toward her. What should I do?

UNFORGIVING CHRISTIAN

DEAR CHRISTIAN: Keep praying, but to thine own self be true. And unless you feel completely comfortable with this woman, tell Greg that you, too, are "only human," and you'd rather not be in her company. The Lord will understand.

DEAR ABBY: My girlfriend's mother lets her kids call her "Yetta," and I think that's neat. I tried calling my mother "Sheila" and nearly got hit in the head. My Mom said when kids call their parents by their first names it shows lack of respect, and there would be none of that in our house. I wonder how you feel about that, Abby.

SONIA

DEAR SONIA: I think your mother's wishes should be respected.

Polly's Pointers

by polly cramer

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — About 10 years ago we purchased a statuette in Italy and during the years it has become a dark yellow. I would like to know if anything can be done to restore the original white. I do not think this is an alabaster piece but possibly some form of limestone. — JOSEPH

DEAR JOSEPH — Even though you do not know what your bust is made of, I doubt very much if you can restore it to a true white again. I have an instruction sheet from a shop in Italy that sells such items made from alabaster and other materials and they say the majority of all figurines sold in Italy are made from a synthetic composition and are washable.

Alabaster should not be washed but rubbed with a bit of petroleum jelly or a soft white wax. Both of these are for cleaning, not restoring color, but might help a bit. Perhaps some of the readers have tried and had good luck with something we have not heard about. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — We stay in our mobile home in Florida only six months of the year and wonder if you could give us any suggestions for stopping mildew and mold during our absence. We always crack the windows and put charcoal under the couch and beds but that does not seem to help. — MRS. S.

DEAR MRS. S. — I think talking to your neighbors about what they have done might be of the most help because any solutions they have pertain to your particular area. Mildew thrives in summer, especially in sections of the country where high humidity prevails.

Leave closet doors open and drawers pulled out a bit for ventilation. Dryness and cleanliness will help prevent mildew's attack. Any mildew that forms should be removed as soon as possible and soap and a cleaning solution should do the job. This particular fungus thrives in dark damp places so it might help if a neighbor would go in ever so often and let some sunshine and warm dry air in. — POLLY

The Association of Desk & Derrick Clubs 1979 Region V Meeting is scheduled for today through Sunday at the Roswell Inn, Roswell, N.M.

Attending from the Pampa Desk & Derrick Club are Carol Cofer, Cabot Corporation; Knoxine Cotham, Chase Oil Field Service; Linda Slabaugh, Cabot Corporation; Martha Sublett, Leonard Hudson Drilling Co. Inc.; Cyndy Thompson, Magcohar; and Emily Washington, Cabot Corporation.

Speaking at the opening session will be Mr. Peyton Yates of Artesia, N.M. Mr. Yates is president of Yates Drilling Co. and is currently vice-president in New Mexico for the Independent Petroleum Association of America as well as president of the Independent Petroleum Association of New Mexico. His topic will be "The Role of the Independent Oil and Gas Producer."

Special guest speaker at the Saturday luncheon will be Mary Elizabeth Pav, president of the Association of Desk & Derrick Clubs, Baton Rouge, La. Her topic will be "Desk & Derrick — Our Affair."

On Saturday Robert O. Anderson, Chairman of the Board of Atlantic Richfield Co., will address the group. Anderson has served on the National Petroleum Council since 1951.

Among the activities planned, there will be a field trip to the Oilfield Training Center on the campus of Eastern New Mexico University, Roswell, and devotional services on Sunday morning.

FASHION AND BEAUTY TIPS

- Slip into ...
A bra-slip with underwire is a good bet for the full figure looking for one-piece lingerie.
- Magic wand
Using a new wand of mascara? Let it "stand" in the air for a couple of minutes so it doesn't go on too wet and lumpy.
- Flirt with flats
If you're disco-ing tonight, consider wearing flat shoes today so your feet aren't tired to begin with.
- Better blushed
To apply blusher to a long face, take it from the top of the cheekbone up to the temples and bleed.
- You can't hide laugh lines with foundation. Try to minimize them with sheer foundation applied with a damp sponge.
- Special sneakers
Perk up your white tennis shoes by changing their laces to a brighter color; try hot pink for fun.

Women are encouraged to seek blue collar skills

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The average woman will work half her adult life, but too many women fail to take time to train for jobs that are interesting or have a future, says Muriel Lederer, author of a number of career books.

"Women go to work and they think it's going to be temporary," she says. "If they're young, they think they'll get married and have children. If they have family responsibilities and need a new refrigerator or somebody needs an operation, they think they're going to quit after paying for them."

"But they don't quit," adds Mrs. Lederer, 49, whose latest book is "Blue-Collar Jobs for Women," a comprehensive guide on how to acquire skills and employment in that category.

Then, she continues, "they're stuck in an unskilled, unpromising, low-paying, women's ghetto-type job with no future. It's mindless work, and 20 years later they're still at it and are regretful that they let this happen."

"you still get stares and still run into some harassment on the job."

If it's an occupation where there is a job shortage and a woman gets the job because of federal legislation, she's going to have more harassment, but the better qualified she is for the work, the fewer problems she'll encounter, Mrs. Lederer says.

Among the ways to achieve the training and skills, she suggests public or private trade or vocational schools and community colleges. There are also apprenticeships and on-the-job training, and some unions have a women's program.

"Don't let inability to pay for training hold you back," she cautions. "The same government grants and loans available to kids for four-year college are available for vocational training. Where there is a shortage of workers, often the company will foot the bill."

First, you need to know what the job you are interested in entails, advises Mrs. Lederer, who has included extensive source lists in her book. "Do you know what a millwright does during an average day? If a woman is disillusioned and quits after a short time she makes it harder for the next person — the boss says 'We had a woman before and she couldn't take it,'" she explains.

April 21, 1979

Friends have always been important to you, but they will be even more so this coming year. Both opportunities and adventure will come your way through those you chum around with.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) This is an excellent day to get out socially with your pals. The more people you share the day with, the better you'll like it. Your new Astro-Graph Letter tells you with whom you best get along romantically. Send for yours by mailing $1 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You have a good friend you can depend on to help you further your interests today. His support may come from behind the scenes.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're very receptive to gaining worthwhile knowledge through personal experiences today. Things learned first-hand will be wisely used later.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You possess a knack today to fit yourself into good things that others have going for them. Happily, they won't mind your having a piece of the action.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today you can virtually write your own ticket because of your ability to get along with others. Put your charm to productive uses.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Appreciative recipients of your kindness today will try to do more in return for you than you do for them, even though this won't be your motive.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In social situations today it is very likely you'll be the center of attention. You might even win a powerful new ally.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This is a good day to wrap up projects or situations that have been hanging fire. You're a strong finisher, and gain momentum as you go along.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This evening will be a good time to get together socially with a person with whom you have an important matter to discuss. Lead up to your subject gradually.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Something nifty to enhance your security or add to your resources could develop today. Be alert. Keep all avenues open.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Plan activities today to give you opportunity to move around both mentally and physically. In fact, try to go someplace where you can see new faces.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Rather than trying to make things happen, let events unfold for you today. You tend to come out better with conditions not entirely under your control.

Jehovah's Witnesses to gather in Pampa

The weekend of April 28 and 29 will be a time of spiritual feasting for all Jehovah's Witnesses in a 3-state area as they gather in Pampa, Texas along with local delegates in the city.

Bernice Boice, spokesman for the group, said the group of local Witnesses representing Pampa look forward to the program, starting Saturday morning at 10:00 a.m. The theme of the assembly is "Keeping Clean and Zealous for Fine Works," based on Titus 2:14. Many of the local delegates will be speakers at the convention.

The opening talk of the assembly is the basis for the theme. D.N. Bennett, District overseer of U.S. District 30, which covers the state area of Oklahoma, Texas, and Arkansas, will be the speaker. The talk is the theme and dwells on the fact that Christians today face a situation much like that of Christians in the first century. They live now in an unclean world, but must live a godly and righteous life despite the bad fruitage of today's decadent "me" society.

The main talk of the convention will be "A Cleansed Earth - Will You Live to See It?" to be given at 2:00 p.m. Sunday. Mr. Bennett will deliver this talk also, with one point being stressed - that there will be soon a "new earth" of God's making as we are assured in His Word. For one to gain entry into that "new world," a "clean new earth," Christians must prepare.

that is, work at cleanness, now. To enter the "cleansed earth," one must maintain holy conduct now and cultivate positive deeds of godly devotion that will keep him close to our clean God.

Mr. Bennett was born and reared in London, England and immigrated to the U.S. in 1949. He and his wife, Vanita, have been in the full-time ministerial service since 1957. Their work in the many western states and in New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana, and Michigan has kept them very busy over the years. Bennett also held various positions in London, England.

Other subjects discussed will be local experiences concerning how "A Clean Congregation Attracts Others," conducted by Daniel Maurer, the Circuit Overseer of Texas Circuit No. 10.

The attendance of the convention is expected to exceed 1500. Held at the M.K. Brown Auditorium in Pampa, the convention will start at 9:55 a.m. Saturday. The main public address will be at 2:00 p.m. Sunday.

Jehovah's Witnesses of the Pampa area welcome all to join them at this time. Conventions held in the past at Pampa have been very enjoyable for all and appreciated by all concerned. Seats are free and there are no collections taken.

Revival set for Hobart Baptist

Hobart Baptist Church, 1100 W. Crawford, will begin revival services at 11:00 a.m. Sunday, April 22. Rev. Howard Jones, pastor of First Baptist Church, Hamlin, Texas, is the evangelist. Jason Luck, Minister of Youth and Music at Central Baptist Church, Pampa, will lead the congregational singing and provide special music. Rev. Lewis Ellis is pastor of Hobart Baptist Church.

in the Ministry thirty-eight years and has preached 200 revivals. He has pastored several churches in Texas, including First Baptist Church, Wellington, and Second Baptist Church, Amarillo. He has been at First Baptist, Hamlin since October 1, 1970. He is active in many areas of Southern Baptist life. He is a Director of Big Country Baptist Assembly at Lueders, Texas, and has just completed a six year term on the Executive Board of the Baptist General Convention of Texas. He participates in community and school activities. His wife is a teacher in the high school. Mr. Jones was elected Man of the Year for 1979 by the Hamlin Board of Community Development. He is an outstanding preacher and man of God.

Jason Luck was educated in New Mexico and taught music at Eastern New Mexico University before going into full-time ministry. He and his wife have three children. They have lived in Pampa nearly a year and a half. Jason is an excellent Music Director who loves people.

We will have lunch and a service at twelve o'clock each day, Monday through Friday. Evening services will begin at seven o'clock on Sunday and at seven-thirty Monday through Friday. A Nursery will be provided for each service.

You are cordially invited to share this week of revival with Hobart Baptist Church. The good preaching and singing and the warm fellowship will bless your life.

Religious roundup

HIGH POINT, N. C. (AP) — The pastor of the 2,867-member Green Street Baptist Church and three staff members have resigned after it adopted rules to restrict charismatic activity in the congregation.

The Rev. E.W. Price Jr., the pastor, said he was resigning with no ill will because he felt his "work had been completed" at the church. He said he was not personally involved in the charismatic movement.

The movement has spread widely in many denominations and sometimes involves glossolalia, speaking in unknown tongues. Of Pentecostal origin, it has been welcomed by many Protestant and Roman Catholic leaders as reinforcing faith, but some Southern Baptist groups have opposed it.

The Green Street church's new guidelines, drawn up by deacons, state that "our church is not a part of the charismatic movement" and that no "doctrine except that is Southern Baptist" shall be taught under church auspices.

NEW YORK (AP) — Passover, which ended Thursday, had a new twist for Jews this year.

While the holiday commemorates their ancient flight from Egypt, this time many Jews are returning to the land of the pharaohs as tourists following the new peace treaty between Israel and Egypt.

The American Jewish Congress, one of various organizations offering tours to Egypt, said 300 people have signed up for tours, the first of which is to depart April 26.

NEW YORK (AP) — Eastern Orthodox Christians celebrate Easter this Sunday, a week later than the date observed in western churches.

The timing difference results from Orthodox's adherence to a 4th century ecumenical decree by the Council of Nicaea that Easter must always be after the Jewish Passover, which did not end this year until Thursday.

A meeting of 32 of them from across the country said church members are increasingly interested in such mixed-ages events as family nights, suppers, picnics, holiday celebrations, joint vacation church school, short-term combined classes, worship, weddings and even funerals.

Religion today by the associated press

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Paid religious television shows by individual performers are driving public-service programs backed by the nation's major faiths off the air, a new study finds.

The situation, surmised in the industry for some time, was statistically documented in a study of broadcast patterns over the last 20 years on a cross-section of the country's TV outlets.

The trend "has considerably narrowed the sources and content of religious programming" in America, says the joint report by Protestant, Roman Catholic and Eastern Orthodox representatives.

It was submitted to the Federal Communications Commission, appealing for restoration of its former policy of crediting stations in seeking license renewals for carrying unpaid, sustaining programs.

Blaming abandonment of that policy in 1960 for the "marked reduction in the diversity of program service," the report cites the sharp rise in commercial religious shows and steep decline in those representing the main religious bodies of U.S. communities.

The study found that paid religious TV broadcasts have climbed from about half the total in 1959 to 90 percent now, but public-service religious programs have fallen from about half to just 8 percent.

"The paid programs are distinctly different from the sustaining programs they have replaced both in content and source," the report says, noting that none of the paid shows represent mainline Protestant, Jewish or Catholic organizations.

"Without sustaining programs, television cannot present a balanced representation of the major faiths that move the American people."

The report was prepared by communications offices of the U.S. Catholic Conference, the National Council of Churches, made up of Protestant and Orthodox denominations, and the United Church of Christ.

For example, the report cites CBS's dropping in January of two of the most honored, high-quality religious shows on network television, "Look up and Live" and "Lamp Unto My Feet."

They had been on the air for a quarter century, prepared in cooperation with major religious organizations and normally widely used on network affiliates. But their usage had fallen sharply recently, replaced by paid religious shows and finally driven out of existence.

However, in the face of widespread distress in church circles, CBS since has decided to initiate a new sustaining-time religion program on Sunday morning, "For Our Time," beginning April 29, dealing with ethics and faith.

"It's a second chance, and the churches have promised to get behind it and give it a little more support," says Pamela Hott, CBS vice president and executive producer for religious and cultural affairs programs. "Without local support, the same thing will happen."

"There's no point in working hard to produce a quality religious program unless stations carry it."

Opposing the Vote

Tomorrow Rhodesian voters — both black and white — are scheduled to elect the country's first Parliament under majority rule. But one of Rhodesia's most powerful and respected black leaders is not taking part in the election. Joshua Nkomo, who established Rhodesia's first important black nationalist organization in 1952, has spent most of the past 15 years under arrest or in exile. Today he is a leader of the Patriotic Front, which has waged a seven-year guerrilla war against the white government of Prime Minister Ian Smith.

DO YOU KNOW What is the black African name for Rhodesia?

WEDNESDAY'S ANSWER — Henry Wadsworth Longfellow wrote "Paul Revere's Ride."

Economic policy-makers claim one victory

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Besieged as they are by criticism about inflation, energy problems and other woes, economic policy-makers can claim one success in the past few years. Since the 1973-75 recession, some 10 million new jobs have been created in the United States. Last year alone, total employment rose by 36 million.

By early 1979, the percentage of working-age people drawing paychecks reached a record high of 59.4. And as of March, the unemployment rate was down to 5.7 percent, lowest in 4 1/2 years.

"Over the past four years, employment has enjoyed the strongest cyclical recovery in the postwar period," economists Carol Brock Kenney and Leslie J. Moran at the Wall Street firm of Loeb Rhoades, Hornblower & Co. noted.

But economics is not called "the dismal science" for nothing. With all those impressive statistics, the present and future employment picture is still fraught with problems and uncertainties.

There is, of course, the stubborn issue that the experts refer to as structural unemployment — the scarcity of jobs for groups such as teen-age blacks even in the best of times.

In addition, some economywatchers are warning that the high current level of employment in many key areas of business might in itself hasten the onset of a slowdown later this year.

Chicago's Continental Bank is concerned about the shortage of people to fill many skilled labor and white-collar jobs, where unemployment rates are extremely low.

"The degree of tightness in the skilled labor market is far greater than the overall unemployment rate might indicate," the bank observed in a recent report.

Labor workers protest law

By SUSAN STOLER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Apprentice ironworker Joseph Landry lost a day's pay to join thousands of other union members Thursday in a rally at the Capitol.

The Galveston man said he had a choice between losing a little money now or a lot later.

Landry and other construction union members claim that attempts to repeal the state's prevailing wage law could reduce their earnings to the federal minimum wage of $2.90 instead of $10 an hour and upwards.

"Rat contractors will be able to control union wages," said Landry, wearing a green hard hat, tee shirt and jeans.

The wage law requires contractors to pay workers the local prevailing rate on public construction projects.

Hard hats of all colors dotted the throng that converged on the Capitol to protest the bill by Sen. Bill Moore, D-Bryan.

But the rally did not stop the Senate Economic Development Committee from approving Moore's bill, 6-0. Following the vote, a union leader told the crowd which senators favored the bill.

"Boo!" the masses shouted after each name.

"You ought to remember what their faces look like," said Tom Upchurch, lawyer for the Texas Building Trades Council, AFL-CIO. He testified against the bill in committee.

Fiddler in the Senate
When Robert Byrd entered the United States Senate in 1959, he kept his fiddle in the closet, because he thought it might make people look down on him. But his fiddle helped Byrd plenty when he began running for office in his native West Virginia. He took it with him when he campaigned, and played old mountain songs after discussing his ideas with the voters. Byrd, the Senate's majority leader, is no longer embarrassed at his fiddling. Last month, he played at the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville, Tennessee. Tomorrow, he's scheduled to perform at the Greater Huntington Music Festival, back home in West Virginia.
DO YOU KNOW — Whom did Robert Byrd succeed as Senate majority leader?
THURSDAY'S ANSWER — The black African name for Rhodesia is Zimbabwe.

Chorale to present concert
The newly formed Pampa Community Chorale will present its inaugural concert, along with conductor John Woickowski in recital, this Sunday at 3 p.m. at the Pampa Middle School. The program is sponsored by the Pampa Fine Arts Association. Mr. Woickowski, a baritone, will begin the program with five selections, including Handel's "Arm, Arm Ye Brave," R. V. Williams' "The Vagabond," and "Soliloquy" from the Rogers and Hammerstein musical "Carousel."
The second half of the program will feature the new Community Chorale, which will present seven selections under the direction of Mr. Woickowski.

Policemen win big in debate

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State policemen, the Texas prison system, old persons and young jazz artists were big winners in House debate of the $20.2 billion 1980-81 state budget bill Thursday.
Debate went into its third day this morning, with Speaker Bill Clayton predicting a final vote either tonight or Saturday morning.
"I still think we can finish Friday. ... Our plans at this time are to try to finish this week," Clayton told reporters as the House adjourned Thursday night.
While the House Appropriations Committee couldn't hold off every attempt at changing its product, the net change in state revenue spending after two days of debate was about $18 million.
That would mean about $350 million left "on the table" for tax cuts or other spending — a far cry from Gov. Bill Clements' insistence on almost $1 billion for property tax relief.
Biggest change made Thursday was $6 million to increase

Texas Department of Public Safety salaries even more than the appropriations committee had recommended, plus $2 million for state policemen's overtime.
A highway patrolman who has just completed probation would get $15,000 on Sept. 1, compared with $13,692 now and $14,880 recommended by the committee. A Texas Ranger sergeant's base pay would jump from $17,244 now to $22,200.

Rep. Tip Hall, D-Denton, said that while the additional pay raises would cost $3 million a year, the DPS' annual cost of $6 million for training patrolmen to replace those who have quit.
Appropriations committee members opposed Hall's amendment, but the House refused to table it, 13-124, and approved it on a voice vote.
Rep. Craig Washington, D-Houston, tried several times to eliminate $42 million for the first phase of constructing a new $83 million state prison but was beaten each time.

Cattle for slaughter down substantially according to report

WASHINGTON (AP) — A quarterly report shows the number of cattle being fed for slaughter — the major source of most cuts of supermarket beef — is down substantially from a year ago.

The Agriculture Department said Thursday the April 1 feedlot inventory totaled 11.1 million cattle, down 6 percent from more than 11.7 million a year ago.

But officials said that, with the exception of last year, the April 1 feedlot cattle inventory was the largest since 1974.

One reason for the 6 percent drop from year-earlier inventories is that severe winter weather reduced new placements of lightweight cattle in feedlots in the first quarter of this year.

Another factor has been the high prices of feeder cattle themselves, which have tended to make many farmers and feedlot operators think hard about placing new stock on feed.

The nation's total cattle inventory is down sharply from a few years ago because producers have trimmed herds, sending them to market by the millions because of depressed prices.

In the last year, however, the reduced cattle inventory has triggered a steady rise in market prices — now at record levels — and producers are gradually beginning to rebuild their breeding herds.

Thus, with fewer cows and other "nonfed" cattle going to market, there will be less lower-grade beef for hamburger and processed foods.

More feedlot beef is coming along, but not enough to offset the decline in nonfed cattle for slaughter. That means the total U.S. beef supply this year will be down about 8 percent this spring and summer from a year ago.

Also, much more pork and poultry will be produced this year, which will help consumers, but not enough to take the steam out of record-high cattle and beef prices, according to USDA experts.

Retail beef prices are expected to rise by more than 20 percent, on the average, this year, according to the department.

In a related report, the department said the outlook for consumers in May is that the beef supply will be "adequate," which means — according to USDA definition — there will be "enough to meet normal needs" of shoppers.

But it also said beef production next month will be down 8 percent to 10 percent from a year ago and 12 percent less than the May average in 1976/78.

On the other hand, the report said pork and broilers will be "plentiful" next month. By definition, that means "more than enough for requirements."

The quarterly feedlot report covered operations in 23 major cattle-feeding states, which produce about 95 percent of the nation's beef.

Marketings of "fed" cattle in the first quarter totaled 6.77 million, just slightly less than the record volume in the first quarter of 1978.

Police buying bullet-proof cars to protect officials

By TERRY A. ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer
TOKYO (AP) — Police have begun a nationwide security check and are buying $1 million in bullet-proof cars for what they intend to be the best-protected international summit meeting ever held.

The nation's entire 200,000-man police force eventually will be involved in security for the meeting of seven heads of state in June and a state visit preceding it by President Carter, said Tomoharu Yoda, chief superintendent of the national police security division. Leaders of France, Britain, Canada, Italy, West Germany, the United States, and host Japan, will meet in Tokyo.

"We will use 25,000 police per day in Tokyo during the two-day meeting including 15,000 riot police," he said. With the guard for Carter's expected state visit before the summit, the country's entire police force will be involved.

Traffic jams will be a problem in already overcrowded Tokyo, because, Yoda said, streets will be blocked off around the state guest house, where the meetings will be held: the New Otan Hotel, where staff and reporters will be staying; at embassies if the heads of state choose to stay in them, and along the travel routes of the leaders.

Yoda said the police were considering asking people not to drive their cars during the summit, especially in the busy Akasaka area where the meeting is to be held.

He said police expect "many demonstrations" by leftists and other radical students. Demonstrations will not be allowed at the conference site or along the travel routes, he said, but permits apparently will be issued for other areas.

"The radical leftists were able to gather 6,000 to 10,000 people at Narita (the new international airport north of Tokyo, subject of violent opposition over the past few years). We expect many more in Tokyo, which is more convenient," Yoda said.

Many of the leftists are not united, he said, so they are more likely to stage many small demonstrations than one large one.

Yoda said the possibility of problems from organized terrorist groups was "remote," but international police organizations and other countries are cooperating in checking on such groups. He said stringent precautions are being taken to keep known terrorists out of Japan.

The 4,000 journalists expected to cover the summit are being screened carefully but "discreetly," Yoda said. Police are handling press credentials for the 3,000 Japanese journalists expected, and embassies of the countries involved are issuing credentials "under severe checks" to their own journalists. Police and the foreign ministry are taking care of the rest.

Seven bulletproof limousines are being ordered from the United States at a cost of nearly $1 million, Yoda said.

A nationwide apartment check is being done through neighborhood police "boxes." In Japan, each neighborhood has one of these tiny police stations, and their officers will have to vouch for the residents of every apartment in their area. Those they are not sure of will be searched by police, Yoda said.

Only apartments are being checked, not homes. Officials indicated this was because apartment dwellers were more transient.

Japanese police are also worried about the bane of many other security forces — the single insane or enraged person with a gun who attacks, with little regard for his own safety.

"Guns are illegal in Japan," Yoda said. The few hunting weapons allowed are under strong controls, and even gangsters here are unable to obtain more than a few weapons.

As usual, one of the security forces' biggest problems will be controlling the people they are supposed to protect. Yoda said former Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda snarled his own security arrangements with an unscheduled walk at the Bonn summit, and he noted that President Carter is known for his penchant for unexpected strolls.

"If the leaders follow the schedule, there will be no problems," Yoda said.

Retrial delayed

By ROB WOOD
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP)—The retrial of Ignacio Cuevas, accused of causing the death of a hostage during a 1974 prison break, was delayed until Monday when defense attorneys asked for more time to find three missing witnesses.

Defense lawyer Will Gray said the three witnesses were inmate hostages during an 11-day siege at a Texas State Prison and since that bloody episode have been paroled.

"We haven't been able to find them," Gray said, "but we have a private investigator looking for them and we are sure we can have them here by Monday."

State District Judge Miron Love said he would grant a recess until next week but warned Gray, "This will be the only delay. I expect you to have your witnesses here by then."

Gray has called four witnesses thus far and said he had eight more he wanted to take the stand.

In the first Cuevas trial, four years ago, Gray didn't call a witness.

Cuevas was convicted then and sentenced to die. After three years on death row, Cuevas was granted a new trial by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

Company gives safety awards

SKELLYTOWN — Northern Natural Gas Company's Liberal Area Office here recognized three of its employees for their safety achievements at a recent special awards banquet.

Some 57 employees from the company's area and district offices received the award, which designates a number of years of service without a disabling injury.

Skellytown District recipients were A.J. Kelly Jr. with a 30-year record, A.U. Shackelford and Levie Harris with 25 years of unimpeded service.

UT recruits big men

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — After three seasons without a "big man" on his Texas Longhorn basketball squad, Coach Abe Lemons has recruited two — 7-foot-1 Steve Frederick and 6-10 LaSalle Thompson — and he's being asked if he knows him to coach tall players.

"I imagine it will come back to me, but I could buy a book on how to coach a big guy. It gives you the rules," joked Lemons.

Stand him close to the goal. That's No. 1.

No. 2 is have him hold his hands up.

No. 3, throw the ball to him.

No. 4 is move left and shoot or move right and shoot.

No. 5 is rebound. When they get the rebound, a lot of times that will lead to a fast break.

They can block shots. I think they're allowed to do that, too.

Philadelphia seeks winning combination

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The Philadelphia 76ers, down 2-0 in their best-of-seven playoff series against the San Antonio Spurs, have decided to stop worrying about George Gervin and start concentrating on Larry Kenon.

The Sixers will assign Bobby Jones, their 6-foot-9 defensive ace, to stop Kenon when the teams meet at the Spectrum in Philadelphia tonight in the third game of their National Basketball Association playoff series.

"We have to put our best defensive player on Kenon," explained Jack McMahon, assistant coach of the Sixers. "He's playing the best basketball of his life."

The next two games depend on the Jones-Kenon matchup.

The three other NBA second-round playoff series also resume tonight with the Washington Bullets at Atlanta, Phoenix Suns at Kansas City and Seattle SuperSonics at Los Angeles.

The Sixers expect Gervin, the NBA scoring champion the last two years, to get his points — and he has, scoring 60 in the two games played thus far and making 25 of 37 shots. But Kenon has scored 57 points, and

New Pampa cage coach optimistic

By JERRY GUNTER
Pampa News Sports Editor

If the Pampa High basketball team is half as optimistic about the season next winter as new coach Garland Nichols is, then opponents had better be on guard.

Nichols, who will take over the reins as head cage coach April 30, appears to be very excited about the future of Harvester basketball.

"I am glad that I have the opportunity to take over April 30," said Nichols, who comes to Pampa after a two-year stint at Rush Springs, Okla., "because that way it gives me a little time to spend with the kids. After that I can find out what we really want to do."

"It's not easy going into a new place because you really don't know what to expect. But I do know that our goal will be to win district," added the new Pampa mentor.

Prior to the two year stay at Rush Springs, Nichols coached at Petrolia, a Class A school in Texas. His Petrolia team won the district title each year from 1971 through 1976 and captured the regional titles from 1972 through 1974.

When asked what prompted him to take the Pampa job, Nichols said, "the basketball tradition, the program and the people involved. I had considered another AAAA school before I took the Pampa job, but Pampa was so impressive because they want a good program in all sports."

He continued by saying, "I believe that this is one of the top basketball jobs in Texas. The tradition is impressive here and I believe that all of the programs are in the upspring. We have to establish that Pampa pride that will carry on our winning ways."

Nichols talked about his coaching philosophy saying, "My philosophy is to try to win. It is not that easy to say exactly what your team will do or not do. That is something which you have to sit down and evaluate."

"One year at Petrolia, my tallest player was 6-1, so we had to concentrate on running. Looking at the Pampa kids, I would say that we probably would have to apply a lot of pressure. We will want to press. And we won't mind running if we get the opportunity," pointed out Nichols.

Nichols said that he did not see a major difference between coaching a large school like Pampa after being used to coaching at smaller schools.

"I really don't see that much difference," noted the new Pampa coach. "The objective is still to put the ball through the hoop. The biggest advantage to a larger school would be that you have more kids to work with. But I think that a key point in being successful is to get your program well established in the junior highs. I plan to work some with the junior highs - not to coach them - just to oversee them."

Basketball in Oklahoma, as compared to that in the Lone Star state, is very similar according to Nichols.

"There are a lot of similarities. In Oklahoma, they really do push basketball, though they don't have the number of kids per school that Texas does. I have really been impressed with Oklahoma's style of basketball, but I would say that it is comparable to that in Texas."

So, now Nichols awaits his chance to put the Harvesters back at the top of the standings in District 3-AAAA next year. If he is as successful with Pampa High as he has been at his previous jobs, then next winter should be an exciting time for cage fans in the city.

Weather plagues World Tennis Championship

HOUSTON (AP) — The weather-plagued $175,000 World Championship Tennis tournament at Ruge Oaks Country Club is beginning to read like a long-run soap opera.

Each match is being played on a "to be continued" basis.

Will second seeded Roscoe Tanner of the U.S. and Adriano Panatta of Italy finally complete their second round match after being rained out for two consecutive days?

Will tournament director Harry Parten maintain his sanity while trying to reschedule matches and complete the tournament on Sunday as scheduled?

Tune in again today when Parten tries to squeeze in as many matches as possible on the club's water-logged clay courts.

In Thursday's episode, three matches that had been rained out on Wednesday were completed.

Third seeded Eddie Dibbs of the U.S. finally wore down Eliot Teltscher of the U.S. 7-6, 4-6, 6-2. Ricardo Ycaza, Ecuador, beat Pat DuPre, U.S. 7-6, 4-6, 7-6 and Hans Gildemeister, Chile, defeated eighth seeded John Alexander, Australia, 6-4, 6-0.

In the only match started and completed on Thursday, Jose

Higuera, Spain, defeated Paolo Bertolucci, Italy, 6-0, 6-3.

But Tanner and Panatta suffered the most. They weren't able to finish even one set before the rain set in again, raining them out for the second straight day.

Tanner won the first set 7-5 on Wednesday and Panatta was leading 5-4 in the second set Thursday when play again was suspended.

"It's really tough to stop a match and then continue it the next day," said Dibbs, who completed his match with Teltscher in an intermittent drizzle. "You're all psyched up to play him one day and then you lose your momentum."

Teltscher took advantage of Dibbs' early lack of concentration and won the first set. Dibbs broke Teltscher in the eighth game but Teltscher broke back in the ninth game to keep up the pressure.

Gildemeister completely dazed Alexander in the second set, winning the match with an ace at the first match point.

Dibbs got his game together in the third set however, broke his young opponent in the sixth and eighth games, and advanced to the quarter-finals against Higuera.

"I started hitting better approach shots in the third set and got the early break and that was the difference," Dibbs said.

Cager awed by talent at Pan Am games

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Isiah Thomas was one of the nation's most heavily recruited high school players this spring, but he's awed by the talent at the Pan American Games basketball tryouts.

"I didn't realize it was going to be so big," he said of the week-long competition at Indiana University. "Most everybody here is some kind of All-American who really doesn't have to prove anything. I didn't know there'd be a Darrell Griffith (of Louisville) here dunking the ball over my head. It feels good."

The 6-foot-1 guard from Chicago is one of just two high school players among the nearly 70 trying out for the 12 spots on the U.S. team in the Pan Am Games in Puerto Rico in July. The other high schooler is 7-4 Ralph Sampson of Harrisonburg, Va.

"All I know is I'm gonna have to work as hard as I can to make this team," said Thomas, who will return to Bloomington next fall as a freshman for Bobby Knight's Hoosiers.

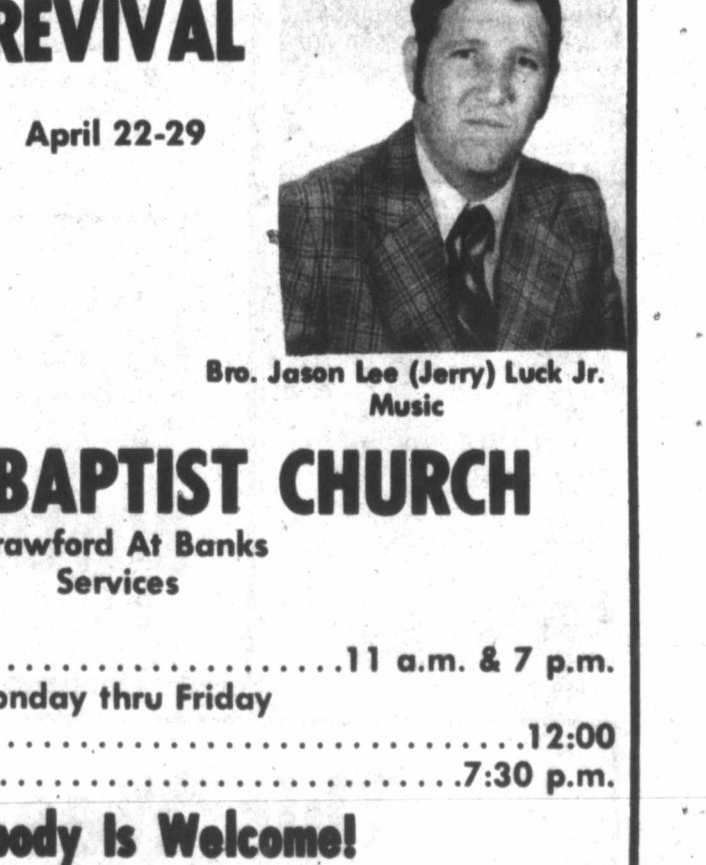

Knight, who will coach the U.S. Pan American team, has three of his own players in the trials — juniors Mike Woodson and Butch Carter and sophomore Ray Tolbert. The Indiana coach won't have a vote in the team selection, although his influence obviously will be important.

"Bobby is going to tell us the kind of team he's looking for and that's what we'll strive for," said North Carolina Coach Dean Smith, who heads a 13-member selection committee.

Some of the other top players in camp include Duke's Mike Gminski, Mike O'Koren of North Carolina, Kelly Tripucka of Notre Dame, Kyle Macy of Kentucky, Mark Aguirre of DePaul and Carl Nicks of Indiana State. The players have been divided into teams. Each team will play two games a day through Saturday.

The selection will be made late Sunday or early Monday, Knight said.

Major League baseball roundup

Red Sox 5, Brewers 3
George Scott belted a pair of doubles to drive in two runs, and rookie right-hander Chuck Rainey spaced four hits in 7-2-3 innings for his major league victory to help Boston whip Milwaukee.

Rainey needed relief help from Dick Drago after the Brewers scored their third run in the eighth on a double by Paul Molitor and Cecil Cooper's two-out single. Cooper drove in two runs with a homer in the first.

All five Boston runs were unearned on errors by Milwaukee shortstop Robin Yount and first baseman Cooper.

Orioles 6, Yankees 3
Jim Palmer, 2-1, gave up all of New York's runs in the first two innings on five hits, then settled down to handcuff the Yankees on three hits the rest of the way.

Ken Singleton tied the game with a two-run, single in the third, and he scored the go-ahead run in the fifth on Lee May's single as Baltimore snapped a six-game losing streak. The Yankees, meanwhile, saw a four-game winning skein broken.

It was to have been a classic pitching duel. Two Cy Young award winners... the kind of matchup usually reserved for opening day or Game 1 of the World Series.

Gaylord Perry vs. Vida Blue. The situation began to deteriorate quickly, however.

The 40-year-old Perry came up with a bad back minutes before game time, and the San Diego Padres' 1978 Cy Young winner checked out of the starting lineup.

Blue, who won the Cy Young in 1971 with Oakland, didn't come up with a bad back, but then he didn't come up with much of a performance, either. He yielded 11 hits, nine earned runs and left after the eighth for a pinch hitter. Still, he was credited with the win as San Francisco defeated the Padres 14-10 Thursday afternoon.

Cy Young's name also came up in a different context. Mickey Lolich, who replaced Perry on the mound, tied Young with 2,818 career strikeouts when he fanned Dave Winfield in the third. That mark is fifth on the all-time list.

There was little consolation in that strikeout, however. Lolich left in the third inning, when Sa Francisco scored five runs, capped by catcher Marc Hill's three-run homer. Hill had four RBI in the game, as did the Giants' Terry Whitfield, who extended his hitting streak to eight games.

Despite yielding a three-run homer to Fernando Gonzalez and Gene Richard's three-run double, Blue came within one inning of his fourth consecutive complete game. The left-hander is now 4-0.

In the only other National League games Thursday, the Chicago Cubs edged St. Louis 3-2, and Cincinnati blanked Atlanta 2-0.

Cubs 3, Cards 2
Chicago right-hander Dennis Lamp scattered six hits over seven innings in his first start of the season — yielding St. Louis' runs on Lou Brock's RBI single and a fielder's choice grounder. Relief ace Bruce Sutter worked the final two innings for his second save.

Ivan DeJesus homered for the Cubs, and Chicago scored two more runs on an error by Brock in left field in the second inning and third baseman Ken Reitz' throwing error in the Ladies golf scores

The Pampa Ladies Golf Association recently held two rounds of golf competition at the Pampa Country Club with Class A, Class B and Class C divisions competing.

In the action played on May 5, the ladies played for the low net and low gross honors in all three classes.

In the Class A competition, the winner of the low gross was Charlotte League with a score of 41. There was a tie for the win in the low net competition between two golfers. Both Nita Hill and Paulette Reed tied for top honors with identical scores of 35.

Joyce Barrett was the victor in Class B in the low gross. She won with a score of 45. In the low net, the winner was Mary Fain. She took top honors with a final score of 35.

In the Class C division,

Lyle may face Yankees

An AP Sports Analysis By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent NEW YORK (AP) — Sparky Lyle, the newest literary rage, was around town Thursday, appearing in book stores, signing his name on the flyleaves of his controversial best-seller and holding press conferences.

Tonight, he has to go back to work in the bullpen, possibly facing for the first time as a Texas Ranger his old New York teammates whom he unfrocked in his first-person expose, "The Bronx Zoo."

The flighty left-hander, Cy Young winner in 1977 and frustrated bench-sitter in 1978, was asked if he had sent advance copies to his former buddies over in the other locker room.

"Now, I don't want to rub salt in old wounds," he said. "If they want to read the book, they can buy it."

The book is advertised as an "astonishing inside look at the World Champion New York Yankees and their coast-to-coast rivals." It's a kiss-and-tell book. Critics refer to it as a sequel to Jim Bouton's "Ball Four" which a decade ago took readers into the private lives of such heroes as Mickey Mantle, Whitey Ford, Elston Howard and other Yankees.

Why did he write it? Some critics say he needed the dough (he may get $200,000). Others contend he wrote it out of pique and frustration. Sparky said he did it just for fun.

Someone asked if he had ever read "Ball Four?"

"Now," he replied. "What books have you read?" a questioner persisted. "None but my own — and I've read it six times."

Of the hundreds who queued up outside two book stores on busy Fifth Avenue to get volumes signed by the author, some important people were conspicuously missing.

Here are a few you didn't see in the lines, and what Sparky says about them in his book:

Yankee owner George Steinbrenner: "The man is ruthless... George can get away with treating an accountant or a secretary like a pac rat... I heard he fired one secretary because she didn't bring him a sandwich fast."

Superstar Reggie Jackson: "Reggie's really a piece of work. He'll say anything and be real quotable every time, whether what he says makes any sense or not... He wants to be idolized, not recognized."

Billy Martin: "Billy's problem is his temper. Plus he always wants to be boss, which offends the guys who own the team. Unfortunately, he can't fire them. They can fire him, and often do."

Los Angeles Dodgers: "As soon as we started winning, they started crying. They were such crybabies. They have about zero class. They kept making excuses like, 'If only the ball hadn't taken a bad hop... If only Nettles hadn't made those great plays'... The Dodgers weren't even the second best team in baseball. There's no doubt whatsoever that Boston is a lot better team than they are, in every way."

OK, Sparky, we hear you but when you cut loose from the mound, don't forget to duck.

Tom Watson takes early lead in T of C

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — The deep, deep rough and small greens demand the most accurate drives, Tom Watson said after establishing the first-round lead in the $300,000 Tournament of Champions.

The course demands good iron shots," Watson said after firing a 3-under-par 69 Thursday, "but driving is paramount. Because of the rough, you absolutely have to drive it in the fairway."

"If you don't, you can find some lies out there that only Tarzan and Jane can play out of."

The rough is up higher than usual on the tough, 6,889-yard La Costa Country Club course and, Watson said, the greens have been reduced in size and are extremely hard.

"They're the hardest greens in the world to chip to," said the man who has won Player of the Year honors the last two seasons.

"You've got a collar around the greens that the ball sits down into and is very hard to chip from," he said. "Beyond that, you've got the deepest rough on the golf course around the greens. That makes it really tough."

"But, in my opinion, you've got to drive it in the fairway to have any chance to win the golf tournament."

He missed 4 fairways "and it cost me 2 bogeys," said Watson, who came into this exclusive, winners-only event as the leading money-winner on the pro golf tour this year.

One shot off his lead with a 70 was surprising Ron Streck, 24, who got into the elite, 28-man field off his only pro victory in the San Antonio-Texas Open last fall.

Streck broke up with his girlfriend shortly after triumph and has been in a deep slump ever since. He pulled out of it with birdies on his first 3 holes here.

Tied at 71, and the only others under par, were defending champion Gary Player of South Africa, Ray Floyd, Mexican Victor Regalado and Dr. Gil Morgan, a non-practicing optometrist.

Jack Nicklaus, who has won a record five times in this event that brings together the winners of regular PGA Tour titles from the last 12 months, topped a strong group at par 72.

Also at that figure were Lee Trevino, Australian Jack Newton, Canadian Open champ Bruce Lietzke, Lee Elder and Jerry Pate, who scored the only eagle of the cool, windy day.

New York teams seek victories

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

The National Hockey League's two New York teams haven't swallowed the Big Apple yet in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

In fact, as the Islanders and Rangers prepare to play in the third game of the quarter-finals tonight, both seem ready to take a bigger bite out of their respective series.

The Islanders have a 2-0 lead as their best-of-seven series resumes in Chicago and the Rangers host Philadelphia after a 7-1 momentum-starting rout on the Flyers' ice that tied their series at 1-1.

Both Montreal and Boston seem to be skating pretty, too

— the Canadiens holding a 2-0 lead over Toronto and the Bruins a 2-0 advantage over Pittsburgh — as they prepare to resume their series Saturday.

"Obviously it's a do-or-die game for us," says Chicago goalie Tony Esposito, looking ahead to tonight's contest at home after two losses in the Nassau Coliseum. "Definitely the pressure's on us. But I'll tell you this: we just won't quit."

It'll be an up-ice fight for them, though.

"Chicago played the best defensive game possible," says the Islanders' Brian Trottier, referring to Wednesday night's 1-0 overtime victory over the Black Hawks.

Farmer could turn water into fuel

McKEESPORT, Pa. (NEA) - Once again the world is reminded of the fragility of its dependence on fossil fuels. Iran has cut its oil production. The Oil Producing and Exporting Countries have jacked the price of crude by 15 percent. In the U.S., President Carter is decontrolling prices of domestic crude. Rationing is an increasing prospect.

But perhaps all this worry could have been avoided. The story is told here on the edge of the Monongahela of a man who could make fuel from water as long ago as 50 years. That's right: fuel from water. When the man's formula was offered to the powers that be, however, the idea was flatly rejected.

The man's name was John Andrews. He was a Portuguese immigrant and a part-time inventor who lived on a modest farm to the west of this Pittsburgh suburb. In the second decade of the century, a time of uncertainty around the globe, Andrews began telling everyone that he could synthesize gasoline.

Nobody paid much attention to the farmer's ramblings, of course. Particularly the U.S. government. But Andrews wrote letter after letter to officials of his adopted nation, and eventually his persistence paid off. In 1916 the Navy reluctantly agreed to allow the man to demonstrate his process.

The timing of the demonstration could not have been better. World War I had begun, and the Allies needed great amounts of fuel to save the world for Democracy. If Andrews was right, the Kaiser could be defeated with rainwater, and every soldier's canteen was a potential gasoline tank.

Still, the inventor was greeted with skepticism instead of interest. He drove to the New York Navy Yard in a "waterpowered" Packard, and was there given over to the care of Commander E.W. Jessop, the senior engineer. Jessop gave Andrews a bucket of water, and, cynically, told him to proceed.

Andrews produced an empty gas can, and a small satchel, and got into his car. While in there, he presumably put the bucket of water in his can and mixed it with something from the satchel. Then he got out of the car, poured the brew into a motorboat engine, and the engine was successfully started.

Well, Commander Jessop was impressed, but not convinced. As he was later to tell it, he did not actually see Andrews prepare the concoction. The inventor was hidden in the back seat of his car, and it was quite possible that he could have merely substituted regular gasoline for the bucket of water.

So Jessop called for another test the following day. This time he asked Rear Admiral G.E. Burd to be a witness. He also demanded that Andrews mix his ingredients inside a pre-inspected room; that way the inventor could not switch the water for petrol without the subterfuge being detected.

Andrews agreed to the condition. He also agreed to use sea water the second time. He said his invention was very "technical," and if one mistake was made "you can't make the gasoline." But he added happily that the process would work regardless of whether fresh or salt water was employed.

Jessop and Admiral Burd were certain there was no possibility of deception the second time around. And lo, Andrews did it again. This

3 REASONS WHY...
Your Next Guitar will be an Alvarez

- Double Reinforcement in Neck--A tempered magnesium "U" channel plus a separate neck rod provide a double strength reinforcement which prevents warping and allows a thinner neck taper for easier playing.
- Select Spruce Tops
An exceptionally bright tone reproduction combined with an even balance between bass and treble strings is a result of specially selected spruce for the tops.
- Shop Adjusted and Customized
Alvarez guitars are ready to play before they arrive at our store. Necks are straight, frets are even, and the string height is comfortable for easy playing.
