Plants may be shut down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission is considering a suggestion to order temporary shutdowns of eight nuclear power plants sharing dasign features with the stricken reactor at Three Mile Island

NRC Chairman Joseph M. Hendrie said he anticipates a decision today or Wednesday after further consultation with industry officials.

Only four of the eight plants now are operating -Rancho Seco in California and three Oconee units in South Carolina. But such an order could mean continued shutdown of four other units now out of service for refueling or safety checks - Three Mile Island Unit 1 in Pennsylvania, sister reactor to the one stricken: Arkansas Unit 1 in Arkansas; Davis-Besse in Ohavis-Besse in Ohio; and Crystal River in Florida.

If the commission follows the recommendations of some staff members, the plants could be out of service up to a month and reduce electric-generating capacity in the East to an uncomfortably thin reserve margin, NRC officials said.

Babcock & Wilcox, designers of the Three Mile Island facility and the other eight plants that would be covered by a shutdown order, declined comment on NRC staff criticisms of the reactor design safety said the NRC staff is asking itself. "How did we miss Three Mile Island," and is restudying "the iicensing process in hopesoof finding some of the answers.

Kev staff officials told the five-member NRC Monday that the Three Mile Island accident, which almost forced a full-scale augustion of the Harrisburg. Pa. area, revealed equipment failures. operator errors, basic design problems, and the NRC's own inability to recognize potential safety hazards.

Meanwhile. Pennsylvania Gov. Dick Thornburgh said Monday. "I have doubts about the future of nuclear power in our society, as well as the widely held assumption that we can't meet our energy needs in other ways.

Assassination attempt stopped

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan and members of his Cabinet escaped an assassination attempt today as they walked in the funeral procession of a general

Then the man raised a submachine gun, but before he could fire the guards kicked him to the ground and rushed him away, the witness said. A second man was reported arrested also.

Bazargan appeared shaken by the attempted attack. Islamic revolutionary militiamen surrounded him, then pushed him into a car, and he was driven off along with other

Later an aide to Deputy Premier Minister Abbas Amir-Entezam, the chief government spokesman. claimed that the assassination attempt "did not happen." But other sources confirmed the first eyewitness report and said possibly more than two men were arrested. Bazargan, Amir-Entezam and other Cabinet ministers were

State budget over Clements' limits

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A $20.3 billion two-year state budget bill that wuld spend far more than Gov. Bill Clements wants has won preliminary House approval, 93-49.

The House takes a final vote — a formality —

Next stop for the massive bill to keep state government operating in 1980-81 is the Senate. which has yet to debate its own version

After the Senate passes its bill, a House-Senate conference committee will try to blend the differing spending ideas of the two chambers into a single measure.

Clements will get the final shot and has threatened to veto a general appropriation bill that fails to leave over a sizeable amount for use in cutting property taxes.

The House bill exceeds Clements' budget recommendations by more than $500 million.

It leaves for tax relief, school finance or other expenditures only $261 million.

Another $269 million is "on the table" for spending but has essentially been committed by legislative leaders for use in avoiding an automatic rise in local school taxes next fall. The left over dollars would have totaled far less had not representatives voted 76-67 for a 2 percent across-the-board cut in most spending items. That added $200 million to the amount "on

Already in the bill was another rider automatically reducing nearly all appropriation items by 2 percent

House members needed the cuts because in four days of debate they eagerly had added eagerly added new spending items to the bill written by the House Appropriations Committee.

An amendment Monday upped the pay raises for state employees from 5.1 percent to 7 percent annually, but only on the first $20,000 of salary.

That means a $40,000 executive would get the same $1,400 raise as a $20,000 middle management bureaucrat. "I have some connection with business," said Rep. Buddy Temple. D-Diboll, whose family's interests include timber and a piece of Time. Inc. that is not giving 7 percent. People can't survive

House members, besieged over the weekend with telephone calls from nursing home administrators. voted 85-53 to pile on another $86 million in Medicaid payments to nursing homes.

Rep. Bob Davis, R-Irving, sitting in for Speaker Bill Clayton, who suffered all day from hoarseness, upheld points of order knocking out two controversial riders.

One would have prohibited the Texas Department of Human Resources from spending money on abortions or for purposes — such as counseling — that might lead to abortions.

The other told state university administrations that the Legislature meant for them to use all reasonable and legal means to keep homosexual

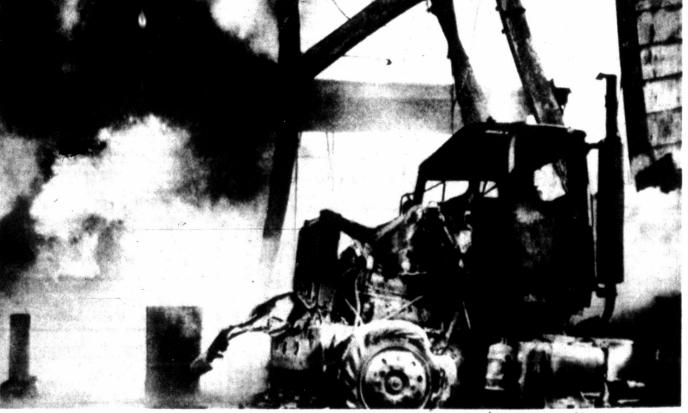

Davis said in both cases the riders were unconstitutional attempts to enact general law through the state budget.

Rep. Milton Fox. R-Houston, tried to take $2 million from the Texas Commission on the Arts and Humanities and give most of it to two predominantly black universities - Texas Southern and Prairie View A&M.

Carter has choice on missile defense

high-level Petagon group assessing the best way to deploy a new long-range missile to survive a Soviet surprise attack has suggested two or three 'acceptable' solutions, defense sources say. The option eventually chosen by the Carter administration will play a critical role in the ratification debate on the proposed SALT II treaty to limit nuclear missiles and bombers

The theoretical vulnerability of existing missiles to Soviet surprise attack was cited Monday by SALT critic Paul Nitze as "the main defect" in an arms agreement with the Soviets.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown has said it is essential to build a system more immune to attack than the present land-based U.S. Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missiles, which are expected to Defense Department officials, who asked not to be named, said the preferred options forwarded to Brown by a high-level Pentagon study council include a "shell game" deployment favored by the Air Force; a system in which airplanes would carry the missiles; or a combination of air and land basing.

Each option would make it difficult for Soviet targeters to plan an attack

Brown will make his recommendation to President Carter after studying the report of the Defense Systems Acquisition Review Council, which studied the problem for

Media coverage fueled dispute

Poor communication helped heat medical stew

By JOHN PRICE Pampa News Staff Second of two parts

Mark King, head of Metropolitan Ambulance Service of Pampa, and Betty O'Rourke, regional director of the Amarillo - based Emergency Medical Services (EMS) helicopter transport, both agree that a dispute involving their personnel has been fueled by media attention Stemming from the March 30 accident at the Celanese Chemical Co., the dispute began as an argument between Pampa medical personnel and an EMS helicopter crew over procedures for transporting the accident victims to Amarillo. Things really heated up when KVII Television in Amarillo broadcast some derogatory remarks made by members of the EMS crew in regard to the Pampa personnel.

"I think the news media has possibly pushed it a little bit, but that it can be worked out," said King of the dispute. "There were some people hot under the collar when it happened, but I think now they're more concerned that it doesn't happen again."

"It's been blown totally out of proportion by the press, "echoed O'Rourke. "I was angry -- not angry at Pampa, but angry because of the confusion. I just feel terribly about it, I really

Although King and O'Rourke are downgrading the tempers that fared the day of the dispute. some of the Pampans involved have indicated they are still angry at the treatment they received from the EMS personnel. The EMS crew reportedly questioned the ability and authority of the Pampa doctors at the scene.

One of the doctors was E.C. Hoffer, an emergency room physician at Highland General Hospital and a member of the hospital board. KVII Television quoted members of the EMS crew as saying they would "crucify" Hoffer. King said Hoffer was to attend the EMS evaluation meeting Thursday, but in a telephone conversation Friday Hoffer said he didn't go. "I felt there was really nothing to add to it." Hoffer said. "There's been so much controversy over that thing, and the people who are doing all the talking in Amarillo haven't bothered to contact me."

Referring to the communications problem between Amarillo and Pampa on March 30, hoffer said "As far as the professionals were involved, we were communicating well." He expressed irritation at having been questioned by the helicopter crew, which he described as a "Mickey Mouse operation. According to King, the March 30 incident was not the first problem between Metropolitan Ambulance and EMS. "In the past we have had some difficulties with the EMS, but not on a large scale," King said.

relationship with EMS. King met with O'Rourke in his office Wednesday to discuss the dispute. He said they "agreed to get everyone involved to work together on the situation." Metropolitan Ambulance and EMS "have had certain constant problems with our communications system" which King and O'Rourke agreed to work out

We are reviewing our

"We have had troubles before with contacting them," King said. "That was one of the major problems (leading to the dispute.) The Pampa doctors had talked to the Amarillo doctors, and they agreed to send the patients right over, but they couldn't get in touch with the

"Communication was extremely poor, I think," said O'Rourke.

Rather than immediately transport the waiting patients to Amarillo, the helicopter team insisted on returning them to Highland General Hospital for evaluation, as required by the EMS protocols, or guidelines.

"They were so used to following their written protocols that I think they couldn't understand why the Pampa doctors wouldn't go along with them. 'King said.

King said when he met with O'Rourke, he was told EMS is looking into possibly revising

"They're good," King said of the protocols, "but they're not satisfactory in some situations. like we had that day. The emergency room was so full that we didn't have room to take them (the accident victims) back to the hospital."

EMS met Thursday in Amarillo to evaluate the events of March 30.

"We were talking safety at this meeting," O'Rourke said, adding that the EMS staff decided on two changes to improve the faulty communications system. Helicopter crews will carry walkie - talkies so they can always get in touch with the EMS center, even when outside the helicopter, sh said.

Also, she said it will be a 'standard procedure' for persons at the center to contact hospital emergency rooms by telephone when radio communications are bad.

Repeal of act would cut costs

Repeal of a single law, which adds an estimated $2.9 billion a year to construction costs in the United states, would lower consumer prices, federal taxes and the price of new homes for thousands of residents in Ohio.

At the same time, employment, average purchasing power and spendable income per household would rise in the state.

These are findings of a new economic study by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States which has relied on several studies in projecting economic benefits if an effort to repeal the Davis -Bacon Act is successful.

The Act, enacted in 1931 as an anti - Depression measure, is still on the books and requires builders on federally funded projects such as highways, airports, hospitals and military installations to pay wages determined by union scales in many localities. These wages, in turn, exert pressure for payment of higher wages in private construction, so that both federallly funded and private jobs have higher price tags than market conditions warrant.

While prices rose generally 9 percent in 1978, construction costs rose more sharply, by 13 percent, the Chamber's chief economist, Jack Carlson, points out. He said the Davis-Bacon Act helped push construction costs up higher than inflation generally.

In its economic forecasting study, the U.S. Chamber reported likely effects in Ohio if the law is repealed:

Consumer prices would decline 0.1 to 0.3 percent; purchasing power would grow $22 to $67 per household; the cost of new homes would decline by $833, and federal taxes would be reduced between $13 and $68. Perhaps as many as 7,400 new jobs would open up in the

On a national basis the Chamber study projects declines of 0.1 percent of 0.3 percent in consumer prices and an average of $741 in the price of new homes, plus creation of as many as 150,000 new jobs. Tax savings could amount to as much as $800 per U.S. household.

Supported by the U.S. Chamber and key industry organizations legislation for repeal of Davis - Bacon is pending in both houses of Congress, and one measure has the support of more than 60 cosigners in the House of Representatives.

Who should smoke what and where

The government's regulatory agencies are forever attempting difficult balancing acts. But seldom has any agency tried anything harder than the effort to reconcile the interests of smokers and nonsmokers who are cooped up together in the passenger compartment of an airliner.

The Civil Aeronautics Board has been struggling with this task for years; it was in 1973 that the CAB first required the airlines to segregate smokers and nonsmokers. Now the board is seeking tighter control of smoking aboard planes, without alienating smokers altogether. But it's increasingly clear that any "answer" the CAB offers won't satisfy both sides and may not satisfy either.

The mediators has discovered, of course, that the tobacco smoker takes for granted his right to smoke when and where he pleases and that the nonsmoker is becoming more and more militant about his right to breathe air uncontaminated by smoke. "We're at the point of converging armies, and this thing is going to get more violent and more difficult as time goes on," says a CAB staff man.

The segregation rule certainly hasn't satisfied everyone. Complaints about its application, mostly from nonsmokers, have been growing; the CAB received 659 informal complaints during the first 11 months of 1978, up from 472 a year before. The nonsmokers failed to provide enough no-smoking space or failed to enforce the ban in no-smoking sections of their planes.

Last month the board made a fresh try for an acceptable solution. It issued new regulations requiring airlines to: provide enough no-smoking seats for all passengers who want them; make sure nonsmokers aren't "unreasonably burdened" by being sandwiched between two smoking sections; and find ways to keep cigar and pipe smokers farthest away from nonsmokers.

At the same time, though, the CAB almost acknowledged that these rules probably won't accomplish its aims. So it's drafting a variety of further proposals to protect nonsmokers. But the board's members aren't sure or aren't agreed on which of these may be needed-or how far the CAB should go in laying down rules.

In searching for a moderate solution, the board has come up with some imaginative ideas, but their workability is open to question. For instance, cigar and pipe smoking might be banned on any flight if a nonsmoker on the plane objected. This idea, already adopted by some airlines and pushed by the Cigar Association of America, can generate tension between the two sides, however. "How would you like to be a flight attendant and enforce that kind of condition?" asks one airline spokesman.

Another plan, also backed by the cigar industry, would set up a sort of buffer zone between nonsmokers and the smokers they find most offensive: cigar and pipe puffers. Between these two groups would be a section reserved for cigaret smokers, perhaps seven rows deep.

Still another proposal, offered by chairman Cohen, would establish a belt of "don't cares"—nonsmokers who aren't bothered by smoke-on both sides of the plane's smoking section. The don't-care seats might be filled with volunteers, perhaps enticed there by the offer of a free drink. This approach would seek to minimize objections from nonsmokers who sit next to the smoking section.

The CAB may also propose placing cigar and pipe smokers next to vents, requiring special locations for nonsmokers who are particularly vulnerable to smoke-caused discomfort, and permitting airlines to experiment with innovations like movable curtains between smoking and nonsmoking

A CAB staff official concedes that all this maneuvering reflects "the clasic dilemma of regulators. You try to balance all the conflicting interests, and it becomes a Rube Goldberg machine-which won't

Already the airlines are getting upset about the burdens being heaped on them. Airline executives complain that having to separate smokers and nonsmokers-along with sorting passengers in other ways (movie-or-no-movie, window-or-aisle, sit-with-friends, and the like) is enough of a headache. Satisfying all the varied customer preferences is well-nigh impossible, particularly if many arrive just before take-off, the carriers say. Most find they must resort to computers to help seat passengers nowadays.

Writing a whimsical piece in the Eastern Airlines employe magazine. Jose Rodrigues, a Miami-based computer programming manager for the airline, says,"it occurred to me that one strategically placed nonsmoking, smoke-sensitive, movie viewing, teetotaller friend on a competitor's flight could prevent them from boarding any more passengers." Many airline people are driven to conclude that there's a better way than all the compromises now being attempted."If we're going to get into this kind of legislating environment, there is only one answer: Don't permit smoking on . airplanes," argues an executive of one

Unions no boon to education

By OSCAR COOLEY

The theory of labor unionism is that an organization can do more for you than you can do for yourself. The individual is assumed to be helpless. "In union there is strength.

To achieve a strong organization, all the workers of a given firm (or industry) should be members, it is held. Hence, union advocates seek a closed shop contract, that is, an agreement by the employer to hire only union members. The result is that everybody who works for him is forced to join the union,

The unionist will argue that this does not infringe upon the worker's freedom because union membership will be good for him - get him higher wages and better conditions of labor - and by making the union strong it will benefit his fellow-employees as well. No one should object to doing what is for his own benefit as well as for the good of his neighbor.

But does the union improve his situation and that of his neighbor over and above what it would be without the union? That is a question. And it is subjective. It can be answered only by the individual worker himself. For that reason, he should not be forced to join. He alone should decide.

The union theory is essentially the theory of mass production and mass distribution. It is that goods and services are most profitably made and sold en masse, that is, in quantity - quantity of homogeneous units, every unit just like every other.

The printing of this newspaper is an example. Every copy is exactly like every other copy, they being stamped out on a printing press. Being identical, all are sold at the same price, and they go out in bundles.

This theory applies well to a mechanical thing such as a newspaper, which is easily duplicated by machine. It does not apply to the services of a human being, for human beings are all different. None are identical nor can they be duplicated. A does not equal B in character or ability, nor does B equal C. Therefore, their work hours cannot be bundled together and sold as so many homogeneous units, all at one price. Although the theory applies to the newspaper, it does not apply to the work of the editors.

The only way this can be even approximated is for the buyer, that is, the employer, to reduce his work to such simple processes that anyone, with a little practice, can perform them. The employer really makes use of only those rudimentary abilities that every person has. The job calls for no thinking, no creativity, only for repetitive motions. Often a mechanical robot can do it as well. Labor unions stimulate the invention of robots, much to the disgust of the unionists with whom they

It follows that the selling of labor en masse, as through a labor union, is unsound when the work is of a sort that requires judgment and the making of choices. From the employer's viewpoint it is like buying a dozen mousetraps, all supposedly identical when in fact some have no springs. Labor unionism is especially inappropriate in a field such as education. where the workers are teachers and the raw materials are the minds of students. Both the potter and the clay are

Each teacher has his own special fund of knowledge, understanding and ability to communicate with the student. Each has his own methods of inspiring the student to want to learn and his own individual approach to the job. Imagination and creativity are of the essence. Every teacher is an individual and in fairness to both himself and his employer - and the learner - should be individually employed.

That the teacher, whether in kindergarten or in graduate school, should be a union member and should mass-market his services through "collective bargaining" is a fallacy. The teacher's abilities are better recognized and rewarded when he negotiates for himself with the administrator who hires him, and needless to say the latter is better satisfied. The relationship is happier and more productive.

teachers and professors into unions - to agitate, bargain, strike and pursue the entire belligerent labor union routine can result only in deterioration, not improvement, of education.

Learning is a thing that can hardly be overdone. More and more education is needed. There is a perennial shortage. It follows that teachers - who are individuals, not robots - are in crying demand. There is and probably always will be ample opportunity for the teacher who has made himself outstanding in ability. Selling his own services, dealing with his employer as man to man, he remains a free person beholden to no organization.

Europe elects its future - by donald f. graff -

Western Europe, birthplace of modern representative government, is getting ready for another big event. Whether blessed or otherwise, however, depends upon from what country and which end of the political spectrum it happens to be viewed On June 10, the duly qualified voters in the nine member nations of the European Communities will choose 410 representatives to a new parliament. It will be the first such direct multinational election and has the potential, at least, of being a giant stride forward on the road to European unity. The European Communities is the current phase of the drawing together of the once - fractious nations of Western Europe that began following World War II with the initial purpose of preventing another Franco - German war by meshing the two economies. There are actually three communities - Economic (the familiar Common market), Coal and Steel and Atomic Energy - with common

France, West Germany, Ireland, Italy,

Luxembourg and the Netherlands. These are likely to be joined in the not too distant future by Greece, Portugal and Spain. The new parliament will replace the European Assembly that has been holding forth in Strasbourg since 1958 with a membership appointed by the various national parliaments. The assembly has functioned primarily as a debating society, Real power in community affairs has remained with the national governments. exercised through their delegated representatives to the Council of Ministers. That will continue to be the case. The governments at this point have no intention of merging sovereign identities in a United States of Europe, although that remains the eventual goal.

But the very fact that the members of the new parliament will owe their mandates to the voters themselves, not to select group of political professionals, will inevitably make a difference. They may still speak for national interests, but it will be more the interests of the national populations than of the governments which happen to be in power at any time in Paris, Bonn or the

A hint of what could be forthcoming was supplied last fall. Before closing up shop, the outgoing assembly overrode the recommendations of the Council of Ministers and pushed through a larger budget than had been recommended. Never underestimate the potential of a body which has any control over finances, the evolution of the British parliament being a classic example right at hand.

For this and other reasons, the coming election is being viewed with attitudes ranging from reserve to distress in some quarters. Gaullists in France are sharply critical of it as a dilution of national powers and European Conservatives in general have been apprehensive, concerned that they will be at a disadvantage in community wide campaigning against Socialist parties with the latter's long tradition of multinational cooperation.

On the other hand, there are also some Socialist misgivings. Left - wing British laborites, cool to the entire idea of European union, probably have more in common with French Gaullists on this point than they do with their own ideological brethren in West Germany. Even in the latter country, party harmony is not the order of the day. German left wingers were instrumental in the adoption at a community - wide conference last December of an election manifesto running counter to the policies of the Socialist government in Bonn on a number of sensitive points.

The inter - and intra - party squabbling and maneuvering across national borders may be, however, one of the more community-wide election rather than on the battlefields that litter its history is a good omen for the peaceful and prosperous future of Europe.

Jurek granted new trial

Texas (AP) - A prosecutor and the father of a slain 10-year-old girl expressed shock and confusion at news the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals had ordered a new trial for condemned prisoner Jerry Lane Jurek.

"I'm kind of shocked," said Ronnie Adams after a long pause. Jurek was convicted in 1974 of killing Adam's eldest daughter, 10-year-old Wendy, in August of 1973.

"It's hard to understand," he said, regaining his composure. "I'm just shocked. I can't believe it ... well, I'm just shocked."

"I haven't seen the decision, so I really can't comment," said Dewitt County District Attorney Wiley Cheatham, who prosecuted Jurek.

During the 1974 trial, prosecutors entered a statement from Jurek into evidence saying he had taken the girl from a city park and choked her when she began to scream. He said he then tossed her, unconscious, into the Guadalupe River at Hell's Gate Bridge.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Monday ruled that Jurek's confession was not voluntary and thus could not be used against him.

Jurek, a seventh-grade dropout with an IQ of 80. maintained his confession was not voluntary because he was too dumb to understand police warnings that whatever he said might be used against him.

"I was present at (the) confession," Cheatham said. "If that confession is no good, in my opinion, there isn't a good confession in the whole United States. In that case, there hasn't been a confession in 50 or 75 years that could not be

"I know that when this (news of the decision) gets out, it's going to hit Cuero pretty hard," said Homer Berner, editor of the Cuero Record. He speculated that a change of venue would be asked for and granted, moving any new trial outside of Cuero.

"There are a lot of strong feelings about having to go through this whole cotton-picking

In Monday's decision, the 5th circuit also said Jurek's court-appointed attorney did not understand that prosecutors could not bar jurors who oppose the death penalty.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The Senate Finance Committee has decided to at least "embarrass" Texans who try to make their parents eligible for welfare by acquiring their property.

Such transfers would make it appear the parents had virtuall no financial resources.

The committee voted unanimously Monday to require Texans to disclose recent transfers of money and property in completing forms to become eligible for nursing home care financed by the state and federal government.

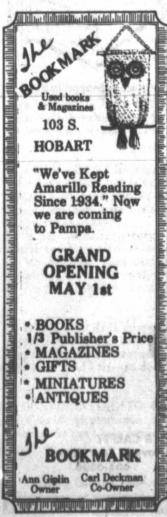

Sen. Tom Creighton attributed the tactics to "greedy kids who are trying to capture the family inheritance by placing old people on the welfare rolls at the taxpayers' expense."

Sen. Bill Meier. D-Euless. asked Legislative Budget Board staffers if the Legislature could require Texans to submit affidavits on the onwership of property.

"I haven't been able to find the year this was made exactly," says Mrs. Gilpin of an antique Singer sewing machine. "But it's old."

Other "old" things in the back room of the book mart are a handmade cedar chest ("It belonged to the mother of a recently deceased 94-year-old lady in Amarillo," Mrs. Gilpin explains), a maple hall mirror and a century-old wicker rocking chair, all of which share

Cuevas trial to jurors

HOUSTON (AP) - State District Judge Miron Love will read a charge to a six-man. six-woman jury and then final arguments will be presented Tuesday as the lengthy retrial of Ignacio Cuevas winds down.

Cuevas, accused of causing the death of a hostage during a bloody 1974 escape allempt from a Texas State Prison unit called The Walls, was convicted in his first trial and sentenced to die.

After more than three years on death row, he was granted a new trial by the Texas Criminal Court of Appeals. The panel cited a judicial error as reason for reversal of the conviction.

Defense lawyer Will Gray said Monday he wanted to call at least three more witnesses, all of them inmate hostages during the 11-day siege, the longest in U.S. penal history.

Woman injured

CANADIAN - A Canadian woman was listed in satisfactory condition at an Oklahoma hospital Monday morning after sustaining injuries in a one-car accident six miles south of here Friday. Dorothy Mills, an Allsup's Convenience Store employee, underwent surgery Monday at Newman Memorial Hospital in Shattuck, Okla., after suffering a broken arm and head cuts in the mishap.

Hemphill County Sheriff C.H. Wright said Mrs. Mills apparently lost control of her auto, left her northbound lane and careened into a canyon along Highway 60-83.

She was initially treated at Hemphill County Hospital before being rushed by Canadian ambulance to the Oklahoma hospital.

During the first trial in the spring of 1975, Gray didn't call a single defense witness. This time six took the stand as he attempted to prove that Cuevas had no connection with the death of a hostage.

Cuevas is the only surviving inmate of the siege. His two companions, Fred Carrasco and Rudolpho Dominquez, was killed that night of Aug. 3, 1974, as they attempted to escape behind a moveable shield of lawbooks and chalkbooks surrounded by 11 handcuffed hostages.

She went and lived by the sea-by herself- to try to sort out all the things that happened to her. And she relates the ebb and the flow of the tide to life," says Mrs. Gilpin, book lover.

Clements wants control

AUSTIN, Texas (AP - Gov. Bill Clements says one rebuff in the Senate will not make him give up his fight to give Texas governors more financial control over state agencies.

By a three-vote margin, senators took Clements' budget execution plans off the Senate debate calendar Monday. The vote was 18-13, with 21 votes needed for continued debate.

"I'm terribly disappointed," Clements said a few minutes later. "I had anticipated it would come out in good order. But I assure you I am not going to let it drop.

Sen. Ike Harris, R-Dallas, author of the proposed constitutional amendment that would let governors reduce, as well as veto, separate appropriations made by the legislature, said he would try again before the end of the session, May 28.

"Of course, it's obvious I've got to talk with some people and change some minds," he said. Harris said Lt. Gov. Bill

He said the governor could totally undermine the Legislature's intent, for example taking away money set aside for community based correction facilities.

Brooks said he decided budget execution by a chief executive was not a good idea after former President Richard Nixon impounded funds that Congress had appropriated. "This merely allows the

Sen. Bob Vales, D-San Antonio, said the measure made no provision for the Legislature to be called back into session to consider overriding the governor's veto if the veto was made after the Legislature adjourned.

Another portion of Harris's measure would authorize the Legislature to let either the governor or a committee headed by the governor exercise fiscal control over agency appropriations according to conditions and limitations laid down by the Legislature.

If approved by two-thirds of the legislature, the proposed. constitution change by Harris would be put to voters on Nov. 4.

Mending mature marriage

louise pierce

You've got to live NOW. So have I.

You can have 25 to 40 reasonably - happy years with your mate without once remembering your old flames. Then the kids are gone and even the grandchildren are so involved in sports and music and drama and dating that they only pop in to see you once a month for ten minutes at a time.

For the first time in your married life, you are feeling a little sorry that your youth has passed you by. And that makes you long for the romantic ecstasy you knew when you were young and were much loved by the special sweetheart you planned to marry when you were seventeen or eighteen. At least that's how you think it was as you relive your high school and college days in your middle - aged mind. You begin to wonder if your love of 40 years was ever as exciting as the romances that came before it, especially the bright - eyed, curly haired, sweet - talking one you gave up to marry the aging spouse who has shared your bed and board these many years - and who. more's the pity, still does.

Sometimes the aching nostalgia is triggered by friends who play bridge and dance and do arts - and - crafts with you at the Senior suddenly, without the least warning, are starting to spruce up in pressed pants and shaved faces and long - discarded make - up that is a little smeared but perky nonetheless. You are hit over the head when a widower starts eating his lunch with the same lady every day - and even paying for hers. You can hardly believe it when he progresses to taking her home and buying presents for her grandchildren and finally marrying her in a flurry of flowers and furbelows. They start telling you that his new love is the greatest lasted a quarter of a century or longer, almost as wonderful as the ones they came close to rushing into when they were in their teens.

That does it for you. You look at your mate snoring in a chair. You take in the wrinkled face, the white hair, the hearing aid, the false teeth, all the other accouterments of maturing marriage. You forget that your mirror would reflect the same marks of age in you. You begin to recall the perfect love you gave up for this suddenly suffocating one. You wish you could see the boy or girl who once said,

'We'll always be young together," when you were in the ninth grade. Perhaps it prompts you to go to the high school or college reunions that you have ignored all these years. It did Nora B, who wrote me, "DEAR LOUISE: It seemed like everybody in our Golden - Oldies Supper Club was reveling in dating new people or else taking off on exciting trips with the old ones. Tom and I couldn't do either. We just sat at home and glared and grumbled at each other. Then one night I caught him studying a yellowed snapshot that I hadn't known he still carried in his billfold. The face was teenage and lovely, the smile was bewitching. And the youngish writing said, 'To Tommy forever. Tom was looking awfully wistful.

"I began to remember my young love too. I even cried a little as I remembered. I went to my college class reunion and held out my hands to Bill. He said 'I'd have known you anywhere,' and I handed back the compliment even though he was fat and bald and looked every bit as old as I did. Then he dished out pictures of children and grandchildren and even a great - grandchild, all the while clearing his throat and cracking his knuckles, habits I remembered I used to deplore. Maybe, I thought, that was why I chose Tom over Bill. Tom has no annoying habits. Tom loves me, even when he remembers the girl in his wallet. He married me instead of her. We are right for each other. I went home and took the snapshot out of his billfold when he was asleep and burned it. To this day he's never asked about it.'

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for applauding the teacher who refuses to allow her students to pass out party invitations unless the entire class is invited. (You wisely said, "The pain of having been left out will remain with those few uninvited children long after the fun has been forgotten by those who attended.") How true!

That letter revived some painful memories for me. I once had a gym teacher who made a practice of appointing two "captains" - her pets, who in turn would choose up teams. Of course, the most popular kids and the best athletes were always chosen first. Being neither popular nor a good athlete, I was always the last to be chosen. I was so humiliated I wanted to die. No wonder I grew up with an inferiority complex, convinced that I was unwanted, hopelessly inept and a born loser.

Please print this, Abby, in case some gym teachers are still using this cruel system.

PAINFUL MEMORIES

DEAR PAINFUL: Consider it done. Your letter jarred some painful memories of my own school days. Gym teachers, are you listening?

DEAR ABBY: Re HAIRLESS IN HILO, who bemoans the lack of hair on his chest, arms and legs.

My husband also was hairless in those areas-and that's what attracted me to him in the first place. Men who deliberately expose their hairy chests by unbuttoning their shirts down to their navels turn me off.

Also, consider the statue of Michelangelo's David, the epitome of male magnificence. He didn't have a hair on his beautiful body! OFF MY CHEST IN WICHITA

DEAR OFF: Maybe so. But in some cultures hairy males are thought to be extremely masculine and virile. And here's a hair-raising fact: At one time in Spain; moustached women were considered rare beauties! DEAR ABBY: I have a lovely 17-year-old daughter who has been dating two boys-both 18 and from fine homes.

These boys have slapped my daughter around when she does something they don't like. (Paying attention to other boys, for example.)
Is this considered normal adolescent behavior, or are these two boys potential wife abusers?

My daughter likes both boys very much. I say she is foolish to continue to put up with this kind of treatment.

Do you think these boys need help?

TULSA MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Slapping girls around is definitely not normal adolescent behavior. But hanging around to be repeatedly slapped around is not normal either. Not only do the boys need help—so does your daughter.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I

enjoy your column very much and all the valuable

What I do object to are the false claims about curing a

this is just phoney baloney.

It's important for the public to realize what vitamins won't do, as well as understanding how important they have any real disagreement.

However, I would disagree with you that it's difficult to prepare fresh fruit. It doesn't take me much time to prepare a fresh apple or to

DEAR POLLY - To remove stains from stainless steel sinks and laminated plastic counter tops with no marring, dulling or scratching use baking soda instead of cleansers. To keep ice cubes from sticking in the tray spray the tray lightly with a vegetable cooking spray. The cubes will pop out for easy storing when a lot of ice is needed for a party. To thread yarn through the eye of a needle when doing crewel work or needlepoint use a small folded piece of paper. Put the yarn in the fold and slip the paper through the eye of the needle. To remove rust stains from clothing I damben the spots and apply equal portions of cream of tartar and baking soda. Place in the sun until dry. Sometimes this has to be repeated a time or two but the stain will come out and there

Are you an executive in a firm that could and wants to cash in on the anticipated growth in trade with China? Would you like to know more about how to go about grabbing a share? Learn what agencies to contact that buy from U.S. companies?

Then the U.S. Department of Commerce can help you - with its new guidelines that provide information on researching the market, establishing contacts, as well as visiting China itself.

The month of May marks an anniversary almost as significant in the U.S.-China relations as the official recognition of the People's Republic of China on Jan. 1, 1979. For it than will have been six years since liaison offices were opened in the respective capitals of the two nations, signaling a dramatic shift in Sino-American relations. It was then that commerce began to expand - and the era of near-zero contacts with mainland Chinu closed.

In 1978 alone, mainland China trade with the U.S. exceeded $1 billion. With the improvement of relations between Washington and Peking (Beijing in the new spelling), trade could double to $2 billion in 1979. Last year, China spent $10 billion on imports.

Among the top purchases on China lists are agricultural commodities end industrial products.

You'll need time and patience to penetrate China's market successfully, whether you represent a large or small corporation, the Commerce Department warns. This applies both to imports and

Weigh with care these five questions before you seriously try to penetrate the Chinese market:

(1) Are you prepared to invest substantial sums initially without assurance of an early return?

(2) Are you ready to negotiate the first transaction for up to one year or longer? (3) Can you pledge the senior technical talent that will be needed for a successful deal? (4) Do you recognize that you may have to walk away from an unpromising negotiation at any time? (5) Are you aware you may have to resist granting concessionary terms to enter this market?

A wide variety of groups in the U.S. will be surveying Chinese industries to assess the potential for your goods and services. The Commerce Department has an ongoing effort to develop marketing information. In addition, the National Council for U.S.-China Trade publishes good reports in the China Business Review.

Foreign trade is a state monopoly in China and it is controlled exclusively through a network of corporations. The companies are organized by the Commodities or services for which they are responsible. They range from China National Arts & Crafts Import and Export Corp. to the China National Machinery & Equipment Export Corp. All have headquarters in Beijing.

- Find out which of the Foreign Trade Corporations has jurisdiction over the areas of interest to you. Prepare a proposal and send it to Beijing. If the Chinese are interested in your sales proposal. they may request additional information or a reworking of the proposal based on their specifications. In some instances, you may be invited to Beijing.

- Be straightforward, explicit and technically comprehensive in your proposal to permit in-depth valuation of the products you want to sell. Don't send annual reports or other material which may confuse the Chinese about the technology or commodities you offer.

- Detail the technological and cost advantages of your product. It also is considered courteous to invite the Chinese to the U.S. to see your plant or equipment in actual operation.

- For the list of the Foreign Trade Corporations and their addresses, send $1.80 to the Commerce Department, Room 4044, PRC Affairs. Washington, D.C. 20230 and request "doing Business with China." Or write to the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. nent Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402 and specify Stock No. 003-009-00316-4.

- Send copies of your proposal to the Commercial Office. Embassy of the People's Republic of China, 2300 Connenticut Ave.. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20008; and to the Commercial Officer, Embassy of the U.S.A. 17 Guanghua Lu, Beijing, People's Republic of China

- To facilitate handling, translate your proposal into Chinese and send any proposal in Chinese with an English original.

- For additional help, contact the U.S. Department of Commerce's Industry and Trade Administration, PRC Affairs Division, Room 4044, Washington, D.C. 40430. Phone (202) 377-3583-4681.

Hockey's "Second Season"

From October to April, the 17 teams in the National Hockey League (NHL) compete in a grueling 80-game season. But as Philadelphia Flyers coach Pat Quinn said recently, "everything really hinges on the playoffs." And the playoffs now underway for the Stanley Cup, which is awarded to the NHL champions, begin what's often called hockey's "second season." Playoff teams compete in four series of three, five, and finally seven games. The eventual champions may have to play as many as 20 games. The Montreal Canadiens, current champions, have won the Cup 20 times since it was first awarded in 1894.

Bullets getting annual tuneup

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) - The Washington Bullets seem to be getting their annual postseason tuneup from the Atlanta Hawks.

After sweeping two games from the Hawks in last year's preliminary playoff series, the Bullets said the competition sharpened their execution for the march to the National Basketball Association title.

The matchup is just as intense in the quarter-finals this year, and it seems to be reaching the same conclusion: the Bullets will try to close out the best-of-seven series with a victory at home tonight.

The other Eastern Conference semifinal resumes Thursday with the San Antonio Spurs, leading 3-1, hoping to oust the Philadelphia 76ers.

The Western semifinals continue Wednesday when the Seattle SuperSonics carry a 3-1 lead into their contest against the Los Angeles Lakers while the Phoenix Suns carry a 2-1 lead into their game at Kansas

Down the stretch Sunday. Dandridge scored 13 of Washington's final 20 points and assisted on two other baskets. By contrast, although both teams are shooting a below-par 44 percent, the Hawks dipped to 21 and 31 percent in the fourth quarters of two of their losses.

Forward John Drew, one of only two Atlanta players with five years' NBA experience, has been held to 55 points or an average of 13.7 per game.

CART president upset

six Championship Auto Racing Teams barred from the Indianapolis 500 want very much to enter the May 27 race, but CART President Pat Patrick says nothing will ever get him back into the U.S. Auto Club

"There's no way in hell I'd ever go back to USAC now, after the way they treated us." said Patrick, who has demanded an explanation for USAC's rejection of the six CART teams, totaling 19 entries.

Joe Cloutier, the Indianapolis Motor Speedway president, said was preparing a reply.

"It's too late now" for CART to rejoin USAC, Patrick said in a telephone interview from his office in Jackson, Mich., Monday night. "We thought we had a deal last week. They made us a proposal which we thought was acceptable. When they left us, we thought everything was fine. Then I got a telegram from (USAC president Dick) King that our entry (for the 500) had been denied. It was hard to believe

USAC, which claims it has sele authority to accept or reject entries for the 500, said in its telegram to the six CART owners that the entries were turned down because they were "not in good standing" with

Patrick sent his telegram to Cloutier Saturday night, and he Sel a 5 p.m. deadline Monday for Cloutier to reply or "...we will be compelled to resort to our available remedies."

He did not say what those remedies might be.

Patrick said Monday he had not received the reply, but he said the strict deadline was "no big thing. I just wanted to put the time thing on it so it wouldn't drag on forever."

Cloutier said earlier on Monday he intended to reply. "I suppose I owe them the Cloutier said, however, he would not release his reply to the news media before he knows that Patrick has received it. "It's a matter of courtesy. I think a person should receive it prior to the time the public Patrik said the initial dispute with USAC and the Speedway was that the CART owners "just wanted more input into the management.

Greg Luzinski sparks Philadelphia rally

By The Associated Press When you need a spark, how about Greg Luzinski for starters?

"Greg is our key - no doubt about it," says Philadelphia Phillies teammate Mike Schmidt. "He gets us going." Like Monday night, when the Philadelphia outfielder slugged a two-run homer in the sixth to the 10th, Schmidt had tied it at 3-3 with an RBI single in the eighth. It was mildly surprising that Schmidt was in the lineup at all. The third baseman had severely bruised his right thumb on Saturday and only appeared in Sunday's loss to the New York Mets as a pinch runner and defensive player. "I didn't even ask him how it felt," Manager Danny Ozark said. "I just puut his name in the lineup and he went out and Cardinals 3, Braves 2

Jerry Mumphrey's two-out single drove in the winning run in the 10th inning as St. Louis edged Atlanta. Tony Scott beat out a two-out infield single, then stole second and went to third when catcher Dale Murphy's throw sailed into center field.

Mumphrey then lined his single just over the outstretched glove of shortstop Pepe Frias as the Cardinals defeated Phil Niekro, who had carried a six-hit shutout into the ninth before giving up two runs. Rangers 5, Blue Jays 0

Doyle Alexander and Jim Kern, backed by a club record-tying five double plays. combined on a three-hitter to pitch Texas over Toronto. Alexander, who had been hit of doubles, drove in two runs and scored one to help Kansas City beat Chicago. Left-hander Paul Splittorff evened his record at 2-2 with relief help from Al Hrabosky. Chicago starter Rich Wortham lost his first game in four decisions.

"Hungo came in and did a heck of a job," Kansas City outfielder Willie Wilson said of Hrabosky, who put out the Chicago fire in the eighth. "I Frank White smacked a pair wanted to kiss him.'

Officials check Olympic fundraisers

Mantle dreams of comeback

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) Mickey Mantle, 11 years after belting his last baseball out of Yankee Stadium, still goes back requently - in his dreams.

"I still dream almost every night that I'm trying to make a comeback ... If I get a hit, I can't un to first base. They always just nick me," he said.

Or. "I'm riding in a cab dressed in my uniform, and as we pull up by the park. I can hear on the loud speaker, 'Now batting, No. 7, Mickey Mantle. When I get out of the cab, every gate to the stadium is locked, The got to crawl under afence to get in.'

Mantle finds it impossible to get his New York Yankee superstar days out of his

Q. I live in Texas and for years I've been using the juice of a cut aloe vera plant to treat common household burns. I notice immediate relief from the pain and I swear that the burn goes away much faster. I have passed this home remedy around to friends, neighbors and relatives and everyone agrees that it is much better than anything you can buy in a drugstore.

When I told my doctor about aloe vera the other day he just laughed. He said that it had been tested and proved ineffective. Adding insult to injury he told me that if I believed in it hard enough. it probably would work, but that it wasn't any better than a cream or ointment. Who is right? My experience says aloe vera does work!

A. You are not the first person who has written to tell me that they have used aloe vera successfully in treating burns. It has been a popular home remedy for this and other skin problems for many years. In fact, there is evidnece that aloe vera was used as long ago as the 16th century for treating burns and wounds.

Your doctor was probably referring to a study done by Dr. Truman Blocker in the late 1950s for the U.S. Army. Apparently Dr. Blocker's research showed that the aloe plant was ineffective. Nevertheless, common sense and practical experience do have a place in this

The juice from the aloe vera plant will keep air away from the wound and that will reduce the pain. Whether there is some special property about the plant that speeds recovery has yet to be proven "scientifically" but if it works, great! Some doctors even use aloe vera to treat poison ivy and I personally have used aloe vera for my burns and I think it works, too.

For mild household burns it is always a good idea to get the burn under cold water as fast as possible. Use wet towels soaked in ice water or cold water. If you act quickly enough not only will the pain disappear but the seriousness of the burn can be dramatically reduced. Reep the burned skin in water until the pain is gone. Then give the aloe vera a try.

There are lots of home remedies that really do work and experience is as good a teacher as anything else.

Q. My husband says I'm going bananas. For the last several weeks I swear I have been hearing ringing and roaring in my ears. He says it's "all in my head." Well, I know it's in my head. What I want to know is how to get it out!

A. It sure sounds like you have something the doctors call tinnitus. According to the National Institute of Health, some 37 million people suffer from this problem at one time or another. There are many causes of ringing, roaring, hissing, humming, clicking, or whatever. One of the first things to check for would be drugs. There are some medications, particularly aspirin, that can cause ringing in the ears. If you have been taking a large dose lately or if you have been combining big amounts of aspirin and Vitamin C you may be seeing the first signs of aspirin toxicity. Other drugs that may cause a similar reaction include Ouinine (Quinamm) and Streptomycin.

If you cannot relate the ringing to any drug you have been taking it could well be caused by something else. High blood pressure, wax against the eardrum, or an infection are just a few possibilities.

Commissioners hold special session

WHEELER - The Wheeler County Commissioners met in special session Monday to discuss the final phase of remodeling the county offices in Shamrock

The Comissioners Court examined bids for carpeting the 180 square feet of offices that house the Wheeler County Deputy Sheriff's office, the Justice of the Peace, the Wheeler County Dispatcher, the Shamrock Volunteer Fire Department and the Shamrock City Police

County Judge Wendell Morgan said the commissioners approved a bid of $7.69 per square yard for carpeting and labor in the offices.

"That is the last part of the remodeling." Morgan said. "We had a lower bid for some different carpet but the material we decided on was of better quality and will give us better service.

The cost the carpet was estimated at $1,400 and the total cost of the remodeling project will be $15,000 to $18,000.

Bred to outproduce NK 222!

2022 from Northrup King has all the fine characteristics of popular NK222 but with higher yields and greenbug resistance added. In NK trials 2022 outyielded NK222 by 88% under severe greenbug infestation. 2022 also has strong standability and quick dry-down for clean, efficient harvesting. It is an excellent hybrid or this area.
