Russian violations would be easier to spot

Carter plugs new treaty

NEW YORK (AP) — President Carter declared today that the United States will be able to tell whether the Russians are cheating on a new strategic arms limitation treaty from the moment it is signed.

Campaigning for support of the yet-to-be completed treaty, Carter told the American Newspaper Publishers Association in a prepared speech that the nation is faced with the choice of a possibly imperfect treaty or "a dark nightmare of unrestrained arms competition."

In appealing to the publishers to help explain the treaty to their readers, Carter clearly hoped to gain votes for ratification when the agreement is sealed and submitted to the Senate later in the year.

Once again, Carter described the treaty as nearly complete, an optimistic report he has given to several groups. It gave no inkling what remains in the way of a final agreement.

But State Department officials said privately there would have to be at least one more, and possibly several, negotiating sessions between Secretary of State Cyrus R.

Vance and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin.

They said not to expect an announcement of a final agreement before early next week, if that soon.

One issue known to be unresolved is whether the treaty would have to be wrapped up before Carter held a summit meeting with Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev or whether they could leave some final details to be cleared away there.

Following the speech, possibly his most extensive defense of U.S. arms policy, Carter planned to attend a town meeting and a Democratic fund raiser in New Hampshire before flying home to the White House.

In his speech, Carter dealt directly with the issue of verification, which looms as possibly the most explosive aspect of debate over treaty ratification.

He insisted that the treaty monitoring stations in Iran, which provided a ringside view of Soviet rocket launchings, deprived the United States of only one of many intelligence sources.

"We are concerned with that loss, but we must keep it in perspective," Carter said.

He said the stations, which were closed by Iran's revolutionary regime, helped mostly to check on the way the Soviets modernize their missiles — and on only a part of that process.

Photographic satellites and other systems enable the United States to look over the Russians' shoulders with great accuracy, Carter said.

"There is no question that any cheating which might affect our national security would be discovered in time for us to respond fully," he said.

Assault suspect in jail

A Pampa man remains in Gray County Jail today under $2500 bond after allegedly assaulting a police officer with a screwdriver following the crash of his car into a local residence.

Hoyt LaRue of Rt. 1, Pampa, was charged with driving under the influence of drugs, failure to leave information at the scene of an accident and no driver's license after his 1963 Chevy reportedly crashed into the fence and house of a Clark Street residence shortly before 11 a.m. Tuesday, causing an estimated $250 in damage.

Police said LaRue attempted to run from the scene but was apprehended by Officer George Keeley. LaRue reportedly cut Keeley in the right side with a screwdriver. The officer did not require hospitalization.

LaRue's bond was set Tuesday by Justice of the Peace Otto Mangold.

Band gets top rating

The Pampa Middle School Band won first division in University Scholastic League (UIL) Class C concert and sight reading competition Tuesday at the Amarillo Civic Center.

The band, directed by Joe DiCosimo, was one of about 16 ensembles competing and was the first band to perform. Only the Pampa and Canyon bands received the first division rating. The middle school band made second division in marching competition in October.

The Pampa High School Band is competing today in Class 4A competition in Amarillo.

City to research growth ordinance

By JOHN PRICE
Pampa News Staff

A proposed ordinance giving the city approval over plating of land within a five-mile radius of Pampa was questioned by landowners during a public hearing conducted Tuesday afternoon by the city commission.

City officials couldn't answer all the questions, and admitted they will have to further research the ordinance and bring more information to the next commission meeting.

The purpose of the ordinance, according to officials, is to provide for orderly city growth. Landowners dividing their property for development would have to submit a plat to the city planning and zoning commission for approval before filing the plat with the county.

Fred Hughes, owner of two acres northeast of the city, asked what would happen if a street eventually ran through a building on his land. City Attorney Don Lane told him the ordinance would not be retroactive and would only affect future development.

E.D. Herlacher asked if landowners selling property outside of Pampa would have to get city approval.

"As best as I understand it that's not the intent of the statute," Lane said. "It's not intended to prevent someone from selling land."

The commission took no action on the ordinance after closing the public hearing.

The annexation of Country Garden Estates, a planned industrial subdivision located at the intersection of Kentucky Avenue and Price Road, was approved Tuesday.

The commission agreed to zone the subdivision as "light industry," allow strip paving and storage of explosives on the property, delay compliance with the sanitary sewer system until the city extends a sewer line to the area and allow oil drilling on the property to continue.

Commissioners authorized the firm of Merriman & Barber to prepare plans and specifications for a street maintenance program. About $150,000 has been budgeted for the program. Wofford said that amount is too small to finance street improvements, and "in view of the wet and cold winters we've had the last couple of years" he recommended using the money to seal-coat the streets.

Gene Barber of Merriman & Barber said the budgeted money is enough to seal-coat about 250,000 square yards of street. He suggested city crews "skip around town" and coat the worst sections of pavement.

The commission set May 22 as the day to receive bids for seal-coating materials.

Bids totalling $26,493.74 for the purchase of five new city vehicles were awarded to two local automobile dealerships. A bid for three half-ton pickup trucks for the park department and a four-door sedan for the tax department was awarded to Culberson - Stowers Chevrolet Inc. Harold Barrett Ford Inc. was awarded a bid for the purchase of another four-door sedan, also for the tax department.

The commission wrapped up its meeting by authorizing an amendment concerning maternity benefits to the city's health insurance contract with Blue Cross - Blue Shield.

Under the Pregnancy Disability Act, which becomes effective May 1, employers are required to provide the same health care benefits for pregnancy and its related conditions as they do for any illness. The city will have to pay $1.80 per month for additional coverage.

For Doris Price

Memories remain

By EUGENE LAYCOCK
Pampa News Staff

As one of the founding teachers of Stephen F. Austin elementary school, Doris Price says she will leave with many good memories when she retires at the end of this school year.

The fifth grade teacher said she has taught everything from beginners classes to high school history, and her career in education can be charted on map.

Stops in Durham and Sweetwater, Okla., California, Amarillo and Canadian all preceded her Pampa tenure.

She taught in Durham three times, in Sweetwater twice. Her broad experience represents 41 years with kids — 23 of which were spent at the red brick schoolhouse on Duncan Street.

She said Joe Page had to take her to her first teachers' meeting in Pampa because she had no idea where it was. He introduced her to D.V. Biggers, the principal at the time.

Mrs. Price, Biggers, Page and Bill Jones, the present principal, have worked at Austin since it opened its doors 23 years ago. But Mrs. Price is the only founding teacher left.

"I've had only one parent that talked mean to me," she said. "I felt this person needed help more than I did, so I didn't let it bother me."

"I always enjoy going to the mailbox and finding a nice note or card from some student," she added.

"Sometimes I'm sad when I read or hear about one of my students having trouble, especially when I know they have wonderful parents," she said.

She has taught the parents of some of her students and some people who are now grandparents.

"It's different now than when I started," she said, reflecting on the years.

She said she started teaching in country schools, where the kids were around the facts of life more. "The kids thought differently about their language," she said.

She remembered one of her first classes with several boys, who were big for their age.

"It was either them or me," she said, "and it turned out well for both of us."

The main concern of an elementary teacher now is discipline, she said, and "I am with them (the children) more than their parents.

"Students are taught manners in my class," she said. They learn to sit and stand correctly, as well as proper dining habits.

She said she likes to compliment students when they are well-behaved and well-mannered.

Looking back, Mrs. Price listed the components of the teacher formula. They are patience, willingness to learn, hard work, some inspiration, motivation and determination.

"I have been fortunate to teach with a wonderful group of dedicated teachers who also have a great sense of humor," she said.

While teachers want their students to excel, "some parents will not cooperate," she said.

"But that doesn't keep them (teachers) from having an interest in the child."

She and her husband have many friends in the area and plan to retire here.

"Maybe we will go to the farm at Durham once in a while, or visit our son, David and wife Jai Jai who live in Oklahoma City," she said.

She said that they also plan to spend time traveling, as well as hosting some visitors at their home.

Regular executive sessions to continue

By DAN LACEY
Pampa News Staff

Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy said Monday he will continue to schedule executive sessions for every meeting of the commissioners court whether or not business allowed by law for closed session discussion has been presented to the court prior to the typing of the agenda.

In a policy apparently unprecedented in local county government, Kennedy has scheduled executive sessions for personnel matters in each of seven regular meetings and two special meetings of the court this year. But the county judge says he isn't sure how many times the court has actually met in executive session since he took office in January.

"We schedule them (executive sessions) in case anything comes up at the last minute," Kennedy said. "Sometimes we would pass over the closed meeting if there wasn't any business to discuss in executive session."

Kennedy said the court might have met

"three or four times" in closed session but said he could not say for certain.

Records of when the court has gone into executive session have not been kept, according to County Clerk Wanda Carter. Carter said it "seemed like the court had met (in closed session) more than four times," but said she couldn't be certain.

The county clerk's office records only specific actions and votes taken by the court and does not include specific minutes of discussion.

Carter said it "seemed as if the court had met in executive session much more than in the past." She said the meetings "might have been because of discussion of the hospital situation."

The county clerk usually remains in court for executive sessions.

Kennedy said that all of the issues discussed in executive session concerned personnel matters. He said the hospital situation and other business "might have been brought up, but it wasn't the purpose of the sessions."

"The important thing is that no official actions were taken," Kennedy said. "No decisions were made that weren't made in open court," he said.

The Texas law on public meetings allows governmental bodies to meet in closed session regarding "the appointment, employment, evaluation, reassignment, duties, discipline, or dismissal of a public officer or employee or to hear complaints or charges against such employee."

The public may also be excluded from portions of meetings which include discussions of the "purchase, lease, exchange, or value of real property, negotiated contracts... when such discussion would have a detrimental effect on the negotiating position of the government body as between... a third person, firm, or corporation."

All votes and actions must be made in open session. The law also apparently prohibits deliberation by a quorum of members on any issue not covered as an executive session item.

Kennedy said "personnel matters" was a broad term under which commissioners could "deal with people in general" during executive session.

But the county judge said he saw no reason for discussion to be confined strictly to personnel matters.

"As a practical matter, if you want to discuss whatever comes up... then no one is injured by that. But you know, when five people are talking, it's hard to stay on the track."

But Bill Reid, an attorney with the State Attorney General's Office, said "Under the law, all meetings are required to be open unless it is to discuss one of the subjects specified by the closed meeting. Any deviation from the subject is not provided for in the law."

Three commissioners discussing a public issue on which the court would be acting over coffee would be a violation of the public meetings law, Reid said.

Kennedy said the letter of the provision would be "awfully hard to enforce. How would you police something like that? Would you listen in on conversations commissioners might be having?"

O.L. Presley (Precinct 1, Lefors) said the court had discussed in executive session "how hospital personnel were taking the leasing of the hospital. There was discussion about how people out there were taking it. There was concern for employees."

Ted Simmons (Precinct 4, McLean) said one of the main items of the executive sessions was discussion of the future of retirement benefits of county employees after the leasing of the hospital.

"There were several complaints, but we had to weigh the few affected by retirement against the many benefited by the lease of the hospital," he said.

The loss of hospital personnel as county employees meant that remaining county employees cannot expect cost of living increases in their pensions.

Simmons said the court also discussed the appointment of Dr. E.C. Hoffer to the hospital board. Hoffer's appointment had been questioned in a deposition by Pampa broadcaster Richard Levofsky. Hoffer is contracted for weekend Emergency Room services at Highland General. The commissioners court had tabled discussion on the appointment pending the leasing of the hospital.

Simmons did not know how many times the court had met in executive session this year but estimated "three or four times."

Kennedy said Tuesday he will continue to schedule automatic executive sessions "as just executive sessions, so that a broader range of discussion could be included."

Kennedy said he would get an opinion from the Attorney General on the legality of the designation before proceeding.

The public meetings law says that government bodies may not meet in executive session unless the agenda identifies the section or sections under the act authorizing the closing of the meetings.

Keeping pace with federal controls

Although there is a direct relationship, it is a good thing the percentage of increase in our foreign oil dependence has not kept pace with the pages of federal regulations. There has been a 305-per cent increase in such pages since 1970. Elspeth D. Rostow, dean of the School of Public Affairs at the University of Texas, said there were 20,000 pages of regulations in 1970 and 61,000 pages of regulations in 1978. She said the massive regulatory complex has done no good and a lot of harm for the nation's energy predicament.

Mrs. Rostow was speaking at the annual convention of the Gas Processors Association. She said, "The National Gas Policy Act, which provides for the deregulation of new natural gas prices by 1985 is a highly intricate piece of legislation." She said the act to increase gas prices actually has stifled new drilling.

"We can't afford that now, in time of energy crisis," Mrs. Rostow said. "We're stagnating our own production while demand for oil imports is increasing. That means the country is increasingly in hock to oil exporting nations, and that has a poor effect on the balance of payments and the whole economy."

The oil problem, she said, is flooding the world with United States dollars and, as long as it continues, the dollar won't seek a fair level in relation to other currencies but will continue to decline in value. "Unless we get a shift in public policy, the auguries for the future are ominous."

Mrs. Rostow advocated deregulation and noted this would start the production end of the equation. She said the nation has already done well with the conservation end of that equation.

We think the lady is right on track with her analysis of our energy problem. It would be nice if we could say that Washington was listening. We are most certain it is not. There is little to gain for anyone in the vast bureaucracy and less for incumbent elected officials for them to face economic reality.

To shrink regulatory activity is to lower the career opportunities for agency officials and their staffs. Elected politicians find their chances to make political hay in crises. So, if they don't have one handy, they can be expected to manufacture one.

The energy crisis was the child of Washington and its regulations. Officials could pretend they were championing consumers as they held fuel prices down to the point where shortages were sure to ensue. Now that shortages have made us dependent upon foreign sources, the only Washington answer is more of the same.

As more knowledgeable people speak out, there may be some chance that the public will not be so easily conned by government controllers. More people are speaking out. We are especially pleased to see academicians taking the antiregulation stance.

Mrs. Rostow mentioned we needed some kind of cost-benefit consideration in the area of environmental concern. "The problem is that the environmentalists single-mindedly are trying to save the environment. The inflation fighters are trying to hold costs down. Energy producers are single-mindedly trying to produce more energy and none seem willing to compromise."

Energy producers are not all lily-white in seeking compromise, but it is our observation that there is much more active effort being done for environmental improvement on the part of industry than effort on the part of environmental activists to cooperate in assisting energy fuel production.

The antiproduction activists do assist the economy as they use the products of our good life. They spur productivity in this small way even as they attempt to impede progress.

Quietly winning women

Jane Byrne, the first woman ever elected mayor of Chicago, has become a national celebrity, but similar fame has not yet been visited upon Lila Cockrell, Margaret Hance, Dianne Feinstein or Janet Gray Hayes.

Those four women are also mayors of major American cities, each with a population of more than 500,000. They're also part of a trend that went virtually unnoticed until Ms. Byrne emerged as Chicago's leading politician.

While national women's political organizations in recent years have committed most of their time, money and other resources to electing women to seats in Congress or governorships, numerous female politicians have quietly been winning mayor elections.

Ms. Cockrell is mayor in San Antonio, Texas; Ms. Hance in Phoenix, Ariz.; Ms. Feinstein in San Francisco, and Mrs. Hayes in San Jose, Calif.

These other women currently serve as mayors to cities with populations of more than 100,000.

In search of Nessie

One sure sign that summer is just around a corner or two is the annual announcement that the search for the legendary monster of Scotland's Loch Ness is resuming.

In the past, divers, electronic listening devices, under-water cameras and just about every other aid short of ESP has been used without resolving the mystery of Nessie's existence. This year, Boston's Academy of Applied Science is bringing in reinforcement that will be in their element: Dolphins.

Two have been in training all winter in Patience Latting in Oklahoma City; Carole K. McClellan in Austin, Texas; Connie A. Peters in Wichita, Kan.; Helen G. Boosalis in Lincoln, Neb.; Isabella Cannon in Raleigh, N.C.; and Marian P. Whitehurst in Chesapeake, Va.

California has, by far, the greatest number of women mayors. In addition to San Francisco and San Jose, the 19 cities in that category include Santa Monica, San Gabriel, Hayward, Bellflower, Simi Valley, Thousand Oaks, Walnut Creek, Vallejo and Whittier.

Like their male counterparts, the women fit no common mold. There are Republicans and Democrats, liberals and conservatives. Some are doing an outstanding job, others are not faring as well.

What most do share, however is an exceptional opportunity to exert influence at the state and national levels of politics and to advance to higher office themselves.

Florida for the summer's search. They will be released into Loch Ness carrying cameras and strobelights attached to special harnesses.

There is some concern about their safety, not from the menace of Nessie but the lake's icy waters, which they are not accustomed to.

But look at it this way. Maybe the concern should really be about Nessie. An underwater encounter with anything trussed up like those two dolphins will be enough to scare the scales off any monster.

The IRS: Chamber of Horrors

By ROBERT LEFEVRE

It was during World War II that my first opportunity came. When visiting London, in the midst of the buzz-bombing, I made a trip to see the world famous Madame Tussaud's Wax Museum. Duplications of this pioneering concept have since appeared in many lands.

The wax figures on display in London are surely among the finest ever made. I was impressed by life-like appearance, posture and costuming. And I actually saw a man go up to what he took to be a wax figure, take hold of a sleeve to examine the weave, only to have the figure come to life, reprimand the trespasser for the unwelcome liberty, leaving the visitor with face aflame. The proprietress invariably had a few persons dressed like several of the models standing about. It was told that it was common to have a sightseer ask a question of a wax dummy.

What impressed me most, however, was the sub-sub-basement of the museum. This had been named the "Chamber of Horrors." In it were the wax figures of some of the most famous and most violent criminals who had ever lived. I went in expecting to find a score or so of models with depravity, cruelty and viciousness stamped on their features. What hit me like a bucket of ice water was the normal and even handsome appearance some of these arch-fiends possessed. To look at these true-to-life models was to grasp the fact that villainy lurks behind many a placid and unruffled brow.

If a person's actions are ultimately stamped upon his countenance as we all imagine after reading Dorian Gray, it must surely take a long time for the tell-tale signs to appear. It is, rather, a conspicuous fact that most of the people who do wrongful, injurious acts to others, do so without a troubled conscience. Murder, rapine, and destruction are imposed by some upon others with the cold-blooded detachment with which a person could order a hamburger.

Legalized Mafia

It is with this thought in mind that I now draw your attention to the Internal Revenue Service. This is the time of year when it is difficult not to think of the IRS at least part of the time. And what is this agency?

It is, without a doubt, an agency which imposes cruelty and destruction upon millions of innocent people with the calm demeanor and detachment of the enforcers who worked with Al Capone in the Chicago underworld. The IRS is, in all respects, a legalized Mafia. The damage done by the non-legal branches of the Syndicate don't hold a candle to the abuse, persecution, and downright viciousness delivered with icy calm by this modern and totally lawful branch of public theft.

The men and women who work for the IRS are well-dressed, often natty and neat in their appearance. They are soft-spoken and rarely raise their voices. Indeed, as I am beginning to realize, if their attitudes matched the character of their behavior, the American public would be up in arms against them. The IRS gets away with grand theft, burglary and petty larceny not only because it is backed legally but because of the same noteworthy characteristic of the arch-criminals immortalized in the Chamber of Horrors. The agents of these crimes appear to be totally normal. How is this possible?

It is clearly because the people working for the IRS have simply accepted the popular fallacies of our time. They are obeying the current philosophy, which is this: What a person earns, by his own effort and time expended, isn't his. It belongs to the owner of the person, which is his government. Thus the employees of the IRS accept the notion that while it is wrong for a private citizen to own a slave, it is not wrong for the federal government to own everyone and to make slaves of the entire populace. Thus, whether they are aware of it or not, the IRS personnel are enforcers of slavery. Theirs not to reason why. Theirs to disregard the character of their actions.

Slave Masters

Does that strike you as harsh? Well, ask yourself what the definition of a slave is. Clearly a slave and a prisoner are different people who are treated in widely divergent ways. A prisoner is locked up and cared for by his jailer. A slave is put to work and the products he produces belong to his owner. True, no slave is ever totally robbed of everything he produces. Were that to occur, every slave would die.

In order to see that slaves continue to live, a portion of what they produce must be retained by the slave of his own maintenance and survival. Like the care given to a machine, there is the cost of upkeep. The machine (as well as the slave) must be maintained.

The single characteristic which separates those who are free from those who are enslaved is determined by the nature of the authority over them. If a person goes to work and decides with his own wisdom and conscience how he will allocate his resources, he is a free being. If a person goes to work and another party decides how his production is to be allocated, even though some of the production is allocated for the continued existence of the producer, such a person is a slave.

Thus, a free being controls himself and expends his own energies and the products of his own labor. He may do so wisely or foolishly. But he, himself, decides. A slave is controlled by someone other than himself. The authority above the slave decides how much of the slave's production is to be allocated to the owner and how much the slave may allocate to himself.

Thus as it works out, the people who hold jobs in the IRS are slave masters. They are the bosses, and you and I the slaves. We have little or no authority over ourselves; our bosses have the sovereign position. The IRS bosses decide - according to law, of course - just what each of us must hand over. The IRS comes first. After those demands are met we slaves may do as we please with what is left.

"We'd make a great team, Marcia — my Master Charge, your Visa — my Diners Club, your Carte Blanche — my Exxon, your Texaco —"

IN WASHINGTON

Not so scandalous

martha angle and robert walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Deprecating the importance of a government scandal is an act that borders on heresy in this city because graft and corruption have long been an integral part of Washington's allure in the provinces.

But a critical examination of recent developments at the General Services Administration serves a higher cause than the advancement of iconoclasm because there is disturbing evidence of reckless behavior in the handling of the Great GSA Scandal of 1978.

Since last spring, GSA officials have variously proclaimed that the agency's yearly losses due to fraud, corruption and waste amounted to $66 million, $100 million, $166 million, $185 million or $200 million.

At one congressional hearing, agency policymakers were asked to explain those disparate estimates. "In that kind of thing," confessed Vincent R. Aloto, then in charge of the probe, "it is almost impossible to come up with a definitive figure."

Howard R. Davia, GSA's director of audits, explained that he identified $3 billion worth of annual procurement activities "most vulnerable to fraud," then applied "my professional estimate" of a 2 percent loss due to corruption.

But, Davia admitted, "I actually erred on that" because he somehow missed another $1.5 billion in annual GSA purchases while making the original computations.

So Davia went back to his calculator for revised figures, then proudly announced that "our potential for fraud jumps up to almost $100 million a year."

Mind-boggling

Officials in the House and Senate are cracking down on legislators who allow the name of Congress to be used in peddling everything from political causes to commercial products - but the new rules unfortunately don't apply to former member of Congress.

As a result, a Texas company and an ex-congressman from Louisiana have teamed up to sell life insurance under the deceptive title of the "U.S. Congressman Program."

They've printed a letterhead dominated by a large photograph of the Capitol building and the legend "United States Congressman" in the same Old English typeface used by Congress for its official stationery.

The mass mailing program carries an equally elaborate Washington D.C. return address, but the entire operation is being orchestrated by a Dallas-based firm, Financial Planning Services of America.

The legislator involved is former Rep. John R. Rarick, D-La., who served in fact, GSA officials have no solid information whatever on the actual amount of their losses.

Perhaps more significant, a 2 percent loss rate in a $5 billion - a year purchasing operation is amazingly low in comparison with far smaller commercial wholesale and retail firms that regularly experience losses of 5 percent.

Benjamin R. Civiletti, whose credentials as a crime fighter include his past tenure as head of the Justice Department's criminal division and his current title of deputy attorney general, explains the situation this way:

"GSA is in the business of buying and selling goods and services on a massive scale. Whenever you're in that business, there is thievery and fraud. Banks have it, oil companies have it, auto companies have it."

GSA's fast - and - loose attitude toward numbers also was illustrated by an agency estimate that as much as 25 percent of the $38 billion in goods ordered each year by its percent of the $38 billion in goods ordered each year by its retail stores never reaches those outlets because of fraud.

A high-ranking agency official later admitted, however, that more than half of that merchandise was shipped directly from GSA warehouses and "there is little likelihood that anything would occur there because there is no middleman in between."

Finally, there's the matter of Art Metal-U.S.A., Inc., GSA's leading supplier of steel office furniture. Earlier this year, GSA awarded the company a $9.4 million contract for vertical file cabinets, then cancelled the award only hours later.

GSA Administrator Joel W. (Jay) Solomon explained that he was "distressed because of stories in the paper" about allegedly faulty and inferior furniture purchased from the Newark, N.J., corporation in the past.

After the company challenged the decision in U.S. District Court here, a federal judge ruled that GSA illegally "blacklisted" the firm even though "the lack of substantiating evidence was well known."

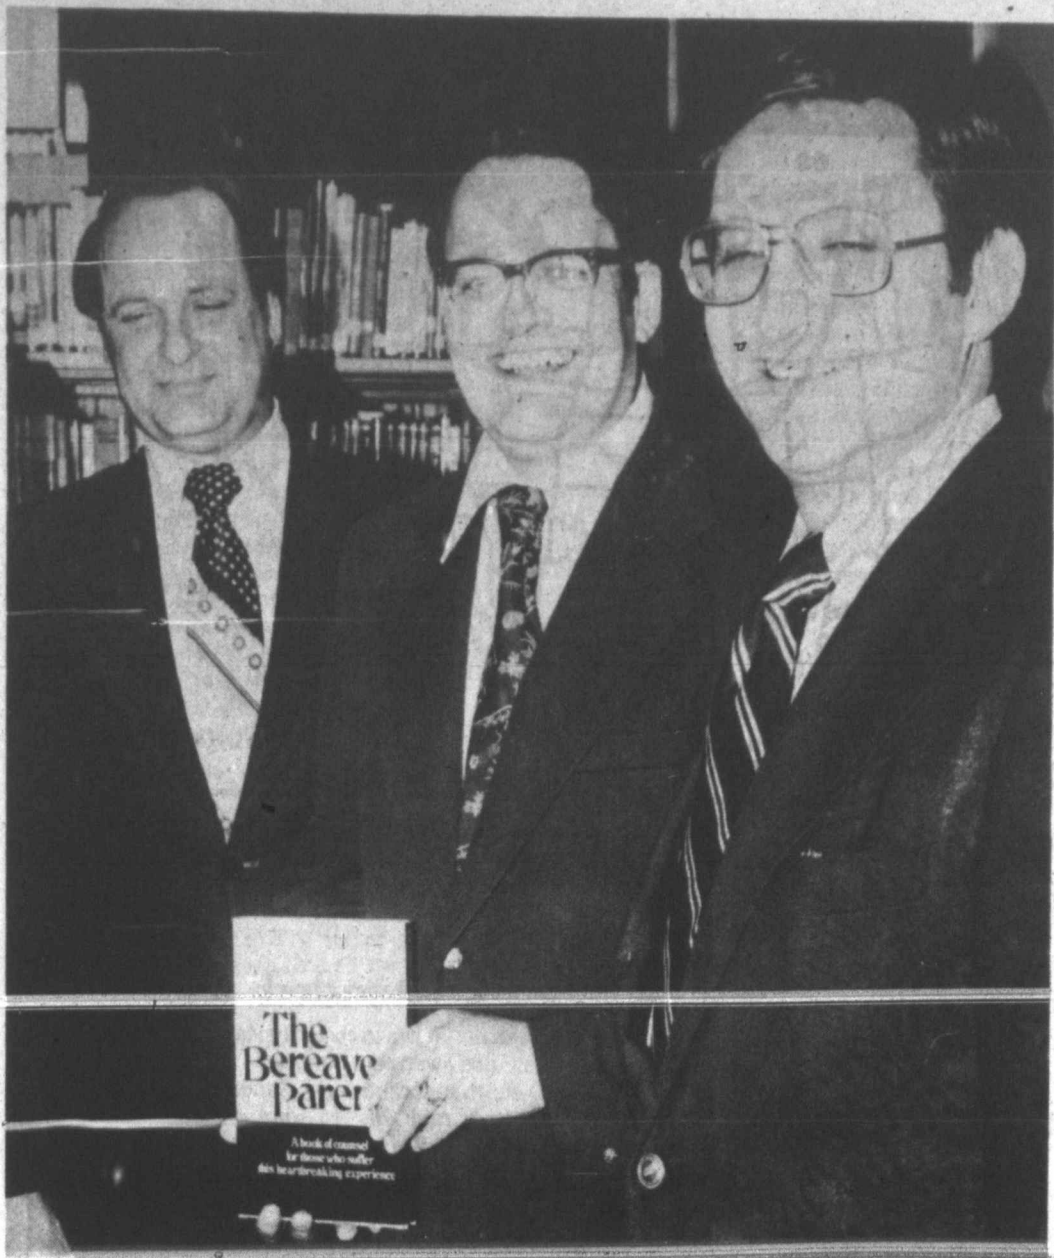

The judge concluded that GSA's "primary concern" in voiding the contract was "public relations," then added:

"Our system of laws does not operate on the principle of the Queen in Alice of Wonderland - 'Sentence first, verdict afterwards.' It requires evidence to come first."

There's no doubt that graft and corruption have flourished within the government's purchasing agency. But GSA officials have ill-served their cause with frequent misrepresentations and a shoot-from-the-hip attitude toward reform.

Berry's World

"It's been that way at the oil company headquarters, ever since Carter announced oil price decontrols would start June First."

Cuevas convicted second time

HOUSTON (AP) — Death by injection or a second life sentence once again face convicted murderer Ignacio Cuevas today as the jury that declared him guilty of causing the death of a prison librarian decides his punishment.

Cuevas' conviction Tuesday by a six-man, six-woman jury was his second for causing the death of Julia Standley during a bloody, 1974 escape attempt from a state prison following an 11-day siege — the longest in U.S. penal history.

Mrs. Standley and another librarian hostage, Elizabeth

Beseda, were shot to death as three convicts attempted to escape from a prison unit called The Walls in Huntsville.

Fred Carrasco, Rudolph Dominguez and Cuevas, who was serving 45 years on a 1971 murder conviction, hid within a moveable shield of lawbooks and chalkboards surrounded by 11 handcuffed hostages.

Carrasco, Dominguez and the two female hostages were shot to death as they attempted to move down a ramp from the third-floor prison library to an armored truck waiting at the bottom.

Cuevas lived to be tried in 1975, and was convicted by a nine-man, three-woman jury that deliberated a little more than two hours. The jury took 20 hours to recommend that he be given the death penalty.

After more than three years on death row, he was granted a new trial by the state Court of Criminal Appeals on the ground of a judicial error.

Tuesday's verdict came just five hours after deliberations began.

The jury sent several notes to District Judge Miron Love asking for testimony from three hostages, two of whom were taken inside the shield by the inmates prior to the escape attempt.

He asked the jurors to be more specific, and the jury's final note to Love at about 3:30 p.m. told him it had reached an impasse until it could hear testimony concerning how the inmates and hostages had entered the shield and who was handcuffed to whom.

The jury entered the courtroom at about 5 p.m., listened for about 30 minutes to the re-reading of testimony from hostages Rev. Joseph O'Brien, Novella Pollard and Dr. Ronald Robinson, then returned to its deliberations.

Cuevas, who sat impassively during the reading of the verdict, was escorted from the courtroom, accompanied by his attorneys. His wife and four young children, who had been present at the reading of the verdict, also left immediately.

Senators say no to bilingual bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas state senators have refused to order an additional two years of bilingual instruction that the State Board of Education also has rejected.

Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, says he will try to switch two votes and ask the Senate to reconsider his bill that failed Tuesday to get enough support to merit floor debate.

"The whole purpose of the program is to help children stay in school, become fluent in English and do good in school," said Truan.

"We're not mandating something," e added. "The local school district still would identify the children who need the program."

The sponsor needed 21 votes to bring up the bill, but senators voted 19-12.

Local schools must provide access to bilingual instruction in kindergarten through the third grade if there are at least 20 children within a grade level who need it.

Truan wants bilingual classes added to the fourth and fifth grades. The State Board of Education refused to extend the program in November.

Opponents argued that more bilingual instruction could hurt children.

"I have a lot of sympathy with bilingual education through the third grade, but it's a crime to carry it any further," said Sen. Bill Moore, D-Bryan. "Educators tell me they can learn it in four years, from kindergarten to third grade."

Truan's bill would cost the state an additional $2 million in 1980 and $2.5 million in 1981. In addition to extending bilingual instruction, it would authorize schools to offer English improvement courses to Spanish-speaking pupils in the sixth to 12th grades.

Wiretapping bill blasted

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Senate bill which would legalize wiretapping in narcotics investigations was blasted Tuesday by a Texas Civil Liberties Union representative.

Citing a six-year study of a federal wiretapping law under which 2.7 million conversations were monitored, John Duncan said most convictions resulting from electronic surveillance involved gambling.

"We have seen the invasion of privacy of 200,000 Americans in an effort to close down bookie joints," he said.

Senate committee action on the bill was delayed after the sponsor was unable to secure six votes needed to send the measure to the floor.

The measure, sponsored by Sen. Ed Howard, D-Texas, permits wiretapping by Department of Public Safety agents investigating trafficking in narcotics.

Electronic surveillance could be authorized only by the presiding judge of the Court of Criminal Appeals acting on a request by a regional DPS office.

A provision of the bill allowing electronic surveillance in marijuana smuggling investigations has been dropped from the bill, Howard said.

Austin Police Chief Frank Dyson — who testified illicit narcotics business nets $160 million annual profit in the Austin area — said wiretapping would result in "better control of the organized drug traffic in this state."

Don Strickland, an assistant Harris County district attorney, said the major problem authorities face in battling narcotics traffic "is meeting people above the street level."

Walter C. McFarland of the DPS narcotics division said, "Wiretapping could be effective after other techniques prove fruitless."

Needing six votes to move the proposal to the floor, Howard scurried through Capitol corridors searching for Senate Jurisprudence Committee members attending other committee meetings.

After more than 30 minutes of fruitless searching, Howard said a committee vote on the proposal would be delayed until next Tuesday.

DECA chapter takes top mark

Pampa High School's Chapter of the Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) received first-place recognition in the DECA - Phillips Petroleum Company Free Enterprise Project chapter competition.

The local chapter was awarded $100 and is eligible to compete in the national contest May 8-13 in Houston.

The project, co-sponsored by Phillips and DECA, encourages all high school DECA members to have a better understanding of what the American free enterprise system means to the future and to communicate this understanding to others.

Several members of the local chapter wrote essays entitled "What Free Enterprise Means to My Future" for the project.

Posters promoting free enterprise were displayed in the business community as a part of the project, and brochures were mailed throughout the community.

Vocational banquet honors top students

The Industrial Cooperative Training programs selected Tom Cummings as its outstanding student.

For the Vocational Occupation Education (VOE) programs, Carla Schiffman was honored as the outstanding student, while Nysa Copeland was awarded as the high achiever of the VOE Co-op program.

Donna Baggett was named the Student of the Year for the Cooperative Agriculture program.

At the end of the banquet, state, area and local winners throughout the year were recognized for their outstanding achievements.

Weather Texas weather

By The Associated Press

Retreating floodwaters have left a trail of destruction in Southeast Texas where federal officials say a "tremendous number of homes" have been flooded by the murky spillage from swollen rivers.

The Neches River and Pine Island Bayou crested as predicted Tuesday and began to inch away from the 78,000 sandbags stacked in Jefferson and Hardin Counties.

More than 300 families still are isolated by water from Pine Island Bayou in the Lumberton area of Cook's Lake Road, but all sandbagging operations have been halted.

"With what we have seen, there's no doubt there are a tremendous number of homes are flooded," said Roy Smith, Federal Disaster Assistance Administration operations officer. Smith and other FDA surveyors flew over the soggy counties Tuesday. "There's no doubt in anyone's mind that the area needs federal assistance."

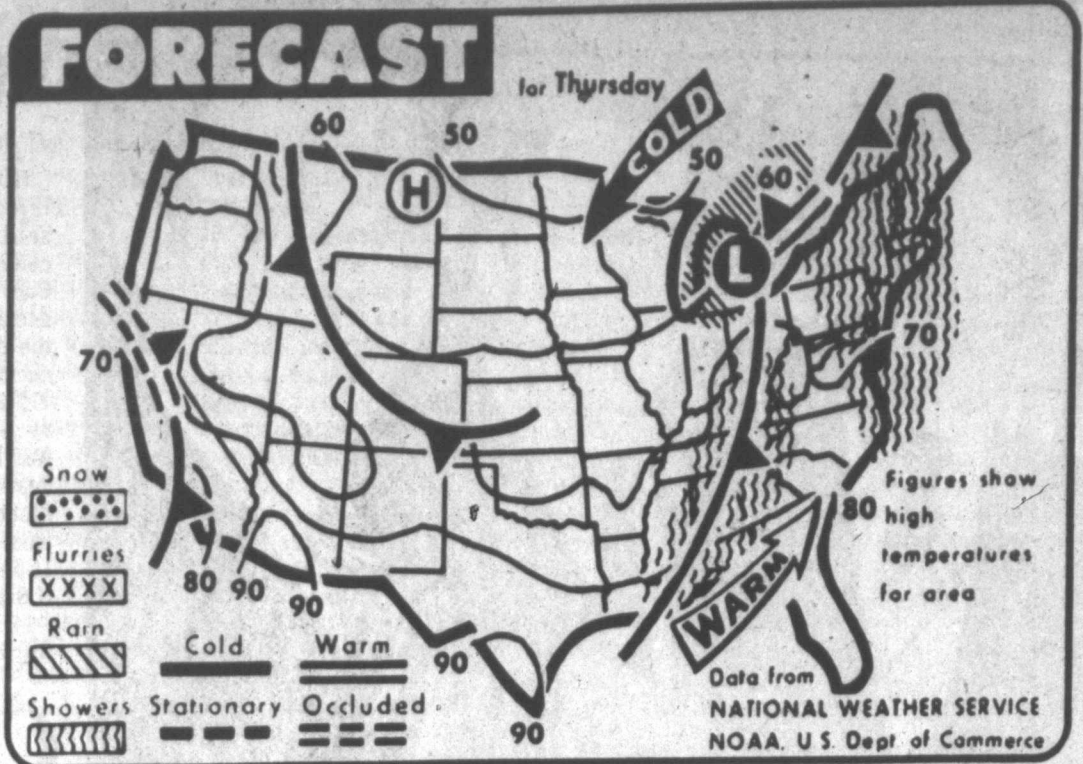

The U.S. Geological Survey reported spillage from the Pine Island Bayou had slowed from 22,000 cubic feet per second to 14,000 cubic feet per second. And emergency workers reported water that swirled out of Village Creek and into the Koutmze area of Hardin County was down to just over 20 feet Tuesday afternoon.

National weather

Scattered rain fell throughout the Mississippi Valley today and spread eastward into the Great Lakes region and Florida.

The wet weather hindered weary volunteers battling the rising Red River which climbed toward a record crest now expected on Thursday or Friday at Grand Forks, N.D.

Thundershowers also dampened the Gulf Coast states from eastern Louisiana to Florida where the heaviest rainfall occurred.

THE NATIONAL Weather Service predicts rain Thursday in parts of the Great Lakes region; showers in the Northeast and in a band from Ohio to the Gulf Coast. (AP Laserphoto)

Dear Abby

by abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband has told me that he wants to be cremated. Then his last wish is to have his ashes scattered over the local country club where he was turned down for membership three times. (He never did make it, so he joined another club.)

I told him I thought he was foolish to want his ashes scattered over a club that wouldn't accept him as a member, but he insists that this is the way he wants it and nobody is going to talk him out of it.

What do you think of his idea?

BETTER HALF

DEAR HALF: Permission is required to scatter one's ashes on private property, so tell your persistent husband that he probably won't have any better luck crashing that club after he makes an ash of himself than before.

DEAR ABBY: The letter about the 8-year-old girl who wanted a bra even though she didn't have anything to put in it reminded me of the following anecdote:

I was shopping in a large department store with my 12-year-old daughter and my 76-year-old grandmother whom we call Bubby.

My daughter dragged me over to look at some bras, although she didn't need one yet.

Bubby wanted to know what we were looking at, so my daughter told her she wanted a training bra.

Bubby asked, "What are you training your breasts to do?" Without blinking an eye, her great-granddaughter replied "To grow!" Bubby bought her the bra, thus closing a gap that spanned four generations!

NEWSDAY READER

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I will be going on our vacation soon. After much persuasion, we agreed to let our two sons, 17 and 19, stay home and "bach it."

We just learned they're planning to invite about 10 couples to a party at our house while we're gone.

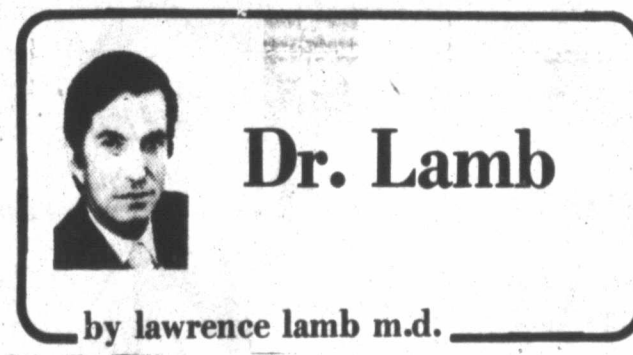

We firmly told them that they could have the party only if an aunt and uncle chaperoned it. The boys didn't like that idea, and suggested instead that a newly-married couple of their acquaintance be the chaperones. (This couple is about the age of our elder son.) My husband promptly vetoed that suggestion. We then gave the boys a choice of postponing the party until we return, have the party before we go, or having the aunt and uncle chaperone it. Well, their noses have been out of joint ever since.

Abby, my husband and I have looked forward to a well-earned vacation. We would not feel at ease unless we were reasonably certain that everything was all right at home. Do you think we are being fair in our demands?

MOM AND POP

DEAR M AND P.: Yes. And hooray for you and for all other parents who insist on having a clean-cut understanding of what their children may and may not do in their absence.

If you need help in writing letters of sympathy, congratulations or thank-you letters, get Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for all Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Leaky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212 by lawrence lamb m.d.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been a runner for over four-and-a-half years and have run over 18,000 miles. I ran the Boston marathon twice.

I have a callous which builds up on the ball of my right foot and becomes hard and often burns. I cut it down and use the sanding method. Can you recommend something to use on it?

I also have heard that runners will live 10 to 15 years longer. Once I was a near alcoholic but when I started running, I quit alcohol. Do you think the alcohol is out of my system by now? Anyway, I feel great from a 15-mile workout and I hope I run until I'm six feet under.

DEAR READER — Congratulations on kicking a bad habit and developing a good one. If everyone could make such important changes in life style, we'd have a lot less medical problems in our society.

Certainly you have no residuals of alcohol in your system at this time. Unfortunately, alcohol is a tissue toxin and some of the liver damage that it causes may persist. It's like any other tissue that injures and heals, it may cause scar tissue in the healing process. However, if you're doing as well as your letter suggests, I would suspect that you have little if any residual damage.

Now about that callous on your foot. That means that the ball of your right foot is bearing more weight than the rest of the foot. I suggest that you see an orthopedic specialist and let him fit your foot with a pad or insert that decreases the weight in that area.

A callous on the bottom of the foot is just like a callous on the hand. It's because of work rubbing and irritating that area. If you wear gloves on your hands, you're less likely to develop callouses on your palms. If you adequately protect an area that's responding in this way on the bottom of the foot, you'll have less problem from the callous.

Finally, about runners living longer. Many of them do. One of the reasons is because many of them are lean. The amount of exercise they do helps prevent obesity. That, in turn, decreases problems of fatty-cholesterol buildup in the bloodstream and it helps to prevent high blood pressure. These are important factors in preventing heart attacks and strokes. Also most of the runners I know don't smoke. That's important, too.

So, as a group most runners do live quite a bit longer than their sedentary counterparts who are overweight, underexercised and often have other undesirable aspects to their life style. That doesn't mean everyone who runs will live 10 or 15 years longer than other people.

Because of your interest in running, and the effort you've made, I'm sending you The Health Letter number 4-2, Jogging, Exertion, Sudden Death, to give you a better balanced idea of the relationship of running and health. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Every once in awhile you hear about some prominent public figure who drops dead while running. But you seldom hear any emphasis on the point that someone died in bed. If you spend a large part of your time running, you increase your chances of something happening to you while you're running.

The Kidney Foundation of the Texas Panhandle is one of 52 affiliates of the National Kidney Foundation. It is a volunteer health organization representing 44 counties in Texas. Its aim is to eliminate kidney disease through research, public information, public education, professional education, organ donor program, and community and patient service.

The Foundation has sought to improve the care and treatment of kidney patients through advances in detection, diagnosis and treatment, with prevention as the ultimate goal.

The Foundation points out that people wishing to become organ donors should sign an organ donor card, or specify on the back of their driver's license that they wish to be a donor. Their signature should have two witnesses.

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — How can I remove a melted plastic sheet from the top of a small portable oven? The plastic was placed on it when the oven was still hot. — R.C.M.

DEAR R.C.M. — Just this past week I had the same thing happen when I thoughtlessly laid a plastic bag on the hot top to the griddle on my stove. To remove the hard gooey stuff reheat the appliance and when plastic is warm wipe off with a paper towel saturated with vinegar.

Most of it came off mine with the first swipe but then the job was quickly finished by rubbing with a soap-filled steel wool pad (dampened, of course) and then a paper towel wrung out of clear water. My stain was new and naturally easier to remove so you may have to repeat the rubbing with the vinegar soaked towel. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — The reader with paint spots on her hardwood floor should try using a piece of nylon net to rub the paint away without damage to the finish. This can also be used on cabinets and interior or exterior doors. I also sew a piece of nylon net against one side of each of my dish cloths and find I have a good pot scraper that is easy on the fingernails. — HILDA

In grain prices

Forecasters predict only modest change

WASHINGTON (AP) — Repeatedly stressing the uncertainty of predictions so early in the growing season, the Agriculture Department's forecasters expect only modest changes in soybean, food grain and feedgrain prices and supplies into 1980.

Feedgrain prices do have a good chance to rise next season, they said, if the weather is only slightly bad and if the pork and poultry markets continue their present expansion.

That's essentially what the Outlook and Situation Board has been saying all year. But Tuesday's formal update of current and 1979-80 supply and demand estimates did have some new wrinkles.

For one thing it placed increased emphasis on uncertainty. Sometimes twice a page, the forecasters noted that the weather is too unstable now for them to have a good feel for crop supplies, uses and prices.

Another new aspect was an improved outlook for the feedgrain market.

For example, a "sharper than expected expansion in pork production," along with more poultry to feed, caused the board to raise its estimate of corn going to feed this season by 100 million bushels.

That would mean 4.1 billion bushels of corn used for feed, compared to 3.71 billion in 1977-78. Depending on the new crop, which depends on the weather, animals could consume 3.9 billion to 4.4 billion bushels of a 1979-80 crop tentatively set at a range of 5.8 billion to 7 billion bushels.

Expanded hog and poultry production also means good movement of record soybean stocks, the board said.

It also raised by 25 million bushels its estimate of feed use of wheat this season, to 175 million. At the same time it hiked export projections by that amount, to almost 1.18 billion bushels. That will bring wheat stocks down to 951 million bushels in June after three years above 1 billion.

The board now expects feedgrain stocks at harvest this fall to total about 54 million metric tons, some 13 million above last fall but 3 million less than the last update foresaw.

Tentative planting intentions indicate the lowest feedgrain acreage since 1972 — 118 million acres — because of a shift to better-priced soybeans and sunflowers, the board said. And wet weather is delaying fieldwork, it noted.

Its best assessment now, it said, "suggests some reduction in supplies coupled with larger disappearance. Thus, stocks would likely decline, resulting in strong ... prices."

But for wheat, soybeans, rice and cotton, the board sees either surpluses or renewed large crops offsetting both the strong demand from foreign markets and any reduced production because of smaller plantings or weather problems.

Chief economist and policy analyst Howard W. Hjort said this week that over-all average farm prices — the result of supply and demand shifts — probably have peaked for 1979 and most of 1980.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland is suggesting that high-priced beef to a consumer is a little like a high-priced tractor to a farmer: "If you can't afford it, don't buy it."

But Bergland said Tuesday he is opposed to a planned consumer boycott of beef or "meatless days" to protest high prices.

"I think we who consume should buy what we can afford," he said. "There is no way to alleviate a shortage except by price."

Bergland told the annual meeting of the Newspaper Farm Writers of America that beef supplies will not increase until cattle producers finish rebuilding herds two or three years from now.

Until that happens, he said, prices will stay high and the limited amount of beef available will go to those with enough money to buy it.

The Agriculture Department's chief economist, Howard W. Hjort, told the group Monday that meat consumption in the first three months of the year apparently dropped by 1.5 pounds a person.

But consumers still are spending only 4.8 percent of their after-tax income on meat, the second smallest portion on record, so incomes must be keeping pace with prices, Hjort said.

The Agriculture Department now expects retail prices for all cuts of beef combined to average more than 20 percent higher this year than last year's record $1.82 a pound.

Cattle producers began reducing herds sharply in 1975 because of sagging market prices that government and industry economists say were caused by a 1973 consumer boycott, price controls and high feed prices in 1973 and 1974.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department officials say they have condemned or impounded 2.9 million pounds of pork products from a Marshalltown, Iowa, plant because they were contaminated by waste water.

About 100,000 pounds of contaminated fresh pork made it to retail markets, but department officials said it will be safe to eat if cooked well — to an internal temperature of 170 degrees.

Donald L. Houston, acting administrator of the Food Safety and Quality Service, said production resumed Monday at the Swift and Co. plant after Iowa officials declared its water supply safe.

No pork had left the plant since the bacteria contamination was noticed April 12. All products in the plant will be disposed of under government supervision, along with 400,000 pounds that was recovered from supermarkets, said Houston.

Lillian Ward - girl without fear

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — They called her "The Girl Without Fear" in the days of the silent movies, when it was nothing for her to crash locomotives and cars, ride a horse over cliffs and tumble down stairs.

But now she doesn't even dare challenge the few slippery feet of linoleum between her nursing home bed and bathroom. After all, Lillian Ward — "The Girl Without Fear" — is 95 years old and rarely leaves her wheelchair.

"Sometimes I step down on the slick floor around here and I slip. I say to myself, 'Lillian, don't be an old fool and fall all over yourself.' So I just don't try it anymore. I let the nurses help me when I try to walk," said Miss Ward.

Fighting the Big "C"

John Wayne is an important symbol of April, Cancer Control Month. Since 1964, when he had a lung removed because of cancer, he has made 18 films and won an Oscar. He again underwent apparently successful cancer surgery in January. Cancer, which causes cells to grow uncontrollably, was almost always fatal before 1900. Today about one in two patients is treated successfully. Early treatment for some forms of the disease ensures nearly 100 percent recovery. Advances in cancer research enable more of the millions treated annually to say, as Wayne did recently, "[I] plan to be around for a whole lot longer."

Sixty years ago, however, Lillian Ward was one of the most sought-after stuntwomen in the fledgling movie industry. One major producer of the era called her "the best stuntwoman of the East."

She doubled for virtually all of the big stars, including a few men, and commanded $150 a day. "We made big money at the time. We thought it was big money, anyway," she remembered.

When the "Perils of Pauline" script called for star Pearl White to risk her pretty — and expensive — neck for a stunt, the director called in Miss Ward. You'll probably never be able to detect it in the old movies, but that's Lillian Ward the diabolical villain has tied to the railroad tracks in front of the onrushing train. "It never came all that close," she said modestly.

Miss Ward dressed in cowboy garb and doubled for at least three male stars too frightened to perform dangerous horse riding scenes. All three have been dead for many years, but she still refuses to reveal their identities. "I don't want to embarrass them, so I'll never tell who they were," she said.

For one silent thriller, she piloted a New York Central locomotive into another train, leaping to safety a split second before the head-on crash. Dressed as a man, she rode Burnester, her favorite trick horse, off a cliff for one of the cowboy movies. She tumbled down a flight of stairs after being shot by an imaginary bullet in "Ashes of Vengeance."

Late rally lifts Longhorns over Harvesters, 7-3

By JERRY GUNTER
Pampa News Sports Editor
AMARILLO—The Pampa Harvesters got off to a very good start Tuesday afternoon, but then the bottom fell out.

Host Caprock rallied in the late going and went on to record an impressive 7-3 win over the Harvesters in the first game of the second-half race in District 3-AAA baseball.

The loss drops Pampa to 0-1 in the second-half chase and to 16-4 for the season. Meanwhile, Caprock is 10-7 and 1-0. But things were not bad for the Harvesters all day long as the Green and Gold had a very quick start. Leadoff batter Steve McDougall opened the game with a double down the leftfield line. Then a single to left by Richard Wuest chased McDougall home and the Harvesters quickly had a 1-0 lead.

Wuest moved to second on a passed ball and then on to third as Rick Dougherty lined a single to left. Then Greg Koch slashed a hard hit ball to center. The ball got past centerfielder Steve Sona, thus allowing both base runners to score. On the play, Koch attempted to score as well, but was mowed down at the plate by Caprock catcher Manuel Diaz.

That retired the side, but the Harvesters had a comfortable 3-0 edge with just one-half inning gone.

Dougherty, who suffered his first loss of the year against señen wins, had a good start as he had a no-hitter going for the first two frames.

But the hitless streak for the Longhorns ended in the third as James Errington singled to right. That moved Gary O'Dell to third. Then pitcher Bobby Short smashed a hit to shallow center. The Harvesters' Richard Wuest had a hard time in catching up with the ball and unfortunately it bounced past him and back near the centerfield fence. That allowed both base runners as well as Short to score, thus tying the game at 3-3.

There was no more scoring until the fifth, when the Longhorns took the lead for good as they scored two more times.

Short got the Longhorns going with a free trip to first on a base on balls. Greg Mayes came up and lined a single to right. Again, the ball took a crazy bounce and got past right fielder Steve McDougall. Short scored all the way from first and Mayes went to third on the play. Mayes later came in to score to give Caprock a 5-3 edge.

The Harvesters tried to rally in the sixth. Keanan Henderson attempted to get something home run over the left field fence by Errington as the Longhorns made the score final.

Short, who went the distance and picked up the crucial win for inning, second baseman Ray Boynton led off with a single. That led up to an electrifying home run over the left field fence by Errington as the Longhorns made the score final.

Short, who went the distance and picked up the crucial win for Caprock, made sure that the Harvesters did not rally in the seventh as he fanned all three opponents.

Pampa picked up eight hits for the day. Both Steve McDougall and Dougherty got two hits apiece.

Bench strength carries Hawks to NBA victory

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Terry Furlow and Tom McMillen, a pair of three-year men who spent most of the season on the bench, have rescued the Atlanta Hawks from extinction and carried them back into the National Basketball Association quarter-final series against the defending champion Washington Bullets.

Furlow was a midseason acquisition from Cleveland. McMillen, has bounced around with several teams. They came off the bench when starters Armond Hill and John Drew got into early foul trouble, and combined for 40 points to power the Hawks' 107-103 victory over the Bullets in the only NBA playoff game Tuesday night.

Seattle, boasting a 3-1 lead, looks to clinch its Western Conference semifinal series at home tonight against Los Angeles. The Phoenix Suns are at Kansas City tonight, leading the Kings 2-1.

San Antonio leads Philadelphia 3-1 in the other Eastern Conference semifinal. Those teams resume Thursday on the Spurs' court.

With Washington holding a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven series, the teams return to Atlanta Thursday night. The Hawks had a 35-9 record at their Omni home this season, including a 17-game winning streak.

But they have lost twice to the Bullets there in this series.

"This is the most courageous win in my three years as the Hawks' coach," said Hubie Brown after Atlanta survived injuries to starters Eddie Johnson, Drew and reserve Tree Rollins, and the overcame the early foul trouble to Hill and Drew.

"There are not enough adjectives to describe the game played by Furlow and McMillen. McMillen kept us in the game in the first half when we were struggling," Brown said.

McMillen got 12 of his 19 points in the first half while Furlow came through with 16 of his team-high 21 points in the second, including two free throws with eight seconds left that iced the game.

The Hawks went into the fourth quarter with an 81-80 lead. Atlanta built up a 99-90 lead with 5:46 left and watched it slip away to 105-103 with 24 seconds remaining.

Bizarre play causes controversy

By The Associated Press
Joe Torre of the New York Mets and Joe Altobelli of the San Francisco Giants played their version of "Who's on first?" — only this one wasn't very funny to either manager.

"It was like Abbott and Costello out there," quipped New York infielder Richie Hebner after watching the act at Shea Stadium Tuesday night during the Mets' 10-3 victory over the Giants.

The discussion between the two about a bizarre play at first base ended in what Torre called "a compromise — the Camp David accord." But there was still some confusion over the details after 28 minutes of animated talk.

"After you allow the man to second base, how do you call him out for not going back to first base?" Torre wondered aloud.

This was the situation: The Mets had runners at first and third when Lee Mazzilli hit a fly ball to right that Jack Clark appeared to catch. Hebner, halfway to second on the play, retreated to first only to find Mazzilli waving at him to reverse directions. Now it appeared that Clark had dropped the ball.

Umpire Phil Lospitalier was still signaling 'out' when Clark relayed the ball to Bill Madlock, who stepped on first for what San Francisco thought was a double play. The Mets, however, had different ideas, claiming the dropped ball made both Hebner and Mazzilli safe.

Both teams howled and the umpires — working in place of regulars who are involved in a contract dispute — vacillated. Finally, they ruled Mazzilli out and ordered Hebner back to first. It hardly satisfied either Torre or Altobelli, each of whom filed a protest.

Pirates 9, Reds 2
John Milner's two-run homer and a solo blast by Dave Parker helped Pittsburgh beat Cincinnati. The Pirates jumped on last-minute starter rookie Frank Pastore for two runs in the first inning and four more in the fourth.

Royals 5, White Sox 6
Willie Wilson's three stolen bases and two runs scored — and his on-the-button throw from center field to nail Chicago runner Marvis Foley at the plate — supported Dennis Leonard's seven-hitter for the Royals.

Frank White homered for Kansas City in the first inning, then Wilson bunted for a hit, stole second and came around on two grounders in the third.

Red Sox 4, Mariners 3
Larry Wolfe's 12th-inning sacrifice fly stretched the Red Sox's winning streak to five games and Seattle's tailspin to nine. Unbeaten Dick Drago pitched 42-3 innings of scoreless relief for his third victory.

Indians 7, Twins 2
Andre Thornton's two-run double in a five-run first inning against Roger Erickson and his solo homer in the seventh off Gary Serun led Cleveland past the Twins.

Orioles 7, Angels 2
Jim Palmer's back acted up again, but not until the seventh inning. By that time the Orioles had a 7-2 lead, thanks in part to two solo home runs by Ken Singleton, off loser Don Aase in the third inning and Dyar Miller in the fifth. Rich Dauer homered off Aase in the first frame.

Yankees 3, A's 1
Bucky Dent and Willie Randolph scored on a throwing error by Oakland relief pitcher Dave Heaverlo in the ninth inning, giving the New York Yankees and Tommy John a 3-1 victory over the A's Tuesday night.

Phillies 7, Dodgers 6
Relief pitcher Ron Reed doubled with two outs in the 10th inning and scored on Larry Bowa's single to lead Philadelphia over Los Angeles.

Cards 6, Braves 5
Ted Simmons belted a solo home run in the 10th inning off relief ace Gene Garber, pacing St. Louis over Atlanta. The victory went to Cardinal reliever Mark Littell.

Expos 5, Padres 1
Ross Grimsley hurled a six-hitter and Ellis Valentine drove in two runs with a homer, and a single to pace Montreal over San Diego.

Dispute arises concerning NY fines

NEW YORK (AP) — It may take until next Tuesday — payday — to find out how much the New York Yankees will fine relief pitcher Rich Gossage and reserve catcher Cliff Johnson for their clubhouse fistfight last Thursday. But players association director Marvin Miller warns extensive financial discipline against the players may result in a claim of breach of contract.

Gossage's contract is guaranteed, and although there are some exceptions — such as if he went sky diving or contemplated suicide — in this case, it's air tight," Miller said Tuesday. "They must pay his salary or otherwise it's breach of contract."

The players' association executive expressed similar sentiments over the contract of Johnson, who was uninjured in the fight that severed a ligament in Gossage's right thumb and necessitated surgery.

Gossage, released from the hospital Tuesday, is not expected back until mid-June at least.

"In Johnson's case, they are saying he should play and not be paid at all," said Miller. "He's not injured, so they would be making a profit at his expense."

The Yankees have taken no official action, but they have sent written messages to both players. According to published reports, the message informed Gossage he would be fined a day's pay — reportedly $1,800, based on his six-year, $2.7 million contract — for each day he is sidelined.

There also have been reports Johnson would be fined a day's pay for each day the right-handed reliever misses.

"If I am to believe what they (the Yankees) are saying in their statement, they are not refusing to pay Gossage but instead they are fining him the amount of a day's pay until he is able to pitch again," said Miller. "Any arbitrator will see right through that."

Arbitrators will become involved if a grievance procedure is enacted by a player. Teams have the right to fine players for "just cause," according to Miller, but if the player does not feel the punishment fits the crime, he can file a grievance action which would be decided by a three-member panel of arbitrators.

ACU captures LSC track title

COMMERCE, Texas (AP) — Defending champion Abilene Christian snagged its second Lone Star Conference league track and field championship aided by record-breaking performances by pole vaulter Billy Olsen and 800-meter runner Randy Baker.

Olsen topped his 1978 record of 17-1 with a 17-2 1/2 vault. Baker also broke his own meet record with a 1:53.4.

Freshman sprinter Elton Francis of Southwest Texas State was named outstanding runner of the meet after taking first in the 100-meter dash and a third in the 200-meter dash.

Francis also was the meet's top pointman with 18 1/2 points after anchoring the winning sprint relay for Southwest Texas State.

East Texas State's John Burch was named outstanding field event performer after setting a record in the high jump with 6-11. Randy Reina of Texas

A&I set a record in the 5000-meter run at 15:15.9.

With Larry Bird Contract talks break down

BOSTON (AP) — The two weeks of secret talks concerning Indiana State All-American Larry Bird's multimillion dollar bid to become the highest paid player in the National Basketball Association as a rookie have erupted in open confrontation.

Bird's lawyer, Bob Woolf, says he is going to complain to the NBA Players Association about what he called "threats and intimidation" by Red Auerbach, the Boston Celtics general manager, who said Tuesday that the contract talks broke down.

Auerbach hid out in Boston, refusing comment after he announced the breakdown.

Woolf disputed the Celtics' announcement and said he had made "a dramatically modified proposal" to Auerbach during their 90-minute meeting Tuesday.

Bird reportedly has requested a $6 million, 6-year contract, but Woolf refused to discuss figures.

"As a result of today's meeting, we have decided to end negotiations at this time," said Auerbach Tuesday afternoon.

"I don't think it looks good for our getting Larry," said Cohen.

Woolf accused Auerbach of making "implied threats and intimidation" and said he planned to meet today with the players association to complain for Bird, the Celtics' No. 1 draft choice last year.

However, Woolf refused to go into detail except to remark that Auerbach suggested changing NBA rules in a way "detrimental to us."

Under terms of the draft, if the Celtics don't sign Bird by the June draft, the star goes back into the player pool.

Bird was not at the meeting between Auerbach and Woolf, the fourth meeting between the two since April 11.

NY coach praises his NHL team

By RALPH BERNSTEIN AP Sports Writer PHILADELPHIA (AP) — If Fred Shero is a good judge of character the New York Rangers may startle the hockey world and win the Stanley Cup.

Shero, who usually has little to say about his team, took time to make a few remarks Tuesday night after the Rangers eliminated the Philadelphia Flyers and advanced to the semifinal round of the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup playoffs.

"The New York Rangers," said Shero after his team's 8-3 triumph ended the best-of-seven quarter-final series with the Flyers, "remind me of the young Flyers' teams that won the Cup."

Shero should be able to make that sort of comparison. He coached the Flyers to the title in 1974 and 1975.

"They (the Rangers) work together, play together, and will do anything for each other," said Shero, who reportedly left the Flyers after last season because he felt he no longer could motivate the team.

He certainly has motivated the Rangers, a team that hadn't reached the NHL semifinals since it lost to Shero's Flyers in 1974. They eliminated the Flyers in five games, losing Game 1 and then winning four straight.

The key to the Rangers' triumph Tuesday night was a pair of goals and two assists from Walt Tkaczuk, and superb goaltending by John Davidson. The Rangers built a 5-0 lead, then short-circuited a final period rally by Philadelphia with three more tallies of their own.

The Rangers now meet the New York Islanders in a best-of-seven semifinal, and that was the topic of conversation after the game.

Rangers' assistant coach Mike Nykoluk said the series with the Islanders would come down to goaltending.

If Nykoluk is right, the Rangers have a hot goalie in Davidson, who has won six playoff games this year, two over Los Angeles and four with the Flyers. At one point against the Flyers, he played 168 minutes and 59 seconds before giving up a goal.

"I got a bit tired at the end and my concentration wore down," Davidson said in explaining the Flyers' three-goal rally that reduced the Rangers' lead to 3-3. "I never really panicked, but they sure were coming."

Philadelphia Coach Pat Quinn took out his goalie with New York ahead 4-0 and Duguay scored a shorthanded goal into an empty net, the strategy of using six attacker backfiring. That gave the Rangers five shorthanded goals in the series — a league playoff record.

After the score mounted to 5-3, Carol Vadnais and Ed Johnstone whipped two quick goals past Flyers' goalie Wayne Stephenson and it was all over but for Anders Hedberg's final shot into an open net.

Committee favors NCAA grid playoffs

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — A committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association reportedly has voted in favor of establishing an annual national collegiate football championship.

Arkansas Athletic Director Frank Broyles, a member of the NCAA's Extra Events Committee, was quoted by the Colorado Springs Sun in a copyright story today as saying the eight-member committee voted unanimously Tuesday to endorse a football playoff beginning at the conclusion of the 1980 season.

The plan reportedly calls for two semifinal games and a championship contest, all to be held after the regular post-season bowl games. The four finalists would be chosen after the bowl games by a selection committee, and the title game would be played on the weekend prior to the National Football League's Super Bowl.

Broyles was quoted as saying that representatives of the bowls were opposed to the change.

"but a lot of people are eager and anxious to have a playoff."

The playoff proposal reportedly will be presented to the steering committee of the NCAA Council at its meeting this week in Denver. If approved there, the proposal would be placed on the agenda of the annual NCAA convention next January for a final vote.
