Soviets working to get treaty approved

By ROBERT B. CULLEN Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whatever finally happens to a new strategic arms limitation treaty now in the final stages of negotiation, it has already given the Carter administration its first period of tranquillity and cooperation in relations with the Soviet Union.

The prisoner exchange that brought five Soviet dissidents to New York over the weekend is only one example of the restrained and conciliatory policies the Soviets have adopted in an unspoken, but obvious effort to help President Carter persuade the Senate to ratify the treaty.

In addition, the Soviets are allowing Jews to emigrate at record-setting rates. If recent monthly figures continue, more than 40,000 will be released this year.

There also are some things the Soviets might have done but haven't.

For example, they did not retaliate against China for its incursion into Vietnam, although they had helped the Vietnamese go into Cambodia.

Unlike the period from 1975-77, the Soviets have not taken advantage of turmoil in the Third World to push for geo-political gains. Cuban troops remain in Angola and Ethiopia: they did not move into Rhodesia or South Yemen. And the Soviets have not yet meddled noticeably in Iran or Pakistan.

Soviet diplomats keep tabs as close as any lobbyist these days on how the Senate is lining up on the impending arms treaty. They know how many senators are already against it, and how many more might be if the debate takes place at a time when the Soviets appear to be on the march once

The administration for its part, is reciprocating in quiet ways. It has, for example, approved the export license for a computer the Soviet news agency wants to buy for the 1980 Olympics. That license was withheld last summer

It is also exploring ways to make a more substantial gesture in the direction of improving U.S.-Soviet trade relations by granting the Soviets "most-favored nation" status, perhaps in time for the SALT summit meeting likely to occur in late May or early June.

Most-favored nation status would mean the Soviets would have access to the American market at standard tariff rates the kind assessed in trade with most of the world They would also be able to get financing from the U.S. Export-Import

The Soviets lost the trade status in 1974 when Congress passed the Jackson-Vanik amendment. It denied the status to communist nations that do not allow free emigration

The negotiations over the trade status have a particular urgency because the United States is moving rapidly to grant the status to China Secretary of Commerce Juanita Kreps is due in Peking early in May to talk about it. Carter has insisted he will be even-handed between the Soviets and Chinese

Thus. American sources say the administration is exploring many possible avenues to get the most-favored status for the Soviets as well

First ethics probe in 12 years

Talmadge starts counterattack

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Herman Talmadge launched a blistering counterattack on the financial misconduct allegations against him today, saying three allegations were trivial and the major charge was based on the word of a "liar, cheat and

The emotional presentation by the veteran Georgia Democrat came as the Senate Ethics Committee opened its public hearing on allegations that Talmadge had violated Senate rules.

The committee has accused the 22-year Senate veteran of violating Senate rules by converting campaign contributions to his own use, of submitting incorrect expense vouchers, of filing false reports of receipts and expenditures, of failing to properly report gifts and property owned and of incorrectly reporting taxes on gifts to his former wife.

Talmadge said in his opening argument that only one count against him was worthy of the committee's time, the allegation he knew of a secret bank account set up by his former administrative assistant and that he profited from the more than $39,000 in campaign contributions and improperly drawn expense funds deposited in the account

He said evidence would show he neither knew of the account or that he profited from it. He said his actions in ordering an audit of his affairs in June 1978 and in turning over evidence to the Justice Department showed he could not have known of the account

"These are steps that only a fool would take if he were aware ... that there was a hidden, phony bank account waiting to be found," Talmadge said. "Even my enemies don't claim that I am stupid

The 22-year Senate veteran said his attorneys would present evidence that showed that his former administrative assistant, Daniel Minchew, needed funds at the time the secret account was in operation.

"You will have evidence that in one year alone, 1974. when most of the money was taken from Daniel Minchew's secret account, his obligations and expenditures exceeded his legitimate sources of income by more than $40,000." Talmadge claimed.

He added. "If I had intended to steal money, I would not have used an accomplice who could later implicate me. I would not have used a bank account and left a paper trail that could later be discovered.

He characterized Minchew as a "liar, cheat and

Talmadge dismissed the other allegations against him by contending they were trivial and that most were were the result of errors made by his staff in filling out

The committee's proceedings against Talmadge are the first public scrutiny in 12 years of a senator's ethics. The last such session came in 1966 and 1967 when the committee investigated the conduct of Sen. homas Dodd, D-Conn. That investigation eventually led to the Senate censuring Dodd for financial

The panel planned to hear from four witnesses later in the day, with T. Rogers Wade. Talmadge's current administrative assistant, leading off

The Talmadge hearing was only one of several events on Capitol Hill as the House and Senate began another work week

The House Armed Services Committee was expected today to take the first vote in Congress on restoration of the military draft.

The Senate subcommittee on nuclear regulation was to hold another hearing into the accident at the Three Mile Island nuclear generating facility

SEN. HERMAN TALMADGE, D-Georgia, straightens his tie in Washington this morning as he appeared before the Senate Ethics Committee in the panel's probe of alleged ethics violations by the senator. The probe is the first public inquiry in 12 years into the ethics of a senator

Octane ratings required

WASHINGTON (AP) -Motorists alarmed about skyrocketing gasoline prices can minimize high driving costs by using new black-and-yellow tags going up on service station pumps.

The new tags show the octane of the gasoline and thus provide a way for the motorist to avoid the common practice of buying a gasoline with an unnecessarily high octane - and price. What we are talking about is perhaps a 2-or 3-cent reduction per gallon, which certainly won't offset every ... price increase." said Commissioner David Clanton of the Federal Trade Commission. "But it at least will help.

Octane rating is a measure of how well the gasoline will resist engine "knock," or uneven burning of gasoline. Persistent knocking eventually can damage an engine. The FTC determined that many motorists, in an effort to avoid engine knock, waste money and put extra pollution into the air by buying gasoline that is higher in octane than needed.

'All of us have at least once bought a tank of high test instead of regular with the feeling that 'I'll get something special for the more expensive kind," said Commissioner Paul Rand Dixon. "But what you get is more lead on the cylinder walls and sparkplugs that are worn out sooner

The new octane laels have been required on gasoline pumps since April 1, but many gas stations still don't have them in place. The FTC has said enforcement — backed by fines of up to $10,000 a day - will begin June 1.

The proper octane for nearly all cars is between 87 and 95. Regular grades of gasoline generally go up to 91 with higher-priced gasoline going higher

To find the proper octane, the FTC recommends "using your own ears" in a trial-and-error method. Motorists can go down one step at a time to the lowest octane number where no 'knocking' is found

'Buying gasoline with a higher octane than is necessary can result in consumers spending extra money unnecessarily and wasting energy resources, with no benefit to their cars," Clanton

The FTC commissioner said the trial-and-error method is easy and more reliable than following owner's manuals. For one thing, some of the manuals use different ways of measuring octane and, for another, octane requirements can change as a car gets older, he said.

By using the new octane labels and the trial method of finding the best number. "consumers can simultaneously save money conserve energy and protect their cars against possible engine damage." Clanton said.

The FTC designed the octane labeling program under the Petroleum Marketing Practices Act signed by President Carter last June. The Department of Energy already had an octane-labeling regulation but Congress found its enforcement was only sporadic and told the FTC to design a new and more effective program.

One difference in the FTC plan is adoption of a uniform national standard for determining octane so accurate comparisons can be

Must recognize profits are good

Bartlett S. Felming, president of the Fiscal Policy Council, delivered some interesting observations the other day. We think the are worth repeating.

First, the good news, "Corporate profits are up." Now, the bad news, "Corporate profits are up.

It depends on who is speaking as to whether the U.S. Commerce Department's announcement that business profits were up 9.6 percent for the fourth quarter was desirable or troublesome.

To read the remarks of Hamilton Jordan and U.S. Chamber economist Jack Carlson, one would think the question of desirability of rising profits was of the same genre as who should win the Super Bowl or the world Series, as if there were no truth in the issue, just opinion and preference.

The real tragedy of the debate over this issue is that the public is being confused more and more as one side speaks to economic truths and the other side to political perceptions; one side attempting to put events into economic perspective and the other reacting to political consequences, disregarding their impact on public confidence in private industry.

The American people currently are troubled by economic uncertainty caused primarily by inflation. It may be safer and politically expedient to link problems rhetorically to profits but at its best, that is poor leadership. And at its worst, it is intellectually

The fact is that profits are the sparkplug of the U.S. economic system. Have we forgotten that we are an incentive oriented people? Consider Profits provide incentives to produce. Higher productivity is anti-inflationary.

Profits are reinvested, enabling business to expand. That, in turn, means more real productive jobs and that also is anti-

Profits ultimately are deposited in banks, savings and loans and credit unions, generating capital formation. That also is anti-

Profits are distributed as dividends to shareholders, whose membership includes pension funs, public employee retirement systems and individuals. This, too, is anti-inflationary and, additionally, it serves a social good.

In summary, rising profits are good news for everybody. Remember, they are achieved not only by big business but middlesized businesses and small, local businesses as well. We expect business leaders to articulate this fact. We desperately need political and government leadership to do the same.

No tears for Amin

There was an undeniable comic - opera air about the war between Idi Amin's Uganda and Julius Nyerere's Tanzania. As Tanzanian troops strolled unresisted into the key city of Entebbe and the Ugandan capital of Kampala the other day. Amin evidently unchastened by the disintegration of his army and his own flight into the bush, called on the invaders to surrender. "because you are surrounded

But however ludicrous the war may appear, the eight - year record of Idi Amin's regime is no laughing matter.

The respected International Commission of Jurists puts the number of Ugandans murdered by Amin's police and soldiers at 300,000 or more. The wholesale violation of human rights visited upon innocent Ugandans by the brutal and irrational Amin has shocked the world

As if Amin's savagery were not enough. his incompetent administration wrecked the Ugandan economy and bankrupted the

An end to Idi Amin's tragic misrule of a once peaceful and pleasant African land is truly a cause for celebration. Thus an invasion that, notwithstanding initial provocations from Uganda, presumably violates both the United Nations charter and principles of the Organization of African States, was carried out with hardly a murmur of international protest.

Even the government of Libya, which dispatched 2,000 troops in a vain effort to prop up Amin's crumbling army, accepted his defeat with uncharacteristic

It is to be hoped that the coalition of Ugandan exiles accompanying Tanzanian forces will prove strong enough to forestall any return to power by Amin.

Peace on the range

By DON GRAFF

It was touch and go there for a time, but it looks like the sovereign state of Montana and the imperious city of New York have settled their differences without resort to a transcontinental range war.

And a strange conflict that would have been waged at supermarket checkout counters and travel agencies.

In case you missed any of the preliminaries, it began with New York's consumer affairs authorities in a state of high dudgeon suggesting New Yorkers pledge themselves to "beefless Wednesdays" to combat high meat prices.

It is guestionable to what extent the populace of the metropolis took note of the call - after all, what's in a particular day when you can't come up with the downpayment on a steak to start with. But Gov. Thomas Judge of Montana did. Growers in his major beef - producing state, among others, make the case that deliberately curtailed demand is not the way to increase supply and that the moderately effective consumer boycott of the early '70s has had not a little to do with the thinning of herds that is a factor in today's short and high - priced beef supply The governor was I smiling when he said New York was drawing a bead on Montana's economy. He fired off a protest of New York's Mayor Edward Koch. warning of retaliation - a tourist boycott of the city. (New Yorkers, to their credit, refrained from making a case that it's not easy always being at their tidiest and most courteous to entertain all those visitors.)

Equally quick on the draw when he spots an economic threat at 40 paces or 2,000 miles, the mayor fired back an assurance that he personally loved meat, indulged throughout the week, wanted to hear no more of boycotts and, anyway, it was all the fault of price - gouging middlemen who come between producers and consumers. And wouldn't the governor please join the mayor for dinner, the menu to feature New York - cut steaks?

So there you have it. Montana is still producing and selling beef. New York is still buying and eating and middlemen are presumably still out there gouging. It all goes to show that

 a) Economics can make strange dinner companions:

b) One man's supply is another's

c) When in doubt, punch the middleman: d) If you can't make both ends meat, try a little public relations on one of them:

e) All of the above

Money - A most complex invention

By ROBERT LeFEVRE

From the Appalachians to the Sierras the people appear to be of one mind. The major problem we have in this country is inflation. Curiously, the President and the Congress echo the consensus. Since virtual agreement has been reached, why does the problem persist?

While it may be true that we have agreed as to what the problem is, there is, as yet, no concurrence as to just what causes inflation or how to deal with it. Some tend to think of it as an unbalanced federal budget. Probably most persons are convinced that it is nothing more than increasing prices. Those somewhat better informed insist that it is the increase i the supply of money in excess of the increase in production. Nearly everyone blames inflation on "the other guy" and hopes somehow that the federal government, or Mr. Carter in person, will solve the problem.

Thus, remedies suggested include balancing the budget. freezing wages and prices, reducing taxes, and reducing federal spending. Still others suggest that taxes should remain where they are or go higher and that government should increase its expenditures by providing more jobs and more welfare money.

ETTA FORT WORTH STAR TELEGRAM

HULME N.E.A. 79

Until we know what we are talking about it is unlikely that any remedy will be manifested. Since the problem is as large and complex as it is, I propose to devote this and several subsequent columns to the subject. Those seriously interested might consider clipping and saving each as it is published, since everything cannot be said at once and there will be times when reference will be made to something

The problem of inflation relates to

Money is a human invention. It is undoubtedly one of the most useful and one of the most complex inventions ever contrived but since we all use money it is important that there is understanding of at least a few fundamentals concerning it.

Money is an abstraction. There is no such thing as money. Many things can be used as money and many are in use now. The basic function of money is to facilitate the exchange of goods and services. Each good and each service is demanded by a limited number of persons. The problem of getting the specific items each person wants into that person's hands is overwhelmingly difficult unless we employ money.

The usefulness of money arises because it is something that is general in terms of demand. Everyone wants it. So, I sell my services as a writer and as a teacher. My writing abilities and my teaching abilities are demanded by a limited number of persons. I am not complaining. I am stating the obvious. In terms of the total population of the earth, a tiny fraction of it is interested in buying my services.

So. I sell my services for money. The money I receive, unlike my writing and teaching, is something everyone wants. It would be difficult if not impossible for me to go into a store and obtain an item of merchandise by lecturing to the manager. Or even by writing an article for him. So I go to those few persons who will pay for my services in money. With the money in my possession I can go into any store and every item there is now available to me . provided I have enough money to cover the purchase price. I am welcomed in the store, not because I write or lecture but because I have money. What is true for me is true for you. whatever it is you do. I trade from the specific (my particular type of work) into the item in general demand (money), and then I trade that general item back into the specific good or service I wish in exchange. That is the invention. Money is the general item everyone wants which lubricates the processes of trading from specific to specific, each of which only a few want. Thus it is called a "medium." Money is employed between two specific items and is useful because it is in general demand.

The complication arising out of what is a very simple idea and which when carried far enough results in inflation deals with a particular kind of money we call "credit."

Let me suppose that I wish a very expensive item such as a car or a house. I want the car or house now. But I have not yet-delivered enough lectures nor sold enough writings to have enough money to make the purchase. However, I convince the seller that I am going to keep on earning money by performing my specific chore, and that, therefore, I will be worth trusting. He turns over to me the expensive item. I pay some money down and agree to make periodic payments until the full purchase price is covered. Lam paying for immediate acquisition, when I have not yet earned the money to obtain immediate possession. The seller completes his obligation to me, but I have not yet completed my obligation to him. The interest I agree to pay over and above the selling price is a payment to the seller (or the agreed upon lender) for the risk taken.

Here is the point. All money in the end must relate to reality. "X" amount of house or car has been - produced. It is real. It exists. I obtain it in completed form. But I have not yet earned it. Therefore, I have not yet taught enough or written enough to equal the house or car in terms of money to be exchanged. I am trading something that doesn't yet exist for something that does

This infusion of credit expands the money supply. But if I keep my promise and pay off the obligation, no harm ensues. As eachpayment is made and the debt reduced, production, in the form of new teaching and writing rises to fill the void. Presently the incompleted exchange is complete. I have traded my services for the corresponding amount of goods and all is

The market experienced a temporary inflation but now all is back in balance once

There's also the problem of timing Reagan's entry into a presidential campaign that has started earlier than any other in modern times.

Although a host of other contenders for the GOP nomination have been regularly criss-crossing this state (site of the country's first presidential primary) and the rest of the nation, Reagan has maintained an unusually casual campaign

The frequency of his political speeches has increased in recent months, but his speaking schedule still is larded with appearances before trade associations of realtors, sales executives, builders, contractors and truck stop operators.

In addition, Reagan's schedule appears to be influenced more by where the lecture fees are this year than where the primary contest and precinct caucuses will be next

As a result, there are unmistakable signs of erosion of Reagan's strength, with party activists who formerly supported him now committing themselves to other conservative presidential candidates, notably Rep. Philip M. Crane of Illinois and

Texaco profits, gas prices higher and higher

By KATHLEEN CARROLL Associated Press Writer

Big oil companies are reporting soaring profits as gasoline prices skyrocket, but many Texaco service station operators across Texas say for them, it's tougher than ever to stay in business.

Texaco retailers complain they are having to pay higher prices for their gasoline than competitors, and some say only customer loyalty keeps them afloat in the face of the added problems of rising rents and allocation cut-backs.

"Texaco is plumb out of the ballpark," said Dave Cook, who runs a Texaco service station in Lubbock. "Their gas is so much higher, I've got a competitor who pays eight cents less a gallon than I do. I'm lucky he's a small station.

"The only people who are sticking by us are the true-hearted Texaco customers plus those people who don't have much choice. Like when I'm the only station open." Cook added. Why should they pay more for self-serve than they can for full-serve down the street? They drive on through, and I don't blame them. "A lot of dealers figure Texaco is the first to go up and the last to come down.

Last week, Texaco reported a first-quarter net income of $137.27 million, a profit increase of 81 percent over last year.

Texaco wholesale distributor Thomas "Buck" Abraham agreed the situation isn't good. but he says customers don't always give the dealers a fair break

"I don't know why everyone has to put a black hat on everybody in the oil business,' he said.

Still Going Strong

Most sports figures are long retired by the time they reach the Hall of Fame. But not Ray Meyer, DePaul University basketball coach, who is scheduled to be inducted into the basketball Hall of Fame today along with four other players and coaches. At 65, Meyer is still going strong. During his 37 years as head coach, DePaul's Blue Demons have won almost 600 games. No other active college coach has recorded more victories. During the past season, Meyer led DePaul to the final four in the battle for the NCAA national championship. Why does he keep coaching at an age when most people are happy to retire? Meyer's answer is simple: "I really love the game." DO YOU KNOW - In what city is DePaul

Legislative pace expected to pick up

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Home mortgage interest rates-an explosive legislative issue that had been defused- apparently is burning again

With only four weeks remaining in the 140-day regular session, the legislative pace was certain to speed up.

An indication of the Legislature's staggering work load before adjournment May 28 was the listing of 30 bills on the calendar of the Senate Economic Development Committee for today The committee agenda usually has 10 bills at the most. Gov. Bill Clements apparently had shut off a proposal to raise mortgage rates from 10 to 12 per cent by stating he would veto the

Solzhenitsyn to host Ginzburgs

NEW YORK (AP) - Soviet dissident Alexander Ginzburg and his family plan to join author Alexander Solzhenitsyn in exile at the novelist's 51-acre Vermont estate, after being invited to "live there as if they were coming home."

Ginzburg, the most celebrated of five dissidents released Friday in exchange for two Soviet spies, said Sunday in an interview that he expects his wife and two children to join him in Vermont in a month.

They will stay at Solzhenitsyn's home 'indefinitely," he said.

"It was a misunderstanding," he said, denying reports that his wife was reluctant to leave the Soviet Union. "What she is saying is that she has lots to do before she leaves.

The 42-year-old human rights activist, who has been in Soviet prison camps three times, said he was reluctant to leave his homeland, though he acknowledged: "I am a little tired of seeing four walls.

"It's my country. I love my country regardless of its government," Ginzburg said,

May 1, 1979 This coming year you may undertake some creative new projects that will prove both stimulating and rewarding. All the work that you wish to handle will be yours.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Mentoday, and you run the risk of having to do everything twice. Be careful when using machinery. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph, P.O.Box 289, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) One of your outside interests is going to cost you a lot more money than you budgeted for. Call things off if find you can't afford it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Competition is running exceptionally stiff today. You'd be wise to retreat and reorganize for another day, when the odds aren't so overwhelming. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're not in the mood to have someone tell you how to think today. Unfortunately, you'll be running into quite a few people who will. Keep your cool. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This is not a good day to get too involved where money is concerned. Something may go wrong and hard feelings will

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct 23) It's not like you, but today you may put your interests far above others. If you do, you could be told off in no uncertain terms. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you keep looking for ulterior motives in everything another does, you are bound to find something to cause you undue distress.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Should you see someone coming who has rubbed you the wrong way before, make a fast retreat. You won't have the patience to cope, and sparks will fly. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Count to 10 before you say what's on your mind, even if you think you are in the right. Your pride might remain intact, but it'll only put you in the

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: What's my problem? My husband doesn't want me to talk to him. Gerhard asks me not to talk to him during mealtime because he's "busy" eating. He doesn't want me to talk to him while he's driving because he's "busy" driving. And God forbid I should try to talk to him while he's reading or watching TV!

Abby, this is very hard on me because I come from a large, talkative Jewish family and I love to talk. Gerhard is half Norwegian and half German. (Cold and bossy.)

He calls me from work every day to find out what was in the mail. Then I get to talk.

Please put this in your column. Gerhard never misses "Dear Abby," and it's the only way to tell him what I think. ESTHER IN FLATBUSH

DEAR ESTHER: If this is the only way of telling Gerhard what you think, face it, Esther, your marriage is finished in English, "kaput" in German. "ferdig" Norwegian, and "in drerd" in Yiddish.

DEAR ABBY: What does a person do when a friend has lost a member of his family by suicide? It doesn't seem right to ignore the tragedy. Yet you can't write a note saying, "I was sorry to hear that your father shot himself." If I said, "shot himself accidentally," would that be better?

DEAR R.R.: No. Just offer your condolences and don't mention the circumstances.

DEAR ABBY: We live in a first-class high-rise and pay high rent. We walk as lightly as possible so we don't disturb the tenants below us. We keep the volume on our TV low after 10 p.m., and ask our guests to keep the noise down out of consideration for our neighbors.

Last month a young couple moved in above us, and I've never heard such noisy people! And what sounds like stereo music goes continually - and very loud.

I complained to the manager, and she suggested I speak to them, so I went up and asked in a VERY nice way if they could be a little more quiet. They slammed the door in my

Since then, out of spite, they've been noisier than ever. I complained to the manager again. She said she was sorry but there was nothing she could do.

Our nerves are shot. We're not old grouches. We are reasonable people. What should we do? We have another two years to go on our lease. NOWHERE TO TURN

DEAR NOWHERE: Assuming the apartment manager is not the owner, appeal to the owner of the building. If that doesn't bring results, hunt up another apartment. And about that lease - hunt up a lawyer.

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

lawrence e. lamb, m.d.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I'm a 59-year-old man and have trouble with hemorrhoids. A specialist did a sigmoidoscope examination and checked me out in general. He said to soak my hemorrhoids and stay away from spices, roughage and booze. Whenever I have a bowel movement it hurts and stings for awhile. I have been back to the doctor a couple of times and he said I'm too old for surgery so I'd have to live with it. This doctor is a specialist in the field of rectal problems. Have you any suggestions?

DEAR READER - I think you have misunderstood what your doctor said or misinterpreted his meaning. If at age 59 you're too old for surgery, there are an awful lot of people having surgery who are too old for it. He either thinks your hemorrhoids are of such a nature that you don't require surgery at this time or you must have some rather serious health problems that are not mentioned in your letter. Hemorrhoids are simply varicose veins of the rectum. The veins become over stretched and dilated. Women are more prone to have them than men because of childbirth. The delivery of the baby's head creates so much pressure on the veins in this area that it often results in hemorrhoids. That should be a good tip to you that any obstruction or mass in this area which presses on the veins can cause hemorrhoids to pop out. That's why anyone who first develops hemorrhoids should do exactly as you did and go see a doctor. It might not be simple hemorrhoids. There may be something above the hemorrhoids such as a mass or tumor that is causing the problem. The only way the question can be answered is with a direct examination.

Some doctors would not agree entirely with other comments in your letter. The pain that occurs with hemorrhoids during a bowel movement is often associated with hard stools. For this reason stool softeners are often helpful. Some of the bulk expanders work because they keep the stools soft. The water that's trapped in the undigested food residue keeps the material soft.

You need to develop good bowel habits to avoid hard stools that cause problems and to avoid straining. To help you I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-1, Irritable and Spastic Colon and Constipation. It includes information you can use. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station,

New York, NY 10019. Most doctors would agree that spices and alcohol are not good for people that have hemorrhoids. Incidentally, there are a number of minor office procedures which can be done for some types of hemorrhoids. These include such things as tying them off with rubber bands. On the surface that sounds a little wild but it's not and it works very well in some cases. The thing is the doctor has to select the type of case that he can do this type of procedure in. In very advanced cases of hemorrhoids, it won't work or if it does, the procedure becomes as extensive as a standard

hemorrhoidectomy.

Shaun Cassidy opts for acting

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) -Everybody grows up some time. Even teeny-boppers. And teen-age rock-and-roll idols, too.

So Shaun Cassidy, 21 years old, a rock performer since he was in the eighth grade, is growing up. Maybe you could even put that in the past tense and say he's already grown up.

"I'm starting to feel," says Cassidy, "that I'm get-ting over the hill. That's because my taste in music is changing very much. Disco music is the most happening thing right now - and I don't

Several nursing homes in Eugene support the plan by referring their residents to local senior centers and

The liaison coordinator of the program meets with residents at the nursing homes to tell them about the new service. If they are interested, the coordinator introduces them to other participants and takes them on an introductory visit to the two participating senior centers.

Staffers at the nursing homes then announce all the daily activities at the centers. Those activities can be anything from creative projects - such as ceramics, oil painting and leather crafts to pinochle, poker or dancing.

Recruitment is continual. Volunteers from the Retired Senior Volunteer Program and local Voluntary Action Center serve as special friends to the nursing-home residents. They also provide access to Eugene's Dial-A-Bus system for transportabecause it's real easy to get comfortable in a mold." And Shaun Cassidy had gotten a little comfortable there, for the year or so that he co-starred with Parker Stevenson as "The Hardy Boys." While he realizes the show was great exposure for him, and that acting in it every day was a wonderful learning process, the series never taxed him dramatical-

"No," he says, with a wry grin, "I sure wasn't disappointed when 'The Hardy Boys' went off the air."

He says his parents -Shirley Jones and the late Jack Cassidy - tried to deter him from an acting career. Since he had been getting paid as a rock star for much of his childhood, they were primarily concerned with making sure he finished high school.

"I did — barely," he says. He did his first European tour with his band while he was a senior in high school and so, when he came back, he was faced with a problem of making up a course. Since his only two courses, as a senior, had been ceramics and physical education, it's hard to see how he failed, but he did fail P.E.

Locally Represented By

He made it up in summer school. At the time, he was just happy to be finished with that weight around his neck, and gave no thought at all to college. Another sign of his maturity is that he is beginning to regret that decision.

"I've thought about college a lot more lately," he says, "than I did then. I'm thinking now of taking some courses in the evenings. I'd like to take courses that would help me in what I'm doing now - courses in writing or acting.

"I've never even been to an acting class. I never had any training of any kind. As a matter of fact, I was talking to Harvey Hart, who directed 'Like Normal People,' about that and he said I shouldn't study. He thought it would screw me up. He bought me some books, Stanislavsky and Chekhov, and he said that was all the training I needed.

One further sign of Shaun Cassidy's growing up is the dreams he is dreaming lately. The kid dreams — big cars, girls, lots of money and fame - are gone, maybe because he's already gotten

Now he's thinking in terms of a quieter life. He'd like to have a farm, back east, perhaps in Pennyslvania where he spent a year at a boarding school when he was 15. He'd like to live on it with his family (that comes later) and animals (part of the dream)

"And I'd like to have a small business," he says, "like maybe an antique store. I like antiques, and my youngest brother, who is 13 now, is a fanatic for them. He can be the runner, the guy who runs all over the country, to auctions, and me and my wife will mind the store.

"It'll be great." And then he shakes his head, and adds, somewhat sadly, "It's just my little fantasy.

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — My husband perspires while sleeping with the result his sheets and pillowcase have to be changed too frequently. There is no medical problem but his skin and hair are oily and the bedding turns an ugly brown and has to be laundered more often than mine. Only a commercial laundry can get them white even though I have tried every detergent in the book, as well as whiteners. Have you any suggestions? — HELEN winning the Derby, Jolley said, "They have to run their outstanding best race."

While Sir Ivor Again does not have as good a record as General Assembly, he has done something rare for an American 3-year-old before the Derby race at the Derby distance of 11/4 mile. The Everglades winner, who was fifth in Florida Derby and a distant third in the Flamingo, ran 114 miles in an undistinguished 2:053-5 in winning an overnight handicap by a head at Aqueduct April 20.

It appears the Derby will have nine starters, with others being Fred E. Lehmann's Lot o'Gold, Rogers Red Top Farm's Shamgo and Che-Bar Stable's King Celebrity. A possible 10th starter is Mr. and Mrs. John Vass' Spy Charger.

Freshmen win title

PLAINVIEW—The Pampa High freshmen captured the district championship Saturday in track competition at Plainview.

The Pampa team finished with a total of 120 points, while Plainview took second place with 109. Hereford Stanton took third with 97 markers with Canyon at 79. Next came La Plata of Hereford with 51. while Borger got 33. Dumas took seventh with 10 points.

In the shot put. Randy Slaybaugh was the winner with a toss of 53-51/2, while Roy Britt took honors in the high jump with a leap of 5-10. Slaybaugh wound up third in the long jump a 18-4 with Derek Bugham getting fifth with a 17-214. Taking sixth place was James Borchardt at Cavin Coleman placed third in the discus with a throw of 140-6, while Slaybaugh took ·fifth at 130-8. Mark Kotara was the winner of the 100 at 10.4, while James Borchardt came in fourth. In the 880, Kevin Keck was the victor at 2:24. while in the 440. Coleman won with a time of 54.0.

Kotara placed second in the 220 at 23.9. Denny Combs grabbed first in the mile at 4:49 with Neal Braswell taking third. The mile relay team of Borchardt, Raymond Mendoza, Matt Schiffman and Coleman took third at 3:45. In the 440 relay, the group of Borchardt, Coleman, Slaybaugh and Kotara won fist at 46.0.

In the eighth grade division. the 440 relay was fourth with a time of 50.2 with Howard taking fourth in the mile at 5:19.1. Lamb finished fifth in the long jump a 17-414 with Schoonover getting sixth at

Barry Terrell qualifies

LUBBOCK-Pampa High golfer Barry Terrell did very well over the weekend as he finished second in the Class 4A regional golf competition in Lubbock

That second place finish earns Terrell a trip to the upcoming state tournament in Austin, which is scheduled for May 9-11.

Terrell finished the meet at Lubbock with a two day total of 144. He had a 71 the first day and then came back to record a 73 on the second day.

Finishing just ahead of Terrell in the medalist competition was Joe Edwards of El Paso Eastwood. He came through with a two-day total of 143. Both will advance to Austin.

This will be the first time any golfer from Pampa has advanced to the state meet since 1956-57. During that time period, golfers from Pampa at state were Don Prigmore, Les. Howard, Bill McLeod, Bart Watkins and Melvin Chism

In the team competition, El Paso Eastwood won with a 598 with Lubbock Monterey second at 611. Amarillo High of District 3-AAAA finished just two shots behind the Lubbock crew. The Sandies, who won the district title, just missed the trip to Austin with an overall team total of 613.

PHS sport schedule

There is not a lot of activity going on this week for Pampa High teams as the competition begins to wind down to an end.

There won't be any teams in action at all until Friday. At that time, the baseball team will be at home to take on the Palo Duro Dons in District 3-AAAA action. Pampa stands 17-4 for the year and 1-1 in the second half of district play. The Harvesters won the first half with a perfect 4-0 mark

Also on the schedule for Friday will be a the junior high golf team. They will be in action against Dumas.

Nothing is scheduled at all for Saturday. There will be the state meet in Austin in golf, tennis and track for the girls. But Pampa did not qualify anyone for those

So that winds up a relatively mild and calm week for Harvester sporting events.

The baseball team is ususally in action on Tuesdays, but the Harvesters have an open date. So they will have a week off by the time that Friday's game rolls around. The last game was last Friday in a 6-1 win over

Last quarter rally lifts Philadelphia

Billy Cunningham remembered it as if it was yesterday.

Cunningham recalled 1967-68 when the Philadelphia 76ers led the Boston Celtics 3-1 in a best-of-seven National Basketball Association championship series. But the Celtics came back and won the Cunningham, now coach of the 76ers, talked about that season after his team rallied from a 13-point deficit in the final period to edge the San Antonio Spurs 92-90 Sunday.

The Philadelphia victory tied the best of seven set 3-3, after the Sixers had trailed 3-1. The seventh game will be Wednesday night in San Cunningham hopes his 76ers will become the third team in NBA history to come back from a 3-1 deficit to win. The Los Angeles Lakers were the other in 1970 over Phoenix.

In the other Eastern Conference battle, the defending champion Washington Bullets went to the wire with the Atlanta Hawks before winning Sunday 100-4 to wrap up series, four games to three.

The 76ers took a strange route to victory as they went 6:32 without a field goal and 5:07 with nary a point as the Spurs built an 11-point lead in the third period, and 13 with 10:43 to play. The 76ers outscored the Spurs

8-0 on baskets by Henry Bibby,

Steve Mix, Erving and Darryl

Dawkins, and soon led 85-84 with 4:05 left. The lead changed hands five times after that, with James Silas giving the Spurs a 90-89 edge with 20 seconds on the clock. Philadelphia called time

"The play was designed to go to Dr. J. (Erving)," said rookie Maurice Cheeks. "But he old me he was going to be double-teamed. I slid down the lane, got down low. I knew there were a lot of big guys around me, but I really didn't feel any pressure.

Erving was double-teamed after taking a pass from Cheeks, and shot the ball back to the 6-foot-1 rookie, who spun and laid in a left-hand layup for the winning basket. The Spurs had two more shots after that, but Silas missed a 10-foot jumper, and Mark Olberding's buzzer shot went in and out of the hoop. Caldwell Jones topped Philadelphia with 20 points and 17 big rebounds. Darryl Dawkins collected 18, Cheeks 15. For the Spurs, Silas totaled 27, and George Gervin 21.

San Antonio's dejected coach, Doug Moe, didn't want to talk about the seventh game.

"I don't know what we're going to do," Moe said. "We'll wait and see. I'm not going to worry about Wednesday when we're thinking about this (the sixth) game. It was a tough loss. We just didn't do a good job on the defensive boards in the last quarter. They got behind us and got the layups.

As for Cheeks' winning score, Moe said, "we knew they were going to Dawkins. So, we double teamed him, but in the scramble, Cheeks got open since we didn't cover up on him, and he dribbled in and scored. It was a broken play for them. Cheeks made a helluva play.'

Forwards Bobby Dandridge and Elvin Hayes combined Sunday for 68 points, 23 in the final quarter, to power the defending champion Washington Bullets to a victory over the tenacious Atlanta Hawks and into the National record held by Don Drysdale.

The Bullets will play at home Friday night and Sunday against the winner of the Philadelphia-San Antonio series, now tied 3-3, which will be concluded in Texas on Wednesday.

"It was a man's game out there today," said Washington Coach Dick Motta after the game that gave the Bullets a 4-3 edge in the best-of-seven series. "It was no place out there for the weak at heart."

Dandridge scored 17 of his 29 points in the final quarter and Hayes was the game's high scorer with 39 points, six in the last period. John Drew led the Hawks with 24 while Terry Furlow had 21:

"This is the toughest seven-game series that wasn't for all the money that I ever played in." said Dandridge 'Atlanta gave us everything we needed and then some."

The Bullets suffered once more from the inability of their guards to score. At one point, the Washington guards had hit on only two of 23 attempts, but Phil Chenier and Larry Wright came off the bench to make four quick baskets to boost the Bullets' spirits.

Hayes had nothing but praise for the Atlanta club.

"They are truly winners." he said. "I have more respect for Atlanta, basically, than for any other team in the league. Any other team than us Atlanta would have beaten today.

"Atlanta played a tremendous game today. We just played a little better," said Hayes.

Atlanta Coach Hubie Brown said, "The old pros knew they were in a donnybrook. We have nothing to be ashamed of.

Miraculous comeback proves fatal for Atlanta

Sunday

ninth

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer

First the Chicago Cubs jumped all over Atlanta relief ace Gene Garber. Then they jumped all over each other.

'Unbelievable," said Atlanta Manager Bobby Cox, who learned the hard way Sunday that a baseball game is never over until the last man is out.

The Braves entered the ninth inning with a 5-0 lead behind Larry McWilliams, who was hurling a two-hitter. They led 5-0 when Garber came on with the bases loaded and two out. But they trailed - and lost - 6-5 by the time Garber finally got that elusive third out following Tim Blackwell's two-run single, pinch-hitter Larry Biittner's RBI single and Bobby Murcer's three-run homer.

"I was on second when Bobby hit it," said Blackwell. "When I got to the dugout everybody was jumping up and down, jumping all over everybody.

Until their late explosion, the Cubs' only hits were leadoff singles by Ivan DeJesus in the first inning and Steve Ontiveros in the second. In the ninth, they Kingman's single and a pair of walks.

Phillies 4, Padres 3 Second baseman Manny Trillo, whose error gave San Diego a run in the third inning. capped the Phillies' two-run ninth with an RBI single. Philadelphia entered the ninth trailing 3-2, but Mike Schmidt drew a leadoff walk from San Diego relief ace Rollie Fingers and Garry Maddox hit a looping fly that went for a double when left fielder Jerry Turner was unable to hold it. Schmidt scored on a wild pitch before Trillo's game-winning single. Pirates 10, Astros 5 Omar Moreno and Willie Stargell drove in three runs apiece to rally the Pirates after Houston began the game with a leadoff homer by Terry Puhl. Pittsburgh starter Don Robinson left the game with a shoulder injury after delivering the home run pitch and Bruce

Kison earned the victory with a 4-3 deficit in the fourth inning when Ellis Valentine, making his first appearance since serving a three-game suspension for bumping an umpire, slammed a three-run pinch homer off Vida Blue. Larry Herndon drove in three San Francisco runs with a homer and triple but couldn't prevent the Giants from losing their seventh game in a row.

Reds 5, Cardinals 1 Paul Moskau pitched 52-3 innings of scoreless relief and singled home the winning run in a four-run fourth inning. Moskau took over in the third inning when Tom Seaver reinjured his back. Johnny Bench passed a team and career milestone with his 6,000th time at hat

Richie Hebner drove in the go-ahead run with a single and Joel Youngblood smacked his fourth homer in six games to lead the Mets in the nightcap. In the opener. Dusty Baker drove in five runs with a homer, single and bases-loaded walk and Gary Thomasson had three RBI while
