Stenholm to meet with faith-based representatives Sat., June 16

Congressman Charlie Stenholm will join a representative from the White House Office Faith-Based and Community Initiatives, Stanley Carlson-Thies, in a public discussion on President Bush's Faith-Based and Community Initiatives proposal Sat., June 16. The meeting will begin at 1:00 p.m. in the library auditorium on the campus of Abilene Christian University.

"I strongly share the President's desire to explore ways in which the government can work in partnership with faith-based and charitable service groups to respond to the needs of American," noted Stenholm. "At the same time, I want to protect the religious liberties so fundamental to our nation and ensure that the 'solutions' which we develop actually respond to existing problems without creating new problems."

The forum will provide the opportunity for interested parties to hear about the White House plan which is intended "to enlist, equip, enable, empower and expand the heroic works of faith-based and community groups" which are involved in providing social services to those in need across America.

More importantly, the event will provide Congressman Stenholm and the White House practical feedback from a panel of individuals involved in local faith-based organizations. "The knowledge, experience and insights I expect to gain from the forum participants will directly influence the manner in which I will proceed in developing legislative policies."

All folks interested in faith-based social service proposals are welcome to join Congressman Stenholm and President Bush's representative for this informative event. Those wishing to attend the forum are encouraged to contact Chandra Ford or James Beauchamp of Congressman Stenholm's Abilene office (673-7221) to advise of their participation.

- Thanks for being brave (or crazy) enough to direct Vacation Bible School.

As a schoolteacher and wife and mother of three, Yolanda Rueda rarely sits still long enough to pose for a picture. If she's not fixing supper or grading papers for her fourth grade science classes (or teaching Catechism or leading Brownies), she's probably out bike riding with her kids or splashing around with them in the swimming pool.

Yolanda and her family depend on co-op power for their homes. She and her husband Gilbert belong to a Smart Choice cooperative. What's "Smart Choice?" We're a coalition of Texas co-ops committed to making the right decision on electric deregulation.

Our customers are our neighbors. When you call your electric cooperative, chances are you're speaking to the same people you spoke with last time you called, whether that was last month or last year.

Co-ops are local enterprises operated by local people. That means we're familiar with your account and its history. Whether you're calling about billing, installation, maintenance or anything else, you'll get attention from someone with experience and knowledge, someone you know and who knows you — not a temp in a cubicle in a "service center" in another state. The smart choice on deregulation is to wait and see how it affects our members before we opt in. Let's not wait 'til it's too late to say "Whoa!"

Electric cooperatives in Texas have been providing power to Texans since 1937. As co-ops, we are non-profit and member-owned. To learn more about deregulation, visit us at our web site, or call your local Smart Choice cooperative.

State Capital

HIGHLIGHTS

By Mike Cox
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — Hardly had the Legislature left town before the dome of the capitol collapsed—politically speaking.

As lawmakers returned to Hometown, Texas to bask in the glory of what they had done or take heat for what they had not done, no one expected any big political news sooner than July.

That big news, no real secret, would be the announcement by Laredo Democrat Tony Sanchez that he had definitely decided to seek his party's nomination for the run for governor against incumbent Republican Rick Perry.

Of course, former University of Texas football star Marty Akins also will be seeking that spot on the ballot opposite Perry.

The probable shape of the governor's race, however, is old news.

The figurative dome collapse came on June 5, with the surprise announcement by acting Lt. Gov. Bill Ratliff that he would not run for a full term as presiding officer of the Senate, arguably the most powerful elected office in the state.

Ratliff said, in so many words, that he just did not want to go through what it takes to run a political campaign these days. Two of those things are being able to raise a lot of money and having an affinity for TV sound bites.

The dust raised by Ratliff's dome tumbling announcement, coming only 10 days after he said he would run for a full term, has not settled yet.

In short order, Republican Sen. David Sibley of Waco said he would run for the job. So did Texas Supreme Court Justice Greg Abbott, also a Republican.

Sibley, 53, just barely lost to Ratliff last December when the Senate elected its acting presiding officer after Perry moved to the Governor's Mansion.

Abbott, 43, has been on the state's highest court since being appointed by Gov. George W. Bush in 1995.

Land Commissioner David Dewhurst, though he has not officially said so, also is expected to wade into the Republican primary battle.

Then, whoever comes out on top in the spring 2002 election likely will face Democrat John Sharp in the November general election.

So what does it all mean? For one thing, it shows the power of the office. Power abhors a vacuum. In addition to being the person who runs the 31-member Senate, the lieutenant governor oversees the Legislative Budget Board.

Another thing all this scrambling means is that Texans are in for one of the spiciest political seasons they have seen for a long time.

No matter who wins the primary, it'll be the hottest governor's contest since the man who is now our President defeated incumbent Democrat Ann Richards. It'll be the wildest lieutenant governor's race in memory.

Exact change only, please

If you'll be visiting any prison units in Texas after Aug. 1 and think you might get thirsty for a vending machine beverage, better have change available.

To guard against inmates getting any prohibited folding money, the Department of Criminal Justice is barring paper currency from prison.

Visitors will only be allowed to enter with coins, and no more than $20 at that.

The problem, the agency says, is that friends and family members of prisoners have been known to smuggle $20 bills to inmates.

One way, they say, is by exchanging a contraband bill through a lingering kiss.

From The Inside Out

By Mary Kaigler

The celebration of Father's Day may not prompt the sending of as many bouquets or corsages as does Mother's Day each year, (probably mainly because those things are not Dad's 'thing').

Yet, while perhaps neither we nor our Dads tend to get as sentimental over the day as we and our mothers do, there is no less amount of awareness or appreciation of how deeply the influence of our father goes in the development of who we are.

We honor our fathers and our mothers for their dedication in raising us, and as parents ourselves, we honor the awesome responsibility we have been blessed to be given.

Two poems by former Haskell resident, David Anderson of Dallas, speak of his appreciation of his father, the late Carl Anderson, and of his desire as a father himself to prepare a son for growing up.

A Picture of My Dad

By David Anderson

He was just a country boy, from an Oklahoma clan. Just one of eight, and times were hard, in that Okie-Dust Bowl land.

His Mom and Dad were far from rich, but gave thanks for what they had. He had to grow up working hard; and that's a picture of my Dad.

He learned responsibility at such an early age. And his family could depend on him to work and share his wage.

On every job he went on, he was the best they had. And you could always count on him; and that's a picture of my Dad.

He played football at Shawnee High, and one year they never lost. In fact, they played the game so well that their goal was never crossed.

Six-two with dark and wavy hair, he was such a handsome lad. And Bonnie was his sweetheart; and that's a picture of my Dad.

He never finished college, but the fire to learn was there. He had to work the oil fields. He had to earn his share.

He worked for Noble Drilling, the youngest operator they ever had. And he knew how to work a crew; and that's a picture of my Dad.

He and Bonnie married, and their love grew through the years. They raised five healthy children, through the good times and the tears.

They started their own business with the money that they had. And the seed they planted flourished; and that's a picture of my Dad.

He loved so many things in life that it's hard to list them all. He loved his family and his friends, and a challenge big or small.

He loved a good drink and a game of cards, and he was seldom ever sad. Life's problems couldn't get him down; and that's a picture of my Dad.

He loved to hunt and fish and plant, and he loved to see things grow. From a new born calf to a garden sprout, life's miracle impressed him so.

He never did forget his roots, but thanked God for what he had. And his inner strength impressed us all; and that's a picture of my Dad.

I'm so proud he was my father, for all the things that he went through, and the obstacles he overcame to make his dreams come true.

He taught me how to be a man, and for that I'm mighty glad. And his name was Carl Anderson; and that's a picture of my Dad.

My Son

By David Anderson

Never give up trying and always do your best. Meet each challenge with a smile and don't be like all the rest.

Stand up and hold your shoulders back, and be proud of who you are. Try hard to keep your life clean, and my son, you will go far.

Never measure your success in life by what others have and do. For in this world of many, some will have more or less than you.

Don't get discouraged when you fail, it's just a part of living. And don't let anger fill your heart, but be loving and forgiving.

Be happy from within yourself, and don't lust for worldly things. For greed is never satisfied; pain and heartaches are all it brings.

Stay up-beat and positive in everything you do, and God will hold you in his hand, and be so proud of you.

Ask the AG

By John Cornyn
Attorney General

Q: I have a problem with a business that won't honor a warranty.

A: My office serves as the state's consumer protection agency. However, by law we cannot take your side in a dispute with a merchant. But we may be able to help you through our voluntary dispute resolution service. The majority of the consumer complaints we receive each year are solved through this process.

If we decide that your complaint is appropriate for dispute resolution, we will ask the business to respond to your complaint and offer a solution. You will receive written notice of the business' response. If your complaint is not appropriate for dispute resolution, or if we refer your complaint to another agency with appropriate jurisdiction, we will notify you of the decision.

Q: Can you help me sue them?

A: State law prohibits my office from filing a lawsuit on behalf of an individual. In addition, we cannot provide legal advice or representation to private individuals.

The State Bar of Texas provides a Lawyer Referral Service that can help you find an attorney who has relevant legal expertise. You can contact the referral service at (800) 252-9690.

Q: What if other consumers are having the same problem with the business? Will you take action then?

A: We keep all consumer complaints on file so that we can monitor possible illegal practices by companies. In some cases, a large number of complaints alerts us to the need to enforce the state's consumer protection laws. If we become aware of a serious violation that threatens Texas consumers, we may file suit on behalf of the public interest.

Whether a suit is in the public interest depends on the severity of the case in terms of economic loss or the number and gravity of the legal violations. We also balance the extent to which consumers will benefit from public enforcement with the cost of action, and consider the likelihood of collecting penalties and restitution from the business. We can, of course, take quick action to halt a scheme that is patently illegal.

Even if we sue a business against which you have made a complaint, we may not be able to recover money for restitution. The company's practices may have affected so many people that it is impossible to prove each person's damages; the company may have gone out of business, and the owners have disappeared or be found not legally responsible; or the company may have spent or hidden its assets, leaving nothing with which to repay consumers. In these cases, we may file suit to stop illegal practices even though we know we won't be able to recover money for consumers.

Q: How can I file a complaint?

A: There are several ways. You can request a complaint form by calling Consumer Protection at (800) 621-0508. You can also file a complaint online through our Web site at www.oag.state.tx.us. You can also download a copy of the complaint form from the Web. Finally, you can request a form by writing to us at: Office of the Attorney General, Consumer Protection Division, PO Box 12548, Austin, TX 78711-2548.

2001 Annual Consumer Report on the Quality of Tap Water

Our goal at the City of Haskell is to provide you with high-quality, safe drinking water that exceeds every federal and state standard. As mandated by the Safe Drinking Water Act (SDWA), this "Consumer Confidence Report" (CCR) details our water sources, the results of our water tests, and other information. For quality tap water, you can count on the City of Haskell to provide its citizens with only the best. Our records and tests results show that there were no violation of water quality regulations.

We are glad to report that the water provided by the North Central Texas Municipal Water Authority (NCTMWA), water treatment plant meets or exceeds water quality standards.

Overview

The City of Haskell receives its water supply from the Miller Creek Reservoir located in Baylor and Throckmorton Counties on FM 1608 approximately 10 miles southeast of Goree.

This CCR is based upon tests conducted in the year 2000 by the City of Haskell. The City of Haskell collects four samples a month, 48 per year. Because the City received one bad sample, the City collected fifty-two samples which four of these samples were taken in November were to recheck the one bad sample. We are checking for microbiological contamination. The City of Haskell is providing a safe drinking water to our customers. We are checking for microbiological contamination. The City will be testing for lead and copper in 2001. Lead and copper tests were conducted in 1998 and did not exceed action levels.

Additional Health Information

To ensure that tap water is safe to drink, the EPA prescribes limits on the amount of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems. FDA regulations establish limits for contaminants in bottled water. Drinking water, of bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of potential health effects can be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency's Safe Drinking Water Hotline (1-800-426-4791).

The City of Haskell along with North Central Texas Municipal Water Authority is proud to announce that we do have "A Safe Water for Drinking". This CCR was developed in accordance with 40 CFR parts 141 and 142, National Primary Drinking Water Regulations: Consumer Confidence Reports. This CCR document was prepared as requested by the City of Haskell.

Terms used in Water Quality Table and in other parts of this CCR are defined as follows:

- Maximum Containment Level or MCL: The highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCL are set as close to the MCLG as feasible using the best-available treatment technology.
- Maximum Containment Level Goal or MCLG: The level of contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLG allow for a margin of safety.
- Action Level or AL: The concentration of copper and/or lead which, when exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements which a water system must follow.

Special Notice for the ELDERLY, INFANTS, CANCER PATIENTS, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune problems:

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by Cryptosporidium and other microbial contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

About The Following Pages

The pages that follow list all of the federally regulated or monitored constituents which have been found in your drinking water. U.S. EPA requires water systems to test up to 97 constituents

Secondary Constituents

Many constituents (such as calcium, sodium, or iron) which are often found in drinking water, can cause taste, color, and odor problems. The taste and odor constituents are called secondary constituents and are regulated by the State of Texas, not EPA. These constituents are not causes for health concerns. Therefore, secondaries are not required to be reported in this document but they may greatly affect the appearance and taste of your water.

DEFINITIONS

Maximum Containment Level (MCL)
The highest permissible level of a contaminant in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.

Maximum Containment Level Goal (MCLG)
The level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected health risk. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety

Treatment Technique (TT)

A required process intended to reduce the level of a contaminant in drinking water.

Action Level (AL)

The concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements which a water system must follow.

NTU - Nephelometric Turbidity Units
MFL - million fibers per liter (a measure of asbestos) pCi/l picocuries per liter (a measure of radioactivity)

ppm - parts per million, or milligrams per liter (mg/l)

ppb - parts per billion, or micrograms per liter (µg/l)

ppt - parts per trillion, or nanograms per liter

ppq - parts per quadrillion, or picograms per liter

Our Drinking Water Meets or Exceeds All Federal (EPA) Drinking Water Requirements

This report is a summary of the quality of the water we provide our customers. The analysis was made by using the data from the most recent U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) required tests and is presented in the attached pages. We hope this information helps you become more knowledgeable about what's in your drinking water.

Where do we get our drinking water?
Our drinking water is obtained from Surface water sources. It comes from the following Lake/River/Reservoir/Aquifer: MILLER CRK RES. TNRC will be reviewing all of Texas drinking water sources. The source water assessment process will be completed within three years. It is important to protect your drinking water by protecting your water source.

ALL drinking water may contain contaminants.

When drinking water meets federal standards there may not be any health based benefits to purchasing bottled water or point of use devices. Drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency's Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

COLIFORMS
What are coliforms?
Total coliform bacteria are used as indicators of microbial contamination of drinking water because testing for them is easy. While not disease-causing organisms themselves, they are often found in association with other microbes that are capable of causing disease. Coliform bacteria are more hardy than many disease-causing organisms; therefore, their absence from water is a good indication that the water is microbiologically safe for human consumption.

Fecal coliform bacteria and, in particular, E. coli, are members of the coliform bacteria group originating in the intestinal tract of warm-blooded animals and are passed into the environment through feces. The presence of fecal coliform bacteria (E. coli) in drinking water may indicate recent contamination of the drinking water with fecal material. The following table indicates whether total coliform or fecal coliform bacteria were found in the monthly drinking water samples submitted for testing by your water supplier last year.

Year	Constituent	Highest Monthly Number of Positive Samples	MCL	Unit of Measure	Source of Constituent
2000	Total Coliform Bacteria	1	Presence	Naturally present in the environment.

* Two or more coliform found samples in any single month.

Sanders family holds annual reunion

From several towns in Texas, Arizona and North Carolina, children, grandchildren and great grandchildren of the late Jack and Sallie Sanders, longtime residents of Weinert, met June 1-3 at the ranch of Jacky and Sandra Sanders between Haskell and Throckmorton.

Rocky and Marsha Sanders and their children hosted the reunion this year. Lona Mae Phelps and her family of Haskell will host the reunion on the first weekend of June next year.

All ten of the living children attended this year with a total attendance of seventy-two.

When the family arrived at the ranch house they saw a two story lodge, "Daddy Jack's" bunkhouse and two cabins where the entire family could sleep under air conditioning. Also at the ranch were barrel horses, a volleyball court, basketball court and a chuck wagon where Ricky, Shana, Rocky and Charles did the cooking for the group.

Sue Cox and Marie Kirkland exceeded a talent show Saturday night. Talent included singing, tumbling, storytelling and jokes.

Lona Mae Phelps was reigning Mrs. Reunion Queen and Ethel Slade was nominated queen for 2001.

Attending the reunion this year were Lona Mae Phelps, Kenneth and Elaine Campbell, Karen, Kendall and Allison Mitchell, all of Haskell; Travis, Wilma, Pam and Leigh Sanders of Coleman; Darwin, Ethel, Tammy, Pete and Austin Slade of Eagar, Ariz.

Andy and Marlene Sanders, Netha, Renetha, A. J. Carrouth, Tina and Megan Thomas, all of Cross Plains; John Hardman of Apex, N. C.; Bill, Martha and Loretta; Little Bill, Denise and Mark Maupin; Susan, Krystal and Shawn Ray of Odessa; B. D. and Marie Kirkland, Jacky Dee, Barbie, Kristen and Rebecca Kirkland, Tammy Tennyson and Stephanie Cornett, all of Fort Worth.

Walter and Sue Cox of Omaha; Brenda, Casey, Austin and Sallie Sartain of Ore City; David, Deborah, Zane and Annah Mackey of Naples; Jacky, Sandra, Rex and Jaelyn of Aledo; Ricky, Shana and Shambay of Weatherford; Scarlet, Johnny, Teresa, Shauna, Teresa Diane and Re'Gene Cole of McQueeny; Rocky and Marsha Sanders and their grandson Bryce McGough of Abilene.

Visitors were Tina and Lewis Lacey of Clarendon, Randy Strickland and Charles Davis of Cross Plains. Strickland sang several cowboy songs.

A devotional was held Sunday morning at the pavilion where a beautiful mural of running horses is behind the stage. Travis Sanders led the group in singing; Sue Cox and her two daughters sang a special song, "We're Part of a Family." Lona Mae Phelps read the scriptures from Psalms 34.

This Week's Devotional Message:

FAITH HELPS US APPRECIATE A FATHER'S WISDOM

Despite a variety of unflattering images depicting a father as either too stern or too spineless, the true picture is more likely that of a kindly, hard-working provider and protective shield for his family; the wise arbiter of right and wrong; the author of firm but loving discipline; and a tower of strength at all times. A father tries to conceal his anxieties while setting the example of character and courage for his children, and must provide the answer to any physical or moral crisis that may arise. The Bible is filled with passages in praise of a father's wisdom and guidance, and you should learn to honor and respect your father at the Church of your choice; not merely on special occasions, but every day of the year.

The Hard Way.

Sure, you can stand in the street in the middle of a major intersection every day for a week with an item you want to sell, put a couple of huge signs on it, and hope someone takes you up on the offer. It might just get the job done. Or you might just end up looking foolish.

The Easy Way.

Or, you can place a Private Party Classified ad with us and have people from all over the area clamoring to take your unwanted items off your hands for a handsome profit. Quickly and easily. And for a very small investment. So what are you waiting for? Call now!
