An automobile crash here Sunday morning about 10:45 o'clock caused a painful gash in his head to John M. Ivy, driver of one of the cars, and luckily did not injure any of the other several passengers in the two cars.

Singing the praises of Texas in a literal sense are the five citizens of the Lone Star state pictured above. The picture appeared in the Shanghai Herald (Shanghai, China) Sunday, Jan. 6. In the center of the top row is Cpl. Lloyd Gilliland of Haskell.

Shanghai Newspaper Tells How Haskell G.I. Brought Musical Relief Aboard Pacific Ship

The article below was written by Sgt. Eddie McCullough in the Shanghai Herald Jan. 6 in connection with the above picture. We used to get pretty bored at times during those steaming nights in the Pacific as the U.S.S. General Patrick idled its way across the equator last July. We had variety shows on the maindeck twice a week, but in the mornings, and we had movies in one of the hatches, but they were in the afternoons.

Nothing that had to be seen could be put on after early evening, because of the "Darken Ship" regulations, designed of course to conceal us from Jap subs. At first there was nothing to do but sit on the hot steel deck and gaze at the stars or watch the radar antennae stop the mainmast turn tirelessly as it scanned the night around us.

One night the ship's chaplain held a community sing in the moonlight, and the next night he had a program of cowboy music. One of the sailors played a ukelele and some of the soldiers played guitars and banjos and sang.

Lloyd Gilliland was one of the G.I. performers that first night, and everyone liked the idea so much that he began bringing his guitar up on deck every night for a small jam session with the other players. Occasionally they'd have too many guitar players and no fiddler, or no one on the mandolin, so Gil would try doubling on whatever instrument they were short. He wanted to learn them all, he said, and he had almost mastered them when we finally docked in Calcutta.

I didn't see any more of Gil after we landed in Kunning. He was transferred to one place and I to another, and somehow I just never thought of him.

Then one evening last week a series of high-pitched squeals poured through the ventilator in our room at the New Asia hotel. It was awful at first, but gradually improved until the tune could be distinguished amid the trial and error squeaks and groans. Slowly, determinedly, the mad fiddler learned to play "Rosalia" and "Rose of San Antonio", and eventually the nightly rig grew a tail of guitars and banjos and harmonicas. Unable to stand this suspense any longer, I finally tracked the sounds down to a room on the next floor, and knocked wildly on the door.

Yes sir, here was Gil, his Chinese fiddle, a "woojing" in his hand. He had finally been assigned to AAF headquarters and sent to Shanghai where he was billeted in the New Asia.

On his first night in town he had heard a street hawker murdering "Oh Susanna" on a woojing, and, a true perfectionist, his artistic soul would not rest until he had mastered that ancient instrument, too. Come up some night and we'll all go crazy together.

Extension of the Victory Clothing Collection until Feb. 10 has been announced by George Neely, chairman, and all who have not yet contributed to the drive will have additional time to aid the underprivileged of other nations.

Decision to extend the deadline was made by national officials of the campaign because of an even greater need than was first apparent.

Citizens of Haskell proved their generous nature by donating clothing and bedding that was estimated at 3,000 pounds or about 10,000 pieces, in the city-wide pickup here Sunday.

Other sections of the county that have not made plans for the clothing drive are urged to do so and submit their collections before the deadline.

SALLY SNOOP

Contact With the Moon: Stella Frierson was asked why she was so anxious to make a trip to the moon and Stella replied: "Well, Mrs. Odell, I have been told there is a man in the moon, and I want to be the first to contact him."

In a discussion on good grooming Nancy Ann Furrh asked the question: "Miss Birdwell, aren't you supposed to wash your face before eating?" Chan King replied: "No, silly, that's cats."

Dear Miss Birdwell: I would like to know who that tall and handsome man is? Answer: See you next week.

"Do you study hard in school, C. W.?" asked his aunt.

"No, ma'am, I don't." "But you must study hard, or you will never be President of the United States."

"Yes, ma'am," said C. W., "but I don't expect to be—I'm a farmer."

"I can't sleep," wailed a voice in his ear as the doctor got out of bed to answer the telephone at three in the morning.

"Hold the wire, Miss White," said the doctor crustily. "I'll sing you a lullaby."

Merle Ross walked into a downtown grocery store in search of something for the Sophomores. "I want to buy all your over-ripe vegetables and stale eggs," he said.

"Well," said the shopkeeper with a twinkle in his eye, "You must be going to see the new comedian at the theater tonight."

"Not so loud," said Merle. "I'm conducting the Sophomore food sale."

SPORTS REVIEW

The Haskell Cagers dropped two games to the Throckmorton Cagers Tuesday night January 22 by a margin of 33-23 in the B game and 35-15 in the A game.

The boys have greatly improved since the last time they met the Throckmorton team, which can be told by the scores.

Coach Berryhill has certainly made a hit with the students. Good luck to you, Coach.

The Indian A team won their first game by beating the Albany Cagers by a margin of 26-28.

Students—let's back the boys by seeing their games. The Indian team was aided by Henry Harris and Merle Ross who became eligible at midterm.

FAVORITES ON THE CAMPUS

This year's congratulations go to the following Annual Favorites: Candidates for Annual Queen are Geraldine Worrel, Senior; Carolyn Turner, Junior; Anita Jo Pitman, Sophomore; Chan King, Freshman.

This year's most beautiful girl was Catherine Davis. The best choice that could have ever been made.

Earl Ross was our most handsome boy. Congratulations, you really fit the situation.

Our best all-around girl was Bonnie Edwards (and really the best ever), and Tooley's personality could fit most any favorite but best all-around boy fits him best.

The most popular girl this year is Jane Richey and we really want to say congratulations. Rice is our most popular boy and we really think you're tops, Rice.

In the world of sports we find that Otto Peiser is our best athlete. To our knowledge he really is.

The basketball boys made the best selection they could have made when they chose Kathryn Harrell for basketball Queen.

We feel sure that everyone is pleased with the selections of our favorites this year because they really are our favorites.

HOMEMAKING NEWS

Well, here it is the second term. Everybody is ready and started the new term off right. If you see anybody running around with red knees, don't feel worried, we've been waxing floors.

The second year girls also sandpapered, varnished, and waxed the table tops in the cottage. Also the club is proud of the new piece of furniture in the bedroom. We bought a chest of drawers and refinished it. Let's hope we keep up the good work.

SENIOR SLANDER

The Seniors feel like they are finally graduating. Those wonderful caps and gowns are being ordered and also the senior play is being selected.

This high school couldn't have gotten any finer favorites than they did. Congrats to all of you.

Our annual queen nominee, Geraldine Worrel, is one of the best ever. The seniors are behind her 100 per cent.

Our alluring red-headed boys, Charles Greenway and Felix Byrd, with a few other Juniors are really the talk of the school. They really changed the looks of our halls.

We are fortunate in having two new seniors with us, Evelyn Mann and Lowell Ross. Good luck to you in our school.

The Juniors are really trying their best to give us a good banquet. They have made a grand start anyway.

JUNIOR JINKS

We have some swell annual favorites, because two are from the Junior class. Catherine Davis, for most beautiful girl, and Tooley, best all-around boy. Don't you think these two are the best ever?

Welcome, Leroy Medford. We are sure glad to have you come to dear old Haskell Hi. We hope you like it lots.

We wonder why some people always seek out this old girl and say, "Don't put anything in the Warwhoop about me." Guilty conscience, Mary Lois.

We have some red-headed Romeo in our class and we do mean red heads. Rex, you and Huey and Giles: Did it burn while it was becoming red?

Our annual queen is super. Congrats, Carolyn. Come on jinks, let's back our queen and make her the "Queen of the Chieftan."

The chile supper was swell, thanks to the mothers that made pies, and the ones that helped with the chile, your help made it a great success.

Everybody knows why Nelle was so happy Tuesday morning C. W. started back to school. Welcome back, C. W., we've missed you lots.

SOPHOMORE SOUP

Congrats to Swell Favorites. The students couldn't have picked better ones.

Anita Jo is our candidate for Annual Queen. Let's get behind her and win.

We are glad to have Mrs. Odell back after her trip out of town. With that cook book she brought back she should never have a failure.

Our assembly comes up soon. Let's make it the best ever. That's all for this week. The old reporter has run out. So long.

FRESHMAN FROLIC

Come on you kids, be sure and save your pennies cause boy, look who is out for annual queen. Chan King.

What is this I hear about Frances wanting to meet Jr. Brannon of Mattson? Sorry, Frances, he is already occupied.

Say, you boys, who is that new boy that all the girls want to meet? Come on, you guys, you can't keep it from us long.

Bobby Neil, I see, is the lucky one this week with a brand new chick. Just ask Melba.

Say, you Juniors sure know how to make chile! Boy! Was it good! Nice work.

BAND NEWS

Your Haskell High Band has elected a sweetheart. It is very proud of it. Everybody knows her as a very charming, intelligent friend Raynelle Godfrey.

LIBRARY NOTES

"The King's General" by Daphne du Maurier.

One of Miss du Maurier's most engaging talents is her ability to incorporate here the best features of her previous books without once repeating herself.

"The King's General" has much of the depth of Hungry Hill, some of the suspense of Rebecca, a little of the swash-buckling of Frenchman's Creek, but is nothing like any of them.

Menably stands bare and desolate on the Cornish coast, its ivy-covered walls hiding the secret which two people will carry to their graves: Honor Harris, so injured as a girl that she never walked again, and Sir Richard Grenville, the King's General in the West, resentful, proud, bitter to the end. The only man Honor ever loved.

She saw him for the first time on the night of her eighteenth birthday at the Duke of Buckingham's ball. Richard was already a veteran of foreign wars and on his way to fame and power. She bade him a final farewell years later when, his cause lost and Menabily surrounded by the forces of the enemy, he vanished through a secret passage from her life.

To tell more of the story here would be unfair. Only Miss du Maurier is able to do justice to the hairbreadth escapes and exciting events which punctuate this tale of three hundred years ago, told as if it happened yesterday.

This book was presented to the Haskell High School students by Mrs. T. R. Odell, teacher of English and Social Studies in our school.

Park At Your Peril

On almost any given Saturday afternoon the four streets around the square here are so clogged with traffic that other cars can proceed only at a snail pace, often having to stop while another car in front gets going or while one backs away from the curb.

There is scarcely a driver who often parks his car in the business district who is not delayed quite frequently because of other cars that illegally obstruct his passage. Haskell has had for several years a city ordinance that prohibits double parking along the streets of the city. And a state law provides that traffic shall not block free passage of traffic along a state highway.

On the west side of the square on a recent Saturday afternoon there were twenty automobiles parked illegally. The cars that were parked at the curb could not possibly have been driven away. Anyone whose car was parked at the curb would have found it impossible to leave hurriedly for a possible emergency. The condition on the west side was repeated on other streets of the city, and it is a condition that may be found any Saturday afternoon or night and, to a less extent, many times during the week.

It has been found that those people who are so inconsiderate of the rights of others by parking illegally, also are so thoughtless as to leave their cars without keys in them in order that they might be moved. The drivers are often bent on getting their shopping done, and the devil take the hindmost. Parking in such a manner certainly does afford a convenience for the driver of the car, but it causes a resulting inconvenience on others who have parked their cars legally.

Whatever such parking saves, does not make it just to work such an inconvenience on others. It is not an easy task to push a car. And even this is impossible many times because the cars are often parked in a solid row, making it necessary for others to have to wait an indefinite time before being allowed to move.

There is always parking space near the city business district, whether or not it is immediately in front of the place the shopper wants to go. Walking a block or two does not work as much hardship as having to push a car or wait until the driver of the illegally parked car appears.

A few weeks ago there was a fire in the business district. It so happened that it was near the end of the block on the south side and firemen were not delayed in bringing fire-fighting equipment. But it might have been a different story. The fire might have been in the middle of a block where the cars were jammed. In such a case it is easy to see how they might have been a contributing factor to a more serious fire.

Unlawful parking is not necessarily the fault of law enforcement officers. The few who are on duty here have other duties to perform, but they will be found willing to cooperate with the citizens who do want the parking laws enforced. We believe such citizens are in the majority and there is no question of the right or wrong.

Labor Plays For Keeps

The Free Press has no ambition of dictating national policy concerning any question. No proposition is going to stand or fall because of our support or objection. We are trying to grab no glory in echoing these sentiments about the management-labor strife: Would labor demand that its wages be cut if General Motors should make less money? On the premise of the company's ability to pay a higher wage, the United Automobile Workers of the C. I. O. are bogged down in a strike.

We do not believe that labor has any right to demand that General Motors be forced to lay bare its financial records for the inspection by government or labor groups which would use such records to demand a wage increase. The system of free enterprise is geared to the notion that the owner is going to make money. That is why factories are built, why machinery is made, why workers are hired. It is all a part of the economic interchange, the plan to live and let live.

It has been pointed out by many sources that our economic system cannot be continued as efficiently by allowing interference. So the struggle that is going on now is one that will determine whether labor is to be given authority to interrupt that system. We do not know whether or not General Motors should increase its offer that already stands at $1.19 per hour on the average, not counting overtime. But we do know that it should not be forced to increase its offer.

Labor already has gone far afield in off-color action. A labor organization has no more lawful right than any other group of citizens. And yet it will not allow other employees to work at a place where a strike has been declared. The condition is no more lawful than if part of the employees of a Haskell store forcibly stopped other employees from entering the store. By such actions, labor leaders have earned the blackest name of any group in America's economic system.

Pure humanity, friendship, home, the interchange of love, bring to earth a foretaste of heaven. They unite terrestrial and celestial joys, and crown them with blessings infinite.—Mary Baker Eddy.

Mrs. Gladys Mundy Will Seek Office Of Tax Collector

Mrs. Gladys (Wright) Mundy, member of a pioneer Haskell County family, has authorized announcement of her candidacy for the office of tax assessor-collector, subject to action of the coming Democratic primaries.

Decision to seek the office was made not only upon the solicitations of friends, but by her need to seek a more lucrative position than she now holds, to meet the growing needs of her immediate family.

In making her announcement as a candidate for the office of tax assessor-collector, Mrs. Mundy is not unmindful of the debt of gratitude America and Americans owe to the servicemen, but due to her past five and one-half years of experience as a deputy in the Haskell County tax assessor-collector's office, she is thoroughly familiar with the affairs of the office and feels justified in asking for the confidence and support of the taxpayer, in seeking this responsible position.

Mrs. Mundy, a widow, has one son, still in his teens, overseas, serving in the South Pacific with the amphibian forces of the Navy. Unless her duties at the office prevent her doing so, she plans to see and discuss her candidacy with each and every taxpayer of the county.

President Truman has been quoted as saying he doesn't like the job of being President because there's no future in it.

GRAND OPENING

Here it is, Friends! Our big day is here—the day to which we have looked forward for a long time. It is not only with much delight, but a great deal of pride that we announce our

Formal Opening of Bell's Red & White ON SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1946

We are extending to you, our new friends and customers, and to all the people of Haskell and surrounding communities an invitation to come in our new store some time through the day and take part in the celebration — see our completely remodeled store, our specials on many scarce items — and enjoy a cup of hot coffee and a doughnut. There will be a personnel of approximately twelve employees who will act as cheerful hosts and hostesses to see that you enjoy a delightful atmosphere. We want you to spend as much time as you will inspecting our improvements, stock and prices — an illustration of what you can always expect to find in our store.

The past entire week—day and night—has been spent remodeling the store, and adding many lovely new features. We are fortunate to have an expert interior decorator, and his helpers, furnished by H. O. Wooten Wholesale Grocer Co., out of Abilene to supervise the remodeling program. By Friday night they will walk out and turn over to us a beautiful new store, modernistic and complete, from the largest to the least detail. Among the many new features will be a huge vegetable unit, equipped to keep your vegetables cold, crisp and fresh at all times.

CLEANLINESS will be our motto, and will be evidenced in all the various departments.

We observed and studied the situation carefully over a long period of time before selecting a new location for our home and grocery business. Three months ago we selected Haskell. We bought our business and our home with the intention of settling in Haskell, enjoying her hospitality and civic advantages and contributing our efforts to the progress of the city.

We are elated and thrilled over the business we have enjoyed, and over its rapid growth in volume. To you we are truly grateful, and we extend to you a standing invitation to make our store your food headquarters, or to even give us a portion of your trade. It is our purpose to operate a business strictly from a standpoint of fairness, courtesy, and efficient service to you.

Come to see us.
