JOHN HENRY BROWN, EDITOR.

INDIANOLA, TEXAS.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 26, 1854.

TERMS OF THIS BULLETIN.
Subscription THREE DOLLARS per annum, if paid in advance; THREE DOLLARS AND FIFTEEN CENTS if paid within six months, or FOUR DOLLARS AND FIFTEEN CENTS if paid after one year. Advertisements, not exceeding a column of ten lines in less, cost nothing ONE DOLLAR, and for each subsequent insertion FIFTY CENTS. One-half those charges will be made to those who advertise by the year, with the privilege of changing quarterly.
Persons whose names are given in more than one square, will be inserted for TEN DOLLARS per annum. All advertisements must be marked with the number of insertions, otherwise they will be continued until filled, and charged accordingly. All communications must be addressed to the Publishers, post paid.

SCHOOLS—ADDRESSES TO-NIGHT.—We are requested to say that the second session of the Indianola Male and Female High School opens this day, under the direction of Mr. Goffin, who will be pleased to have a general attendance of the pupils in the commencement, so it will facilitate the classification very much.

We are also requested in state that, at the request of the trustees and a large number of citizens, the Rev. John M. Cochran will deliver an address on the subject of education at the church this evening, at 7 o'clock. Parents and all others are invited to attend.

ADVERTISEMENTS.—Our friends in the interior referred to the compilation and publishing card of Morris, Gallagher & Richardson, just opened at the lower wharf. These gentlemen have had many years experience on Red river and have now selected our place for the pursuit of their vocation, and among us well recommended. We were glad to see that their first business was the receipt of a good lot of cotton from the interior, for shipment to Philadelphia.

We also select a negligible notice for the advertising of J. A. C. Ashworth, grocer and commission merchant, who just opened at the lower wharf, where they will be glad to serve the public.

Persons having land matters, requiring an agency, are referred to the card respectively of Messrs. Raymond, Preston & Co., and Mr. J. Douglas Brown, Austin. With both Mr. Raymond and Mr. Brown, many of our readers are well acquainted and know them to be trust-worthy agents.

ERRATA.—In our notice of the party on the Merriam, last week, we inadvertently omitted the name of James A. Simpson, Esq., among those who responded to calls for speeches and sentiments.

DAGUERREOTYPE.—Mr. Morrell has returned to your city and is to be found at his old room, over "Coffie No. 2," where he is ready and willing to accommodate all who are in want of his services. As an artist, Mr. M. has no superior, and those wishing to procure good pictures of themselves or friends, should not let this opportunity pass, as he may not return again.

The Perseverance leaves tomorrow afternoon, for New Orleans.

The Perseverance arrived on Monday, with New Orleans date to the 23d. Thanks to Mr. Hughes for latepaper.

Among the passengers by the Perseverance, we were pleased to meet our friend, Owen M. Avery, Esq., of the house of Brumfield & Avery, New Orleans, spending a few days with us. New Orleans they have the most complete and extensive steam establishment known in the south for the manufacturing of Sash, Doors and Blinds, a branch of business which in Indiana and the country generally are deeply interested.

During the week we have been visited by Mr. S. Kinney, editor of the Nueces Valley, looking the improvement of health and cheerfulness.

Mr. Stuart of the Lookout Express, returned from New Orleans on the Louisiana.

Until yesterday, for three weeks past, we have had the most variable, chilling and unpleasant weather imaginable. It has detained several vessels bound to this port, on the gulf.

M. H. N. CALDWELL.—This gentleman, some months ago, became the agent at Indianola, of the New Orleans line of steamships. Though coming among us a stranger, we are gratified to say that his career has been such as to gain the esteem and confidence of our merchants and others having business with him, as a man of strict business habits, and most accommodating disposition. We are pleased that so important a position is filled by a suitable person.

CAPT. ALEXANDER BROWN.—This gentleman, being Deputy Collector of this Custom House District, since the death of Gen. Somervell, becomes Collector until another shall be appointed. Capt. B. is a gentleman of undoubted capacity for the station, and stands universally high wherever he is known, and we feel sure the principal office could not be bestowed upon a more worthy gentleman, or one more acceptable to the commercial community.

SHEEP.—Mr. H. N. Caldwell, of this city, has a small lot of sheep put on Chocolate, worth seeing. They number between six and seven thousand head. He locates them in Goliad county, but, from the richness of the grass, or other cause, they became unthrifty, and he designs keeping them on the coast, believing that the salt atmosphere and sea grass will be more favorable to them, as it proved to be at Point Isabel. In the flock are about 50 choice Merino rams.

GOV. FOOTE.—The National Intelligencer of January 18th, says: "The Governor, Foote, of Mississippi, who has been here for a short time, having on the eve of departure for California, accepted an emoluments, which recently induced him to go. Mr. F. E. Stanton, of Tennessee, occupied the chair, and Mr. Barry, of Virginia, and Mr. Wheeler of New York, acted as his successors. On the removal of the old Gov. Foote addressed the company, numbering two or three hundred, in an animated speech of an hour and a half."

New York, Jan. 18.—A letter from Koenig is just received here by the Europe, stating that he has been offered a short time to his to California, where he will immediately be sent by the Sultan. He says that preparation will be made for the transportation of all Americans in America who wish to go to Turkey.

JACKSON COUNTY CONTRIBUTION.
"Contributions."—It is said that Christianity has the best field among the nations that have the most powerful enemies and enemies, as for instance, Great Britain, France, and Russia. The absence of these three heathenism, Savage tribes have neither powerful arm nor navy.

Well, if these indicate the progress of Christianity, we shall insist that jails and penitentiaries are indications of moral progress and that Jackson County is progressing; for arrangements are being made for building a substantial jail at Texana. The walls of this several hundred feet to be of live oak posts, never a foot square, and set four feet in the ground. The floor is to consist of live oak posts four feet in length, set in the ground four feet, so that the tops of the posts will make an even surface. There are to be covered with plank, and a nail to driven in every square inch, and the walls are to be called and nailed in like manner. It is to have an upper story, framed and weather-boarded. There are to be two apartments above and two below. The lower story is to be nine feet high in the clear, and the upper story eight. The length of the building will be twenty-six feet, and the width eighteen.

The projection of this building must, of course, be believed that if we have no encasing railroads, in this country, we shall have them; for it is quite evident that so strong a box house to be made for honest men and good citizens. We think Judge Monroe, who is the mover of this moral enterprise, is guilty of either present or prospective slander against our peaceful citizens, in presuming that we need such an apparatus in Jackson County to keep our people in order. The county should present him for defamation of character, and claim, at least, ten thousand dollars damages for such a presumption. Perhaps, however, the Judge thinks our steamboats will import criminals in the country, and that he should begin in season to prepare for imported crime. If these are his views, we shall be obliged to excuse him. But if the steamboat creates the necessity for a jail, the expense of this last enterprise should be charged to the steamboat company. Grounds on this account, stand a good chance for success? What will one of our lawyers charge to manage such a suit?

WHAT IS JACKSON COUNTY?—Col. Owen and Judge White have been raising very good wheat in this county for several years. There is no doubt but by proper attention wheat would succeed well anywhere in Western Texas. It is not quite so good as wheat raised further north, yet it answers an admirable purpose to keep out and body on good terms with each other. Grounds on this account, stand a good chance for success? What will one of our lawyers charge to manage such a suit?

HABITATION IN TEXAS.—It is believed by many that hedging will not succeed in Texas. Instances of failure are pointed to. It is said the Orange Orange frequently dies, without any known cause, even after it has grown thirty two or three years. The Cherokee rose is said to be very good on peculiar soils, but that the cuttings are liable to die the first year, and that, when they grow, the ants injure them essentially. The Alabama rose is thought to be too slender, and its thorns too small to answer for hedging. The Chapparal is said to have thorns that are too sharp to turn cattle, and that it spreads too much wherever it gets a start.

With all these objections before us, which we have heard repeated again and again, we do not believe that either of them would fail to make a good hedge, if properly managed. People will not take the necessary pains to prepare the ground for hedges. Instead of putting cuttings or roots, in rich, mellow soil, well ditched, at the proper season, they are put in too late into the ground, and thereby prepared, and the drought of the following spring and summer kills them. Hardly any of the roads laid down by those who have succeeded in hedging in the older States, have been followed. Hedges of a substantial order have been made in Texas of all these materials. A substantial hedge has been made on the Colorado, by Mr. Head, of the Alabama rose, that is so complete, that neither an ox, a hog, or a squirrel can pass it. Once taken to get a good stand, and it was highly cultivated. The branches were neatly woven together.

Judge Monroe, of this county, made a hedge on bog willow soil, in four years, of Cherokee rose, that is protection against anything that can molest a field.

The tall, straight, Chapparal grows compact, the body of the shrub is stiff, it is a quick growth, and would make a substantial hedge in a few years, even if there were no thorns to it. Ditch by the side of it, and come extra attention may prevent it from spreading.

The Orange Orange dies mysteriously sometimes, and so do other trees; but this is no sweeping argument against it. They have succeeded in thousands of instances in other States, even as far west as New England. It is a native growth of Texas, and will generally succeed, where properly planted and cultivated.

In hedging in Texas, people generally try to make too much in one year. Let them begin with an amount that they know they can manage well, if it is but a rod, and their farms will be hedged much sooner than by undertaking too much.

THE INDIANOALA BULLETIN.—In a very flattering notice of our recent visit to that flourishing city, takes occasion to compliment us upon our good looks. Although our modesty prohibits us from copying such compliments, yet we are not conscious of being vain of a circumstance which is merely accidental, and not the result of any particular merit.

Our friend Brown, we think exhibited bad taste in demolishing his moustache, when he was sufficiently bearded before, and when his chief beauty consisted in a judicious concealment of his physiognomy.

Victoria Advocate.

Bare-faced, did you say, Judge! Well, now, dear sir, if from youthful years we sport a beardless face, it cannot be helped. Time that old, unerring avenger of blooming youth, will doubtless pursue us as he has you; but in the cases we hope to receive fewer marks of his vengeance, and to be able to look in the mirror without feelings of terror.

New York Correspondence.

New York, Jan. 1, 1853.

Moors, Bruce & Company.

New Years Day, our great Metropolitan festival, is past, and we can now settle down into the accustomed monotony of everyday life. From so early a period that the memory of man rung not to the contrary, the Knickerbockers of Gotham have devoted the first day of the year to an interchange of civilities. The lords of creation turn out en masse, while the ladies, radiant with their most fascinating attire, remain at home to receive them and lend them the hospitality of their well-filled tables. This is one of those old customs, the intrinsic excellence of which the World's Fair may be said to have closed. The building will remain open, but will rather be a series of domestic investigations and preparations, than a fair representation of the industry of foreign nations. Just now it is in a transition state between these two.

There is no material change in our markets, except a continued rise in breadstuffs. Good State, Western and Canadian brands now range between $7.50 and $7.75. Southern soils at $5. Wheat has risen to $2.10 for choice Germano. Corn stands at former prices.

Years, NEW YORKER.

Travelers who are detained a few days at Indianapolis will find themselves at home, and every way abundantly provided for, at the Hotel kept by Judge Varnell. The Judge is a rare genius—and if laughing is a remedy for the dyspepsia, we advise all persons afflicted with that lugubrious complaint to put up with him.

All sorts of humbugs, however, had better give him a wide berth—from the canting abolitionists of the North, to the tricky Southern gentleman, upon whose recovery from sickness the Judge was afraid to bet over $10, lest he should be thrown off!

The day, which commenced with innocent, though somewhat boisterous merriment, ended with the usual display of genteel rowdyism. Briaria would get into people's hats, and this, with the slippery sidewalk, rendered locomotion rather dangerous. The Police were kept busy enough after nightfall, taking care of those who were too far gone to take care of themselves. Tuesday morning there was an abundance of dull eyes and aching heads. The fair ones, however, enjoyed it to the last. The balance of the week is their, and they devote it to a general visiting of each other. Every one goes to see everybody else, and as no one is at home, a vast deal of calling can be managed in the course of the day with the aid of cards. So ends our holiday week, the great carnival season of New York.

We have, as already intimated, a considerable depth of snow on the ground, and with our present temperature it is likely to remain for some days. One who has not seen our streets during a slogging season, can form little conception of the lively scenes which they present. A sledge ride is a thing so rarely enjoyed by our people that it is universally regarded as a great treat, and everything that can be put on runners is set in motion. The unwieldy omnibuses are safely housed, and long sleighs, which often carry from seventy-five to one hundred passengers, are substituted for them. They are kept full to overflowing; for, though there are few able or willing to pay twelve dollars an afternoon for a private vehicle, (the regular price when snow is on the ground) every one can afford a sixpence, and feels that it is cheap enough for a ride of four miles. Crowded together on the seats, and clinging to the sides, take my word for it, they are a merry crew as they go dashing up Broadway to the tune of jingling bells. The youngsters, too, have their fun in pelting the living geese, as they pass, with snowballs; new hats are in danger during such a ride.

Thanks to our stars and a merciful Heaven, the hedge which will not succeed in Texas, instances of failure are pointed to. It is said the Orange Orange frequently dies, without any known cause, even after it has grown thirty two or three years. To-night is the last evening exhibition of the Crystal Palace. There is not, it seems, sufficient additional patronage after dark to warrant the expense of lighting. A great many goods have removed during the last month of the year, and their places have not yet been filled; nor are they likely to be occupied with articles of an interesting character. To all intents and purposes, the World's Fair may be said to have closed. The building will remain open, but will rather be a series of domestic investigations and preparations, than a fair representation of the industry of foreign nations. R. S. MORSE, Proprietor.

His business is conducted by his partner, Mr. L. C. Bur-keen.

He has constantly at hand a well selected stock of Groceries and Provisions, and especially those selected expressly for the Southern trade, which he has thoroughly renovated the past season, and newly furnished throughout. A large extension of room has been obtained by the proprietor's rearing the adjoining portion of the building, which will enable him to accommodate a much larger number of passengers than last winter.

No expense has been spared by the proprietor to enable him to merit a continuance of the general favor he has heretofore received; and every comfort will be made by himself and assistants for the comfort of his guests not only concerned but agreeable.

Conveniences attached to this hotel can be had at almost all hours.
