

Kitty's Korner

By Kitty Montgomery

Our men in Austin have spent 30 days in special session to find tax money to finance the state projects. The Senate even went so far as to pass a bill placing food under the sales tax.

After a great hue and cry from the food buyers in the state, the House turned the bill down with every member voting against it. They probablyet were probably thinking of their political futures. Something to think about too. I wouldn't give you a plugged nickel for the futures of the 15 senators whose votes passed the bill in the Senate.

The Speaker of the House, Gus Mutscher, refuses to consider a tax bill which would place beer and whiskey under the sales tax. This I understand, would solve the problem. Heaven knows the majority of Texans would prefer a tax on alcoholic beverages to a tax on food. Evidently Senator Mutscher's district is full of drinkers. If not, he may be in for trouble come election time.

Then, there is Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes who said "I am convinced Texas' tax burden will become larger instead of smaller," when criticizing a bill sent to the Senate by the House which would reduce expenditures and require no new taxes. He may see the day he will be forced to eat his words. With prices spiraling most Texas tax payers are very much against digging down into their pockets for more tax money.

A more conservative view on the part of the lawmakers, a reduction of waste, a cut down on excess government employees, and outlawing of lobbyists would go a long way in tax reform at the state level. To say nothing of deleting money for special projects for "the folks back home," which benefit a few at the expense of many.

Well, it did rain. Just when everybody thought it never would. Along with some rain almost every day this week, the temperatures have dropped and it is almost cool. Maybe the "long hot summer" is really over. Is it possible?

They are having the annual segregated football supper tonight. I don't mean racially segregated, as long as you are of the male sex and buy a booster club membership, you are welcome. I think this is a carryover from the days when women weren't allowed to vote or something.

If they continue this practice, I think they should call it by some name other than the Booster Club Banquet. Mothers are the staunchest boosters for the football team you can find and they have consistently been barred from this annual event.

I don't know, maybe they tell dirty stories or something.

Only the other day I was complaining about not being able to see in the darkroom when developing pictures and Tom said "What kind of pictures are you developing for heaven's sake, that have to be developed in the dark?"

Enrollment Off On Opening Day New School Term

Classes began in all schools Tuesday morning after a faculty meeting Monday which officially opened the 1969-1970 school term.

L. B. T. Sikes Supt. of schools, announced that total enrollment figures were 958 Tuesday, but more than likely would increase by next week. Enrollment for this time last year was 1,015. This year's figure is down 57 students from last year and 78 from the all time high enrollment of 1,036 in 1967.

High school enrollment was the same as last year with 240 students enrolled at the end of the first day's classes.

Enrollment at junior high school was 144 compared with 175 last year. Enrollment at North Elementary was 269, only four students off last year's figure. South Elementary dropped from 327 students last year to 305 this year.

Enrollment has increased the first week of school in past years and Sikes expects an increase in all schools this year following the Labor Day holiday next Monday. The majority of Texas schools begin classes the day following Labor Day.

Monday will be the first school holiday.

Northern Natural Seeks Pipeline Facilities In Crockett Co. VIP Field

The Federal Power Commission issued notice of an application by Northern Natural Gas Co., of Omaha, Neb., seeking authority to build about $1,031,550 in natural gas facilities in Crockett County, a recent Washington dispatch to state media announced.

Northern would build about 15 miles of 8-inch pipeline and a 350-horsepower compressor unit to transport gas in a northeasterly direction from the V. I. P. Field in Crockett County to its 12-inch line into the Hunt-Baggett Field.

Northern said it has purchased gas reserves from that field from two producers in amounts of up to 1 million cubic feet for each 4 billion cubic feet of recoverable reserves for a 36-month period. After that initial period, the agreement calls for Northern to take 1 million cubic feet daily for each 8 billion cubic feet of reserves.

The total proven resources in the field are estimated to be 40.175 billion cubic feet, Northern said. Of this total, about 15 billion are dedicated to Northern and negotiations are under way for purchase of the remainder.

Northern said the reserves would be used to meet present system requirements and to offset the normal decline in presently attached reserve.

Two Big Lake Men Killed In One-Car Mishap

Two traffic fatalities were recorded in the county early Saturday morning when two Big Lake men were killed instantly in a one car accident fourteen miles south of Ozona on Hwy 163.

Dead are Frazier Black, Jr., driver of the late model compact car, and Eliseo R. Levario. Both men were killed instantly. Another passenger, Pete Subia, also of Big Lake, was hospitalized with minor injuries.

The accident occurred when the car failed to negotiate a curve at high speed and overturned at least three times at 2:30 a. m. Saturday morning. Black, 24, and Levario, 22, were pronounced dead at the scene of the crash by Crockett County Peace Justice A. O. Fields. Subia was taken to (Continued on Last Page)

Parched Ranges Get Relief And Record High Temperatures Drop As Belated Rains Finally Come

A steady downpour through most of last night added 1.24 inches of moisture to the total fall and a heavy cloud cover and drizzle continued.

Scattered showers fell throughout the county this week, lowering temperatures and soaking parched dry rangeland. Cloud build up and thunderheads moved into the area late Saturday. Up to a half inch of rain was recorded on ranches in the northwest section of the county Saturday night while .15 of an inch was recorded in Ozona, welcome relief after a month of hot, dry weather.

Sunday afternoon .06 of an inch of moisture was recorded during an electrical storm. A trace of rain fell Monday and skies were overcast most of the day.

Heavy clouds moved in Tuesday and a slow falling rain left .25 of an inch of moisture here while country in the Howard's Well area measured 1.5 inches before daylight. In a hard shower during the noon hour Wednesday the official gauge at the Water District office recorded .63 of an inch, bringing the total rainfall in the city to 1.08 inches for the week.

East of town were reports of .50 of an inch and .50 and upwards was reported Tuesday in the southern section of the county. The lightest fall was west of town where .3 of an inch down to a trace was reported.

NIXON'S WELFARE PLANS

We have listened with interest to President Nixon's proposals for welfare reform and must admit that we have mixed feelings about them. There are some points in the program which we believe should have been tried long ago. But there are other points that left us cold. This is to be expected. No program that embraces such wide areas as the massive welfare system could please everyone on all points.

We agree with the President on the overall failure of welfare programs of the past. They have proven their own ineffectiveness. The welfare rolls grow, with no end in sight. We agree, too, with the concept of trying to keep a father in the house. Children need the guidance and the influence of a father.

We agree with the job training provisions of the President's proposal. We prefer seeing our taxes used to provide career training that would eventually place welfare recipients on private company payrolls. This would make taxpayers of them, and possibly eliminate the dole and other forms of handouts that degrade human beings.

We will be quick to complain if the President should default on his proposal "that all employable persons who choose to accept these payments be required to register for work or job training, provided suitable jobs are available either locally or if transportation is provided." Though this is a compromise proposal, it is at least a beginning on the right road.

We are skeptical of some of the other proposals. Such points as the basic income for all families is quite similar to the guaranteed annual income to which we are opposed. But for the moment, we take the positive view and emphasize the parts of the plan we can support. We will be watching, along with millions of other Americans in the coming months as the plan is brought before the Congress. If the welfare program works, we will all be beneficiaries. If it fails, we will have to seek other solutions. But at least we will have tried. That in itself is progress.

WHAT MADE SAMMY RUN?

Noted performer Sammy Davis, Jr., recently announced his intention of leaving the United States, where he gained fame and fortune with his many talents. Mr. Davis said that he plans to live six months of each year in the Bahamas, and the balance in London. His reason for becoming an expatriate is that the Bahamas is "basically a black nation."

We wonder how much of Sammy Davis' fortune was derived from the people of the Bahamas or England. Why did he choose London as his other home? His own answer is that London is "where the action is." If

Washington News Letter

Congressman O. C. Fisher

A new and welcome approach to be employed in the selection of Judges to fill federal court vacancies, was announced recently by President Nixon. He has said that he plans to submit the names of proposed appointees for approval to the Judiciary Committee of the American Bar Association before nominating such men to the bench. The new arrangement, however, will not apply to the Supreme Court.

This is a most significant development and will undoubtedly be widely acclaimed by the American people. It simply means that for the first time in modern history the President will not let politics and expediency guide his judgment in filling these important posts in the judiciary.

It will be recalled that it was FDR who first openly applied politics and ideology as controlling factors in picking judges. In the Roosevelt and succeeding administrations judgeships have too often been treated as political plums where politics, ideology and close friendship have often been the controlling factors.

President Nixon has now changed that. The make-up of our courts, particularly the Supreme Court, has in the past and will in the future, have a very vital effect upon the lives, the liberties, and the aspirations of all Americans.

While Supreme Courts are left out of the new method of choosing judges, the President, from all accounts, made an excellent choice when he picked Judge Warren Burger for Chief Justice. And now he makes it clear that he intends to continue to pick judicial appointees on the sole basis of qualifications. A breath of fresh air!

that represents the depth of his thinking, the nation is not likely to be any poorer for his departure.

In one respect the loss of Mr. Davis is something of a gain for the United States. It permits the rest of the world to see that disidents are free to leave our country without fear of harassment from the government. We wonder how many artists behind the Iron and Bamboo Curtains would like to be similarly free to leave their countries.

Maybe there is some poor soul in the Bahamas who would be grateful for an opportunity to take Mr. Davis' place in the U. S. Someone who would be thankful for the opportunities that Mr. Davis apparently feels are unimportant. Someone who would be proud to be an American.

Lightning Sets Fire That Burned Over 225 Acres

Over 225 acres of rangeland on the Troy Williams, Richard Flowers and Holt ranches north of Ozona were burned Sunday afternoon before firemen were able to get the blaze under control. Lightning started the blaze at a point where the boundaries of the three ranches meet and it spread quickly.

Firemen were called to a vacant lot next to 1113 11th St. Saturday morning just before noon where cedar brush was blazing out of control. The blaze started from burning trash.

Firemen are hoping for a rest as the general showers which fell throughout the county last weekend and the first part of the week should lessen the danger of grass fires.

Cow, Deer Cause Of Crashes On Hiways In Area

Animals in the road were the direct cause of two traffic mishaps investigated by Highway patrolmen Orvil Perry and John Harris this week. The people involved were not injured, but both animals were killed.

A truck driven by Herbert Brooks of Indiana hit a cow on Hwy 290 about 14 miles west of Ozona late Friday, knocking it into the oncoming lane. Timothy Searson of El Paso swerved to avoid the cow and lost control as he hit the gravel. The late model sports car he was driving came to rest on a fence. Both vehicles were damaged.

The other mishap occurred about 2 a. m. Monday about four miles south of Ju-no on Hwy 163 when Tom Allen, driving a 1965 Dodge pickup, was unable to avoid a deer in the highway. Damage to the pickup was around $200.

Cynthia and Freddy Summers returned to their home in Oklahoma City last week after a three-weeks visit with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hubbard.

WASHINGTON AND SMALL BUSINESS

Another Barn Burning?

Researchers of the National Federation of Independent Business are noting a quite perplexing trend.

This is the growing number of respondents to the organization's field surveys who volunteer some comment advocating that the federal government institute wage and price controls.

It is not much more than 20 years when the wartime OPA, or Office of Price Administration, was finally buried, presumably dead. Yet the ghost of OPA again stalks the land.

Paradoxically, in the early days of the Federation, a major campaign was launched to put the OPA out of business. This was in line with the almost unanimous vote by the members that OPA should be ended.

The red tape, bureaucratic interference and bumbling, not to mention outright graft, was the hallmark of the government's attempt to control inflation by controlling prices.

Youngsters who were not yet dry behind the ears, along with many people who had never successfully held a job in their lives, played a large role in the bureaucratic aggregation that tried to be the law giver, the police, and the judges of business.

And OPA was not without humor, either, like the time a regulation was published on the slaughter of "female steers."

Yet today there is a small but growing sentiment among independent businessmen for price and wage controls.

This is paradoxical, because the independent businessman is traditionally against any Federal interference. And any attempt at wage and price control is bound to bring down upon the economy hordes of half-baked theorists, busybodies, and all manner of motley persons clothed with the authority of the government.

The fact that any businessman would advocate such a program is perhaps the best evidence of the frustration that pervades the land.

Obviously, the solution to the current problems is to cut back government drastically, not increase it.

It is true that one can get rid of the mice by burning down the barn, but such methods do leave one mightily in need of a barn.

Would you like to live in a house like this? It might be fun for awhile, but chances are that the novelty would soon wear off. When it comes to daily living, Americans are comfort-lovers. We want the latest car, deep freeze, stove or vacuum cleaner.

Because we pride ourselves on being modern, sometimes we are apt to think of going to church every Sunday as old-fashioned and out of gear with the present-day world. But the Church, in case you haven't noticed, is keeping up with the times far better than a lot of us. And isn't it true that certain basic truths, traditions and ideals cannot be gauged as modern or old-fashioned? The Church is ready to face tomorrow. Why not go next Sunday and see for yourself?

Executive V. P. Southern States Industrial Council

Truth Telling

In a republic, more than in any type of society, it is imperative that men who aspire to the highest national leadership bear the hallmarks of integrity, self-control and candor. A free society expects to have all its questions answered, all its doubts dispelled by honest answers. What is essential is a climate of confidence surrounding the men who hold the levers of power.

The United States has been fortunate in this respect over the almost 200 years of its history. Our first President, Geo. Washington, was the man who, in the famous story, "couldn't tell a lie." There's no question about it, the United States was properly established because President Washington had an unblemished reputation for truth telling.

The annals of the United States are rich in leaders who were renowned for their devotion to honesty and to the decent principles of life. Thomas Jefferson was such a man. So was John C. Calhoun, the great Southern statesman and thinker, who placed principle above political expediency. In our own time, Dwight David Eisenhower earned the profound respect of his countrymen not only for his achievement in war and peace but for his personal rectitude.

The nation is thinking of this heritage of forthrightness in the wake of the Teddy Kennedy affair. The situation in which Senator Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.) finds himself has been described as a tragedy. Certainly, the night on a small island off the Massachusetts coast was a tragedy for the attractive young woman who drowned in the automobile driven by Senator Kennedy.

But for many Americans the situation is more accurately described as a mess than a true tragedy.

Before the drowning, Senator Kennedy was on the highboard to greater power. It was widely assumed that he would seek the presidency, and many people believed that sooner or later he would attain this goal. Now, however, the situation is utterly changed.

While no one can safely predict the distant future, political forecasters of all views are agreed that Senator Kennedy has little chance of being nominated for President in 1972, let alone be elected.

No one desires to kick a man when he is down. The Kennedy story should be considered, nonetheless, for the lessons it provides to the American people. The political disaster Senator Kennedy has suffered stems not from the accident itself, but from his reaction following it and his course since the death of the young lady. The Senator admitted that he was in a state of panic following the fatal accident. Panic may be an understandable reaction for many ordinary men, but one thing is clear; the United States can't afford to have a leader, a Chief Executive, who loses his nerve when a great crisis touches him.

In the 1970s the United States is likely to encounter one crisis after another. That's the very nature of the presidency in this cold war period. Obviously, the presidency requires a man who is panic proof, a man who "keeps his cool" when the situation is most dangerous and when the pressures are most intense. The President of the United States must be a man who, to paraphrase Rudyard Kipling, keeps his head when all around him are losing theirs. Senator Edward Kennedy may have his virtues, but control in a crisis unquestionably is not one of them. The people of Massachusetts may be satisfied to have him stay in Washington as a senator, but it is hard to believe that the people of the United States would want him in the White House. If he suffered panic after an automobile disaster, what would he do if Moscow or Peking threatened a missile attack?

Other questions are also involved in this affair, chiefly the question of candor. Up to this time Senator Kennedy has refused to submit to open questioning on his behavior or the events in which he was involved last month. Even the Washington Post, a longtime admirer of the Kennedys, said there is a look of "calculated suppression of the missing details." It referred to an "ugly suspicion that there was, and still is, a careful cold-blooded conspiracy to cover something up."

The United States cannot have as a leader a man about whom there is this kind of suspicion. A President can't be a man who appears to be engaged in covering up embarrassing details. The American people must have faith in their President when he talks to them about the grim realities of war and peace. They must believe their Chief Executive will not conceal the truth. It is hard to imagine that the time will come when the county will accept as president a man who refuses to talk to reporters about his own behavior.

The nation wants — to use John F. Kennedy's phrase — a "profile of courage," and Edward Kennedy doesn't offer such a profile.

What Makes It Rain?

By Capt. Arthur Kyle, Jr.
Meteorologist, US Air Force

Perhaps the question most asked of a meteorologist, especially in West Texas, is "When is it going to rain?" No one can say for sure when it will rain, and the best answer is a probabilistic one: "20% chance this afternoon, 10% chance tonight, etc." But that type of answer is not much help to someone whose grass is dying for lack of water. Since I can not answer the rain question, I thought it would be helpful to the general public to try to explain why. After some thought, I decided that the best way to explain why it doesn't rain is to explain some of the processes which do lead to precipitation.

First of all, precipitation does not occur unless there are clouds in the sky. All air has some moisture in it, so the problem is to make the air saturated. This can be done either by having a large water source (lake or ocean) available, so that the evaporated moisture is mixed with the air, or by cooling the air. Water or dew found on a glass of ice tea is proof that cooling will cause saturation and hence condensation. As an air parcel rises, it is surrounded by lower pressure, and this makes the parcel expand. This causes the air to cool, and if it is cooled enough, saturation occurs. Thus we have produced a cloud. Needless to say the more moisture available in the air, the less the air has to rise. West Texas air is noted for its low humidity, so its ability to produce clouds is greatly diminished. Houston is an example of high humidity and frequent rainfall.

Rain falls from clouds for the same reason anything falls to the earth. The earth's gravity pulls it. But if every cloud is made of

WASHINGTON AND SMALL BUSINESS AS HEARD BY HEARD

Big Brother Watches

If the Census Bureau, for the nation-wide nose counting next year gets away with adding still another Paul Pry question to the list that will be asked, Congress should perhaps cover census takers with combat pay, insurance for engaging in a hazardous occupation, and perhaps even be prepared to award Purple Hearts for injuries suffered while on duty.

For it is very possible that some over-zealous census questioners are going to be in line for a fistful of knuckles in the mouth, if not worse.

The chief Paul Fry of the Census Bureau has now told Congress that it intends to ask for the precise legal relationship of people living together. It is perhaps conceivable that those who are living together in what is known legally as an illicit relationship, or in the common vernacular are "shacking up" will not be bothered too much by this question.

After all, it can be presumed in most of these cases the flouting of convention that results in setting up housekeeping sans clergy will not cause them undue embarrassment in describing the relationship. At least not as much embarrassment as the penalty of a $100 fine, or two months in jail, or both.

And perhaps this question is justified. Taking the census is rather a boring procedure for the interviewers. Presumably, the more prudent among the census takers will at times get titillated over the replies.

© National Federation of Independent Business

But consider the situation that can result with the census taker asking, for example, a hard working, Mass attending Irishman, who stopped on the way home to hoist a couple with the boys.

The result could well be reported in an interview with a neighbor running something like this, "So this little government pipsqueak pointed over to Molly and said to a big brother of a lad like Paddy, and he ye legally married to this woman and the next thing you know that poor soul's teeth were clattering down on the parlor floor like hailstones."

There has been substantial Congressional objection, led by Congressman Betts of Ohio, to Census Bureau plans to probe into such areas as how many bathrooms in the house, if the bath is shared with others, and similar questions.

The Paul Prys of the Census Bureau have argued such questions are necessary for the purposes of furnishing business with market information.

But it is difficult to ascertain how this particular new question will help the mattress manufacturers determine their future market potentials. After all, a mattress is a mattress, regardless of the legal position of those occupying it. But perhaps the Census Bureau is also infected with the current ultra-leftism and is seeking statistical data to prove that fornication is an institution guaranteed by the Bill or Rights.

water (or ice) droplets, why doesn't it rain constantly from all clouds? The droplets in clouds are exceedingly small, so that the effect of gravity on them is minute. The air current are constantly in motion, and since it was necessary to have ascending currents to produce cloud droplets, these current keep the droplets from falling. The cloud droplet of average size is only 1/2500 inch in diameter. Only when the droplet grows to a diameter of 1/125 inch or larger can it fall. The average raindrop contains a million times as much water as the tiny cloud droplet. The growth of a cloud droplet to a size large enough to fall out is the cause of rain and other forms of precipitation. This growth is done generally by a combination of two events: (1) cloud droplets collide and stick together (2) cloud droplets grow on other particles, such as dust or smoke.

This then is how clouds and rain are produced once the air is forced to rise, but how is this done? This can be done by several methods — one of a large scale, which produces widespread precipitation, and one of a small scale. A front is defined as the boundary between two different air masses. If it is a cold front, this means that the cold and dry air is replacing warm and humid air. The air not only pushes the warm air forward, but also upward since the cold air is more dense. And as the warm air ascends it produces clouds and precipitation. This is why large areas receive rain just before and just after a cold frontal passage. Due to the strong south wind that blows throughout the summer, cold fronts do not penetrate into West Texas. Thus folks must rely on the second major method of causing air to rise. This uplifting is due to heating of air by the ground surface. Air over the hot ground is constantly churning, due to the heating ability of different types of terrain. This motion produces the normal cumulus clouds seen every day starting at about noon and disappearing at sundown. However, whenever there is enough moisture available, the cumulus can grow to much higher heights and thus become a thunderstorm (cumulonimbus). Since a thunderstorm is about 10-20 miles in diameter and its life is of the order of a few hours, the chances of any given area receiving some of its rain are indeed small.

I hope I have added to everyone's knowledge on the whys and why-nots of rain. At least maybe next time when there is a long dry spell you will think twice before blaming it on the weatherman.

spell you will think twice before blaming it on the weatherman.

TIPS For Gardeners

From The Ozona Garden Club
By Mrs. Bailey Post

The Ozona Garden Club's summer flower show, "Fun with Flowers," proved to be both fun and a delightful surprise for the members, judges and guests. Exhibitors of the arrangements followed the schedule classes, therefore no confusion in entering or placement. Improvement in planning and design was noticeable. In the horticulture division there were flowers, shrubs, vines and tree specimens that are not exhibited in the annual spring show. They were well groomed and some displayed in a new attractive manner that one of the exhibitors observed in the Dallas spring show.

Blue ribbon awards were given to Mrs. Mike Clayton, 4, Mrs. J. W. Howell, 4, Mrs. J. C. Schroeder, 3, Mrs. Chas. Williams, 2, Mrs. Larry Arledge, 1, Mrs. Glenn Sutton, 1, Mrs. Leonard Boyd, 1, Mrs. Bailey Post, 2, Mrs. Lacy Way of Big Lake, 1, Mrs. Maurice Mullins of San Angelo, 2.

Judges were Mrs. Lacy Way and Mrs. Joe T. Johnston of Big Lake and Mrs. Bailey Post.

From now until blooming time give special attention to your chrysanthemums. For large exhibition mums, leave only four well developed canes that form at the axle of each leaf. Pinch others out. Leave only two if spell you will think twice before blaming it on the weatherman.

extra large blossoms are wanted. Plants should be staked as they grow, in order to have straight stems. Go over plants regularly and pinch off all laterals as they form and while tender. When buds begin to form, which should be soon, give them a feeding of a balanced fertilizer or liquid manure. Water well after each feeding. Do this every ten days or until color shows in the bud, then stop the feeding. As soon as buds form in clusters, pinch or rub off carefully all except one bud to each cane, always leaving the center or terminal bud if well formed.

Healthy vigorous plants need lots of water but not overly wet soil. During very hot weather, the foliage of mums should be sprayed daily to increase atmospheric moisture and check red spider.

The small flowering types or cushion mums, should have had tops pinched out when six inches tall to encourage branching and a well formed mound. Do not pinch out tops any later, as they should be ready to set buds. These buds should not be pinched or rubbed out as the large mums, but left to form a mass of blooms.

Traveling Family Uses Citizen Band Radio to Summon Help When Harassed By Trio In Another Car

Sheriff Billy Mills received the following letter after his department came to the aid of a family pulling a trailer house between Ozona and Sheffield, who radioed in on citizen band for help when a car containing "three unsavory characters" began harassing them.

"Dear Sirs:

"May we take this opportunity to thank you for your alertness and the cooperation of your department in coming to our aid on Friday night, approximately 8:30, Aug. 15, when we were being harassed by the three unsavory characters in the TBird with New York license.

"Also, we would like to thank your local CBER who answered our call and sought help for us. I am sure that we have never been so scared in our lives and there is little doubt in our minds that they were going to try to rob us and from that point on, one one knows what else their intentions would have been.

"We have tried to teach our boys to be respectful of the law. This incident made quite an impression on both boys and may I quote what the younger boy said "Never, never in all my life will I call a Fuzz a Fuzz again!" This adds to our full support of the police in all towns and cities. Thank you again.

Very truly yours,
R. L. McGee

The family had cashed a check for $100 in a Sheffield Cafe and the three boys followed them. They radioed into Ozona for help and R. C. LeBleu relayed their message to the sheriff. Sheriff's officers answered the call immediately. No charges were filed against the trio, who claimed they were having tire trouble and seeking help.
